98. Weigel, David (July 21, 2009). "Your Facts Are Useless on Me" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20090725232319/http://washingtonindependent.com/51918/your-facts-are-useless-on-me>). The Washington Independent. Archived from the original (<http://washingtonindependent.com/51918/your-facts-are-useless-on-me>) on July 25, 2009. Retrieved July 23, 2009.

99. Lewis, Errol (July 23, 2009). "Obama's critics launch the birth of a nutty nation" (http://www.nydailynews.com/opinions/2009/07/23/2009-07-23_obamas_critics_launch_the_birth_of_a_nutty_nation.html). Daily News. New York. Archived (https://web.archive.org/web/20090725090634/http://www.nydailynews.com/opinions/2009/07/23/2009-07-23_obamas_critics_launch_the_birth_of_a_nutty_nation.html) from the original on July 25, 2009. Retrieved July 23, 2009.
00. Ingold, John (April 15, 2009). "5,000 attend tax-day 'tea party' at Capitol" (http://www.denverpost.com/rockiesmailbag/ci_12147073). The Denver Post. Archived (https://web.archive.org/web/2009072720927/http://www.denverpost.com/rockiesmailbag/ci_12147073) from the original on July 27, 2009. Retrieved July 23, 2009.
01. Guadiano, Nicole (July 21, 2009). "Castle gets booed; video hits the Web" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20090724082909/http://www.delawareonline.com/article/20090721/NEWS/307210003>). The News Journal. Wilmington, DE. Archived from the original (<http://www.delawareonline.com/article/20090721/NEWS/307210003>) on July 24, 2009. Retrieved July 23, 2009.
02. "Obama's Birthplace Still blog fodder" (<http://www.nbcnews.com/id/21134540>) Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20190807224404/http://www.nbcnews.com/id/21134540>) August 7, 2019, at the Wayback Machine, NBC Nightly News. July 22, 2009.
03. Murray, Mark (July 21, 2009). "First thoughts: Finding an enemy" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20090724081623/http://firstread.msnbc.msn.com/archive/2009/07/21/2002893.aspx>). MSNBC. Archived from the original (<https://firstread.msnbc.msn.com/archive/2009/07/21/2002893.aspx>) on July 24, 2009. Retrieved July 23, 2009.
04. Sargent, Greg (July 29, 2009). "Michael Steele Blasts Birtherism As 'Unnecessary Distraction', Says Obama Is 'U.S. Citizen'" (<http://theplumline.whorunsgov.com/republican-national-committee/exclusive-michael-steele-blasts-birtherism-as-unnecessary-distraction-says-obama-is-us-citizen/>) Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20090801094658/http://theplumline.whorunsgov.com/republican-national-committee/exclusive-michael-steele-blasts-birtherism-as-unnecessary-distraction-says-obama-is-us-citizen/>) August 1, 2009, at the Wayback Machine, The Plum Line (blog).
05. Pollak, Joel B. (July 29, 2009). "The Political Alchemy of Birtherism" (http://www.americanthinker.com/2009/07/the_political_alchemy_of_birth.html) Archived (https://web.archive.org/web/20090802073338/http://www.americanthinker.com/2009/07/the_political_alchemy_of_birth.html) August 2, 2009, at the Wayback Machine. The American Thinker.
06. Montopoli, Brian (July 23, 2009). "Who Are the Birthers?" (<http://www.cbsnews.com/blogs/2009/07/23/politics/politicalhotsheet/entry5182746.shtml>) Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20090726035029/http://www.cbsnews.com/blogs/2009/07/23/politics/politicalhotsheet/entry5182746.shtml>) July 26, 2009, at the Wayback Machine, CBS News.
07. Andrew Sullivan (August 9, 2009). "Obama still isn't president in the south" (http://www.timesonline.co.uk/tol/comment/columnists/andrew_sullivan/article6788515.ece). The Sunday Times. London. Archived (https://web.archive.org/web/20110805124741/http://www.timesonline.co.uk/tol/comment/columnists/andrew_sullivan/article6788515.ece) from the original on August 5, 2011. Retrieved September 15, 2009.
08. Stein, Sam (July 27, 2009). "Resolution Proclaiming Hawaii Obama's Birthplace Passes House Unanimously" (http://www.huffingtonpost.com/2009/07/27/house-to-consider-counter_n_245741.html). The Huffington Post. Archived (https://web.archive.org/web/20090731093704/http://www.huffingtonpost.com/2009/07/27/house-to-consider-counter_n_245741.html) from the original on July 31, 2009. Retrieved July 27, 2009.
09. Wisckol, Martin (October 27, 2008). "O.C. suspicions over Obama's citizenship continue". The Orange County Register. Santa Ana, CA.
10. "Rumour that Barack Obama is Muslim was believed by 22pc". Agence France-Presse. January 29, 2009.

11. Thrush, Glenn (July 30, 2009). "58 percent of GOP not sure/doubt Obama born in US" (http://www.politico.com/blogs/glennthrush/0709/58_of_GOP_not_suredont_believe_Obama_born_in_US.html). Politico.com. Archived (https://web.archive.org/web/20090802122852/http://www.politico.com/blogs/glennthrush/0709/58_of_GOP_not_suredont_believe_Obama_born_in_US.html) from the original on August 2, 2009. Retrieved July 30, 2009.
12. Nyhan, Brendan (July 30, 2009). "Disturbing poll on beliefs about Obama's birth" (https://web.archive.org/web/20100131080109/http://www.pollster.com/blogs/disturbing_poll_on_beliefs_abo.php). National Journal/Pollster.com. Archived from the original (http://www.pollster.com/blogs/disturbing_poll_on_beliefs_abo.php) on January 31, 2010. Retrieved July 30, 2009.
13. Goddard, Taegan (August 3, 2009). "Just 32% of Virginia Republicans Think Obama is a Citizen" (https://web.archive.org/web/20090805074710/http://politicalwire.com/archives/2009/08/03/just_32_of_virginia_republicans_think_obama_is_a_citizen.html). Political Wire. Archived from the original (http://politicalwire.com/archives/2009/08/03/just_32_of_virginia_republicans_think_obama_is_a_citizen.html) on August 5, 2009. Retrieved August 4, 2009.
14. Bernick Jr., Bob (August 7, 2009). "Some Utahns still doubt Obama birth stats" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20100715043236/http://www.deseretnews.com/article/1,5143,705321969,00.html>). Deseret News. Salt Lake City. Archived from the original (<http://www.deseretnews.com/article/1,5143,705321969,00.html>) on July 15, 2010. Retrieved August 8, 2009.
15. "Many Fault Media Coverage of Health Care Debate" (<http://people-press.org/report/533/many-fault-media-coverage-of-health-care>). The Pew Research Center for the People & the Press. August 6, 2009. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20100508214118/http://people-press.org/report/533/many-fault-media-coverage-of-health-care>) from the original on May 8, 2010. Retrieved April 19, 2010.
16. Clinton, Josh; Roush, Carrie (August 10, 2016). "Poll: Persistent Partisan Divide Over 'Birther' Question" (<https://www.nbcnews.com/politics/2016-election/poll-persistent-partisan-divide-over-birther-question-n627446>). NBC News. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20171024100156/https://www.nbcnews.com/politics/2016-election/poll-persistent-partisan-divide-over-birther-question-n627446>) from the original on October 24, 2017. Retrieved October 23, 2017.
17. Etheridge, Eric (July 22, 2009). "'Birther' Boom" (<http://opinionator.blogs.nytimes.com/2009/07/22/birther-boom/>). The New York Times. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20110305140059/http://opinionator.blogs.nytimes.com/2009/07/22/birther-boom/>) from the original on March 5, 2011. Retrieved April 20, 2011.
18. Barr, Andy (August 4, 2010). "41% of Republicans: President Obama foreign-born" (<http://www.politico.com/news/stories/0810/40644.html>). Politico. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20110501050034/http://www.politico.com/news/stories/0810/40644.html>) from the original on May 1, 2011. Retrieved April 20, 2011.
19. Amira, Dan (July 26, 2010). "Senate Tea-Party Candidate Accidentally Reveals What He Thinks of Birthers" (http://nymag.com/daily/intel/2010/07/gop_senate_candidate_getting_t.html). New York. Archived (https://web.archive.org/web/20100729034133/http://nymag.com/daily/intel/2010/07/gop_senate_candidate_getting_t.html) from the original on July 29, 2010. Retrieved July 26, 2010.
20. Henderson, Nia-Malika (March 17, 2011). "Potential GOP candidates face 'birther' question" (https://www.washingtonpost.com/politics/potential-gop-candidates-face-birther-question/2011/03/16/ABnx1Em_story.html). Politico. Archived (https://web.archive.org/web/20170916121543/https://www.washingtonpost.com/politics/potential-gop-candidates-face-birther-question/2011/03/16/ABnx1Em_story.html) from the original on September 16, 2017. Retrieved August 24, 2017.
21. Kraushaar, Josh (July 20, 2009). "Castle versus Birther" (http://www.politico.com/blogs/scorecard/0709/Castle_confronted_by_Birther.html). Politico. Archived (https://web.archive.org/web/20120218030318/http://www.politico.com/blogs/scorecard/0709/Castle_confronted_by_Birther.html) from the original on February 18, 2012. Retrieved September 9, 2011.

22. Barnes, Fred (September 15, 2010). "Why Mike Castle Lost" (<http://www.weeklystandard.com/blogs/why-mike-castle-lost>). Weekly Standard. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20120105115112/http://www.weeklystandard.com/blogs/why-mike-castle-lost>) from the original on January 5, 2012. Retrieved September 9, 2011.
23. Cillizza, Chris (September 15, 2010). "Christine O'Donnell upsets Mike Castle in Delaware Senate primary" (<http://voices.washingtonpost.com/thefix/senate/christine-odonnell-upsets-mike.html>). The Washington Post. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20111130010726/http://voices.washingtonpost.com/thefix/senate/christine-odonnell-upsets-mike.html>) from the original on November 30, 2011. Retrieved September 9, 2011.
24. McGrue, Bonzo (July 4, 2009), Austin Tea Party Protest (<https://www.flickr.com/photos/bonzo/sets/72157621019883032/>) Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20151009000824/https://www.flickr.com/photos/bonzo/sets/72157621019883032/>) October 9, 2015, at the Wayback Machine, Flickr. Retrieved July 2, 2010.
25. Savan, Leslie (July 24, 2009). "The Birthers of a Nation" (<http://www.thenation.com/blog/birthers-nation?page=0,0,0,2>). The Nation. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20110502052357/http://www.thenation.com/blog/birthers-nation?page=0,0,0,2>) from the original on May 2, 2011. Retrieved November 25, 2010.
26. Maddow, Rachel (March 13, 2009). "The Rachel Maddow Show" (<http://www.nbcnews.com/id/29720423>). NBC News. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20200215094851/http://www.nbcnews.com/id/29720423>) from the original on February 15, 2020. Retrieved November 10, 2019.
27. Victor, Greg (March 8, 2009). "New Ideas, Sharp Opinions". Pittsburgh Post-Gazette.
28. Abruzzese, Sarah; Ward, Jon (August 6, 2009). "Poll finds doubts on Obama's birth" (<http://www.washingtontimes.com/news/2009/aug/06/poll-finds-doubts-on-obamas-birth/>). The Washington Times. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20100215210350/http://www.washingtontimes.com/news/2009/aug/06/poll-finds-doubts-on-obamas-birth/>) from the original on February 15, 2010. Retrieved February 15, 2010.
29. Sailer, Steve (September 18, 2008). "Was Obama Born in Hawaii?" (<http://www.unz.com/isteve/was-obama-born-in-hawaii/>). The Unz Review. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20180207123408/http://www.unz.com/isteve/was-obama-born-in-hawaii/>) from the original on February 7, 2018. Retrieved February 6, 2018.
30. Editorial (December 10, 2008). "Peddlers of lies about Obama are an unprincipled lot". Honolulu Star-Bulletin.
31. Hollyfield, Amy (June 27, 2008). "Obama's birth certificate: Final chapter" (<http://www.politifact.com/truth-o-meter/article/2008/jun/27/obamas-birth-certificate-part-ii/>). St. Petersburg Times. FL. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20150926215748/http://www.politifact.com/truth-o-meter/article/2008/jun/27/obamas-birth-certificate-part-ii/>) from the original on September 26, 2015. Retrieved December 10, 2008.
32. Paglia, Camille (November 12, 2008). "Obama surfs through," (<http://www.salon.com/opinion/paglia/2008/11/12/palin/>) Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20081211174809/http://www.salon.com/opinion/paglia/2008/11/12/palin/>) December 11, 2008, at the Wayback Machine Salon.
33. "Hawaii birth record request form" (<http://hawaii.gov/health/vital-records/pdf/birth.pdf>) Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20090305202420/http://hawaii.gov/health/vital-records/pdf/birth.pdf>) March 5, 2009, at the Wayback Machine.
34. Montgomery, Rick (December 2, 2008). "Anti-Obama bloggers challenge birthplace" (<http://www.mcclatchydc.com/homepage/v-print/story/57036.html>). Kansas City Star. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20090720015427/http://www.mcclatchydc.com/homepage/v-print/story/57036.html>) from the original on July 20, 2009. Retrieved June 23, 2009.
35. Stanek, Steven (December 10, 2008). "Obama conspiracy theories abound" (<http://www.thenational.ae/article/20081211/FOREIGN/712096929/1014/NEWS>). The National. Dubai. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20090723142403/http://www.thenational.ae/article/20081211/FOREIGN/712096929/1014/NEWS>) from the original on July 23, 2009. Retrieved December 11, 2008.

36. Milbank, Dana (December 9, 2008). "President Alien, and Other Tales From the Fringe" (<https://www.washingtonpost.com/wp-dyn/content/article/2008/12/08/AR2008120803446.html?hpid=opinionsbox1>). The Washington Post. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20161201020756/http://www.washingtonpost.com/wp-dyn/content/article/2008/12/08/AR2008120803446.html?hpid=opinionsbox1>) from the original on December 1, 2016. Retrieved August 24, 2017.
37. Ron Reagan, on his July 23, 2009, radio talk show.
38. Gaudiano, Nicole; Shortridge, Dan (July 26, 2009). "Firestorm over Castle video has given birth to a digital dilemma" (<https://pqasb.pqarchiver.com/delawareonline/doc/275260517.html>). The News Journal. Wilmington, DE. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20161107071925/http://pqasb.pqarchiver.com/delawareonline/doc/275260517.html>) from the original on November 7, 2016. Retrieved July 5, 2017.
39. Knickerbocker, Brad (April 30, 2011). "Are Donald Trump and his fellow 'birthers' racist?" (<http://www.csmonitor.com/USA/Politics/2011/0430/Are-Donald-Trump-and-his-fellow-birthers-racist>). The Christian Science Monitor. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20110503175348/http://www.csmonitor.com/USA/Politics/2011/0430/Are-Donald-Trump-and-his-fellow-birthers-racist>) from the original on May 3, 2011. Retrieved May 1, 2011.
40. Loeb, Steven (April 30, 2011). "Bill Maher: Donald Trump Is A Racist But He Doesn't Know It" (<http://www.businessinsider.com/maher-trump-breitbart-birther-obama-hbo-video2011-4>). Business Insider. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20110502073429/http://www.businessinsider.com/maher-trump-breitbart-birther-obama-hbo-video2011-4>) from the original on May 2, 2011. Retrieved May 1, 2011.
41. James, Frank (April 27, 2011). "Obama Avoidance Of Race-Birther Link Consistent With 2008 Campaign" (<https://www.npr.org/blogs/itsallpolitics/2011/04/29/135838201/obama-avoidance-of-race-birther-link-consistent-with-2008>). NPR. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20150401114424/http://www.npr.org/blogs/itsallpolitics/2011/04/29/135838201/obama-avoidance-of-race-birther-link-consistent-with-2008>) from the original on April 1, 2015. Retrieved June 6, 2018.
42. Thompson, Arienne (April 29, 2011). "Letterman calls Trump a racist" (<http://content.usatoday.com/communities/entertainment/post/2011/04/letterman-calls-trump-a-racist-1>). USA Today. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20110501071650/http://content.usatoday.com/communities/entertainment/post/2011/04/letterman-calls-trump-a-racist-1>) from the original on May 1, 2011. Retrieved May 1, 2011.
43. Gass, Nick (April 18, 2011). "California Politician's Email Depicts Obama as a Chimp, Sparks Outrage" (<https://abcnews.go.com/Politics/marilyn-davenport-chimp-email-ignites-controversy-republicans/story?id=13400480>). ABC News. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20110421061731/http://abcnews.go.com/Politics/marilyn-davenport-chimp-email-ignites-controversy-republicans/story?id=13400480>) from the original on April 21, 2011. Retrieved July 23, 2011.
44. Malcolm, Andrew (April 18, 2011). "Orange County GOP official considers photo of President Obama as baby chimp 'amusing'" (<http://latimesblogs.latimes.com/washington/2011/04/obama-davenport-racist-chimp.html>). Los Angeles Times. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20110421072952/http://latimesblogs.latimes.com/washington/2011/04/obama-davenport-racist-chimp.html>) from the original on April 21, 2011. Retrieved July 23, 2011.
45. "A Certificate of Embarrassment" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20110429060847/http://www.nytimes.com/2011/04/28/opinion/28thu1.html>). The New York Times. April 27, 2011. Archived from the original (<https://www.nytimes.com/2011/04/28/opinion/28thu1.html>) on April 29, 2011. Retrieved May 4, 2011.
46. Smith, Ben (May 13, 2010). "Hawaii's 'birther bill'" (http://www.politico.com/blogs/bensmith/0510/Hawaiis_birther_bill.html). Politico. Archived (https://web.archive.org/web/20100516015221/http://www.politico.com/blogs/bensmith/0510/Hawaiis_birther_bill.html) from the original on May 16, 2010. Retrieved September 20, 2010.
47. Abrams, Jim (January 8, 2009). "Congress Declares Obama the Next President" (http://seattletimes.nwsourc.com/html/politics/2008603247_apelectoralvotes.html). The Seattle Times. Associated Press. Archived (https://web.archive.org/web/20110622062349/http://seattletimes.nwsourc.com/html/politics/2008603247_apelectoralvotes.html) from the original on June 22, 2011. Retrieved June 12, 2010. "In centuries-old tradition, Congress confirms Obama as the next president"

48. "Obama urges unity against 'raging storms'" (<http://www.nbcnews.com/id/28745226>). NBC News. Associated Press. January 20, 2009. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20131109023343/http://www.nbcnews.com/id/28745226/>) from the original on November 9, 2013. Retrieved December 15, 2009. "First black president takes office, facing an array of problems"
49. "Eligibility Lawsuits" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20071224234118/http://www.therightsideoflife.com/>). The Right side of life. Archived from the original (<http://www.therightsideoflife.com/>) on December 24, 2007. Retrieved July 13, 2009.
50. Gonzales, Veronica (November 14, 2008). "Hampstead man's suit contests President-elect Obama's citizenship" (http://www.starnewsonline.com/article/20081114/ARTICLES/811140244/-1/SPORTS0701?Title=Hampstead_man_s_suit_contests_President_elect_Obama_s_citizenship) Archived (https://web.archive.org/web/20120128052303/http://www.starnewsonline.com/article/20081114/ARTICLES/811140244/-1/SPORTS0701?Title=Hampstead_man_s_suit_contests_President_elect_Obama_s_citizenship) January 28, 2012, at the Wayback Machine, Wilmington Star-News (North Carolina).
51. McLaughlin, Sheila (November 1, 2008). "Lawsuit tossed on Obama's birth site" (<http://news.cincinnati.com/article/20081101/NEWS0107/811010316>), Cincinnati Enquirer. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20120211045806/http://news.cincinnati.com/article/20081101/NEWS0107/811010316>) February 11, 2012, at the Wayback Machine
52. "Judge tosses suit over Obama's birth" (<http://www.washingtontimes.com/news/2008/oct/26/around-the-nation-14956785/>) Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20081029192641/http://www.washingtontimes.com/news/2008/oct/26/around-the-nation-14956785/>) October 29, 2008, at the Wayback Machine, The Washington Times. October 26, 2008.
53. Holmes, Jamie (October 23, 2008). "Obama citizenship questions continue", WPTV (West Palm Beach, Florida).
54. "Conn. court upholds Obama's place on ballot" (<http://www.courant.com/news/local/statewire/hc-03113426.apds.m0709.bc-ct--obamnov03,0,6569534.story>), Hartford Courant. Associated Press. November 3, 2008. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20081107023107/http://www.courant.com/news/local/statewire/hc-03113426.apds.m0709.bc-ct--obamnov03,0,6569534.story>) November 7, 2008, at the Wayback Machine
55. "State declares Obama birth certificate genuine" (<http://ap.google.com/article/ALeqM5iw1At-4G1xuE50oXVFRIBPFR3dggD945OLU00>). Associated Press. October 31, 2008 Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20081130002657/http://ap.google.com/article/ALeqM5iw1At-4G1xuE50oXVFRIBPFR3dggD945OLU00>) November 30, 2008, at the Wayback Machine
56. Savage, David G. (December 8, 2008). "Fast facts on Barack Obama citizenship lawsuits" (https://web.archive.org/web/20090721090000/http://www.orlandosentinel.com/topic/chi-obama-citizen_q_and_adec08,0,7609381.story). Orlando Sentinel. Archived from the original (http://www.orlandosentinel.com/topic/chi-obama-citizen_q_and_adec08,0,7609381.story) on July 21, 2009. Retrieved December 15, 2009.
57. Jonsson, Patrik (November 26, 2008). "A last electoral hurdle for Obama" (<http://www.csmonitor.com/USA/Politics/2008/1126/a-last-electoral-hurdle-for-obama>). The Christian Science Monitor. Boston. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20101024225133/http://www.csmonitor.com/USA/Politics/2008/1126/a-last-electoral-hurdle-for-obama>) from the original on October 24, 2010. Retrieved December 15, 2009. "A Web-driven challenge to his legitimacy targets members of the Electoral College."
58. "Arizona Plows Controversial Ground With Birther Bill" (<http://www.foxnews.com/politics/2011/04/16/arizona-plows-controversial-ground-birther/>). Phoenix: Fox News Channel. Associated Press. April 16, 2011. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20131209014424/http://www.foxnews.com/politics/2011/04/16/arizona-plows-controversial-ground-birther/>) from the original on December 9, 2013. Retrieved December 21, 2013.

59. "Gov. Brewer Vetoes Birther Bill, Guns on Campus" (https://web.archive.org/web/20110428103934/http://www.myfoxphoenix.com/dpp/news/politics/state_politics/brewer-vetoes-birther-bill-guns-on-campus-4-18-2011). Phoenix: myfoxphoenix.com. April 18, 2011. Archived from the original (<http://www.myfoxphoenix.com/story/18119918/gov-brewer-vetoes-birther-bill-guns-on-campus>) on April 28, 2011. Retrieved December 21, 2013. "I never imagined being presented with a bill that could require candidates for President of the greatest and most powerful nation on earth to submit their 'early baptismal or circumcision certificates' ... this is a bridge too far. This measure creates significant new problems while failing to do anything constructive for Arizona."
60. Karabell, Zachary (2004). Chester Alan Arthur (<https://archive.org/details/chesteralanarthu00kara>) (1st ed.). New York: Times Books. ISBN 978-0-8050-6951-8.
61. Hinman, A.P. (1884). How a British Subject became President of the United States (<https://archive.org/stream/Hinman/HinmanAll#page/n0/mode/1up>). New York.
62. Sanchez, Yvonne Wingett (May 22, 2012). "Hawaii sends Arizona verification of Obama's birth" (<http://azcentral.com/news/politics/articles/2012/05/22/20120522obama-birth-hawaii-arizona-verification.html>). The Arizona Republic. Archived (<https://wayback.archive-it.org/all/20120619072133/http://www.azcentral.com/news/politics/articles/2012/05/22/20120522obama-birth-hawaii-arizona-verification.html>) from the original on June 19, 2012. Retrieved February 17, 2021.
63. "Arizona Birther Renaissance Sparked By Sheriff Arpaio, Secretary of State Bennett" (<http://www.thedailybeast.com/articles/2012/05/24/arizona-birther-renaissance-sparked-by-sheriff-arpaio-secretary-of-state-bennett.html>). The Daily Beast. May 24, 2012. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20120709134517/http://www.thedailybeast.com/articles/2012/05/24/arizona-birther-renaissance-sparked-by-sheriff-arpaio-secretary-of-state-bennett.html>) from the original on July 9, 2012. Retrieved July 10, 2012.
64. "Hawaii verifies President Obama's birth records to Arizona's elections chief Ken Bennett" (<http://www.nydailynews.com/news/politics/hawaii-verifies-president-obama-birth-records-arizona-elections-chief-ken-bennett-article-1.1083039>). Daily News. New York: Associated Press. May 23, 2012. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20120525103815/http://www.nydailynews.com/news/politics/hawaii-verifies-president-obama-birth-records-arizona-elections-chief-ken-bennett-article-1.1083039>) from the original on May 25, 2012. Retrieved May 24, 2012.
65. Seitz-Wald, Alex (June 7, 2012). "Orly Taitz's Birther Suit Backfires" (http://www.salon.com/2012/06/07/orly_taitz_birther_suit_backfires/singleton/). Salon. Archived (https://web.archive.org/web/20120607162213/http://www.salon.com/2012/06/07/orly_taitz_birther_suit_backfires/singleton/) from the original on June 7, 2012. Retrieved June 9, 2012.
66. Carpenter, Tim (September 13, 2012). "Kansas panel delays ballot decision on Obama" (<http://cjonline.com/news/2012-09-13/kansas-panel-delays-ballot-decision-obama>). Topeka Capital Journal. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20120915052711/http://cjonline.com/news/2012-09-13/kansas-panel-delays-ballot-decision-obama>) from the original on September 15, 2012. Retrieved September 14, 2012.
67. "Celock, John. "At Kansas Birther Hearing, Board Allows Obama On Ballot" [[Huffington Post]] September 17, 2012" (https://huffingtonpost.com/2012/09/17/kansas-birther-hearing-obama-orly-taitz_n_1890446.html). Archived (https://web.archive.org/web/20170329235717/http://www.huffingtonpost.com/2012/09/17/kansas-birther-hearing-obama-orly-taitz_n_1890446.html) from the original on March 29, 2017. Retrieved December 11, 2019.
68. Koppelman, Alex (August 5, 2009). "Salon's handy-dandy guide to refuting the Birthers" (http://www.salon.com/news/feature/2009/08/05/birther_faq/). Salon. Archived (https://web.archive.org/web/20090809023256/http://www.salon.com/news/feature/2009/08/05/birther_faq/) from the original on August 9, 2009. Retrieved August 5, 2009. "Myth #8"
69. "Official transcript of the May 27, 2009, WhiteHouse press briefing" (<https://obamawhitehouse.archives.gov/video/White-House-Press-Briefing-7/27/09#transcript>). whitehouse.gov. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170206105253/https://obamawhitehouse.archives.gov/video/White-House-Press-Briefing-7/27/09#transcript>) from the original on February 6, 2017. Retrieved February 5, 2017 – via National Archives.

70. Press briefing by White House Press Secretary Robert Gibbs \(https://obamawhitehouse.archives.gov/the_press_office/Briefing-by-White-House-Pres-Secretary-Robert-Gibbs-7-27-09/\) Archived (http://web.archive.org/web/20090730021021/http://www.whitehouse.gov/the_press_office/Briefing-by-White-House-Pres-Secretary-Robert-Gibbs-7-27-09/) July 30, 2009, at the Wayback Machine, White House (July 27, 2009). Retrieved July 28, 2009.
71. Tapper, Jake (July 27, 2009). "Gibbs: Birth Certificate Controversy is "Made-Up Fictional Nonsense" " (<http://blogs.abcnews.com/politicalpunch/2009/07/gibbs-birth-certificate-controversy-is-madeup-fictional-nonsense.html>). ABC News. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20090729015406/http://blogs.abcnews.com/politicalpunch/2009/07/gibbs-birth-certificate-controversy-is-madeup-fictional-nonsense.html>) from the original on July 29, 2009. Retrieved July 28, 2009.
72. Tapper, Jake; Miller, Sunlen (August 6, 2009). "Gibbs on Birthers' Theories: 'You Couldn't Sell This Script in Hollywood'" (<http://blogs.abcnews.com/politicalpunch/2009/08/gibbs-on-birthers-theories-you-couldnt-sell-this-script-in-hollywood.html>). ABC News. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20090809090953/http://blogs.abcnews.com/politicalpunch/2009/08/gibbs-on-birthers-theories-you-couldnt-sell-this-script-in-hollywood.html>) from the original on August 9, 2009. Retrieved August 11, 2009.
73. Stein, Sam (February 4, 2010). "Obama Takes On Birthers, Uganda Anti-Gay Law At Prayer Breakfast (VIDEO)" (https://huffingtonpost.com/2010/02/04/obama-takes-on-birthers-u_n_449087.html). The Huffington Post. Archived (https://web.archive.org/web/20170907040957/http://www.huffingtonpost.com/2010/02/04/obama-takes-on-birthers-u_n_449087.html) from the original on September 7, 2017. Retrieved December 11, 2019.
74. Thrush, Glenn (August 29, 2010). "President Obama blasts lies, disinformation" (<http://www.politico.com/news/stories/0810/41575.html>). Politico. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20100830121453/http://www.politico.com/news/stories/0810/41575.html>) from the original on August 30, 2010. Retrieved August 30, 2010.
75. "Obama Kills At White House Correspondents Dinner" (https://huffingtonpost.com/2010/05/01/2010-white-house-correspo_n_559901.html). The Huffington Post. May 1, 2010. Archived (https://web.archive.org/web/20180118171407/https://www.huffingtonpost.com/2010/05/01/2010-white-house-correspo_n_559901.html) from the original on January 18, 2018. Retrieved December 11, 2019.
76. Kiely, Kathy (March 13, 2011). "Obama, Daniels Crack Wise at Gridiron Dinner" (<http://www.nationaljournal.com/whitehouse/obama-daniels-crack-wise-at-gridiron-dinner-20110313?mrefid=mostViewed>). National Journal. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20110315180856/http://www.nationaljournal.com/whitehouse/obama-daniels-crack-wise-at-gridiron-dinner-20110313?mrefid=mostViewed>) from the original on March 15, 2011. Retrieved March 14, 2011.
77. Negrin, Matt (March 17, 2011). "Obama keeps joking about birthers" (http://www.politico.com/politico44/perm/0311/wheres_this_guy_from_e2d453ec-b54c-44f5-9757-cbcec3fe786a.html). Politico. Archived (https://web.archive.org/web/20110320144149/http://www.politico.com/politico44/perm/0311/wheres_this_guy_from_e2d453ec-b54c-44f5-9757-cbcec3fe786a.html) from the original on March 20, 2011. Retrieved March 18, 2011.
78. Daunt, Tina (January 17, 2012). "Obama Asks Betty White to Release Long-Form Birth Certificate" (<https://www.hollywoodreporter.com/news/betty-white-obama-birth-certificate-282712>). The Hollywood Reporter. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20200620022519/https://www.hollywoodreporter.com/news/betty-white-obama-birth-certificate-282712>) from the original on June 20, 2020. Retrieved June 18, 2020.
79. Oliphant, James (April 15, 2011). "Obama: Donald Trump's birth certificate talk helps me" (<https://latimes.com/news/politics/la-pn-obama-trump-birth-20110415,0,5233740.story?track=rss>). Los Angeles Times. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20210217120355/https://www.latimes.com/world/la-xpm-2011-apr-15-la-pn-obama-trump-birth-20110415-story.html>) from the original on February 17, 2021. Retrieved February 17, 2021.
80. "Text of Obama's remarks on his birth certificate" (<http://www.nbcnews.com/id/42782681>). NBC News. April 27, 2011. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20210217120328/https://www.nbcnews.com/id/wbna42782681>) from the original on February 17, 2021. Retrieved April 27, 2011.

81. "Made In The USA Mug" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20110723002253/http://store.barackobama.com/made-in-the-usa-mug.html>). Obama for America. Archived from the original (<http://store.barackobama.com/made-in-the-usa-mug.html>) on July 23, 2011. Retrieved September 4, 2012.

External links

- Barack Obama's vital records FAQ (<http://health.hawaii.gov/vitalrecords/faq-obama/>) Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20191009051649/http://health.hawaii.gov/vitalrecords/faq-obama/>) October 9, 2019, at the Wayback Machine, Hawaii State Department of Health
-  US Supreme Court dismisses appeal on Obama's citizenship at Wikinews

Analysis

- The Truth About Obama's Birth Certificate (https://web.archive.org/web/20081025003852/http://www.factcheck.org/elections-2008/born_in_the_usa.html) by FactCheck.org
- False Rumor about Obama's Birth Certificate (<http://www.snopes.com/politics/obama/birthcertificate.asp>) from Snopes.com
- PolitiFact's guide to Obama's birth certificate (<http://www.politifact.com/truth-o-meter/article/2011/apr/08/politifacts-guide-obamas-birth-certificate/>) from PolitiFact
- Email Hoax: Occidental College Transcripts Reveal Foreign Citizenship (http://urbanlegends.about.com/od/barackobama/a/obama_citizenship_questioned.htm) from Urban Legends
- Obama Conspiracy Theories (<http://www.obamaconspiracy.org/>) watchdog website

Commentary

- Culture of Conspiracy: The Birthers (<https://web.archive.org/web/20090306090447/http://dyn.politico.com/printstory.cfm?uuid=BF547975-18FE-70B2-A85A7CB6F7889EED>) by The Politico
- Anti-Obama Lunatics Living in Denial (<http://www.nation.co.ke/News/-/1056/635400/-/jull727/-/index.html>) by The Daily Nation
- 11 Most Paranoid Obama Conspiracy Theories (https://huffingtonpost.com/2009/11/03/11-most-paranoid-obama-co_n_343771.html)
- The former British police officer who wants to bring down Barack Obama (<https://www.theguardian.com/world/2009/nov/22/barack-obama-british-conspiracist>) by The Guardian
- American Grotesque (<https://www.gq.com/news-politics/big-issues/201001/american-grotesque-john-jeremiah-sullivan-birthers?printable=true>) by John Jeremiah Sullivan, GQ Magazine cover story, January 2010
- Birthers (<http://www.salon.com/news/politics/birthers/index.html>) collected commentary at Salon.com

Multimedia

- The Daily Show*: "The Born Identity" (<http://www.thedailyshow.com/watch/wed-july-22-2009/the-born-identity>) July 22, 2009
- Gordon Liddy on MSNBC's Hardball With Chris Matthews (<http://www.nbcnews.com/id/22425001>) July 23, 2009
- The Colbert Report*: "Womb Raiders" Part 1 (<http://www.colbertnation.com/the-colbert-report-videos/29638/july-28-2009/womb-raiders---the-fight-for-the-truth-behind-obama-s-birth>) and Part 2 with Orly Taitz (<http://www.colbertnation.com/the-colbert-report-videos/229691/july-28-2009/womb-raiders---orly-taitz>) July 28, 2009
- The Stupid Virus (https://web.archive.org/web/20091114134217/http://current.com/items/91442946_the-stupid-virus.htm) by Current TV's SuperNews!, November 14, 2009

- History of the Birther Movement \(https://web.archive.org/web/20110413181339/http://www.life.com/gallery/58961/history-of-the-birther-movement\)
-

Retrieved from "https://en.wikipedia.org/w/index.php?title=Barack_Obama_citizenship_conspiracy_theories&oldid=1025756104"

This page was last edited on 29 May 2021, at 11:06 (UTC).

Text is available under the Creative Commons Attribution-ShareAlike License; additional terms may apply. By using this site, you agree to the Terms of Use and Privacy Policy. Wikipedia® is a registered trademark of the Wikimedia Foundation, Inc., a non-profit organization.

Deep state in the United States

The deep state is a conspiracy theory^{[1][2][3][4][5]} which suggests that collusion and cronyism exist within the U.S. political system and constitute a hidden government within the legitimately elected government.^{[6][7][8][9][10]} Author Mike Lofgren believes that there is "a hybrid association of elements of government and parts of top-level finance and industry that is effectively able to govern the United States without reference to the consent of the governed as expressed through the formal political process",^[11] or consider the deep state to encompass corruption prevalent among career politicians and civil servants.^[12] The 'deep state' theory has been dismissed by authors for The New York Times^[13] and The New York Observer.^[14] University of Miami Professor Joseph Uscinski says, "The concept has always been very popular among conspiracy theorists, whether they call it a deep state or something else."^[15]

Contents

Associated with the military–industrial complex

Statements and opinions about the deep state

Deep State and Donald Trump

2017

2020

Polls

Closely related concepts

See also

References

Notes

Books critical of deep state conspiracy theory

Associated with the military–industrial complex

The term "deep state" has been associated with the "military–industrial complex" by Mike Lofgren, who has identified this complex as the private part of the deep state.^[16] However, Marc Ambinder has suggested that a myth about the "deep state" is that it functions as one entity; in reality, he states, "the deep state contains multitudes, and they are often at odds with one another."^[17]

Statements and opinions about the deep state

- According to the journalist Robert F. Worth, "the expression deep state originated in Turkey in the 1990s, where the military colluded with drug traffickers and hitmen to wage a dirty war against Kurdish insurgents".^[18] The term "deep state" is likely a translation from the Turkish derin devlet (literally: "deep state" = "deep polity").^[19]

- In 2014, Bill Moyers, the former press secretary during the Johnson Administration, hosted a discussion on his PBS television show with a longterm congressional staff member examining the concept of a "deep state hiding in plain sight" that promotes military conflicts regardless of which party is in charge of the executive or legislative branches.^[20] Likewise in The Concealment of the State, political science professor Jason Royce Lindsey^[21] argues that even without a conspiratorial agenda, the term deep state is useful for understanding aspects of the national security establishment in developed countries, with emphasis on the United States. Lindsey writes that the deep state draws power from the national security and intelligence communities, a realm where secrecy is a source of power.^{[22]:35–36} Historian Alfred W. McCoy states that the increase in the power of the U.S. intelligence community since the September 11 attacks "has built a fourth branch of the U.S. government" that is "in many ways autonomous from the executive, and increasingly so."^[23]
- In a Foreign Affairs journal article and subsequent expansion in a law review, UCLA Law professor Jon D. Michaels^[24] rejects "the premise of an American deep state" in a defense of what he terms the 'administrative state' against Donald Trump's attempts to "deconstruct" it. Michaels argues that the concept of the 'deep state' is more relevant to developing governments such as Egypt, Pakistan and Turkey, "where shadowy elites in the military and government ministries have been known to countermand or simply defy democratic directives" than the United States "where governmental power structures are almost entirely transparent".^{[25][26]}
- Former NSA leaker Edward Snowden has used the term generally to refer to the influence of civil servants over elected officials: "the deep state is not just the intelligence agencies, it is really a way of referring to the career bureaucracy of government. These are officials who sit in powerful positions, who don't leave when presidents do, who watch presidents come and go ... they influence policy, they influence presidents."^[27]
- In an opinion piece by linguist Geoffrey Nunberg, he said the "deep state" is an "elastic label – depending on the occasion" and its "story conforms to the intricate grammar of those conspiracy narratives". He also contrasted the change in the "twin bogeys of conservative rhetoric", from bureaucratic "meddlesome bunglers" of "big government" to "conniving ideologues" who "orchestrates complex schemes".^[28]
- According to political scientist George Friedman, the Deep State has been in place since 1871 and continues beneath the federal government, controlling and frequently reshaping policies; in this view the U.S. civil service, was created to limit the power of the president. Prior to 1871, the president could select federal employees, all of whom served at the pleasure of the president. This is no longer the case.^[29]
- On March 20, 2018, Senator Rand Paul said "Absolutely there is a deep state because the deep state is the intelligence communities that do not have oversight." He continued, "There is no skeptic" [emphasis in original] among the four Republican and four Democratic Senators "who are supposedly" providing oversight, so that the intelligence communities, "with their enormous power ... have become a deep state."^[30] On December 4, 2018, Paul, in commenting on the CIA Director briefing only those eight Senators rather than the entire Senate, he added "Do you want to know what the deep state is? The CIA Director is coming to the U.S. Senate and only briefing a select few members of the Senate. Why shouldn't every senator know what is going on? The deep state wants to keep everyone in the dark. This is just ridiculous"^[31] On December 10, 2018, he said "The very definition of a 'deep state' is when the very people, congressional leaders – people who are elected by the people – are not allowed to hear the intelligence."^[32]
- Writing in a piece for the Moyers & Company website, John Light asserts that the term deep state "has been used for decades abroad to describe any network of entrenched government officials who function independently from elected politicians and work toward their own ends," but during the era of

Trump the term has been twisted to mean "a sub rosa part of the liberal establishment, that crowd resistant to the reality TV star's insurgent candidacy all along."^[33]

- Michael Crowley, senior foreign affairs correspondent for Politico, wrote, "Beneath the politics of convenience is the reality that a large segment of the United States government really does operate without much transparency or public scrutiny, and has abused its awesome powers in myriad ways."^[34]
- Tufts University professor Michael J. Glennon claimed that President Barack Obama did not succeed in resisting and/or changing what he calls the "double government": the defense and national security network.^[35] Mike Lofgren felt Obama was pushed into the Afghanistan "surge" in 2009.^[11] Another major campaign promise Obama made was the closure of Guantanamo Bay Prison Camp, which he was unable to accomplish. This has been attributed indirectly to the influence of a deep state.^[36]
- Rolling Stone magazine quoted Fox News panelist Charles Krauthammer, who called the idea ridiculous, and summarized the Deep State concept this way: "Is there actually a deep state? If you mean entrenched bureaucracy, then of course there is. If you mean a government-wide conspiracy, then the answer is almost certainly no."^[6] Salon magazine traced Donald Trump's belief in a Deep State to conspiracy theorist Alex Jones of Infowars, who, it says, "believes that the government – a.k.a. the "deep state" – has orchestrated attacks and events throughout history. This includes the bombing of the Oklahoma City federal building, the massacre at Sandy Hook (he claims that many of the parents were actors), the Boston Marathon attack, and on and on," including believing that the 9/11 attack was "executed by the United States government." The magazine also points to Trump's long-time ally, Roger Stone, as an influence. Stone has written several books which center on conspiracy theories, and blames Lyndon Johnson for the death of President John F. Kennedy, and alleges that Ted Cruz's father was involved in that assassination.^[7]

Deep State and Donald Trump

2017

President Donald Trump's supporters use the term to refer to allegations that intelligence officers and executive branch officials guide policy through leaking or other internal means.^{[37][13]} According to a July 2017 report by the United States Senate Committee on Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs, "the Trump administration was being hit by national security leaks 'on a nearly daily basis' and at a far higher rate than its predecessors encountered".^[38] According to David Gergen, quoted in Time magazine, the term has been appropriated by Steve Bannon and Breitbart News and other supporters of the Trump Administration in order to delegitimize the critics of that presidency.^[36]

In May 2017, former Democratic U.S. Representative Dennis Kucinich stated in an interview on Fox News that a deep state within the bureaucracy was trying to destroy Trump's presidency. He further elaborated "The political process of the United States of America [is] under attack by intelligence agencies and individuals in those agencies...You have politicization of agencies that is resulting in leaks from anonymous, unknown people and the intention is to take down a president...Now this is very dangerous to America. It's a threat to our republic, it constitutes a clear and present danger to our way of life. So we have to be asking, what is the motive of these people? Who's putting these leaks out? Why doesn't somebody come forward and make a charge and put their name and reputation behind it, instead of attacking through the media and not substantiating their position?" In an interview several months earlier Kucinich said "What's at the core of this is an effort by some in the intelligence community to upend any positive relationship between the U.S. and Russia...There are people trying to separate the U.S. and Russia so this military-industrial-intel axis can cash in."^{[39][40]}

Trump and Steve Bannon, his former chief strategist, have both made allegations about a deep state which they believed was interfering with the president's agenda.^{[41][42][43]} In 2018, describing the deep state as an "entrenched bureaucracy", Trump accused the United States Department of Justice "of being part of the 'deep state'" in a statement advocating the prosecution of Huma Abedin.^[44] Some Trump allies and right-wing media outlets have alleged that former president Barack Obama is coordinating a deep state resistance to Trump.^{[41][45]} While the belief in a deep state is popular among Trump supporters, critics maintain that it has no basis in reality,^[46] arguing that the sources of the leaks frustrating the Trump administration lack the organizational depth of deep states in other countries. Critics also warned that use of the term in the U.S. could undermine confidence in vital institutions and be used to justify suppressing dissent.^{[41][47]}

2020

In February 2020, Trump cabinet member and acting White House Chief of Staff Mick Mulvaney, when asked if a deep state working against President Trump exists, stated that it was "absolutely, 100% true".^[48]

In an article for The New York Review of Books, Michael Tomasky quoted Newt Gingrich as using the term in the context of the Robert Mueller investigation in July 2018, quoting Gingrich stating: "[Mueller is] ... the tip of the deep state spear aimed at destroying or at a minimum undermining and crippling the Trump presidency".^[49] Gingrich then added to the statement that "the brazen redefinition of Mueller's task tells you how arrogant the deep state is and how confident it is it can get away with anything".^[49]

Stephen Walt, professor of international relations at Harvard University, has written: "There's no secret conspiracy or deep state running U.S. foreign policy; to the extent that there is a bipartisan foreign-policy elite, it is hiding in plain sight."^[50]

The term has also been used in comments on the "deep state"-like influence allegedly wielded by career military officers such as H. R. McMaster, John Kelly and James Mattis in the Trump administration. The anthropologist C. August Elliott described this state of affairs as the emergence of a "shallow state": "an America where public servants now function as tugboats guiding the President's very leaky ship through the shallows and away from a potential shipwreck".^[51]

On September 5, 2018, The New York Times published an anonymous op-ed titled "I Am Part of the Resistance Inside the Trump Administration" written by a "senior official in the Trump Administration". In the essay, the official was critical of President Trump and claimed "that many of the senior officials in [Trump's] own administration are working diligently from within to frustrate parts of his agenda and his worst inclinations".^[52] House Minority Leader Kevin McCarthy described this as evidence of the deep state at work,^[53] and David Bossie wrote an op-ed at Fox News claiming this was the deep state "working against the will of the American people".^[54] However, there was some doubt as to the actual importance of the anonymous author, with some estimating that hundreds or thousands of possible positions could be considered "senior officials"^[55] and the inherent paradox of exposing the existence of such a group.^[56]

Polls

According to a poll of Americans in April 2017, about half (48%) thought there was a "deep state", defined as "military, intelligence and government officials who try to secretly manipulate government", while about a third (35%) of all participants thought it was a conspiracy theory and the remainder (17%) had no opinion. Of those who believe a "deep state" exists, more than half (58%) said it was a major problem, a net of 28% of those surveyed.^{[57][58]}

A March 2018 poll found most respondents (63%) were unfamiliar with the term "deep state", but a majority believe that a deep state likely exists in the United States when described as "a group of unelected government and military officials who secretly manipulate or direct national policy". Three-fourths (74%) of the respondents say that they believe this type of group probably (47%) or definitely (27%) exists in the federal government.^{[59][60][61]}

An October 2019 The Economist/YouGov poll found that, without giving a definition of "deep state" to respondents, 70% of Republicans, 38% of independents, and 13% of Democrats agreed that a "deep state" was "trying to overthrow Trump."^[62]

Closely related concepts

Bob Jessop, in his book The State: Past, Present, Future,^[12] notes the similarity of three constructs:

1. 'Deep state' – for which he cites Mike Lofgren's 2014 definition: "a hybrid association of elements of government and parts of top-level finance and industry that is effectively able to govern ... without reference to the consent of the governed as expressed through the formal political process".^[11]
2. 'Dark state' – "networks of officials, private firms, media outlets, think tanks, foundations, NGOs, interest groups, and other forces that attend to the needs of capital, not of everyday life" while "concealed from public gaze" (or "hidden in plain sight"), citing Jason Lindsay (2013).^{[22]:37–38}
3. 'The Fourth Branch' of U.S. government – consisting of "an ever more unchecked and unaccountable centre ..., working behind a veil of secrecy", citing Tom Engelhardt (2014).^[63]

See also

- Council for National Policy
- I Am Part of the Resistance Inside the Trump Administration
- Fourth branch of government
- List of American conspiracy theories
- Groundswell group
- Shadow government (conspiracy)

References

Notes

1. Barnes, Julian E.; Goldman, Adam; and Savage, Charlie (December 18, 2018) "Blaming the Deep State: Officials Accused of Wrongdoing Adopt Trump's Response" (<https://www.nytimes.com/2018/12/18/us/politics/deep-state-trump-classified-information.html>) The New York Times
2. Ruper, Aaron (June 17, 2019) "Trump accidentally undercuts his own "deep state" FBI conspiracy theory" (<https://www.vox.com/2019/6/17/18681833/trump-stephanopoulos-fbi-obama-conspiracy-theory>) Vox
3. Rothkopf, David (February 22, 2017) "The Shallow State" (<https://foreignpolicy.com/2017/02/22/the-shallow-state-trump/>) Foreign Policy

4. Jacobson, Zachary Jonathan (April 8, 2019) "How paranoia about the 'deep state' brought down a president" (<https://www.washingtonpost.com/outlook/2019/04/08/how-paranoia-about-deep-state-brought-down-president/>) The Washington Post
5. Blake, Aaron (March 28, 2019) "Trump and Hannity binge on conspiracy theories in Trump's first post-Mueller Fox News interview" (<https://www.washingtonpost.com/politics/2019/03/28/trump-hannity-binge-conspiracy-theories-trumps-first-post-mueller-fox-news-interview/>) The Washington Post
6. Hafford, Michael (March 9, 2017). "Deep State: Inside Donald Trump's Paranoid Conspiracy Theory – Rolling Stone" (<https://www.rollingstone.com/culture/culture-news/deep-state-inside-donald-trumps-paranoid-conspiracy-theory-124236/>). Rollingstone.com. Retrieved May 29, 2019.
7. "The Alex Jones influence: Trump's 'deep state' fears come from his conspiracy theorist ally and adviser" (https://www.salon.com/2017/03/09/the-alex-jones-influence-trumps-deep-state-fears-come-from-his-conspiracy-theorist-ally-and-adviser_partner/). Salon.com. March 10, 2017. Retrieved May 28, 2019.
8. Goldsmith, Jack (April 22, 2018). "The 'deep state' is real. But are its leaks against Trump justified?" (<https://www.theguardian.com/commentisfree/2018/apr/22/leaks-trump-deep-state-fbi-cia-michael-flynn>). The Guardian. Retrieved October 23, 2018.
9. Osnos, Evan (May 21, 2018). "Trump vs. the 'Deep State'" (<https://www.newyorker.com/magazine/2018/05/21/trump-vs-the-deep-state>). The New Yorker. Retrieved October 23, 2018.
10. Fallows, James (July 15, 2013). "The Impending Senate Vote on Confirming Nominees" (<https://www.theatlantic.com/politics/archive/2013/07/the-impending-senate-vote-on-confirming-nominees/277801/>). The Atlantic Monthly. Retrieved October 21, 2018.
11. Lofgren, Mike (February 21, 2014). "Essay: Anatomy of the Deep State" (<https://billmoyers.com/2014/02/21/anatomy-of-the-deep-state/>). BillMoyers.com. Retrieved October 18, 2018.
12. Jessop, Bob (December 2015). The State: Past, Present, Future. John Wiley & Sons. p. 224.
13. Taub, Amanda; Fisher, Max (February 16, 2017). "As Leaks Multiply, Fears of a 'Deep State' in America" (<https://www.nytimes.com/2017/02/16/world/americas/deep-state-leaks-trump.html>). The New York Times.
14. Schindler, John R. (February 22, 2017). "Rebellion Brews in Washington—But American 'Deep State' Is Only a Myth" (<https://observer.com/2017/02/donald-trump-administration-cia-deep-state/>). The New York Observer. Retrieved June 13, 2018.
15. "How the "deep state" conspiracy theory went mainstream" (<http://www.newsweek.com/deep-state-conspiracy-theory-trump-645376>). Newsweek. August 2, 2017. Retrieved August 12, 2017.
16. "'Deep State' Truthout Interview" (<http://www.mikelofgren.net/how-the-powers-that-be-maintain-the-deep-state/>). February 22, 2016. Retrieved August 9, 2017.
17. Ambinder, Marc; Ambinder, Marc (March 10, 2017). "Five myths about the deep state" (https://www.washingtonpost.com/opinions/five-myths-about-the-deep-state/2017/03/10/ddb09b54-04da-11e7-ad5b-d22680e18d10_story.html). The Washington Post. ISSN 0190-8286 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/0190-8286>). Retrieved August 9, 2017.
18. Worth, Robert F. (2016). A Rage for Order: The Middle East in Turmoil, from Tahrir Square to ISIS (<https://books.google.com/books?id=PNOLCgAAQBAJ&q=rage+for+order+worth&pg=PP7>). Pan Macmillan. p. 139. ISBN 9780374710712.
19. "The Turkish Origins of the 'Deep State'" (<https://daily.jstor.org/the-unacknowledged-origins-of-the-deep-state/>), jstor.org, April 10, 2017.
20. Note: The preceding sentence may be a misinterpretation of this source. <https://www.pbs.org/video/moyers-company-deep-state-hiding-plain-sight/>
21. "Faculty and Staff in the Department of Political Science" (<https://www.stcloudstate.edu/politicalscience/faculty-staff.aspx>). St. Cloud State University. Retrieved December 29, 2020.
22. Lindsey, Jason Royce (2013). The Concealment of the State. Bloomsbury. ISBN 978-1-4411-7245-7.

23. Scahill, Jeremy (July 22, 2017). "Donald Trump and the Coming Fall of the American Empire" (<https://theintercept.com/2017/07/22/donald-trump-and-the-coming-fall-of-american-empire/>). The Intercept. Retrieved July 29, 2017.
24. "Michaels, Jon" (<https://www.law.ucla.edu/faculty/faculty-profiles/jon-d-michaels>). www.law.ucla.edu. UCLA School of Law. August 15, 2017. Retrieved December 29, 2020.
25. Michaels, Jon D. (September–October 2017). "Trump and the 'Deep State'" (<https://www.foreignaffairs.com/articles/2017-08-15/trump-and-deep-state>). Foreign Affairs.
26. Michaels, Jon D. (2017). "The American Deep State" (<https://scholarship.law.nd.edu/cgi/viewcontent.cgi?article=4789&context=ndlr>). Notre Dame L. Rev. 93: 1653.
27. "Edward Snowden: 'Poisoning people who are long out of their service is contemptible'" (http://www.repubblica.it/esteri/2018/03/19/news/snowden_how_the_deep_state_shapes_presidents_-191619170). repubblica.it. March 18, 2018.
28. Nunberg, Geoff. "Opinion: Why The Term 'Deep State' Speaks To Conspiracy Theorists" (<https://www.npr.org/2018/08/09/633019635/opinion-why-the-term-deep-state-speaks-to-conspiracy-theorists>). NPR. Retrieved August 24, 2018.
29. Friedman, George (March 15, 2017). "The Deep State Is A Very Real Thing" (https://www.huffpost.com/entry/the-deep-state_b_58c94a64e4b01d0d473bcfa3). HuffPost.
30. Laura Ingraham (March 20, 2018). "Rand Paul: No question that there is a deep state" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20181206102310/http://admin.podcastone.com/episode/LI-Podcast-032018>). The Laura Ingraham Show (Podcast). Event occurs at 30:19. Archived from the original (<http://admin.podcastone.com/episode/LI-Podcast-032018>) on December 6, 2018. Retrieved December 5, 2018.
31. Paul, Rand [@RandPaul] (December 4, 2018). "Do you want to know what the deep state is?" (<https://twitter.com/RandPaul/status/1069969008030564353>) (Tweet) – via Twitter.
32. Senator Rand Paul (December 10, 2018). "Compares Exclusive C.I.A. Khashoggi Briefing to 'Deep State'" (<https://www.nytimes.com/video/us/politics/100000006246072/cia-khashoggi-briefing.html?action=click&contentCollection=timestopics@ion=supplemental&module=undefined&contentPlacement=2&pgtype=collection>). The New York Times (Interview). Washington, D.C: Associated Press. Retrieved December 10, 2018.
33. Light, John (March 31, 2017). "The Deep State, Explained" (<https://billmoyers.com/story/the-deep-state-explained/>). Moyers & Company. Retrieved July 6, 2019.
34. Crowley, Michael (September/October 2017) "The Deep State is Real: But it might not be what you think" (<https://www.politico.com/magazine/story/2017/09/05/deep-state-real-cia-fbi-intelligence-215537>) Politico Magazine
35. Smith, Jordan Michael (October 18, 2014). "Vote all you want. The secret government won't change" (<https://www.bostonglobe.com/ideas/2014/10/18/vote-all-you-want-the-secret-government-won-change/jVSkXrENQlu8vNcBfMn9sL/story.html>). The Boston Globe. Retrieved August 22, 2017.
36. Abramson, Alana (March 8, 2017). "President Trump's Allies Keep Talking About the 'Deep State'. What's That?" (<http://time.com/4692178/donald-trump-deep-state-breitbart-barack-obama/>). Time. ""This is a dark conspiratorial view that is being pushed by [top Trump strategist] Steve Bannon, his allies at Breitbart and some others in the conservative movement that is trying to delegitimize the opposition to Trump in many quarters and pass the blame to others," said David Gergen."
37. Tharoor, Ishaan (February 1, 2017). "Is Trump fighting the deep state or creating his own?" (<https://www.washingtonpost.com/news/worldviews/wp/2017/02/01/is-trump-fighting-the-deep-state-or-creating-his-own/>). The Washington Post.
38. Crowley, Michael (September–October 2017). "The Deep State Is Real" (<http://www.politico.com/magazine/story/2017/09/05/deep-state-real-cia-fbi-intelligence-215537>). Politico Magazine. Retrieved September 5, 2017.
39. "Is Michael Flynn the first casualty of a "deep state" coup? It's not unthinkable" (<https://www.salon.com/2017/02/16/is-michael-flynn-the-first-casualty-of-a-deep-state-coup-its-not-unthinkable/>). Salon. February 16, 2017. Retrieved December 29, 2020.

40. "Kucinich: "Deep State" Trying to Take Down Trump, "Our Country is Under Attack Within" " (https://www.realclearpolitics.com/video/2017/05/18/kucinich_deep_state_trying_to_take_down_trump_our_country_is_under_attack_within.html). realclearpolitics.com.
41. Davis, Julie Hirschfeld (March 6, 2017). "Rumblings of a 'Deep State' Undermining Trump? It Was Once a Foreign Concept" (<https://www.nytimes.com/2017/03/06/us/politics/deep-state-trump.html>). The New York Times.
42. Rucker, Phillip; Costa, Robert; and Parker, Ashley (March 5, 2017). "Inside Trump's fury: The president rages at leaks, setbacks and accusations" (https://www.washingtonpost.com/politics/inside-trumps-fury-the-president-rages-at-leaks-setbacks-and-accusations/2017/03/05/40713af4-01df-11e7-ad5b-d22680e18d10_story.html). The Washington Post.
43. Winter, Jana; Groll, Elias (August 10, 2017). "Here's the Memo That Blew Up the NSC" (<https://foreignpolicy.com/2017/08/10/heres-the-memo-that-blew-up-the-nsc/>). Foreign Policy. Retrieved August 15, 2017.
44. Lucey, Catherine; Superville, Darlene (January 2, 2018). "Trump accuses DOJ of being part of 'deep state'" (<https://apnews.com/8720fde079e84237b8e6cca4219aafb2/Trump-accuses-DOJ-of-being-part-of-'deep-state'>). Associated Press. Retrieved January 2, 2018.
45. Weigel, David (March 7, 2017). "Trump and Republicans see a 'deep state' foe: Barack Obama" (<https://www.washingtonpost.com/news/powerpost/wp/2017/03/07/trump-and-republicans-see-a-deep-state-foe-barack-obama/>). The Washington Post.
46. Stanage, Niall (June 5, 2017). "THE MEMO: Is Trump a victim of the 'deep state'?" (<http://thehill.com/homenews/administration/336178-the-memo-is-trump-a-victim-of-the-deep-state>). The Hill.
47. Graham, David A. (February 20, 2017). "Why it's dangerous to talk about a deep state" (<https://www.theatlantic.com/international/archive/2017/02/why-its-dangerous-to-talk-about-a-deep-state/517221/>). The Atlantic Monthly.
48. "Mick Mulvaney said the deep state is '100% true,' and government officials should obey Trump or quit" (<https://www.businessinsider.com/mulvaney-says-deep-state-is-real-and-govt-officials-should-obey-trump-2020-2>). Business Insider.
49. Tomasky, Michael (August 16, 2018). "title needed". The New York Review of Books. p. 8.
50. Walt, Stephen M. (September 7, 2018). "The Battle for Crazytown" (<https://foreignpolicy.com/2018/09/07/the-battle-for-crazytown/>). Foreign Policy. Retrieved October 20, 2018.
51. Elliott, C. August (April 15, 2017). "MOABs win battles but they don't win wars" (<https://www.abc.net.au/news/2017-04-15/moabs-win-battles-but-they-dont-win-wars/8445710>). ABC News. Australian Broadcasting Corporation.
52. Anonymous (September 5, 2018). "I Am Part of the Resistance Inside the Trump Administration" (<https://www.nytimes.com/2018/09/05/opinion/trump-white-house-anonymous-resistance.html>). The New York Times. Retrieved November 17, 2018.
53. McCarthy, Kevin (September 7, 2018). "A Top Republican Fires Back at 'Anonymous'" (<https://www.nytimes.com/2018/09/07/opinion/letters/kevin-mccarthy-trump-anonymous.html>). The New York Times. Retrieved November 17, 2018.
54. Bossie, David N. "Anonymous NY Times op-ed shows Deep State thugs are working against the will of the American people" (<https://www.foxnews.com/opinion/anonymous-ny-times-op-ed-shows-deep-state-thugs-are-working-against-the-will-of-the-american-people.amp>). Fox News. Retrieved November 17, 2018.
55. Concha, Joe (September 6, 2018). "'Senior' official doesn't mean anonymous NYT writer is close to Trump" (<https://thehill.com/opinion/white-house/405323-senior-official-doesnt-mean-anonymous-nyt-writer-is-close-to-trump?amp>). The Hill. Retrieved November 17, 2018.
56. Chait, Jonathan (September 5, 2018). "Senior White House Official Confesses Anti-Trump Cabal in Newspaper Trump Reads" (<http://nymag.com/intelligencer/amp/2018/09/senior-white-house-official-confesses-anti-trump-cabal.html>). Intelligencer. Retrieved November 17, 2018.

57. "Nearly half of Americans think there's a 'deep state' in US: Poll" (<https://abcnews.go.com/Politics/lies-damn-lies-deep-state-plenty-americans-poll/story?id=47032061>). ABC News. April 27, 2017. Retrieved March 23, 2018.
58. Langer Research Associates. "Lies, Damn Lies and the Deep State: Plenty of Americans See Them All" (<http://www.langerresearch.com/wp-content/uploads/1186a4DeepStateFakeNews.pdf>) (PDF). ABC News.
59. Wright, avid. "Americans skeptical of government, more politically engaged, poll finds" (<https://www.cnn.com/2018/03/19/politics/americans-skeptical-government-poll/index.html>). CNN. Retrieved March 23, 2018.
60. Morin, Rebecca. "Poll: Majority believe 'deep state' manipulates U.S. policies" (<https://www.politico.com/story/2018/03/19/poll-deep-state-470282>). Politico. Retrieved March 23, 2018.
61. "Public Troubled by 'Deep State'" (https://www.monmouth.edu/polling-institute/reports/monmouthpoll_us_031918). Monmouth University Polling Institute. Retrieved March 23, 2018.
62. Frankovic, Kathy. "Americans who favor impeachment want President Trump removed, too | YouGov" (<https://today.yougov.com/topics/politics/articles-reports/2019/10/16/americans-favor-impeachment-want-trump-removed>). today.yougov.com. Retrieved October 19, 2019.
63. Engelhardt, Tom (2014). Shadow Government: Surveillance, Secret Wars, and a Global Security State in a Single Superpower World. Chicago: Haymarket Books. ISBN 9781608464272.

Books critical of deep state conspiracy theory

- Stewart, James B. (2019). Deep State: Trump, the FBI, and the Rule of Law. New York: Penguin Press. ISBN 978-0525559108.

Retrieved from "https://en.wikipedia.org/w/index.php?title=Deep_state_in_the_United_States&oldid=1011084621"

This page was last edited on 8 March 2021, at 22:52 (UTC).

Text is available under the Creative Commons Attribution-ShareAlike License; additional terms may apply. By using this site, you agree to the Terms of Use and Privacy Policy. Wikipedia® is a registered trademark of the Wikimedia Foundation, Inc., a non-profit organization.

Sandy Hook Elementary School shooting conspiracy theories

The Sandy Hook Elementary School shooting occurred on December 14, 2012, in Newtown, Connecticut. The perpetrator, Adam Lanza, fatally shot his mother before murdering 20 students and six staff members at Sandy Hook Elementary School, and later committed suicide.^[1] A number of fringe figures have promoted conspiracy theories that doubt or dispute what occurred at Sandy Hook. Various conspiracy theorists have claimed, for example, that the massacre was actually orchestrated by the U.S. government as part of an elaborate plot to promote stricter gun control laws.^[2]

The more common conspiracy theory, adopted initially by James Fetzer, James Tracy and others, and further popularized by Alex Jones, denied that the massacre actually occurred, asserting that it was faked. Fetzer and Tracy posited a classified training exercise involving members of federal and local law enforcement, the news media, and crisis actors, which they claim was modeled on Operation Closed Campus, an Iowa "full-scale" school-shooting drill that was canceled in 2011 amid threats and public outcry. Jones described the shooting incident as "synthetic, completely fake with actors; in my view, manufactured . . . it just shows how bold they are that they clearly used actors."^{[3][4]}

No evidence supports the conspiracy theories, which make a number of implausible claims.^{[5][6][7]} Moreover, many Sandy Hook conspiracy theories contradict one another.^[6] A number of sources have published articles debunking various claims put forward by conspiracy theorists.^{[6][8][9][10]} In 2018, the parents of several children killed in the Sandy Hook shooting launched a lawsuit against Alex Jones and other authors of conspiracy videos for defamation, accusing them of engaging in a campaign of "false, cruel, and dangerous assertions".^[11] In 2019, Jones reversed his stance and stated that the massacre was real.^[12]

Contents

Conspiracy claims

United States government involvement

Operation Closed Campus

Claims broadcast by Iranian television

Additional conspirators

Relationship to LIBOR scandal

Timestamps of memorial sites

Alex Jones claims

James Tracy

James Fetzer

Other conspiracy theorists and claims

Analysis

Harassment by conspiracy theorists

See also

References

Conspiracy claims

United States government involvement

Some conspiracy theories have alleged that the shooting was a hoax^[13] and a false flag operation staged by the United States government.^[14] Others claim the attack is being used by politicians to push through new gun control legislation,^{[15][16][17]} or to otherwise persecute gun owners and survivalists.^[6]

Lawyer and dentist Orly Taitz—best known for her promotion of Barack Obama citizenship ("birther") conspiracy theories—was quoted as asking "Was Adam Lanza drugged and hypnotized by his handlers to make him into a killing machine as an excuse as the regime is itching to take all means of self defense from the populace before the economic collapse?"^[18]

Talk show host Clyde Lewis wrote: "Don't you find it at all interesting that Adam Lanza, the alleged shooter at Sandy Hook, woke up one day and decided to shoot up a school and kill children at about the same time that Barack Obama told the U.N. that he would sign the small arms treaty?"^[19]

According to Live Science, "No one, regardless of what side of the gun control issue they are on, can deny that guns played a key role in the Sandy Hook killings. So the conspiracy theorists must instead challenge the claim that the attack even occurred. They believe it's all a hoax to scare people into supporting more gun control and a step toward an outright repeal of the Second Amendment." They also found that the vast majority of evidence used by conspiracy theorists to support the concept that Sandy Hook was a hoax is contradictory.^[20] Snopes.com also debunked several claims of alleged United States government involvement in the shootings.^[8]

Operation Closed Campus

Fetzer, Tracy, and others have claimed the shooting was a classified training-exercise modeled on Operation Closed Campus, a "full-scale" school-shooting drill involving the Department of Homeland Security, Iowa emergency-management agencies, state and local police, prosecuting attorneys, emergency radio operators, emergency medical personnel, moulage, local doctors and hospitals, the Red Cross, medical examiners, news media reporters, and crisis actors that was canceled in 2011 amid threats and public outcry.^{[21][22][23][24]}

Claims broadcast by Iranian television

Press TV, the official state media outlet of Iran, has promoted various antisemitic conspiracy theories blaming "Israeli death squads" for the shooting.^{[6][5]} Press TV interviewed Veterans Today website Gordon Duff, who quoted Michael Harris, a former Republican candidate for governor of Arizona, who made the "Israeli death squads" claim.^[7] Harris has publicly associated with neo-Nazi groups in the past and has previously claimed that Israel was responsible for the 2011 Norway attacks.^[7] Duff asserted that the attacks were an act of "revenge" for the perceived cooling of Israel–United States relations under President Obama, especially as a response to Obama's decision to nominate former senator Chuck Hagel, a perceived critic of Israel, for the position of United States Secretary of Defense.^{[25][7]} In another broadcast by Press TV, Holocaust denier James H. Fetzer claimed that the massacre "appears to have been a psy op intended to strike fear in the hearts of Americans" that was conducted by "agents of Israel."^[5]

The Washington Post reported that claims broadcast on Press TV contain a large number of "obvious logical fallacies" typical of Iranian propaganda, which "has a well-earned reputation for incendiary anti-Israel stories and for wild conspiracy theories."^[7] The Atlantic wrote that the story "obviously plays on the worst fears of those who believe in secret Jewish cabals that run the world, but it's a pretty pathetic attempt at slander, even for Iran."^[6]

Additional conspirators

Ben Swann, a Cincinnati news anchor for Fox affiliate WXIX-TV, has suggested on his personal YouTube channel that Adam Lanza was accompanied by another shooter; he has made similar claims about the Aurora shooting and the Wisconsin Sikh temple shooting from earlier in 2012.^{[26][27]} Other conspiracy theorists have claimed that as many as four shooters were present.^[6]

There is no credible evidence that any additional shooters were present at the event.^[8] Some such reports may have been influenced by confused early news reports of the events.^[6]

Relationship to LIBOR scandal

Other conspiracy theories have focused on the claim that Adam Lanza's father was an executive with GE Energy Financial Services.^{[6][28]} According to these theories, Lanza's father was supposed to testify before the Senate Banking Committee with information about the Libor scandal. However, no such hearings were scheduled. Similar claims had been made about the father of James Holmes, the convicted perpetrator of the 2012 Aurora, Colorado shooting.^{[6][29]}

Timestamps of memorial sites

Conspiracy theories have claimed that various timestamps for creation dates, whois records, and Google caches of various memorial websites, fundraising sites, and Facebook were created before or immediately after the date and time of the shooting and are therefore "evidence" of a conspiracy or cover up. However, timestamps are frequently incorrect, particularly on search engines. Some timestamps are initially created and assigned to URLs that are then repurposed, meaning that a URL linked to a current event can have a much older date.^{[9][10]}

Alex Jones claims

In September 2014, conspiracy theorist Alex Jones, who runs the website InfoWars, which had previously claimed that the murders were a "false flag" attack perpetrated by the government, made a new conspiracy claim that "no one died" at Sandy Hook Elementary School because the Uniform Crime Reports showed no murders in Newtown for 2012, and that the victims were "child actors."^{[30][31]} This claim is false and misrepresents the FBI report. In reality, because the Connecticut State Police was the lead investigator after the attack, the Sandy Hook victims were included in Connecticut's statewide records (under "State Police Misc.") rather than under the Newtown statistics.^{[31][32]}

In November 2016, Erica L. Lafferty, daughter of Dawn Lafferty Hochsprung, the school principal who was shot and killed at Sandy Hook School, wrote open letters to then-President-elect Donald Trump (published in Medium and USA Today), calling upon him to denounce Jones,^[33] after Trump had appeared on InfoWars during his presidential campaign and lavished praise on its presenter, saying that the conspiracy theorist had an "amazing" reputation and pledging not to let him down.^[33] On February 20, 2017, the Newtown School Board wrote to President Trump and urged him to recognize the murders of 26 people at Sandy Hook and to "remove your support from anyone who continues to insist that the tragedy was staged or not real."^{[34][35][36]} Trump did not respond to the letter.^{[34][35]}

In March 2018, six families of victims of the Sandy Hook Elementary School shooting, as well as an FBI agent who responded to the attack, filed a defamation lawsuit in Bridgeport Superior Court in Connecticut^[37] against Jones for his role in spreading conspiracy theories about the shooting.^{[38][39][40][41]}

On April 16, 2018, parents of two other victims of the shooting sued Jones in Travis County, Texas (where Jones' media company is based), for $1 million each.^{[42][43][44]} The trial is expected to be scheduled by the end of 2020.^[45]

James Tracy

James Tracy, a former professor at Florida Atlantic University who taught a course on conspiracy theories, has suggested the shooting either did not actually occur or occurred very differently than accounted in mainstream reports, claiming political motives for the coverup.^{[46][47]} Florida Atlantic president Mary Jane Saunders issued a statement that Tracy's views were "not shared by" the university.^[48] In response to his comments, the university opened an investigation of Tracy, who had tenure.^[49]

In December 2015, after the family of Noah Pozner – one of the children murdered at Sandy Hook – claimed that Tracy had harassed them, FAU moved to fire Tracy.^[50] Chan Lowe of the Sun-Sentinel speculated that the comments were a publicity stunt by Tracy.^[51] Tracy later declined an appearance on CNN with Anderson Cooper, suggesting that Cooper wanted to bring him and his family members harm by identifying him in a prior broadcast.^{[52][53]} The university fired Tracy on January 5, 2016, citing his refusal to file required paperwork related to outside employment for several years.^[54]

James Fetzer

In 2016, James Fetzer and Mike Palacek published the book Nobody Died at Sandy Hook, which claimed that the event was a classified Federal Emergency Management Agency drill involving federal and local law enforcement and the media, and that the government had created false death certificates to claim there were victims. Fetzer stated that the parents displayed old photos of their real children and made up new names for the photo subjects, thereby creating non-existent younger siblings. Fetzer also claimed that several of these older-age real children, who were unnamed and billed as "Newtown's Children," sung "America the Beautiful" at the 2013 Super Bowl with Jennifer Hudson, arguing there were strong facial similarities with the victims.^{[55][56]} Lenny Pozner, father of victim Noah Pozner, filed a defamation lawsuit against Fetzer and Palacek. Pozner won a summary judgement from the court in June 2019, with damages to be determined by trial in October. The book's publisher, Moon Rock Books, apologized to the Pozner family and agreed to take the book out of circulation at the end of June.^{[57][58]} On October 16, 2019, a jury awarded Leonard Pozner $450,000 for defamation by James Fetzer. Fetzer announced his intention to appeal against the decision.^{[59][60]} A video similarly questioning official accounts of the shooting received several million views on YouTube within a week of its posting,^[61] although the video has since been modified to display a disclaimer explaining that its creators "in no way claim this shooting never took place, or that people did not lose their lives."^[62]

Other conspiracy theorists and claims

Other sources have continued to claim that the entire event was a hoax. On September 12, 2014, during a political debate, Colorado Republican Party candidate Tom Ready (who was running for Pueblo County Commission) was accused by his opponent, Sal Pace, of posting an article on his Facebook page claiming the Sandy Hook shootings "never happened". Ready responded: "Well, there is some question of whether it happened, Sal." This was followed by more statements of the same tenor, prompting outraged yells from the audience. After allegedly receiving a death threat the next day, Ready reportedly apologized for his remarks.^{[63][64]}

Other conspiracy theorists have tried to connect the shooting to references in popular culture. Prison Planet, a website owned by British conspiracy theorist Paul Joseph Watson, mentioned that Newtown-based author Suzanne Collins wrote The Hunger Games books, in which 22 children are "ritualistically" killed, while 20 children were killed in the shooting.^[65] Others pointed out that "Sandy Hook" can be seen on a map in the 2012 Batman film The Dark Knight Rises despite Sandy Hook also being the name of the New Jersey peninsula just south of New York Harbor.^[65] This is what some conspiracy theorists refer to as predictive programming.^[65]

Several conspiracy theorists have also claimed a six-year-old victim of the shooting subsequently appeared in a photograph with President Barack Obama. In fact, the child in the photograph is actually the victim's sister, wearing her deceased sister's dress.^{[66][67]}

Analysis

Writing about the Sandy Hook conspiracy theories, Benjamin Radford argued that most conspiracy theorists who allege contradictions in official accounts ignore contradictions in their own accounts, citing research from the University of Kent that conspiracy theorists selectively focus on or ignore particular details in order to fit their preferred narrative.^{[68][66]} The conspiracy theories have also been called evidence of "the need for a national debate on mental illness."^[67]

The debunking website Snopes ran an editorial debunking the "Sandy Hook Exposed" video, explaining how many of the theories make little sense, and answered many questions conspiracy theorists wanted answers to.^[69]

Harassment by conspiracy theorists

Gene Rosen, a Newtown resident who was reported to have sheltered six Sandy Hook students and a bus driver in his home during the shooting, has been subject to harassment online alleging he was complicit in a government coverup,^[70] among other things.^[71] Some journalists have cited such incidents as part of a "Sandy Hook Truther Movement" analogous to the 9/11 Truth movement.^{[55][72][61]} A writer for the Calgary Herald reported that the movement self-identifies as "Operation Terror."^[67]

In May 2014, Andrew David Truelove stole a memorial sign from playgrounds dedicated to victims Grace McDonnell and Chase Kowalski.^[73] He then went on to call the parents of Grace McDonnell, proclaiming that he stole the sign and that he believed their deaths were a "hoax".^[74] He was arrested on May 30, and the signs were found in his home.^[75] Truelove was convicted of the theft and sentenced to one year in prison.^[76]

Robbie Parker, the father of victim Emilie Parker – after doing a CNN interview on the day after the shooting – became the target of conspiracy theorists, who claimed the interview was staged.^[77] Parker has been attacked by theorists who believe he is a "crisis actor" and was "getting into character" before going on CNN to grieve over the loss of his child.^[77]

In April 2016, Matthew Mills, a man from Brooklyn, accepted a plea agreement with prosecutors on one count of interfering with police arising from an incident in November 2015, when Mills angrily approached the sister of murdered teacher Victoria Soto—who is regarded as a heroine for her attempt to protect her students from the shooter in the Sandy Hook attack—shoved a photograph in her face, "and began angrily charging that not only did the Sandy Hook tragedy not take place, but that Victoria Soto never existed."^{[78][79]} Mills entered an Alford plea and was thus found guilty; he was given a suspended sentence of one year in jail and two years' probation.^[78]

In December 2016, Lucy Richards, a woman from Tampa, was charged with four counts of transmitting threats in interstate commerce for sending death threats to Lenny Pozner, whose son Noah was the youngest of 20 children murdered.^{[80][81]} Pozner has been particularly targeted by Internet trolls and conspiracy theorists because he has vocally fought back against them.^[82] Richards had been expected to plead guilty to one count of transmitting threats, with both the prosecution and defense to recommend a sentence of probation and house arrest. However, in March 2017, Richards—who was free on bond—failed to show up to court for a change-of-plea hearing and sentencing. An arrest warrant was issued, Richards' bond was revoked, and she was soon apprehended.^[83] On June 7, 2017, Richards was sentenced to five months' imprisonment.^[84]

Lenny Pozner, the father of Sandy Hook victim Noah Pozner, founded an organization called the HONR Network, which takes legal action against harassers of Sandy Hook survivors and families.^[85]

Wolfgang Halbig, a past contributor to Infowars, was arrested in January 2020 for unauthorized possession of personal information of Lenny Pozner. Halbig had illegally obtained Pozner's private information and attempted to dox Pozner by sending those to a long list of recipients. Under Florida law, unauthorized possession of such information carries a maximum prison term of one year.^[86]

See also

- Gun politics in the United States
- List of conspiracy theories
- Reactions to the Sandy Hook Elementary School shooting

References

1. "Connecticut State Police Final Report on Sandy Hook shooting incident December 14, 2012" (<http://cspsandyhookreport.ct.gov/>). Sandy Hook Elementary School Shooting Reports. Department of Emergency Services and Public Protection. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20131228025247/http://cspsandyhookreport.ct.gov/>) from the original on December 28, 2013. Retrieved December 28, 2013.

2. "Conspiracy theorists claim Sandy Hook tragedy is elaborate government hoax" (<https://vancouversun.com/news/Conspiracy+theorists+claim+Sandy+Hook+tragedy+elaborate+government+hoax/7822502/story.html>). Vancouver Sun. January 16, 2013. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20190112120207/http://www.vancouversun.com/news/Conspiracy+theorists+claim+Sandy+Hook+tragedy+elaborate+government+hoax/7822502/story.html>) from the original on January 12, 2019. Retrieved January 17, 2013.
3. Williamson, Elizabeth (March 29, 2019). "How Alex Jones and Infowars Helped a Florida Man Torment Sandy Hook Families" (<https://www.nytimes.com/2019/03/29/us/politics/alex-jones-infowars-sandy-hook.html>). The New York Times. ISSN 0362-4331 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/0362-4331>). Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20210518093648/https://www.nytimes.com/2019/03/29/us/politics/alex-jones-infowars-sandy-hook.html>) from the original on May 18, 2021. Retrieved June 7, 2021.
4. Sommerfeldt, Chris (November 18, 2016). "SEE IT: Right-wing conspiracy theorist Alex Jones doubles down on 'completely fake' Sandy Hook massacre claims" (<https://www.nydailynews.com/news/politics/alex-jones-doubles-completely-fake-sandy-hook-claims-article-1.2878305>). New York Daily News. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170303201639/http://www.nydailynews.com/news/politics/alex-jones-doubles-completely-fake-sandy-hook-claims-article-1.2878305>) from the original on March 3, 2017. Retrieved June 7, 2021.
5. Moynihan, Michael C. (December 27, 2012). "Newtown Conspiracy Theories: Obama, Iran, and Other Culprits" (<http://www.thedailybeast.com/articles/2012/12/27/newtown-conspiracy-theories-obama-iran-and-other-culprits.html>). The Daily Beast. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20130108232344/http://www.thedailybeast.com/articles/2012/12/27/newtown-conspiracy-theories-obama-iran-and-other-culprits.html>) from the original on January 8, 2013. Retrieved January 9, 2013.
6. Bennett, Dashiell (December 18, 2012). "Newtown Conspiracy Theories, Debunked" (<http://www.theatlanticwire.com/national/2012/12/newtown-shooting-conspiracy-theories/60126/>). The Atlantic. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20130115090647/http://www.theatlanticwire.com/national/2012/12/newtown-shooting-conspiracy-theories/60126/>) from the original on January 15, 2013. Retrieved January 15, 2013.
7. Fisher, Max (December 18, 2012). "Iran's state-run news network blames 'Israeli death squads' for Sandy Hook shooting" (<https://www.washingtonpost.com/blogs/worldviews/wp/2012/12/18/irans-state-run-news-network-blames-israeli-death-squads-for-sandy-hook-shooting/>). The Washington Post. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20150511083914/http://www.washingtonpost.com/blogs/worldviews/wp/2012/12/18/irans-state-run-news-network-blames-israeli-death-squads-for-sandy-hook-shooting/>) from the original on May 11, 2015. Retrieved January 15, 2013.
8. "Sandy Hook Exposed" (<http://www.snopes.com/politics/guns/newtown.asp#hoax>). Snopes.com. Retrieved April 20, 2013.
9. Stuart, Hunter (February 11, 2013). "Sandy Hook Hoax Theories Explained: Why Newtown 'Truther' Arguments Don't Hold Up" (https://www.huffingtonpost.com/2013/02/11/sandy-hook-hoax-theories-explained-debunking-newtown-truther_n_2627233.html). Huffington Post. Archived (https://web.archive.org/web/20130402053107/http://www.huffingtonpost.com/2013/02/11/sandy-hook-hoax-theories-explained-debunking-newtown-truther_n_2627233.html) from the original on April 2, 2013. Retrieved April 20, 2013.
10. Sieczkowski, Cavan (January 16, 2013). "Sandy Hook Conspiracy Theory Video Debunked By Experts" (https://www.huffingtonpost.com/2013/01/16/sandy-hook-conspiracy-theory-video-debunked_n_2487427.html). Huffington Post. Archived (https://web.archive.org/web/20130218011018/http://www.huffingtonpost.com/2013/01/16/sandy-hook-conspiracy-theory-video-debunked_n_2487427.html) from the original on February 18, 2013. Retrieved April 20, 2013.
11. Aaron Cooper, "Six more Sandy Hook families sue broadcaster Alex Jones", May 24, 2018, CNN, <https://www.cnn.com/2018/05/23/us/alex-jones-sandy-hook-suit/index.html> Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20180621194151/https://www.cnn.com/2018/05/23/us/alex-jones-sandy-hook-suit/index.html>) June 21, 2018, at the Wayback Machine

12. Sakuma, Amanda (March 31, 2019). "Alex Jones blames "psychosis" for his Sandy Hook conspiracies" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20190611042048/https://www.vox.com/2019/3/31/18289271/alex-jones-psychosis-conspiracies-sandy-hook-hoax>). Vox. Archived from the original (<https://www.vox.com/2019/3/31/18289271/alex-jones-psychosis-conspiracies-sandy-hook-hoax>) on June 11, 2019. Retrieved March 6, 2021.
13. Vancouver Sun (January 11, 2013). "Conspiracy theorists claim Sandy Hook tragedy is elaborate government hoax" (<https://vancouversun.com/news/Conspiracy+theorists+claim+Sandy+Hook+tragedy+elaborate+government/7822502/story.html>). The Vancouver Sun. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20181215222331/http://www.vancouversun.com/news/Conspiracy+theorists+claim+Sandy+Hook+tragedy+elaborate+government/7822502/story.html>) from the original on December 15, 2018. Retrieved January 17, 2013.
14. McCarson, Matt (December 14, 2012). "Newtown Connecticut Elementary Shooting Is a Staged False Flag Against Gun Owners and Preppers" (<http://www.infosalvo.com/us-news/newton-connecticut-elementary-shooting-is-a-staged-false-flag/>). InfoSalvo.com. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20130105071947/http://www.infosalvo.com/us-news/newton-connecticut-elementary-shooting-is-a-staged-false-flag/>) from the original on January 5, 2013. Retrieved January 15, 2013.
15. Dean, Marion. "Sandy Hook conspiracy cult: Shootings a hoax staged to pass gun control laws" (<http://web.archive.org/web/20150703103522/http://www.globalnewsdesk.co.uk/north-america/conspiracy-sandy-hook-hoax-emilie-parker/03040/>). Globalnewsdesk.co.uk. Archived from the original (<http://www.globalnewsdesk.co.uk/north-america/conspiracy-sandy-hook-hoax-emilie-parker/03040/>) on July 3, 2015. Retrieved January 17, 2013.
16. Luke Hammill (January 16, 2013). "Sandy Hook conspiracy theories spread in wake of Newtown tragedy" (<http://newyork.newsday.com/westchester/westchester-now-1.3784383/sandy-hook-conspiracy-theories-spread-in-wake-of-newtown-tragedy-1.4458433>). Newyork.newsday.com. Archived (<http://web.archive.org/web/20130302001406/http://newyork.newsday.com/westchester/westchester-now-1.3784383/sandy-hook-conspiracy-theories-spread-in-wake-of-newtown-tragedy-1.4458433>) from the original on March 2, 2013. Retrieved January 17, 2013.
17. Ferguson, Christopher J. (December 15, 2012). "Sandy Hook Shooting: Why Did Lanza Target a School?" (<http://ideas.time.com/2012/12/15/sandy-hook-shooting-why-did-landa-target-a-school/?iid=obnetwork>). Ideas.time.com. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20130118082732/http://ideas.time.com/2012/12/15/sandy-hook-shooting-why-did-landa-target-a-school/?iid=obnetwork>) from the original on January 18, 2013. Retrieved January 17, 2013.
18. Celock, John (December 18, 2012). "Birther Queen Blames Obama For Sandy Hook Massacre" (http://www.huffingtonpost.com/2012/12/18/orly-taitz-sandy-hook-obama_n_2325671.html). Huffington Post. Archived (https://web.archive.org/web/20140912204403/http://www.huffingtonpost.com/2012/12/18/orly-taitz-sandy-hook-obama_n_2325671.html) from the original on September 12, 2014. Retrieved August 16, 2014.
19. Patton, Ron (April 12, 2013). "Ground Zero » Mental Hopscotch" (<http://www.groundzeromedia.org/mental-hopscotch/>). Groundzeromedia.org. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20140305235005/http://www.groundzeromedia.org/mental-hopscotch/>) from the original on March 5, 2014. Retrieved June 13, 2017.
20. Radford, Benjamin (January 16, 2013). "Why Sandy Hook Massacre Spawned Conspiracy Theories" (<http://www.livescience.com/26314-sandy-hook-massacre-conspiracy-theories.html>). Live Science. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20130403010209/http://www.livescience.com/26314-sandy-hook-massacre-conspiracy-theories.html>) from the original on April 3, 2013. Retrieved May 26, 2015.
21. [1] (<https://avalonlibrary.net/ebooks/Jim%20Fetzer%2C%20Mike%20Palecek%20-%20Nobody%20Died%20at%20Sandy%20Hook.pdf>)
22. [2] (https://www.foxnews.com/projects/pdf/ExPlan_03222011.pdf)
23. [3] (https://nonpareilonline.com/archive/pottawattamie-county-to-conduct-school-crisis-exercise/article_6f2a3ff0-33dd-536b-883f-500b5a256050.html)

24. [4] (<https://www.foxnews.com/us/iowa-safety-drill-portraying-shooter-as-anti-immigration-pro-gun-student-canceled>)
25. Duff, Gordon (December 18, 2012). "Israeli death squads involved in Sandy Hook bloodbath: Intelligence analyst" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20130114054945/http://www.presstv.com/detail/2012/12/18/278706/israeli-squads-tied-to-newtown-carnage/>). Press TV. Archived from the original (<http://www.presstv.com/detail/2012/12/18/278706/israeli-squads-tied-to-newtown-carnage/>) on January 14, 2013. Retrieved January 15, 2013.
26. Seitz-Wald, Alex (January 14, 2013). "Sandy Hook truther-reporter?" (http://www.salon.com/2013/01/14/is_it_okay_for_reporters_to_question_the_official_narrative_of_sandy_hook/). Salon. Archived (https://web.archive.org/web/20130116022719/http://www.salon.com/2013/01/14/is_it_okay_for_reporters_to_question_the_official_narrative_of_sandy_hook/) from the original on January 16, 2013. Retrieved January 15, 2013.
27. "Conspiracy theorists claim Sandy Hook tragedy is elaborate government hoax" (<https://vancouversun.com/news/Conspiracy+theorists+claim+Sandy+Hook+tragedy+elaborate+government/7822502/story.html>). The Vancouver Sun. January 15, 2013. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20181215222331/http://www.vancouversun.com/news/Conspiracy+theorists+claim+Sandy+Hook+tragedy+elaborate+government/7822502/story.html>) from the original on December 15, 2018. Retrieved January 15, 2013.
28. Pearce, Matt (December 31, 2012). "Body of Connecticut shooter Adam Lanza quietly claimed by his father" (<https://www.latimes.com/news/nation/nationnow/la-na-nn-adam-lanza-newtown-20121230,0,561090.story>). Los Angeles Times. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20130123140638/http://www.latimes.com/news/nation/nationnow/la-na-nn-adam-lanza-newtown-20121230,0,561090.story>) from the original on January 23, 2013. Retrieved January 15, 2013.
29. Sarlin, Benjy (December 17, 2012). "Newtown Conspiracy Hoax Spreads Fast Across Fringe" (<http://tpmdc.talkingpointsmemo.com/2012/12/newtown-libor-hunger-games-theories.php>). Talking Points Memo. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20130116090202/http://tpmdc.talkingpointsmemo.com/2012/12/newtown-libor-hunger-games-theories.php>) from the original on January 16, 2013. Retrieved January 15, 2013.
30. Dylan Baddour & W. Gardner Selby, Hillary Clinton correct that Austin's Alex Jones said no one died at Sandy Hook Elementary (<http://www.politifact.com/texas/statements/2016/sep/01/hillary-clinton/hillary-clinton-correct-austins-alex-jones-said-no/>) Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170303201414/http://www.politifact.com/texas/statements/2016/sep/01/hillary-clinton/hillary-clinton-correct-austins-alex-jones-said-no/>) March 3, 2017, at the Wayback Machine, PolitiFact (September 1, 2016).
31. David Mikkelson, FBI Admits Sandy Hook Hoax?: Rumor: The FBI revealed that no murders occurred in Newtown, Connecticut, in 2012, proving the Sandy Hook massacre was an elaborate hoax (<http://www.snopes.com/info/news/sandyhoax.asp>), Snopes (February 7, 2015).
32. "Sandy Hook Hoaxers Misrepresent FBI Crime Stats" (<http://newtownpostexaminer.com/2014/09/25/sandy-hook-hoaxers-misrepresent-fbi-crime-stats/>). Newtown Post-Examiner. September 26, 2014. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20150703121039/http://newtownpostexaminer.com/2014/09/25/sandy-hook-hoaxers-misrepresent-fbi-crime-stats/>) from the original on July 3, 2015. Retrieved July 3, 2015.

33. *Erica L. Lafferty, Denounce Sandy Hook Denier Alex Jones: My Open Letter to President-Elect Trump (<https://medium.com/@EricaSmegs/denounce-sandy-hook-truther-alex-jones-31ca8315fe2#.pgxvue3sh>) Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170219094558/https://medium.com/@EricaSmegs/denounce-sandy-hook-truther-alex-jones-31ca8315fe2#.pgxvue3sh#.pgxvue3sh>) February 19, 2017, at the Wayback Machine, Medium (November 16, 2017).
- Marlow Stern, Erica Lafferty Lost Her Mother in Sandy Hook. Trump's Ties to Truther Alex Jones Disgust Her (<http://www.thedailybeast.com/articles/2016/11/18/erica-lafferty-lost-her-mother-in-sandy-hook-trump-s-ties-to-truther-alex-jones-disgust-her.html>) Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170303210201/http://www.thedailybeast.com/articles/2016/11/18/erica-lafferty-lost-her-mother-in-sandy-hook-trump-s-ties-to-truther-alex-jones-disgust-her.html>) March 3, 2017, at the Wayback Machine, Daily Beast (November 18, 2016).
 - Erica Lafferty, Mr. Trump, denounce Alex Jones: Sandy Hook principal's daughter (<https://www.usatoday.com/story/opinion/2016/11/25/donald-trump-sandy-hook-alex-jones-column/94335420/>) Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20171003080653/https://www.usatoday.com/story/opinion/2016/11/25/donald-trump-sandy-hook-alex-jones-column/94335420/>) October 3, 2017, at the Wayback Machine, USA Today (November 25, 2016).
34. Russell Blair, Trump Silent After Newtown Asks Him To Denounce Sandy Hook Deniers (<http://www.courant.com/politics/hc-newtown-school-board-trump-letter-20170403-story.html>) Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170410054552/http://www.courant.com/politics/hc-newtown-school-board-trump-letter-20170403-story.html>) April 10, 2017, at the Wayback Machine, Hartford Courant (April 4, 2017).
35. Christopher Hoffman, Newtown tries—and so far, fails—to get Trump to acknowledge Sandy Hook massacre (https://www.cjr.org/local_news/sandy-hook-trump.php) Archived (https://web.archive.org/web/20170410051207/https://www.cjr.org/local_news/sandy-hook-trump.php) April 10, 2017, at the Wayback Machine, Columbia Journalism Review (March 31, 2017).
36. Wendling, Mike (April 2, 2017). "Sandy Hook to Trump: 'Help us stop conspiracy theorists'" (<https://www.bbc.co.uk/news/blogs-trending-39194035>). BBC News Online. BBC. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20180411110602/http://www.bbc.co.uk/news/blogs-trending-39194035>) from the original on April 11, 2018. Retrieved April 2, 2017.
37. Collins, Dave. "More families of Sandy Hook victims, FBI agent sue Infowars' Alex Jones" (<https://www.chicagotribune.com/nation-world/ct-sandy-hook-alex-jones-lawsuit-20180523-story.html>). chicagotribune.com. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20200406164226/https://www.chicagotribune.com/nation-world/ct-sandy-hook-alex-jones-lawsuit-20180523-story.html>) from the original on April 6, 2020. Retrieved April 6, 2020.
38. Aaron Cooper (May 24, 2018). "Alex Jones, 'InfoWars' host, sued by 6 more Sandy Hook families" (<https://www.cnn.com/2018/05/23/us/alex-jones-sandy-hook-suit/index.html>). CNN. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20180621194151/https://www.cnn.com/2018/05/23/us/alex-jones-sandy-hook-suit/index.html>) from the original on June 21, 2018. Retrieved May 26, 2018.
39. Emily Shugerman (May 25, 2018). "US shock jock Alex Jones sued by six more families of Sandy Hook victims" (<https://www.independent.co.uk/news/world/americas/alex-jones-sued-sandy-hook-victims-families-defamation-infowars-a8368346.html>). The Independent. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20180922203614/https://www.independent.co.uk/news/world/americas/alex-jones-sued-sandy-hook-victims-families-defamation-infowars-a8368346.html>) from the original on September 22, 2018. Retrieved May 26, 2018.
40. Josh Hafner (May 23, 2018). "Sandy Hook families suing Alex Jones aren't the only ones to threaten conspiracy theorist" (<https://www.usatoday.com/story/news/nation-now/2018/05/24/sandy-hook-families-sue-infowars-alex-jones-over-conspiracy-theory/641159002/>). USA Today. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20180929032647/https://www.usatoday.com/story/news/nation-now/2018/05/24/sandy-hook-families-sue-infowars-alex-jones-over-conspiracy-theory/641159002/>) from the original on September 29, 2018. Retrieved May 26, 2018.

41. Dave Collins (May 23, 2018). "More families of Sandy Hook victims, FBI agent sue Infowars' Alex Jones" (<http://www.chicagotribune.com/news/nationworld/ct-sandy-hook-alex-jones-lawsuit-20180523-story.html>). Associated Press Chicago Tribune. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20181101084709/https://www.chicagotribune.com/news/nationworld/ct-sandy-hook-alex-jones-lawsuit-20180523-story.html>) from the original on November 1, 2018. Retrieved May 26, 2018.
42. Parents Of Children Who Were Killed In Sandy Hook Are Suing Alex Jones Over His Conspiracy Theories (<https://www.buzzfeed.com/nidhiprakash/parents-of-children-who-were-killed-in-sandy-hook-are-suing>) Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20180417231727/https://www.buzzfeed.com/nidhiprakash/parents-of-children-who-were-killed-in-sandy-hook-are-suing>) April 17, 2018, at the Wayback Machine BuzzFeed News, April 17, 2018
43. Collins, Dave. "More families of Sandy Hook victims, FBI agent sue Infowars' Alex Jones" (<https://www.chicagotribune.com/nation-world/ct-sandy-hook-alex-jones-lawsuit-20180523-story.html>). chicagotribune.com. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20200406164226/https://www.chicagotribune.com/nation-world/ct-sandy-hook-alex-jones-lawsuit-20180523-story.html>) from the original on April 6, 2020. Retrieved April 6, 2020.
44. "The Parents of Kids Killed at Sandy Hook Are Suing Alex Jones for Defamation" (<https://time.com/5243124/sandy-hook-parents-alex-jones/>). Time. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20200308163633/https://time.com/5243124/sandy-hook-parents-alex-jones/>) from the original on March 8, 2020. Retrieved April 6, 2020.
45. Vigdor, Neil (December 31, 2019). "Judge Orders Alex Jones and Infowars to Pay $100,000 in Sandy Hook Legal Fees" (<https://www.nytimes.com/2019/12/31/us/Alex-Jones-sandy-hook.html>). The New York Times. ISSN 0362-4331 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/0362-4331>). Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20200101012602/https://www.nytimes.com/2019/12/31/us/Alex-Jones-sandy-hook.html>) from the original on January 1, 2020. Retrieved April 6, 2020.
46. Stanislava Gaydazhieva (January 16, 2013). "Sandy hook Samaritan faces internet harassment" (<http://www.neurope.eu/article/sandy-hook-samaritan-faces-internet-harassment>). New Europe Online. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20130118184608/http://www.neurope.eu/article/sandy-hook-samaritan-faces-internet-harassment>) from the original on January 18, 2013. Retrieved January 17, 2013.
47. Tracy, James (December 24, 2012). "The Sandy Hook Massacre: Unanswered Questions and Missing Information" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20130113024607/http://memoryholeblog.com/2012/12/24/the-sandy-hook-massacre-unanswered-questions-and-missing-information/>). Memory Hole. Archived from the original (<http://memoryholeblog.com/2012/12/24/the-sandy-hook-massacre-unanswered-questions-and-missing-information/>) on January 13, 2013. Retrieved January 15, 2013.
48. Miller, Joshua Rhett (January 9, 2013). "Sandy Hook community leader rips Florida professor who doubted massacre" (<http://www.foxnews.com/us/2013/01/08/florida-professor-questions-newtown-shooting-massacre-calls-for-more/>). Fox News. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20130117105821/http://www.foxnews.com/us/2013/01/08/florida-professor-questions-newtown-shooting-massacre-calls-for-more/>) from the original on January 17, 2013. Retrieved January 16, 2013.
49. Cortes, Ryan (January 16, 2013). "James Tracy: FAU opens investigation, leaving him unsure of job status" (<http://upressonline.com/2013/01/fau-opens-investigation-on-james-tracy-leaving-him-unsure-of-job-status/>). University Press (Florida Atlantic University). Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20130118075332/http://upressonline.com/2013/01/fau-opens-investigation-on-james-tracy-leaving-him-unsure-of-job-status/>) from the original on January 18, 2013. Retrieved January 16, 2013.
50. Svrluga, Susan (December 17, 2015). "University moves to fire professor who says Sandy Hook massacre is a hoax — and allegedly harassed parents of victims" (<https://www.washingtonpost.com/news/grade-point/wp/2015/12/17/professor-who-says-sandy-hook-massacre-is-a-hoax-and-allegedly-harassed-parents-of-victims-gets-fired/>). The Washington Post. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20151217220109/https://www.washingtonpost.com/news/grade-point/wp/2015/12/17/professor-who-says-sandy-hook-massacre-is-a-hoax-and-allegedly-harassed-parents-of-victims-gets-fired/>) from the original on December 17, 2015. Retrieved December 17, 2015.

51. Lowe, Chan (January 11, 2013). "FAU prof's Sandy Hook conspiracy theory" (http://articles.sun-sentinel.com/2013-01-11/news/sfl-fau-profs-sandy-hook-conspiracy-theory-20130111_1_sandy-hook-conspiracy-chan-lowe). Sun-Sentinel. Archived (https://web.archive.org/web/20130429005426/http://articles.sun-sentinel.com/2013-01-11/news/sfl-fau-profs-sandy-hook-conspiracy-theory-20130111_1_sandy-hook-conspiracy-chan-lowe) from the original on April 29, 2013. Retrieved January 16, 2013.
52. Tracy, James (January 12, 2012). "Anderson Cooper's Anti-Conspiracy Tirade" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20130116213650/http://memoryholeblog.com/2013/01/12/does-anderson-cooper-want-james-tracy-andor-his-family-members-killed/>). Memory Hole. Archived from the original (<http://memoryholeblog.com/2013/01/12/does-anderson-cooper-want-james-tracy-andor-his-family-members-killed/>) on January 16, 2013. Retrieved January 16, 2013.
53. Poladian, Charles (January 12, 2013). "Newtown Conspiracy Professor Thinks Anderson Cooper Is Out To Harm Him" (<http://www.ibtimes.com/newtown-conspiracy-professor-thinks-anderson-cooper-out-harm-him-1011098>). International Business Times. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20130116175403/http://www.ibtimes.com/newtown-conspiracy-professor-thinks-anderson-cooper-out-harm-him-1011098>) from the original on January 16, 2013. Retrieved January 16, 2013.
54. Alvarez, Lizette (January 6, 2016). "Florida Professor Who Cast Doubt on Mass Shootings Is Fired" (<https://www.nytimes.com/2016/01/07/us/florida-professor-who-cast-doubt-on-mass-shootings-is-fired.html>). The New York Times. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20161210185726/http://www.nytimes.com/2016/01/07/us/florida-professor-who-cast-doubt-on-mass-shootings-is-fired.html>) from the original on December 10, 2016. Retrieved January 19, 2016.
55. Aravosis, John (January 15, 2013). "Sandy Hook truthers claim the Newtown massacre never happened" (<http://americablog.com/2013/01/sandy-hook-truthers-hoax.html>). Americablog. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20130116024247/http://americablog.com/2013/01/sandy-hook-truthers-hoax.html>) from the original on January 16, 2013. Retrieved January 15, 2013.
56. Fetzer, Jim (October 22, 2015). NOBODY DIED AT SANDY HOOK: It was a FEMA Drill to Promote Gun Control (<https://web.archive.org/web/20151226105335/https://www.createpace.com/5806216>). ISBN 9781518650840. Archived from the original (<https://www.createpace.com/5806216>) on December 26, 2015. Retrieved October 25, 2015.
57. Woods, Amanda (June 18, 2019). "Dad of Sandy Hook victim wins suit against conspiracy theorists" (<https://nypost.com/2019/06/18/dad-of-sandy-hook-victim-wins-suit-against-conspiracy-theorists/>). The New York Post. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20190618164319/https://nypost.com/2019/06/18/dad-of-sandy-hook-victim-wins-suit-against-conspiracy-theorists/>) from the original on June 18, 2019. Retrieved June 18, 2019.
58. Sharon Otterman (June 18, 2019). "Sandy Hook Conspiracy Theorist Loses to Father of 6-Year-Old Victim Over Hoax" (<https://www.nytimes.com/2019/06/18/nyregion/sandy-hook-victim-court-ruling.html>). The New York Times. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20190619220015/https://www.nytimes.com/2019/06/18/nyregion/sandy-hook-victim-court-ruling.html>) from the original on June 19, 2019. Retrieved June 19, 2019.
59. "Sandy Hook shooting: Parent awarded $450,000 for defamation" (<https://www.bbc.co.uk/news/world-us-canada-50074652>). BBC News. October 16, 2019. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20191016211612/https://www.bbc.co.uk/news/world-us-canada-50074652>) from the original on October 16, 2019. Retrieved October 17, 2019.
60. Chuck, Elizabeth (October 17, 2019). "Sandy Hook father to receive $450,000 from conspiracy theorist, jury says" (<https://www.nbcnews.com/news/us-news/sandy-hook-father-receive-450-000-conspiracy-theorist-jury-says-n1068026>). NBC News. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20191017150148/https://www.nbcnews.com/news/us-news/sandy-hook-father-receive-450-000-conspiracy-theorist-jury-says-n1068026>) from the original on October 17, 2019. Retrieved October 17, 2019.

61. Read, Max (January 15, 2013). "Behind the 'Sandy Hook Truther' Conspiracy Video That Five Eight Million People Have Watched in One Week" (<http://gawker.com/5976204/behind-the-sandy-hook-truther-conspiracy-video-that-five-million-people-have-watched-in-one-week>). Gawker. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20130116212311/http://gawker.com/5976204/behind-the-sandy-hook-truther-conspiracy-video-that-five-million-people-have-watched-in-one-week>) from the original on January 16, 2013. Retrieved January 16, 2013.
62. "The Sandy Hook Shooting - Fully Exposed" (https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=Wx9GxXYKx_8&bpctr=1358374781). YouTube. January 7, 2013. Archived (https://web.archive.org/web/20190218215912/https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=Wx9GxXYKx_8&bpctr=1358374781) from the original on February 18, 2019. Retrieved January 15, 2013.
63. John Tomasic (September 11, 2014). "GOP Pueblo candidate Tom Ready not sure Sandy Hook shootings happened" (<http://www.coloradoindependent.com/149252/gop-pueblo-candidate-tom-ready-not-sure-sandy-hook-shootings-happened>). The Colorado Independent. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20150402142816/http://www.coloradoindependent.com/149252/gop-pueblo-candidate-tom-ready-not-sure-sandy-hook-shootings-happened>) from the original on April 2, 2015. Retrieved May 3, 2015.
64. Christl Leong (September 15, 2014). "Republican Candidate Thomas Ready Gets Death Threat After Calling Sandy Hook Massacre A Hoax" (<http://www.chinatopix.com/articles/10596/20140915/colorado-candidate-gets-death-threat-posting-sandy-hook-massacre-hoax.htm>). Chinatopix. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20140916013333/http://www.chinatopix.com/articles/10596/20140915/colorado-candidate-gets-death-threat-posting-sandy-hook-massacre-hoax.htm>) from the original on September 16, 2014. Retrieved May 3, 2015.
65. Max Read (December 17, 2012). "The Insane Sandy Hook Conspiracy Theories That Are Already Flooding Facebook and Twitter" (<http://gawker.com/5969532/the-insane-sandy-hook-conspiracy-theories-that-are-already-flooding-facebook-and-twitter>). Gawker. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20130401063105/http://gawker.com/5969532/the-insane-sandy-hook-conspiracy-theories-that-are-already-flooding-facebook-and-twitter>) from the original on April 1, 2013. Retrieved May 31, 2014.
66. Radford, Benjamin (January 16, 2013). "Why Sandy Hook Massacre Spawned Conspiracy Theories" (<http://www.livescience.com/26314-sandy-hook-massacre-conspiracy-theories.html>). LiveScience. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20130403010209/http://www.livescience.com/26314-sandy-hook-massacre-conspiracy-theories.html>) from the original on April 3, 2013. Retrieved January 16, 2013.
67. Goodman, Lee-Anne (January 15, 2013). "Conspiracy theorists claim Sandy Hook School mass shooting a 'government-sponsored' hoax" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20130208224116/http://www.calgaryherald.com/news/Conspiracy+theorists+claim+Sandy+Hook+School+mass+shooting/7823304/story.html>). Calgary Herald. Archived from the original (<https://calgaryherald.com/news/Conspiracy+theorists+claim+Sandy+Hook+School+mass+shooting/7823304/story.html>) on February 8, 2013. Retrieved January 15, 2013.
68. Parry, Wynne (January 27, 2012). "Contradictions Don't Deter Conspiracy Theorists" (<http://www.livescience.com/18171-contradicting-conspiracy-theories-mistrust.html>). LiveScience. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20130103082641/http://www.livescience.com/18171-contradicting-conspiracy-theories-mistrust.html>) from the original on January 3, 2013. Retrieved January 16, 2013.
69. "Sandy Hook Exposed?" (<http://www.snopes.com/politics/guns/newtown.asp>). Snopes.com. Retrieved June 13, 2017.
70. Seitz-Wald, Alex (January 15, 2013). "This man helped save six children, is now getting harassed for it" (http://www.salon.com/2013/01/15/this_man_helped_save_six_children_is_now_getting_harassed_for_it/). Salon. Archived (https://web.archive.org/web/20130116021530/http://www.salon.com/2013/01/15/this_man_helped_save_six_children_is_now_getting_harassed_for_it/) from the original on January 16, 2013. Retrieved January 15, 2013.

71. Bennett-Smith, Meredith (January 15, 2013). "Gene Rosen, Sandy Hook Hero, Harassed By Conspiracy Theorists Who Claim He's An Actor" (https://www.huffingtonpost.com/2013/01/15/gene-ro-sen-sandy-hook-conspiracy-theory_n_2481912.html). The Huffington Post. Archived (https://web.archive.org/web/20130116143049/http://www.huffingtonpost.com/2013/01/15/gene-ro-sen-sandy-hook-conspiracy-theory_n_2481912.html) from the original on January 16, 2013. Retrieved January 16, 2013.
72. "Sandy Hook Hero Harassed by Burgeoning Truther Movement" (<http://newsfeed.time.com/2013/01/16/sandy-hook-hero-harassed-by-burgeoning-truther-movement/>). Time. January 16, 2013. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20130116203959/http://newsfeed.time.com/2013/01/16/sandy-hook-hero-harassed-by-burgeoning-truther-movement/>) from the original on January 16, 2013. Retrieved January 16, 2013.
73. "Sign Stolen from Playground Honoring Sandy Hook Victim" (<http://www.nbcconnecticut.com/news/local/Sandy-Hook-Playground-Grace-McDonnell-Mystic-Stolen-Sign-Hoax-258463251.html>). NBC Connecticut. May 9, 2014. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20140603163722/http://www.nbcconnecticut.com/news/local/Sandy-Hook-Playground-Grace-McDonnell-Mystic-Stolen-Sign-Hoax-258463251.html>) from the original on June 3, 2014. Retrieved May 3, 2015.
74. Chez Pazienza (May 22, 2014). "EXCLUSIVE: Sandy Hook Truther Comes Forward, Provides Photos Of Stolen Memorial Signs In His Living Room" (<http://thedailybanter.com/2014/05/exclusive-sandy-hook-truther-comes-forward-provides-photos-of-stolen-memorial-signs-in-his-living-room/>). The Daily Banter. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20140703003310/http://thedailybanter.com/2014/05/exclusive-sandy-hook-truther-comes-forward-provides-photos-of-stolen-memorial-signs-in-his-living-room/>) from the original on July 3, 2014. Retrieved May 3, 2015.
75. Sasha Goldstein (May 30, 2014). "Sandy Hook 'truther' caught in Virginia with signs stolen from playgrounds built for Newtown victims: police" (<http://www.nydailynews.com/news/crime/sandy-hook-truther-caught-virginia-stolen-playground-signs-police-article-1.1811925>). New York Daily News. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20140602231740/http://www.nydailynews.com/news/crime/sandy-hook-truther-caught-virginia-stolen-playground-signs-police-article-1.1811925>) from the original on June 2, 2014. Retrieved June 17, 2014.
76. "Mystic playground sign thief gets jail time in Virginia" (<http://www.thewesterlysun.com/news/latestnews/5355979-129/mystic-playground-sign-thief-gets-jail-time-in-virginia.html>). The Westerly Sun. August 20, 2014. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170103165623/http://www.thewesterlysun.com/news/latestnews/5355979-129/mystic-playground-sign-thief-gets-jail-time-in-virginia.html>) from the original on January 3, 2017. Retrieved June 13, 2017.
77. "Sandy Hook Truthers Say Robbie Parker Video Is Evidence Of Hoax" (<http://www.inquisitr.com/486693/sandy-hook-truthers-say-robbie-parker-video-is-evidence-of-hoax>). The Inquisitr News. January 18, 2013. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20130121141426/http://www.inquisitr.com/486693/sandy-hook-truthers-say-robbie-parker-video-is-evidence-of-hoax/>) from the original on January 21, 2013. Retrieved February 12, 2013. Retrieved 2014-05-31.
78. Daniel Tepfer, Sandy Hook 'truther' gets suspended sentence (<http://www.ctpost.com/policereports/article/Sandy-Hook-truther-gets-suspended-sentence-7255482.php>) Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20160419094019/http://www.ctpost.com/policereports/article/Sandy-Hook-truther-gets-suspended-sentence-7255482.php>) April 19, 2016, at the Wayback Machine, Connecticut Post (April 18, 2016).
79. Stepansky, Joseph; Dillon, Nancy (November 11, 2015). "Brooklyn man harassed family of slain Newtown teacher" (<http://www.nydailynews.com/news/national/brooklyn-man-harassed-family-slain-newtown-teacher-article-1.2430266>). New York Daily News. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20160518135652/http://www.nydailynews.com/news/national/brooklyn-man-harassed-family-slain-newtown-teacher-article-1.2430266>) from the original on May 18, 2016. Retrieved June 4, 2016.

80. Robles, Frances (December 7, 2016). "Florida Woman Is Charged With Threatening Sandy Hook Parent" (<https://www.nytimes.com/2016/12/07/us/florida-woman-is-charged-with-threatening-sandy-hook-parent.html>). New York Times. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170308201745/https://www.nytimes.com/2016/12/07/us/florida-woman-is-charged-with-threatening-sandy-hook-parent.html>) from the original on March 8, 2017. Retrieved March 3, 2017.
81. Cruz, Jennifer (December 8, 2016). "Sandy Hook truther charged for threatening victim's parent" (<http://www.guns.com/2016/12/08/conspiracy-theorist-charged-for-threatening-parent-of-sandy-hook-victim/>). guns.com. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170403111115/http://www.guns.com/2016/12/08/conspiracy-theorist-charged-for-threatening-parent-of-sandy-hook-victim/>) from the original on April 3, 2017. Retrieved April 2, 2017.
82. Mike Wendling, Sandy Hook to Trump: 'Help us stop conspiracy theorists' (<https://www.bbc.com/news/blogs-trending-39194035>) Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20180906042354/https://www.bbc.com/news/blogs-trending-39194035>) September 6, 2018, at the Wayback Machine, BBC News (April 2, 2017).
83. Paula McMahon, Woman accused of threatening Sandy Hook parent jailed after she was a no-show for court (<http://www.sun-sentinel.com/local/broward/fl-pn-sandy-hook-lucy-richards-arrest-20170403-story.html>) Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170410050934/http://www.sun-sentinel.com/local/broward/fl-pn-sandy-hook-lucy-richards-arrest-20170403-story.html>) April 10, 2017, at the Wayback Machine, South Florida Sun-Sentinel (April 3, 2017).
84. "Florida woman sentenced for threatening parent of Sandy Hook victim" (<https://www.reuters.com/article/us-florida-crime-sandyhook-idUSKBN18Y2BY>). Reuters. June 8, 2017. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170702101530/http://www.reuters.com/article/us-florida-crime-sandyhook-idUSKBN18Y2BY>) from the original on July 2, 2017. Retrieved July 2, 2017.
85. "About Us - HONR Network | Against the Abusers | Awareness" (<http://www.honr.com/about.html>). Honr.com. May 26, 2013. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20160315074718/http://honr.com/about.html>) from the original on March 15, 2016. Retrieved June 13, 2017.
86. Williamson, Elizabeth (January 27, 2020). "A Notorious Sandy Hook Tormentor Is Arrested in Florida" (<https://www.nytimes.com/2020/01/27/us/politics/sandy-hook-hoaxer-arrest.html>). The New York Times. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20200127184019/https://www.nytimes.com/2020/01/27/us/politics/sandy-hook-hoaxer-arrest.html>) from the original on January 27, 2020. Retrieved January 27, 2020.

Retrieved from "https://en.wikipedia.org/w/index.php?title=Sandy_Hook_Elementary_School_shooting_conspiracy_theories&oldid=1028134966"

This page was last edited on 12 June 2021, at 02:44 (UTC).

Text is available under the Creative Commons Attribution-ShareAlike License; additional terms may apply. By using this site, you agree to the Terms of Use and Privacy Policy. Wikipedia® is a registered trademark of the Wikimedia Foundation, Inc., a non-profit organization.

Sutherland Springs church shooting

The Sutherland Springs church shooting occurred on November 5, 2017, when Devin Patrick Kelley of New Braunfels, Texas perpetrated a mass shooting at the First Baptist Church in Sutherland Springs, Texas. Kelley killed 25 people (including a pregnant woman), and wounded 20 others before dying of a self-inflicted gunshot wound. The attack is the deadliest mass shooting in Texas history, and the fifth-deadliest in the United States.^{[2]^[note 1]} It was the deadliest shooting in an American place of worship in modern history, surpassing the Charleston church shooting of 2015^[3] and the Waddell Buddhist temple shooting of 1991.^[4]

Kelley was prohibited by law from purchasing or possessing firearms and ammunition due to a domestic violence conviction in a court-martial while in the United States Air Force. The Air Force failed to record the conviction in the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) National Crime Information Center database, which is used by the National Instant Check System to flag prohibited purchases. The error prompted the Air Force to begin a review.^[5]

Contents

Shooting

Investigation

Victims

Perpetrator

Early life and education

Military service and violent behavior

Personal life

Ability to purchase and carry firearms

Reactions

Conspiracy theories and harassment of victims' families

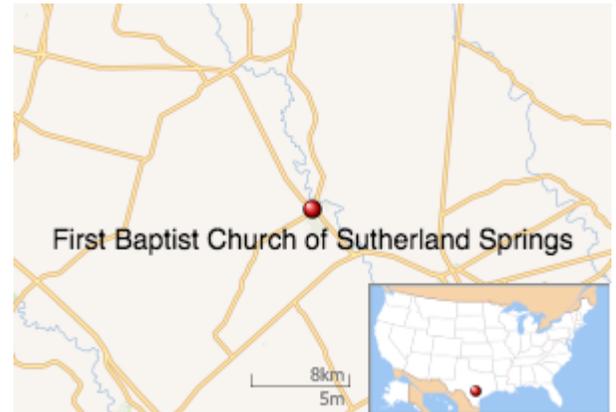

See also

References

External links

Sutherland Springs church shooting

Part of mass shootings in the United States

[Interactive fullscreen map]

Location	First Baptist Church 216 4th Street Sutherland Springs, Texas, U.S.
Coordinates	29.2732°N 98.0564°W﻿ / ﻿
Date	November 5, 2017 c. 11:20 – 11:30 a.m. ^[1] (CST)
Attack type	Mass shooting
Weapon	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Ruger AR-556 semi-automatic rifle Glock 19 semi-automatic pistol Ruger SR22 semi-automatic pistol
Deaths	26 (including the perpetrator)
Injured	20
Perpetrator	Devin Patrick Kelley
Defender	Stephen Willeford

Shooting

A few minutes after 11 a.m., Kelley arrived in a pearl white Ford Explorer SUV at the First Baptist Church in Sutherland Springs.^[6]

Around 11:20 a.m., Kelley stepped out of the SUV, wearing black tactical gear, a ballistic vest, and a black face-mask featuring a white skull,^[7] and wielding a Ruger AR-556 semi-automatic rifle. He approached the church from the right, opening fire on and killing two people outside the church and continuing to fire on the building itself. He then entered through a right side door, where worshippers were attending regular Sunday service.^{[7][8]}

Inside, he yelled, "Everybody dies, motherfuckers," as he proceeded up and down the center aisle and shot at people in the pews.^{[7][8]} Police found 15 empty magazines capable of holding 30 rounds each. Authorities stated Kelley fired approximately 700 rounds during the estimated 11 minute long shooting.^{[1][9][10][11]} According to investigators, the shooting was captured on a camera set up at the back of the church to record regular services for uploading online. The footage shows Kelley methodically shooting the victims, pausing only to reload his rifle.^[12]

Kelley was then confronted by and traded fire with Stephen Willeford, a local resident and former NRA firearms instructor^[13] who was armed with an AR-15 semi-automatic rifle. Willeford had taken cover behind a truck across the street from the church and shot Kelley twice, once in the leg and once in the upper left torso under his tactical gear.^{[14][15][16]} Kelley, who had dropped his rifle upon the initial fire with Willeford, fired back with a handgun before fleeing in his Ford Explorer. Willeford fired one more round as Kelley sped north on FM 539.^{[17][18]} Willeford then noticed a pickup truck parked at the intersection of 4th St. and FM 539, driven by Johnnie Langendorff.

Willeford approached and entered Langendorff's truck on the passenger side. They then pursued Kelley at high speed for about five to seven minutes. According to Langendorff, they drove at speeds up to 95 miles per hour (155 km/h).^[19] While chasing Kelley, Langendorff called 9-1-1 and reported their location to the operator as they assumed that the police were on their way to the church.

During the chase, Kelley called his wife and spoke to her and his parents, informing them "I just shot up the Sutherland Springs church,"^[20] and telling his father that he was injured and thought that he would not survive.^[16] Kelley repeatedly emphasized how sorry he was.^[20] Bleeding from his injuries, Kelley soon lost control of his vehicle, hitting a road sign before crossing a bar ditch at the Hartfield/Sandy Elm Road intersection and finally stopping about 30 feet into the field on the opposite side.

Willeford and Langendorff observed that he was motionless, and police took over the scene when they arrived.^[21] Police found Kelley dead in his car^[22] with three gunshot wounds, including a self-inflicted head wound.^[23] Two handguns were found in the vehicle: a Glock 19 9mm and a Ruger SR22 .22-caliber, both of which Kelley had purchased.^[24]

Stephen Willeford, former NRA firearms instructor who fired upon and injured the shooter

Investigation

The Texas Rangers led the investigation, with the FBI and the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms and Explosives (ATF) assisting.^[22] Investigators said the shooting was not motivated by racism or prejudice against religion, but by a dispute with Kelley's mother-in-law.^[25] There was no indication that anyone other than Kelley was involved in the shooting.^[12]

Victims

The attack occurred during the church's Sunday service.^[26] Twenty-six people were killed (including the shooter) and 20 others were injured. The dead comprised ten women (including one pregnant), seven men, seven girls, one boy.^[12] Twenty-three died inside the church, two outside, and one in a hospital.^[27] The oldest victim was 77 years old.^[12] One victim was the 14-year-old daughter of church pastor Frank Pomeroy, who was elsewhere the day of the attack.^{[28][26][22][29]} Visiting pastor Bryan Holcombe died with seven family members, including his pregnant daughter-in-law.^[30]

The injured victims were taken to Connally Memorial Medical Center in Floresville, University Hospital in San Antonio, and Brooke Army Medical Center at Fort Sam Houston.^[6]

Perpetrator

Early life and education

Devin Patrick Kelley (February 12, 1991 – November 5, 2017)^[31] was raised in New Braunfels, Texas, about 35 miles (56 km) from Sutherland Springs, and attended New Braunfels High School.^{[26][32][33]}

At New Braunfels High, Kelley had a lengthy disciplinary record, which included seven suspensions for "falsifying records, insubordination, profanity and a drug-related offense".^[34] One former high school classmate described him as "an outcast but not a loner" who was "popular among other outcasts".^[35] However, a martial arts instructor who taught Kelley during that time said Kelley signed up for his class because he was being bullied and that he did not fit in. Kelley graduated in 2009 with a 2.32 grade-point average and a ranking of 260 out of 393 students in his class.^[34] A close friend from middle school through high school recalled "he wasn't always a 'psychopath' though" and that "over the years we all saw him change into something that he wasn't".^[35]

Military service and violent behavior

After graduating, Kelley enlisted in the United States Air Force. He served in logistics readiness at Holloman Air Force Base in New Mexico from 2009 until 2014. He married in April 2011.^{[36][37]} In October 2012, he was charged with assaulting his wife and fracturing his toddler stepson's skull. In response, Kelley made death threats against the superior officers who charged him, and he was caught sneaking firearms onto Holloman Air Force Base.^[38] Around that same time, he made threats of self-harm to a coworker.^[34] He was then admitted to Peak Behavioral Health Services, a mental health facility in Santa Teresa, New Mexico.^[38]

In June 2012, Kelley escaped from Peak Behavioral Health Services but was soon apprehended ten miles away at a bus terminal in El Paso, Texas.^{[38][39]} The facility's director of military affairs later recalled that Kelley had stayed at the facility for several weeks, until he was brought to court-martial. While there, he had expressed a desire for "some kind of retribution to his chain of command" and was discovered to have used computers to order "weapons and tactical gear to a P.O. box in San Antonio".^[39]

Kelley and his wife divorced in October 2012.^[36] In an interview with Inside Edition, his ex-wife said she lived in constant fear of him, as their marriage was filled with abuse. He once threatened her at gunpoint over a speeding ticket, and later threatened to kill her and her entire family.^[40]

Kelley was brought before a general court-martial on four charges: assault on his wife, aggravated assault on his stepson, two charges of pointing a loaded gun at his wife, and two counts of threatening his wife with an unloaded gun. In November 2012, Kelley pleaded guilty to two counts of Article 128 UCMJ, for the assault of his wife and stepson. In return, the weapons charges were dropped.^{[41][42][43]} He was sentenced to 12 months of confinement and a reduction in rank to Airman Basic. He appealed to the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Armed Forces, but was unsuccessful.^[44] In 2014, he was dismissed from the Air Force with a bad conduct discharge.^{[45][46]}

Personal life

After his release, Kelley returned to New Braunfels, where he lived in a converted barn at his parents' home. Shortly thereafter, he was investigated for sexual assault and rape, and for a physical assault of his then-girlfriend.^[42] A 2013 statement from the woman who accused Kelley of sexual assault detailed an alleged attack on her. A separate statement from Kelley's first wife (who divorced him in October 2012) said that Kelley had physically abused her during the marriage; the woman wrote, "For a whole year, he slapped me, choked me, kicked me, water-boarded me and held a gun to my head."^{[47][48]} However, the Comal County, Texas, Sheriff's Office did not bring charges against Kelley, and "the case became inactive because the victim did not respond to four follow-up calls and messages from a sheriff's office detective."^[48]

On April 4, 2014, Kelley married his then-girlfriend.^[49] The couple moved into a mobile home in Colorado Springs, Colorado, where he was charged in August 2014 for misdemeanor cruelty to animals after beating his malnourished husky.^[50] He was given a deferred sentence of probation and was ordered to pay restitution and other fees; the charge was dismissed in March 2016, after he completed the sentence.^{[42][50]} In January 2015, a resident of El Paso County, Colorado, received a protection order against him.^[49]

Kelley attended the First Baptist Church in Kingsville, Texas, from May to June 2014 and volunteered as a helper for one day of Vacation Bible School.^[51] Later on, he stopped volunteering at the summer Bible class and began posting about atheism online.^[52] According to some of his former high school classmates, he was constantly "trying to preach his atheism" and describing people who believe in God as "stupid", causing them to delete him as a friend on Facebook for his posts.^{[53][52][54]}

At the time of the shooting, Kelley was again living at his parents' property in New Braunfels.^[42] He reportedly lied about his background to pass a background check and obtain a license from the Texas Department of Public Safety as a security guard,^{[55][56]} and was a security worker at the Summit Vacation and RV Resort in New Braunfels.^[32] He had previously worked as an unarmed security guard at the Schlitterbahn Waterpark and Resort in New Braunfels, but was fired after less than six weeks on the job.^[32] While he was working at The Summit Vacation and RV Resort, a family who encountered him commented on how "creepy" Kelley had seemed; one member described, "He seemed angry. He seemed annoyed by us, and he seemed like he wanted to exert some authority."^[57]

On the night of October 31, less than a week before the shooting, Kelley attended a festival at the First Baptist Church wearing all black. According to two parishioners who were at the festival, he acted so strangely that people had to keep an eye on him. One also examined him to make sure he was not carrying a firearm.^[40] According to a former Air Force colleague who temporarily got reacquainted with him online, Kelley claimed he would buy dogs and other animals and use them for "target practice". He also expressed his obsession with mass murders, including the Charleston church shooting, and joked about committing one himself. These comments prompted her to block him on Facebook.^{[34][58]}

Kelley's estranged second wife sometimes attended First Baptist Church in Sutherland Springs with her family.^[42] Prior to the shooting, he sent threatening text messages to her mother.^[16] His wife and her mother were not at the church when the attack occurred, but he killed his wife's grandmother at the church.^{[16][59]}

Ability to purchase and carry firearms

In 2012, Kelley purchased two guns (a European American Armory Windicator .38-caliber revolver and a 9mm SIG Sauer P250 pistol) from the HAFB Base Exchange.^[60]

Kelley later purchased four guns, including a 9mm Glock 19 pistol, a .22-caliber Ruger SR22 pistol, a Ruger GP100 .357 Magnum revolver and a Ruger AR-556 rifle, at stores in Colorado and Texas between 2014 and 2017.^[61] On October 29, a week before the shooting, he posted a photo of what appeared to be a Ruger model AR-556 rifle on his Facebook profile. A Ruger AR-556 rifle was used in the attack, and two handguns were found in Kelley's vehicle.^[62]

Kelley purchased the semi-automatic rifle used in the shooting from an Academy Sports + Outdoors store in San Antonio on April 7, 2016.^[63] He filled out the required ATF Form 4473 and falsely indicated that he did not have a disqualifying criminal history. In Texas, an FBI National Instant Criminal Background Check System (NICS) check is required at the time of purchase for all firearms except for purchasers with a valid license to carry a handgun.^{[64][65]}

The State of Texas denied his application for a license to carry a handgun,^{[52][63]} although a license is not required to purchase firearms under Texas state law.^[61]

Kelley's general court-martial guilty plea made it illegal for him to own, buy, or possess a firearm or ammunition. The conviction should have been flagged by NICS and prevented the purchase.^{[63][66]} Federal law prohibits those convicted of domestic violence—even if it is only a misdemeanor—from possessing firearms.^{[67][68]} However, the Air Force failed to relay the court-martial convictions to the FBI. In a statement admitting the oversight, the Air Force said, "Initial information indicates that Kelley's domestic violence offense was not entered into the National Crime Information Center database by the Holloman Air Force Base Office of Special Investigations."^{[5][69]} One day after the shooting, the Air Force said it had "launched a review of how the service handled the criminal records of former Airman Devin P. Kelley following his 2012 domestic violence conviction".^{[5][68]} Three days after the shooting, Vice President Mike Pence visited the crime scene, and said, "We will find why this information was not properly recorded in 2012, and we will work with leaders in Congress to ensure that this never happens again."^[70]

In 2018, the family of a couple that was murdered in the shooting sued the Air Force and the Department of Defense, alleging the government was negligent.^[71]

Reactions

The shooting brought attention to gaps in reporting to the federal background-check system intended to ban convicted domestic abusers, such as Kelley, from purchasing guns. Since 1996, the Lautenberg Amendment has prohibited the sale of firearms to those convicted of domestic abuse offenses, even misdemeanors, but gaps in reporting continue to exist.^[68]

Donald Trump, who was the 45th president of the United States at the time of the shooting, said at a press conference in Tokyo, Japan that "I think that mental health is a problem here. Based on preliminary reports, this was a very deranged individual with a lot of problems over a very long period of time. We have a lot of mental health problems in our country, as do other countries, but this isn't a guns situation ... we could go into it but it's a little bit soon to go into it. Fortunately somebody else had a gun that was shooting in the opposite direction, otherwise it wouldn't have been as bad as it was, it would have been much worse".^[72] Trump was asked about gun policy while visiting Seoul, South Korea. In response to a proposal for extreme vetting of gun ownership, Trump said that this would have made "no difference". He said that stricter gun control measures might have prevented Stephen Willeford from shooting Kelley, and commented, "Instead of having 26 dead, he would've had hundreds more dead."^{[73][74]} After the shooting, Trump issued a presidential proclamation honoring the victims^[75] and ordered the United States flag at half-staff at the White House and all public and military sites until the sunset of November 9.^[76] Willeford was called a hero for what he did.^[77]

Donald Trump discussing the shooting at a press conference in Tokyo, Japan

Texas Governor Greg Abbott said that the shooting "will be a long, suffering mourning for those in pain". Texas Attorney General Ken Paxton proposed that churches employ professional armed security guards, or at least arm more parishioners, to counter church shootings, which he said have happened "forever" and will again.^[78] Paxton was criticized by Manny Garcia, the Texas Democratic Party's deputy executive director, who said that "Texans deserve more from their chief law enforcement official than inaction and willful ignorance."^[79]

On November 9, the pastor of the church, Frank Pomeroy, announced that the building would be demolished and be replaced with a prayer garden, stating that it would be too painful to the victims to keep the building as is.^{[80][81]} Later in the month he told the New York Times that reports of the church being demolished were inaccurate, and that a decision on the future of the church had not yet been made.^[82]

On November 15, 2017, the day nine victims of the shooting were buried, Senator John Cornyn (R-TX) introduced the Fix NICS Act of 2017 (S.2135), to address deficiencies in the reporting process, and impose severe penalties for the failure of agencies to report convictions. The next day, Congressman Henry Cuellar (D-TX), whose district, Texas 28th, includes Sutherland Springs, introduced a version in the House of Representatives (H. R. 4434). Cuellar's bill was superseded by H. R. 4477, introduced by Congressman John Culberson (R-TX), representing Texas' 7th District, including western Houston and Harris County. The final version of the Fix NICS ACT was passed as part of the Consolidated Appropriations Act, 2018, signed as Pub.L.115-141 by President Donald Trump on March 23, 2018. A week later, Cornyn met with survivors and victims' families at the First Baptist Church in Sutherland Springs to discuss details of the legislation. Between November 5, 2017, and March 30, 2018, the U. S. Air Force turned over at least 4,000 outstanding records to the FBI.^[83]

Conspiracy theories and harassment of victims' families

Fake news websites and far-right activists published misleading stories and conspiracy stories about the incident.^{[84][85][86][87]} They associated the shooter with a range of people and groups the far-right opposes^[85] such as identifying him as a Democrat, Hillary Clinton supporter, Bernie Sanders supporter, Alt-left supporter, or radical Muslim;^{[88][86]} or claiming that he carried an antifa flag and told churchgoers, "This is a communist revolution!"^{[89][90][91]} Some reports falsely claimed that he targeted the church because they were "white conservatives".^[85] Democratic U.S. Representative Vicente González twice incorrectly named the shooter as "Sam Hyde", a comedian who is often jokingly referred to as the perpetrator on social media. González said that he had been given that name by officials.^[92]

Conspiracy theories circulated at the hospital where victims were being treated. According to The Washington Post, a group of women who said they knew the victims were overheard discussing the shooting as a false flag operation designed to manipulate the public towards some nefarious end. The Post reporter sought to inquire further, but the women pushed her away, saying, "She [the reporter] is part of it [the conspiracy]," after which the reporter was removed from the hospital by police.^[84] The misinformation mirrored similar events in the aftermath of the Las Vegas shooting a few weeks earlier, in which perpetrator Stephen Paddock was falsely linked to leftist and Islamist groups.^[85]

In 2018, two conspiracy theorists, Jodi Mann and Robert Ussery, were arrested after accosting the church's pastor, whose daughter was killed in the shooting. Both were charged with trespassing and resisting arrest, and Ussery was also charged with making a terroristic threat and possession of marijuana. Mann and Ussery deny that the massacre occurred and instead promote "false flag" conspiracy notions on the Internet, asserting that the Sutherland Springs attack and other attacks were orchestrated for political purposes.^[93]

See also

- Gun violence in the United States
- Gun law in the United States
- Gun politics in the United States
- List of rampage killers in the United States
- List of shootings in Texas

References

1. Medina, Steve Spriester, Mariah (February 6, 2018). "700 rounds in 11 minutes: Sutherland Springs survivor says he's amazed he's alive" (<https://www.ksat.com/news/700-rounds-in-11-minutes-sutherland-springs-survivor-says-hes-amazed-hes-alive-1>). KSAT.
2. Ahmed, Saeed (November 6, 2017). "2 of the 5 deadliest mass shootings in modern US history happened in the last 35 days" (<http://www.cnn.com/2017/11/05/health/deadliest-mass-shootings-in-modern-us-history-trnd/index.html>). CNN. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20171106071735/http://www.cnn.com/2017/11/05/health/deadliest-mass-shootings-in-modern-us-history-trnd/index.html>) from the original on November 6, 2017. Retrieved November 6, 2017.
3. Weill, Kelly (November 5, 2017). "Deadliest Church Shooting in American History Kills at Least 26" (<https://www.thedailybeast.com/deadliest-church-shooting-in-american-history-strikes-sutherland-springs-texas>). The Daily Beast. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20171106062833/https://www.thedailybeast.com/deadliest-church-shooting-in-american-history-strikes-sutherland-springs-texas>) from the original on November 6, 2017. Retrieved November 6, 2017.

4. "Fast facts: Deadliest mass shootings in modern US history" (<http://www.ky3.com/content/news/FAST-FACTS-Deadliest-mass-shootings-in-modern-US-history--455579613.html>). Springfield, MO: KY3. November 6, 2017. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20171107164847/http://www.ky3.com/content/news/FAST-FACTS-Deadliest-mass-shootings-in-modern-US-history--455579613.html>) from the original on November 7, 2017. Retrieved November 7, 2017.
5. Montgomery, David; Oppel, Richard A. Jr.; Delreal, Jose A. (November 6, 2017). "Air Force Error Allowed Texas Gunman to Buy Weapons" (<https://www.nytimes.com/2017/11/06/us/texas-shooting-church.html>). The New York Times. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20171106233449/https://www.nytimes.com/2017/11/06/us/texas-shooting-church.html>) from the original on November 6, 2017. Retrieved November 6, 2017.
6. Andone, Dakin; Hartung, Kaylee; Simon, Darran (November 6, 2017). "At least 26 people killed in shooting at Texas church" (<http://www.cnn.com/2017/11/05/us/texas-church-shooting/index.html>). CNN. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20171105193022/http://www.cnn.com/2017/11/05/us/texas-church-shooting/index.html>) from the original on November 5, 2017. Retrieved November 6, 2017.
7. Cullen, Terence (November 7, 2017). "Survivors of Texas massacre recall moment gunman entered church" (<http://www.nydailynews.com/news/national/survivors-texas-massacre-recalls-moments-gunman-entered-church-article-1.3616562>). Daily News. New York. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20171108035104/http://www.nydailynews.com/news/national/survivors-texas-massacre-recalls-moments-gunman-entered-church-article-1.3616562>) from the original on November 8, 2017. Retrieved November 7, 2017.
8. " 'Everybody dies, motherf---!': Sick Texas church killer Devin Kelley checked aisles for crying babies" (<http://torontosun.com/news/world/everybody-dies-motherf-sick-texas-church-killer-devin-kelley-checked-aisles-for-crying-babies>). Toronto Sun. November 7, 2017. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20171107171715/http://torontosun.com/news/world/everybody-dies-motherf-sick-texas-church-killer-devin-kelley-checked-aisles-for-crying-babies>) from the original on November 7, 2017. Retrieved November 7, 2017.
9. Weber, Paul J.; Schmall, Emily; Vertuno, Jim (November 8, 2017). "Carnage at small-town Texas church claimed 8 children" (<http://www.chicagotribune.com/news/nationworld/ct-texas-shooting-children-deaths-20171108-story.html>). Chicago Tribune. Associated Press. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20171109015118/http://www.chicagotribune.com/news/nationworld/ct-texas-shooting-children-deaths-20171108-story.html>) from the original on November 9, 2017. Retrieved November 8, 2017.
10. Winkle, Kate; Bien, Calily (November 6, 2017). "15 empty magazines found at Sutherland Springs church massacre" (<https://kxan.com/2017/11/06/nearly-everyone-in-church-hurt-or-killed-sheriff-says-in-monday-update/>). Austin, Texas: KXAN-TV. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20171107185002/http://kxan.com/2017/11/06/nearly-everyone-in-church-hurt-or-killed-sheriff-says-in-monday-update/>) from the original on November 7, 2017. Retrieved November 8, 2017.
11. Villalpando, Rob; Wilson, Mark D.; Plohetski, Tony; Autullo, Ryan; Bridges, John; Hall, Katie (November 7, 2017). "Hundreds of shell casings, 15 empty magazines found at church" (<http://www.statesman.com/news/crime--law/hundreds-shell-casings-empty-magazines-found-church/tSW3WNOzyGcHC64ilkkLKN/>). Austin American-Statesman. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20171108002417/http://www.statesman.com/news/crime--law/hundreds-shell-casings-empty-magazines-found-church/tSW3WNOzyGcHC64ilkkLKN/>) from the original on November 8, 2017. Retrieved November 8, 2017.
12. Goldman, Adam; Pérez-Peña, Richard; Fernández, Manny (November 8, 2017). "Texas Church Shooting Video Shows Gunman's Methodical Attack, Official Says" (<https://www.nytimes.com/2017/11/08/us/texas-shooting-video-devin-kelley.html>). The New York Times. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20171108171702/https://www.nytimes.com/2017/11/08/us/texas-shooting-video-devin-kelley.html>) from the original on November 8, 2017. Retrieved November 8, 2017.
13. Jenkins, Aric (November 6, 2017). " 'I'm Not a Hero': Man Who Shot and Chased Texas Church Gunman Shares Story" (<http://time.com/5012688/stephen-willeford-interview-texas-church/>). Time. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20171110045209/http://time.com/5012688/stephen-willeford-interview-texas-church/>) from the original on November 10, 2017. Retrieved November 7, 2017.

14. Pearce, Matt; Savage, John; Adrawal, Nina (November 6, 2017). "In Texas, a good guy with a gun took on a bad guy with a gun, feeding both sides of the gun control debate" (<http://www.latimes.com/nation/la-na-texas-shooting-guns-20171106-story.html>). Los Angeles Times. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20171107051532/http://www.latimes.com/nation/la-na-texas-shooting-guns-20171106-story.html>) from the original on November 7, 2017. Retrieved November 7, 2017.
15. Toppo, Greg (November 6, 2017). "Sutherland Springs: Who was suspected church shooter Devin Kelley?" (<https://www.usatoday.com/story/news/2017/11/05/who-suspected-church-shooter-devin-kelley/834639001/>). USA Today. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20171106091240/https://www.usatoday.com/story/news/2017/11/05/who-suspected-church-shooter-devin-kelley/834639001/>) from the original on November 6, 2017. Retrieved November 6, 2017.
16. "Texas shooting: Gunman Devin Kelley 'had row with mother-in-law'" (<https://www.bbc.com/news/world-us-canada-41892838>). BBC News. November 6, 2017. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20171106234938/http://www.bbc.com/news/world-us-canada-41892838>) from the original on November 6, 2017. Retrieved November 6, 2017.
17. Mizoguchi, Karen (November 7, 2017). "Strangers Who Stopped Texas Shooter Share Emotional Embrace at Vigil Held for Massacre Victims" (<https://people.com/human-interest/stephen-willeford-johnny-langendorff-who-stopped-shooter-embrace/>). People. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20171107133438/http://people.com/human-interest/stephen-willeford-johnny-langendorff-who-stopped-shooter-embrace/>) from the original on November 7, 2017. Retrieved November 7, 2017.
18. Swenson, Kyle; Eltagouri, Marwa (November 6, 2017). "An unlikely hero describes gun battle and 95-mph pursuit of Texas shooting suspect" (<https://www.washingtonpost.com/news/morning-mix/wp/2017/11/06/an-unlikely-hero-describes-gun-battle-and-95-mph-chase-with-texas-shooting-suspect/>). The Washington Post. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20171106214718/https://www.washingtonpost.com/news/morning-mix/wp/2017/11/06/an-unlikely-hero-describes-gun-battle-and-95-mph-chase-with-texas-shooting-suspect/>) from the original on November 6, 2017. Retrieved November 7, 2017.
19. Dexheimer, Eric; Autullo, Ryan (November 6, 2017). "Meet the two men who chased the gunman in Sutherland Springs shootings" (<http://www.statesman.com/news/meet-the-two-men-who-chased-the-gunman-sutherland-springs-shootings/z7nOsw2A9SPFpBAAtNIEbcl/>). Austin American-Statesman. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20171106231841/http://www.statesman.com/news/meet-the-two-men-who-chased-the-gunman-sutherland-springs-shootings/z7nOsw2A9SPFpBAAtNIEbcl/>) from the original on November 6, 2017. Retrieved November 7, 2017.
20. The Associated Press (August 12, 2018). "Sutherland Springs gunman's wife says he bound her to the bed using rope, handcuffs and tape as their son cried before carrying out mass murder" (<http://www.nydailynews.com/news/national/ny-news-ny-sutherland-springs-murder-20180812-story.html#>). NY Daily News. Retrieved August 13, 2018.
21. Danner, Chas (November 5, 2017). "26 Dead After Mass Shooting at South Texas Church" (<http://nymag.com/daily/intelligencer/2017/11/multiple-people-dead-after-mass-shooting-at-texas-church.html>). New York. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20171105213501/http://nymag.com/daily/intelligencer/2017/11/multiple-people-dead-after-mass-shooting-at-texas-church.html>) from the original on November 5, 2017. Retrieved November 5, 2017.
22. Montgomery, David; Mele, Christopher; Fernandez, Manny (November 5, 2017). "Gunman Kills at Least 26 in Attack on Rural Texas Church" (<https://www.nytimes.com/2017/11/05/us/church-shooting-texas.html>). The New York Times. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20171105212513/https://www.nytimes.com/2017/11/05/us/church-shooting-texas.html>) from the original on November 5, 2017. Retrieved November 5, 2017.
23. Yan, Holly; Stapleton, AnneClaire; Simon, Darran (November 6, 2017). "Authorities: Texas church shooter had three gunshot wounds" (<http://www.cnn.com/2017/11/06/us/texas-church-shooting/index.html>). CNN. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20171106113203/http://www.cnn.com/2017/11/06/us/texas-church-shooting/index.html>) from the original on November 6, 2017. Retrieved November 6, 2017.

24. "Rifle, handguns linked to gunman in Texas church shooting" (<http://www.foxnews.com/us/2017/11/06/rifle-handguns-linked-to-gunman-in-texas-church-shooting.html>). Fox News Channel. Associated Press. November 6, 2017. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20171106235543/http://www.foxnews.com/us/2017/11/06/rifle-handguns-linked-to-gunman-in-texas-church-shooting.html>) from the original on November 6, 2017. Retrieved November 6, 2017.
25. "Texas officials: Mass shooting not motivated by religion or race" (<http://wreg.com/2017/11/06/texas-officials-mass-shooting-not-motivated-by-religion-or-race/>). Memphis, Tennessee: WREG-TV. Associated Press. November 6, 2017. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20171107034801/http://wreg.com/2017/11/06/texas-officials-mass-shooting-not-motivated-by-religion-or-race/>) from the original on November 7, 2017. Retrieved November 6, 2017.
26. "'Mass shooting' at church in Texas" (<https://www.bbc.com/news/world-us-canada-41880511>). BBC News. November 5, 2017. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20171105200856/http://www.bbc.com/news/world-us-canada-41880511>) from the original on November 5, 2017. Retrieved November 5, 2017.
27. Gutierrez, Gabe; Atencio, Mariana; Chuck, Elizabeth; Abdelkader, Rima; Walters, Shamar (November 6, 2017). "About Half of the Texas Church Shooting Victims Were Children" (<https://www.nbcnews.com/storyline/texas-church-shooting/about-half-victims-texas-church-shooting-were-children-n817896>). NBC News. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20171106150316/https://www.nbcnews.com/storyline/texas-church-shooting/about-half-victims-texas-church-shooting-were-children-n817896>) from the original on November 6, 2017. Retrieved November 6, 2017.
28. Kovalski, Serge F. (November 22, 2017). "The Day the Pastor Was Away and Evil Came Barging Into His Church" (<https://www.nytimes.com/2017/11/22/us/pastor-frank-pomeroy-sutherland-springs.html>). The New York Times. ISSN 0362-4331 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/0362-4331>). Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20171122125754/https://www.nytimes.com/2017/11/22/us/pastor-frank-pomeroy-sutherland-springs.html>) from the original on November 22, 2017. Retrieved November 22, 2017.
29. Keneally, Meghan; Delmoro, Michael (November 5, 2017). "14-year-old daughter of pastor among victims in Texas church shooting, father says" (<https://abcnews.go.com/US/14-year-daughter-pastor-victims-texas-church-shooting/story?id=50947892>). ABC News. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20171106000716/https://abcnews.go.com/US/14-year-daughter-pastor-victims-texas-church-shooting/story?id=50947892>) from the original on November 6, 2017. Retrieved November 6, 2017.
30. "Texas Shooting Death Toll Includes Unborn Child" (<http://fox40.com/2017/11/07/texas-shooting-death-toll-includes-unborn-child/>). Sacramento, California: KTXL. Associated Press. November 7, 2017. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20171108023556/http://fox40.com/2017/11/07/texas-shooting-death-toll-includes-unborn-child/>) from the original on November 8, 2017. Retrieved November 7, 2017.
31. https://media.defense.gov/2018/Dec/07/2002070069/-1/-1/1/DODIG-2019-030_REDACTED.PDF
32. Bradshaw, Kelsey (November 6, 2017). "Sutherland Springs church shooter went to New Braunfels High School, worked at Schlitterbahn and HEB" (<http://www.mysanantonio.com/news/local/article/Suspected-church-shooter-grew-up-in-New-12334947.php>). San Antonio Express-News. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20171106193921/http://www.mysanantonio.com/news/local/article/Suspected-church-shooter-grew-up-in-New-12334947.php>) from the original on November 6, 2017. Retrieved November 6, 2017.
33. Rosenfeld, Everett; David, Javier E. (November 5, 2017). "Authorities identify gunman in the Texas church massacre" (<https://www.cnn.com/2017/11/05/devin-patrick-kelley-authorities-identify-gunman-at-first-baptist-church-sutherland-springs.html>). CNBC. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20171106002747/https://www.cnn.com/2017/11/05/devin-patrick-kelley-authorities-identify-gunman-at-first-baptist-church-sutherland-springs.html>) from the original on November 6, 2017. Retrieved November 6, 2017.

34. Rosenberg, Eli (November 12, 2017). "Texas gunman's ex-wife said he once put a gun to her head and asked, 'Do you want to die?'" (<https://www.washingtonpost.com/news/post-nation/wp/2017/11/12/texas-gunmans-ex-wife-said-he-once-put-a-gun-to-her-head-and-asked-do-you-want-to-die/>). The Washington Post. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20171113165138/https://www.washingtonpost.com/news/post-nation/wp/2017/11/12/texas-gunmans-ex-wife-said-he-once-put-a-gun-to-her-head-and-asked-do-you-want-to-die/>) from the original on November 13, 2017. Retrieved November 12, 2017.
35. Wilts, Alexandra (November 6, 2017). "The Texas shooter 'preached atheism' and was an outcast, say former classmates" (<https://www.independent.co.uk/news/world/americas/devin-kelley-atheism-texas-shooting-who-was-he-creepy-weird-classmates-latest-a8041161.html>). The Independent. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20171107205504/http://www.independent.co.uk/news/world/americas/devin-kelley-atheism-texas-shooting-who-was-he-creepy-weird-classmates-latest-a8041161.html>) from the original on November 7, 2017. Retrieved November 8, 2017.
36. Barnitz, Katy (November 5, 2017). "NM court documents detail Devin Kelley's divorce" (<https://www.abqjournal.com/1088469/nm-court-documents-detail-devin-kelleys-divorce.html>). Albuquerque Journal. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20171106091241/https://www.abqjournal.com/1088469/nm-court-documents-detail-devin-kelleys-divorce.html>) from the original on November 6, 2017. Retrieved November 6, 2017.
37. "Texas church gunman's ex-wife tells Inside Edition: He just had a lot of demons" (<http://www.mysanantonio.com/news/local/texas/article/Tessa-Brennaman-devin-patrick-kelley-shooting-12349127.php>). San Antonio Express-News. November 10, 2017. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20171111071317/http://www.mysanantonio.com/news/local/texas/article/Tessa-Brennaman-devin-patrick-kelley-shooting-12349127.php>) from the original on November 11, 2017. Retrieved November 11, 2017.
38. Connor, Tracy; Arkin, Daniel (November 7, 2017). "Texas Gunman Devin Kelley Escaped from Mental Health Facility in 2012" (<https://www.nbcnews.com/storyline/texas-church-shooting/texas-gunman-devin-kelley-escaped-mental-health-facility-2012-n818496>). NBC News. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20171107195955/https://www.nbcnews.com/storyline/texas-church-shooting/texas-gunman-devin-kelley-escaped-mental-health-facility-2012-n818496>) from the original on November 7, 2017. Retrieved November 7, 2017.
39. Diaz, Mario; Tatom, Cathy; Wische, Aaron (November 7, 2017). "Sutherland Springs church shooter escaped mental health facility months after attack on wife, child" (<https://www.click2houston.com/news/sutherland-springs-church-shooter-escaped-mental-health-facility-months-after-attack-on-wife-child>). Houston, Texas: KPRC-TV. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20171107192926/https://www.click2houston.com/news/sutherland-springs-church-shooter-escaped-mental-health-facility-months-after-attack-on-wife-child>) from the original on November 7, 2017. Retrieved November 7, 2017.
40. "Texas gunman Devin Kelley's ex-wife says he 'had a lot of demons'" (<https://www.cbsnews.com/news/tessa-brennaman-devin-kelley-sutherland-springs/>). CBS News. November 10, 2017. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20171111041759/https://www.cbsnews.com/news/tessa-brennaman-devin-kelley-sutherland-springs/>) from the original on November 11, 2017. Retrieved November 10, 2017.
41. Losey, Stephen; Vertuno, Jim (November 5, 2017). "Texas church attacker identified as former airman Devin Kelley" (<https://www.armytimes.com/news/2017/11/05/gunman-opens-fire-in-texas-church-killing-multiple-people/>). Army Times. Associated Press. Retrieved November 6, 2017.
42. Blinder, Alan; Philipps, Dave; Oppel, Richard A. Jr. (November 6, 2017). "Texas Gunman Broke Child's Skull, Assaulted Wife, in Troubled Life" (<https://www.nytimes.com/2017/11/06/us/devin-patrick-kelley-texas.html>). The New York Times. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20171107000249/https://www.nytimes.com/2017/11/06/us/devin-patrick-kelley-texas.html>) from the original on November 7, 2017. Retrieved November 7, 2017.
43. Sterling, Joe (November 11, 2017). "Texas shooter's ex-wife: 'Demons ... hatred' consumed him" (<http://www.cnn.com/2017/11/11/us/texas-shooter-first-wife-speaks/index.html>). CNN. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20171111195712/http://www.cnn.com/2017/11/11/us/texas-shooter-first-wife-speaks/index.html>) from the original on November 11, 2017. Retrieved November 11, 2017.

44. Tedesco, John; Contreras, Guillermo; Christenson, Sig (November 5, 2017). "Suspected gunman Devin Patrick Kelley lived near New Braunfels, had been court martialed in the Air Force" (<http://www.expressnews.com/news/local/article/Suspected-gunman-Devin-Patrick-Kelley-lived-near-12334186.php>). San Antonio Express-News. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20171106093321/http://www.expressnews.com/news/local/article/Suspected-gunman-Devin-Patrick-Kelley-lived-near-12334186.php>) from the original on November 6, 2017. Retrieved November 6, 2017.
45. Winter, Jana; Weill, Kelly; Bertness, Sarah (November 5, 2017). "Devin Patrick Kelley ID'd as Sutherland Springs Church Killer" (<https://www.thedailybeast.com/devin-patrick-kelley-idd-as-sutherland-springs-church-killer>). The Daily Beast. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20171106000238/https://www.thedailybeast.com/devin-patrick-kelley-idd-as-sutherland-springs-church-killer>) from the original on November 6, 2017. Retrieved November 6, 2017.
46. Medina, Mariah (November 5, 2017). "Here's everything we know about the Sutherland Springs church shooting" (<https://www.ksat.com/news/here-s-everything-we-know-about-the-sutherland-springs-church-shooting-that-left-more-than-20-dead>). San Antonio, Texas: KSAT-TV. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20171106023459/https://www.ksat.com/news/here-s-everything-we-know-about-the-sutherland-springs-church-shooting-that-left-more-than-20-dead>) from the original on November 6, 2017. Retrieved November 6, 2017.
47. Merchant, Nomaan (February 16, 2018). "Sheriff didn't pursue sex case against Texas church gunman" (<http://www.star-telegram.com/news/nation-world/national/article200545869.html>). Fort Worth Star-Telegram. Associated Press. Retrieved February 25, 2018.
48. Eaton, Emilie (February 16, 2018). "Comal County authorities didn't charge Sutherland Springs gunman with rape, even though the victim described brutal attack" (<https://www.expressnews.com/news/local/article/Sutherland-Springs-killer-accused-of-12620605.php>). San Antonio Express-News. Retrieved February 25, 2018.
49. Carissimo, Justin; Martinez, Peter (November 6, 2017). "Devin Patrick Kelley: What we know about the Texas church shooting suspect" (<https://www.cbsnews.com/news/devin-patrick-kelley-texas-shooting-suspect-sutherland-springs-first-baptist-church-latest>). CBS News. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20171106013239/https://www.cbsnews.com/news/devin-patrick-kelley-texas-shooting-suspect-sutherland-springs-first-baptist-church-latest/>) from the original on November 6, 2017. Retrieved November 7, 2017.
50. Mitchell, Kirk (November 6, 2017). "Gunman who killed 26 people in Texas cited for cruelty to animals in Colorado" (<http://www.denverpost.com/2017/11/06/texas-shooting-devin-patrick-kelley-colorado-arrest/>). The Denver Post. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20171106161039/http://www.denverpost.com/2017/11/06/texas-shooting-devin-patrick-kelley-colorado-arrest/>) from the original on November 6, 2017. Retrieved November 6, 2017.
51. Munson, Jonathan; Churchwell, Bill (November 6, 2017). "Gunman volunteered one night at church in Kingsville" (<http://www.wtsp.com/news/gunman-volunteered-one-night-at-church-in-kingsville/489547677>). St. Petersburg, Florida: WTSP. Retrieved November 7, 2017.
52. "Who was Sutherland Springs gunman Devin Patrick Kelley?" (<https://www.bbc.com/news/world-us-canada-41884342>). BBC News. November 6, 2017. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20171107073118/http://www.bbc.com/news/world-us-canada-41884342>) from the original on November 7, 2017. Retrieved November 6, 2017.
53. Watson, Leon (November 6, 2017). "Have-a-go-heroes shot Sutherland Springs gunman and helped prevent further victims" (<https://www.telegraph.co.uk/news/2017/11/06/have-a-go-hero-shot-sutherland-springs-gunmanand-helped-prevent/>). The Daily Telegraph. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20171106184341/http://www.telegraph.co.uk/news/2017/11/06/have-a-go-hero-shot-sutherland-springs-gunmanand-helped-prevent/>) from the original on November 6, 2017. Retrieved November 6, 2017.

54. Wilts, Alexandra (November 6, 2017). "The Texas shooter 'preached atheism' and was an outcast, say former classmates" (<https://www.independent.co.uk/news/world/americas/devin-kelley-atheism-texas-shooting-who-was-he-creepy-weird-classmates-latest-a8041161.html>). The Independent. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20171107205504/http://www.independent.co.uk/news/world/americas/devin-kelley-atheism-texas-shooting-who-was-he-creepy-weird-classmates-latest-a8041161.html>) from the original on November 7, 2017. Retrieved November 8, 2017.
55. Moravec, Eva Ruth; Berman, Mark (November 21, 2017). "Texas church gunman lied about past to become a security guard, records show" (<https://www.washingtonpost.com/news/post-nation/wp/2017/11/21/texas-church-gunman-lied-about-past-to-become-a-security-guard-records-show/>). The Washington Post. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20171121204347/https://www.washingtonpost.com/news/post-nation/wp/2017/11/21/texas-church-gunman-lied-about-past-to-become-a-security-guard-records-show/>) from the original on November 21, 2017. Retrieved November 24, 2017.
56. Tedesco, John; Contreras, Guillermo; Christenson, Sig (November 5, 2017). "Church gunman was kicked out of Air Force, convicted of domestic violence" (<http://www.houstonchronicle.com/news/houston-texas/texas/article/Church-gunman-was-kicked-out-of-Air-Force-12334225.php>). Houston Chronicle. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20171106072239/http://www.houstonchronicle.com/news/houston-texas/texas/article/Church-gunman-was-kicked-out-of-Air-Force-12334225.php>) from the original on November 6, 2017. Retrieved November 6, 2017.
57. Yan, Holly; Stapleton, AnneClaire (November 8, 2017). "Texas church gunman 'seemed miserable' as a security guard last week" (<http://www.cnn.com/2017/11/08/us/texas-church-shooting/index.html>). CNN. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20171110045849/http://www.cnn.com/2017/11/08/us/texas-church-shooting/index.html>) from the original on November 10, 2017. Retrieved November 10, 2017.
58. Silva, Christianna (November 9, 2017). "Texas Church Shooter Devin Kelley Said He Used Dogs As 'Target Practice'" (<https://www.yahoo.com/news/texas-church-shooter-devin-kelley-000817768.html>). Newsweek. Yahoo! News. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20171111083123/https://www.yahoo.com/news/texas-church-shooter-devin-kelley-000817768.html>) from the original on November 11, 2017. Retrieved November 10, 2017.
59. Dillon, Nancy (November 6, 2017). "Texas gunman killed his wife's grandmother in church shooting" (<http://www.nydailynews.com/news/national/texas-gunman-killed-wife-grandmother-church-shooting-article-1.3615014>). Daily News. New York. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20171107004738/http://www.nydailynews.com/news/national/texas-gunman-killed-wife-grandmother-church-shooting-article-1.3615014>) from the original on November 7, 2017. Retrieved November 6, 2017.
60. McAllistar, Seamus (December 8, 2018). "Air Force Failed to Forward Gunman's Fingerprints 4 Times: IG" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20190306112915/http://www.reactgertactical.com/air-force-failed-to-forward-gunmans-fingerprints-4-times-ig/>). React Gear Tactical. Archived from the original (<http://www.reactgertactical.com/air-force-failed-to-forward-gunmans-fingerprints-4-times-ig/>) on March 6, 2019. Retrieved December 8, 2018.
61. Willingham, AJ (November 6, 2017). "Church shooter's history puts a spotlight on Texas gun laws" (<http://www.cnn.com/2017/11/06/health/texas-gun-laws-devin-kelley-court-martial-trnd/index.html>). CNN. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20171106235714/http://www.cnn.com/2017/11/06/health/texas-gun-laws-devin-kelley-court-martial-trnd/index.html>) from the original on November 6, 2017. Retrieved November 7, 2017.
62. Grinberg, Emanuella; McLaughlin, Elliott C. (November 6, 2017). "Texas church shooter Devin Patrick Kelley's troubled past emerges" (<http://www.cnn.com/2017/11/06/us/devin-kelley-texas-church-shooting-suspect/index.html>). CNN. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20171106185034/http://www.cnn.com/2017/11/06/us/devin-kelley-texas-church-shooting-suspect/index.html>) from the original on November 6, 2017. Retrieved November 6, 2017.

63. "Texas church shooting suspect Devin Kelley denied gun license, governor says" (<http://wgntv.com/2017/11/06/texas-church-shooting-suspect-devin-kelley-denied-gun-license-governor-says>). CNN. November 6, 2017. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20171107042409/http://wgntv.com/2017/11/06/texas-church-shooting-suspect-devin-kelley-denied-gun-license-governor-says/>) from the original on November 7, 2017. Retrieved November 7, 2017 – via WGN-TV.
64. Ward, Mike; Diaz, Kevin (November 6, 2017). "Air Force mistake allowed church shooter to buy guns" (<http://www.houstonchronicle.com/news/politics/texas/article/Air-Force-mistake-allowed-church-shooter-to-buy-12336939.php>). Houston Chronicle. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20171107121227/http://www.houstonchronicle.com/news/politics/texas/article/Air-Force-mistake-allowed-church-shooter-to-buy-12336939.php>) from the original on November 7, 2017. Retrieved November 7, 2017.
65. "Permanent Brady Permit Chart" (<https://www.atf.gov/rules-and-regulations/permanent-brady-permit-chart>). Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms and Explosives. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20171002032828/https://www.atf.gov/rules-and-regulations/permanent-brady-permit-chart>) from the original on October 2, 2017. Retrieved November 7, 2017.
66. Tinsley, Anna M. (November 6, 2017). "Church shooter had four guns, but no license to carry them in Texas" (<http://www.star-telegram.com/news/state/article183055101.html>). Fort Worth Star-Telegram. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20171107011608/http://www.star-telegram.com/news/state/article183055101.html>) from the original on November 7, 2017. Retrieved November 6, 2017.
67. "Texas church shooting: How was Devin Patrick Kelley discharged from the Air Force?" (<https://www.cbsnews.com/news/texas-church-shooting-how-was-devin-patrick-kelley-discharged-from-the-air-force/>). CBS News. November 6, 2017. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20171106225324/https://www.cbsnews.com/news/texas-church-shooting-how-was-devin-patrick-kelley-discharged-from-the-air-force/>) from the original on November 6, 2017. Retrieved November 6, 2017. "Federal law prohibits those who have been dishonorably discharged from buying a firearm, but the law does not include a blanket prohibition on those who have received a bad conduct discharge. However, certain types of bad conduct discharges can stem from cases that would bar defendants from purchasing firearms. Texas and federal laws prohibit those with domestic violence convictions from owning, possessing or purchasing firearms. The military is supposed to report to the FBI, for the purposes of prohibiting firearm purchases, convictions on domestic violence charges, as well as convictions that carry maximum potential sentences of more than a year in confinement. It is unclear if the FBI was notified about Kelley's case, which fit both conditions."
68. Stolberg, Sheryl Gay (November 6, 2017). "Domestic Abusers Are Barred From Gun Ownership, but Often Escape the Law" (<https://www.nytimes.com/2017/11/06/us/politics/domestic-abuse-guns-texas-air-force.html>). The New York Times. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20171107051759/https://www.nytimes.com/2017/11/06/us/politics/domestic-abuse-guns-texas-air-force.html>) from the original on November 7, 2017. Retrieved November 6, 2017.
69. Cohen, Zachary; Browne, Ryan (November 6, 2017). "Air Force failed to relay info that could have stopped firearm sale to gunman" (<https://www.cnn.com/2017/11/06/politics/texas-church-shooting-bad-conduct-discharge/index.html>). CNN. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20171107061321/http://www.cnn.com/2017/11/06/politics/texas-church-shooting-bad-conduct-discharge/index.html>) from the original on November 7, 2017. Retrieved November 7, 2017.
70. Pearce, Matt; Kohli, Sonali (November 8, 2017). "Pence says Air Force 'moving aggressively' to find out how Texas killer's conviction slipped through the cracks" (<http://www.latimes.com/nation/la-na-pence-texas-20171108-story.html>). Los Angeles Times. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20171109042821/http://www.latimes.com/nation/la-na-pence-texas-20171108-story.html>) from the original on November 9, 2017. Retrieved November 8, 2017.
71. Steffi Lee, Family of couple killed in Texas church shooting files claim against Air Force, DOD (<http://kxan.com/2018/03/06/family-of-couple-killed-in-sutherland-springs-church-shooting-files-claim-against-air-force-dod/>), KXAN (March 6, 2018).

72. McCurry, Justin; Beckett, Lois; Dart, Tom (November 6, 2017). " 'This isn't a guns situation', says Trump after Texas church shooting" (<https://www.theguardian.com/us-news/2017/nov/06/this-isnt-a-guns-situation-says-trump-after-texas-church-shooting>). The Guardian. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20171106084407/https://www.theguardian.com/us-news/2017/nov/06/this-isnt-a-guns-situation-says-trump-after-texas-church-shooting>) from the original on November 6, 2017. Retrieved November 6, 2017.
73. Bennett, Brian (November 7, 2017). "Trump: 'Hundreds more' would have died in Texas shooting if there was more vetting for gun buyers" (<http://www.latimes.com/politics/washington/la-na-pol-essential-washington-updates-trump-hundreds-more-may-have-died-in-1510051281-htmllstory.html>). Los Angeles Times. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20171107163725/http://www.latimes.com/politics/washington/la-na-pol-essential-washington-updates-trump-hundreds-more-may-have-died-in-1510051281-htmllstory.html>) from the original on November 7, 2017. Retrieved November 7, 2017.
74. Diamond, Jeremy (November 7, 2017). "Trump dismisses question on extreme vetting for gun ownership" (<http://edition.cnn.com/2017/11/07/politics/trump-extreme-vetting-guns/index.html>). CNN. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20171108015010/http://edition.cnn.com/2017/11/07/politics/trump-extreme-vetting-guns/index.html>) from the original on November 8, 2017. Retrieved November 8, 2017.
75. "Presidential Proclamation Honoring the Victims of the Sutherland Springs, Texas Shooting" (<https://trumpwhitehouse.archives.gov/the-press-office/2017/11/06/presidential-proclamation-honoring-victims-sutherland-springs-texas>). whitehouse.gov. November 5, 2017. Retrieved November 7, 2017 – via National Archives.
76. Feldscher, Kyle (November 5, 2017). "Trump orders flags flown at half-staff for Texas church shooting victims" (<http://www.washingtonexaminer.com/trump-orders-flags-flown-at-half-staff-for-texas-church-shooting-victims/article/2639715>). The Washington Examiner. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20171106215905/http://www.washingtonexaminer.com/trump-orders-flags-flown-at-half-staff-for-texas-church-shooting-victims/article/2639715>) from the original on November 6, 2017. Retrieved November 7, 2017.
77. " 'Hero' exchanged fire with gunman, then helped chase him down" (<https://www.cnn.com/2017/11/05/us/texas-church-shooting-resident-action/index.html>). CNN. November 7, 2017.
78. Beckett, Lois (November 6, 2017). "Texas attorney general: congregations should be armed after church shooting" (<https://www.theguardian.com/us-news/2017/nov/06/texas-attorney-general-congregations-should-be-armed-after-church-shooting>). The Guardian. ISSN 0261-3077 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/0261-3077>). Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20171106090809/https://www.theguardian.com/us-news/2017/nov/06/texas-attorney-general-congregations-should-be-armed-after-church-shooting>) from the original on November 6, 2017. Retrieved November 6, 2017.
79. Knodel, Jamie; Gillman, Todd J. (November 6, 2017). "Critics hit Paxton for encouraging churchgoers to bring firearms" (<https://www.dallasnews.com/news/guns/2017/11/05/paxton-texans-guns-can-help-stop-mass-shootings>). The Dallas Morning News. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20171107033623/https://www.dallasnews.com/news/guns/2017/11/05/paxton-texans-guns-can-help-stop-mass-shootings>) from the original on November 7, 2017. Retrieved November 7, 2017.
80. Bacon, John (November 9, 2017). "Texas church, site of deadly massacre, to be demolished" (<https://www.usatoday.com/story/news/nation/2017/11/09/texas-church-site-deadly-massacre-demolished/848486001/>). USA Today. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20171109195452/https://www.usatoday.com/story/news/nation/2017/11/09/texas-church-site-deadly-massacre-demolished/848486001/>) from the original on November 9, 2017. Retrieved November 10, 2017.
81. "Texas shooting: Church in Sutherland Springs will be demolished, pastor says" (<https://www.cbsnews.com/news/texas-shooting-church-in-sutherland-springs-will-be-demolished-pastor-says/>). CBS News. November 9, 2017. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20171110013040/https://www.cbsnews.com/news/texas-shooting-church-in-sutherland-springs-will-be-demolished-pastor-says/>) from the original on November 10, 2017. Retrieved November 10, 2017.

82. "The Day the Pastor Was Away and Evil Came Barging Into His Church" (<https://www.nytimes.com/2017/11/22/us/pastor-frank-pomeroy-sutherland-springs.html>). The New York Times. ISSN 0362-4331 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/0362-4331>). Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20171122125754/https://www.nytimes.com/2017/11/22/us/pastor-frank-pomeroy-sutherland-springs.html>) from the original on November 22, 2017. Retrieved November 22, 2017.
83. Beckett, Lois (February 13, 2018). "Military added 4,000 veterans to gun ban list after Texas church shooting" (<https://www.theguardian.com/us-news/2018/feb/13/us-military-guns-background-checks-texas-shooting>). the Guardian. Retrieved May 1, 2018.
84. Selk, Avi; Grant, Mary Lee (November 6, 2017). "A fake shooter and 'false flag' rumors at the hospital — how dark online hoaxes came to Texas" (<https://www.washingtonpost.com/news/the-intersect/wp/2017/11/06/a-fake-shooter-and-false-flag-rumors-at-the-hospital-how-dark-online-hoaxes-came-to-texas/>). The Washington Post. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20171107015953/https://www.washingtonpost.com/news/the-intersect/wp/2017/11/06/a-fake-shooter-and-false-flag-rumors-at-the-hospital-how-dark-online-hoaxes-came-to-texas/>) from the original on November 7, 2017. Retrieved November 7, 2017.
85. Griffin, Andrew (November 6, 2017). "Texas shooting: US far-right try to spread conspiracy theories about motive behind church murders" (<https://www.yahoo.com/news/texas-shooting-us-far-try-085600412.html>). The Independent. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20171106133534/https://www.yahoo.com/news/texas-shooting-us-far-try-085600412.html>) from the original on November 6, 2017. Retrieved November 6, 2017.
86. Ansari, Talal (November 5, 2017). "Here Is The Misinformation Going Around About The Texas Church Shooting" (<https://www.buzzfeed.com/talalansari/fake-news-about-the-texas-church-shooting>). BuzzFeed News. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20171105235520/https://www.buzzfeed.com/talalansari/fake-news-about-the-texas-church-shooting>) from the original on November 5, 2017. Retrieved November 6, 2017.
87. Sheffield, Matthew (November 7, 2017). "Far right concocts fake news about Texas church shooter" (<https://www.salon.com/2017/11/07/far-right-concocts-fake-news-about-texas-church-shooter/>). Salon. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20171107130948/https://www.salon.com/2017/11/07/far-right-concocts-fake-news-about-texas-church-shooter/>) from the original on November 7, 2017. Retrieved November 7, 2017.
88. "Google shared conspiracy theories that sought to tie Texas shooter to antifa movement" (<https://www.usatoday.com/story/tech/news/2017/11/06/google-shared-conspiracy-theories-sought-tie-texas-shooter-antifa-movement/836624001/>). Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20171108063152/https://www.usatoday.com/story/tech/news/2017/11/06/google-shared-conspiracy-theories-sought-tie-texas-shooter-antifa-movement/836624001/>) from the original on November 8, 2017. Retrieved November 6, 2017.
89. Mikkelson, David (November 5, 2017). "Was the Texas Church Shooter an Antifa Member Who Vowed to Start Civil War?" (<https://www.snopes.com/texas-church-shooter-antifa>). Snopes.com. Retrieved November 6, 2017.
90. Hayden, Michael Edison (November 5, 2017). "'Antifa' Responsible for Sutherland Springs Murders, According to Far-Right media" (<http://www.newsweek.com/sutherland-springs-shooter-devin-patrick-kelley-was-antifa-according-far-right-702338>). Newsweek. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20171106010906/http://www.newsweek.com/sutherland-springs-shooter-devin-patrick-kelley-was-antifa-according-far-right-702338>) from the original on November 6, 2017. Retrieved November 6, 2017.
91. Gillin, Joshua (November 6, 2017). "Fake news: No proof Antifa, communism compelled Texas shooter Devin Kelley" (<http://www.politifact.com/punditfact/statements/2017/nov/06/yournewswirecom/fake-news-no-proof-antifa-communism-compelled-texas>). PolitiFact. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20171107124447/http://www.politifact.com/punditfact/statements/2017/nov/06/yournewswirecom/fake-news-no-proof-antifa-communism-compelled-texas/>) from the original on November 7, 2017. Retrieved November 7, 2017.

92. Stelloh, Tim (November 6, 2017). "Hoaxes and false information proliferated after Texas church shooting" (<https://www.nbcnews.com/storyline/texas-church-shooting/hoaxes-false-information-proliferated-after-texas-church-shooting-n818151>). NBC News. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20171108212525/https://www.nbcnews.com/storyline/texas-church-shooting/hoaxes-false-information-proliferated-after-texas-church-shooting-n818151>) from the original on November 8, 2017. Retrieved November 9, 2017.
 93. Meagan Flynn, Conspiracy theorists harass Sutherland Springs churchgoers, pastor whose daughter was killed (<https://www.washingtonpost.com/news/morning-mix/wp/2018/03/08/conspiracy-theorists-harass-sutherland-springs-churchgoers-pastor-whose-daughter-was-killed/>), Washington Post (March 8, 2018).
1. After the 2017 Las Vegas shooting, the Orlando nightclub shooting, the Virginia Tech shooting and the Sandy Hook Elementary School shooting.

External links

- First Baptist Church website \(http://www.ssfb.net/\)
 - CNN list of victims fatally shot \(http://www.cnn.com/2017/11/06/us/texas-church-shooting-victims-list/index.html\)
-

Retrieved from "https://en.wikipedia.org/w/index.php?title=Sutherland_Springs_church_shooting&oldid=1026860599"

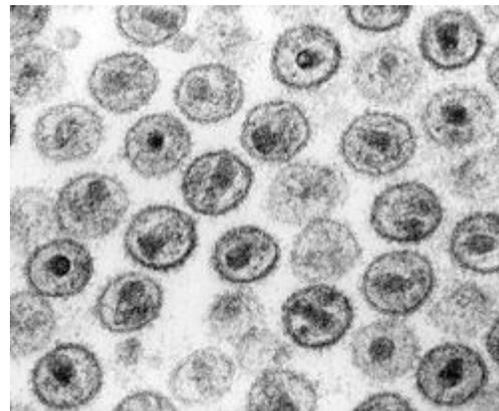

This page was last edited on 4 June 2021, at 16:54 (UTC).

Text is available under the Creative Commons Attribution-ShareAlike License; additional terms may apply. By using this site, you agree to the Terms of Use and Privacy Policy. Wikipedia® is a registered trademark of the Wikimedia Foundation, Inc., a non-profit organization.

HIV/AIDS denialism

HIV/AIDS denialism is the refusal to acknowledge that human immunodeficiency virus (HIV) causes acquired immune deficiency syndrome (AIDS), despite the conclusive evidence.^{[1][2][3]} Some of its proponents reject the existence of HIV, while others accept that HIV exists but argue that it is a harmless passenger virus and not the cause of AIDS. Insofar as they acknowledge AIDS as a real disease, they attribute it to some combination of sexual behavior, recreational drugs, malnutrition, poor sanitation, haemophilia, or the effects of the medications used to treat HIV infection (antiretrovirals).^{[4][5]}

The scientific consensus is that the evidence showing HIV to be the cause of AIDS is conclusive^{[1][2]} and that HIV/AIDS denialist claims are pseudoscience based on conspiracy theories,^[6] faulty reasoning, cherry picking, and misrepresentation of mainly outdated scientific data.^{[1][2][7]} With the rejection of these arguments by the scientific community, HIV/AIDS denialist material is now targeted at less scientifically sophisticated audiences and spread mainly through the Internet.^{[8][9]}

Electron micrograph of the human immunodeficiency virus. HIV/AIDS denialists dispute the existence of HIV or its role in causing AIDS.

Despite its lack of scientific acceptance, HIV/AIDS denialism has had a significant political impact, especially in South Africa under the presidency of Thabo Mbeki. Scientists and physicians have raised alarm at the human cost of HIV/AIDS denialism, which discourages HIV-positive people from using proven treatments.^{[2][8][10][11][12][13]} Public health researchers have attributed 330,000 to 340,000 AIDS-related deaths, along with 171,000 other HIV infections and 35,000 infant HIV infections, to the South African government's former embrace of HIV/AIDS denialism.^{[14][15]} The interrupted use of antiretroviral treatments is also a major global concern as it potentially increases the likelihood of the emergence of antiretroviral-resistant strains of the virus.^[16]

Contents

History

US courts

South Africa

Denialists' claims and scientific evidence

Denialist community

Former denialists

Death of HIV-positive denialists

Local community group denialism

Impact beyond the scientific community

North America and Europe

South Africa

See also

Footnotes

References

Further reading

External links

History

A constellation of symptoms named "Gay-related immune deficiency" was noted in 1982. In 1983, a group of scientists and doctors at the Pasteur Institute in France, led by Luc Montagnier, discovered a new virus in a patient with signs and symptoms that often preceded AIDS.^[17] They named the virus lymphadenopathy-associated virus, or LAV, and sent samples to Robert Gallo's team in the United States. Their findings were peer reviewed and slated for publication in Science.

At a 23 April 1984 press conference in Washington, D.C., Margaret Heckler, Secretary of Health and Human Services, announced that Gallo and his co-workers had discovered a virus that was the "probable" cause of AIDS. This virus was initially named HTLV-III.^[18] In the same year, Casper Schmidt responded to Gallo's papers with "The Group-Fantasy Origins of AIDS", published in the Journal of Psychohistory.^[19] Schmidt posited that AIDS was not an actual disease, but rather an example of "epidemic hysteria", in which groups of people subconsciously act out social conflicts. Schmidt compared AIDS to documented cases of epidemic hysteria in the past which were mistakenly thought to be infectious. (Schmidt himself would later die of AIDS in 1994.)^{[20][21]}

In 1986, the viruses discovered by Montagnier and Gallo, found to be genetically indistinguishable, were renamed HIV.^[22]

In 1987, molecular biologist Peter Duesberg questioned the link between HIV and AIDS in the journal Cancer Research.^[23] Duesberg's publication coincided with the start of major public health campaigns and the development of zidovudine (AZT) as a treatment for HIV/AIDS.

In 1988, a panel of the Institute of Medicine of the U.S. National Academy of Sciences found that "the evidence that HIV causes AIDS is scientifically conclusive."^[1] That same year, Science published Blattner, Gallo, and Temin's "HIV causes AIDS",^[24] and Duesberg's "HIV is not the cause of AIDS".^[25] Also that same year, the Perth Group, a group of denialists based in Perth, Western Australia led by Eleni Papadopulos-Eleopulos, published in the non-peer-reviewed journal Medical Hypotheses their first article questioning aspects of HIV/AIDS research,^[26] arguing that there was "no compelling reason for preferring the viral hypothesis of AIDS to one based on the activity of oxidising agents."

In 1989, Duesberg exercised his right as a member of the National Academy of Sciences to bypass the peer review process and published his arguments in Proceedings of the National Academy of Sciences of the United States of America (PNAS) unreviewed. The editor of PNAS initially resisted, but ultimately allowed Duesberg to publish, saying, "If you wish to make these unsupported, vague, and prejudicial statements in print, so be it. But I cannot see how this would be convincing to any scientifically trained reader."^[27]

In 1990, the physiologist Robert Root-Bernstein published his first peer-reviewed article detailing his objections to the mainstream view of AIDS and HIV.^[28] In it, he questioned both the mainstream view and the "dissident" view as potentially inaccurate.

In 1991, The Group for the Scientific Reappraisal of the HIV-AIDS Hypothesis, comprising twelve scientists, doctors, and activists, submitted a short letter to various journals, but the letter was rejected.^[29]

In 1993, Nature published an editorial arguing that Duesberg had forfeited his right of reply by engaging in disingenuous rhetorical techniques and ignoring any evidence that conflicted with his claims.^[30] That same year, Papadopulos-Eleopulos and coauthors from the Perth Group alleged in the journal Nature Biotechnology (then edited by fellow denialist Harvey Bialy) that the Western blot test for HIV was not standardized, non-reproducible, and of unknown specificity due to a claimed lack of a "gold standard".^{[31][32]}

On 28 October 1994, Robert Willner, a physician whose medical license had been revoked for, among other things, treating an AIDS patient with ozone therapy, publicly jabbed his finger with blood he said was from an HIV-infected patient.^[10] Willner died in 1995 of a heart attack.^[33]

In 1995, The Group for the Scientific Reappraisal of the HIV-AIDS Hypothesis in 1991 published a letter in Science similar to the one they had attempted to publish in 1991.^[34] That same year, Continuum, a denialist group, placed an advertisement in the British gay and lesbian magazine The Pink Paper offering a £1,000 reward to "the first person finding one scientific paper establishing actual isolation of HIV", according to a set of seven steps they claimed to have been drawn up by the Pasteur Institute in 1973.^[35] The challenge was later dismissed by various scientists, including Duesberg, asserting that HIV undoubtedly exists.^[35] Stefan Lanka argued in the same year that HIV does not exist.^[36] Also that year, the National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases released a report concluding that "abundant epidemiologic, virologic and immunologic data support the conclusion that infection with the human immunodeficiency virus (HIV) is the underlying cause of AIDS."^{[37][38]}

In 1996, the British Medical Journal published "Response: arguments contradict the "foreign protein-zidovudine" hypothesis"^[39] as a response to a petition by Duesberg: "In 1991 Duesberg challenged researchers... We and Darby et al. have provided that evidence". The paper argued that Duesberg was wrong regarding the cause of AIDS in haemophiliacs. In 1997, The Perth Group questioned the existence of HIV, and speculated that the production of antibodies recognizing HIV proteins can be caused by allogenic stimuli and autoimmune disorders.^{[40][41]} They continued to repeat this speculation through at least 2006.^[42]

In 1998, Joan Shenton published the book Positively False – Exposing the Myths Around HIV and AIDS, which promotes AIDS denialism. In the book, Shenton claims that AIDS is a conspiracy created by pharmaceutical companies to make money from selling antiretroviral drugs.^[43]

In 2006, Celia Farber, a journalist and prominent HIV/AIDS denialist, published an essay in the March issue of Harper's Magazine entitled "Out of Control: AIDS and the Corruption of Medical Science", in which she summarized a number of arguments for HIV/AIDS denialism and alleged incompetence, conspiracy, and fraud on the part of the medical community.^[44] Scientists and AIDS activists extensively criticized the article as inaccurate, misleading, and poorly fact-checked.^{[45][46]}

In 2007, members of the Perth Group testified at an appeals hearing for Andre Chad Parenzee, asserting that HIV could not be transmitted by heterosexual sex. The judge concluded, "I reject the evidence of Ms Papadopulos-Eleopulos and Dr Turner. I conclude... that they are not qualified to give expert opinions."^[47]

In 2009, a paper was published in the then non-peer-reviewed journal Medical Hypotheses by Duesberg and four other researchers which criticized a 2008 study by Chigwedere et al.,^[14] which found that HIV/AIDS denialism in South Africa resulted in hundreds of thousands of preventable deaths from

HIV/AIDS, because the government delayed the provision of antiretroviral drugs. The paper concluded that "the claims that HIV has caused huge losses of African lives are unconfirmed and that HIV is not sufficient or even necessary to cause the previously known diseases, now called AIDS in the presence of antibody against HIV."^[48] Later that year, the paper was withdrawn from the journal on the grounds of it having methodological flaws, and that it contained assertions "that could potentially be damaging to global public health". A revised version was later published in Italian Journal of Anatomy and Embryology.^[49]

US courts

In 1998, HIV/AIDS denialism and parental rights clashed with the medical establishment in court when Maine resident Valerie Emerson fought for the right to refuse to give AZT to her four-year-old son, Nikolas Emerson, after she witnessed the death of her daughter Tia, who died at the age of three in 1996. Her right to stop treatment was upheld by the court in light of "her unique experience."^[50] Nikolas Emerson died eight years later. The family refused to reveal whether the death was AIDS related.^[51]

South Africa

In 2000, South Africa's President Thabo Mbeki invited several HIV/AIDS denialists to join his Presidential AIDS Advisory Panel.^[52] A response named the Durban Declaration was issued affirming the scientific consensus that HIV causes AIDS:

"The declaration has been signed by over 5,000 people, including Nobel Prize winners, directors of leading research institutions, scientific academies and medical societies, notably the US National Academy of Sciences, the US Institute of Medicine, Max Planck institutes, the European Molecular Biology Organization, the Pasteur Institute in Paris, the Royal Society of London, the AIDS Society of India and the National Institute of Virology in South Africa. In addition, thousands of individual scientists and doctors have signed, including many from the countries bearing the greatest burden of the epidemic. Signatories are of MD, PhD level or equivalent, although scientists working for commercial companies were asked not to sign."^[13]

In 2008, University of Cape Town researcher Nicoli Natrass, and later that year a group of Harvard scientists led by Zimbabwean physician Pride Chigwedere each independently estimated that Thabo Mbeki's denialist policies led to the early deaths of more than 330,000 South Africans.^{[14][15]} Barbara Hogan, the health minister appointed by Mbeki's successor, voiced shame over the studies' findings and stated: "The era of denialism is over completely in South Africa."^[53]

In 2009, Fraser McNeill wrote an article arguing that South Africa's reluctance to openly address HIV/AIDS resulted from social conventions that prevent people from talking about causes of death in certain situations, rather than from Mbeki's denialist views.^[54] Similarly, political scientist Anthony Butler has argued that "South African HIV/AIDS policy can be explained without appeals to leadership irrationality or wider cultural denialism."^[55]

In July 2016 Aaron Motsoaledi, the Health Minister of South Africa, wrote an article for the Centre for Health Journalism in which he criticised past South African leaders for their denialism, describing it as an "unlucky moment" in a country which has since become a leader in treatment and prevention.^[56]

Denialists' claims and scientific evidence

The term "HIV/AIDS denialism" denotes the rejection of the mainstream scientific view that AIDS is a medical condition that is brought about by HIV infection. The use of the term encompasses the denial of the existence of the virus (HIV denialism), the denial of the causation of AIDS by HIV (that is, the proposed link between the virus and the syndrome), and the denial of the effects on the human body that are ascribed to HIV (that is, the description and characterization of the virus). In a framework incorporating the second denial and/or the third, criticism of the current scientific view has variously been rested on the claim that HIV has not been adequately isolated,^[57] that HIV does not fulfill Koch's postulates,^[58] HIV testing is inaccurate,^[31] and/or that antibodies to HIV neutralize the virus and render it harmless.^[59] Suggested alternative causes of AIDS variously include recreational drugs, malnutrition, and the very antiretroviral drugs used to treat the syndrome.^[60]

Such claims have been examined extensively in the peer-reviewed medical and scientific literature; a scientific consensus has arisen that denialist claims have been convincingly disproved, and that HIV does indeed cause AIDS.^{[2][61]} In the cases cited by Duesberg where HIV "cannot be isolated", PCR or other techniques demonstrate the presence of the virus,^[62] and denialist claims of HIV test inaccuracy result from an incorrect or outdated understanding of how HIV antibody testing is performed and interpreted.^{[63][64]} Regarding Koch's postulates, New Scientist reported: "It is debatable how appropriate it is to focus on a set of principles devised for bacterial infections in a century when viruses had not yet been discovered. HIV does, however, meet Koch's postulates as long as they are not applied in a ridiculously stringent way". The author then demonstrated how each postulate has been met – the suspected cause is strongly associated with the disease, the suspected pathogen can be both isolated and spread outside the host, and when the suspected pathogen is transmitted to a new and uninfected host, that host develops the disease.^{[2][65]} The latter was proven in a number of tragic accidents, including an instance when multiple scientific technicians with no other known risk factors were exposed to concentrated HIV in a laboratory accident, and transmission by a dentist to patients, the majority of whom had no other known risk factor or source of exposure except the same dentist in common.^[2] In 2010, Chigwedere and Max Essex demonstrated in the medical journal AIDS and Behavior that HIV as the cause of AIDS fulfills both Koch's postulates and the Bradford Hill criteria for causality.^[66]

Early denialist arguments held that the HIV/AIDS paradigm was flawed because it had not led to effective treatments. However, the introduction of highly active antiretroviral therapy in the mid-1990s and dramatic improvements in survival of HIV/AIDS patients reversed this argument, as these treatments were based directly on anti-viral activity and the HIV/AIDS paradigm.^[67] The development of effective anti-AIDS therapies based on targeting of HIV has been a major factor in convincing some denialist scientists to accept the causative role of HIV in AIDS.^[68]

In a 2010 article on conspiracy theories in science, Ted Goertzel lists HIV/AIDS denialism as an example where scientific findings are being disputed on irrational grounds. He describes proponents as relying on rhetoric, appeal to fairness, and the right to a dissenting opinion rather than on evidence. They frequently invoke the meme of a "courageous independent scientist resisting orthodoxy", invoking the name of persecuted physicist and astronomer Galileo Galilei.^[69] Regarding this comparison, Goertzel states:

...being a dissenter from orthodoxy is not difficult; the hard part is actually having a better theory. Publishing dissenting theories is important when they are backed by plausible evidence, but this does not mean giving critics 'equal time' to dissent from every finding by a mainstream scientist.

– Goertzel, 2010^[69]

Denialist community

Denialists often use their critique of the link between HIV and AIDS to promote alternative medicine as a cure, and attempt to convince HIV-positive individuals to avoid ARV therapy in favour of vitamins, massage, yoga and other unproven treatments.^[70] Despite this promotion, denialists will often downplay any association with alternative therapies, and attempt to portray themselves as "dissidents". An article in the Skeptical Inquirer stated:

AIDS denialists [prefer] to characterize themselves as brave "dissidents" attempting to engage a hostile medical/industrial establishment in genuine scientific "debate." They complain that their attempts to raise questions and pose alternative hypotheses have been unjustly rejected or ignored at the cost of scientific progress itself...Given their resistance to all evidence to the contrary, today's AIDS dissidents are more aptly referred to as AIDS denialists.^[70]

Several scientists have been associated with HIV/AIDS denialism, although they have not themselves studied AIDS or HIV.^[9] One of the most famous and influential is Duesberg, professor of molecular and cell biology at the University of California, Berkeley, who since 1987 has disputed that the scientific evidence shows that HIV causes AIDS.^[23] Other scientists associated with HIV/AIDS denialism include biochemists David Rasnick and Harvey Bialy. Kary Mullis, who was awarded a Nobel Prize for his role in the development of the polymerase chain reaction, has expressed sympathy for denialist theories.^[71] Biologist Lynn Margulis argued that "there's no evidence that HIV is an infectious virus" and that AIDS symptoms "overlap...completely" with those of syphilis.^[72] Pathologist Étienne de Harven also expressed sympathy for HIV/AIDS denial.^{[73][74]}

Additional notable HIV/AIDS denialists include Australian academic ethicist Hiram Caton, the late mathematician Serge Lang,^[75] former college administrator Henry Bauer, journalist Celia Farber, American talk radio host and author on alternative and complementary medicine and nutrition Gary Null, and the late activist Christine Maggiore, who encouraged HIV-positive mothers to forgo anti-HIV treatment and whose 3-year-old daughter died of complications of untreated AIDS.^[76] Nate Mendel, bassist with the rock band Foo Fighters, expressed support for HIV/AIDS denialist ideas and organized a benefit concert in January 2000 for Maggiore's organization Alive & Well AIDS Alternatives.^[77] Organizations of HIV/AIDS denialists include the Perth Group, composed of several Australian hospital workers, and the Immunity Resource Foundation.^[78]

HIV/AIDS denialism has received some support from political conservatives in the United States. Duesberg's work has been published in Policy Review, a journal once published by The Heritage Foundation but later acquired by the Hoover Institution,^{[79][80][81]} and by Regnery Publishing. Regnery published Duesberg's Inventing the AIDS Virus in 1996,^[82] and journalist Tom Bethell's The Politically Incorrect Guide to Science, in which he endorses HIV/AIDS denialism, in 2005.^[83] Law professor Phillip E. Johnson has accused the Centers for Disease Control of "fraud" in relation to HIV/AIDS.^[84] Describing the political aspects of the HIV/AIDS denialism movement, Sociology professor Steven Epstein wrote in Impure Science that "... the appeal of Duesberg's views to conservatives—certainly including those with little sympathy for the gay movement—cannot be denied."^[85] The blog LewRockwell.com has also published articles supportive of HIV/AIDS denialism.^[86]

In a follow-up article in Skeptical Inquirer,^[87] Nattrass overviewed the prominent members of the HIV/AIDS denialist community and discussed the reasons of the intractable staying power of HIV/AIDS denialism in spite of scientific and medical consensus supported by over two decades of evidence. She observed that despite being a disparate group of people with very different background and professions, the HIV/AIDS denialists self-organize to fill four important roles:^[87]

- "Hero scientists" to provide scientific legitimacy: Most notably Duesberg who plays the central role of HIV/AIDS denialism from the beginning. Others include David Rasnick, Étienne de Harven, and Kary Mullis whose Nobel Prize makes him symbolically important.
- "Cultpreneurs" to offer fake cures in place of antiretroviral therapy: Matthias Rath, Gary Null, Michael Ellner, and Roberto Giraldo all promote alternative medicine and remedies with a dose of conspiracy theories in the form of books, healing products, radio shows and counseling services.
- HIV-positive "living icons" to provide proof of concept by appearing to live healthily without antiretroviral therapy: Christine Maggiore was and still is the most important icon in the HIV/AIDS denialist movement despite the fact that she died of AIDS related complications in 2008.
- "Praise singers": sympathetic journalists and filmmakers who publicize the movement with uncritical and favorable opinion. They include journalists Celia Farber, Liam Scheff and Neville Hodgkinson; filmmakers Brent Leung and Robert Leppo.

Some of them had overlapping roles as board members of Rethinking AIDS and Alive and Well AIDS Alternatives, were involved in the film House of Numbers, The Other Side of AIDS or on Thabo Mbeki's AIDS Advisory Panel. Natrass argued that HIV/AIDS denialism gains social traction through powerful community-building effects where these four organized characters form "a symbiotic connection between AIDS denialism and alternative healing modalities" and they are "facilitated by a shared conspiratorial stance toward HIV science".^[87]

Former denialists

Several of the few prominent scientists who once voiced doubts about HIV/AIDS have since changed their views and accepted the fact that HIV plays a role in causing AIDS, in response to an accumulation of newer studies and data.^[88] Root-Bernstein, author of Rethinking AIDS: The Tragic Cost of Premature Consensus and formerly a critic of the causative role of HIV in AIDS, has since distanced himself from the HIV/AIDS denialist movement, saying, "Both the camp that says HIV is a pussycat and the people who claim AIDS is all HIV are wrong...The denialists make claims that are clearly inconsistent with existing studies."^[89]

Joseph Sonnabend, who until the late 1990s regarded the issue of AIDS causation as unresolved, has reconsidered in light of the success of newer antiretroviral drugs, stating, "The evidence now strongly supports a role for HIV... Drugs that can save your life can also under different circumstances kill you. This is a distinction that denialists do not seem to understand."^[89] Sonnabend has also criticized HIV/AIDS denialists for falsely implying that he supports their position, saying:

Some individuals who believe that HIV plays no role at all in AIDS have implied that I support their misguided views on AIDS causation by including inappropriate references to me in their literature and on their web sites. Before HIV was discovered and its association with AIDS established, I held the entirely appropriate view that the cause of AIDS was then unknown. I have successfully treated hundreds of AIDS patients with antiretroviral medications, and have no doubt that HIV plays a necessary role in this disease.^[90]

A former denialist wrote in the Journal of Medical Ethics in 2004:

The group [of denialists] regularly points to a substantial number of scientists supportive of its agenda to re-evaluate the HIV/AIDS hypothesis. Some of those members still listed are people who have been dead for a number of years. While it is correct that these people supported the objective of a scientific re-evaluation of the HIV/AIDS link when they were alive, it is clearly difficult to ascertain what these people would have made of the scientific developments and the accumulation of evidence for HIV as the crucial causative agent in AIDS, which has occurred in the years after their deaths.^[68]

Death of HIV-positive denialists

In 2007, aidstruth.org, a website run by HIV researchers to counter denialist claims,^[91] published a partial list of HIV/AIDS denialists who had died of AIDS-related causes. For example, the editors of the magazine Continuum consistently denied the existence of HIV/AIDS. The magazine shut down after both editors died of AIDS-related causes.^[92] In each case, the HIV/AIDS denialist community attributed the deaths to unknown causes, secret drug use, or stress rather than HIV/AIDS.^{[21][68]} Similarly, several HIV-positive former dissidents have reported being ostracized by the AIDS-denialist community after they developed AIDS and decided to pursue effective antiretroviral treatment.^[93]

In 2008, activist Christine Maggiore died at the age of 52 while under a doctor's care for pneumonia. Maggiore, mother of two children, had founded an organisation to help other HIV-positive mothers avoid taking antiretroviral drugs that reduce the risk of HIV transmission from mother to child.^[94] After her three-year-old daughter died of AIDS-related pneumonia in 2005, Maggiore continued to believe that HIV is not the cause of AIDS, and she and her husband Robin Scovill sued Los Angeles County and others on behalf of their daughter's estate, for allegedly violating Eliza Scovill's civil rights by releasing an autopsy report that listed her cause of death as AIDS-related pneumonia.^[76] The litigants settled out of court, with the county paying Scovill $15,000 in March 2009, with no admission of wrongdoing. The Los Angeles coroner's ruling that Eliza Scovill died of AIDS remains the official verdict.^[95]

Local community group denialism

Australia: In 2009 representing the then Australian Vaccination-Skeptics Network, President Meryl Dorey signed a petition claiming that "the AIDS industry and the media" had tricked the public and the media into believing that HIV causes AIDS.^[96]

Canada: The Alberta Reappraising AIDS Society created the petition in March 2000 and has reportedly since attracted "2,951 doubters" representing groups and individuals. Signatories reportedly deny "that Aids is heterosexually transmitted".^[97]

Impact beyond the scientific community

AIDS-denialist claims have failed to attract support in the scientific community, where the evidence for the causative role of HIV in AIDS is considered conclusive. However, the movement has had a significant impact in the political sphere, culminating with former South African President Thabo Mbeki's embrace of AIDS-denialist claims.^[98] The resulting governmental refusal to provide effective anti-HIV treatment in South Africa has been blamed for hundreds of thousands of premature AIDS-related deaths in South Africa.^[53]

North America and Europe

Skepticism about HIV being the cause of AIDS began almost immediately after the discovery of HIV was announced. One of the earliest prominent skeptics was the journalist John Lauritsen, who argued in his writings for the New York Native that amyl nitrite poppers played a role in AIDS, and that the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention had used statistical methods that concealed this.^[99] Lauritsen's The AIDS War was published in 1993.^[100]

Scientific literature

The publication of Duesberg's first AIDS paper in 1987 provided visibility for denialist claims. Shortly afterwards, the journal Science reported that Duesberg's remarks had won him "a large amount of media attention, particularly in the gay press where he is something of a hero."^[101] However, Duesberg's support in the gay community diminished as he made a series of statements perceived as homophobic; in an interview with The Village Voice in 1988, Duesberg stated his belief that the AIDS epidemic was "caused by a lifestyle that was criminal twenty years ago."^[102]

In the following few years, others became skeptical of the HIV theory as researchers initially failed to produce an effective treatment or vaccine for AIDS.^[103] Journalists such as Neville Hodgkinson and Celia Farber regularly promoted denialist ideas in the American and British media; several television documentaries were also produced to increase awareness of the alternative viewpoint.^[104] In 1992–1993, The Sunday Times, where Hodgkinson served as scientific editor, ran a series of articles arguing that the AIDS epidemic in Africa was a myth. These articles stressed Duesberg's claims and argued that antiviral therapy was ineffective, HIV testing unreliable, and that AIDS was not a threat to heterosexuals. The Sunday Times coverage was heavily criticized as slanted, misleading, and potentially dangerous; the scientific journal Nature took the unusual step of printing a 1993 editorial calling the paper's coverage of HIV/AIDS "seriously mistaken, and probably disastrous."^[105]

Finding difficulty in publishing his arguments in the scientific literature, Duesberg exercised his right as a member of the National Academy of Sciences to publish in Proceedings of the National Academy of Sciences of the United States of America (PNAS) without going through the peer review process. However, Duesberg's paper raised a "red flag" at the journal and was submitted by the editor for non-binding review. All of the reviewers found major flaws in Duesberg's paper; the reviewer specifically chosen by Duesberg noted the presence of "misleading arguments", "nonlogical statements", "misrepresentations", and political overtones.^[27] Ultimately, the editor of PNAS acquiesced to publication,^[106] writing to Duesberg: "If you wish to make these unsupported, vague, and prejudicial statements in print, so be it. But I cannot see how this would be convincing to any scientifically trained reader."^[27]

HIV/AIDS denialists often resort to special pleading to support their assertion, arguing for different causes of AIDS in different locations and subpopulations. In North America, AIDS is blamed on the health effects of unprotected anal sex and poppers on homosexual men, an argument which does not account for AIDS in drug-free heterosexual women who deny participating in anal sex. In this case, HIV/AIDS denialists claim the women are having anal sex but refuse to disclose it. In haemophiliac North American children who contracted HIV from blood transfusions, the haemophilia itself or its treatment is claimed to cause AIDS. In Africa, AIDS is blamed on poor nutrition and sanitation due to poverty. For wealthy populations in South Africa with adequate nutrition and sanitation, it is claimed that the antiretroviral drugs used to treat AIDS cause the condition. In each case, the most parsimonious explanation and unifying factor – HIV positive status – is ignored, as are the thousands of studies that converge on the common conclusion that AIDS is caused by HIV infection.^[5]

Haemophilia is considered the best test of the HIV-AIDS hypothesis by both denialists and AIDS researchers. While Duesberg claims AIDS in haemophiliacs is caused by contaminated clotting factors and HIV is a harmless passenger virus, this result is contradicted by large studies on haemophiliac patients who received contaminated blood. A comparison of groups receiving high, medium and low levels of contaminated clotting factors found the death rates differed significantly depending on HIV status. Of 396 HIV positive haemophiliacs followed between 1985 and 1993, 153 died. The comparative figure for the HIV negative group was one out of 66, despite comparable doses of contaminated clotting factors. A comparison of individuals receiving blood donations also supports the results; in 1994 there were 6888 individuals with AIDS who had their HIV infection traced to blood transfusions. Since the introduction of HIV testing, the number of individuals whose AIDS status can be traced to blood transfusions was only 29 (as of 1994).^[4]

Lay press and on the Internet

With the introduction of highly active antiretroviral therapy (HAART) in 1996–1997, the survival and general health of people with HIV improved significantly.^{[67][107]} The positive response to treatment with anti-HIV medication cemented the scientific acceptance of the HIV/AIDS paradigm, and led several prominent HIV/AIDS denialists to accept the causative role of HIV.^{[68][89]} Finding their arguments increasingly discredited by the scientific community, denialists took their message to the popular press. A former denialist wrote:

Scientists among the HIV dissidents used their academic credentials and academic affiliations to generate interest, sympathy, and allegiances in lay audiences. They were not professionally troubled about recruiting lay people—who were clearly unable to evaluate the scientific validity or otherwise of their views—to their cause.^[68]

In addition to elements of the popular and alternative press, AIDS denialist ideas are propagated largely via the Internet.^[108]

A 2007 article in PLoS Medicine noted:

Because these denialist assertions are made in books and on the Internet rather than in the scientific literature, many scientists are either unaware of the existence of organized denial groups, or believe they can safely ignore them as the discredited fringe. And indeed, most of the HIV deniers' arguments were answered long ago by scientists. However, many members of the general public do not have the scientific background to critique the assertions put forth by these groups, and not only accept them but continue to propagate them.^[8]

Lay opinion and AIDS-related behaviors

AIDS activists have expressed concern that denialist arguments about HIV's harmlessness may be responsible for an upsurge in HIV infections. Denialist claims continue to exert a significant influence in some communities; a survey conducted at minority gay pride events in four American cities in 2005 found that 33% of attendees doubted that HIV caused AIDS.^[109] Similarly, a 2010 survey of 343 people living with HIV/AIDS found that one in five of them thought that there was no proof that HIV caused AIDS, and that HIV treatments did more harm than good.^[110] According to Stephen Thomas, director of the University of Pittsburgh Center for Minority Health, "people are focusing on the wrong thing. They're focusing on conspiracies rather than protecting themselves, rather than getting tested and seeking out appropriate care and treatment."^[111] African Americans are exceptionally likely to believe that HIV does not cause AIDS, partly because they sometimes perceive the role of HIV in the disease as part of a racist agenda.^[112] A 2012 survey of young adults in Cape Town, South Africa found that belief in AIDS denialism was strongly related to an increased probability of engaging in unsafe sex.^[113]

South Africa

HIV/AIDS denialist claims have had a major political, social, and public health impact in South Africa. The government of then President Thabo Mbeki was sympathetic to the views of HIV/AIDS denialists, with critics charging that denialist influence was responsible for the slow and ineffective governmental response to the country's massive AIDS epidemic.

Independent studies have arrived at almost identical estimates of the human costs of HIV/AIDS denialism in South Africa. According to a paper written by researchers from the Harvard School of Public Health, between 2000 and 2005, more than 330,000 deaths and an estimated 35,000 infant HIV infections occurred "because of a failure to accept the use of available [antiretroviral drugs] to prevent and treat HIV/AIDS in a timely manner."^[14] Nicoli Natrass of the University of Cape Town estimates that 343,000 excess AIDS-related deaths and 171,000 infections resulted from the Mbeki administration's policies, an outcome she refers to in the words of Peter Mandelson as "genocide by sloth".^[15]

Durban Declaration

In 2000, when the International AIDS Conference was held in Durban, Mbeki convened a Presidential Advisory Panel containing a number of HIV/AIDS denialists, including Duesberg and David Rasnick.^[114] The Advisory Panel meetings were closed to the general press; an invited reporter from the Village Voice wrote that Rasnick advocated that HIV testing be legally banned and denied that he had seen "any evidence" of an AIDS catastrophe in South Africa, while Duesberg "gave a presentation so removed from African medical reality that it left several local doctors shaking their heads."^[52]

In his address to the International AIDS Conference, Mbeki reiterated his view that HIV was not wholly responsible for AIDS, leading hundreds of delegates to walk out on his speech.^[115] Mbeki also sent a letter to a number of world leaders likening the mainstream AIDS research community to supporters of the apartheid regime.^[114] The tone and content of Mbeki's letter led diplomats in the U.S. to initially question whether it was a hoax.^{[116][117]}

AIDS scientists and activists were dismayed at the president's behavior and responded with the Durban Declaration, a document affirming that HIV causes AIDS, signed by over 5,000 scientists and physicians.^{[13][115]}

Criticism of governmental response

The former South African health minister Manto Tshabalala-Msimang also attracted heavy criticism, as she often promoted nutritional remedies such as garlic, lemons, beetroot and olive oil, to people suffering from AIDS,^{[118][119][120]} while emphasizing possible toxicities of antiretroviral drugs, which she has referred to as "poison".^[121] The South African Medical Association has accused Tshabalala-Msimang of "confusing a vulnerable public".^[122] In September 2006, a group of over 80 scientists and academics called for "the immediate removal of Dr. Tshabalala-Msimang as minister of health and for an end to the disastrous, pseudoscientific policies that have characterized the South African government's response to HIV/AIDS."^[123] In December 2006, deputy health minister Nozizwe Madlala-Routledge described "denial at the very highest levels" over AIDS.^[124]

Former South African president Thabo Mbeki's government was widely criticized for delaying the rollout of programs to provide antiretroviral drugs to people with advanced HIV disease and to HIV-positive pregnant women. The national treatment program began only after the Treatment Action Campaign (TAC) brought a legal case against Government ministers, claiming they were responsible for the deaths of 600 HIV-positive people a day who could not access medication.^{[114][125]} South Africa was one of the last countries in the region to begin such a treatment program, and roll-out has been much slower than planned.^[121]

At the XVI International AIDS Conference, Stephen Lewis, UN special envoy for AIDS in Africa, attacked Mbeki's government for its slow response to the AIDS epidemic and reliance on denialist claims:

It [South Africa] is the only country in Africa ... whose government is still obtuse, dilatory and negligent about rolling out treatment... It is the only country in Africa whose government continues to promote theories more worthy of a lunatic fringe than of a concerned and compassionate state.^[123]

In 2002, Mbeki requested that HIV/AIDS denialists no longer use his name in their literature and stop signing documents with "Member of President Mbeki's AIDS Advisory Panel".^[114] This coincided with the South African government's statement accompanying its 2002 AIDS campaign, that "...in conducting this campaign, government's starting point is based on the premise that HIV causes AIDS".^[126] Nonetheless, Mbeki himself continued to promote and defend AIDS-denialist claims. His loyalists attacked former President Nelson Mandela in 2002 when Mandela questioned the government's AIDS policy, and Mbeki attacked Malegapuru William Makgoba, one of South Africa's leading scientists, as a racist defender of "Western science" for opposing HIV/AIDS denialism.^[53]

In early 2005, former South African President Nelson Mandela announced that his son had died of complications of AIDS. Mandela's public announcement was seen as both an effort to combat the stigma associated with AIDS, and as a "political statement designed to... force the President [Mbeki] out of his denial."^{[127][128]}

Post-Mbeki government in South Africa

In 2008, Mbeki was ousted from power and replaced as President of South Africa by Kgalema Motlanthe. On Motlanthe's first day in office, he removed Manto Tshabalala-Msimang, the controversial health minister who had promoted AIDS-denialist claims and recommended garlic, beetroot, and lemon juice as treatments for AIDS. Barbara Hogan, newly appointed as health minister, voiced shame at the Mbeki government's embrace of HIV/AIDS denialism and vowed a new course, stating: "The era of denialism is over completely in South Africa."^[53]

See also

- Discredited HIV/AIDS origins theories
- Germ theory denialism
- Misconceptions about HIV and AIDS

- Vaccine hesitancy

Footnotes

- Institute of Medicine (US) Committee for the Oversight of AIDS Activities (1988). Confronting AIDS: Update 1988 (http://books.nap.edu/openbook.php?record_id=771&page=2). Institute of Medicine of the U.S. National Academy of Sciences. doi:10.17226/771 (<https://doi.org/10.17226%2F771>). ISBN 978-0-309-03879-9. PMID 25032454 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/25032454>). "...the evidence that HIV causes AIDS is scientifically conclusive."
- "The Evidence that HIV Causes AIDS" (<https://aidsinfo.nih.gov/news/528/the-evidence-that-hiv-cause-s-aids>). National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Disease. 4 September 2009. Retrieved 14 October 2009.
- Kalichman 2009, p. 205 (https://books.google.com/books?id=_mtDBCDwxugC&pg=PA205).
- Cohen, J (1994). "Duesberg and critics agree: Hemophilia is the best test". Science. 266 (5191): 1645–6. Bibcode:1994Sci...266.1645C (<https://ui.adsabs.harvard.edu/abs/1994Sci...266.1645C>). doi:10.1126/science.7992044 (<https://doi.org/10.1126%2Fscience.7992044>). PMID 7992044 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/7992044>).
- Kalichman 2009.
- Kalichman, SC (1 January 2014). "The Psychology of AIDS Denialism". European Psychologist. 19 (1): 13–22. doi:10.1027/1016-9040/a000175 (<https://doi.org/10.1027%2F1016-9040%2Fa000175>).
- "Denying science" (<https://doi.org/10.1038%2Fnm0406-369>). Nat. Med. 12 (4): 369. 2006. doi:10.1038/nm0406-369 (<https://doi.org/10.1038%2Fnm0406-369>). PMID 16598265 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/16598265>). "To support their ideas, some AIDS denialists have also misappropriated a scientific review in Nature Medicine which opens with this reasonable statement: "Despite considerable advances in HIV science in the past 20 years, the reason why HIV-1 infection is pathogenic is still debated.""
- Smith, TC; Novella, SP (August 2007). "HIV denial in the internet era" (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC1949841>). PLOS Medicine. 4 (8): e256. doi:10.1371/journal.pmed.0040256 (<https://doi.org/10.1371%2Fjournal.pmed.0040256>). PMC 1949841 (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC1949841>). PMID 17713982 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/17713982>).
- Steinberg, J (17 June 2009). "AIDS denial: A lethal delusion" (<https://www.newscientist.com/article/mg20227131.500-aids-denial-a-lethal-delusion.html>). New Scientist. 2713. Retrieved 14 October 2009.
- Cohen, J (December 1994). "The Duesberg phenomenon" (<http://www.sciencemag.org/feature/data/cohen/266-5191-1642a.pdf>) (PDF). Science. 266 (5191): 1642–4. Bibcode:1994Sci...266.1642C (<https://ui.adsabs.harvard.edu/abs/1994Sci...266.1642C>). doi:10.1126/science.7992043 (<https://doi.org/10.1126%2Fscience.7992043>). PMID 7992043 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/7992043>). Retrieved 22 June 2009.
- Watson, J (2006). "Scientists, activists sue South Africa's AIDS 'denialists'" (<https://doi.org/10.1038%2Fnm0106-6a>). Nat. Med. 12 (1): 6. doi:10.1038/nm0106-6a (<https://doi.org/10.1038%2Fnm0106-6a>). PMID 16397537 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/16397537>). S2CID 3502309 (<https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:3502309>).
- Boseley, S (14 May 2005). "Discredited doctor's 'cure' for Aids ignites life-and-death struggle in South Africa" (<https://www.theguardian.com/international/story/0,,1483792,00.html>). The Guardian. London. Retrieved 14 October 2009.
- "The Durban Declaration". Nature. 406 (6791): 15–6. 2000. doi:10.1038/35017662 (<https://doi.org/10.1038%2F35017662>). PMID 10894520 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/10894520>). S2CID 205007392 (<https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:205007392>).

14. Chigwedere, P; Seage, GR; et al. (October 2008). "Estimating the lost benefits of antiretroviral drug use in South Africa". Journal of Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndromes. 49 (4): 410–15. doi:10.1097/QAI.0b013e31818a6cd5 (<https://doi.org/10.1097%2FQAI.0b013e31818a6cd5>). PMID 19186354 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/19186354>). Lay summary (<http://www.hsph.harvard.edu/news/press-releases/2008-releases/researchers-estimate-lives-lost-delay-arv-drug-use-hiv-aids-south-africa.html>).
15. Nattrass, N (February 2008). "AIDS and the scientific governance of medicine in post-Apartheid South Africa" (<https://doi.org/10.1093%2Fafraf%2Fadm087>). African Affairs. 107 (427): 157–76. doi:10.1093/afraf/adm087 (<https://doi.org/10.1093%2Fafraf%2Fadm087>).
16. Tang, MW; Shafer, RW (2012). "HIV-1 antiretroviral resistance: scientific principles and clinical applications" (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC3689909>). Drugs. 72 (9): e1–25. doi:10.2165/11633630-000000000-00000 (<https://doi.org/10.2165%2F11633630-000000000-00000>). PMC 3689909 (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC3689909>). PMID 22686620 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/22686620>).
17. Barré-Sinoussi, F; Chermann, J; et al. (1983). "Isolation of a T-lymphotropic retrovirus from a patient at risk for acquired immune deficiency syndrome (AIDS)". Science. 220 (4599): 868–71. Bibcode:1983Sci...220..868B (<https://ui.adsabs.harvard.edu/abs/1983Sci...220..868B>). doi:10.1126/science.6189183 (<https://doi.org/10.1126%2Fscience.6189183>). PMID 6189183 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/6189183>).
18. Sarngadharan, MG; DeVico, AL; et al. (1984). "HTLV-III: The etiologic agent of AIDS". Int. Symp. Princess Takamatsu Cancer Res. Fund. 15: 301–8. PMID 6100648 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/6100648>).
19. Schmidt, C (1984). "The group-fantasy origins of AIDS". Journal of Psychohistory. 12 (1): 37–78. PMID 11611586 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/11611586>).
20. Kalichman 2009, p. 26 (https://books.google.com/books?id=_mtDBCdWxugC&pg=PA26).
21. "AIDS Denialists Who Have Died" (https://web.archive.org/web/20100126000256/http://www.aidstruth.org/denialism/dead_denialists). aidstruth.org. Archived from the original (http://www.aidstruth.org/denialism/dead_denialists) on 26 January 2010. Retrieved 15 June 2009.
22. Coffin, J; Haase, A; et al. (1986). "What to call the AIDS virus?" (<https://doi.org/10.1038%2F321010a0>). Nature. 321 (6065): 10. Bibcode:1986Natur.321...10. (<https://ui.adsabs.harvard.edu/abs/1986Natur.321...10>). doi:10.1038/321010a0 (<https://doi.org/10.1038%2F321010a0>). PMID 3010128 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/3010128>).
23. Duesberg, P (1987). "Retroviruses as carcinogens and pathogens: Expectations and reality". Cancer Research. 47 (5): 1199–220. PMID 3028606 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/3028606>).
24. Blattner, W; Gallo, RC; Temin, HM (1988). "HIV causes AIDS". Science. 241 (4865): 515–6. Bibcode:1988Sci...241..515B (<https://ui.adsabs.harvard.edu/abs/1988Sci...241..515B>). doi:10.1126/science.3399881 (<https://doi.org/10.1126%2Fscience.3399881>). PMID 3399881 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/3399881>).
25. Duesberg, P (1988). "HIV is not the cause of AIDS". Science. 241 (4865): 514. Bibcode:1988Sci...241..514D (<https://ui.adsabs.harvard.edu/abs/1988Sci...241..514D>). doi:10.1126/science.3399880 (<https://doi.org/10.1126%2Fscience.3399880>). PMID 3399880 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/3399880>).
26. Papadopoulos-Eleopoulos, E (1988). "Reappraisal of AIDS – Is the oxidation induced by the risk factors the primary cause?" (<http://thepertgroup.com/SCIPAPERS/reappraisalofaids.html>). Medical Hypotheses. 25 (3): 151–62. doi:10.1016/0306-9877(88)90053-9 (<https://doi.org/10.1016%2F0306-9877%2888%2990053-9>). PMID 3285143 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/3285143>).
27. Booth, W (1989). "AIDS paper raises red flag at PNAS". Science. 243 (4892): 733. Bibcode:1989Sci...243..733B (<https://ui.adsabs.harvard.edu/abs/1989Sci...243..733B>). doi:10.1126/science.2916121 (<https://doi.org/10.1126%2Fscience.2916121>). PMID 2916121 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/2916121>).

28. Root-Bernstein, R (1990). "Do we know the cause(s) of AIDS?". Perspectives in Biology and Medicine. 33 (4): 480–500. doi:10.1353/pbm.1990.0055 (https://doi.org/10.1353%2Fpbm.1990.0055). PMID 2216658 (https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/2216658). S2CID 40654958 (https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:40654958).
29. Epstein, Steven (1996). Impure Science: AIDS, Activism, and the Politics of Knowledge (https://archive.org/details/impurescienceaid00epst). Medicine and Society. University of California Press. pp. 143 (https://archive.org/details/impurescienceaid00epst/page/143)–4. ISBN 9780520921252. PMID 11619509 (https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/11619509).
30. Maddox, J (1993). "Has Duesberg a right of reply?" (https://doi.org/10.1038%2F363109a0). Nature. 363 (6425): 109. Bibcode:1993Natur.363..109M (https://ui.adsabs.harvard.edu/abs/1993Natur.363..109M). doi:10.1038/363109a0 (https://doi.org/10.1038%2F363109a0). PMID 8483492 (https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/8483492). S2CID 12103876 (https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:12103876).
31. Papadopulos-Eleopulos, E; Turner, VF; Papadimitriou, JM (1993). "Is a positive western blot proof of HIV infection?" (http://thepertgroup.com/SCIPAPERS/biotek8.html). Nature Biotechnology. 11 (6): 696–707. doi:10.1038/nbt0693-696 (https://doi.org/10.1038%2Fnbt0693-696). PMID 7763673 (https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/7763673). S2CID 31070551 (https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:31070551).
32. Kalichman 2009, p. 170 (https://books.google.com/books?id=_mtDBCDwxugC&pg=PA170).
33. Bugl, P. "The Rise of HIV/AIDS" (http://uhavax.hartford.edu/bugl/rise.htm). Department of Mathematics, University of Hartford. Archived (https://web.archive.org/web/20070204142451/http://uhavax.hartford.edu/bugl/rise.htm) from the original on 4 February 2007. Retrieved 22 January 2007.
34. Baumann, E; Bethell, T; et al. (1995). "AIDS proposal. Group for the Scientific Reappraisal of the HIV/AIDS Hypothesis". Science. 267 (5200): 945–6. Bibcode:1995Sci...267..945B (https://ui.adsabs.harvard.edu/abs/1995Sci...267..945B). doi:10.1126/science.7863334 (https://doi.org/10.1126%2Fscience.7863334). PMID 7863335 (https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/7863335). S2CID 45222215 (https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:45222215).
35. King, E (1996). "Isolated facts about HIV: A response to claims by AIDS dissidents that HIV doesn't exist" (https://web.archive.org/web/20100420063137/http://www.aegis.com/pubs/atu/1996/ATU4004.html). AIDS Treatment Update (40). Archived from the original (http://www.aegis.com/pubs/atu/1996/ATU4004.html) on 20 April 2010.
36. Lanka, Stefan (April–May 1995). "HIV; reality or artefact?" (http://www.virusmyth.com/aids/hiv/slartefact.htm). Continuum – via virusmyth.com.
37. "The Relationship between the Human Immunodeficiency Virus and the Acquired Immunodeficiency Syndrome (Part I)" (https://web.archive.org/web/20170414080947/https://aidsinfo.nih.gov/news/218/the-relationship-between-the-human-immunodeficiency-virus-and-the-acquired-immunodeficiency-syndrome-(part-i)). National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases. National Institutes of Health. 24 July 1995. Archived from the original (https://aidsinfo.nih.gov/news/218/the-relationship-between-the-human-immunodeficiency-virus-and-the-acquired-immunodeficiency-syndrome-(part-i)) on 14 April 2017.
38. "The Relationship between the Human Immunodeficiency Virus and the Acquired Immunodeficiency Syndrome (Part II)" (https://web.archive.org/web/20170414082040/https://aidsinfo.nih.gov/news/219/the-relationship-between-the-human-immunodeficiency-virus-and-the-acquired-immunodeficiency-syndrome--part-ii-). National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases. National Institutes of Health. 24 July 1995. Archived from the original (https://aidsinfo.nih.gov/news/219/the-relationship-between-the-human-immunodeficiency-virus-and-the-acquired-immunodeficiency-syndrome--part-ii-) on 14 April 2017.
39. Sabin, CA; Phillips, AN; Lee, CA (1996). "Response: Arguments contradict the "foreign protein-zidovudine" hypothesis" (https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC2350000). BMJ. 312 (7025): 211–2. doi:10.1136/bmj.312.7025.211 (https://doi.org/10.1136%2Fbmj.312.7025.211). PMC 2350000 (https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC2350000). PMID 8563584 (https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/8563584).

40. Papadopoulos-Eleopoulos, E; Turner, VF; et al. (1997). "HIV antibodies: Further questions and a plea for clarification" (<http://thepertgroup.com/SCIPAPERS/epcurmedres97.html>). Current Medical Research and Opinion. 13 (10): 627–34. doi:10.1185/03007999709113336 (<https://doi.org/10.1185%2F03007999709113336>). PMID 9327197 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/9327197>).
41. Papadopoulos-Eleopoulos, E; Turner, VF; et al. (1998). "HIV antibody tests and viral load – More unanswered questions and a further plea for clarification" (<http://thepertgroup.com/SCIPAPERS/furtherplea.html>). Current Medical Research and Opinion. 14 (3): 185–6. doi:10.1185/03007999809113358 (<https://doi.org/10.1185%2F03007999809113358>). PMID 9787984 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/9787984>).
42. Papadopoulos-Eleopoulos, E; Turner, VF; et al. (2006). "No proof HIV antibodies are caused by a retroviral infection" (<http://thepertgroup.com/SCIPAPERS/EMAHIVLetterandReply.pdf>) (PDF). Letters to the Editor. Emergency Medicine Australasia. 18 (3): 308–10. doi:10.1111/j.1742-6723.2006.00859.x (<https://doi.org/10.1111%2Fj.1742-6723.2006.00859.x>). PMID 16712545 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/16712545>). S2CID 30164635 (<https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:30164635>).
43. Morgan, Eleanor (18 February 2015). "Let's Be Clear About This: HIV Denial Kills" (https://www.vice.com/en_uk/read/aids-denialism-is-a-killer-syndrome). Vice. Retrieved 10 October 2016.
44. Farber, C (March 2006). "Out of control: AIDS and the corruption of medical science" (<http://www.harpers.org/archive/2006/03/0080961>). Harper's Magazine. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20090504174126/http://www.harpers.org/archive/2006/03/0080961>) from the original on 4 May 2009. Retrieved 11 June 2009.
45. Miller, L (13 March 2006). "An article in Harper's ignites a controversy over HIV" (<https://www.nytimes.com/2006/03/13/business/media/13harpers.html>). The New York Times. Retrieved 25 May 2008.
46. Gallo, R; Geffen, N; et al. (25 March 2006). "Errors in Celia Farber's March 2006 article in Harper's Magazine" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20090616194132/http://tac.org.za/Documents/ErrorsInFarberArticle.pdf>) (PDF). Treatment Action Campaign. Archived from the original (<http://www.tac.org.za/Documents/ErrorsInFarberArticle.pdf>) (PDF) on 16 June 2009. Retrieved 11 June 2009.
47. "Shadow of doubters" (<http://www.brisbanetimes.com.au/news/national/shadow-of-doubters/2007/05/04/1177788403414.html?page=fullpage>). Brisbane Times. 5 May 2007. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20090427144255/http://www.brisbanetimes.com.au/news/national/shadow-of-doubters/2007/05/04/1177788403414.html?page=fullpage>) from the original on 27 April 2009. Retrieved 11 June 2009.
48. Duesberg, PH; Nicholson, JM; et al. (19 July 2009). "WITHDRAWN: HIV-AIDS hypothesis out of touch with South African AIDS - A new perspective" (http://www.duesberg.com/2009_Duesberg_et_al_Medical_Hypotheses.pdf) (PDF). Medical Hypotheses. doi:10.1016/j.mehy.2009.06.024 (<https://doi.org/10.1016%2Fj.mehy.2009.06.024>). PMID 19619953 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/19619953>).
49. Corbyn, Zöe (5 January 2012). "Paper denying HIV–AIDS link secures publication" (<http://www.nature.com/news/paper-denying-hiv-aids-link-secures-publication-1.9737>). Nature. doi:10.1038/nature.2012.9737 (<https://doi.org/10.1038%2Fnature.2012.9737>). S2CID 154231868 (<https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:154231868>). Retrieved 10 October 2016.
50. "Boy is healthy without drug for HIV, mother says" (<https://www.nytimes.com/1998/09/20/us/boy-is-healthy-without-drug-for-hiv-mother-says.html>). The New York Times. 20 September 1998. Retrieved 11 June 2009.
51. Harkavy, J (10 March 2006). "Nikolas Emerson, 11; Case led to legal fight over HIV" (http://www.boston.com/news/globe/obituaries/articles/2006/03/10/nikolas_emerson_11_case_led_to_legal_fight_over_hiv/). The Boston Globe. Retrieved 11 June 2009.
52. Schoofs, M (5 July 2000). "Debating the obvious: Inside the South African government's controversial AIDS panel" (https://web.archive.org/web/20080617232941/https://www.villagevoice.com/news/0027_schoofs2,16283,1.html). Village Voice. Archived from the original (http://www.villagevoice.com/news/0027_schoofs2,16283,1.html) on 17 June 2008. Retrieved 11 June 2009.

53. Dugger, C (25 November 2008). "Study cites toll of AIDS policy in South Africa" (<https://www.nytimes.com/2008/11/26/world/africa/26aids.html>). The New York Times. Retrieved 17 December 2008.
54. McNeill, FG (1 July 2009). "'Condoms Cause Aids': Poison, Prevention and Denial in Venda, South Africa". African Affairs. 108 (432): 353–70. doi:10.1093/afraf/adp020 (<https://doi.org/10.1093%2Fafraf%2Fadp020>). ISSN 0001-9909 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/0001-9909>).
55. Butler, A (1 October 2005). "South Africa's HIV/AIDS policy, 1994–2004: How can it be explained?" (<https://doi.org/10.1093%2Fafraf%2Fadi036>). African Affairs. 104 (417): 591–614. doi:10.1093/afraf/adi036 (<https://doi.org/10.1093%2Fafraf%2Fadi036>). ISSN 0001-9909 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/0001-9909>).
56. Motsoaledi, Aaron (20 July 2016). "#AIDS2016: Health Minister Aaron Motsoaledi admits that 'key leaders were in denial'" (<http://bhekisisa.org/article/2016-07-15-aids2016-health-minister-aaron-motsoaledi-admits-that-key-leaders-were-in-denial>). Bhekisisa: Center for Health Journalism.
57. Turner, V (1999). "E-Mail Correspondence Between Val Turner and Robin Weiss" (<http://www.virusmyth.com/aids/hiv/vtcorweiss.htm>). virusmyth.com.
58. Duesberg, P (1989). "Human immunodeficiency virus and acquired immunodeficiency syndrome: Correlation but not causation" (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC286556>). Proceedings of the National Academy of Sciences of the United States of America. 86 (3): 755–64. Bibcode:1989PNAS...86..755D (<https://ui.adsabs.harvard.edu/abs/1989PNAS...86..755D>). doi:10.1073/pnas.86.3.755 (<https://doi.org/10.1073%2Fpnas.86.3.755>). PMC 286556 (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC286556>). PMID 2644642 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/2644642>).
59. "10 Scientific Reasons Why HIV Cannot Cause AIDS" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20060806081324/http://www.healtoronto.com/10reasons.html>). HealToronto.com. Archived from the original (<http://www.healtoronto.com/10reasons.html>) on 6 August 2006. Retrieved 28 September 2006.
60. Duesberg, P; Koehnlein, C; Rasnick, D (2003). "The chemical bases of the various AIDS epidemics: Recreational drugs, anti-viral chemotherapy and malnutrition". Journal of Biosciences. 28 (4): 383–412. CiteSeerX 10.1.1.610.3380 (<https://citeseerx.ist.psu.edu/viewdoc/summary?doi=10.1.1.610.3380>). doi:10.1007/BF02705115 (<https://doi.org/10.1007%2FBF02705115>). PMID 12799487 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/12799487>). S2CID 56553 (<https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:56553>).
61. "Basic Information about HIV and AIDS" (<https://www.cdc.gov/hiv/basics/index.html>). Centers for Disease Control. 11 August 2010. Retrieved 4 February 2011.
62. O'Brien, SJ; Goedert, JJ (1996). "HIV causes AIDS: Koch's postulates fulfilled" (<https://zenodo.org/record/1260157>). Current Opinion in Immunology. 8 (5): 613–8. doi:10.1016/S0952-7915(96)80075-6 (<https://doi.org/10.1016%2FS0952-7915%2896%2980075-6>). PMID 8902385 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/8902385>).
63. "HIV Science and Responsible Journalism" (https://web.archive.org/web/20070616224514/http://www.kaisernetwork.org/health_cast/uploaded_files/081306_ias_sat_journalism.pdf) (PDF). XVI International AIDS Conference. 13 August 2006. Archived from the original (http://www.kaisernetwork.org/health_cast/uploaded_files/081306_ias_sat_journalism.pdf) (PDF) on 16 June 2007. Retrieved 17 December 2008.
64. Moore, John (16 May 2008). "How Immunoassays Work: The Curious Case of AIDS Denialist Roberto Giraldo and his Ignorance of the Basics" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20100706160310/http://www.aidstruth.org/denialism/denialists/giraldo-immunoassays>). Aidstruth.org. Archived from the original (<http://www.aidstruth.org/denialism/denialists/giraldo-immunoassays>) on 6 July 2010. Retrieved 17 December 2008.
65. Steinberg, J (23 June 2009). "Five myths about HIV and AIDS" (<https://www.newscientist.com/article/dn17326-five-myths-about-hiv-and-aids.html>). New Scientist. Retrieved 4 February 2011.
66. Chigwedere, P; Essex, M (8 January 2010). "AIDS Denialism and Public Health Practice". AIDS and Behavior. 14 (2): 237–47. doi:10.1007/s10461-009-9654-7 (<https://doi.org/10.1007%2FS10461-009-9654-7>). PMID 20058063 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/20058063>). S2CID 22822335 (<https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:22822335>).

67. Major studies confirming the benefits and effectiveness of modern anti-HIV therapy include, but are not limited to:
- Lima, V; Hogg, R; et al. (2007). "Continued improvement in survival among HIV-infected individuals with newer forms of highly active antiretroviral therapy". AIDS. 21 (6): 685–92. doi:10.1097/QAD.0b013e32802ef30c (<https://doi.org/10.1097%2FQAD.0b013e32802ef30c>). PMID 17413689 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/17413689>). S2CID 33450456 (<https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:33450456>).
 - Jordan, R; Gold, L; et al. (2002). "Systematic review and meta-analysis of evidence for increasing numbers of drugs in antiretroviral combination therapy" (<http://bmj.bmjournals.com/cgi/content/full/324/7340/757>). BMJ. 324 (7340): 757. doi:10.1136/bmj.324.7340.757 (<https://doi.org/10.1136%2Fbmj.324.7340.757>). PMC 100314 (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC100314>). PMID 11923157 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/11923157>).
 - Ivers, L; Kendrick, D; Doucette, K (2005). "Efficacy of antiretroviral therapy programs in resource-poor settings: a meta-analysis of the published literature" (<https://doi.org/10.1086%2F431199>). Clin Infect Dis. 41 (2): 217–24. doi:10.1086/431199 (<https://doi.org/10.1086%2F431199>). PMID 15983918 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/15983918>).
 - Mocroft, A; Ledergerber, B; et al. (2003). "Decline in the AIDS and death rates in the EuroSIDA study: an observational study". Lancet. 362 (9377): 22–9. doi:10.1016/S0140-6736(03)13802-0 (<https://doi.org/10.1016%2FS0140-6736%2803%2913802-0>). PMID 12853195 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/12853195>). S2CID 26157673 (<https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:26157673>).
 - Sterne, J; Hernán, M; et al. (2005). "Long-term effectiveness of potent antiretroviral therapy in preventing AIDS and death: a prospective cohort study". Lancet. 366 (9483): 378–84. doi:10.1016/S0140-6736(05)67022-5 (<https://doi.org/10.1016%2FS0140-6736%2805%2967022-5>). PMID 16054937 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/16054937>). S2CID 18304241 (<https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:18304241>).
68. Schüklenk, U (2004). "Professional responsibilities of biomedical scientists in public discourse" (<http://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC1757140>). J Med Ethics. 30 (1): 53–60, discussion 61–2. doi:10.1136/jme.2003.002980 (<https://doi.org/10.1136%2Fjme.2003.002980>). PMC 1757140 (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC1757140>). PMID 14872076 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/14872076>).
69. Goertzel, T (2010). "Conspiracy theories in science" (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC2897118>). EMBO Reports. 11 (7): 493–499. doi:10.1038/embor.2010.84 (<https://doi.org/10.1038%2Fembor.2010.84>). PMC 2897118 (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC2897118>). PMID 20539311 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/20539311>).
70. Nattrass, N (2007). "AIDS Denialism vs. Science" (http://www.csicop.org/si/show/aids_denialism_vs._science/). Skeptical Inquirer. 31 (5).
71. Mullis, K (1998). Dancing Naked in the Mind Field (<https://archive.org/details/dancingnakedinmi00mul/page/171>). Vintage Books. pp. 171–182 (<https://books.google.com/books?id=MCAqomvRYNMC&pg=PA171#v=onepage>). ISBN 978-0679442554.
72. Teresi, D (April 2011). "Lynn Margulis: Q & A" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20110421233929/http://discover.coverleaf.com/discovermagazine/201104?pg=68#pg72>). Discover Magazine. pp. 66–70. Archived from the original (<http://discover.coverleaf.com/discovermagazine/201104?pg=68#pg72>) on 21 April 2011. Retrieved 14 April 2011.
73. Rohleder, P; Swartz, L; Kalichman, SC (2009). HIV/AIDS in South Africa 25 years On: Psychosocial Perspectives. Springer. p. 125 (<https://books.google.com/books?id=7r4TbLuyFZEC&pg=PA125>). ISBN 9781441903051..
74. Kalichman 2009, pp. 61, 128, 180.
75. Chang, K; Leary, W (25 September 2005). "Serge Lang, 78, a gadfly and mathematical theorist, dies" (<https://www.nytimes.com/2005/09/25/national/25lang.html>). The New York Times. Retrieved 23 April 2010.

76. Gorman, A; Zavis, A (30 December 2008). "Christine Maggiore, vocal skeptic of AIDS research, dies at 52" (<http://www.latimes.com/news/local/la-me-christine-maggiore30-2008dec30,0,7407966.story>). Los Angeles Times. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20081231143934/http://www.latimes.com/news/local/la-me-christine-maggiore30-2008dec30,0,7407966.story>) from the original on 31 December 2008. Retrieved 30 December 2008.
77. "Foo Fighters, HIV Deniers" (<https://www.motherjones.com/news/feature/2000/02/foo.html>). Mother Jones. 25 February 2000. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20061127064425/https://www.motherjones.com/news/feature/2000/02/foo.html>) from the original on 27 November 2006. Retrieved 21 October 2006.
78. "Immunity Resource Foundation (IRF)" (<http://www.immunity.org.uk/>). IRF.
79. Epstein 1996, pp. 131–158.
80. Duesberg, P; Ellison, BJ (Summer 1990). "Is the AIDS virus a science fiction" (<http://www.duesberg.com/about/pdpolicy.html>). Policy Review. pp. 40–51.
81. Duesberg, P; Ellison, BJ (Fall 1990). "Is HIV the cause of AIDS?" (<http://www.duesberg.com/about/pdpolicyrep.html>). Policy Review. pp. 70–83.
82. Horton, R (23 May 1996). "Truth and heresy about AIDS" (<http://www.nybooks.com/articles/1996/05/23/truth-and-heresy-about-aids/>). The New York Review of Books.
83. Bethell, T (2005). The Politically Incorrect Guide to Science. Regnery Publishing. pp. 105–122 (http://books.google.com/books?id=xX4m7s7_4L0C&pg=PA105). ISBN 978-0895260314.
84. "HIV & AIDS – Statement About CDC Fraud" (<http://www.virusmyth.com/aids/hiv/pjcdc.htm>). virusmyth.com. Retrieved 18 March 2008.
85. Epstein 1996, pp. 131–158 (<https://archive.org/details/impurescienceaid00epst/page/131>).
86. Kalichman 2009, pp. 50–53 (https://books.google.com/books?id=_mtDBCDwxugC&pg=PA50).
87. Nattrass, N (July–August 2012). "The social and symbolic power of AIDS denialism" (http://www.csicop.org/si/show/the_social_and_symbolic_power_of_aids_denialism). Skeptical Inquirer. 36: 34–8.
88. Delaney, M (2005). "HIV, AIDS, and the distortion of science" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20110604155409/http://www.aegis.com/topics/mdelaney.html>). Focus. 15 (6). pp. 1–6. Archived from the original (<http://www.aegis.com/topics/mdelaney.html>) on 4 June 2011. Retrieved 9 June 2011.
89. Lederer, B (1 April 2006). "Dead Certain?" (http://www.poz.com/articles/451_2788.shtml). POZ. Archived (https://web.archive.org/web/20061113150749/http://www.poz.com/articles/451_2788.shtml) from the original on 13 November 2006. Retrieved 31 October 2006.
90. Sonnabend, J. "Statement by Joseph Sonnabend, M.D." (<https://web.archive.org/web/20110517101454/http://www.aidstruth.org/denialism/sonnabend>) aidstruth.org. Archived from the original (<http://www.aidstruth.org/denialism/sonnabend>) on 17 May 2011. Retrieved 15 February 2011.
91. Cohen, J (2007). "HIV/AIDS. AIDSTruth.org Web site takes aim at 'denialists'". Science. 316 (5831): 1554. doi:10.1126/science.316.5831.1554 (<https://doi.org/10.1126%2Fscience.316.5831.1554>). PMID 17569834 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/17569834>). S2CID 30223809 (<https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:30223809>).
92. Kalichman, S (November 2009). "How to spot an AIDS denialist" (<http://newhumanist.org.uk/2165/how-to-spot-an-aids-denialist>). New Humanist.
93. Mirken, B (2 February 2000). "Bad science: They once thought HIV was harmless. Now, they say, AIDS has forced them to reconsider" (<http://www.aegis.org/news/misc/2000/bg000201.html>). San Francisco Bay Guardian. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20080415232410/http://www.aegis.org/news/misc/2000/BG000201.html>) from the original on 15 April 2008. Retrieved 9 May 2008.
94. Ornstein, C; Costello, D (24 September 2005). "A mother's denial, a daughter's death" (<http://articles.latimes.com/2005/sep/24/local/me-eliza24>). Los Angeles Times. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20081222041314/http://articles.latimes.com/2005/sep/24/local/me-eliza24>) from the original on 22 December 2008. Retrieved 29 December 2008.
95. Hennessy-Fiske, M (6 March 2009). "Suit settled on autopsy of HIV skeptics' child" (<http://articles.latimes.com/2009/mar/06/local/me-briefs6>). Los Angeles Times.

96. Mnookin, Seth (25 January 2011). The Panic Virus: Fear, Myth and the Vaccination Debate (Australian ed.). Schwartz Publishing Pty, Limited. p. xx. ISBN 9781921870118.
97. "HIV/AIDS Rethinkers" (<http://aras.ab.ca/rethinkers.php>). Alberta Reappraising AIDS Society. 16 March 2000. Retrieved 17 February 2016.
98. Gray, A (2012). "The Politics of AIDS Denialism: South Africa's Failure to Respond - By Pieter Fourie and Melissa Meyer". Political Studies Review (Book review). 10 (2): 309. doi:10.1111/j.1478-9302.2012.00269_2.x (https://doi.org/10.1111%2Fj.1478-9302.2012.00269_2.x). S2CID 152031898 (<https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:152031898>).
99. "Biography of John Lauritsen" (<http://www.virusmyth.com/aids/data2/jlbio.htm>). virusmyth.com. Retrieved 7 September 2006.
00. Lauritsen, John (1993). The AIDS War. New York: Pagan Press. p. 4. ISBN 978-0-943742-08-3.
01. Booth, W (1988). "A rebel without a cause of AIDS". Science. 239 (4847): 1485–1488. Bibcode:1988Sci...239.1485B (<https://ui.adsabs.harvard.edu/abs/1988Sci...239.1485B>). doi:10.1126/science.3281251 (<https://doi.org/10.1126%2Fscience.3281251>). PMID 3281251 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/3281251>).
02. Epstein 1996, pp. 118 (<https://archive.org/details/impurescienceaid00epst/page/118>).
03. Burkett, Elinor (1995). "Ch. 2: Evidence to the Contrary" (<https://books.google.com/books?id=YXLP4k7spJYC>). The Gravest Show on Earth: America in the Age of AIDS (https://archive.org/details/gravestshowonear00burk_0/page/53). Houghton Mifflin Company. pp. 53–76 (https://archive.org/details/gravestshowonear00burk_0/page/53). ISBN 978-0-395-74537-3.
04. "Censorship" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20091015032105/http://www.virusmyth.com/aids/censorship.htm>). virusmyth.com. Archived from the original (<http://www.virusmyth.net/aids/censorship.htm>) on 15 October 2009. Retrieved 2 June 2006.
05. Schmidt, WE (10 December 1993). "British paper and science journal clash on AIDS" (<https://www.nytimes.com/1993/12/10/world/british-paper-and-science-journal-clash-on-aids.html>). The New York Times. Retrieved 25 April 2008.
06. Duesberg, PH (1989). "Human immunodeficiency virus and acquired immunodeficiency syndrome: Correlation but not causation" (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC286556>). Proceedings of the National Academy of Sciences of the United States of America. 86 (3): 755–64. Bibcode:1989PNAS...86..755D (<https://ui.adsabs.harvard.edu/abs/1989PNAS...86..755D>). doi:10.1073/pnas.86.3.755 (<https://doi.org/10.1073%2Fpnas.86.3.755>). PMC 286556 (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC286556>). PMID 2644642 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/2644642>).
07. Antiretroviral Therapy (ART) Cohort Collaboration; May, MT; et al. (2006). "HIV treatment response and prognosis in Europe and North America in the first decade of highly active antiretroviral therapy: A collaborative analysis". The Lancet. 368 (9534): 451–458. doi:10.1016/S0140-6736(06)69152-6 (<https://doi.org/10.1016%2FS0140-6736%2806%2969152-6>). PMID 16890831 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/16890831>). S2CID 53296958 (<https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:53296958>).
08. Deer, B (21 February 2012). "Death by denial: The campaigners who continue to deny HIV causes Aids" (<https://www.theguardian.com/science/blog/2012/feb/21/death-denial-hiv-aids?INTCMP=SRCH>). The Guardian.
09. Hutchinson, AB; Begley, EB; et al. (2005). "Mistrust and conspiracy beliefs about HIV/AIDS among participants in minority gay pride events" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20080102062252/http://www.aegis.org/conferences/nhivpc/2005/TP-011.html>). 2005 National HIV Prevention Conference: Abstract TP-011. Archived from the original (<http://www.aegis.org/conferences/nhivpc/2005/TP-011.html>) on 2 January 2008.
10. Kalichman, SC; Eaton, L; Cherry, C (December 2010). "There is no proof that HIV causes AIDS': AIDS denialism beliefs among people living with HIV/AIDS" (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC3015095>). Journal of Behavioral Medicine. 33 (6): 432–40. doi:10.1007/s10865-010-9275-7 (<https://doi.org/10.1007%2FS10865-010-9275-7>). PMC 3015095 (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC3015095>). PMID 20571892 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/20571892>).

11. France, D (28 August 2000). "The HIV disbelievers: Christine Maggiore is a different kind of AIDS activist-one who tells people to forget safe sex and stop taking their lifesaving drugs. Why?" (<http://www.newsweek.com/hiv-disbelievers-158813>). Newsweek.
12. Diethelm, P; McKee, M (16 October 2008). "Denialism: What is it and how should scientists respond?" (<https://doi.org/10.1093%2Feurpub%2Fckn139>). The European Journal of Public Health. 19 (1): 2–4. doi:10.1093/eurpub/ckn139 (<https://doi.org/10.1093%2Feurpub%2Fckn139>). PMID 19158101 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/19158101>).
13. Grebe, E; Natrass, N (April 2012). "AIDS conspiracy beliefs and unsafe sex in Cape Town". AIDS and Behavior. 16 (3): 761–73. doi:10.1007/s10461-011-9958-2 (<https://doi.org/10.1007%2Fs10461-011-9958-2>). PMID 21538083 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/21538083>). S2CID 25119054 (<https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:25119054>).
14. "The Politics of HIV/AIDS in South Africa" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20070702083352/http://journals.org/politicsofhiv.php>). JournAIDS. HIV & AIDS Media Project. Archived from the original (<http://www.journals.org/politicsofhiv.php>) on 2 July 2007. Retrieved 26 February 2007.
15. "Controversy dogs AIDS forum" (<http://news.bbc.co.uk/1/hi/world/africa/826742.stm>). BBC News. 10 July 2000. Retrieved 26 February 2007.
16. Schoof, M (5–11 July 2000). "Proof positive: How African science has demonstrated that HIV causes AIDS" (https://web.archive.org/web/20080208133805/http://www.villagevoice.com/news/0027_schoofs,16189,1.html). Village Voice. Archived from the original (http://www.villagevoice.com/news/0027_schoofs,16189,1.html) on 8 February 2008. Retrieved 20 April 2007.
17. Gellman, B (19 April 2000). "South African president escalates AIDS feud" (<https://pqasb.pqarchiver.com/washingtonpost/access/52730299.html?dids=52730299:52730299&FMT=ABS&FMTS=ABS:FT&date=Apr+19%2C+2000&author=Barton+Gellman&pub=The+Washington+Post&edition=&startpage=A.01&desc=S.+African+President+Escalates+AIDS+Feud>). The Washington Post. Retrieved 26 February 2007.
18. Thom, A (21 August 2006). "Beetroot battle at world AIDS conference" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20070823213634/http://www.health-e.org.za/news/article.php?uid=20031487>). Health-e.org.za. Archived from the original (<http://www.health-e.org.za/news/article.php?uid=20031487>) on 23 August 2007. Retrieved 9 March 2007.
19. Blandy, Fran (16 August 2006). "'Dr Beetroot' hits back at media over Aids exhibition" (https://web.archive.org/web/20070104191247/http://www.mg.co.za/articlepage.aspx?area=%2Fbreaking_news%2Fbreaking_news__national%2F&articleid=280903). Mail & Guardian. Archived from the original (http://www.mg.co.za/articlepage.aspx?area=/breaking_news/breaking_news__national/&articleid=280903) on 4 January 2007. Retrieved 20 September 2006.
20. "Manto again angers AIDS activists" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20070930183013/http://www.aegis.com/news/sapa/2005/sa050604.html>). AEGIS.com. South African Press Association. 8 June 2005. Archived from the original (<http://www.aegis.com/news/sapa/2005/sa050604.html>) on 30 September 2007. Retrieved 20 September 2006.
21. Natrass, N. "AIDS, science and governance" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20060623094834/http://www.aidstruth.org/natrass.pdf>) (PDF). aidstruth.org. Archived from the original (<http://www.aidstruth.org/natrass.pdf>) (PDF) on 23 June 2006.
22. "SAMA calls for end to misrepresentation on treatment of AIDS" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20070810234414/http://www.samedical.org/article.asp?ArticleID=1844>) (Press release). South African Medical Association. 29 August 2006. Archived from the original (<http://www.samedical.org/article.asp?ArticleID=1844>) on 10 August 2007. Retrieved 12 March 2007.
23. Leonard, T (6 September 2006). "Scientists rip S. African AIDS policies" (<https://www.washingtonpost.com/wp-dyn/content/article/2006/09/06/AR2006090600586.html>). The Washington Post. Retrieved 5 March 2007.

24. Bevan, S (12 November 2006). "African minister ends decade of denial over AIDS" (<https://www.telegraph.co.uk/health/main.jhtml?view=DETAILS&grid=&xml=/health/2006/12/11/wsa10.xml>). The Daily Telegraph. London. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20070225015259/http://www.telegraph.co.uk/health/main.jhtml?view=DETAILS&grid=&xml=%2Fhealth%2F2006%2F12%2F11%2Fwsa10.xml>) from the original on 25 February 2007. Retrieved 5 March 2007.
25. Heywood, M (2003). "Current Developments: Preventing mother-to-child HIV transmission in South Africa: Background, strategies and outcomes of the Treatment Action Campaign case against the Minister of Health" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20061009025030/http://www.tac.org.za/Documents/MTCTCourtCase/Heywood.pdf>) (PDF). South African Journal on Human Rights: 278–315. Archived from the original (<http://www.tac.org.za/Documents/MTCTCourtCase/Heywood.pdf>) (PDF) on 9 October 2006 – via tac.org.za.
26. "AIDS in South Africa: Treatment, transmission and the government" (<http://www.avert.org/aids-south-africa.htm>). avert.org. 21 July 2015.
27. Robinson, S (9 January 2005). "No place for denial" (<http://www.time.com/time/magazine/article/0,9171,1015842,00.html>). Time. Retrieved 26 February 2007.
28. Happold, T (6 January 2005). "Mandela's eldest son dies of AIDS" (<https://www.theguardian.com/southafrica/story/0,13262,1384732,00.html?gusrc=rss>). The Guardian. Retrieved 9 March 2007.

References

- Kalichman, Seth (2009). Denying AIDS: Conspiracy Theories, Pseudoscience, and Human Tragedy. New York: Copernicus Books (Springer Science+Business Media). ISBN 9780387794754.

Further reading

- Fourie, P (2006). The Political Management of HIV and AIDS in South Africa: One Burden Too Many?. Palgrave Macmillan. ISBN 978-0230006676.
- Steinberg, J (23 June 2009). "Five myths about HIV and AIDS" (<https://www.newscientist.com/article/dn17326-five-myths-about-hiv-and-aids.html>). New Scientist. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20100102173656/http://www.newscientist.com/article/dn17326-five-myths-about-hiv-and-aids.html>) from the original on 2 January 2010.
- Nattrass, N (2012). The AIDS Conspiracy: Science Fights Back (<https://archive.org/details/aidsconspiracysc0000natt>). New York: Columbia University Press. ISBN 9780231149129.

External links

National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases pages:

- "The HIV-AIDS connection" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20160909192350/https://www.niaid.nih.gov/topics/HIVAIDS/Understanding/howHIVCausesAIDS/Pages/connection.aspx>). Archived from the original (<https://www.niaid.nih.gov/topics/HIVAIDS/Understanding/howHIVCausesAIDS/Pages/connection.aspx>) on 9 September 2016
- "The evidence that HIV causes AIDS" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20160909092053/https://www.niaid.nih.gov/topics/HIVAIDS/Understanding/howHIVCausesAIDS/pages/hivcausesaids.aspx>). Archived from the original (<https://www.niaid.nih.gov/topics/HIVAIDS/Understanding/howHIVCausesAIDS/pages/hivcausesaids.aspx>) on 9 September 2016.
- "Series of articles in Science magazine examining denialist claims" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20151228120506/http://www.sciencemag.org/site/feature/data/cohen/cohen.xhtml>). Archived from the original (<http://www.sciencemag.org/feature/data/cohen/cohen.dtl>) on 28 December 2015.

- "HIV Causes AIDS" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20151017212013/http://www.avert.org/hiv-causes-aids.htm>). Avert. 23 June 2015. Archived from the original (<http://www.avert.org/hiv-causes-aids.htm>) on 17 October 2015.
 - AidsTruth.org (<https://web.archive.org/web/20120302124609/http://aidstruth.org/>), an organization that advocates against AIDS denialism
-

Retrieved from "https://en.wikipedia.org/w/index.php?title=HIV/AIDS_denialism&oldid=1021672354"

This page was last edited on 6 May 2021, at 01:08 (UTC).

Text is available under the Creative Commons Attribution-ShareAlike License; additional terms may apply. By using this site, you agree to the Terms of Use and Privacy Policy. Wikipedia® is a registered trademark of the Wikimedia Foundation, Inc., a non-profit organization.

Discredited HIV/AIDS origins theories

Various fringe theories have arisen to speculate about purported alternative origins for the human immunodeficiency virus (HIV) and the acquired immunodeficiency syndrome (AIDS), with claims ranging from it being due to accidental exposure to supposedly purposeful acts. Several inquiries and investigations have been carried out as a result, and each of these theories has consequently been determined to be based on unfounded and/or false information. HIV has been shown to have evolved from or be closely related to the simian immunodeficiency virus (SIV) in West Central Africa sometime in the early 20th century. HIV was discovered in the 1980s by the French scientist Luc Montagnier. Before the 1980s, HIV was an unknown deadly disease.^[1]

Contents

Discredited theories

Smallpox vaccination theory

Hepatitis B vaccine (HBV) theory

Oral polio vaccine (OPV) theory

Additional theories

Prevalence of conspiracy beliefs

Prominent endorsers of discredited theories

Nation of Islam

Wangari Maathai

Manto Tshabalala-Msimang

See also

References

External links

Discredited theories

Smallpox vaccination theory

In 1987 there was some consideration given to the possibility that the "AIDS epidemic may have been triggered by the mass vaccination campaign which eradicated smallpox". An article^[2] in The Times suggested this, quoting an unnamed "adviser to WHO" with "I believe the smallpox vaccine theory is the explanation to the explosion of AIDS". It is now thought that the smallpox vaccine causes serious complications for people who already have impaired immune systems, and the Times article described the case of a military recruit with "dormant HIV" who died within months of receiving it. But no citation was provided regarding people who did not previously have HIV. Currently HIV is considered to be a contraindication for the smallpox vaccine—both for an infected person and their sexual partners and household members.^{[3][4]} Some conspiracy theorists propose an expanded hypothesis in which the smallpox vaccine was deliberately contaminated with HIV.^[5]

In contrast, a research article was published in 2010 suggesting that it might have been the actual eradication of smallpox and the subsequent "ending" of the mass vaccination campaign that contributed to the sudden emergence of HIV. The theory was the possibility that immunization against smallpox "might play a role in providing an individual with some degree of protection to subsequent HIV infection and/or disease progression."^{[6][7]} Regardless of the effects of the smallpox vaccine itself, its use in practice in Africa is one of the categories of un-sterile injections that may have contributed to the spread and mutation of the immunodeficiency viruses.^[8]

Hepatitis B vaccine (HBV) theory

The dermatologist Alan Cantwell, in self-published books entitled AIDS and the Doctors of Death: An Inquiry into the Origin of the AIDS Epidemic (1988) and Queer Blood: The Secret AIDS Genocide Plot (1993), said that HIV is a genetically modified organism developed by U.S. Government scientists. The virus was then introduced into the population through Hepatitis B (via the Hepatitis B vaccine) experiments performed on gay and bisexual men between 1978–1981 in major U.S. cities. Cantwell claims that these experiments were directed by Wolf Szmunes, and that there was an ongoing government cover-up of the origins of the AIDS epidemic. Similar theories have been advanced by Robert B. Strecker,^[9] Matilde Krim, and Milton William Cooper.

Oral polio vaccine (OPV) theory

In the 1999 version of his OPV AIDS hypothesis, Edward Hooper proposed that early batches of the oral polio vaccine (OPV) grown in cultures of chimpanzee kidney cells, infected with a chimpanzee virus, were the original source of HIV-1 in Central Africa. A vial of the batch most strongly implicated by Hooper was found in storage in the UK, and analysis found no HIV/SIV sequences or chimpanzee cellular components, but did find traces of macaque mitochondria. Analysis of five samples of OPV in storage at the Wistar Institute, including one from a batch used in the Belgian Congo between 1958 and 1960, found no chimpanzee DNA.^[10] Other molecular biology and phylogenetic studies also contradict the hypothesis, and scientific consensus regards it as disproven.^{[11][12][13][14]} In 2004 the journal Nature described the hypothesis as "refuted".^[15]

Additional theories

These theories generally attribute HIV's origin to the US government or its contractors:

Created at Fort Detrick

Jakob Segal (1911–1995), a professor at Humboldt University in then-East Germany, proposed that HIV was engineered at a U.S. military laboratory at Fort Detrick, by splicing together two other viruses, Visna and HTLV-1. According to his theory, the new virus, created between 1977 and 1978, was tested on prison inmates who had volunteered for the experiment in exchange for early release. He further suggested that it was through these prisoners that the virus was spread to the population at large.

At the end of the Cold War, former KGB agents Vasili Mitrokhin and Oleg Gordievsky independently revealed that the Fort Detrick hypothesis was a propaganda operation devised by the KGB's First Chief Directorate codenamed "Operation INFEKTION". This revelation was later supported by officer Günther Bohnensack of section X of East Germany's Main Directorate for Reconnaissance.

It is known that Segal was in close contact with Russian KGB officers and Mitrokhin mentioned him as a central asset of the operation.^{[16][17]} It is not entirely clear whether Segal pursued the hypothesis independently on his own accord or whether he was simply following orders. Segal himself always denied the latter and kept pursuing the hypothesis even after the operation had been canceled and the Cold War had ended.

Conspiracy to decrease the population

In Behold a Pale Horse (1991), radio broadcaster and author Milton William Cooper (1943–2001) proposed that AIDS was the result of a conspiracy to decrease the populations of blacks, Hispanics, and homosexuals.^[18]

Prevalence of conspiracy beliefs

According to Phil Wilson, executive director of the Black AIDS Institute in Los Angeles, conspiracy theories are becoming a barrier to the prevention of AIDS since people start to believe that no matter what measures they take, they can still be prone to contracting this disease. A 2005 study suggests this makes them less careful when engaging in practices that put them at risk because they believe there is no point.^[19] "Nearly half of the 500 African Americans surveyed said that HIV is man-made. More than one-quarter said they believed that AIDS was produced in a government laboratory, and 12 percent believed it was created and spread by the CIA... At the same time, 75 percent said they believed medical and public health agencies are working to stop the spread of AIDS in black communities."^[19]

Prominent endorsers of discredited theories

Nation of Islam

The Nation of Islam endorses the view that governments and pharmaceutical companies have pursued genocidal racist policies including the creation and spread of HIV. Consequently, the group called for a boycott of U.S.-sponsored vaccination programs for children. Leonard Horowitz has been cited as influential in the boycott decision.^[20]

Wangari Maathai

The 2004 Nobel Peace Prize laureate and environmental activist Wangari Maathai was asked by a Time magazine interviewer if she stood by a previous alleged claim that "AIDS is a biological weapon manufactured by the developed world to wipe out the black race". Maathai responded, "I have no idea who created AIDS and whether it is a biological agent or not. But I do know things like that don't come from the moon. (...) I guess there is some truth that must not be too exposed."^[21] Maathai subsequently issued a written statement in December 2004: "I neither say nor believe that the virus was developed by white people or white powers in order to destroy the African people. Such views are wicked and destructive."^[22]

Manto Tshabalala-Msimang

In 2000 South Africa's Minister of Health Manto Tshabalala-Msimang received criticism for distributing the chapter from Cooper's book discussing this theory to senior South African government officials.^[23] Nicoli Nattrass, a longtime critic of AIDS denialists, criticized Tshabalala-Msimang for lending legitimacy to Cooper's theories and disseminating them in Africa.^[24]

See also

- Denialism
- Duesberg hypothesis
- History of HIV/AIDS
- HIV/AIDS denialism
- HIV/AIDS denialism in South Africa
- Operation INFEKTION
- Oral polio vaccine AIDS hypothesis
- SV40
- Zoonosis

References

1. Sharp, P. M.; Bailes, E.; Chaudhuri, R. R.; Rodenburg, C. M.; Santiago, M. O.; Hahn, B. H. (2001). "The origins of acquired immune deficiency syndrome viruses: Where and when?" (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC1088480>). Philosophical Transactions of the Royal Society B: Biological Sciences. 356 (1410): 867–76. doi:10.1098/rstb.2001.0863 (<https://doi.org/10.1098%2Frstb.2001.0863>). PMC 1088480 (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC1088480>). PMID 11405934 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/11405934>).
2. Wright, Pearce (11 May 1987). "Smallpox vaccine 'triggered Aids virus'". The Times. London.
3. Maurer, DM; Harrington, B; Lane, JM (1 September 2003). "Smallpox Vaccine: Contraindications, Administration, and Adverse Reactions" (<https://www.aafp.org/afp/2003/0901/p889.html>). American Family Physician. 68 (5): 889–96. PMID 13678138 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/13678138>). Retrieved 20 June 2010.
4. "Questions and Answers About Smallpox Contraindications and Screening" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20100609100515/http://www.bt.cdc.gov/agent/smallpox/faq/screening.asp>). Emergency Preparedness and Response. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention. Archived from the original (<http://www.bt.cdc.gov/agent/smallpox/faq/screening.asp>) on 9 June 2010. Retrieved 20 June 2010.
5. Kalambuka, Angeyo (1 December 2009). "Kenya: Don't Discount Conspiracy Theories on Origin of Aids" (<https://allafrica.com/stories/200912011055.html>). Daily Nation. Nairobi. Retrieved 20 June 2010.
6. Weinstein, RS; Weinstein, MM; Alibek, K; Bukrinsky, MI; Brichacek, Beda (18 May 2010). "Significantly reduced CCR5-tropic HIV-1 replication in vitro in cells from subjects previously immunized with Vaccinia Virus" (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC2881106>). BMC Immunology. BioMed Central. 11 (1): 23. doi:10.1186/1471-2172-11-23 (<https://doi.org/10.1186%2F1471-2172-11-23>). ISSN 1471-2172 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/1471-2172>). PMC 2881106 (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC2881106>). PMID 20482754 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/20482754>).
7. Connor, Steve (19 May 2010). "Smallpox vaccine 'helped fight HIV'" (<https://www.independent.co.uk/life-style/health-and-families/health-news/smallpox-vaccine-helped-fight-hiv-1976451.html>). The Independent. London. Retrieved 20 June 2010.

8. Marx PA, Alcabes PG, Drucker E (June 2001). "Serial human passage of simian immunodeficiency virus by unsterile injections and the emergence of epidemic human immunodeficiency virus in Africa" (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC1088484>). Philos. Trans. R. Soc. Lond. B Biol. Sci. 356 (1410): 911–20. doi:10.1098/rstb.2001.0867 (<https://doi.org/10.1098%2Frstb.2001.0867>). PMC 1088484 (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC1088484>). PMID 11405938 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/11405938>).
9. "The Strecker Memorandum - AIDS is a man made disease" (<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=5BSZ1vSf1co>). www.youtube.com. Retrieved 27 June 2015.
10. Sarah Ramsay 28 April 2001 "Cold water downstream from The River" (https://www.thelancet.com/journals/lancet/article/PIIS0140-6736\(00\)04536-0/fulltext04536-0/fulltext)) The Lancet 357 (9265) p.1343 doi: 10.1016/S0140-6736(00)04536-0 (<https://doi.org/10.1016%2FS0140-6736%2800%2904536-0>)
11. Hillis DM (2000). "AIDS. Origins of HIV". Science. 288 (5472): 1757–1759. doi:10.1126/science.288.5472.1757 (<https://doi.org/10.1126%2Fscience.288.5472.1757>). PMID 10877695 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/10877695>). S2CID 83935412 (<https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:83935412>).
12. Birmingham K (2000). "Results make a monkey of OPV-AIDS theory" (<https://doi.org/10.1038%2F80356>). Nat Med. 6 (10): 1067. doi:10.1038/80356 (<https://doi.org/10.1038%2F80356>). PMID 11017114 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/11017114>). S2CID 10860468 (<https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:10860468>).
13. Cohen J (2001). "AIDS origins. Disputed AIDS theory dies its final death". Science. 292 (5517): 615a–615. doi:10.1126/science.292.5517.615a (<https://doi.org/10.1126%2Fscience.292.5517.615a>). PMID 11330303 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/11330303>). S2CID 70625478 (<https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:70625478>).
14. Origin of Human Immunodeficiency Virus (HIV/AIDS) (https://www.cdc.gov/od/science/iso/concerns/archive/aids_and_vaccines.htm) Centers for Disease Control and Prevention website, Accessed 30 January 2007
15. Worobey M, Santiago M, Keele B, Ndjango J, Joy J, Labama B, Dheda A B, Rambaut A, Sharp P, Shaw G, Hahn B (2004). "Origin of AIDS: contaminated polio vaccine theory refuted" (<https://doi.org/10.1038%2F428820a>). Nature. 428 (6985): 820. Bibcode:2004Natur.428..820W (<https://ui.adsabs.harvard.edu/abs/2004Natur.428..820W>). doi:10.1038/428820a (<https://doi.org/10.1038%2F428820a>). PMID 15103367 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/15103367>). S2CID 4418410 (<https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:4418410>).
16. Andrew, Christopher; Vasili Mitrokhin (1999). The Sword and the Shield: The Mitrokhin Archive and the Secret History of the KGB (<https://archive.org/details/swordshieldmitro00andr/page/319>). Basic Books. p. 319 (<https://archive.org/details/swordshieldmitro00andr/page/319>). ISBN 0-465-00310-9.
17. Johanna Lutterroth: Aids-Verschwörung. Das Propaganda-Virus des KGB (<https://www.spiegel.de/geschichte/ddr-verschwörung-aids-aus-dem-labor-a-947607.html>). Spiegel Geschichte, 2012-06-26 (German)
18. Carroll, Robert Todd (2003). "Illuminati" (<https://books.google.com/books?id=6FPqDFx40vYC&pg=PA175>). The Skeptic's Dictionary: A Collection of Strange Beliefs, Amusing Deceptions, and Dangerous Delusions (<https://books.google.com/books?id=6FPqDFx40vYC>). Hoboken, New Jersey: John Wiley & Sons, Inc. p. 175. ISBN 9781118045633. Retrieved 17 January 2013.
19. Fears, Darryl (25 January 2005). "Study: Many Blacks Cite AIDS Conspiracy" (<https://www.washingtonpost.com/wp-dyn/articles/A33695-2005Jan24.html>). The Washington Post. Retrieved 12 June 2017.
20. Knight, Peter, Conspiracy Culture: From the Kennedy Assassination to the X-files, p. 202
21. Faris, Stephan (10 October 2004). "10 Questions: Wangari Maathai" (<http://content.time.com/time/magazine/article/0,9171,713166,00.html>). TIME.com/CNN. Retrieved 19 March 2007.
22. from the Green Belt Movement website- Wangari Maathai's "The Challenge of AIDS in Africa" (<http://greenbeltmovement.org/wangari-maathai/key-speeches-and-articles/challenge-of-AIDS>) Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20111006082858/http://greenbeltmovement.org/a.php?id=30>) 6 October 2011 at the Wayback Machine.

23. "SA Government steps into Aids row" (<http://news.bbc.co.uk/2/hi/africa/924927.stm>). BBC News. 14 September 2000. Retrieved 17 January 2013.
24. Nattress, Nicoli (2012). The AIDS Conspiracy: Science Fights Back (<https://archive.org/details/aidsconspiracysc0000natt>). New York: Columbia University Press. pp. 4 (<https://archive.org/details/aidsconspiracysc0000natt/page/4>), 23–27. ISBN 9780231149129. Retrieved 17 January 2013.

External links

- Is AIDS a manmade disease? \(https://www.straightdope.com/21342103/is-aids-a-manmade-disease\)
-

Retrieved from "https://en.wikipedia.org/w/index.php?title=Discredited_HIV/AIDS_origins_theories&oldid=1028211134"

This page was last edited on 12 June 2021, at 15:04 (UTC).

Text is available under the Creative Commons Attribution-ShareAlike License; additional terms may apply. By using this site, you agree to the Terms of Use and Privacy Policy. Wikipedia® is a registered trademark of the Wikimedia Foundation, Inc., a non-profit organization.

Water fluoridation controversy

The water fluoridation controversy arises from political, moral, ethical, economic, and health considerations regarding the fluoridation of public water supplies.

For deprived groups in both maturing and matured countries, international and national agencies and dental associations across the world support the safety and effectiveness of water fluoridation.^[1] Proponents of water fluoridation see it as a question of public health policy and equate the issue to vaccination and food fortification, claiming significant benefits to dental health and minimal risks.^[2]

In contrast, opponents of water fluoridation view it as an infringement of individual rights, if not an outright violation of medical ethics,^[3] on the basis that individuals have no choice in the water that they drink, unless they drink more expensive bottled water.^[4] A small minority of scientists have challenged the medical consensus, variously claiming that water fluoridation has no or little cariostatic benefits, may cause serious health problems, is not effective enough to justify the costs, and is pharmacologically obsolete.^{[5][6][7][8]}

Opposition to fluoridation has existed since its initiation in the 1940s.^[9] During the 1950s and 1960s, conspiracy theorists claimed that fluoridation was a communist plot to undermine American public health.^[10] In recent years water fluoridation has become a prevalent health and political issue in many countries, resulting in some countries and communities discontinuing its use while others have expanded it.^{[11][12]} The controversy is propelled by a significant public opposition supported by a minority of professionals,^[13] which include researchers, dental and medical professionals, alternative medical practitioners, health food enthusiasts, a few religious groups (mostly Christian Scientists in the U.S.), and occasionally consumer groups and environmentalists.^[14] Organized political opposition has come from libertarians,^[15] the John Birch Society,^[16] and from groups like the Green parties in the UK and New Zealand.^[17]

Proponents and opponents have been both criticized for overstating the benefits or overstating the risks, and understating the other, respectively.^{[18][19]} Systematic reviews have cited the lack of high quality research for the benefits and risks of water fluoridation and questions that are still unsettled.^{[11][19][20]} Researchers who oppose the practice state this as well.^[21] According to a 2013 Congressional Research Service report on fluoride in drinking water, these gaps in the fluoridation scientific literature fuel the controversy.^[12]

Public water fluoridation was first practiced in 1945, in the US. As of 2012, 25 countries have supplemental water fluoridation to varying degrees, and 11 of them have more than 50% of their population drinking fluoridated water. A further 28 countries have water that is naturally fluoridated, though in many of them there are areas where fluoride is above the optimum level.^[22] As of 2012 about 435 million people worldwide received water fluoridated at the recommended level, of whom 57 million (13%) received naturally fluoridated water and 377 million (87%) received artificially fluoridated water.^[22] In 2014, three-quarters of the US population on the public water supply received fluoridated water, which represented two-thirds of the total US population.^[23]

Contents

Medical consensusMinority scientific viewEvidenceSafetyEfficacyEthics*Opposition groups and campaigns*Public opinion*Use throughout the world*HistoryCommunist conspiracy theory (1940s–1960s)Later conspiracy theories2006 US NRC reportCourt casesEuropeUnited StatesFurther reading*References*External links*See also

Medical consensus

National and international health agencies and dental associations throughout the world have endorsed water fluoridation as safe and effective.^{[1][24]}

The views on the most effective method for community prevention of tooth decay are mixed. The Australian government states that water fluoridation is the most effective means of achieving fluoride exposure that is community-wide.^[25] The World Health Organization states water fluoridation, when feasible and culturally acceptable, has substantial advantages, especially for subgroups at high risk,^[26] while the European Commission finds no advantage to water fluoridation compared with topical use.^[27]

FDI World Dental Federation supports water fluoridation as safe and effective.^[22] the European Academy of Paediatric Dentistry,^[28] and the national dental associations of Australia,^[29] Canada,^[30] and the U.S.^[31] The American Dental Association calls water fluoridation "one of the safest and most beneficial, cost-effective public health measures for preventing, controlling, and in some cases reversing, tooth decay."^[32]

In the English speaking nations—the United States, Canada, UK, Australia and New Zealand, all of which practice water fluoridation—many medical associations and authorities have published position statements and endorsed water fluoridation.

The U.S. Surgeon General,^[33] the American Public Health Association,^[34] the Royal Commission on the National Health Service,^[35] Australian Medical Association,^[36] New Zealand Medical Association,^[37] and Health Canada support fluoridation, citing a number of international scientific reviews that indicate

"there is no link between any adverse health effects and exposure to fluoride in drinking water at levels that are below the maximum acceptable concentration of 1.5 mg/L."^[38] The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention listed water fluoridation as one of the ten great public health achievements of the 20th century in the U.S.,^[39] along with vaccination, family planning, recognition of the dangers of smoking, and other achievements.^[39]

In Israel, the Israeli Association of Public Health Physicians, the Israel Pediatric Association, and the Israel Dental Association, support fluoridation.^[40]

The World Health Organization, looking at global public health, identifies fluoride as one of a few chemicals for which the contribution from drinking-water to overall intake is an important factor in preventing disease. This is because there is clear evidence that optimal concentrations of fluoride provide protection against cavities, both in children and in adults.^{[41][42][43]}

Minority scientific view

The scientists or doctors who oppose water fluoridation argue that it has no or little cariostatic benefits, may cause serious health problems, is not effective enough to justify the costs, and is pharmacologically obsolete.^{[6][7][8]} Arvid Carlsson has argued that fluoridation violates modern pharmacological principles and doesn't take into account individual variations in response, which can be considerable even when the dosage is fixed.^{[8][44]} Paul Connett has stated "It's politics that is interfering with science in this issue...It's a matter of political will, and you cannot change political will if you don't get the people. We must involve the people."^[45]

Evidence

Proponents and opponents have been both criticized for overstating the benefits or overstating the risks, and understating the other, respectively.^{[18][19]} Systematic reviews have cited the lack of high-quality research for the benefits and risks of water fluoridation and questions that are still unsettled.^{[11][19][20]} A 2007 Nuffield Council on Bioethics report concluded that good evidence for or against water fluoridation is lacking.^[46] Researchers who oppose the practice state this as well.^[21] According to a 2013 Congressional Research Service report on fluoride in drinking water, these gaps in the fluoridation scientific literature fuel the controversy.^[12] John Doull, chairman of the 2006 National Research Council committee report on fluoride in drinking water, has stated a similar conclusion regarding the source of the controversy: "In the scientific community, people tend to think this is settled. I mean, when the U.S. surgeon general comes out and says this is one of the 10 greatest achievements of the 20th century, that's a hard hurdle to get over. But when we looked at the studies that have been done, we found that many of these questions are unsettled and we have much less information than we should, considering how long this [fluoridation] has been going on. I think that's why fluoridation is still being challenged so many years after it began. In the face of ignorance, controversy is rampant."^{[47][48]}

Safety

Fluoride can be present naturally in water at concentrations well above recommended levels, which can have several long-term adverse effects, including severe dental fluorosis, skeletal fluorosis, and weakened bones.^[49] In 1984 the World Health Organization recommended a guideline maximum fluoride value of 1.5 mg/L as a level at which fluorosis should be minimal, reaffirming it in 2006.^[50]

Fluoridation has little effect on risk of bone fracture (broken bones); it may result in slightly lower fracture risk than either excessively high levels of fluoridation or no fluoridation.^[25] There is no clear association between fluoridation and cancer or deaths due to cancer, both for cancer in general and also specifically for bone cancer and osteosarcoma.^{[25][51]}

In rare cases improper implementation of water fluoridation can result in overfluoridation that causes outbreaks of acute fluoride poisoning, with symptoms that include nausea, vomiting, and diarrhea. Three such outbreaks were reported in the U.S. between 1991 and 1998, caused by fluoride concentrations as high as 220 mg/L; in the 1992 Alaska outbreak, 262 people became ill and one person died.^[52] In 2010, approximately 60 gallons of fluoride were released into the water supply in Asheboro, North Carolina in 90 minutes—an amount that was intended to be released in a 24-hour period.^[53]

Like other common water additives such as chlorine, hydrofluosilicic acid and sodium silicofluoride decrease pH and cause a small increase of corrosivity, but this problem is easily addressed by increasing the pH.^[54] Although it has been hypothesized that hydrofluosilicic acid and sodium silicofluoride might increase human lead uptake from water, a 2006 statistical analysis did not support concerns that these chemicals cause higher blood lead concentrations in children.^[55] Trace levels of arsenic and lead may be present in fluoride compounds added to water; however, concentrations are below measurement limits.^[54]

The effect of water fluoridation on the natural environment has been investigated, and no adverse effects have been established. Issues studied have included fluoride concentrations in groundwater and downstream rivers; lawns, gardens, and plants; consumption of plants grown in fluoridated water; air emissions; and equipment noise.^[54]

Efficacy

Reviews have shown that water fluoridation reduces cavities in children.^{[20][27][56]} A conclusion for the efficacy in adults is less clear with some reviews finding benefit and others not.^{[20][56]} Studies in the U.S. in the 1950s and 1960s showed that water fluoridation reduced childhood cavities by fifty to sixty percent, while studies in 1989 and 1990 showed lower reductions (40% and 18% respectively), likely due to increasing use of fluoride from other sources, notably toothpaste, and also the 'halo effect' of food and drink that is made in fluoridated areas and consumed in unfluoridated ones.^[5]

A 2000 UK systematic review (York) found that water fluoridation was associated with a decreased proportion of children with cavities of 15% and with a decrease in decayed, missing, and filled primary teeth (average decreases was 2.25 teeth). The review found that the evidence was of moderate quality: few studies attempted to reduce observer bias, control for confounding factors, report variance measures, or use appropriate analysis. Although no major differences between natural and artificial fluoridation were apparent, the evidence was inadequate for a conclusion about any differences.^[51] A 2002 systematic review found strong evidence that water fluoridation is effective at reducing overall tooth decay in communities.^[57] A 2015 Cochrane review also found benefit in children.^[20]

Fluoride may also prevent cavities in adults of all ages. A 2007 meta-analysis by CDC researchers found that water fluoridation prevented an estimated 27% of cavities in adults, about the same fraction as prevented by exposure to any delivery method of fluoride (29% average).^[58] A 2011 European Commission review found that the benefits of water fluoridation for adult in terms of reductions in decay are limited.^[27] 2015 Cochrane review found no conclusive research in adults.^[20]

Most countries in Europe have experienced substantial declines in cavities without the use of water fluoridation.^[1] For example, in Finland and Germany, tooth decay rates remained stable or continued to decline after water fluoridation stopped. Fluoridation may be useful in the U.S. because unlike most European countries, the U.S. does not have school-based dental care, many children do not visit a dentist regularly, and for many U.S. children water fluoridation is the prime source of exposure to fluoride.^[59] The effectiveness of water fluoridation can vary according to circumstances such as whether preventive dental care is free to all children.^[60]

Ethics

Water fluoridation pits the common good against individual rights. Some say the common good overrides individual rights, and equate it to vaccination and food fortification.^{[2][3]} Others say that individual rights override the common good, and say that individuals have no choice in the water that they drink, unless they drink more expensive bottled water,^[4] and some argue unequivocally that it does not stand up to scrutiny relative to the Nuremberg Code and other codes of medical ethics.^[3]

Those who emphasize the public good emphasize the medical consensus that appropriate levels of water fluoridation are safe and effective to prevent cavities and see it as a public health intervention, replicating the benefits of naturally fluoridated water, which can free people from the misery and expense of tooth decay and toothache, with the greatest benefit accruing to those least able to help themselves. This perspective suggests it would be unethical to withhold such treatment.^[61] In her book 50 Health Scares That Fizzled, Joan Callahan writes that, "For lower-income people with no insurance, fluoridated water (like enriched flour and fortified milk) looks more like a free preventative health measure that a few elitists are trying to take away."^[62]

Those who emphasize individual or local choice, may view fluoridation as a violation of ethical or legal rules that prohibit medical treatment without medical supervision or informed consent or that prohibit administration of unlicensed medical substances,^{[1][63]} view it as "mass medication",^[64] or may even characterize it as a violation of the Nuremberg Code and the Council of Europe's Biomedical Convention of 1999.^{[3][12][18]} Another journal article suggested applying the precautionary principle to this controversy, which calls for public policy to reflect a conservative approach to minimize risk in the setting where harm is possible (but not necessarily confirmed) and where the science is not settled.^[65] Others have opposed it on the grounds of potential financial conflicts of interest driven by the chemical industry.^[66]

A 2007 Nuffield Council on Bioethics report reached a conclusion mainly on three points, stating that :

- The balance of benefit to risk ratio – is unclear due to the lack of good evidence for or against water fluoridation.
- Alternatives to the practice exist – topical fluoride therapy (toothbrushing etc.)
- The role of consent- It gets priority when there are potential harms.

The report therefore concluded that local and regional democratic procedures are the most appropriate way to decide whether to fluoridate.^{[46][67][68][69]}

Opposition groups and campaigns

The controversy is propelled by a significant public opposition supported by a minority of professionals,^[13] including researchers, dental and medical professionals, alternative medical practitioners such as chiropractors, health food enthusiasts, a few religious groups (mostly Christian Scientists in the U.S.), and occasionally consumer groups and environmentalists.^[14] Organized political opposition has come from libertarians,^[15] the John Birch Society,^[16] and from groups like the Green parties in the UK and New Zealand.^{[17][66][70]}

Opposition campaigns involve newspaper articles, talk radio, and public forums. Media reporters are often poorly equipped to explain the scientific issues, and are motivated to present controversy regardless of the underlying scientific merits. Websites, which are increasingly used by the public for health information, contain a wide range of material about fluoridation ranging from factual to fraudulent, with a disproportionate percentage opposed to fluoridation. Antifluoridationist literature links fluoride exposure to a wide variety of effects, including AIDS, allergy, Alzheimer's disease, arthritis, cancer, and low IQ, along with diseases of the gastrointestinal tract, kidney, pineal gland, and thyroid.^[71]

Public opinion

Many people do not know that fluoridation is meant to prevent tooth decay, or that natural or bottled water can contain fluoride. As fluoridation does not appear to be an important issue for the general public in the U.S., the debate may reflect an argument between two relatively small lobbies for and against fluoridation.^[72]

A survey of Australians in 2009 found that 70% supported and 15% opposed fluoridation. Those opposed were much more likely to score higher on outrage factors such as "unclear benefits".^[73]

A study of focus groups from 16 European countries in 2003 found that fluoridation was opposed by a majority of focus group members in most of the countries, including France, Germany, and the UK.^[72]

A survey in Sheffield, UK performed in 1999 found that while a 62% majority favored water fluoridation in the city, the 31% who were opposed expressed their preference with greater intensity than supporters.^[74]

Every year in the U.S., pro- and anti-fluoridationists face off in referenda or other public decision-making processes: in most of them, fluoridation is rejected.^[14]

Use throughout the world

Despite support by public health organizations and dental authorities, the practice is controversial as a public health measure; some countries and communities have discontinued it, while others have expanded it.^{[11][12]}

In the U.S., rejection in state and local communities is more likely when the decision is made by a public referendum; in Europe, most decisions against fluoridation have been made administratively.^[9] Neither side of the dispute appears to be weakening or willing to concede.^[14]

Water fluoridation is used in the United States, United Kingdom, Ireland, Canada, Australia, Israel, Hong Kong and a handful of other countries. Most countries failed to adopt fluoridation, yet experienced the same or greater decline in cavities as those countries that did fluoridate during the later half of the twentieth century.^[75] The following nations previously fluoridated their water, but stopped the practice, with the years when water fluoridation started and stopped in parentheses:

- Federal Republic of Germany (1952–1971)
- Sweden (1952–1971)
- Netherlands (1953–1976)
- Czechoslovakia (1955–1990)
- German Democratic Republic (1959–1990)
- Soviet Union (1960–1990)
- Finland (1959–1993)
- Japan (1952–1972)^[76]
- Israel (1981–2014, 2016-) *Mandatory by law since 2002.^{[77][78][79]}

In the United Kingdom a strategic health authority can direct a water company to fluoridate the water supply in an area if it is technically possible. The strategic health authority must consult with the local community and businesses in the affected area. The water company will act as a contractor in any new schemes and cannot refuse to fluoridate the supply.^[80]

In areas with complex water sources, water fluoridation is more difficult and more costly. Alternative fluoridation methods have been proposed, and implemented in some parts of the world. The World Health Organization (WHO) is currently assessing the effects of fluoridated toothpaste, milk fluoridation and salt fluoridation in Africa, Asia, and Europe. The WHO supports fluoridation of water in some areas.^[81] In some other countries, sodium fluoride is added to table salt.^[82]

As of 2012, 25 countries have artificial water fluoridation to varying degrees, 11 of them have more than 50% of their population drinking fluoridated water. A further 28 countries have water that is naturally fluoridated, though in many of them the fluoride is above the optimum level.^[22] As of 2012 about 435 million people worldwide received water fluoridated at the recommended level,^[22] about 211 million of them living in the United States.^[83]

History

Fluoridation began during a time of great optimism and faith in science and experts (the 1950s and 1960s), but even then, the public frequently objected. Opponents drew on distrust of experts and unease about medicine and science.^[84] Controversies include disputes over fluoridation's benefits and the strength of the evidence basis for these benefits, the difficulty of identifying harms, legal issues over whether water fluoride is a medicine, and the ethics of mass intervention.^[18]

The first large fluoridation controversy occurred in Wisconsin in 1950. Fluoridation opponents questioned the ethics, safety, and efficacy of fluoridation.^[85] New Zealand was the second country to fluoridate, and similar controversies arose there.^[86] Fears about fluoride were likely exacerbated by the reputation of fluoride compounds as insect poisons and by early literature which tended to use terms such as "toxic" and "low grade chronic fluoride poisoning" to describe mottling from consumption of 6 mg/L of fluoride prior to tooth eruption, a level of consumption not expected to occur under controlled fluoridation.^[87] When voted upon, the outcomes tend to be negative, and thus fluoridation has had a history of gaining through administrative orders in North America.^[85]

Conspiracy theories involving fluoridation are common, and include claims that fluoridation was motivated by protecting the U.S. atomic bomb program from litigation, that (as famously parodied in the film Dr. Strangelove, where a deranged U.S. Air Force general claimed that it would "sap and impurify all of our precious bodily fluids") it is part of a Communist or New World Order plot to take over the world, that it was pioneered by a German chemical company to make people submissive to those in power, that behind the scenes it is promoted by the sugary food or phosphate fertilizer or aluminium industries, or that it is a smokescreen to cover failure to provide dental care to the poor.^[71] One such theory is that fluoridation was a public-relations ruse sponsored by fluoride polluters such as the aluminium maker Alcoa and the Manhattan Project, with conspirators that included industrialist Andrew Mellon and the Mellon Institute's researcher Gerald J. Cox, the Kettering Laboratory of the University of Cincinnati, the Federal Security Agency's administrator Oscar R. Ewing, and public-relations strategist Edward Bernays.^[88] Specific anti-fluoridation arguments change to match the spirit of the time.^[89]

Outside North America, water fluoridation was adopted in some European countries, but in the late 1970s and early 1980s, Denmark and Sweden banned fluoridation when government panels found insufficient evidence of safety, and the Netherlands banned water fluoridation when "a group of medical practitioners presented evidence" that it caused negative effects in a percentage of the population.

Communist conspiracy theory (1940s–1960s)

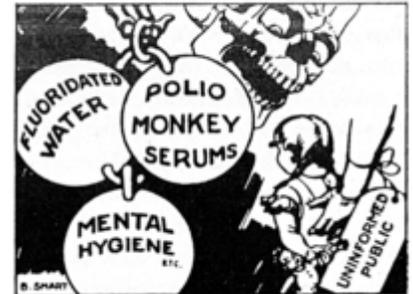

Water fluoridation has frequently been the subject of conspiracy theories. During the "Second Red Scare" in the United States during the late 1940s and 1950s, and to a lesser extent in the 1960s, activists on the far right of American politics routinely asserted that fluoridation was part of a far-reaching plot to impose a socialist or communist regime. These opponents believed it was "another aspect of President Truman's drive to socialize medicine."^[90] They also opposed other public health programs, notably mass vaccination and mental health services.^[91] Their views were influenced by opposition to a number of major social and political changes that had happened in recent years: the growth of internationalism, particularly the UN and its programs; the introduction of social welfare provisions, particularly the various programs established by the New Deal; and government efforts to reduce perceived inequalities in the social structure of the United States.^[92]

Others asserted the existence of "a Communist plot to deplete the brainpower and sap the strength of a generation of American children".^[90] Dr. Charles Bett, a prominent anti-fluoridationist, charged that fluoridation was "better than using the atom bomb because the atom bomb has to be made, has to be transported to the place it is to be set off while poisonous fluorine has been placed right beside the water supplies by the Americans themselves ready to be dumped into the water mains whenever a Communist desires!" Similarly, a right-wing newsletter, the American Capsule News, claimed that "the Soviet General Staff is very happy about it. Anytime they get ready to strike, and their 5th column takes over, there are tons and tons of this poison "standing by" municipal and military water systems ready to be poured in within 15 minutes."^[10]

This controversy had a direct impact on local program during the 1950s and 1960s, where referendums on introducing fluoridation were defeated in over a thousand Florida communities. It was not until as late as the 1990s that fluoridated water was consumed by the majority of the population of the United States.^[91]

The communist conspiracy argument declined in influence by the mid-1960s, becoming associated in the public mind with irrational fear and paranoia. It was portrayed in Stanley Kubrick's 1964 film Dr. Strangelove, in which the character General Jack D. Ripper initiates a nuclear war in the hope of

At the Sign of THE UNHOLY THREE

Are you willing to PUT IN PAWN to the UNHOLY THREE all of the material, mental and spiritual resources of this GREAT REPUBLIC?

Illustration in a 1955 flier by the Keep America Committee, alleging that fluoridation was a Communist plot.

thwarting a communist plot to "sap and impurify" the "precious bodily fluids" of the American people with fluoridated water. Another satire appeared in the 1967 movie In Like Flint, in which a character's fear of fluoridation is used to indicate that he is insane.

Some anti-fluoridationists claimed that the conspiracy theories were damaging their goals; Dr. Frederick Exner, an anti-fluoridation campaigner in the early 1960s, told a conference: "most people are not prepared to believe that fluoridation is a communist plot, and if you say it is, you are successfully ridiculed by the promoters. It is being done, effectively, every day ... some of the people on our side are the fluoridators' 'fifth column'".^[10]

Later conspiracy theories

In 1987, Ian E. Stephens authored a self-published booklet, an extract of which was published in the Australian New Age publication Nexus Magazine in 1995. In it he claimed he was told by "Charles Elliot Perkins" that: "Repeated doses of infinitesimal amounts of fluoride will in time reduce an individual's power to resist domination by slowly poisoning and narcotising a certain area of the brain and will thus make him submissive to the will of those who wish to govern him ... Both the Germans and the Russians added sodium fluoride to the drinking water of prisoners of war to make them stupid and docile." These statements have been dismissed by reputable Holocaust historians as untrue, but they are regularly repeated to the present day in conspiracy publications and websites.^[93]

In 2004, on the U.S. television program Democracy Now, investigative journalist and author of the book The Fluoride Deception, Christopher Bryson claimed that, "the post-war campaign to fluoridate drinking water was less a public health innovation than a public relations ploy sponsored by industrial users of fluoride—including the government's nuclear weapons program."^[94]

2006 US NRC report

U.S. opponents of fluoridation were heartened by a 2006 National Research Council report about hazards of water naturally fluoridated to high levels;^[48] the report recommended lowering the U.S. maximum limit of 4 mg/L for fluoride in drinking water. The EPA failed to act on that recommendation.^[95]

Court cases

Europe

Water was fluoridated in large parts of the Netherlands from 1960 to 1973, at which point the Supreme Court of the Netherlands declared fluoridation of drinking water unauthorized.^[96] The Dutch Court decided that authorities had no legal basis for adding chemicals to drinking water if they did not also improve safety. It was also stated as support that consumers cannot choose a different tap water provider.^[97] Drinking water has not been fluoridated in any part of the Netherlands since 1973.

In Ryan v. Attorney General (1965), the Supreme Court of Ireland held that water fluoridation did not infringe the plaintiff's right to bodily integrity.^[98] The court found that such a right to bodily integrity did exist, despite the fact that it was not explicitly mentioned in the Constitution of Ireland, thus establishing the doctrine of unenumerated rights in Irish constitutional law.

United States

Fluoridation has been the subject of many court cases wherein activists have sued municipalities, asserting that their rights to consent to medical treatment and due process are infringed by mandatory water fluoridation.^[3] Individuals have sued municipalities for a number of illnesses that they believe were caused by fluoridation of the city's water supply. In most of these cases, the courts have held in favor of cities, finding no or only a tenuous connection between health problems and widespread water fluoridation.^[99] To date, no federal appellate court or state court of last resort (i.e., state supreme court) has found water fluoridation to be unlawful.^[100]

Further reading

- Fawell J, Bailey K, Chilton J, Dahi E, Fewtrell L, Magara Y. Fluoride in Drinking-water (https://www.who.int/water_sanitation_health/publications/fluoride_drinking_water_full.pdf). World Health Organization; 2006. ISBN 92-4-156319-2.
- Freeze RA, Lehr JH (2009). The fluoride wars: how a modest public health measure became America's longest-running political melodrama. Hoboken: Wiley. ISBN 978-0-470-44833-5.
- Martin, Brian (1991). Scientific knowledge in controversy: the social dynamics of the fluoridation debate (<http://www.bmartin.cc/pubs/91skic.html>). Albany: State University of New York Press. ISBN 978-0-7914-0538-3.
- Martin, Brian, The Controversy Manual (<http://www.bmartin.cc/pubs/14cm/14cm.pdf>) (Sparsnäs, Sweden: Irene Publishing, 2014).

References

1. Pizzo G, Piscopo MR, Pizzo I, Giuliana G. Community water fluoridation and caries prevention: a critical review. Clin. Oral Investig. 2007;11(3):189–93. doi:10.1007/s00784-007-0111-6 (<https://doi.org/10.1007/s00784-007-0111-6>). PMID 17333303 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/17333303>).
2. * McNally M, Downie J. The ethics of water fluoridation (<http://cda-adc.ca/jcda/vol-66/issue-11/592.html>). J. Can. Dent. Assoc. 2000;66(11):592–3. PMID 11253350 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/11253350>).
 - Cohen H, Locker D. The science and ethics of water fluoridation (<http://cda-adc.ca/jcda/vol-67/issue-10/578.html>). J. Can. Dent. Assoc. 2001;67(10):578–80. PMID 11737979 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/11737979>).
3. Cross, Douglas W.; Carton, Robert J. (1 March 2003). "Fluoridation: a violation of medical ethics and human rights". International Journal of Occupational and Environmental Health. 9 (1): 24–29. doi:10.1179/107735203800328830 (<https://doi.org/10.1179/107735203800328830>). ISSN 1077-3525 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/1077-3525>). PMID 12749628 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/12749628>). S2CID 24127394 (<https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:24127394>).
4. Coggon, David; Cooper, Cyrus (31 July 1999). "Fluoridation of water supplies" (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC1126914>). BMJ: British Medical Journal. 319 (7205): 269–270. doi:10.1136/bmj.319.7205.269 (<https://doi.org/10.1136/bmj.319.7205.269>). ISSN 0959-8138 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/0959-8138>). PMC 1126914 (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC1126914>). PMID 10426716 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/10426716>).
5. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention. Recommendations for using fluoride to prevent and control dental caries in the United States (<http://cdc.gov/mmwr/preview/mmwrhtml/rr5014a1.htm>). MMWR Recomm. Rep. 2001;50(RR-14):1–42. PMID 11521913 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/11521913>).

6. Ko, Lee; Thiessen, Kathleen M. (3 December 2014). "A critique of recent economic evaluations of community water fluoridation" (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC4457131>). International Journal of Occupational and Environmental Health. 21 (2): 91–120. doi:10.1179/2049396714Y.0000000093 (<https://doi.org/10.1179%2F2049396714Y.0000000093>). PMC 4457131 (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC4457131>). PMID 25471729 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/25471729>).
7. Hileman, Bette (4 November 2006) Fluoride Risks Are Still A Challenge (<http://pubs.acs.org/email/cen/html/090506090615.html>) Vol 84, Num 36 PP. 34-37, Chemical & Engineering News, Retrieved 14 April 2016
8. Sheldon Krinsky, Book review (16 August 2004) Is Fluoride Really All That Safe? (<http://pubs.acs.org/cen/books/8233/8233books.html>), Volume 82, Number 33, pp. 35-36 Chemical & Engineering News, Retrieved 19 April 2016
9. Martin B. The sociology of the fluoridation controversy: a reexamination (<http://www.uow.edu.au/~bmartin/pubs/89sq.html>). Sociol. Q.. 1989;30(1):59–76. doi:10.1111/j.1533-8525.1989.tb01511.x (<https://doi.org/10.1111%2Fj.1533-8525.1989.tb01511.x>).
10. Johnston, Robert D (2004). The Politics of Healing (<https://archive.org/details/politicshealingh00john>). Routledge. p. 136 (<https://archive.org/details/politicshealingh00john/page/n143>). ISBN 978-0-415-93339-1.
11. "Introduction to the SCHER opinion on Fluoridation" (http://ec.europa.eu/health/scientific_committees/opinions_layman/fluoridation/en/l-3/1.htm#0). European Commission Scientific Committee on Health and Environmental Risks (SCHER). 2011. Retrieved 18 April 2016.
12. Tiemann, Mary (5 April 2013). "Fluoride in Drinking Water: A Review of Fluoridation and Regulation Issues" (<https://www.fas.org/sgp/crs/misc/RL33280.pdf>) (PDF). pp. 1–4. Retrieved 19 April 2016.
13. Martin B (1988). "Analyzing the fluoridation controversy: resources and structures". Soc. Stud. Sci. 18 (2): 331–63. doi:10.1177/030631288018002006 (<https://doi.org/10.1177%2F030631288018002006>). PMID 11621556 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/11621556>). S2CID 31073263 (<https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:31073263>).
14. Reilly GA. The task is a political one: the promotion of fluoridation. In: Ward JW, Warren C. Silent Victories: The History and Practice of Public Health in Twentieth-century America. Oxford University Press; 2007. ISBN 0-19-515069-4. p. 323–42.
15. Libertarian Party. Consumer protection (<http://www.dehnbase.org/lpus/library/platform/cp.html>) [Retrieved 28 June 2010].
16. Freeze & Lehr 2009.
17. Nordlinger J. Water fights: believe it or not, the fluoridation war still rages—with a twist you may like (<http://www.thefreelibrary.com/Water+Fights%3a+Believe+it+or+not%2c+the+fluoridation+war+still+rages+--+...-a0103135852>). Natl Rev. 2003-06-30.
18. Cheng, K K; Chalmers, Iain; Sheldon, Trevor A (2007). "Adding fluoride to water supplies" (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC2001050>). BMJ. 335 (7622): 699–702. doi:10.1136/bmj.39318.562951.BE (<https://doi.org/10.1136%2Fbmj.39318.562951.BE>). ISSN 0959-8138 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/0959-8138>). PMC 2001050 (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC2001050>). PMID 17916854 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/17916854>).
19. Centre for Reviews and Dissemination What the 'York Review' on the fluoridation of drinking water really found (<https://www.york.ac.uk/media/crd/Fluoridation%20Statement.pdf>), University of York, York, United Kingdom. Originally released : 28 October 2003. Retrieved on 12 April 2016
20. Ihezor-Ejiofor, Z; Worthington, HV; Walsh, T; O'Malley, L; Clarkson, JE; Macey, R; Alam, R; Tugwell, P; Welch, V; Glenny, AM (18 June 2015). "Water fluoridation for the prevention of dental caries" (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC6953324>). The Cochrane Database of Systematic Reviews. 6 (6): CD010856. doi:10.1002/14651858.CD010856.pub2 (<https://doi.org/10.1002%2F14651858.CD010856.pub2>). PMC 6953324 (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC6953324>). PMID 26092033 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/26092033>).

21. Peckham, Stephen (2012). "Book Reviews: The case against fluoride: how hazardous waste ended up in our drinking water and the bad science and powerful politics that keep it there, by Paul Connett, James Beck, and H Spedding Micklem". Critical Public Health. 22 (1): 113–114. doi:10.1080/09581596.2011.593350 (<https://doi.org/10.1080%2F09581596.2011.593350>). ISSN 0958-1596 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/0958-1596>). S2CID 144744675 (<https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:144744675>).
22. The British Fluoridation Society; The UK Public Health Association; The British Dental Association; The Faculty of Public Health. One in a Million: The facts about water fluoridation (<http://bfsweb.org/one-in-a-million>). 3rd ed. Manchester: British Fluoridation Society; 2012. ISBN 0-9547684-0-X. The extent of water fluoridation (https://docs.wixstatic.com/ugd/014a47_0776b576cf1c49308666cef7caae934e.pdf) [PDF]. p. 55–80.
23. "Community Water Fluoridation --- 2014 Water Fluoridation Statistics" (<https://www.cdc.gov/fluoridation/statistics/2014stats.htm>). cdc.gov. Retrieved 19 April 2016.
24. American Dental Association. National and International Organizations That Recognize the Public Health Benefits of Community Water Fluoridation for Preventing Dental Decay (<http://www.ada.org/en/public-programs/advocating-for-the-public/fluoride-and-fluoridation/fluoridation-facts/fluoridation-facts-compendium>) [archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20080607092909/http://ada.org/public/topics/fluoride/facts/compendium.asp>) 2008-06-07; Retrieved 2016-04-19].
25. National Health and Medical Research Council (Australia). A systematic review of the efficacy and safety of fluoridation (http://nhmrc.gov.au/_files_nhmrc/file/publications/synopses/Eh41_Fluoridation_PART_A.pdf). 2007 [Retrieved 2009-10-13]. ISBN 1-86496-415-4. Archived (https://web.archive.org/web/20091014191758/http://www.nhmrc.gov.au/_files_nhmrc/file/publications/synopses/Eh41_Fluoridation_PART_A.pdf) 14 October 2009 at the Wayback Machine Summary: Yeung CA. A systematic review of the efficacy and safety of fluoridation. Evid. Based Dent.. 2008;9(2):39–43. doi:10.1038/sj.ebd.6400578 (<https://doi.org/10.1038%2Fsj.ebd.6400578>). PMID 18584000 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/18584000>).
26. Petersen PE, Lennon MA. Effective use of fluorides for the prevention of dental caries in the 21st century: the WHO approach (https://www.who.int/oral_health/media/en/orh_cdoe_319to321.pdf). Community Dent. Oral Epidemiol.. 2004;32(5):319–21. doi:10.1111/j.1600-0528.2004.00175.x (<https://doi.org/10.1111%2Fj.1600-0528.2004.00175.x>). PMID 15341615 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/15341615>).
27. "What role does fluoride play in preventing tooth decay?" (http://ec.europa.eu/health/scientific_committees/opinions_layman/fluoridation/en/l-3/5.htm#0). 2011. Retrieved 18 April 2016.
28. European Academy of Paediatric Dentistry. Guidelines on the use of fluoride in children: an EAPD policy document. Eur. Arch. Paediatr. Dent.. 2009;10(3):129–35. doi:10.1007/bf03262673 (<https://doi.org/10.1007%2Fbf03262673>). PMID 19772841 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/19772841>).
29. Australian Dental Association. Issues at a Glance Fluoride (<http://www.ada.org.au/News-Media/Issues-at-a-Glance/Fluoride>) [Retrieved 2016-04-19].
30. Canadian Dental Association. CDA position on use of fluorides in caries prevention (http://www.cda-adc.ca/_files/position_statements/fluoride.pdf); March 2003 [March 2012; Retrieved 2016-04-19].
31. ADA Council on Access, Prevention and Interprofessional Relations. American Dental Association. Fluoridation facts (http://ada.org/public/topics/fluoride/facts/fluoridation_facts.pdf); 2005 [archived (https://web.archive.org/web/20080723125738/http://ada.org/public/topics/fluoride/facts/fluoridation_facts.pdf) 2008-07-23; Retrieved 2008-12-22].
32. American Dental Association. Fluoridation Facts (http://www.ada.org/~media/ADA/Member%20Center/Filles/fluoridation_facts.pdf). 2005. Quote is from Water Fluoridation Press Kit (<http://www.ada.org/en/press-room/press-kits/water-fluoridation-press-kit>).
33. Vivek H. Murthy, MD, MBA, Surgeon General of the United States. Surgeon General's Perspectives: Community Water Fluoridation – One of CDC's "10 Great Public Health Achievements of the 20th Century" (http://www.publichealthreports.org/documents/Surgeon_General_Perspective_FG.pdf). Public Health Reports. July–August 2015. Volume 130:1-3.

34. American Public Health Association. APHA Reaffirms Its Support for Community Water Fluoridation (<http://apha.org/news-and-media/news-releases/apha-news-releases/apha-reaffirms-its-support-for-community-water-fluoridation>); 2011 [Retrieved 2016-04-19].
35. Royal Commission on the NHS Chapter 9 (<http://www.sochealth.co.uk/national-health-service/royal-commission-on-the-national-health-service-contents/royal-commission-on-the-nhs-chapter-9/>). HMSO. July 1979. ISBN 978-0-10-176150-5. Retrieved 19 May 2015.
36. Australian Government Department of Health and Ageing. "Fluoridation of drinking water" (<http://www.health.gov.au/internet/main/publishing.nsf/Content/dentalfluoridation>). www.health.gov.au. Retrieved 22 April 2016.
37. "Questions and answers | Fluoride facts" (<http://www.fluoridefacts.govt.nz/questions-and-answers-0>). www.fluoridefacts.govt.nz. Retrieved 22 April 2016.
38. "Fluoride in Drinking Water" (http://www.hc-sc.gc.ca/ewh-semt/water-eau/drink-potab/health-sante/faq_fluoride-fluorure-eng.php). Health Canada. 23 January 2017.
39. Division of Oral Health, National Center for Chronic Disease Prevention and Health Promotion, CDC. Achievements in public health, 1900–1999: Fluoridation of drinking water to prevent dental caries (<http://cdc.gov/mmwr/preview/mmwrhtml/mm4841a1.htm>). MMWR Morb. Mortal. Wkly. Rep. 1999;48(41):933–40. Contains H. Trendley Dean, D.D.S. (<http://cdc.gov/mmwr/preview/mmwrhtml/mm4841bx.htm>) Reprinted (<http://jama.ama-assn.org/cgi/content/full/283/10/1283>) in: JAMA. 2000;283(10):1283–6. doi:10.1001/jama.283.10.1283 (<https://doi.org/10.1001%2Fjama.283.10.1283>). PMID 10714718 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/10714718>).
40. "Restoration of Fluoridation to Drinking Water, Ministry of Health" (http://www.health.gov.il/English/Topics/Dental_Health/information/Pages/flouride-2015.aspx). www.health.gov.il. Retrieved 23 April 2016.
41. "Water fluoridation" (https://web.archive.org/web/20110514030918/http://www.who.int/water_sanitation_health/oralhealth/en/index2.html). World Water Day 2001: Oral health. World Health Organization. Archived from the original (https://www.who.int/water_sanitation_health/oralhealth/en/index2.html) on 14 May 2011. "There are few chemicals for which the contribution from drinking-water to overall intake is an important factor in preventing disease. One example is the effect of fluoride in drinking-water in protecting against dental caries."
42. Guidelines for Drinking-water Quality, 4th Edition (http://apps.who.int/iris/bitstream/10665/44584/1/9789241548151_eng.pdf) (PDF). World Health Organization. 2011. pp. 168, 175, 372, 370–73. ISBN 9789241548151.
43. Fawell et al. 2006, p. 32. "Concentrations in drinking-water of about 1 mg l⁻¹ are associated with a lower incidence of dental caries, particularly in children, whereas excess intake of fluoride can result in dental fluorosis. In severe cases this can result in erosion of enamel. The margin between the beneficial effects of fluoride and the occurrence of dental fluorosis is small and public health programmes seek to retain a suitable balance between the two."
44. Bryson, Christopher (2004). The Fluoride Deception (<https://archive.org/details/fluoridedeceptio00brys>). New York: Seven Stories Press. pp. 240 (<https://archive.org/details/fluoridedeceptio00brys/page/240>). ISBN 978-1-60980-008-6.
45. Mercola, Dr Joseph (11 October 2010). "The Health Hazards of Water Fluoridation (VIDEO)" (http://www.huffingtonpost.com/dr-mercola/warning-this-daily-habit-_b_741635.html). HuffPost. Retrieved 12 June 2019.
46. Calman K. Beyond the 'nanny state': stewardship and public health. Public Health. 2009;123(1):e6–e10. doi:10.1016/j.puhe.2008.10.025 (<https://doi.org/10.1016%2Fj.puhe.2008.10.025>). PMID 19135693 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/19135693>).
47. Barnett-Rose, Rita (December 2014). "Compulsory Water Fluoridation: Justifiable Public Health Benefit or Human Experimental Research Without Informed Consent?" (<http://scholarship.law.wm.edu/wmelpr/vol39/iss1/7/>). William & Mary Environmental Law and Policy Review. 39 (1): 225. Retrieved 21 April 2016.

48. Fagin, Dan (1 January 2008). "Second Thoughts about Fluoride". Scientific American. 298 (1): 74–81. Bibcode:2008SciAm.298a..74F (<https://ui.adsabs.harvard.edu/abs/2008SciAm.298a..74F>). doi:10.1038/scientificamerican0108-74 (<https://doi.org/10.1038%2Fscientificamerican0108-74>). PMID 18225698 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/18225698>).
49. Fawell et al. 2006, pp. 29–36.
50. Fawell et al. 2006, pp. 37–9.
51. McDonagh M, Whiting P, Bradley M et al. A systematic review of public water fluoridation (http://www.york.ac.uk/inst/crd/CRD_Reports/crdreport18.pdf); 2000. Report website: NHS Centre for Reviews and Dissemination. Fluoridation of drinking water: a systematic review of its efficacy and safety (<http://www.york.ac.uk/inst/crd/fluorid.htm>); 2000 [Retrieved 2009-05-26]. Authors' summary: McDonagh MS, Whiting PF, Wilson PM et al.. Systematic review of water fluoridation (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC27492/>). BMJ. 2000;321(7265):855–9. doi:10.1136/bmj.321.7265.855 (<https://doi.org/10.1136%2Fbmj.321.7265.855>). PMID 11021861 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/11021861>). Authors' commentary: Treasure ET, Chestnutt IG, Whiting P, McDonagh M, Wilson P, Kleijnen J. The York review—a systematic review of public water fluoridation: a commentary (<http://www.nature.com/bdj/journal/v192/n9/full/4801410a.html>). Br. Dent. J. 2002;192(9):495–7. doi:10.1038/sj.bdj.4801410a (<https://doi.org/10.1038%2Fsj.bdj.4801410a>). PMID 12047121 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/12047121>).
52. Balbus JM, Lang ME. Is the water safe for my baby?. Pediatr. Clin. North Am. 2001;48(5):1129–52, viii. doi:10.1016/S0031-3955(05)70365-5 (<https://doi.org/10.1016%2FS0031-3955%2805%2970365-5>). PMID 11579665 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/11579665>).
53. Asheboro notifies residents of over-fluoridation of water (<http://www.myfox8.com/news/wghp-asheboro-fluoride-release-100629,0,2164002.story>). 2010-06-29 [archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20100704054308/http://www.myfox8.com/news/wghp-asheboro-fluoride-release-100629,0,2164002.story>) 4 July 2010]. Fox 8.
54. Pollick HF. Water fluoridation and the environment: current perspective in the United States (<http://cdc.gov/FLUORIDATION/pdf/pollick.pdf>). Int. J. Occup. Environ. Health. 2004;10(3):343–50. doi:10.1179/oeht.2004.10.3.343 (<https://doi.org/10.1179%2Foeh.2004.10.3.343>). PMID 15473093 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/15473093>).
55. Macek MD, Matte TD, Sinks T, Malvitz DM. Blood lead concentrations in children and method of water fluoridation in the United States, 1988–1994 (<http://ehp.niehs.nih.gov/members/2005/8319/8319.html>). Environ. Health Perspect. 2006;114(1):130–4. doi:10.1289/ehp.8319 (<https://doi.org/10.1289%2Fehp.8319>). PMID 16393670 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/16393670>). PMC 1332668 (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC1332668/>).
56. Parnell C, Whelton H, O'Mullane D. Water fluoridation. Eur. Arch. Paediatr. Dent. 2009;10(3):141–8. doi:10.1007/bf03262675 (<https://doi.org/10.1007%2Fbf03262675>). PMID 19772843 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/19772843>).
57. Truman BI, Gooch BF, Sulemana I et al.. Reviews of evidence on interventions to prevent dental caries, oral and pharyngeal cancers, and sports-related craniofacial injuries (<http://thecommunityguide.org/oral/oral-ajpm-ev-rev.pdf>). Am. J. Prev. Med. 2002;23(1 Suppl):21–54. doi:10.1016/S0749-3797(02)00449-X (<https://doi.org/10.1016%2FS0749-3797%2802%2900449-X>). PMID 12091093 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/12091093>).
58. Griffin SO, Regnier E, Griffin PM, Huntley V. Effectiveness of fluoride in preventing caries in adults (<http://jdr.sagepub.com/cgi/content/full/86/5/410>). J. Dent. Res. 2007;86(5):410–5. doi:10.1177/154405910708600504 (<https://doi.org/10.1177%2F154405910708600504>). PMID 17452559 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/17452559>). Summary: Yeung CA. Fluoride prevents caries among adults of all ages. Evid. Based Dent. 2007;8(3):72–3. doi:10.1038/sj.ebd.6400506 (<https://doi.org/10.1038%2Fsj.ebd.6400506>). PMID 17891121 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/17891121>).

59. Burt BA, Tomar SL. Changing the face of America: water fluoridation and oral health. In: Ward JW, Warren C. Silent Victories: The History and Practice of Public Health in Twentieth-century America. Oxford University Press; 2007. ISBN 0-19-515069-4. p. 307–22.
60. Hausen HW. Fluoridation, fractures, and teeth (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC1118662/>). BMJ. 2000;321(7265):844–5. doi:10.1136/bmj.321.7265.844 (<https://doi.org/10.1136%2Fbmj.321.7265.844>). PMID 11021844 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/11021844>).
61. The British Fluoridation Society; The UK Public Health Association; The British Dental Association; The Faculty of Public Health. One in a Million: The facts about water fluoridation (<http://bfsweb.org/one-in-a-million>). 3rd ed. Manchester: British Fluoridation Society; 2012. ISBN 0-9547684-0-X. The ethics of water fluoridation (https://bfsweb.org/download/1344/one-in-a-million/1Vng0bH7Tc1j0u_L_jJknMBC6OLwiY2TC/The%20ethics%20of%20water%20fluoridation%20\(3rd%20edition,%202012\)\)))) [PDF]. p. 88–92.
62. "50 Health Scares That Fizzled" by Joan R. Callahan, 2011, published by ABC-CLIO. ISBN 978-0-313-38538-4.
63. Cohen H, Locker D (2001). "The Science and Ethics of Water Fluoridation" (<http://www.cda-adc.ca/jcda/vol-67/issue-10/578.html>). J. Can. Dent. Assoc. 67 (10): 578–80. PMID 11737979 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/11737979>).
64. UK Green Party. (2003). Water fluoridation contravenes UK law, EU directives and the European Convention on Human Rights and Biomedicine (<http://www.greenparty.org.uk/files/reports/2003/F%20Illegality.htm>). Press office briefing. accessdate 2008-08-03
65. Tickner J, Coffin M (March 2006). "What does the precautionary principle mean for evidence-based dentistry?". J. Evid. Based Dent. Pract. 6 (1): 6–15. doi:10.1016/j.jebdp.2005.12.006 (<https://doi.org/10.1016%2Fj.jebdp.2005.12.006>). PMID 17138389 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/17138389>).
66. "Health" (<http://policy.greenparty.org.uk/he.html>), Record of Policy Statements, Green Party, 2014, retrieved 22 November 2014
67. Public health : ethical issues (Chapter 7 – Fluoridation of water) (<http://nuffieldbioethics.org/report/public-health-2/water-fluoridation/>). London: Nuffield Council on Bioethics. 2007. ISBN 978-1-904384-17-5. Retrieved 25 April 2016.
68. "Community Water Fluoridation in the United States" (<https://www.apha.org/policies-and-advocacy/public-health-policy-statements/policy-database/2014/07/24/13/36/community-water-fluoridation-in-the-united-states>). www.apha.org. American Public Health Association. Retrieved 30 April 2016.
69. Jiang, Yindi; Foster Page, Lyndie A.; McMillan, John; Lyons, Karl; Broadbent, Jonathan; Morgaine, Kate C. (28 November 2014). "Is New Zealand water fluoridation justified?". The New Zealand Medical Journal. 127 (1406): 80–86. ISSN 1175-8716 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/1175-8716>). PMID 25447252 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/25447252>).
70. Freeze & Lehr 2009, pp. 219–54.
71. Armfield JM. When public action undermines public health: a critical examination of antifluoridationist literature (<http://anzhealthpolicy.com/content/4/1/25>). Aust. New Zealand Health Policy. 2007;4:25. doi:10.1186/1743-8462-4-25 (<https://doi.org/10.1186%2F1743-8462-4-25>). PMID 18067684 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/18067684>). PMC 2222595 (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC2222595/>).
72. Griffin M, Shickle D, Moran N. European citizens' opinions on water fluoridation. Community Dent. Oral Epidemiol. 2008;36(2):95–102. doi:10.1111/j.1600-0528.2007.00373.x (<https://doi.org/10.1111%2Fj.1600-0528.2007.00373.x>). PMID 18333872 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/18333872>).
73. Armfield JM, Akers HF. Risk perception and water fluoridation support and opposition in Australia. J. Public Health Dent. 2009;70(1):58–66. doi:10.1111/j.1752-7325.2009.00144.x (<https://doi.org/10.1111%2Fj.1752-7325.2009.00144.x>). PMID 19694932 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/19694932>).

74. Dixon S, Shackley P. Estimating the benefits of community water fluoridation using the willingness-to-pay technique: results of a pilot study. Community Dent. Oral Epidemiol. 1999;27(2):124–9. doi:10.1111/j.1600-0528.1999.tb02001.x (<https://doi.org/10.1111%2Fj.1600-0528.1999.tb02001.x>). PMID 10226722 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/10226722>).
75. Diesendorf M. The mystery of declining tooth decay. Nature. 1986 Jul 10-16;322(6075):125-9. <https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/3523258/>
76. Furukawa, S.; Hagiwara, Y.; Taguchi, C.; Turumoto, A.; Kobayashi, S. (2011). "Associations between oral health behavior and anxiety about water fluoridation and motivation to establish water fluoridation in Japanese residents" (<https://doi.org/10.2334%2Fjosnurd.53.313>). Journal of Oral Science. 53 (3): 313–319. doi:10.2334/josnurd.53.313 (<https://doi.org/10.2334%2Fjosnurd.53.313>). PMID 21959658 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/21959658>).
77. Zwebner, Sarah (17 March 2014) הפלרת מי השתייה (<https://www.knesset.gov.il/mmm/data/pdf/m00204.pdf>) (In Hebrew, Pages 2-3 Dates of beginning of Water fluoridation practice in Israel: 1981 Optional, 2002 Mandatory), Knesset Research and Information Center, Retrieved 2 September 2014
78. Main, Douglas (29 August 2014) Israel Has Officially Banned Fluoridation of Its Drinking Water (<http://www.newsweek.com/israel-has-officially-banned-fluoridation-its-drinking-water-267411>), Newsweek Retrieved 2 September 2014
79. "Water fluoridation set to return in Israel" (<http://www.ada.org/en/publications/ada-news/2016-archive/april/water-fluoridation-set-to-return-in-israel>). www.ada.org.
80. "About your water" (<http://www.unitedutilities.com/About-your-water.aspx>). United Utilities.
81. "World Oral Health Report" (https://www.who.int/entity/oral_health/media/en/orh_report03_en.pdf) (PDF). World Health Organization. Retrieved 4 March 2006.
82. "Critical review of any new evidence on the hazard profile, health effects, and human exposure to fluoride and the fluoridating agents of drinking water" (http://ec.europa.eu/health/scientific_committees/environmental_risks/docs/scher_o_122.pdf) (PDF)., citing Götzfried, Franz (2006). "Production of fluoridated salt". Schweizer Monatsschrift für Zahnmedizin. 116 (4): 367–370. PMID 16708522 (<http://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/16708522>).
83. "Community Water Fluoridation --- 2012 Water Fluoridation Statistics" (<https://www.cdc.gov/fluoridation/statistics/2012stats.htm>). cdc.gov. 20 April 2018. Retrieved 13 October 2018.
84. Carstairs C, Elder R. Expertise, health, and popular opinion: debating water fluoridation, 1945–80. Can. Hist. Rev. 2008;89(3):345–71. doi:10.3138/chr.89.3.345 (<https://doi.org/10.3138%2Fchr.89.3.345>).
85. Musto RJ (October 1987). "Fluoridation: why is it not more widely adopted?" (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC1267306>). CMAJ. 137 (8): 705–8. PMC 1267306 (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC1267306>). PMID 3651941 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/3651941>).
86. Wrapson J (2005). "Fluoridation of Public Water Supplies in New Zealand: 'Magic Bullet,' Rat Poison, or Communist Plot?" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20080821170339/http://www.historycooperative.org/journals/hah/7.2/wrapson.html>). Health and History. 7 (2): 17–29. doi:10.2307/40111610 (<https://doi.org/10.2307%2F40111610>). JSTOR 40111610 (<https://www.jstor.org/stable/40111610>). Archived from the original (<http://www.historycooperative.org/journals/hah/7.2/wrapson.html>) on 21 August 2008. Retrieved 3 March 2009.
87. Richmond VL (January 1985). "Thirty years of fluoridation: a review". Am. J. Clin. Nutr. 41 (1): 129–38. doi:10.1093/ajcn/41.1.129 (<https://doi.org/10.1093%2Fajcn%2F41.1.129>). PMID 3917599 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/3917599>).
88. Freeze & Lehr 2009, pp. 127–69.
89. Newbrun E. The fluoridation war: a scientific dispute or a religious argument?. J. Public Health Dent. 1996;56(5 Spec No):246–52. doi:10.1111/j.1752-7325.1996.tb02447.x (<https://doi.org/10.1111%2Fj.1752-7325.1996.tb02447.x>). PMID 9034969 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/9034969>).
90. Henig, Robin Marantz (2016). The People's Health: A Memoir of Public Health and Its Evolution at Harvard. Joseph Henry Press. ISBN 978-0-309-05492-8.

91. Henig 2016, p. 85.
92. Rovere, Richard H. (1959). Senator Joe McCarthy. University of California Press. pp. 21–22. ISBN 978-0-520-20472-0.
93. "Truth about fluoride doesn't include Nazi myth" (<http://www.politifact.com/florida/statements/2011/oct/06/critics-water-fluoridation/truth-about-fluoride-doesnt-include-nazi-myth/>). Politifact Florida. Retrieved 7 March 2014.
94. Bryson, Christopher (17 June 2004). "The Fluoride Deception: How a Nuclear Waste Made its Way into the Nation's Drinking Water" (http://www.democracynow.org/2004/6/17/the_fluoride_deception_how_a_nuclear). Democracy Now.
95. National Research Council. Fluoride in Drinking Water: A Scientific Review of EPA's Standards (http://books.nap.edu/catalog.php?record_id=11571). Washington, DC: National Academies Press; 2006. ISBN 0-309-10128-X.
96. Bram van der Lek (1976). "De strijd tegen fluoridering" (<https://books.google.com/books?id=3UoZAAAAIAAJ&q=fluoridering+nederland&pg=PA487>). De Gids. 139 (2).
97. Leonardus Johannes Antonius Damen; Peter Nicolai; J.L. Boxum; K.J. de Graaf; J.H. Jans; A.P. Klap; A.T. Marseille; A.R. Neerhof; B.K. Olivier; B.J. Schueler; F.R. Vermeer; R.L. Vucsán (2005). "Deel 1: systeem, bevoegdheid, bevoegdheidsuitoefening, handhaving". Bestuursrecht [Control rights (legal)]. Boom juridische studieboeken (in Dutch). Boom Juridische uitgevers. pp. 54–55. ISBN 978-90-5454-537-8.
98. "Ryan v. A.G. IESC 1; IR 294 (3 July, 1965)" (<http://www.bailii.org/ie/cases/IESC/1965/1.html>). Irish Supreme Court.
99. Beck v. City Council of Beverly Hills, 30 Cal. App. 3d 112, 115 (Cal. App. 2d Dist. 1973) ("Courts through the United States have uniformly held that fluoridation of water is a reasonable and proper exercise of the police power in the interest of public health. The matter is no longer an open question." (citations omitted)).
100. Pratt, Edwin, Raymond D. Rawson & Mark Rubin, Fluoridation at Fifty: What Have We Learned, 30 J.L. Med. & Ethics 117, 119 (Fall 2002)

External links

- Pipe Dreams: America's Fluoride Controversy (<https://www.sciencehistory.org/distillations/magazine/pipe-dreams-americas-fluoride-controversy>) – description of the history and controversy of fluoridated drinking water
- Water fluoridation (https://curlie.org/Society/Issues/Health/Water_Treatment/Fluoridation/) at Curlie

See also

- Fluoride therapy
- Fluoride toxicity
- Hexafluorosilicic acid
- Sodium monofluorophosphate

Retrieved from "https://en.wikipedia.org/w/index.php?title=Water_fluoridation_controversy&oldid=1026501239"

This page was last edited on 2 June 2021, at 17:10 (UTC).

Text is available under the Creative Commons Attribution-ShareAlike License; additional terms may apply. By using this site, you agree to the Terms of Use and Privacy Policy. Wikipedia® is a registered trademark of the Wikimedia Foundation, Inc., a non-profit organization.

MMR vaccine and autism

Claims of a link between the MMR vaccine and autism have been extensively investigated and found to be false.^[1] The link was first suggested in the early 1990s and came to public notice largely as a result of the 1998 Lancet MMR autism fraud, characterised as "perhaps the most damaging medical hoax of the last 100 years".^[2] The fraudulent research paper authored by Andrew Wakefield and published in The Lancet claimed to link the vaccine to colitis and autism spectrum disorders. The paper was retracted in 2010^[3] but is still cited by anti-vaccinationists.^[4]

The claims in the paper were widely reported,^[5] leading to a sharp drop in vaccination rates in the UK and Ireland. Promotion of the claimed link, which continues in anti-vaccination propaganda despite being refuted,^{[6][7]} has led to an increase in the incidence of measles and mumps, resulting in deaths and serious permanent injuries.^{[8][9]} Following the initial claims in 1998, multiple large epidemiological studies were undertaken. Reviews of the evidence by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention,^[10] the American Academy of Pediatrics, the Institute of Medicine of the US National Academy of Sciences,^[11] the UK National Health Service,^[12] and the Cochrane Library^[13] all found no link between the MMR vaccine and autism.^[14] Physicians, medical journals, and editors^{[15][16][17][18][19]} have described Wakefield's actions as fraudulent and tied them to epidemics and deaths.^{[20][21]}

An investigation by journalist Brian Deer found that Wakefield, the author of the original research paper linking the vaccine to autism, had multiple undeclared conflicts of interest,^{[22][23]} had manipulated evidence,^[24] and had broken other ethical codes. The Lancet paper was partially retracted in 2004 and fully retracted in 2010, when Lancet's editor-in-chief Richard Horton described it as "utterly false" and said that the journal had been deceived.^[25] Wakefield was found guilty by the General Medical Council of serious professional misconduct in May 2010 and was struck off the Medical Register, meaning he could no longer practise as a physician in the UK.^[26] In 2011, Deer provided further information on Wakefield's improper research practices to the British Medical Journal, which in a signed editorial described the original paper as fraudulent.^{[27][28]} The scientific consensus is that there is no link between the MMR vaccine and autism and that the vaccine's benefits greatly outweigh its potential risks.

Contents

Background

Revaccination campaign

MMR litigation starts

1998 The Lancet paper

Media role

Litigation

Italy

Japan

United Kingdom

United States

Research

Disease outbreaks

Impact on society

See also

References

Further reading

Background

Revaccination campaign

In the wake of the measles outbreaks, which occurred in England in 1992, and on the basis of analyses of seroepidemiological data combined with mathematical modeling, British Health authorities predicted a major resurgence of measles in school-age children. Two strategies were then examined: either to target vaccination at all children without a history of prior measles vaccination or to immunize all children irrespective of vaccination history.^[29] In November 1994, the latter option was chosen and a national measles and rubella vaccination campaign, described as "one of the most ambitious vaccination initiatives that Britain has undertaken" was commenced:^[30] within one month, 92% of the 7.1 million schoolchildren in England aged 5–16 years received measles and rubella (MR) vaccine.^[31]

MMR litigation starts

In April 1994, Richard Barr,^[32] a solicitor, succeeded in winning legal aid for the pursuit of a class action lawsuit against the manufacturers of MMR vaccines under the UK Consumer Protection Act 1987. The class action case was aimed at Aventis Pasteur, SmithKline Beecham, and Merck, manufacturers respectively of Immavax, Pluserix-MMR and MMR II.^[33] This suit, based on a claim that MMR is a defective product and should not have been used, was the first big class action lawsuit funded by the Legal Aid Board (which became the Legal Services Commission, which in turn was replaced by the Legal Aid Agency) after its formation in 1988. Noticing two publications from Andrew Wakefield that explored the role of measles virus in Crohn's disease and inflammatory bowel disease,^{[34][35]} Barr contacted Wakefield for his expertise. According to Wakefield supporters, the two men first met on 6 January 1996.^[36] The Legal Services Commission halted proceedings in September 2003, citing a high probability of failure based on the medical evidence, bringing an end to the first case of research funding by the LSC.^[37]

1998 The Lancet paper

Wakefield's paper "Ileal-lymphoid-nodular hyperplasia, non-specific colitis, and pervasive developmental disorder in children" was published in The Lancet on 28 February 1998. An investigation by journalist Brian Deer found that Wakefield had multiple undeclared conflicts of interest,^{[22][23]} had manipulated evidence,^[24] and had broken other ethical codes. The Lancet paper was partially retracted in 2004 and fully retracted in 2010, when The Lancet's editor-in-chief Richard Horton described it as "utterly false" and said that the journal had been deceived.^[25] Wakefield was found guilty by the General Medical Council of serious professional misconduct in May 2010 and was struck off the Medical Register, meaning he could no longer practise as a doctor in the UK.^[26] In 2011, Deer provided further information on Wakefield's improper research practices to the British Medical Journal, which in a signed editorial described the original paper as fraudulent.^{[27][28]} The scientific consensus is that there is no link between the MMR vaccine and autism and that the vaccine's benefits greatly outweigh its risks.

By the time it was retracted, all authors other than Wakefield had requested their names be removed from the publication.^[38]

Fiona Godlee, editor of The BMJ, said in January 2011:^[16]

The original paper has received so much media attention, with such potential to damage public health, that it is hard to find a parallel in the history of medical science. Many other medical frauds have been exposed but usually more quickly after publication and on less important health issues.

Media role

Observers have criticized the involvement of mass media in the controversy, what is known as 'science by press conference',^[39] alleging that the media provided Wakefield's study with more credibility than it deserved. A March 2007 paper in BMC Public Health by Shona Hilton, Mark Petticrew, and Kate Hunt postulated that media reports on Wakefield's study had "created the misleading impression that the evidence for the link with autism was as substantial as the evidence against" through an attempt to create "balanced reporting".^[40] Earlier papers in Communication in Medicine and British Medical Journal concluded that media reports provided a misleading picture of the level of support for Wakefield's hypothesis.^{[41][42][43]}

A 2007 editorial in Australian Doctor complained that some journalists had continued to defend Wakefield's study even after The Lancet had published the retraction by 10 of the study's 12 original authors, but noted that it was an investigative journalist, Brian Deer, who had played a leading role in exposing weaknesses in the study.^[44] PRWeek noted that after Wakefield was removed from the general medical register for misconduct in May 2010, 62% of respondents to a poll regarding the MMR controversy stated they did not feel that the media conducted responsible reporting on health issues.^[45]

A New England Journal of Medicine article examining the history of antivaccinationists said that opposition to vaccines has existed since the 19th century, but "now the antivaccinationists' media of choice are typically television and the Internet, including its social media outlets, which are used to sway public opinion and distract attention from scientific evidence".^[20] The editorial characterized anti-vaccinationists as people who "tend toward complete mistrust of government and manufacturers, conspiratorial thinking, denialism, low cognitive complexity in thinking patterns, reasoning flaws, and a habit of substituting emotional anecdotes for data", including people who range from those "unable to understand and incorporate concepts of risk and probability into science-grounded decision making" and those "who use deliberate mistruths, intimidation, falsified data, and threats of violence".^[20]

In a January 2011 editorial in The American Spectator, Robert M. Goldberg contended that evidence from the scientific community of issues with Wakefield's research "were undermined because the media allowed Wakefield and his followers to discredit the findings just by saying so".^[46]

Seth Mnookin, author of The Panic Virus, also partly blames the media for presenting a false balance between scientific evidence and people's personal experiences: "Reporting fell into this 'on the one hand, on the other hand' fallacy, this notion that if you have two sides that are disagreeing, that means that you should present both of them with equal weight."^[47]

Concerns have also been raised over the journal peer review system, which largely relies on trust among researchers,^[15] and the role of journalists reporting on scientific theories that they "are hardly in a position to question and comprehend".^[18] Neil Cameron, a historian who specializes in the history of science, writing for the Montreal Gazette, labeled the controversy a "failure of journalism" that resulted in unnecessary deaths, saying that: 1) The Lancet should not have published a study based on "statistically meaningless results" from only 12 cases; 2) the anti-vaccination crusade was continued by the satirical Private Eye magazine; and 3) a grapevine of worried parents and "nincompoop" celebrities fueled the widespread fears.^[48] The Gazette also reported that.^[49]

There is no guarantee that debunking the original study is going to sway all parents. Medical experts are going to have to work hard to try to undo the damage inflicted by what is apparently a rogue medical researcher whose work was inadequately vetted by a top-ranked international journal.

Litigation

During the 1980s and 1990s, a number of lawsuits were brought against manufacturers of vaccines, alleging the vaccines had caused physical and mental disorders in children. While these lawsuits were unsuccessful, they did lead to a large jump in the costs of the MMR vaccine, and pharmaceutical companies sought legislative protections. In 1993, Merck KGaA became the only company willing to sell MMR vaccines in the United States and the United Kingdom.

Italy

In June 2012, a local court in Rimini, Italy, ruled that the MMR vaccination had caused autism in a 15-month-old boy. The court relied heavily on the discredited Lancet paper and largely ignored the scientific evidence presented to it. The decision was appealed.^[50] On 13 February 2015, the decision was overturned by a Court of Appeals in Bologna.^[51]

Japan

The MMR scare caused a low percentage of mumps vaccination (less than 30%), which resulted in outbreaks in Japan.^[52] There were up to 2002 measles-caused deaths in Japan while there were none in the UK, but the extra deaths were attributed to Japan's application of the vaccine at a later age. A spokesman for the Ministry of Health said that the discontinuation had no effect in measles, but also mentioning that there were more deaths by measles while MMR was being used.^[53] In 1994 the government dropped the vaccination requirement for measles and rubella due to the 1993 MMR scare.^[54]:2 It has been called a "measles exporter" by the US Centers for Disease Control and Prevention.^[54] As another consequence of the scare, in 2003, 7 million schoolchildren had not been vaccinated against rubella.^[55]

Autism rates continued to rise in Japan after the discontinuation of the MMR vaccine, which disproves any large-scale effect of vaccination,^[56] and means that the withdrawal of MMR in other countries is unlikely to cause a reduction in autism cases.^[57] The Japanese government does not recognize any link between MMR and autism.^[53] By 2003 it was still trying to find a combined vaccine to replace MMR.^[58]

It was later discovered that some of the vaccines were administered after their expiry date and that the MMR compulsory vaccination was only retracted after the death of three children and more than 2000 reports of adverse effects.^[55] By 1993 the Japanese government had paid $160,000 in compensation to the families of each of the three dead children.^[55] Other parents received no compensation because the government said that it was unproven that the MMR vaccine had been the cause; they decided to sue the manufacturer instead of the government.^[55] The Osaka district court ruled on 13 March 2003 that the death of two children (among numerous other serious conditions) had been indeed caused by Japan's strain of Urabe MMR.^{[59][60]} In 2006, the Osaka High Court stated in another ruling that the state was responsible for failing to properly supervise a manufacturer of the measles-mumps-rubella vaccine, which caused severe side effects in children.^[61]

United Kingdom

Commenced before the Civil Procedure Rules were promulgated, the MMR Litigation had its status as group litigation achieved by the then Lord Chief Justice's practice direction of 8 July 1999. On 8 June 2007, the High Court judge, Justice Keith, put an end to the group litigation because the withdrawal of legal aid by the legal services commission had made the pursuit of most of the claimants impossible. He ruled that all but two claims against pharmaceutical companies must be discontinued.^[62] The judge stressed that his ruling did not amount to a rejection of any of the claims that MMR had seriously damaged the children concerned.^[63]

A pressure group, JABS (Justice, Awareness, Basic Support), was established to represent families with children who, their parents said, were "vaccine-damaged". £15 million in public legal aid funding was spent on the litigation, of which £9.7 million went to solicitors and barristers, and £4.3 million to expert witnesses.^[64]

United States

The omnibus autism proceeding (OAP)^[65] is a coordinated proceeding before the Office of Special Masters of the U.S. Court of Federal Claims—commonly called the vaccine court. It is structured to facilitate the handling of nearly 5000 vaccine petitions involving claims that children who have received certain vaccinations have developed autism. The Petitioners' Steering Committee have claimed that MMR vaccines can cause autism, possibly in combination with thiomersal-containing vaccines.^[66] In 2007 three test cases were presented to test the claims about the combination; these cases failed. The vaccine court ruled against the plaintiffs in all three cases, stating that the evidence presented did not validate their claims that vaccinations caused autism in these specific patients or in general.^[67]

In some cases, the plaintiffs' attorneys opted out of the Omnibus Autism Proceedings, which were concerned solely with autism, and issues concerned with bowel disorders; they argued their cases in the regular vaccine court.

On 30 July 2007, the family of Bailey Banks, a child with pervasive developmental delay, won its case versus the Department of Health and Human Services.^[68] In a case listed as relating to "non-autistic developmental delay", Special Master Richard B. Abell ruled that the Banks had successfully demonstrated, "the MMR vaccine at issue actually caused the conditions from which Bailey suffered and continues to suffer." In his conclusion, he ruled that he was satisfied that MMR had caused a brain inflammation called acute disseminated encephalomyelitis (ADEM). He reached this conclusion because of two vaccine cases in 1994 and 2001, which had concluded, "ADEM can be caused by natural measles, mumps, and rubella infections, as well as by measles, mumps, and rubella vaccines."^[69]

In other cases, attorneys did not claim that vaccines caused autism; they sought compensation for encephalopathy, encephalitis, or seizure disorders.^[70]

Research

The number of reported cases of autism increased dramatically in the 1990s and early 2000s. This increase is largely attributable to changes in diagnostic practices; it is not known how much, if any, growth came from real changes in autism's prevalence, and no causal connection to the MMR vaccine has been demonstrated.^[71]

In 2004, a meta review financed by the European Union assessed the evidence given in 120 other studies and considered unintended effects of the MMR vaccine, concluding that although the vaccine is associated with positive and negative side effects, a connection between MMR and autism was "unlikely".^[72] Also in 2004, a review article was published that concluded, "The evidence now is convincing that the measles–mumps–rubella vaccine does not cause autism or any particular subtypes of autistic spectrum disorder."^[73] A 2006 review of the literature regarding vaccines and autism found "[t]he bulk of the evidence suggests no causal relationship between the MMR vaccine and autism."^[74] A 2007 case study used the figure in Wakefield's 1999 letter to The Lancet alleging a temporal association between MMR vaccination and autism^[75] to illustrate how a graph can misrepresent its data, and gave advice to authors and publishers to avoid similar misrepresentations in the future.^[76] A 2007 review of independent studies performed after the publication of Wakefield et al.'s original report found that the studies provided compelling evidence against the hypothesis that MMR is associated with autism.^[77] A review of the work conducted in 2004 for UK court proceedings but not revealed until 2007 found that the polymerase chain reaction analysis essential to the Wakefield et al. results was fatally flawed due to contamination, and that it could not have possibly detected the measles that it was supposed to have detected.^[64] A 2009 review of studies on links between vaccines and autism discussed the MMR vaccine controversy as one of three main hypotheses that epidemiological and biological studies failed to support.^[78]

In 2012, the Cochrane Library published a review of dozens of scientific studies involving about 14,700,000 children, which found no credible evidence of an involvement of MMR with either autism or Crohn's disease. The authors stated "the design and reporting of safety outcomes in MMR vaccine studies, both pre- and post-marketing, are largely inadequate".^[13] A June 2014 meta-analysis involving more than 1.25 million children found "vaccinations are not associated with the development of autism or autism spectrum disorder. Furthermore, the components of the vaccines (thimerosal or mercury) or multiple vaccines (MMR) are not associated with the development of autism or autism spectrum disorder."^[79] In July 2014, a systematic review found "strong evidence that MMR vaccine is not associated with autism",^[80] and in March 2019, a large-scale study conducted by Statens Serum Institut following over 650,000 children for over 10 years found no link between the vaccine and autism, even among children with autistic siblings.^{[81][82]}

Disease outbreaks

After the controversy began, the MMR vaccination compliance dropped sharply in the United Kingdom, from 92% in 1996 to 84% in 2002. In some parts of London, it was as low as 61% in 2003, far below the rate needed to avoid an epidemic of measles.^[83] By 2006 coverage for MMR in the UK at 24 months was 85%, lower than the about 94% coverage for other vaccines.^[8]

After vaccination rates dropped, the incidence of two of the three diseases increased greatly in the UK. In 1998 there were 56 confirmed cases of measles in the UK; in 2006 there were 449 in the first five months of the year, with the first death since 1992; cases occurred in inadequately vaccinated children.^[84] Mumps cases began rising in 1999 after years of very few cases, and by 2005 the United Kingdom was in a mumps epidemic with almost 5000 notifications in the first month of 2005 alone.^[85] The age group affected was too old to have received the routine MMR immunisations around the time the paper by Wakefield et al. was published, and too young to have contracted natural mumps as a child, and thus to achieve a herd immunity effect. With the decline in mumps that followed the introduction of the MMR vaccine, these individuals had not been exposed to the disease, but still had no immunity, either natural or vaccine induced. Therefore, as immunisation rates declined following the controversy and the disease re-emerged, they were susceptible to infection.^{[86][87]} Measles and mumps cases continued in 2006, at incidence rates 13 and 37 times greater than respective 1998 levels.^[88] Two children who underwent kidney transplantation in London were severely and permanently injured by measles encephalitis.^[9]

Disease outbreaks also caused casualties in nearby countries. Three deaths and 1,500 cases were reported in the Irish outbreak of 2000, which occurred as a direct result of decreased vaccination rates following the MMR scare.^[9]

In 2008, for the first time in 14 years, measles was declared endemic in the UK, meaning that the disease was sustained within the population; this was caused by the preceding decade's low MMR vaccination rates, which created a population of susceptible children who could spread the disease.^[89] MMR vaccination rates for English children were unchanged in 2007–08 from the year before, at too low a level to prevent serious measles outbreaks.^[90] In May 2008, a British 17-year-old with an underlying immunodeficiency died of measles. In 2008 Europe also faced a measles epidemic, including large outbreaks in Austria, Italy, and Switzerland.^[89]

Following the January 2011 BMJ statements about Wakefield's fraud, Paul Offit, a pediatrician at Children's Hospital of Philadelphia and a "long-time critic of the dangers of the anti-vaccine movement", said, "that paper killed children",^{[91][92][93]} and Michael Smith of the University of Louisville, an "infectious diseases expert who has studied the autism controversy's effect on immunization rates", said "clearly, the results of this (Wakefield) study have had repercussions."^{[94][95]} In 2014, Laurie Garrett, senior fellow at the Council on Foreign Relations, blamed "Wakefieldism" for an increase in the number of unvaccinated children in countries such as Australia and New Zealand, saying, "Our data suggests that where Wakefield's message has caught on, measles follows."^[96]

Impact on society

The New England Journal of Medicine said that antivaccinationist activities resulted in a high cost to society, "including damage to individual and community well-being from outbreaks of previously controlled diseases, withdrawal of vaccine manufacturers from the market, compromising of national security (in the case of anthrax and smallpox vaccines), and lost productivity".^[20]

Costs to society from declining vaccination rates (in US dollars) were estimated by AOL's DailyFinance in 2011:^[97]

- A 2002–2003 outbreak of measles in Italy, "which led to the hospitalizations of more than 5,000 people, had a combined estimated cost between 17.6 million euros and 22.0 million euros".
- A 2004 outbreak of measles from "an unvaccinated student return[ing] from India in 2004 to Iowa was $142,452".

- A 2006 outbreak of mumps in Chicago, "caused by poorly immunized employees, cost the institution $262,788, or $29,199 per mumps case".
- A 2007 outbreak of mumps in Nova Scotia cost $3,511 per case.
- A 2008 outbreak of measles in San Diego, California cost $177,000, or $10,376 per case.

In the United States, Jenny McCarthy blamed vaccinations for her son Evan's disorders and leveraged her celebrity status to warn parents of a link between vaccines and autism. Evan's disorder began with seizures and his improvement occurred after the seizures were treated, symptoms experts have noted are more consistent with Landau–Kleffner syndrome, often misdiagnosed as autism.^[98] After the Lancet article was discredited, McCarthy continued to defend Wakefield.^[99] An article in Salon.com called McCarthy "a menace" for her continued position that vaccines are dangerous.^[100]

Bill Gates has reacted strongly to Wakefield and the work of anti-vaccination groups:^[101]

Dr. [Andrew] Wakefield has been shown to have used absolutely fraudulent data. He had a financial interest in some lawsuits, he created a fake paper, the journal allowed it to run. All the other studies were done, showed no connection whatsoever again and again and again. So it's an absolute lie that has killed thousands of kids. Because the mothers who heard that lie, many of them didn't have their kids take either pertussis or measles vaccine, and their children are dead today. And so the people who go and engage in those anti-vaccine efforts—you know, they, they kill children. It's a very sad thing, because these vaccines are important.

The proportion of children in England receiving the vaccine by the age of two fell to 91.2% in 2017–18, from 91.6% the year before. Only 87.2% of five-year-olds had received both MMR vaccines.^[102]

With the onset of a large number of measles outbreaks in the United States in 2019, there is fear that parents who have not had their children vaccinated will help to spread infectious diseases in schools and universities where there are already other outbreaks.^[103]

See also

- Vaccine shedding
- Folk epidemiology of autism
- Measles resurgence in the United States

References

1. Di Pietrantonj, C; Rivetti, A; Marchione, P; Debalini, MG; Demicheli, V (April 2020). "Vaccines for measles, mumps, rubella, and varicella in children" (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC7169657>). Cochrane Database of Systematic Reviews. 4: CD004407. doi:10.1002/14651858.CD004407.pub4 (<https://doi.org/10.1002%2F14651858.CD004407.pub4>). PMC 7169657 (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC7169657>). PMID 32309885 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/32309885>).
2. Flaherty, Dennis K. (October 2011). "The vaccine-autism connection: a public health crisis caused by unethical medical practices and fraudulent science". The Annals of Pharmacotherapy. 45 (10): 1302–1304. doi:10.1345/aph.1Q318 (<https://doi.org/10.1345%2Faph.1Q318>). ISSN 1542-6270 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/1542-6270>). PMID 21917556 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/21917556>). S2CID 39479569 (<https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:39479569>).

3. Dyer, Clare (2 February 2010). "Lancet retracts Wakefield's MMR paper" (<https://www.bmj.com/content/340/bmj.c696>). BMJ. 340: c696. doi:10.1136/bmj.c696 (<https://doi.org/10.1136%2Fbmj.c696>). ISSN 0959-8138 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/0959-8138>). PMID 20124366 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/20124366>). S2CID 43465004 (<https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:43465004>).
4. "Public Health Education" (<https://sites.psu.edu/kyraschwartztechwriting/2015/10/15/public-health-education/>). KYRA SCHWARTZ TECHNICAL WRITING SAMPLES. Retrieved 3 February 2019.
5. Goldacre, B (30 August 2008). "The MMR hoax" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20150206073230/http://www.theguardian.com/society/2008/aug/30/mmr.health.media>). The Guardian. London. Archived from the original (<https://www.theguardian.com/society/2008/aug/30/mmr.health.media>) on 6 February 2015. Retrieved 30 August 2008. Alt URL (<http://www.badsience.net/2008/08/the-medias-mmr-hoax/>)
6. Hussain, Azhar; Ali, Syed; Ahmed, Madiha; Hussain, Sheharyar (2018). "The Anti-vaccination Movement: A Regression in Modern Medicine" (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC6122668>). Cureus. 10 (7): e2919. doi:10.7759/cureus.2919 (<https://doi.org/10.7759%2Fcureus.2919>). ISSN 2168-8184 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/2168-8184>). PMC 6122668 (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC6122668>). PMID 30186724 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/30186724>).
7. Gross, Liza (26 May 2009). "A Broken Trust: Lessons from the Vaccine–Autism Wars" (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC2682483>). PLOS Biology. 7 (5): e1000114. doi:10.1371/journal.pbio.1000114 (<https://doi.org/10.1371%2Fjournal.pbio.1000114>). ISSN 1544-9173 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/1544-9173>). PMC 2682483 (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC2682483>). PMID 19478850 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/19478850>).
8. McIntyre, P; Leask, J (2008). "Improving uptake of MMR vaccine" (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC2287215>). The BMJ. 336 (7647): 729–30. doi:10.1136/bmj.39503.508484.80 (<https://doi.org/10.1136%2Fbmj.39503.508484.80>). PMC 2287215 (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC2287215>). PMID 18309963 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/18309963>).
9. Pepys, MB (2007). "Science and serendipity" (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC4954362>). Clinical Medicine. 7 (6): 562–78. doi:10.7861/clinmedicine.7-6-562 (<https://doi.org/10.7861%2Fclinmedicine.7-6-562>). PMC 4954362 (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC4954362>). PMID 18193704 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/18193704>).
10. "Measles, mumps, and rubella (MMR) vaccine" (https://web.archive.org/web/20080407015528/http://www.cdc.gov/vaccinesafety/concerns/mmr_autism_factsheet.htm). Centers for Disease Control and Prevention. 22 August 2008. Archived from the original (http://cdc.gov/vaccinesafety/concerns/mmr_autism_factsheet.htm) on 7 April 2008. Retrieved 21 December 2008.
11. Institute of Medicine (US) Immunization Safety Review Committee (17 May 2004). Immunization Safety Review: Vaccines and Autism (<https://web.archive.org/web/20091026043205/http://www.iom.edu/reports/2004/immunization-safety-review-vaccines-and-autism.aspx>). Institute of Medicine of the National Academy of Sciences. doi:10.17226/10997 (<https://doi.org/10.17226%2F10997>). ISBN 978-0-309-09237-1. PMID 20669467 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/20669467>). Archived from the original (<http://www.iom.edu/Reports/2004/Immunization-Safety-Review-Vaccines-and-Autism.aspx>) on 26 October 2009. Retrieved 13 June 2007.
12. "MMR The facts" (http://webarchive.nationalarchives.gov.uk/20130107105354/http://www.dh.gov.uk/en/Publicationsandstatistics/Publications/PublicationsPolicyAndGuidance/DH_4002972). NHS Immunisation Information. 2004. Archived from the original (http://www.dh.gov.uk/en/Publicationsandstatistics/Publications/PublicationsPolicyAndGuidance/DH_4002972) on 7 January 2013. Retrieved 19 September 2007.
13. Di Pietrantonj, Carlo; Rivetti, Alessandro; Marchione, Pasquale; Debalini, Maria Grazia; Demicheli, Vittorio (20 April 2020). "Vaccines for measles, mumps, rubella, and varicella in children" (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC7169657>). The Cochrane Database of Systematic Reviews. 4: CD004407. doi:10.1002/14651858.CD004407.pub4 (<https://doi.org/10.1002%2F14651858.CD004407.pub4>). ISSN 1469-493X (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/1469-493X>). PMC 7169657 (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC7169657>). PMID 32309885 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/32309885>).

14. Flaherty, Dennis K (October 2011). "The vaccine-autism connection: a public health crisis caused by unethical medical practices and fraudulent science". Annals of Pharmacotherapy. 45 (10): 1302–4. doi:10.1345/aph.1Q318 (<https://doi.org/10.1345%2Faph.1Q318>). PMID 21917556 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/21917556/>). S2CID 39479569 (<https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:39479569>).
15. Gever, John (5 January 2011). "BMJ Lifts Curtain on MMR-Autism Fraud" (<http://www.medpagetoday.com/Pediatrics/Autism/24203>). MedPage Today. Retrieved 8 January 2011.
16. Godlee, F (January 2011). "The fraud behind the MMR scare" (<http://www.bmj.com/content/342/bmj.d22.full>). The BMJ. 342 (jan06 1): d22. doi:10.1136/bmj.d22 (<https://doi.org/10.1136%2Fbmj.d22>). S2CID 73020733 (<https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:73020733>).
17. Deer, Brian (6 January 2011). "Brian Deer: Piltdown medicine: The missing link between MMR and autism" (<http://blogs.bmj.com/bmj/2011/01/06/brian-deer-piltdown-medicine-the-missing-link-between-mmr-and-autism/>). BMJ Group Blogs. Retrieved 8 January 2011.
18. "Link between MMR Vaccines and Autism conclusively broken" (<http://www.ibtimes.com/articles/98531/20110107/link-between-mmr-vaccines-and-autism-conclusively-broken.htm>). IB Times. 7 January 2011. Retrieved 8 January 2011.
19. Broyd, Nicky (6 January 2011). "BMJ Declares Vaccine-Autism Study 'an Elaborate Fraud', 1998 Lancet Study Not Bad Science but Deliberate Fraud, Claims Journal" (<http://www.webmd.com/brain/autism/news/20110106/bmj-declares-vaccine-autism-study-fraud>). WebMD Health News. Retrieved 8 January 2011.
20. Poland, GA; Jacobson, RM (13 January 2011). "The Age-Old Struggle against the Antivaccinationists". The New England Journal of Medicine. 364 (2): 97–9. doi:10.1056/NEJMp1010594 (<https://doi.org/10.1056%2FNEJMp1010594>). PMID 21226573 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/21226573/>).
21. Jasek, Marissa (6 January 2011). "Healthwatch: Disputed autism study sparks debate about vaccines" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20110724093057/http://www.wwaytv3.com/healthwatch-disputed-autism-study-sparks-debate-about-vaccines/01/2011>). WWAY Newschannel 3. Archived from the original (<http://www.wwaytv3.com/healthwatch-disputed-autism-study-sparks-debate-about-vaccines/01/2011>) on 24 July 2011. Retrieved 7 January 2011.
22. The Sunday Times 2004:
 - Deer, Brian (22 February 2004). "Revealed: MMR research scandal" (<http://www.timesonline.co.uk/tol/news/uk/health/article1027603.ece>). The Sunday Times. London. Retrieved 23 September 2007.
 - Deer, Brian (2007). "The Lancet scandal" (<http://briandeer.com/mmr-lancet.htm>). Retrieved 23 September 2007.
23. 2004 BBC documentary:
 - Deer, Brian (2007). "The Wakefield factor" (<http://briandeer.com/wakefield-deer.htm>). Retrieved 23 September 2007.
 - Deer, Brian (2004). "Dispatches. MMR: What They Didn't Tell You" (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC534460>). The BMJ. 329 (7477): 1293. doi:10.1136/bmj.329.7477.1293 (<https://doi.org/10.1136%2Fbmj.329.7477.1293>). PMC 534460 (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC534460>).
24. Deer, Brian (8 February 2009). "MMR doctor Andrew Wakefield fixed data on autism" (<http://www.the-sundaytimes.co.uk/sto/public/news/article148992.ece>). The Sunday Times. London. Retrieved 9 February 2009.
25. Boseley, Sarah (2 February 2010). "Lancet retracts 'utterly false' MMR paper" (<https://www.theguardian.com/society/2010/feb/02/lancet-retracts-mmr-paper>). The Guardian. London. Retrieved 14 January 2015.
26. Trigg, Nick (24 May 2010). "MMR doctor struck off register" (<http://news.bbc.co.uk/1/hi/health/8695267.stm>). BBC News. Retrieved 24 May 2010.

27. Godlee F, Smith J, Marcovitch H (2011). "Wakefield's article linking MMR vaccine and autism was fraudulent" (<http://www.bmj.com/content/342/bmj.c7452.full>). The BMJ. 342: c7452. doi:10.1136/bmj.c7452 (<https://doi.org/10.1136%2Fbmj.c7452>). PMID 21209060 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/21209060>). S2CID 43640126 (<https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:43640126>).
28. Deer, Brian (2011). "Wakefield's article linking MMR vaccine and autism was fraudulent" (<http://www.bmj.com/content/342/bmj.c5347.full>). The BMJ. 342: c5347. doi:10.1136/bmj.c5347 (<https://doi.org/10.1136%2Fbmj.c5347>). PMID 21209059 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/21209059>).
29. Calvert N, Cutts F, Irving R, Brown D, Marsh J, Miller E (February 1996). "Measles immunity and response to revaccination among secondary school children in Cumbria" (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC2271248>). Epidemiology & Infection. 116 (1): 65–70. doi:10.1017/S0950268800058969 (<https://doi.org/10.1017%2FS0950268800058969>). PMC 2271248 (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC2271248>). PMID 8626005 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/8626005>).
30. Miller, E (October 1994). "The new measles campaign" (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC2541903>). The BMJ. 309 (6962): 1102–3. doi:10.1136/bmj.309.6962.1102 (<https://doi.org/10.1136%2Fbmj.309.6962.1102>). PMC 2541903 (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC2541903>). PMID 7987096 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/7987096>).
31. Cutts, FT (March 1996). "Revaccination against measles and rubella" (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC2350416>). The BMJ. 312 (7031): 589–90. doi:10.1136/bmj.312.7031.589 (<https://doi.org/10.1136%2Fbmj.312.7031.589>). PMC 2350416 (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC2350416>). PMID 8595319 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/8595319>).
32. "Richard Barr original writing site" (<http://www.richardbarr.org/#/mmr/4511615194>). www.richardbarr.org.
33. Fitzpatrick, Michael. "spiked-health | Medicine on trial" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20160625005008/http://www.spiked-online.com/Articles/00000006E019.htm>). Spiked-online.com. Archived from the original (<http://www.spiked-online.com/articles/00000006E019.htm>) on 25 June 2016. Retrieved 8 January 2011.
34. Wakefield AJ, Pittilo RM, Sim R, et al. (1993). "Evidence of Persistent Measles Virus in Crohn's Disease". Journal of Medical Virology. 39 (4): 345–53. doi:10.1002/jmv.1890390415 (<https://doi.org/10.1002%2Fjmv.1890390415>). PMID 8492105 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/8492105>).
35. Thompson, N.P; Pounder, R.E; Wakefield, A.J; Montgomery, S.M (1995). "Is Measles Vaccine a Risk for Inflammatory Bowel Disease?". The Lancet. 345 (8957): 1071–74. doi:10.1016/s0140-6736(95)90816-1 (<https://doi.org/10.1016%2Fs0140-6736%2895%2990816-1>). PMID 7715338 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/7715338>). S2CID 30683685 (<https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:30683685>).
36. "On Second Looking Into the Case of Dr. Andrew J. Wakefield" (https://web.archive.org/web/20100525081504/http://www.wesupportandywakefield.com/documents/AutismFile_US31_Wakefield.pdf) (PDF). Archived from the original (http://www.wesupportandywakefield.com/documents/AutismFile_US31_Wakefield.pdf) (PDF) on 25 May 2010. Retrieved 19 May 2010.
37. Fitzpatrick, M (2004). MMR and Autism: What Parents Need to Know (<https://books.google.com/books?id=XMWuvsJ1WY4C>). Routledge. ISBN 978-0-415-32179-2. Retrieved 2 February 2011.
38. "The Lancet retracts Andrew Wakefield's article" (<https://sciencebasedmedicine.org/lancet-retracts-wakefield-article/>). Science-Based Medicine. 3 February 2010. Retrieved 3 February 2019.
39. Moore, Andrew (2006). "Bad science in the headlines: Who takes responsibility when science is distorted in the mass media?" (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC1794697>). EMBO Reports. 7 (12): 1193–1196. doi:10.1038/sj.embor.7400862 (<https://doi.org/10.1038%2Fsj.embor.7400862>). PMC 1794697 (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC1794697>). PMID 17139292 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/17139292>).

40. Hilton, S; Petticrew, M; Hunt, K (2007). "Parents' champions vs. vested interests: Who do parents believe about MMR? A qualitative study" (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC1851707>). BMC Public Health. 7: 42. doi:10.1186/1471-2458-7-42 (<https://doi.org/10.1186%2F1471-2458-7-42>). PMC 1851707 (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC1851707>). PMID 17391507 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/17391507>).
41. Speers, T; Justin, L (September 2004). "Journalists and jabs: media coverage of the MMR vaccine". Communication and Medicine. 1 (2): 171–181. doi:10.1515/come.2004.1.2.171 (<https://doi.org/10.1515%2Fcome.2004.1.2.171>). PMID 16808699 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/16808699>). S2CID 29969819 (<https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:29969819>).
42. Jackson, T (2003). "MMR: more scrutiny, please" (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC1126154>). The BMJ. 326 (7401): 1272. doi:10.1136/bmj.326.7401.1272 (<https://doi.org/10.1136%2Fbmj.326.7401.1272>). PMC 1126154 (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC1126154>).
43. Dobson, Roger (May 2003). "Media misled the public over the MMR vaccine, study says" (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC1150987>). The BMJ. 326 (7399): 1107. doi:10.1136/bmj.326.7399.1107-a (<https://doi.org/10.1136%2Fbmj.326.7399.1107-a>). PMC 1150987 (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC1150987>). PMID 12763972 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/12763972>).
44. Katelaris, A (17 August 2007). "Wakefield saga a study in integrity" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20070908211909/http://www.australiandoctor.com.au/news/bf/0c04f2bf.asp>). Australian Doctor. 20. Archived from the original (<http://www.australiandoctor.com.au/news/bf/0c04f2bf.asp>) on 8 September 2007.
45. "Reputation Survey: MMR panic subsides" (<http://www.prweek.com/uk/news/1007378/Reputation-survey-MMR-panic-subsides>). PR Week, 2 June 2010: 24.
46. Goldberg, Robert M., "Andrew Wakefield's Lethal Legacy" (<http://spectator.org/archives/2011/01/07/andrew-wakefields-lethal-legac>) Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20110110035155/http://spectator.org/archives/2011/01/07/andrew-wakefields-lethal-legac>) 10 January 2011 at the Wayback Machine, The American Spectator, 7 January 2011. Retrieved 11 January 2011.
47. "Vaccines: An Unhealthy Skepticism" (<http://www.retroreport.org/video/vaccines-an-unhealthy-skepticism/>). Retro Report. 1 February 2015. Retrieved 31 July 2015.
48. Cameron, Neil (12 January 2011). "Autism 'study' represents a failure of journalism" (<https://montrealgazette.com/health/Autism+study+represents+failure+journalism/4095111/story.html>). The Montreal Gazette. Retrieved 12 January 2011.
49. "False autism study has done untold harm" (<https://montrealgazette.com/health/False+autism+study+done+untold+harm/4086366/story.html>). The Montreal Gazette. 10 January 2011. Retrieved 12 January 2011.
50. Willingham, E (8 August 2013). "Court Rulings Don't Confirm Autism-Vaccine Link" (<https://www.forbes.com/sites/emilywillingham/2013/08/09/court-rulings-dont-confirm-autism-vaccine-link/>). Forbes. Retrieved 13 August 2013.
51. Bocci, Michele (1 March 2015). "Autismo, i giudici assolvono il vaccino ("Autism, the judges acquit the vaccine")" (http://www.repubblica.it/salute/medicina/2015/03/01/news/autismo_i_giudici_assolvono_il_vaccino-108441541/). La Repubblica (in Italian). Retrieved 4 March 2015.
52. Yoshida N, Fujino M, Ota Y, et al. (26 January 2007). "Simple differentiation method of mumps Hoshino vaccine strain from wild strains by reverse transcription loop-mediated isothermal amplification (RT-LAMP)". Vaccine. 25 (7): 1281–1286. doi:10.1016/j.vaccine.2006.09.093 (<https://doi.org/10.1016%2Fj.vaccine.2006.09.093>). PMID 17097200 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/17097200>).
53. "Why Japan stopped using MMR" (<http://news.bbc.co.uk/2/hi/asia-pacific/1808316.stm>). BBC news. 8 February 2002.
54. Norrie, Justin (27 May 2007). "Japanese measles epidemic brings campuses to standstill" (<http://www.smh.com.au/news/world/japanese-measles-epidemic-brings-campus-to-standstill/2007/05/27/1180205052602.html>). The Sydney Morning Herald.

55. Kakuchi, Suvendrini (25 February 2003). "Health-Japan: Vaccine Manufacturer Sued over deaths" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20111112045809/http://consumercide.com/health/japan-mmr.html>). Consumercide.com. New York. Global Information Network. Archived from the original (<http://consumercide.com/health/japan-mmr.html>) on 12 November 2011.
56. Coghlan, Andy (3 March 2005). "Autism rises despite MMR ban in Japan" (<https://www.newscientist.com/article/dn7076-autism-rises-despite-mmr-ban-in-japan.html>). New Scientist.
57. Honda, Hideo; Shimizu, Yasuo; Rutter, Michael (18 February 2005). "No effect of MMR withdrawal on the incidence of autism: a total population study" (<https://archive.today/20100920074510/http://www3.interscience.wiley.com/journal/118735419/abstract>). Journal of Child Psychology and Psychiatry. 46 (6): 572–579. doi:10.1111/j.1469-7610.2005.01425.x (<https://doi.org/10.1111%2Fj.1469-7610.2005.01425.x>). PMID 15877763 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/15877763/>). Archived from the original (<http://www3.interscience.wiley.com/journal/118735419/abstract>) on 20 September 2010.
58. Chou, I-han (2003). "Japanese scientists plan MMR alternative" (<https://doi.org/10.1038%2Fnm1103-1337b>). Nature Medicine. 9 (11): 1337. doi:10.1038/nm1103-1337b (<https://doi.org/10.1038%2Fnm1103-1337b>). PMID 14595415 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/14595415/>). S2CID 45255392 (<https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:45255392>).
59. "comments on MMR vaccine" (<http://www.foiacentre.com/news-MMR-comment.html>). FOIA Centre. Retrieved 8 January 2011.
60. "Families win lawsuit over MMR vaccine" (http://www.japantimes.co.jp/news/2003/03/14/national/families-win-lawsuit-over-mmr-vaccine/#.UnP_HpSxO3M). The Japan Times. 14 March 2003. Retrieved 8 January 2011.
61. "High court rules state responsible for vaccine side effects" (<http://www.tmcnet.com/usubmit/2006/04/20/1589848.htm>). Kyodo: TMCnet News. Japan Economic Newswire. 20 April 2006. Retrieved 8 January 2011.
62. "Approved Judgment" (<http://briandeer.com/wakefield/keith-judgment.doc>). briandeer.com. 23 May 2007. Retrieved 28 April 2018.
63. "FOIA Centre news: MMR group legal claim collapses in high court" (<http://www.foiacentre.com/news-MMR-070608.html>). FOIA Centre. Retrieved 8 January 2011.
64. Fitzpatrick, M (4 July 2007). "'The MMR–autism theory? There's nothing in it'" (<http://spiked-online.com/index.php?/site/article/3562/>). spiked. Retrieved 22 January 2008.
65. "Omnibus Autism Proceeding I US Court of Federal Claims" (<http://www.uscfc.uscourts.gov/omnibus-autism-proceeding>). Uscfc.uscourts.gov. Retrieved 8 January 2011.
66. "Editorial: Vaccines Exonerated on Autism" (https://www.nytimes.com/2009/02/13/opinion/13fri2.html?_r=0). The New York Times. 12 February 2009. Retrieved 1 November 2013.
67. Cedillo v. HHS (<ftp://autism.uscfc.uscourts.gov/autism/vaccine/Hastings-Cedillo.pdf>) (PDF), U.S. Court of Federal Claims, Office of Special Masters, No. 98-916V (12 February 2009). Retrieved 25 March 2009.
68. "Entitlement Ruling" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20090514063807/http://www.uscfc.uscourts.gov/sites/default/files/Abell.BANKS.02-0738V.pdf>) (PDF). Archived from the original (<http://www.uscfc.uscourts.gov/sites/default/files/Abell.BANKS.02-0738V.pdf>) (PDF) on 14 May 2009. Retrieved 23 May 2010.
69. Vaccines and Autism: The Unending Story (<http://www.thedailybeast.com/newsweek/blogs/lab-notes/2009/02/25/vaccines-and-autism-the-unending-story.html>) Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20160121164405/http://www.thedailybeast.com/newsweek/blogs/lab-notes/2009/02/25/vaccines-and-autism-the-unending-story.html>) 21 January 2016 at the Wayback Machine, thedailybeast.com
70. "Robert F. Kennedy, Jr. and David Kirby: Vaccine Court: Autism Debate Continues" (http://www.huffpost.com/robert-f-kennedy-jr-and-david-kirby/vaccine-court-autism-deba_b_169673.html). HuffPost. Retrieved 8 January 2011.

71. Rutter, M (2005). "Incidence of autism spectrum disorders: changes over time and their meaning". Acta Paediatrica. 94 (1): 2–15. doi:10.1111/j.1651-2227.2005.tb01779.x (https://doi.org/10.1111%2Fj.1651-2227.2005.tb01779.x). PMID 15858952 (https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/15858952). S2CID 79259285 (https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:79259285).
72. Jefferson T, Price D, Demicheli V, Bianco E (2003). "Unintended events following immunization with MMR: a systematic review". Vaccine. 21 (25–26): 3954–60. doi:10.1016/S0264-410X(03)00271-8 (https://doi.org/10.1016%2FS0264-410X%2803%2900271-8). PMID 12922131 (https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/12922131).
73. DeStefano, F; Thompson, WW (February 2004). "MMR vaccine and autism: an update of the scientific evidence". Expert Review of Vaccines. 3 (1): 19–22. doi:10.1586/14760584.3.1.19 (https://doi.org/10.1586%2F14760584.3.1.19). PMID 14761240 (https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/14761240). S2CID 36898414 (https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:36898414).
74. Doja, A; Roberts, W (November 2006). "Immunizations and autism: a review of the literature" (https://doi.org/10.1017%2Fs031716710000528x). Canadian Journal of Neurological Sciences. 33 (4): 341–6. doi:10.1017/s031716710000528x (https://doi.org/10.1017%2Fs031716710000528x). PMID 17168158 (https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/17168158).
75. Wakefield, Andrew Jeremy (1999). "MMR vaccination and autism" (https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC56739). The Lancet. 354 (9182): 949–50. doi:10.1016/S0140-6736(05)75696-8 (https://doi.org/10.1016%2FS0140-6736%2805%2975696-8). PMC 56739 (https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC56739). PMID 10489978 (https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/10489978).
76. Cox, AR; Kirkham, H (2007). "A case study of a graphical misrepresentation: drawing the wrong conclusions about the measles, mumps and rubella virus vaccine". Drug Safety. 30 (10): 831–6. doi:10.2165/00002018-200730100-00002 (https://doi.org/10.2165%2F00002018-200730100-00002). PMID 17867721 (https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/17867721). S2CID 24702919 (https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:24702919).
77. DeStefano, F (2007). "Vaccines and autism: evidence does not support a causal association". Clinical Pharmacology & Therapeutics. 82 (6): 756–9. doi:10.1038/sj.clpt.6100407 (https://doi.org/10.1038%2Fsj.clpt.6100407). PMID 17928818 (https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/17928818).
78. Gerber, JS; Offit, PA (2009). "Vaccines and autism: a tale of shifting hypotheses" (https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC2908388). Clinical Infectious Diseases. 48 (4): 456–61. doi:10.1086/596476 (https://doi.org/10.1086%2F596476). PMC 2908388 (https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC2908388). PMID 19128068 (https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/19128068). Lay summary (http://www.idsociety.org/Content.aspx?id=13336) – IDSA (30 January 2009).
79. Taylor LE, Swerdfeger AL, Eslick GD (June 2014). "Vaccines are not associated with autism: an evidence-based meta-analysis of case-control and cohort studies". Vaccine. 32 (29): 3623–9. doi:10.1016/j.vaccine.2014.04.085 (https://doi.org/10.1016%2Fj.vaccine.2014.04.085). PMID 24814559 (https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/24814559).
80. Maglione MA, Das L, Raaen L, et al. (August 2014). "Safety of vaccines used for routine immunization of U.S. children: a systematic review" (https://cloudfront.escholarship.org/dist/prd/content/qt2f93s53t/qt2f93s53t.pdf) (PDF). Pediatrics. 134 (2): 325–37. doi:10.1542/peds.2014-1079 (https://doi.org/10.1542%2Fpeds.2014-1079). PMID 25086160 (https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/25086160). S2CID 514220 (https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:514220).
81. "No Association between MMR Vaccine and Autism" (https://en.ssi.dk/news/news/2019/no-association-between-mmr-vaccine-and-autism). 4 March 2019.
82. "Measles, Mumps, Rubella Vaccination and Autism" (https://annals.org/aim/article-abstract/2727726/measles-mumps-rubella-vaccination-autism-nationwide-cohort-study). Annals of Internal Medicine / American College of Physicians. 5 March 2019. Retrieved 7 March 2019. "The study strongly supports that MMR vaccination does not increase the risk for autism, does not trigger autism in susceptible children, and is not associated with clustering of autism cases after vaccination"

83. Murch, S (2003). "Separating inflammation from speculation in autism". The Lancet. 362 (9394): 1498–9. doi:10.1016/S0140-6736(03)14699-5 (https://doi.org/10.1016/S0140-6736\(03\)14699-5). PMID 14602448 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/14602448>). S2CID 40071957 (<https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:40071957>).
84. Asaria, P; MacMahon, E (2006). "Measles in the United Kingdom: can we eradicate it by 2010?" (<http://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC1626346>). The BMJ. 333 (7574): 890–5. doi:10.1136/bmj.38989.445845.7C (<https://doi.org/10.1136%2Fbmj.38989.445845.7C>). PMC 1626346 (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC1626346>). PMID 17068034 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/17068034>).
85. Gupta RK, Best J, MacMahon E (2005). "Mumps and the UK epidemic 2005" (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC557899>). The BMJ. 330 (7500): 1132–5. doi:10.1136/bmj.330.7500.1132 (<http://doi.org/10.1136%2Fbmj.330.7500.1132>). PMC 557899 (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC557899>). PMID 15891229 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/15891229>).
86. "England and Wales in grip of mumps epidemic" (http://www.nzherald.co.nz/index.cfm?c_id=2&ObjectID=10125382). N Z Herald. 13 May 2005. Retrieved 10 July 2008.
87. "Mumps" (https://web.archive.org/web/20070502002924/http://www.hpa.org.uk/infections/topics_az/mumps/gen_info.htm). Health Protection Agency. Archived from the original (http://www.hpa.org.uk/infections/topics_az/mumps/gen_info.htm) on 2 May 2007. Retrieved 10 July 2008.
88. "Confirmed cases of measles, mumps & rubella" (http://www.hpa.org.uk/infections/topics_az/measles/data_mmr_confirmed.htm). Health Protection Agency. 22 March 2007. Retrieved 5 September 2007.
89. European Centre for Disease Prevention and Control (ECDC) – Surveillance and Communication Unit (2008). "Measles once again endemic in the United Kingdom" (<http://www.eurosurveillance.org/ViewArticle.aspx?ArticleId=18919>). Eurosurveillance. 13 (27): 18919. PMID 18761933 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/18761933>).
90. "MMR vaccine uptake rise 'stalls'" (<http://news.bbc.co.uk/1/hi/health/7633115.stm>). BBC News. 24 September 2008. Retrieved 24 September 2008.
91. "Study linking vaccines to autism is 'fraudulent'" (<http://healthland.time.com/2011/01/06/study-linking-vaccines-to-autism-is-fraudulent/>). Time. 6 January 2011. Retrieved 7 January 2011.
92. Gupta, Sanjay (6 January 2011). "Dr. Sanjay Gupta Confronts Autism Study Doctor" (<http://www.cbsnews.com/stories/2011/01/06/eveningnews/main7220709.shtml>). CBS Evening News. Retrieved 8 January 2011. "Four children died from measles,' says Offit. 'Three died in Ireland, one died in England, died from a disease that was perfectly and safely prevented by a vaccine, died because of that paper. That paper killed four children.'"
93. McBrien J, Murphy J, Gill D, Cronin M, O'Donovan C, Cafferkey MT (July 2003). "Measles outbreak in Dublin, 2000". The Pediatric Infectious Disease Journal. 22 (7): 580–4. doi:10.1097/00006454-200307000-00002 (<https://doi.org/10.1097%2F00006454-200307000-00002>). PMID 12867830 (<http://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/12867830>).
94. "Will autism fraud report be a vaccine booster?" (http://usatoday30.usatoday.com/yourlife/health/medical/2011-01-07-boost-vaccines_N.htm). Associated Press. 7 January 2011. Retrieved 8 January 2011.
95. Smith MJ, Ellenberg SS, Bell LM, Rubin DM (April 2008). "Media coverage of the measles-mumps-rubella vaccine and autism controversy and its relationship to MMR immunization rates in the United States" (<http://pediatrics.aappublications.org/cgi/content/full/121/4/e836>). Pediatrics. 121 (4): e836–43. CiteSeerX 10.1.1.317.3211 (<https://citeseerx.ist.psu.edu/viewdoc/summary?doi=10.1.1.317.3211>). doi:10.1542/peds.2007-1760 (<https://doi.org/10.1542%2Fpeds.2007-1760>). PMID 18381512 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/18381512>). S2CID 1448617 (<https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:1448617>).

96. Harlow, John (17 February 2014). "Measles map exposes global fallout of an autism scare campaign" (<http://www.theaustralian.com.au/news/world/measles-map-exposes-global-fallout-of-an-autism-scare-campaign/story-fnb64oi6-1226828830190#>). The Australian. Retrieved 18 February 2014.
97. Alazraki, Molly (12 January 2011). "The Autism Vaccine Fraud: Dr. Wakefield's Costly Lie to Society" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20110115040538/http://www.dailyfinance.com/story/autism-vaccine-fraud-wakefield-cost-money-deaths/19793484/>). AOL Money and Finance: DailyFinance. Archived from the original (<http://www.dailyfinance.com/story/autism-vaccine-fraud-wakefield-cost-money-deaths/19793484/>) on 15 January 2011. Retrieved 13 January 2011 – via Wayback Machine.
98. Greenfeld, KT (25 February 2010). "The autism debate: who's afraid of Jenny McCarthy?" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20110805041329/http://www.time.com/time/magazine/article/0%2C9171%2C1968100%2C00.html>). Time. Archived from the original (<http://www.time.com/time/nation/article/0,8599,1967796-1,00.html>) on 5 August 2011.
99. McCarthy, Jenny (10 January 2011). "Jenny McCarthy: In the Vaccine-Autism Debate, What Can Parents Believe?" (http://www.huffingtonpost.com/jenny-mccarthy/vaccine-autism-debate_b_806857.html). The Huffington Post. Retrieved 22 September 2013.
00. Williams, Mary Elizabeth (6 January 2011). "Jenny McCarthy's autism fight grows more misguided" (http://www.salon.com/life/feature/2011/01/06/jenny_mccarthy_autism_debate/). Salon. Retrieved 22 September 2013.
01. Finnegan, Gary (18 March 2011). "Bill Gates: Anti-vaccine myths 'kill children'" (<https://www.vaccines.today.eu/stories/bill-gates-anti-vaccine-myths-kill-children/>). Vaccines Today. Retrieved 7 January 2018.
02. "Take-up of MMR vaccine falls for fourth year in a row in England" (<https://www.theguardian.com/society/2018/sep/18/take-up-mmr-vaccine-falls-fourth-year-in-a-row-england-measles?>). The Guardian. 18 September 2018. Retrieved 31 October 2018.
03. Karlamangla, Soumya (23 April 2019). "Measles' next target in Los Angeles: Unvaccinated college students" (<https://www.latimes.com/local/lanow/la-me-ln-measles-outbreaks-los-angeles-colleges-20190423-story.html>). Los Angeles Times. Retrieved 24 April 2019.

Further reading

- "The Vaccine War" (<https://www.pbs.org/wgbh/pages/frontline/vaccines/>). Frontline. PBS. 27 April 2010. Retrieved 28 December 2013.
 - Willingham, Emily; Helft, Laura (5 September 2014). "The Autism-Vaccine Myth with Timeline" (<http://www.pbs.org/wgbh/nova/body/autism-vaccine-myth.html>). PBS NOVA.
 - DeNoon, Daniel J (6 January 2011). "Autism/MMR Vaccine Study Faked: FAQ" (<http://www.webmd.com/brain/autism/news/20110105/bmj-wakefield-autism-faq?print=true>). WebMD Health News. Retrieved 27 December 2013.
 - "MMR research timeline" (<http://news.bbc.co.uk/2/hi/health/1808956.stm>). BBC News. 4 February 2008. Retrieved 27 December 2013.
 - Deer, Brian (2020) "The Doctor Who Fooled the World", Johns Hopkins University Press, ISBN 978-1421438009
-

Retrieved from "https://en.wikipedia.org/w/index.php?title=MMR_vaccine_and_autism&oldid=1027709351"

This page was last edited on 9 June 2021, at 14:36 (UTC).

Text is available under the Creative Commons Attribution-ShareAlike License; additional terms may apply. By using this site, you agree to the Terms of Use and Privacy Policy. Wikipedia® is a registered trademark of the Wikimedia Foundation, Inc., a non-profit organization.

Vaccine hesitancy

Vaccine hesitancy refers to a delay in acceptance, or refusal of vaccines despite the availability of vaccine services. Vaccine hesitancy is complex and context specific, varying across time, place and vaccines.^[1] It is influenced by factors such as complacency, convenience and confidence.^[2] The term covers outright refusals to vaccinate, delaying vaccines, accepting vaccines but remaining uncertain about their use, or using certain vaccines but not others.^{[2][3]} Among the hesitant are groups known as "anti-vaxxers" or "anti vax", who are generally against vaccination.^[4]

There is an overwhelming scientific consensus that vaccines are generally safe and effective, and therefore the World Health Organization characterizes vaccine hesitancy as one of the top ten global health threats.^{[5][6][7][8][9][10]}

Hesitancy primarily results from public debates around the medical, ethical and legal issues related to vaccines. Vaccine hesitancy stems from multiple key factors including a person's lack of confidence (mistrust of the vaccine and/or healthcare provider), complacency (the person does not see a need for the vaccine or does not see the value of the vaccine), and convenience (access to vaccines).^[3] It has existed since the invention of vaccination, and pre-dates the coining of the terms "vaccine" and "vaccination" by nearly eighty years. The specific hypotheses raised by anti-vaccination advocates have been found to change over time.^[11] Vaccine hesitancy often results in disease outbreaks and deaths from vaccine-preventable diseases.^{[12][13][14][15][16][17]}

Proposed laws that would mandate vaccination, such as California Senate Bill 277 and Australia's No Jab No Pay, have been opposed by anti-vaccination activists and organizations.^{[18][19][20]} Opposition to mandatory vaccination may be based on anti-vaccine sentiment, concern that it violates civil liberties or reduces public trust in vaccination, or suspicion of profiteering by the pharmaceutical industry.^{[14][21][22][23][24]}

Contents

Effectiveness

- Population health
- Cost-effectiveness
- Necessity

Common themes

- Autism
- Vaccine overload
- Prenatal infection
- Ingredient concerns
- Sudden infant death syndrome
- Anthrax vaccines
- Swine flu vaccine
- Other safety concerns

CIA fake vaccination clinic

Vaccine myths

Events following reductions in vaccination

Stockholm, smallpox \(1873–74\)

UK, pertussis \(1970s–80s\)

Sweden, pertussis \(1979–96\)

Netherlands, measles \(1999–2000\)

UK and Ireland, measles \(2000\)

Nigeria, polio, measles, diphtheria \(2001–\)

United States, measles \(2005–\)

Wales, measles \(2013–\)

United States, tetanus

Romania \(2016–present\)

Samoa, measles \(2019\)

Dealing with vaccine hesitancy

History

Variolation

Smallpox vaccination

Later vaccines and antitoxins

Geographical distribution of vaccine hesitancy

Policy implications

Individual liberty

Children's rights

Religion

Alternative medicine

Chiropractic

Homeopathy

Financial motives

War

Spanish–American War

Vietnam War

Information warfare

See also

References

Further reading

External links

Effectiveness

Scientific evidence for the effectiveness of large-scale vaccination campaigns is well established.^[25] Two to three million deaths are prevented each year worldwide due to vaccination and an additional 1.5 million deaths could be prevented each year if all recommended vaccines were used.^[26] Vaccination campaigns helped eradicate smallpox, which once killed as many as one in seven children in Europe,^[27] and have nearly eradicated polio.^[28] As a more modest example, infections caused by Haemophilus influenzae (Hib), a major cause of bacterial meningitis and other serious diseases in children, have decreased by over 99% in the US since the introduction of a vaccine in 1988.^[29] It is estimated that full vaccination, from birth to adolescence, of all US children born in a given year would save 33,000 lives and prevent 14 million infections.^[30]

Rates of measles fell sharply when universal immunization was introduced.

There is anti-vaccine literature that argues that reductions in infectious disease result from improved sanitation and hygiene (rather than vaccination) or that these diseases were already in decline before the introduction of specific vaccines. These claims are not supported by scientific data; the incidence of vaccine-preventable diseases tended to fluctuate over time until the introduction of specific vaccines, at which point the incidence dropped to near zero. A Centers for Disease Control and Prevention website aimed at countering common misconceptions about vaccines argued, "Are we expected to believe that better sanitation caused the incidence of each disease to drop, just at the time a vaccine for that disease was introduced?"^[31]

Other critics argue that the immunity granted by vaccines is only temporary and requires boosters, whereas those who survive the disease become permanently immune.^[14] As discussed below, the philosophies of some alternative medicine practitioners are incompatible with the idea that vaccines are effective.^[32]

Population health

Incomplete vaccine coverage increases the risk of disease for the entire population, including those who have been vaccinated, because it reduces herd immunity. For example, the measles vaccine is given to children 9–12 months old, and the short window between the disappearance of maternal antibody (before which the vaccine often fails to seroconvert) and natural infection means that vaccinated children are frequently still vulnerable. Herd immunity lessens this vulnerability if all the children are vaccinated. Increasing herd immunity during an outbreak or risk of an outbreak is perhaps the most widely accepted justification for mass vaccination. When a new vaccine is introduced mass vaccination helps increase coverage rapidly.^[35]

If enough of a population is vaccinated, herd immunity takes effect, decreasing risk to people who cannot receive vaccines because they are too young or old, immunocompromised, or have severe allergies to the ingredients in the vaccine.^[36] The outcome for people with compromised immune systems who get infected is often worse than that of the general population.^[37]

Cost-effectiveness

Commonly used vaccines are a cost-effective and preventive way of promoting health, compared to the treatment of acute or chronic disease. In the US during 2001, routine childhood immunizations against seven diseases were estimated to save over $40 billion per birth-year cohort in overall social costs, including $10 billion in direct health costs, and the societal benefit-cost ratio for these vaccinations was estimated to be 16.5.^[38]

Necessity

When a vaccination program successfully reduces the disease threat, it may reduce the perceived risk of disease as cultural memories of the effects of that disease fade. At this point, parents may feel they have nothing to lose by not vaccinating their children.^[39] If enough people hope to become free-riders, gaining the benefits of herd immunity without vaccination, vaccination levels may drop to a level where herd immunity is ineffective.^[40] According to Jennifer Reich, those parents who believe vaccination to be quite effective but might prefer their children to remain unvaccinated, are those who are the most likely to be convinced to change their mind, as long as they are approached properly.^[41]

Charlotte Cleverley-Bisman had all four limbs partially amputated at age seven months due to meningococcal disease.^[33] More widespread vaccination can protect children like Cleverley-Bisman, who are too young to vaccinate, from catching the disease through development of herd immunity.^[34]

Common themes

While some anti-vaccinationists openly deny the improvements vaccination has made to public health, or succumb to conspiracy theories,^[14] it is much more common to cite concerns about safety.^[42] As with any medical treatment, there is a potential for vaccines to cause serious complications, such as severe allergic reactions,^[43] but unlike most other medical interventions, vaccines are given to healthy people and so a higher standard of safety is demanded.^[44] While serious complications from vaccinations are possible, they are extremely rare and much less common than similar risks from the diseases they prevent.^[31] As the success of immunization programs increases and the incidence of disease decreases, public attention shifts away from the risks of disease to the risk of vaccination,^[45] and it becomes challenging for health authorities to preserve public support for vaccination programs.^[46]

The overwhelming success of certain vaccinations has made certain diseases rare and consequently this has led to incorrect heuristic thinking, in weighing risks against benefits, among people who are vaccine-hesitant.^[47] Once such diseases (e.g., Haemophilus influenzae B) decrease in prevalence, people may no longer appreciate how serious the illness is due to a lack of familiarity with it and become complacent.^[47] The lack of personal experience with these diseases reduces the perceived danger and thus reduces the perceived benefit of immunization.^[48] Conversely, certain illnesses (e.g., influenza) remain so common that vaccine-hesitant people mistakenly perceive the illness to be non-threatening despite clear evidence that the illness poses a significant threat to human health.^[47] Omission and disconfirmation biases also contribute to vaccine hesitancy.^{[47][49]}

Various concerns about immunization have been raised. They have been addressed and the concerns are not supported by evidence.^[48] Concerns about immunization safety often follow a pattern. First, some investigators suggest that a medical condition of increasing prevalence or unknown cause is an adverse effect of vaccination. The initial study and subsequent studies by the same group have an inadequate methodology, typically a poorly controlled or uncontrolled case series. A premature announcement is made about the alleged adverse effect, resonating with individuals suffering from the condition, and underestimating the potential harm of forgoing vaccination to those whom the vaccine could protect. Other groups attempt to replicate the initial study but fail to get the same results. Finally, it takes several years to regain public confidence in the vaccine.^[45] Adverse effects ascribed to vaccines typically have an unknown origin, an increasing incidence, some biological plausibility, occurrences close to the time of vaccination, and dreaded outcomes.^[50] In almost all cases, the public health effect is limited by cultural boundaries: English speakers worry about one vaccine causing autism, while French speakers worry about another vaccine causing multiple sclerosis, and Nigerians worry that a third vaccine causes infertility.^[51]

Autism

The idea of a link between vaccines and autism has been extensively investigated and conclusively shown to be false.^{[52][53]} The scientific consensus is that there is no relationship, causal or otherwise, between vaccines and incidence of autism,^{[45][54][55]} and vaccine ingredients do not cause autism.^[56]

Nevertheless, the anti-vaccination movement continues to promote myths, conspiracy theories, and misinformation linking the two.^[57] A developing tactic appears to be the "promotion of irrelevant research [as] an active aggregation of several questionable or peripherally related research studies in an attempt to justify the science underlying a questionable claim".^[58]

Thiomersal

Thiomersal (called "thimerosal" in the US) is an antifungal preservative used in small amounts in some multi-dose vaccines (where the same vial is opened and used for multiple patients) to prevent contamination of the vaccine.^[59] Despite thiomersal's efficacy, the use of thiomersal is controversial because it can be metabolized or degraded in the body to ethylmercury (C₂H₅Hg⁺) and thiosalicylate.^{[60][61]} As a result, in 1999, the Centers for Disease Control (CDC) and the American Academy of Pediatrics (AAP) asked vaccine makers to remove thiomersal from vaccines as quickly as possible on the precautionary principle. Thiomersal is now absent from all common US and European vaccines, except for some preparations of influenza vaccine.^[62] Trace amounts remain in some vaccines due to production processes, at an approximate maximum of one microgramme, around 15% of the average daily mercury intake in the US for adults and 2.5% of the daily level considered tolerable by the WHO.^{[61][63]} The action sparked concern that thiomersal could have been responsible for autism.^[62] The idea is now considered disproven, as incidence rates for autism increased steadily even after thiomersal was removed from childhood vaccines.^[64] Currently there is no accepted scientific evidence that exposure to thiomersal is a factor in causing autism.^{[65][66]} Since 2000, parents in the United States have pursued legal compensation from a federal fund arguing that thiomersal caused autism in their children.^[67] A 2004 Institute of Medicine (IOM) committee favored rejecting any causal relationship between thiomersal-containing vaccines and autism.^[68] The concentration of thiomersal used in vaccines as an antimicrobial agent ranges from 0.001% (1 part in 100,000) to 0.01% (1 part in 10,000).^[69] A vaccine containing 0.01% thiomersal has 25 micrograms of mercury per 0.5 mL dose, roughly the same amount of elemental mercury found in a three-ounce can of tuna.^[69] There is robust peer-reviewed scientific evidence supporting the safety of thiomersal-containing vaccines.^[69]

MMR vaccine

In the UK, the MMR vaccine was the subject of controversy after the publication in The Lancet of a 1998 paper by Andrew Wakefield and others reporting case histories of twelve children mostly with autism spectrum disorders with onset soon after administration of the vaccine.^[70] At a 1998 press conference, Wakefield suggested that giving children the vaccines in three separate doses would be safer than a single vaccination. This suggestion was not supported by the paper, and several subsequent peer-reviewed studies have failed to show any association between the vaccine and autism.^[71] It later emerged that Wakefield had received funding from litigants against vaccine manufacturers and that he had not informed colleagues or medical authorities of his conflict of interest.^[72] Had this been known, publication in The Lancet would not have taken place in the way that it did.^[73] Wakefield has been heavily criticized on scientific and ethical grounds for the way the research was conducted^[74] and for triggering a decline in vaccination rates, which fell in the UK to 80% in the years following the study.^{[75][76]} In 2004, the MMR-and-autism interpretation of the paper was formally retracted by ten of its thirteen coauthors,^[77] and in 2010 The Lancet's editors fully retracted the paper.^[78] Wakefield was struck off the UK medical register, with a statement identifying deliberate falsification in the research published in The Lancet,^[79] and is barred from practicing medicine in the UK.^[80]

The CDC, the IOM of the National Academy of Sciences, Australia's Department of Health, and the UK National Health Service have all concluded that there is no evidence of a link between the MMR vaccine and autism.^{[68][81][82][83]} A Cochrane review concluded that there is no credible link between the MMR vaccine and autism, that MMR has prevented diseases that still carry a heavy burden of death and complications, that the lack of confidence in MMR has damaged public health, and that the design and reporting of safety outcomes in MMR vaccine studies are largely inadequate.^[84] Additional reviews agree, with studies finding that vaccines are not linked to autism even in high risk populations with autistic siblings.^[85]

In 2009, The Sunday Times reported that Wakefield had manipulated patient data and misreported results in his 1998 paper, creating the appearance of a link with autism.^[86] A 2011 article in the British Medical Journal described how the data in the study had been falsified by Wakefield so that it would arrive at a predetermined conclusion.^[87] An accompanying editorial in the same journal described Wakefield's work as an "elaborate fraud" that led to lower vaccination rates, putting hundreds of thousands of children at risk and diverting energy and money away from research into the true cause of autism.^[88]

A special court convened in the United States to review claims under the National Vaccine Injury Compensation Program ruled on February 12, 2009, that parents of autistic children are not entitled to compensation in their contention that certain vaccines caused autism in their children.^[89]

Vaccine overload

Vaccine overload, a non-medical term, is the notion that giving many vaccines at once may overwhelm or weaken a child's immature immune system and lead to adverse effects.^[90] Despite scientific evidence that strongly contradicts this idea,^[64] there are still parents of autistic children that believe that vaccine overload causes autism.^[91] The resulting controversy has caused many parents to delay or avoid immunizing their children.^[90] Such parental misperceptions are major obstacles towards immunization of children.^[92]

The concept of vaccine overload is flawed on several levels.^[64] Despite the increase in the number of vaccines over recent decades, improvements in vaccine design have reduced the immunologic load from vaccines; the total number of immunological components in the 14 vaccines administered to US children in 2009 is less than ten percent of what it was in the seven vaccines given in 1980.^[64] A study published in 2013 found no correlation between autism and the antigen number in the vaccines the children were administered up to the age of two. Of the 1,008 children in the study, one quarter of those diagnosed with autism were born between 1994 and 1999, when the routine vaccine schedule could contain more than 3,000 antigens (in a single shot of DTP vaccine). The vaccine schedule in 2012 contains several more vaccines, but the number of antigens the child is exposed to by the age of two is 315.^{[93][94]} Vaccines pose a very small immunologic load compared to the pathogens naturally encountered by a child in a typical year;^[64] common childhood conditions such as fevers and middle-ear infections pose a much greater challenge to the immune system than vaccines,^[95] and studies have shown that vaccinations, even multiple concurrent vaccinations, do not weaken the immune system^[64] or compromise overall immunity.^[96] The lack of evidence supporting the vaccine overload hypothesis, combined with these findings directly contradicting it, has led to the conclusion that currently recommended vaccine programs do not "overload" or weaken the immune system.^{[45][97][98][99]}

Any experiment based on withholding vaccines from children is considered unethical,^[100] and observational studies would likely be confounded by differences in the healthcare-seeking behaviors of under-vaccinated children. Thus, no study directly comparing rates of autism in vaccinated and unvaccinated children has been done. However, the concept of vaccine overload is biologically implausible, as vaccinated and unvaccinated children have the same immune response to non-vaccine-related infections, and autism is not an immune-mediated disease, so claims that vaccines could cause it by overloading the immune system go against current knowledge of the pathogenesis of autism. As such, the idea that vaccines cause autism has been effectively dismissed by the weight of current evidence.^[64]

Prenatal infection

There is evidence that schizophrenia is associated with prenatal exposure to rubella, influenza, and toxoplasmosis infection. For example, one study found a sevenfold increased risk of schizophrenia when mothers were exposed to influenza in the first trimester of gestation. This may have public health implications, as strategies for preventing infection include vaccination, simple hygiene, and, in the case of toxoplasmosis, antibiotics.^[101] Based on studies in animal models, theoretical concerns have been raised about a possible link between schizophrenia and maternal immune response activated by virus antigens; a 2009 review concluded that there was insufficient evidence to recommend routine use of trivalent influenza vaccine during the first trimester of pregnancy, but that the vaccine was still recommended outside the first trimester and in special circumstances such as pandemics or in women with certain other conditions.^[102] The CDC's Advisory Committee on Immunization Practices, the American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists, and the American Academy of Family Physicians all recommend routine flu shots for pregnant women, for several reasons:^[103]

- their risk for serious influenza-related medical complications during the last two trimesters;
- their greater rates for flu-related hospitalizations compared to non-pregnant women;
- the possible transfer of maternal anti-influenza antibodies to children, protecting the children from the flu; and
- several studies that found no harm to pregnant women or their children from the vaccinations.

Despite this recommendation, only 16% of healthy pregnant US women surveyed in 2005 had been vaccinated against the flu.^[103]

Ingredient concerns

Aluminum compounds are used as immunologic adjuvants to increase the effectiveness of many vaccines.^[104] The aluminum in vaccines simulates or causes small amounts of tissue damage, driving the body to respond more powerfully to what it sees as a serious infection and promoting the development of a lasting immune response.^{[105][106]} In some cases these compounds have been associated with redness, itching, and low-grade fever,^[105] but the use of aluminum in vaccines has not been associated with serious adverse events.^{[104][107]} In some cases, aluminum-containing vaccines are associated with macrophagic myofasciitis (MMF), localized microscopic lesions containing aluminum salts that persist for up to 8 years. However, recent case-controlled studies have found no specific clinical symptoms in individuals with biopsies showing MMF, and there is no evidence that aluminum-containing vaccines are a serious health risk or justify changes to immunization practice.^{[104][107]} Infants are exposed to greater quantities of aluminum in daily life in breastmilk and infant formula than in vaccines.^[2] In general, people are exposed to low levels of naturally occurring aluminum in nearly all foods and drinking water.^[108] The amount of aluminum present in vaccines is small, less than one milligram, and such low levels are not believed to be harmful to human health.^[108]

Vaccine hesitant people have also voiced strong concerns about the presence of formaldehyde in vaccines. Formaldehyde is used in very small concentrations to inactivate viruses and bacterial toxins used in vaccines.^[109] Very small amounts of residual formaldehyde can be present in vaccines but are far below values harmful to human health.^{[110][111]} The levels present in vaccines are minuscule when compared to naturally-occurring levels of formaldehyde in the human body and pose no significant risk of toxicity.^[109] The human body continuously produces formaldehyde naturally and contains 50–70 times the greatest amount of formaldehyde present in any vaccine.^[109] Furthermore, the human body is capable of breaking down naturally occurring formaldehyde as well as the small amount of formaldehyde present in vaccines.^[109] There is no evidence linking the infrequent exposures to small quantities of formaldehyde present in vaccines with cancer.^[109]

Sudden infant death syndrome

Sudden infant death syndrome (SIDS) is most common in infants around the time in life when they receive many vaccinations.^[112] Since the cause of SIDS has not been fully determined, this led to concerns about whether vaccines, in particular diphtheria-tetanus toxoid vaccines, were a possible causal factor.^[112] Several studies investigated this and found no evidence supporting a causal link between vaccination and SIDS.^{[112][113]} In 2003, the Institute of Medicine favored rejection of a causal link to DTwP vaccination and SIDS after reviewing the available evidence.^[114] Additional analyses of VAERS data also showed no relationship between vaccination and SIDS.^[112] In fact, evidence is mounting that vaccination may protect children against SIDS.^{[112][113][115]}

Anthrax vaccines

In the mid-1990s media reports on vaccines discussed the Gulf War Syndrome, a multi-symptomatic disorder affecting returning US military veterans of the 1990–1991 Persian Gulf War. Among the first articles of the online magazine Slate was one by Atul Gawande in which the required immunizations received by soldiers, including an anthrax vaccination, were named as one of the likely culprits for the symptoms associated with the Gulf War Syndrome. In the late 1990s Slate published an article on the "brewing rebellion" in the military against anthrax immunization because of "the availability to soldiers of vaccine misinformation on the Internet". Slate continued to report on concerns about the required anthrax and smallpox immunization for US troops after the September 11 attacks and articles on the subject also appeared on the Salon website.^[116] The 2001 anthrax attacks heightened concerns about bioterrorism and the Federal government of the United States stepped up its efforts to store and create more vaccines for American citizens.^[116] In 2002, Mother Jones published an article that was highly skeptical of the anthrax and smallpox immunization required by the United States Armed Forces.^[116] With the 2003 invasion of Iraq a wider controversy ensued in the media about requiring US troops to be vaccinated against anthrax.^[116] From 2003 to 2008 a series of court cases were brought to oppose the compulsory anthrax vaccination of US troops.^[116]

Swine flu vaccine

The US swine flu immunization campaign in response to the 1976 swine flu outbreak has become known as "the swine flu fiasco" because the outbreak did not lead to a pandemic as US President Gerald Ford had feared and the hastily rolled out vaccine was found to increase the number of Guillain-Barré Syndrome cases two weeks after immunization. Government officials stopped the mass immunization campaign due to great anxiety about the safety of the swine flu vaccine. The general public was left with greater fear of the vaccination campaign than the virus itself and vaccination policies, in general, were challenged.^[117]

U.S. President Gerald Ford receiving his vaccine for the swine flu.

During the 2009 flu pandemic, significant controversy broke out regarding whether the 2009 H1N1 flu vaccine was safe in, among other countries, France. Numerous different French groups publicly criticized the vaccine as potentially dangerous.^[118] Because of similarities between the 2009 influenza A subtype H1N1 virus and the 1976 influenza A/NJ virus many countries established surveillance systems for vaccine-related adverse effects on human health. A possible link between the 2009 H1N1 flu vaccine and Guillain-Barré Syndrome cases was studied in Europe and the United States.^[119]

Other safety concerns

Other safety concerns about vaccines have been promoted on the Internet, in informal meetings, in books, and at symposia. These include hypotheses that vaccination can cause epileptic seizures, allergies, multiple sclerosis, and autoimmune diseases such as type 1 diabetes, as well as hypotheses that vaccinations can transmit bovine spongiform encephalopathy, hepatitis C virus, and HIV. These hypotheses have been investigated, with the conclusion that currently used vaccines meet high safety standards and that criticism of vaccine safety in the popular press is not justified.^{[48][99][120][121]} Large well-controlled epidemiologic studies have been conducted and the results do not support the hypothesis that vaccines cause chronic diseases. Furthermore, some vaccines are probably more likely to prevent or modify than cause or exacerbate autoimmune diseases.^{[98][122]} Another common concern parents often have is about the pain associated with administering vaccines during a doctor's office visit.^[123] This may lead to parental requests to space out vaccinations; however, studies have shown a child's stress response is not different when receiving one vaccination or two. The act of spacing out vaccinations may actually lead to more stressful stimuli for the child.^[2]

CIA fake vaccination clinic

In Pakistan, the CIA ran a fake vaccination clinic in an attempt to locate Osama bin Laden.^{[124][125]} As a direct consequence, there have been several attacks and deaths among vaccination workers. Several Islamist preachers and militant groups, including some factions of the Taliban, view vaccination as a plot to kill or sterilize Muslims.^[126] Efforts to eradicate polio have furthermore been disrupted by American drone strikes.^[124] This is part of the reason Pakistan and Afghanistan are the only countries where polio remained endemic as of 2015.^[127]

Vaccine myths

Several vaccination myths contribute to parental concerns and vaccine hesitancy. These include the alleged superiority of natural infection when compared to vaccination, questioning whether the diseases vaccines prevent are dangerous, whether vaccines pose moral or religious dilemmas, suggesting that vaccines are not effective, proposing unproven or ineffective approaches as alternatives to vaccines, and conspiracy theories that center on mistrust of the government and medical institutions.^[26]

Vaccination during illness

Many parents are concerned about the safety of vaccination when their child is sick.^[2] Moderate to severe acute illness with or without a fever is indeed a precaution when considering vaccination.^[2] Vaccines remain effective during childhood illness.^[2] The reason vaccines may be withheld if a child is moderately to severely ill is because certain expected side effects of vaccination (e.g. fever or rash) may be confused with progression of the illness.^[2] It is safe to administer vaccines to well-appearing children who are mildly ill with the common cold.^[2]

Natural Infection

Another common anti-vaccine myth is that the immune system produces a better immune protection in response to natural infection when compared to vaccination.^[2] In some cases, actual infection with the illness may produce lifelong immunity. However, natural disease carries a higher risk of harming a person's health than vaccines.^[2] For example, natural varicella infection carries a higher risk of bacterial superinfection with Group A streptococci.^[2]

HPV vaccine

The idea that the HPV vaccine is linked to increased sexual behavior is not supported by scientific evidence. A review of nearly 1,400 adolescent girls found no difference in teen pregnancy, incidence of sexually transmitted infection, or contraceptive counseling regardless of whether they received the HPV vaccine.^[2] Thousands of Americans die each year from cancers preventable by the vaccine.^[2]

Vaccine schedule

Other concerns have been raised about the vaccine schedule recommended by the Advisory Committee on Immunization Practices (ACIP). The immunization schedule is designed to protect children against preventable diseases when they are most vulnerable. The practice of delaying or spacing out these vaccinations increases the amount of time the child is susceptible to these illnesses.^[2] Receiving vaccines on the schedule recommended by the ACIP is not linked to autism or developmental delay.^[2]

Events following reductions in vaccination

In several countries, reductions in the use of some vaccines were followed by increases in the diseases' morbidity and mortality.^{[128][129]} According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, continued high levels of vaccine coverage are necessary to prevent a resurgence of diseases that have been nearly eliminated.^[130] Pertussis remains a major health problem in developing countries, where mass vaccination is not practiced; the World Health Organization estimates it caused 294,000 deaths in 2002.^[131] Vaccine hesitancy has contributed to the resurgence of preventable disease. For example, in 2019, the number of measles cases increased by thirty percent worldwide and many cases occurred in countries that had nearly eliminated measles.^[26]

Campaigners in London for expanded vaccination in the developing world

Stockholm, smallpox (1873–74)

An anti-vaccination campaign motivated by religious objections, concerns about effectiveness, and concerns about individual rights led to the vaccination rate in Stockholm dropping to just over 40%, compared to about 90% elsewhere in Sweden. A major smallpox epidemic began there in 1873. It led to a rise in vaccine uptake and an end of the epidemic.^[132]

UK, pertussis (1970s–80s)

In a 1974 report ascribing 36 reactions to whooping cough (pertussis) vaccine, a prominent public-health academic claimed that the vaccine was only marginally effective and questioned whether its benefits outweigh its risks, and extended television and press coverage caused a scare. Vaccine uptake in the UK decreased from 81% to 31%, and pertussis epidemics followed, leading to the deaths of some children. The mainstream medical opinion continued to support the effectiveness and safety of the vaccine; public confidence was restored after the publication of a national reassessment of vaccine efficacy. Vaccine uptake then increased to levels above 90%, and disease incidence declined dramatically.^[128]

Sweden, pertussis (1979–96)

In the vaccination moratorium period that occurred when Sweden suspended vaccination against whooping cough (pertussis) from 1979 to 1996, 60% of the country's children contracted the disease before the age of 10; close medical monitoring kept the death rate from whooping cough at about one per year.^[129]

Netherlands, measles (1999–2000)

An outbreak at a religious community and school in the Netherlands resulted in three deaths and 68 hospitalizations among 2,961 cases.^[133] The population in the several provinces affected had a high level of immunization, with the exception of one of the religious denominations, which traditionally does not accept vaccination. Ninety-five percent of those who contracted measles were unvaccinated.^[133]

UK and Ireland, measles (2000)

As a result of the MMR vaccine controversy, vaccination rates dropped sharply in the United Kingdom after 1996.^[134] From late 1999 until the summer of 2000, there was a measles outbreak in North Dublin, Ireland. At the time, the national immunization level had fallen below 80%, and in parts of North Dublin the level was around 60%. There were more than 100 hospital admissions from over 300 cases. Three children died and several more were gravely ill, some requiring mechanical ventilation to recover.^[135]

Nigeria, polio, measles, diphtheria (2001–)

In the early first decade of the 21st century, conservative religious leaders in northern Nigeria, suspicious of Western medicine, advised their followers not to have their children vaccinated with the oral polio vaccine. The boycott was endorsed by the governor of Kano State, and immunization was suspended for several months. Subsequently, polio reappeared in a dozen formerly polio-free neighbors of Nigeria, and genetic tests showed the virus was the same one that originated in northern Nigeria. Nigeria had become a net exporter of the poliovirus to its African neighbors. People in the northern states were also reported to be wary of other vaccinations, and Nigeria reported over 20,000 measles cases and nearly 600 deaths from measles from January through March 2005.^[136] In Northern Nigeria, it is a common belief that vaccination is a strategy created by the westerners to reduce the Northerners' population. As a result of this belief, a large number of Northerners reject vaccination.^[137] In 2006, Nigeria accounted for over half of all new polio cases worldwide.^[138] Outbreaks continued thereafter; for example, at least 200 children died in a late-2007 measles outbreak in Borno State.^[139]

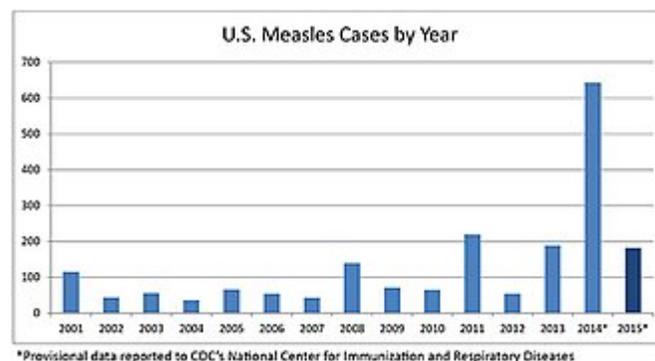

United States, measles (2005–)

In 2000, measles was declared eliminated from the United States because the internal transmission had been interrupted for one year; the remaining reported cases were due to importation.^[140]

A 2005 measles outbreak in the US state of Indiana was attributed to parents who had refused to have their children vaccinated.^[141]

The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) reported that the three biggest outbreaks of measles in 2013 were attributed to clusters of people who were unvaccinated due to their philosophical or religious beliefs. As of August 2013, three pockets of outbreak – New York City, North Carolina, and Texas – contributed to 64% of the 159 cases of measles reported in 16 states.^{[142][143]}

The number of cases in 2014 quadrupled to 644,^[144] including transmission by unvaccinated visitors to Disneyland in California.^{[76][145]} Some 97% of cases in the first half of the year were confirmed to be due directly or indirectly to importation (the remainder were unknown), and 49% from the Philippines. More than half the victims (165 out of 288, or 57%) during that time were confirmed to be unvaccinated by choice; 30 (10%) were confirmed to have been vaccinated.^[146] The final count of measles in 2014 was 668 cases in 27 states.^[147]

From January 1 to June 26, 2015, 178 people from 24 states and the District of Columbia were reported to have measles. Most of these cases (117 cases [66%]) were part of a large multi-state outbreak linked to Disneyland in California, continued from 2014. Analysis by the CDC scientists showed that the measles virus type in this outbreak (B3) was identical to the virus type that caused the large measles outbreak in the Philippines in 2014.^[147] On July 2, 2015, the first confirmed death from measles in twelve years was recorded. An immunocompromised woman in Washington State was infected and later died of pneumonia due to measles.^[148]

By July 2016, a three-month measles outbreak affecting at least 22 people was spread by unvaccinated employees of the Eloy, Arizona detention center, an Immigration and Customs Enforcement (ICE) facility owned by for-profit prison operator CoreCivic. Pinal County's health director presumed the outbreak likely originated with a migrant, but detainees had since received vaccinations. However convincing CoreCivic's employees to become vaccinated or demonstrate proof of immunity was much more difficult, he said.^[149]

In spring 2017, a measles outbreak occurred in Minnesota. As of June 16, 78 cases of measles had been confirmed in the state, 71 were unvaccinated and 65 were Somali-Americans.^{[150][151][152][153][154]} The outbreak has been attributed to low vaccination rates among Somali-American children, which can be traced back to 2008, when Somali parents began to express concern about disproportionately high numbers of Somali preschoolers in special education classes who were receiving services for autism spectrum disorder. Around the same time, disgraced former doctor Andrew Wakefield visited Minneapolis, teaming up with anti-vaccine groups to raise concerns that vaccines were the cause of autism,^{[155][156][157][158]} despite the fact that multiple studies have shown no connection between the MMR vaccine and autism.^[64]

From fall 2018 to early 2019, New York State experienced an outbreak of over 200 confirmed measles cases. Many of these cases were attributed to ultra-Orthodox Jewish communities with low vaccination rates in areas within Brooklyn and Rockland County. State Health Commissioner Howard Zucker stated that this was the worst outbreak of measles in his recent memory.^{[159][160]}

In January 2019, Washington state reported an outbreak of at least 73 confirmed cases of measles, most within Clark County, which has a higher rate of vaccination exemptions compared to the rest of the state. This led state governor Jay Inslee to declare a state of emergency, and the state's congress to introduce legislation to disallow vaccination exemption for personal or philosophical reasons.^{[161][162][163][164][165][166]}

Wales, measles (2013–)

In 2013, an outbreak of measles occurred in the Welsh city of Swansea. One death was reported.^[167] Some estimates indicate that while MMR uptake for two-year-olds was at 94% in Wales in 1995, it had fallen to as low as 67.5% in Swansea by 2003, meaning the region had a "vulnerable" age group.^[168] This has been linked to the MMR vaccine controversy, which caused a significant number of parents to fear allowing their children to receive the MMR vaccine.^[167] June 5, 2017, saw a new measles outbreak in Wales, at Lliswerry High School in the town of Newport.^[169]

United States, tetanus

Most cases of pediatric tetanus in the U.S. occur in unvaccinated children.^[170] In Oregon, in 2017, an unvaccinated boy had a scalp wound that his parents sutured themselves. Later the boy arrived at a hospital with tetanus. He spent 47 days in the Intensive Care Unit (ICU), and 57 total days in the hospital, at a cost of $811,929, not including the cost of airlifting him to the Oregon Health and Science University, Doernbecher Children's Hospital, or the subsequent two-and-a-half weeks of inpatient rehabilitation he required. Despite this, his parents declined the administration of subsequent tetanus boosters or other vaccinations.^[171] Due to privacy regulations, publicly identifying the payer of the costs was prohibited.^[172]

Romania (2016–present)

As of September 2017, a measles epidemic was ongoing across Europe, especially Eastern Europe. In Romania, there were about 9300 cases, and 34 people (all unvaccinated) had died.^[173] This was preceded by a 2008 controversy regarding the HPV vaccine. In 2012, doctor Christa Todea-Gross published a free downloadable book online, this book contained misinformation about vaccination from abroad translated into Romanian, which significantly stimulated the growth of the anti-vaccine movement.^[173] The government of Romania officially declared a measles epidemic in September 2016 and started an information campaign to encourage parents to have their children vaccinated. By February 2017, however, the stockpile of MMR vaccines was depleted, and doctors were overburdened. Around April, the vaccine stockpile had been restored. By March 2019, the death toll had risen to 62, with 15,981 cases reported.^[174]

Ovidiu Covaciu on how the Romanian antivaccine movement threatens Europe (2017)

Samoa, measles (2019)

The 2019 Samoa measles outbreak began in October 2019 and as of December 12, there were 4,995 confirmed cases of measles and 72 deaths, out of a Samoan population of 201,316.^{[175][176][177][178]} A state of emergency was declared on November 17, ordering all schools to be closed, barring children under 17 from public events, and making vaccination mandatory.^[179] UNICEF has sent 110,500 vaccines to Samoa. Tonga and Fiji have also declared states of emergency.^[180]

The outbreak has been attributed to a sharp drop in measles vaccination from the previous year, following an incident in 2018 when two infants died shortly after receiving measles vaccinations, which led the country to suspend its measles vaccination program.^[181] The reason for the two infants' deaths was incorrect preparation of the vaccine by two nurses who mixed vaccine powder with expired anesthetic.^[182] As of November 30, more than 50,000 people were vaccinated by the government of Samoa.^[182]

Dealing with vaccine hesitancy

Vaccine hesitancy is challenging and optimal strategies for approaching it remain uncertain.^[183] Many interventions designed to address vaccine hesitancy have been based on the information deficit model.^[49] This model assumes that vaccine hesitancy is due to a person lacking the necessary information and attempts to provide them with that information to solve the problem.^[49] Despite many educational interventions attempting this approach, ample evidence indicates providing more information is often ineffective in changing a vaccine-hesitant person's views and may, in fact, have the opposite of the intended effect and reinforce their misconceptions.^{[26][49]}

Several communication strategies are recommended for use when interacting with vaccine-hesitant parents. These include establishing honest and respectful dialogue; acknowledging the risks of a vaccine but balancing them against the risk of disease; referring parents to reputable sources of vaccine information; and maintaining ongoing conversations with vaccine-hesitant families.^[2] The American Academy of Pediatrics recommends healthcare providers directly address parental concerns about vaccines when questioned about their efficacy and safety.^[123] Additional recommendations include asking permission to share information; maintaining a conversational tone (as opposed to lecturing); not spending excessive amounts of time debunking specific myths (this may have the opposite effect of strengthening the myth in the person's mind); focusing on the facts and simply identifying the myth as false; and keeping information as simple as possible (if the myth seems simpler than the truth, it may be easier for people to accept the simple myth).^[49] Storytelling and anecdote (e.g., about the decision to vaccinate one's own children) can be powerful communication tools for conversations about the value of vaccination.^[49] A New Zealand-based General Practitioner has used a comic, Jenny & the Eddies, both to educate children about vaccines and address his patients' concerns through open, trusting, and non-threatening conversations, concluding [that] "I always listen to what people have to say on any matter. That includes vaccine hesitancy. That's a very important opening stage to improving the therapeutic relationship. If I'm going to change anyone's attitude, first I need to listen to them and be open-minded."^[184] The perceived strength of the recommendation, when provided by a healthcare provider, also seems to influence uptake, with recommendations that are perceived to be stronger resulting in higher vaccination rates than perceived weaker recommendations.^[26]

Limited evidence suggests that a more paternalistic or presumptive approach ("Your son needs three shots today.") is more likely to result in patient acceptance of vaccines during a clinic visit than a participatory approach ("What do you want to do about shots?") but decreases patient satisfaction with the visit.^[185] A presumptive approach helps to establish that this is the normative choice.^[49] Similarly, one study found that the way in which physicians respond to parental vaccine resistance is important.^[2] Nearly half of initially vaccine-resistant parents accepted vaccinations if physicians persisted in their initial recommendation.^[49] The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention has released resources to aid healthcare providers in having more effective conversations with parents about vaccinations.^[186]

Parents may be hesitant to have their children vaccinated due to concerns about the pain of vaccination. Several strategies can be used to reduce the child's pain.^[123] Such strategies include distraction techniques (pinwheels); deep breathing techniques; breastfeeding the child; giving the child sweet-tasting solutions; quickly administering the vaccine without aspirating; keeping the child upright; providing tactile stimulation; applying numbing agents to the skin; and saving the most painful vaccine for last.^[123] As above, the number of vaccines offered in a particular encounter is related to the likelihood of parental vaccine refusal (the more vaccines offered, the higher the likelihood of vaccine deferral).^[2] The use of combination vaccines to protect against more diseases but with fewer injections may provide reassurance to parents.^[2] Similarly, reframing the conversation with less emphasis on the number of diseases the healthcare provider is immunizing against (e.g., "we will do two injections (combined vaccinations) and an oral vaccine") may be more acceptable to parents than "we're going to vaccinate against seven diseases".^[2]

It is unclear whether interventions intended to educate parents about vaccines improve the rate of vaccination.^[185] It is also unclear whether citing the reasons of benefit to others and herd immunity improves parents' willingness to vaccinate their children.^[185] In one trial, an educational intervention designed to dispel common misconceptions about the influenza vaccine decreased parents' false beliefs about the vaccines but did not improve uptake of the influenza vaccine.^[185] In fact, parents with significant concerns about adverse effects from the vaccine were less likely to vaccinate their children with the influenza vaccine after receiving this education.^[185] Multicomponent initiatives which include targeting undervaccinated populations, improving the convenience of and access to vaccines, educational initiatives, and mandates may improve vaccination uptake.^{[185][187]}

Cultural sensitivity is important to reducing vaccine hesitancy. For example, pollster Frank Luntz discovered that for conservative Americans, family is by far the "most powerful motivator" to get a vaccine (over country, economy, community, or friends).^[188] Luntz "also found a very pronounced preference for the word 'vaccine' over 'jab'."^[188]

It is recommended that healthcare providers advise parents against performing their own web search queries since many websites on the Internet contain significant misinformation.^[2] Many parents perform their own research online and are often confused, frustrated, and unsure of which sources of information are trustworthy.^[49] Additional recommendations include introducing parents to the importance of vaccination as far in advance of the initial well-child visit as possible; presenting parents with vaccine safety information while in their pediatrician's waiting room; and using prenatal open houses and postpartum maternity ward visits as opportunities to vaccinate.^[2]

Internet advertising, on Facebook and elsewhere, is purchased by both public health authorities and anti-vaccination groups. In the United States, the majority of anti-vaccine Facebook advertising in December 2018 and February 2019 had been paid for one of two groups: Robert F. Kennedy Jr.'s Children's Health Defense and Stop Mandatory Vaccination. The ads targeted women and young couples and generally highlighted the alleged risks of vaccines, while asking for donations. Several anti-vaccination advertising campaigns also targeted areas where measles outbreaks were underway during this period. The impact of Facebook's subsequent advertising policy changes has not been studied.^{[189][190]}

The World Health Organization (WHO) published a paper in 2016 intending to aid experts on how to respond to vaccine deniers in public. The WHO recommends for experts to view the general public as their target audience rather than the vaccine denier when debating in a public forum. The WHO also suggests for experts to make unmasking the techniques that the vaccine denier uses to spread misinformation as the goal of the conversation. The WHO asserts that this will make the public audience more resilient against anti-vaccine tactics.^[191]

History

Variolation

Early attempts to prevent smallpox involved deliberate inoculation with the milder form of the disease (Variola Minor) in the expectation that a mild case would confer immunity and avoid Variola Major. Originally called inoculation, this technique was later called variolation to avoid confusion with cowpox inoculation (vaccination) when that was introduced by Edward Jenner. Although variolation had a long history in China and India, it was first used in North America and England in 1721. Reverend Cotton Mather introduced variolation to Boston, Massachusetts, during the 1721 smallpox epidemic.^[192] Despite strong opposition in the community,^[193] Mather convinced Zabdiel Boylston to try it. Boylston first experimented on his 6-year-old son, his slave, and his slave's son; each subject contracted the disease and was sick for several days until the sickness vanished and they were "no longer gravely ill".^[192] Boylston went on to variolate thousands of Massachusetts residents, and many places were named for him in gratitude as a result. Lady Mary Wortley Montagu introduced variolation to England. She had seen it used in Turkey and, in 1718, had her son successfully variolated in Constantinople under the supervision of Charles Maitland. When she returned to England in 1721, she had her daughter variolated by Maitland. This aroused considerable interest, and Sir Hans Sloane organized the variolation of some inmates in Newgate Prison. These were successful, and after a further short trial in 1722, two daughters of Caroline of Ansbach Princess of Wales were variolated without mishap. With this royal approval, the procedure became common when smallpox epidemics threatened.^[194]

Religious arguments against inoculation were soon advanced. For example, in a 1722 sermon entitled "The Dangerous and Sinful Practice of Inoculation", the English theologian Reverend Edmund Massey argued that diseases are sent by God to punish sin and that any attempt to prevent smallpox via inoculation is a "diabolical operation".^[193] It was customary at the time for popular preachers to publish sermons, which reached a wide audience. This was the case with Massey, whose sermon reached North America, where there was early religious opposition, particularly by John Williams. A greater source of opposition there was William Douglass, a medical graduate of Edinburgh University and a Fellow of the Royal Society, who had settled in Boston.^{[194]:114–22}

An anti-vaccination caricature by James Gillray, The Cow-Pock – or – The Wonderful Effects of the New Inoculation! (1802)

Smallpox vaccination

After Edward Jenner introduced the smallpox vaccine in 1798, variolation declined and was banned in some countries.^{[195][196]} As with variolation, there was some religious opposition to vaccination, although this was balanced to some extent by support from clergymen, such as Reverend Robert Ferryman, a friend of Jenner's, and Rowland Hill,^{[194]:221} who not only preached in its favour but also performed vaccination themselves. There was also opposition from some variolators who saw the loss of a lucrative monopoly. William Rowley published illustrations of deformities allegedly produced by vaccination, lampooned in James Gillray's famous caricature depicted on this page, and Benjamin Moseley likened cowpox to syphilis, starting a controversy that would last into the 20th century.^{[194]:203–05}

Edward Jenner

There was legitimate concern from supporters of vaccination about its safety and efficacy, but this was overshadowed by general condemnation, particularly when legislation started to introduce compulsory vaccination. The reason for this was that vaccination was introduced before laboratory methods were developed to control its production and account for its failures.^[197] Vaccine was maintained initially through arm-to-arm transfer and later through production on the skin of animals, and bacteriological sterility was impossible. Further, identification methods for potential pathogens were not available until the late 19th to early 20th century. Diseases later shown to be caused by contaminated vaccine included erysipelas, tuberculosis, tetanus, and syphilis. This last, though rare – estimated at 750 cases in 100 million vaccinations^[198] – attracted particular attention. Much later, Charles Creighton, a leading medical opponent of vaccination, claimed that the vaccine itself was a cause of syphilis and devoted a book to the subject.^[199] As cases of smallpox started to occur in those who had been vaccinated earlier, supporters of vaccination pointed out that these were usually very mild and occurred years after the vaccination. In turn, opponents of vaccination pointed out that this contradicted Jenner's belief that vaccination conferred complete protection.^{[197]:17–21} The views of opponents of vaccination that it was both dangerous and ineffective led to the development of determined anti-vaccination movements in England when legislation was introduced to make vaccination compulsory.^[200]

England

Because of its greater risks, variola was banned in England by the 1840 Vaccination Act, which also introduced free voluntary vaccination for infants. Thereafter Parliament passed successive acts to enact and enforce compulsory vaccination.^[201] The 1853 act introduced compulsory vaccination, with fines for non-compliance and imprisonment for non-payment. The 1867 act extended the age requirement to 14 years and introduced repeated fines for repeated refusal for the same child. Initially, vaccination regulations were organised by the local Poor Law Guardians, and in towns where there was strong opposition to vaccination, sympathetic Guardians were elected who did not pursue prosecutions. This was changed by the 1871 act, which required Guardians to act. This significantly changed the relationship between the government and the public, and organized protests increased.^[201] In Keighley, Yorkshire, in 1876 the Guardians were arrested and briefly imprisoned in York Castle, prompting large demonstrations in support of the "Keighley Seven".^{[200]:108–09} The protest movements crossed social boundaries. The financial burden of fines fell hardest on the working class, who would provide the largest numbers at public demonstrations.^[202] Societies and publications were organized by the middle classes, and support came from celebrities such as George Bernard Shaw and Alfred Russel Wallace, doctors such as Charles Creighton and Edgar Crookshank, and parliamentarians such as Jacob Bright and James Allanson Picton.^[201] By 1885, with over 3,000 prosecutions pending in Leicester, a mass rally there was attended by over 20,000 protesters.^[203]

Under increasing pressure, the government appointed a Royal Commission on Vaccination in 1889, which issued six reports between 1892 and 1896, with a detailed summary in 1898.^[204] Its recommendations were incorporated into the 1898 Vaccination Act, which still required compulsory vaccination but allowed exemption on the grounds of conscientious objection on presentation of a certificate signed by two magistrates.^{[14][201]} These were not easy to obtain in towns where magistrates supported compulsory vaccination, and after continued protests, a further act in 1907 allowed exemption on a simple signed declaration.^[203] Although this solved the immediate problem, the compulsory vaccination acts remained legally enforceable, and determined opponents lobbied for their repeal. No Compulsory Vaccination was one of the demands of the 1900 Labour Party General Election Manifesto.^[205] This was done as a matter of routine when the National Health Service was introduced in 1948, with "almost negligible" opposition from supporters of compulsory vaccination.^[206]

Henry Wicklin, age 6, afflicted with smallpox. Smallpox was eradicated worldwide as a result of mandatory vaccinations.

In a postwar poster the Ministry of Health urged British residents to immunize children against diphtheria.

Vaccination in Wales was covered by English legislation, but the Scottish legal system was separate. Vaccination was not made compulsory there until 1863, and a conscientious objection was allowed after vigorous protest only in 1907.^{[197]:10–11}

In the late 19th century, Leicester in the UK received much attention because of how smallpox was managed there. There was particularly strong opposition to compulsory vaccination, and medical authorities had to work within this framework. They developed a system that did not use vaccination but was based on the notification of cases, the strict isolation of patients and contacts, and the provision of isolation hospitals.^[207] This proved successful but required acceptance of compulsory isolation rather than vaccination. C. Killick Millard, initially, a supporter of compulsory vaccination was appointed Medical Officer of Health in 1901. He moderated his views on compulsion but encouraged contacts and his staff to accept vaccination. This approach, developed initially due to overwhelming opposition to government policy, became known as the Leicester Method.^{[206][208]} In time it became generally accepted as the most appropriate way to deal with smallpox outbreaks and was listed as one of the "important events in the history of smallpox control" by those most involved in the World Health Organization's successful Smallpox Eradication Campaign. The final stages of the campaign generally referred to as "surveillance containment", owed much to the Leicester method.^{[209][210]}

United States

In the US, President Thomas Jefferson took a close interest in vaccination, alongside Benjamin Waterhouse, chief physician at Boston. Jefferson encouraged the development of ways to transport vaccine material through the Southern states, which included measures to avoid damage by heat, a leading cause of ineffective batches. Smallpox outbreaks were contained by the latter half of the 19th century, a development widely attributed to the vaccination of a large portion of the population. Vaccination rates fell after this decline in smallpox cases, and the disease again became epidemic in the late 19th century.^[211]

After an 1879 visit to New York by prominent British anti-vaccinationist William Tebb, The Anti-Vaccination Society of America was founded.^{[212][213]} The New England Anti-Compulsory Vaccination League formed in 1882, and the Anti-Vaccination League of New York City in 1885.^[213] Tactics in the US largely followed those used in England.^[214] Vaccination in the US was regulated by individual states, in which there followed a progression of compulsion, opposition, and repeal similar to that in England.^[215] Although generally organized on a state-by-state basis, the vaccination controversy reached the US Supreme Court in 1905. There, in the case of Jacobson v. Massachusetts, the court ruled that states have the authority to require vaccination against smallpox during a smallpox epidemic.^[216]

John Pitcairn, the wealthy founder of the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company (now PPG Industries), emerged as a major financier and leader of the American anti-vaccination movement. On March 5, 1907, in Harrisburg, Pennsylvania, he delivered an address to the Committee on Public Health and Sanitation of the Pennsylvania General Assembly criticizing vaccination.^[217] He later sponsored the National Anti-Vaccination Conference, which, held in Philadelphia in October 1908, led to the creation of The Anti-Vaccination League of America. When the league organized later that month, members chose Pitcairn as their first president.^[218]

On December 1, 1911, Pitcairn was appointed by Pennsylvania Governor John K. Tener to the Pennsylvania State Vaccination Commission and subsequently authored a detailed report strongly opposing the commission's conclusions.^[218] He remained a staunch opponent of vaccination until his death in 1916.

Brazil

In November 1904, in response to years of inadequate sanitation and disease, followed by a poorly explained public health campaign led by the renowned Brazilian public health official Oswaldo Cruz, citizens and military cadets in Rio de Janeiro arose in a Revolta da Vacina, or Vaccine Revolt. Riots broke out on the day a vaccination law took effect; vaccination symbolized the most feared and most tangible aspect of a public health plan that included other features, such as urban renewal, that many had opposed for years.^[219]

Later vaccines and antitoxins

Opposition to smallpox vaccination continued into the 20th century and was joined by controversy over new vaccines and the introduction of antitoxin treatment for diphtheria. Injection of horse serum into humans as used in antitoxin can cause hypersensitivity, commonly referred to as serum sickness. Moreover, the continued production of the smallpox vaccine in animals and the production of antitoxins in horses prompted anti-vivisectionists to oppose vaccination.^[220]

Diphtheria antitoxin was serum from horses that had been immunized against diphtheria, and was used to treat human cases by providing passive immunity. In 1901, antitoxin from a horse named Jim was contaminated with tetanus and killed 13 children in St. Louis, Missouri. This incident, together with nine deaths from tetanus from contaminated smallpox vaccine in Camden, New Jersey, led directly and quickly to the passing of the Biologics Control Act in 1902.^[221]

Robert Koch developed tuberculin in 1890. Inoculated into individuals who have had tuberculosis, it produces a hypersensitivity reaction and is still used to detect those who have been infected. However, Koch used tuberculin as a vaccine. This caused serious reactions and deaths in individuals whose latent tuberculosis was reactivated by the tuberculin.^[222] This was a major setback for supporters of new vaccines.^{[197]:30–31} Such incidents and others ensured that any untoward results concerning vaccination and related procedures received continued publicity, which grew as the number of new procedures increased.^[223]

In 1955, in a tragedy known as the Cutter incident, Cutter Laboratories produced 120,000 doses of the Salk polio vaccine that inadvertently contained some live poliovirus along with inactivated virus. This vaccine caused 40,000 cases of polio, 53 cases of paralysis, and five deaths. The disease spread through the recipients' families, creating a polio epidemic that led to a further 113 cases of paralytic polio and another five deaths. It was one of the worst pharmaceutical disasters in US history.^[224]

Later 20th-century events included the 1982 broadcast of DPT: Vaccine Roulette, which sparked debate over the DPT vaccine,^[225] and the 1998 publication of a fraudulent academic article by Andrew Wakefield^[226] which sparked the MMR vaccine controversy. Also recently, the HPV vaccine has become controversial due to concerns that it may encourage promiscuity when given to 11- and 12-year-old girls.^{[227][228]}

Arguments against vaccines in the 21st century are often similar to those of 19th-century anti-vaccinationists.^[14]

COVID-19

In mid-2020, surveys on whether people would be willing to take a potential COVID-19 vaccine estimated that 67% or 80% of people in the US would accept a new vaccination against COVID-19.^{[229][230]}

In the United Kingdom, a 16 November 2020 YouGov poll showed that 42% said they were very likely to take the vaccine and 25% were fairly likely (67% likely overall); 11% would be very unlikely and 10% fairly unlikely (21% unlikely overall) and 12% are unsure.^[231] There have been a number of reasons expressed why people might not wish to take COVID-19 vaccines, such as concerns over safety, self-perception of being "low risk", or questioning the Pfizer-BioNTech vaccine in particular. 8% of those reluctant to take it say it is because they oppose vaccinations overall; this amounts to just 2% of the British public.^[231]

A December 2020 Ipsos/World Economic Forum 15-country poll asked online respondents whether they agreed with the statement: "If a vaccine for COVID-19 were available, I would get it." Rates of agreement were smallest in France (40%), Russia (43%) and South Africa (53%). In the United States, 69% of those polled agreed with the statement; rates were even higher in Britain (77%) and China (80%).^{[232][233]}

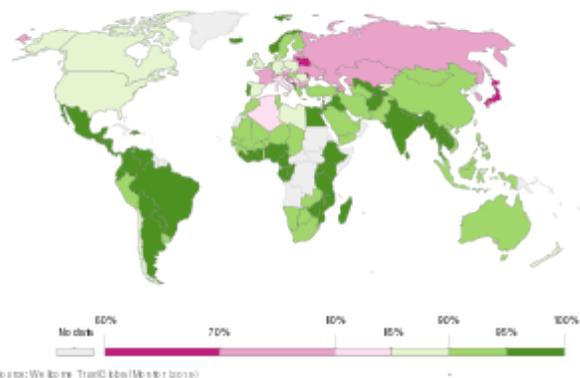

A March 2021 NPR/PBS NewsHour/Marist poll found the difference between white and black Americans to be within the margin of error, but 47% of Trump supporters said they would refuse a COVID-19 vaccine, compared to 30% of all adults.^[234]

In May 2021, a report titled 'Global attitudes towards a COVID-19 vaccine' from the Institute of Global Health Innovation and Imperial College London, which included detailed survey data from March to May 2021 including survey data from 15 countries Australia, Canada, Denmark, France, Germany, Israel, Italy, Japan, Norway, Singapore, South Korea, Spain, Sweden, the UK, and the US. It found that in 13 of the 15 countries more than 50% of people were confident in covid-19 vaccines. In the UK 87% of survey respondents said they trusted the vaccines, which showed a significant increase in confidence following earlier less reliable polls. The survey also found trust in different vaccine brands varied, with the Pfizer–BioNTech COVID-19 vaccine being the most trusted across all age groups in most countries and particularly the most trusted for under 65s.^{[235][236]}

Geographical distribution of vaccine hesitancy

Vaccine hesitancy is becoming an increasing concern, particularly in industrialized nations. For example, one study surveying parents in Europe found that 12–28% of surveyed parents expressed doubts about vaccinating their children.^[237] Several studies have assessed socioeconomic and cultural factors associated with vaccine hesitancy. Both high and low socioeconomic status as well as high and low education levels have all been associated with vaccine hesitancy in different populations.^{[123][238][239][240][241][242][243]} Other studies examining various populations around the world in different countries found that both high and low socioeconomic status are associated with vaccine hesitancy.^[3] An Australian study that examined the factors associated with vaccine attitudes and uptake separately found that under-vaccination correlated with lower socioeconomic status but not with negative attitudes towards vaccines. The researchers suggested that practical barriers are more likely to explain under-vaccination among individuals with lower socioeconomic status.^[240]

Share that agrees that vaccines are important for children to have, 2018
The share of people who responded that they "strongly agree" or "somewhat agree" with the statement "vaccines are important for children to have".

Share that agrees that vaccines are important for children to have (2018)

Studies have demonstrated that children of parents who refused the pertussis vaccine, varicella vaccine, and pneumococcal vaccine are 23 times more likely to contract pertussis (whooping cough), nine times more likely to catch varicella (chickenpox), and six times more likely to be hospitalized with severe pneumonia from Streptococcus pneumoniae (pneumococcus).^[49]

Policy implications

Multiple major medical societies including the Infectious Diseases Society of America, the American Medical Association, and the American Academy of Pediatrics support the elimination of all nonmedical exemptions for childhood vaccines.^[123]

Individual liberty

Compulsory vaccination policies have been controversial as long as they have existed, with opponents of mandatory vaccinations arguing that governments should not infringe on an individual's freedom to make medical decisions for themselves or their children, while proponents of compulsory vaccination cite the well-documented public health benefits of vaccination.^{[14][244]} Others argue that, for compulsory vaccination to effectively prevent disease, there must be not only available vaccines and a population willing to immunize, but also sufficient ability to decline vaccination on grounds of personal belief.^[245]

Vaccination policy involves complicated ethical issues, as unvaccinated individuals are more likely to contract and spread disease to people with weaker immune systems, such as young children and the elderly, and to other individuals in whom the vaccine has not been effective. However, mandatory vaccination policies raise ethical issues regarding parental rights and informed consent.^[246]

In the United States, vaccinations are not truly compulsory, but they are typically required in order for children to attend public schools. As of January 2021, five states – Mississippi, West Virginia, California, Maine, and New York – have eliminated religious and philosophical exemptions to required school immunizations.^[247]

Children's rights

Medical ethicist Arthur Caplan argues that children have a right to the best available medical care, including vaccines, regardless of parental feelings toward vaccines, saying "Arguments about medical freedom and choice are at odds with the human and constitutional rights of children. When parents won't protect them, governments must."^{[248][249]}

A review of court cases from 1905 to 2016 found that, of the nine courts that have heard cases regarding whether not vaccinating a child constitutes neglect, seven have held vaccine refusal to be a form of child neglect.^[250]

To prevent the spread of disease by unvaccinated individuals, some schools and doctors' surgeries have prohibited unvaccinated children from being enrolled, even where not required by law.^{[251][252]} Refusal of doctors to treat unvaccinated children may cause harm to both the child and public health, and may be considered unethical, if the parents are unable to find another healthcare provider for the child.^[253] Opinion on this is divided, with the largest professional association, the American Academy of Pediatrics, saying that exclusion of unvaccinated children may be an option under narrowly defined circumstances.^[123]

Religion

Since most religions were started far before vaccinations were invented, scriptures do not specifically address the topic of vaccination.^[2] However, vaccination has been opposed on religious grounds ever since it was first introduced. Some Christian opponents argued, when vaccination was first becoming widespread, that if God had decreed that someone should die of smallpox, it would be a sin to thwart God's will via vaccination.^[193] Religious opposition continues to the present day, on various grounds, raising ethical difficulties when the number of unvaccinated children threatens harm to the entire population.^[254] Many governments allow parents to opt out of their children's otherwise mandatory vaccinations for religious reasons; some parents falsely claim religious beliefs to get vaccination exemptions.^[255]

Many Jewish community leaders support vaccination.^[256] Among early Hasidic leaders, Rabbi Nachman of Breslov (1772–1810) was known for his criticism of the doctors and medical treatments of his day. However, when the first vaccines were successfully introduced, he stated: "Every parent should have his children vaccinated within the first three months of life. Failure to do so is tantamount to murder. Even if they live far from the city and have to travel during the great winter cold, they should have the child vaccinated before three months."^[257]

Although gelatin can be derived from many animals, Jewish and Islamic scholars have determined that since the gelatin is cooked and not consumed as food, vaccinations containing gelatin are acceptable.^[2] However, in 2015 and again in 2020, the possible use of porcine-based gelatin in vaccines raised religious concerns among Muslims and Orthodox Jews about the halal or kosher status of several vaccinations against COVID-19.^[258] The Muslim Council of Britain argued against the use of intranasal influenza vaccine in 2019 due to the presence of gelatin in the vaccine and consider such vaccines to be non-halal (unclean).^[259]

In India, in 2018, a three-minute doctored clip circulated among Muslims claiming that the MR-VAC vaccine against measles and rubella was a "Modi government-RSS conspiracy" to stop the population growth of Muslims. The clip was taken from a TV show that exposed the baseless rumors.^[260] Hundreds of madrassas in the state of Uttar Pradesh refused permission to health department teams to administer vaccines because of rumors spread using WhatsApp.^[261]

Some Christians have objected to the use of cell cultures of some viral vaccines, and the virus of the rubella vaccine,^[262] on the grounds that they are derived from tissues taken from therapeutic abortions performed in the 1960s. The principle of double effect, originated by Thomas Aquinas, holds that actions with both good and bad consequences are morally acceptable in specific circumstances.^[263] The Vatican Curia has said that for vaccines originating from embryonic cells, Catholics have "a grave responsibility to use alternative vaccines and to make a conscientious objection", but concluded that it is acceptable for Catholics to use the existing vaccines until an alternative becomes available.^[264]

In the United States, some parents falsely claim religious exemptions when their real motivation for avoiding vaccines is supposed safety concerns.^[265] For a number of years, only Mississippi, West Virginia, and California did not provide religious exemptions. Following the 2019 measles outbreaks, Maine and New York repealed their religious exemptions, and the state of Washington did so for the measles vaccination.^[266]

According to a March 2021 poll conducted by The Associated Press/NORC, vaccine skepticism is more widespread among white evangelicals than most other blocs of Americans. Forty percent of white evangelical Protestants said they were not likely to get vaccinated against COVID-19.^[267]

Alternative medicine

Many forms of alternative medicine are based on philosophies that oppose vaccination (including germ theory denialism) and have practitioners who voice their opposition. As a consequence, the increase in popularity of alternative medicine in the 1970s planted the seed on the modern anti-vaccination movement.^[268] More specifically, some elements of the chiropractic community, some homeopaths, and naturopaths developed anti-vaccine rhetoric.^[32] The reasons for this negative vaccination view are complicated and rest at least in part on the early philosophies that shaped the foundation of these groups.^[32]

Chiropractic

Historically, chiropractic strongly opposed vaccination based on its belief that all diseases were traceable to causes in the spine and therefore could not be affected by vaccines. Daniel D. Palmer (1845–1913), the founder of chiropractic, wrote: "It is the very height of absurdity to strive to 'protect' any person from smallpox or any other malady by inoculating them with a filthy animal poison."^[269] Vaccination remains controversial within the profession.^[270] Most chiropractic writings on vaccination focus on its negative aspects.^[269] A 1995 survey of US chiropractors found that about one third believed there was no scientific proof that immunization prevents disease.^[270] While the Canadian Chiropractic Association supports vaccination,^[269] a survey in Alberta in 2002 found that 25% of chiropractors advised patients for, and 27% advised against, vaccinations for patients or for their children.^[271]

Although most chiropractic colleges try to teach about vaccination in a manner consistent with scientific evidence, several have faculty who seem to stress negative views.^[270] A survey of a 1999–2000 cross-section of students of Canadian Memorial Chiropractic College (CMCC), which does not formally teach anti-vaccination views, reported that fourth-year students opposed vaccination more strongly than did first-year students, with 29.4% of fourth-year students opposing vaccination.^[272] A follow-up study on 2011–12 CMCC students found that pro-vaccination attitudes heavily predominated. Students reported support rates ranging from 84% to 90%. One of the study's authors proposed the change in attitude to be due to the lack of the previous influence of a "subgroup of some charismatic students who were enrolled at CMCC at the time, students who championed the Palmer postulates that advocated against the use of vaccination".^[273]

Policy positions

The American Chiropractic Association and the International Chiropractic Association support individual exemptions to compulsory vaccination laws.^[270] In March 2015, the Oregon Chiropractic Association invited Andrew Wakefield, chief author of a fraudulent research paper, to testify against Senate Bill 442,^[274] "a bill that would eliminate nonmedical exemptions from Oregon's school immunization law".^[275] The California Chiropractic Association lobbied against a 2015 bill ending belief exemptions for vaccines. They had also opposed a 2012 bill related to vaccination exemptions.^[276]

Homeopathy

Several surveys have shown that some practitioners of homeopathy, particularly homeopaths without any medical training, advise patients against vaccination.^[277] For example, a survey of registered homeopaths in Austria found that only 28% considered immunization an important preventive measure, and 83% of homeopaths surveyed in Sydney, Australia, did not recommend vaccination.^[32] Many practitioners of naturopathy also oppose vaccination.^[32]

Homeopathic "vaccines" (nosodes) are ineffective because they do not contain any active ingredients and thus do not stimulate the immune system. They can be dangerous if they take the place of effective treatments.^[278] Some medical organizations have taken action against nosodes. In Canada, the labeling of homeopathic nosodes require the statement: "This product is neither a vaccine nor an alternative to vaccination."^[279]

Financial motives

Alternative medicine proponents gain from promoting vaccine conspiracy theories through the sale of ineffective and expensive medications, supplements, and procedures such as chelation therapy and hyperbaric oxygen therapy, sold as able to cure the 'damage' caused by vaccines.^[280] Homeopaths in particular gain through the promotion of water injections or 'nosodes' that they allege have a 'natural' vaccine-like effect.^[281] Additional bodies with a vested interest in promoting the "unsafeness" of vaccines may include lawyers and legal groups organizing court cases and class action lawsuits against vaccine providers.

Conversely, alternative medicine providers have accused the vaccine industry of misrepresenting the safety and effectiveness of vaccines, covering up and suppressing information, and influencing health policy decisions for financial gain.^[14] In the late 20th century, vaccines were a product with low profit margins,^[282] and the number of companies involved in vaccine manufacture declined. In addition to low profits and liability risks, manufacturers complained about low prices paid for vaccines by the CDC and other US government agencies.^[283] In the early 21st century, the vaccine market greatly improved with the approval of the vaccine Prevnar, along with a small number of other high-priced blockbuster vaccines, such as Gardasil and Pediarix, which each had sales revenues of over $1 billion in 2008.^[282] Despite high growth rates, vaccines represent a relatively small portion of overall pharmaceutical profits. As recently as 2010, the World Health Organization estimated vaccines to represent 2–3% of total sales for the pharmaceutical industry.^[284]

War

The United States has a very complex history with compulsory vaccination, particularly in enforcing compulsory vaccinations both domestically and abroad to protect American soldiers during times of war. There are hundreds of thousands of examples of soldier deaths that were not the result of combat wounds but were instead from disease.^[285] Among wars with high death tolls from disease is the Civil War where an estimated 620,000 soldiers died from disease. American soldiers in other countries have spread diseases that ultimately disrupted entire societies and healthcare systems with famine and poverty.^[285]

Spanish–American War

The Spanish–American War began in April 1898 and ended in August 1898. During this time the United States gained control of Cuba, Puerto Rico, and the Philippines from Spain. As a military police power and as colonizers the United States took a very hands-on approach in administering healthcare particularly vaccinations to natives during the invasion and conquest of these countries.^[285] Although the Spanish–American War occurred during the era of "bacteriological revolution" where knowledge of disease was bolstered by germ theory, more than half of the soldier casualties in this war were from disease.^[285] Unknowingly, American soldiers acted as agents of disease transmission, fostering bacteria in their haphazardly made camps. These soldiers invaded Cuba, Puerto Rico, and the Philippines and connected parts of these countries that had never before been connected due to low population density, thereby beginning epidemics.^[285] The mobility of American soldiers around these countries encouraged newfound mobility of disease that quickly infected natives.

Military personnel used Rudyard's Kipling's poem "The White Man's Burden" to explain their imperialistic actions in Cuba, the Philippines, and Puerto Rico and the need for the United States to help the "dark-skinned Barbarians"^[285] reach modern sanitary standards. American actions abroad before, during, and after the war emphasized a need for proper sanitation habits especially on behalf of the natives. Natives who refuse to oblige with American health standards and procedures risked fines or imprisonment.^[285] One penalty in Puerto Rico included a $10 fine for a failure to vaccinate and an additional $5 fine for any day a person continued to be unvaccinated; refusal to pay resulted in ten or more days of imprisonment. If entire villages refused the army's current sanitation policy at any given time they risked being burnt to the ground to preserve the health and safety of soldiers from endemic smallpox and yellow fever.^[285] Vaccines were forcibly administered to the Puerto Ricans, Cubans, and Filipinos. Military personnel in Puerto Rico provided Public Health services that culminated in military orders that mandated vaccinations for children before they were six months old and a general vaccination order.^[285] By the end of 1899 in Puerto Rico alone the U.S. military and other hired native vaccinators called practicantes, vaccinated an estimated 860,000 natives in a five-month period. This period began the United States' movement toward an expansion of medical practices that included "tropical medicine" in an attempt to protect the lives of soldiers abroad.^[285]

Vietnam War

During the Vietnam War, vaccination was necessary for soldiers to fight overseas. Because disease follows soldiers,^[286] they had to receive vaccines preventing cholera, influenza, measles, meningococemia, Bubonic plague, poliovirus, smallpox, tetanus, diphtheria, typhoid, typhus, and yellow fever. However, the diseases mainly prevalent in Vietnam at this time were measles and polio. After arriving in Vietnam, the United States Military conducted the "Military Public Health Assistance Project".^[287] This public health program was a joint United States Military and Government of Vietnam concept to create or expand public medical facilities throughout South Vietnam.^[288] Local villages in Vietnam were inoculated. The United States military screened patients, dispensed medication, distributed clothing and food, and even passed out propaganda such as comic books.^[289]

Information warfare

Judge's cartoon of Rudyard Kipling's famous poem "The White Man's Burden" published in 1899. The poem's philosophy quickly was utilized to explain/justify the United States' response to the annexation of the Philippines. The United States used the "white man's burden" as an argument for imperial control of the Philippines and Puerto Rico based on the moral necessity to ensure the spread of civility and modernity.

An analysis of tweets from July 2014 through September 2017 revealed an active campaign on Twitter by the Internet Research Agency (IRA), a Russian troll farm accused of interference in the 2016 U.S. elections, to sow discord about the safety of vaccines.^{[290][291]} The campaign used sophisticated Twitter bots to amplify polarizing pro-vaccine and anti-vaccine messages, containing the hashtag #VaccinateUS, posted by IRA trolls.^[290]

Confidence in vaccines varies over place and time and among different vaccines. The London School of Hygiene & Tropical Medicine's Vaccine Confidence Project in 2016 found that confidence was lower in Europe than in the rest of the world. Refusal of the MMR vaccine has increased in twelve European states since 2010. The project published a report in 2018 assessing vaccine hesitancy among the public in all the 28 EU member states and among general practitioners in ten of them. Younger adults in the survey had less confidence than older people. Confidence had risen in France, Greece, Italy, and Slovenia since 2015 but had fallen in the Czech Republic, Finland, Poland, and Sweden. 36% of the GPs surveyed in the Czech Republic and 25% of those in Slovakia did not agree that the MMR vaccine was safe. Most of the GPs did not recommend the seasonal influenza vaccine. Confidence in the population correlated with confidence among GPs.^[292] A study of vaccine-hesitant U.S. college students found that after they interviewed survivors of vaccine-preventable diseases, they were more likely to become pro-vaccine than a control group.^[293]

Parties opposed to the use of vaccines frequently refer to data obtained from the US Vaccine Adverse Event Reporting System (VAERS). This is a database of reports of issues associated with vaccines which has been useful for investigation, but since any claim can be entered into the VAERS, its data is not all reliable. Dubious claims about vaccines against hepatitis B, HPV and other diseases have been propagated based on misuse of data from VAERS.^[294]

See also

- Chemophobia
- Measles resurgence in the United States
- Misinformation related to vaccination
- Therapeutic nihilism
- Vaccine shedding

References

1. SAGE, Working Group (October 1, 2014). "Report of the SAGE working group on vaccine hesitancy" (https://www.who.int/immunization/sage/meetings/2014/october/1_Report_WORKING_GROUP_vaccine_hesitancy_final.pdf) (PDF). WHO.
2. Smith, MJ (November 2015). "Promoting Vaccine Confidence". Infectious Disease Clinics of North America (Review). 29 (4): 759–69. doi:10.1016/j.idc.2015.07.004 (<https://doi.org/10.1016%2Fj.idc.2015.07.004>). PMID 26337737 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/26337737/>).
3. Larson, HJ; Jarrett, C; Eckersberger, E; Smith, DM; Paterson, P (April 2014). "Understanding vaccine hesitancy around vaccines and vaccination from a global perspective: a systematic review of published literature, 2007–2012". Vaccine. 32 (19): 2150–59. doi:10.1016/j.vaccine.2014.01.081 (<https://doi.org/10.1016%2Fj.vaccine.2014.01.081>). PMID 24598724 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/24598724/>).
4. Hinsliff, Gaby (November 16, 2020). "It's the 'vaccine hesitant', not anti-vaxxers, who are troubling public health experts" (<https://www.theguardian.com/commentisfree/2020/nov/16/vaccine-hesitant-anti-vaxxers-public-health-experts-covid>).

5. "Communicating science-based messages on vaccines" (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC5689193>). Bulletin of the World Health Organization. 95 (10): 670–71. October 2017. doi:10.2471/BLT.17.021017 (<https://doi.org/10.2471%2FBLT.17.021017>). PMC 5689193 (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC5689193>). PMID 29147039 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/29147039>).
6. "Why do some people oppose vaccination?" (<https://www.vox.com/2018/8/21/17588104/vaccine-opposition-anti-vaxxer>). Vox. Retrieved November 26, 2018.
7. Ceccarelli L. "Defending science: How the art of rhetoric can help" (<https://theconversation.com/defending-science-how-the-art-of-rhetoric-can-help-68210>). The Conversation. Retrieved November 26, 2018.
8. U.S. Department of Health and Human Services. "Vaccines.gov" (<https://www.vaccines.gov/basics/safety/index.html>). Vaccines.gov. Retrieved August 5, 2018.
9. "Ten threats to global health in 2019" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20190627025209/http://www.who.int/emergencies/ten-threats-to-global-health-in-2019>). Who.int. Archived from the original (<http://www.who.int/emergencies/ten-threats-to-global-health-in-2019>) on June 27, 2019. Retrieved December 9, 2020.
10. PM, Aristos Georgiou (January 15, 2019). "The anti-vax movement has been listed by WHO as one of its top 10 health threats for 2019" (<https://www.newsweek.com/world-health-organization-who-un-global-health-air-pollution-anti-vaxxers-1292493>). Retrieved January 16, 2019.
11. Gerber JS, Offit PA (February 2009). "Vaccines and autism: a tale of shifting hypotheses" (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC2908388>). Clinical Infectious Diseases. 48 (4): 456–61. doi:10.1086/596476 (<https://doi.org/10.1086%2F596476>). PMC 2908388 (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC2908388>). PMID 19128068 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/19128068>).
12. "Frequently Asked Questions (FAQ)" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20131017113035/http://www.childrenshospital.org/centers-and-services/division-of-infectious-diseases/faq-resurgence-of-measles>). Boston Children's Hospital. Archived from the original (<http://www.childrenshospital.org/centers-and-services/division-of-infectious-diseases/faq-resurgence-of-measles>) on October 17, 2013. Retrieved February 11, 2014.
13. Phadke VK, Bednarczyk RA, Salmon DA, Omer SB (March 2016). "Association Between Vaccine Refusal and Vaccine Preventable Diseases in the United States: A Review of Measles and Pertussis" (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC5007135>). JAMA. 315 (11): 1149–58. doi:10.1001/jama.2016.1353 (<https://doi.org/10.1001%2Fjama.2016.1353>). PMC 5007135 (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC5007135>). PMID 26978210 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/26978210>).
14. Wolfe RM, Sharp LK (August 2002). "Anti-vaccinationists past and present" (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC1123944>). BMJ. 325 (7361): 430–32. doi:10.1136/bmj.325.7361.430 (<https://doi.org/10.1136%2Fbmj.325.7361.430>). PMC 1123944 (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC1123944>). PMID 12193361 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/12193361>).
15. Poland GA, Jacobson RM (January 2011). "The age-old struggle against the antivaccinationists" (<https://semanticscholar.org/paper/ef30916a843202d73362f06b38ed5084e31eb8aa>). The New England Journal of Medicine. 364 (2): 97–99. doi:10.1056/NEJMp1010594 (<https://doi.org/10.1056%2FNEJMp1010594>). PMID 21226573 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/21226573>). S2CID 39229852 (<https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:39229852>).
16. Wallace A (October 19, 2009). "An epidemic of fear: how panicked parents skipping shots endangers us all" (https://www.wired.com/magazine/2009/10/ff_waronscience/all/1). Wired. Retrieved October 21, 2009.
17. Poland GA, Jacobson RM (March 2001). "Understanding those who do not understand: a brief review of the anti-vaccine movement". Vaccine. 19 (17–19): 2440–45. doi:10.1016/S0264-410X(00)00469-2 (<https://doi.org/10.1016%2FS0264-410X%2800%2900469-2>). PMID 11257375 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/11257375>).

18. "The Long History of America's Anti-Vaccination Movement" (<http://discovermagazine.com/2018/dec/fostering-fear>). DiscoverMagazine.com. Retrieved February 2, 2019.
19. Young Z (November 21, 2018). "How anti-vax went viral" (<https://www.politico.eu/article/how-anti-vax-went-viral/>). Retrieved February 2, 2019.
20. "How the anti-vaxxers are winning in Italy" (<https://www.independent.co.uk/news/world/europe/anti-vaxxers-italy-vaccine-measles-epidemic-europe-us-vaccination-global-health-security-agenda-a8560021.html>). September 28, 2018. Retrieved February 2, 2019.
21. Chang J (July 12, 2017). "'Civil liberties' at center of vaccination debate in Texas" (<https://www.mystatesman.com/news/state--regional-govt--politics/civil-liberties-center-vaccination-debate-texas/IWzq91qhSyAKcY8MiaWnYM/>). Mystatesman. Austin American-Statesman.
22. Elliman D, Bedford H (March 23, 2014). "In Britain, Vaccinate With Persuasion, not Coercion" (<https://www.nytimes.com/roomfordebate/2014/03/23/making-vaccination-mandatory-for-all-children/in-britain-vaccinate-with-persuasion-not-coercion>). The New York Times.
23. "Anti-vaxxers have embraced social media. We're paying for fake news with real lives" (<https://health.spectator.co.uk/anti-vaxxers-have-embraced-social-media-were-paying-for-fake-news-with-real-lives/>). June 28, 2017. Retrieved February 2, 2019.
24. Bourree Lam, Vaccines Are Profitable, So What? (<https://www.theatlantic.com/business/archive/2015/02/vaccines-are-profitable-so-what/385214/>). The Atlantic Feb. 10, 2015
25. Christenson, Brith; Lundbergh, Per; Hedlund, Jonas; Örtqvist, Åke (March 2001). "Effects of a large-scale intervention with influenza and 23-valent pneumococcal vaccines in adults aged 65 years or older: a prospective study". The Lancet. 357 (9261): 1008–11. doi:10.1016/S0140-6736(00)04237-9 (<https://doi.org/10.1016%2FS0140-6736%2800%2904237-9>). PMID 11293594 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/11293594>). S2CID 8125882 (<https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:8125882>).
26. Jacobson, RM; St Sauver, JL; Griffin, JM; MacLaughlin, KL; Finney Rutten, LJ (April 2020). "How health care providers should address vaccine hesitancy in the clinical setting: Evidence for presumptive language in making a strong recommendation" (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC7553710>). Human Vaccines & Immunotherapeutics. 16 (9): 2131–2135. doi:10.1080/21645515.2020.1735226 (<https://doi.org/10.1080%2F21645515.2020.1735226>). PMC 7553710 (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC7553710>). PMID 32242766 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/32242766>).
27. Fenner F, Henderson DA, Arita I, Ježek Z, Ladnyi ID (1988). Smallpox and its Eradication (<http://whqlibdoc.who.int/smallpox/9241561106.pdf>) (PDF). Geneva: World Health Organization. ISBN 978-92-4-156110-5. Retrieved September 4, 2007.
28. Sutter RW, Maher C (2006). "Mass vaccination campaigns for polio eradication: an essential strategy for success". Mass Vaccination: Global Aspects – Progress and Obstacles. Curr Top Microbiol Immunol. Current Topics in Microbiology and Immunology. 304. pp. 195–220. doi:10.1007/3-540-36583-4_11 (https://doi.org/10.1007%2F3-540-36583-4_11). ISBN 978-3-540-29382-8. PMID 16989271 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/16989271>).
29. Centers for Disease Control Prevention (CDC) (March 2002). "Progress toward elimination of Haemophilus influenzae type b invasive disease among infants and children – United States, 1998–2000" (<https://www.cdc.gov/mmwr/preview/mmwrhtml/mm5111a4.htm>). Morbidity and Mortality Weekly Report. 51 (11): 234–37. PMID 11925021 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/11925021>).
30. Park, Alice (June 2, 2008). "How safe are vaccines?" (<http://www.time.com/time/health/article/0,8599,1808438-1,00.html>). Time Magazine.
31. "Some common misconceptions about vaccination and how to respond to them" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20150120055820/http://www.cdc.gov/vaccines/vac-gen/6mishome.htm>). National Center for Immunization and Respiratory Diseases, Centers for Disease Control and Prevention. Archived from the original (<https://www.cdc.gov/vaccines/vac-gen/6mishome.htm>) on January 20, 2015. Retrieved September 28, 2012.

32. Ernst E (October 2001). "Rise in popularity of complementary and alternative medicine: reasons and consequences for vaccination". Vaccine. 20 (Suppl 1): S90–93, discussion S89. doi:10.1016/S0264-410X(01)00290-0 (<https://doi.org/10.1016%2FS0264-410X%2801%2900290-0>). PMID 11587822 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/11587822>).
33. Wane, Joanna. "The case for vaccination" (http://www.biocsl.co.nz/docs/957/642/NorthSouth_case-for-vaccination.pdf) (PDF). North & South. Retrieved July 3, 2015.
34. Fine, P.; Eames, K.; Heymann, D. L. (March 22, 2011). "'Herd Immunity': A Rough Guide" (<https://doi.org/10.1093%2Fcid%2Fcir007>). Clinical Infectious Diseases. 52 (7): 911–16. doi:10.1093/cid/cir007 (<https://doi.org/10.1093%2Fcid%2Fcir007>). PMID 21427399 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/21427399>).
35. Heymann, D. L.; Aylward, R. B. (2006). "Mass Vaccination: When and Why" (<https://semanticscholar.org/paper/274c516d5c4296ad8178acdeb8bd4f6077243f3d>). Mass Vaccination: Global Aspects – Progress and Obstacles. Current Topics in Microbiology and Immunology. 304. pp. 1–16. doi:10.1007/3-540-36583-4_1 (https://doi.org/10.1007%2F3-540-36583-4_1). ISBN 978-3-540-29382-8. PMID 16989261 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/16989261>). S2CID 25259803 (<https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:25259803>).
36. Bester JC (September 2017). "Measles Vaccination is Best for Children: The Argument for Relying on Herd Immunity Fails". Journal of Bioethical Inquiry. 14 (3): 375–84. doi:10.1007/s11673-017-9799-4 (<https://doi.org/10.1007%2Fs11673-017-9799-4>). PMID 28815434 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/28815434>). S2CID 3177668 (<https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:3177668>).
37. "Immunization" (<https://www.cdc.gov/features/ReasonsToVaccinate>). CDC. August 30, 2018.
38. Zhou F, Santoli J, Messonnier ML, Yusuf HR, Shefer A, Chu SY, Rodewald L, Harpaz R (December 2005). "Economic evaluation of the 7-vaccine routine childhood immunization schedule in the United States, 2001" (<https://doi.org/10.1001%2Farchpedi.159.12.1136>). Archives of Pediatrics & Adolescent Medicine. 159 (12): 1136–44. doi:10.1001/archpedi.159.12.1136 (<https://doi.org/10.1001%2Farchpedi.159.12.1136>). PMID 16330737 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/16330737>).
39. Fine PE, Clarkson JA (December 1986). "Individual versus public priorities in the determination of optimal vaccination policies". American Journal of Epidemiology. 124 (6): 1012–20. doi:10.1093/oxfordjournals.aje.a114471 (<https://doi.org/10.1093%2Foxfordjournals.aje.a114471>). PMID 3096132 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/3096132>).
40. Bottenheim AM, Asch DA (December 2013). "Making vaccine refusal less of a free ride" (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC4162060>). Human Vaccines & Immunotherapeutics. 9 (12): 2674–75. doi:10.4161/hv.26676 (<https://doi.org/10.4161%2Fhv.26676>). PMC 4162060 (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC4162060>). PMID 24088616 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/24088616>).
41. Reich, Jennifer (June 13, 2019). "I've talked to dozens of parents about why they don't vaccinate. Here's what they told me" (<https://www.vox.com/first-person/2019/5/8/18535944/jessica-biel-measles-2019-outbreak-anti-vax>). Vox. Retrieved July 5, 2019.
42. The Lancet Infectious Diseases (April 2007). "Tackling negative perceptions towards vaccination". The Lancet Infectious Diseases. 7 (4): 235. doi:10.1016/S1473-3099(07)70057-9 (<https://doi.org/10.1016%2FS1473-3099%2807%2970057-9>). PMID 17376373 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/17376373>).
43. "Possible Side-effects from Vaccines" (<https://www.cdc.gov/vaccines/vac-gen/side-effects.htm#mmr>). Centers for Disease Control and Prevention. August 26, 2013. Retrieved January 3, 2014.
44. Chen RT, Hibbs B (July 1998). "Vaccine Safety: Current and Future Challenges" (<http://sites.utoronto.ca/virology/mby480/VaccineSafe/VaccineSafe.htm>). Pediatric Annals. 27 (7): 445–55. doi:10.3928/0090-4481-19980701-11 (<https://doi.org/10.3928%2F0090-4481-19980701-11>). PMID 9677616 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/9677616>). Retrieved January 3, 2014.

45. Bonhoeffer, Jan; Heininger, Ulrich (June 2007). "Adverse events following immunization: perception and evidence" (<https://semanticscholar.org/paper/b4aae434337cd6e9cdc415b0ab47869524fe957a>). Current Opinion in Infectious Diseases. 20 (3): 237–46. doi:10.1097/QCO.0b013e32811ebfb0 (<http://doi.org/10.1097%2FQCO.0b013e32811ebfb0>). PMID 17471032 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/17471032>). S2CID 40669829 (<https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:40669829>).
46. Mooney C (June 2009). "Why does the vaccine/autism controversy live on?" (<http://discovermagazine.com/2009/jun/06-why-does-vaccine-autism-controversy-live-on>). Discover.
47. Jacobson, RM; St Sauver, JL; Finney Rutten, LJ (November 2015). "Vaccine Hesitancy" (<https://doi.org/10.1016%2Fj.mayocp.2015.09.006>). Mayo Clinic Proceedings. 90 (11): 1562–68. doi:10.1016/j.mayocp.2015.09.006 (<https://doi.org/10.1016%2Fj.mayocp.2015.09.006>). PMID 26541249 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/26541249>).
48. Marshall, GS (2013). "Roots of vaccine hesitancy". S D Med. Spec no: 52–57. PMID 23444592 (<http://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/23444592>).
49. McClure, CC; Cataldi, JR; O'Leary, ST (August 2017). "Vaccine Hesitancy: Where We Are and Where We Are Going" (<https://doi.org/10.1016%2Fj.clinthera.2017.07.003>). Clinical Therapeutics. 39 (8): 1550–62. doi:10.1016/j.clinthera.2017.07.003 (<https://doi.org/10.1016%2Fj.clinthera.2017.07.003>). PMID 28774498 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/28774498>).
50. Leask J, Chapman S, Cooper Robbins SC (2009). "'All manner of ills': The features of serious diseases attributed to vaccination". Vaccine. 28 (17): 3066–3070. doi:10.1016/j.vaccine.2009.10.042 (<https://doi.org/10.1016%2Fj.vaccine.2009.10.042>). PMID 19879997 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/19879997>).
51. Goldacre B (2009). Bad Science. London: Fourth Estate. pp. 292–94. ISBN 978-0007284870.
52. Taylor, Luke E.; Swerdfeger, Amy L.; Eslick, Guy D. (June 17, 2014). "Vaccines are not associated with autism: an evidence-based meta-analysis of case-control and cohort studies". Vaccine. 32 (29): 3623–29. doi:10.1016/j.vaccine.2014.04.085 (<https://doi.org/10.1016%2Fj.vaccine.2014.04.085>). ISSN 1873-2518 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/1873-2518>). PMID 24814559 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/24814559>).
53. Smith, IM; MacDonald, NE (August 2017). "Countering evidence denial and the promotion of pseudoscience in autism spectrum disorder". Autism Research (Review). 10 (8): 1334–37. doi:10.1002/aur.1810 (<https://doi.org/10.1002%2Faur.1810>). PMID 28544626 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/28544626>). S2CID 205456548 (<https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:205456548>).
54. Boseley S (February 2, 2010). "Lancet retracts 'utterly false' MMR paper" (<https://www.theguardian.com/society/2010/feb/02/lancet-retracts-mmr-paper>). The Guardian. Retrieved February 2, 2010.
55. Taylor LE, Swerdfeger AL, Eslick GD (June 2014). "Vaccines are not associated with autism: an evidence-based meta-analysis of case-control and cohort studies". Vaccine. 32 (29): 3623–29. doi:10.1016/j.vaccine.2014.04.085 (<https://doi.org/10.1016%2Fj.vaccine.2014.04.085>). PMID 24814559 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/24814559>).
56. "Vaccines Do Not Cause Autism Concerns" (<https://www.cdc.gov/vaccinesafety/concerns/autism.html>). Centers for Disease Control and Prevention. December 12, 2018. Retrieved February 7, 2019.
57. "How autism myths came to fuel anti-vaccination movements" (<https://www.popsci.com/timeline-autism-myth-anti-vaccine>). Popular Science. February 2019.
58. Foster, Craig A.; Ortiz, Sarena M. (2017). "Vaccines, Autism, and the Promotion of Irrelevant Research: A Science-Pseudoscience Analysis" (https://web.archive.org/web/20181006204019/http://www.csicop.org/si/show/vaccines_autism_and_the_promotion_of_irrelevant_research_a_science-pseudosc). Skeptical Inquirer. 41 (3): 44–48. Archived from the original (https://www.csicop.org/si/show/vaccines_autism_and_the_promotion_of_irrelevant_research_a_science-pseudosc) on October 6, 2018. Retrieved October 6, 2018.

59. Baker JP (February 2008). "Mercury, vaccines, and autism: one controversy, three histories" (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC2376879>). American Journal of Public Health. 98 (2): 244–53. doi:10.2105/AJPH.2007.113159 (<https://doi.org/10.2105%2FAJPH.2007.113159>). PMC 2376879 (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC2376879>). PMID 18172138 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/18172138>).
60. "Thimerosal in vaccines" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20080726010009/https://www.fda.gov/cber/vaccine/thimerosal.htm>). Center for Biologics Evaluation and Research, U.S. Food and Drug Administration. June 3, 2008. Archived from the original (<https://www.fda.gov/cber/vaccine/thimerosal.htm>) on July 26, 2008. Retrieved July 25, 2008.
61. Center for Biologics Evaluation and Research (April 5, 2019). "Thimerosal and Vaccines" (<https://www.fda.gov/vaccines-blood-biologics/safety-availability-biologics/thimerosal-and-vaccines>). FDA. fda.gov.
62. Offit PA (September 2007). "Thimerosal and vaccines – a cautionary tale" (<https://semanticscholar.org/paper/c2f25efef0ed507beef6bce8f4bf33cb6f51e524>). The New England Journal of Medicine. 357 (13): 1278–79. doi:10.1056/NEJMp078187 (<https://doi.org/10.1056%2FNEJMp078187>). PMID 17898096 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/17898096>). S2CID 36318722 (<https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:36318722>).
63. Bose-O'Reilly S, McCarty KM, Steckling N, Lettmeier B (September 2010). "Mercury exposure and children's health" (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC3096006>). Current Problems in Pediatric and Adolescent Health Care. 40 (8): 186–215. doi:10.1016/j.cppeds.2010.07.002 (<https://doi.org/10.1016%2Fj.cppeds.2010.07.002>). PMC 3096006 (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC3096006>). PMID 20816346 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/20816346>).
64. Gerber JS, Offit PA (February 2009). "Vaccines and autism: a tale of shifting hypotheses" (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC2908388>). Clinical Infectious Diseases. 48 (4): 456–61. doi:10.1086/596476 (<https://doi.org/10.1086%2F596476>). PMC 2908388 (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC2908388>). PMID 19128068 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/19128068>). Lay summary (<https://web.archive.org/web/20110225143641/http://www.idsociety.org/Content.aspx?id=13336>) – IDSA (January 30, 2009).
65. Doja A, Roberts W (November 2006). "Immunizations and autism: a review of the literature" (<https://doi.org/10.1017%2Fs031716710000528x>). The Canadian Journal of Neurological Sciences. 33 (4): 341–46. doi:10.1017/s031716710000528x (<https://doi.org/10.1017%2Fs031716710000528x>). PMID 17168158 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/17168158>).
66. Spencer, JP; Trondsen Pawlowski, RH; Thomas, S (June 2017). "Vaccine Adverse Events: Separating Myth from Reality" (<https://www.aafp.org/afp/2017/0615/p786.html>). American Family Physician. 95 (12): 786–94. PMID 28671426 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/28671426>).
67. Sugarman SD (September 2007). "Cases in vaccine court – legal battles over vaccines and autism" (https://works.bepress.com/stephen_sugarman/77). The New England Journal of Medicine. 357 (13): 1275–77. doi:10.1056/NEJMp078168 (<https://doi.org/10.1056%2FNEJMp078168>). PMID 17898095 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/17898095>).
68. Immunization Safety Review Committee (2004). Immunization Safety Review: Vaccines and Autism (http://www.nap.edu/catalog.php?record_id=10997). The National Academies Press. doi:10.17226/10997 (<https://doi.org/10.17226%2F10997>). ISBN 978-0-309-09237-1. PMID 20669467 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/20669467>).
69. "Thimerosal and Vaccines" (<https://www.fda.gov/vaccines-blood-biologics/safety-availability-biologics/thimerosal-and-vaccines#pres>). fda.gov. U.S. Food and Drug Administration. April 5, 2019.
70. Wakefield AJ, Murch SH, Anthony A, Linnell J, Casson DM, Malik M, Berelowitz M, Dhillon AP, Thomson MA, Harvey P, Valentine A, Davies SE, Walker-Smith JA (February 1998). "Ileal-lymphoid-nodular hyperplasia, non-specific colitis, and pervasive developmental disorder in children". Lancet. 351 (9103): 637–41. doi:10.1016/S0140-6736(97)11096-0 (<https://doi.org/10.1016%2FS0140-6736%2897%2911096-0>). PMID 9500320 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/9500320>). S2CID 439791 (<https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:439791>). (Retracted)

71. National Health Service (2015). "MMR vaccine" (<https://www.nhs.uk/conditions/vaccinations/mmr-vaccine/>). Retrieved July 4, 2018.
72. Deer B (February 22, 2004). "Revealed: MMR research scandal" (<http://www.timesonline.co.uk/tol/news/uk/health/article1027603.ece>). The Sunday Times. Retrieved September 23, 2007.
73. Horton R (March 2004). "The lessons of MMR". Lancet. 363 (9411): 747–49. doi:10.1016/S0140-6736(04)15714-0 (<https://doi.org/10.1016%2FS0140-6736%2804%2915714-0>). PMID 15016482 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/15016482>). S2CID 5357597 (<https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:5357597>).
74. "MMR scare doctor 'paid children'" (<http://news.bbc.co.uk/2/hi/health/6289166.stm>). BBC News. July 16, 2007.
75. "Doctors issue plea over MMR jab" (<http://news.bbc.co.uk/2/hi/health/5118166.stm>). BBC News. June 26, 2006. Retrieved November 23, 2007.
76. Alazraki M (January 12, 2011). "The Autism Vaccine Fraud: Dr. Wakefield's Costly Lie to Society" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20111027104603/http://www.dailyfinance.com/2011/01/12/autism-vaccine-fraud-wakefield-cost-money-deaths/>). DailyFinance, AOL Money & Finance. Archived from the original (<http://www.dailyfinance.com/2011/01/12/autism-vaccine-fraud-wakefield-cost-money-deaths/>) on October 27, 2011. Retrieved October 18, 2011.
77. Murch SH, Anthony A, Casson DH, Malik M, Berelowitz M, Dhillon AP, Thomson MA, Valentine A, Davies SE, Walker-Smith JA (March 2004). "Retraction of an interpretation". Lancet. 363 (9411): 750. doi:10.1016/S0140-6736(04)15715-2 (<https://doi.org/10.1016%2FS0140-6736%2804%2915715-2>). PMID 15016483 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/15016483>). S2CID 5128036 (<https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:5128036>).
78. The Editors Of The Lancet (February 2010). "Retraction – Ileal-lymphoid-nodular hyperplasia, non-specific colitis, and pervasive developmental disorder in children". Lancet. 375 (9713): 445. doi:10.1016/S0140-6736(10)60175-4 (<https://doi.org/10.1016%2FS0140-6736%2810%2960175-4>). PMID 20137807 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/20137807>). S2CID 26364726 (<https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:26364726>). Lay summary (<http://news.bbc.co.uk/2/low/health/8493753.stm>) – BBC News (February 2, 2010).
79. "General Medical Council, Fitness to Practise Panel Hearing, 24 May 2010, Andrew Wakefield, Determination of Serious Professional Misconduct" (https://web.archive.org/web/20130512115524/http://www.gmc-uk.org/Wakefield_SPM_and_SANCTION.pdf_32595267.pdf) (PDF). General Medical Council. Archived from the original (http://www.gmc-uk.org/Wakefield_SPM_and_SANCTION.pdf_32595267.pdf) (PDF) on May 12, 2013. Retrieved September 18, 2011.
80. Meikle, James; Boseley, Sarah (May 24, 2010). "MMR row doctor Andrew Wakefield struck off register" (<https://www.theguardian.com/society/2010/may/24/mmr-doctor-andrew-wakefield-struck-off>). The Guardian. London. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20100527003931/http://www.guardian.co.uk/society/2010/may/24/mmr-doctor-andrew-wakefield-struck-off>) from the original on May 27, 2010. Retrieved May 24, 2010.
81. "Concerns about autism" (<http://cdc.gov/vaccinesafety/Concerns/Autism/Index.html>). Centers for Disease Control and Prevention. January 15, 2010.
82. "MMR The facts" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20070615000359/http://www.mmrthefacts.nhs.uk/>). United Kingdom National Health Service. Archived from the original (<http://www.mmrthefacts.nhs.uk/>) on June 15, 2007. Retrieved June 13, 2007.
83. "Are Vaccines Safe?" (<https://www.health.gov.au/health-topics/immunisation/about-immunisation/are-vaccines-safe#no-established-link-between-vaccines-and-autism>). health.gov.au. Australia Department of Health.

84. Demicheli V, Rivetti A, Debalini MG, Di Pietrantonj C (February 2012). Demicheli V (ed.). "Vaccines for measles, mumps and rubella in children" (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC6458016>). The Cochrane Database of Systematic Reviews. 2 (2): CD004407. doi:10.1002/14651858.CD004407.pub3 (<https://doi.org/10.1002%2F14651858.CD004407.pub3>). PMC 6458016 (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC6458016>). PMID 22336803 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/22336803>).
85. DeStefano, Frank; Shimabukuro, Tom T. (April 15, 2019). "The MMR Vaccine and Autism" (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC6768751>). Annual Review of Virology. 6 (1): 585–600. doi:10.1146/annurev-virology-092818-015515 (<https://doi.org/10.1146%2Fannurev-virology-092818-015515>). ISSN 2327-0578 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/2327-0578>). PMC 6768751 (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC6768751>). PMID 30986133 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/30986133>).
86. Deer B (February 8, 2009). "MMR doctor Andrew Wakefield fixed data on autism" (http://www.timesonline.co.uk/tol/life_and_style/health/article5683671.ece). Sunday Times. Retrieved February 9, 2009.
87. Deer B (January 2011). "How the case against the MMR vaccine was fixed" (<https://doi.org/10.1136%2Fbmj.c5347>). BMJ. 342: c5347. doi:10.1136/bmj.c5347 (<https://doi.org/10.1136%2Fbmj.c5347>). PMID 21209059 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/21209059>).
88. Godlee F, Smith J, Marcovitch H (January 2011). "Wakefield's article linking MMR vaccine and autism was fraudulent" (<https://semanticscholar.org/paper/9766637ea6e30ff6f6eea94379372f0f80f36ac56>). BMJ. 342: c7452. doi:10.1136/bmj.c7452 (<https://doi.org/10.1136%2Fbmj.c7452>). PMID 21209060 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/21209060>). S2CID 43640126 (<https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:43640126>).
89. Vaccine court and autism:
- "Vaccine didn't cause autism, court rules" (<http://www.cnn.com/2009/HEALTH/02/12/autism.vaccines/index.html?iref=allsearch>). CNN. February 12, 2009. Retrieved February 12, 2009.
 - Theresa Cedillo and Michael Cedillo, as parents and natural guardians of Michelle Cedillo vs. Secretary of Health and Human Services, 98-916V (<ftp://autism.uscfc.uscourts.gov/autism/vaccine/Hastings-Cedillo.pdf>) (United States Court of Federal Claims 2009-02-12).
90. Hilton S, Petticrew M, Hunt K (May 2006). "'Combined vaccines are like a sudden onslaught to the body's immune system': parental concerns about vaccine 'overload' and 'immune-vulnerability'". Vaccine. 24 (20): 4321–27. doi:10.1016/j.vaccine.2006.03.003 (<https://doi.org/10.1016%2Fj.vaccine.2006.03.003>). PMID 16581162 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/16581162>).
91. Hurst L (October 30, 2009). "Vaccine phobia runs deep" (<https://www.thestar.com/news/article/718829>). Toronto Star. Retrieved November 4, 2009.
92. Heinger U (September 2006). "An internet-based survey on parental attitudes towards immunization". Vaccine. 24 (37–39): 6351–55. doi:10.1016/j.vaccine.2006.05.029 (<https://doi.org/10.1016%2Fj.vaccine.2006.05.029>). PMID 16784799 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/16784799>).
93. Willingham, Emily (March 29, 2013). "Vaccines Not Linked To Autism. Again" (<https://www.forbes.com/sites/emilywillingham/2013/03/29/vaccines-not-linked-to-autism-again/>). Forbes. Retrieved April 4, 2013.
94. DeStefano F, Price CS, Weintraub ES (August 2013). "Increasing exposure to antibody-stimulating proteins and polysaccharides in vaccines is not associated with risk of autism" (<http://www.jpeds.com/webfiles/images/journals/ympd/JPEDSDeStefano.pdf>) (PDF). The Journal of Pediatrics. 163 (2): 561–77. CiteSeerX 10.1.1.371.2592 (<https://citeseerx.ist.psu.edu/viewdoc/summary?doi=10.1.1.371.2592>). doi:10.1016/j.jpeds.2013.02.001 (<https://doi.org/10.1016%2Fj.jpeds.2013.02.001>). PMID 23545349 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/23545349>).

95. Immune challenges:

- Murphy TF (June 1996). "Branhamella catarrhalis: epidemiology, surface antigenic structure, and immune response" (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC239443>). Microbiological Reviews. 60 (2): 267–79. doi:10.1128/MMBR.60.2.267-279.1996 (<https://doi.org/10.1128%2FMMBR.60.2.267-279.1996>). PMC 239443 (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC239443>). PMID 8801433 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/8801433>).
- Sloyer JL, Howie VM, Ploussard JH, Ammann AJ, Austrian R, Johnston RB (June 1974). "Immune response to acute otitis media in children. I. Serotypes isolated and serum and middle ear fluid antibody in pneumococcal otitis media" (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC414928>). Infection and Immunity. 9 (6): 1028–32. doi:10.1128/IAI.9.6.1028-1032.1974 (<https://doi.org/10.1128%2FIAI.9.6.1028-1032.1974>). PMC 414928 (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC414928>). PMID 4151506 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/4151506>).

96. Vaccine burden:

- Miller E, Andrews N, Waight P, Taylor B (March 2003). "Bacterial infections, immune overload, and MMR vaccine. Measles, mumps, and rubella" (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC1719482>). Archives of Disease in Childhood. 88 (3): 222–23. doi:10.1136/adc.88.3.222 (<https://doi.org/10.1136%2Fadc.88.3.222>). PMC 1719482 (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC1719482>). PMID 12598383 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/12598383>).
 - Hviid A, Wohlfahrt J, Stellfeld M, Melbye M (August 2005). "Childhood vaccination and nontargeted infectious disease hospitalization" (<https://doi.org/10.1001%2Fjama.294.6.699>). JAMA. 294 (6): 699–705. doi:10.1001/jama.294.6.699 (<https://doi.org/10.1001%2Fjama.294.6.699>). PMID 16091572 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/16091572>).
97. Gregson AL, Edelman R (November 2003). "Does antigenic overload exist? The role of multiple immunizations in infants". Immunology and Allergy Clinics of North America. 23 (4): 649–64. doi:10.1016/S0889-8561(03)00097-3 (<https://doi.org/10.1016%2FS0889-8561%2803%2900097-3>). PMID 14753385 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/14753385>).
98. Offit, Paul A.; Hackett, Charles J. (2003). "Addressing Parents' Concerns: Do Vaccines Cause Allergic or Autoimmune Diseases?" (<https://doi.org/10.1542%2Fpeds.111.3.653>). Pediatrics. 111 (3): 653–59. doi:10.1542/peds.111.3.653 (<https://doi.org/10.1542%2Fpeds.111.3.653>). PMID 12612250 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/12612250>).
99. Schneeweiss B, Pfeleiderer M, Keller-Stanislawski B (August 2008). "Vaccination safety update" (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC2680557>). Deutsches Ärzteblatt International. 105 (34–35): 590–95. doi:10.3238/arztebl.2008.0590 (<https://doi.org/10.3238%2Farztebl.2008.0590>). PMC 2680557 (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC2680557>). PMID 19471677 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/19471677>).
00. Deen JL, Clemens JD (November 2006). "Issues in the design and implementation of vaccine trials in less developed countries". Nature Reviews. Drug Discovery. 5 (11): 932–40. doi:10.1038/nrd2159 (<https://doi.org/10.1038%2Fnrd2159>). PMID 17080029 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/17080029>). S2CID 413230 (<https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:413230>).
01. Fineberg AM, Ellman LM (May 2013). "Inflammatory cytokines and neurological and neurocognitive alterations in the course of schizophrenia" (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC3641168>). Biological Psychiatry. 73 (10): 951–66. doi:10.1016/j.biopsych.2013.01.001 (<https://doi.org/10.1016%2Fj.biopsych.2013.01.001>). PMC 3641168 (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC3641168>). PMID 23414821 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/23414821>).
02. Skowronski DM, De Serres G (July 2009). "Is routine influenza immunization warranted in early pregnancy?". Vaccine. 27 (35): 4754–70. doi:10.1016/j.vaccine.2009.03.079 (<https://doi.org/10.1016%2Fj.vaccine.2009.03.079>). PMID 19515466 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/19515466>).

03. Fiore AE, Shay DK, Haber P, Iskander JK, Uyeki TM, Mootrey G, Bresee JS, Cox NJ (July 2007). "Prevention and control of influenza. Recommendations of the Advisory Committee on Immunization Practices (ACIP), 2007" (<https://www.cdc.gov/mmwr/preview/mmwrhtml/rr5606a1.htm>). MMWR. Recommendations and Reports. 56 (RR-6): 1–54. PMID 17625497 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/17625497>).
04. Principi, N; Esposito, S (September 2018). "Aluminum in vaccines: Does it create a safety problem?". Vaccine. 36 (39): 5825–31. doi:10.1016/j.vaccine.2018.08.036 (<https://doi.org/10.1016%2Fj.vaccine.2018.08.036>). PMID 30139653 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/30139653>).
05. Baylor NW, Egan W, Richman P (May 2002). "Aluminum salts in vaccines – US perspective". Vaccine. 20 (Suppl 3): S18–23. doi:10.1016/S0264-410X(02)00166-4 (<https://doi.org/10.1016%2FS0264-410X%2802%2900166-4>). PMID 12184360 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/12184360>).
06. Leslie M (July 2013). "Solution to vaccine mystery starts to crystallize". Science. 341 (6141): 26–27. Bibcode:2013Sci...341...26L (<https://ui.adsabs.harvard.edu/abs/2013Sci...341...26L>). doi:10.1126/science.341.6141.26 (<https://doi.org/10.1126%2Fscience.341.6141.26>). PMID 23828925 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/23828925>).
07. François G, Duclos P, Margolis H, et al. (November 2005). "Vaccine safety controversies and the future of vaccination programs". The Pediatric Infectious Disease Journal. 24 (11): 953–61. doi:10.1097/01.inf.0000183853.16113.a6 (<https://doi.org/10.1097%2F01.inf.0000183853.16113.a6>). PMID 16282928 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/16282928>). S2CID 10484014 (<https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:10484014>).
08. "Vaccine Ingredients" (<http://vk.ovg.ox.ac.uk/vaccine-ingredients#aluminium>). Vaccine Knowledge Project. Centre for Clinical Vaccinology and Tropical Medicine, Churchill Hospital, University of Oxford.
09. "Common Ingredients Used in U.S. Licensed Vaccines" (<https://www.fda.gov/vaccines-blood-biologics/safety-availability-biologics/common-ingredients-us-licensed-vaccines>). fda.gov. U.S. Food and Drug Administration. April 19, 2019.
10. "Vaccine Ingredients-Formaldehyde" (<https://www.chop.edu/centers-programs/vaccine-education-center/vaccine-ingredients/formaldehyde>). chop.edu. Children's Hospital of Philadelphia. November 6, 2014.
11. "Vaccine Ingredients" (https://www.vaccines.gov/basics/vaccine_ingredients). vaccines.gov. U.S. Department of Health and Human Services.
12. Moon, RY; Task Force on Sudden Infant Death Syndrome (November 2016). "SIDS and Other Sleep-Related Infant Deaths: Evidence Base for 2016 Updated Recommendations for a Safe Infant Sleeping Environment" (<https://pediatrics.aappublications.org/content/138/5/e20162940.long>). Pediatrics. 138 (5): e20162940. doi:10.1542/peds.2016-2940 (<https://doi.org/10.1542%2Fpeds.2016-2940>). PMID 27940805 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/27940805>).
13. Task Force on Sudden Infant Death Syndrome (November 2016). "SIDS and Other Sleep-Related Infant Deaths: Updated 2016 Recommendations for a Safe Infant Sleeping Environment" (<https://pediatrics.aappublications.org/content/138/5/e20162938.long>). Pediatrics. 138 (5): e20162938. doi:10.1542/peds.2016-2938 (<https://doi.org/10.1542%2Fpeds.2016-2938>). PMID 27940804 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/27940804>). Retrieved December 13, 2019.
14. Institute of Medicine (US) Immunization Safety Review Committee; Stratton, K; Almario, DA; Wizemann, TM; McCormick, MC (2003). Immunization Safety Review: Vaccinations and Sudden Unexpected Death in Infancy (https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/books/NBK221466/pdf/Bookshelf_NBK221466.pdf) (PDF). Washington D.C.: National Academies Press (US). PMID 25057654 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/25057654>). Retrieved December 13, 2019.
15. Vennemann, MM; Höffgen, M; Bajanowski, T; Hense, HW; Mitchell, EA (June 2007). "Do immunisations reduce the risk for SIDS? A meta-analysis". Vaccine. 25 (26): 4875–79. doi:10.1016/j.vaccine.2007.02.077 (<https://doi.org/10.1016%2Fj.vaccine.2007.02.077>). PMID 17400342 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/17400342>).

16. Hausman, Bernice L. (2019). Anti/Vax: Reframing the Vaccination Controversy. Cornell University Press. pp. 28, 39–42. ISBN 9781501735639.
17. Chatterjee, Archana (2013). Vaccinophobia and Vaccine Controversies of the 21st Century. Springer Science & Business Media. p. 8. ISBN 9781461474388.
18. Ward JK (June 2016). "Rethinking the antivaccine movement concept: A case study of public criticism of the swine flu vaccine's safety in France". Social Science & Medicine. 159: 48–57. doi:10.1016/j.socscimed.2016.05.003 (<https://doi.org/10.1016%2Fj.socscimed.2016.05.003>). PMID 27173740 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/27173740>).
19. Chatterjee, Archana (2013). Vaccinophobia and Vaccine Controversies of the 21st Century. Springer Science & Business Media. p. 325. ISBN 9781461474388.
20. Mailand, MT; Frederiksen, JL (June 2017). "Vaccines and multiple sclerosis: a systematic review". Journal of Neurology. 264 (6): 1035–50. doi:10.1007/s00415-016-8263-4 (<https://doi.org/10.1007%2Fs00415-016-8263-4>). PMID 27604618 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/27604618>). S2CID 4005599 (<https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:4005599>).
21. Rewers, M; Ludvigsson, J (June 2016). "Environmental risk factors for type 1 diabetes" (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC5571740>). Lancet. 387 (10035): 2340–48. doi:10.1016/S0140-6736(16)30507-4 (<https://doi.org/10.1016%2FS0140-6736%2816%2930507-4>). PMC 5571740 (<http://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC5571740>). PMID 27302273 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/27302273>).
22. Elwood, JM; Ameratunga, R (September 2018). "Autoimmune diseases after hepatitis B immunization in adults: Literature review and meta-analysis, with reference to 'autoimmune/autoinflammatory syndrome induced by adjuvants' (ASIA)". Vaccine (Systematic Review & Meta-Analysis). 36 (38): 5796–802. doi:10.1016/j.vaccine.2018.07.074 (<https://doi.org/10.1016%2Fj.vaccine.2018.07.074>). PMID 30100071 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/30100071>).
23. Edwards, Kathryn M.; Hackell, Jesse M. (August 29, 2016). "Countering Vaccine Hesitancy" (<https://doi.org/10.1542%2Fpeds.2016-2146>). Pediatrics. 138 (3): e20162146. doi:10.1542/peds.2016-2146 (<https://doi.org/10.1542%2Fpeds.2016-2146>). PMID 27573088 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/27573088>). Lay summary (<http://www.aappublications.org/news/2016/08/29/VaccineHesitancy082916>) – AAP News (August 29, 2016).
24. Kennedy, Jonathan (October 2017). "How Drone Strikes and a Fake Vaccination Program Have Inhibited Polio Eradication in Pakistan: An Analysis of National Level Data" (<http://qmro.qmul.ac.uk/xmloi/handle/123456789/25135>). International Journal of Health Services: Planning, Administration, Evaluation. 47 (4): 807–25. doi:10.1177/0020731417722888 (<https://doi.org/10.1177%2F0020731417722888>). ISSN 1541-4469 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/1541-4469>). PMID 28764582 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/28764582>). S2CID 25844860 (<https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:25844860>).
25. Jr, Donald G. McNeil (July 9, 2012). "C.I.A. Vaccine Ruse - May Have Harmed the War on Polio" (<http://www.nytimes.com/2012/07/10/health/cia-vaccine-ruse-in-pakistan-may-have-harmed-polio-fight.html>). The New York Times. ISSN 0362-4331 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/0362-4331>). Retrieved July 3, 2020.
26. "Pakistan Raises Its Guard After 2 Polio Vaccinators Are Gunned Down" (<https://www.npr.org/sections/goatsandsoda/2018/01/23/580002283/pakistan-raises-its-guard-after-two-polio-vaccinators-are-gunned-down>). NPR.org.
27. "Seven shot dead in Pakistan polio attack" (<https://www.bbc.com/news/world-asia-36090891>). BBC News. April 20, 2016 – via bbc.com.
28. Gangarosa EJ, Galazka AM, Wolfe CR, Phillips LM, Gangarosa RE, Miller E, Chen RT (January 1998). "Impact of anti-vaccine movements on pertussis control: the untold story". Lancet. 351 (9099): 356–61. doi:10.1016/S0140-6736(97)04334-1 (<https://doi.org/10.1016%2FS0140-6736%2897%2904334-1>). PMID 9652634 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/9652634>). S2CID 35969647 (<https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:35969647>).

29. Allen A (2002). "Bucking the herd" (<http://immunize.org/exemptions/allen.htm>). The Atlantic. 290 (2): 40–42. Retrieved November 7, 2007.
30. "What would happen if we stopped vaccinations?" (<https://www.cdc.gov/vaccines/vac-gen/whatifstop.htm>). Centers for Disease Control and Prevention. June 12, 2007. Retrieved April 25, 2008.
31. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (2007). "Pertussis" (<https://www.cdc.gov/vaccines/pubs/pinkbook/downloads/pert.pdf>) (PDF). In Atkinson W, Hamborsky J, McIntyre L, Wolfe S (eds.). Epidemiology and Prevention of Vaccine-Preventable Diseases. Washington, DC: Public Health Foundation. ISBN 978-0-01-706605-3.
32. Nelson MC, Rogers J (December 1992). "The right to die? Anti-vaccination activity and the 1874 smallpox epidemic in Stockholm". Social History of Medicine. 5 (3): 369–88. doi:10.1093/shm/5.3.369 (<https://doi.org/10.1093%2Fshm%2F5.3.369>). PMID 11645870 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/11645870>).
33. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (April 2000). "Measles outbreak – Netherlands, April 1999 – January 2000" (<https://www.cdc.gov/mmwr/preview/mmwrhtml/mm4914a2.htm>). Morbidity and Mortality Weekly Report. 49 (14): 299–303. PMID 10825086 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/10825086>).
34. Pepys MB (December 2007). "Science and serendipity" (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC4954362>). Clinical Medicine. 7 (6): 562–78. doi:10.7861/clinmedicine.7-6-562 (<https://doi.org/10.7861%2Fclinmedicine.7-6-562>). PMC 4954362 (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC4954362>). PMID 18193704 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/18193704>).
35. Ireland measles outbreak:
 - "Measles outbreak feared" (<http://news.bbc.co.uk/2/hi/health/769381.stm>). BBC News. May 30, 2000.
 - McBrien J, Murphy J, Gill D, Cronin M, O'Donovan C, Cafferkey MT (July 2003). "Measles outbreak in Dublin, 2000". The Pediatric Infectious Disease Journal. 22 (7): 580–84. doi:10.1097/00006454-200307000-00002 (<https://doi.org/10.1097%2F00006454-200307000-00002>). PMID 12867830 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/12867830>).
36. Clements, Christopher; Greenough, Paul; Shull, Diana (January 1, 2006). "How Vaccine Safety can Become Political – The Example of Polio in Nigeria". Current Drug Safety. 1 (1): 117–19. doi:10.2174/157488606775252575 (<https://doi.org/10.2174%2F157488606775252575>). PMID 18690921 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/18690921>).
37. Public Health Nigeria (October 2018). "Challenges of Immunization in Nigeria" (<https://publichealthng.com/immunization-nigeria-challenges-benefits-prevention/>). PublichealthNg.com. Retrieved October 28, 2018.
38. "Wild poliovirus 2000–2008" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20070927204139/http://www.polioeradication.org/content/general/casecount.pdf>) (PDF). Global Polio Eradication Initiative. February 5, 2008. Archived from the original (<http://www.polioeradication.org/content/general/casecount.pdf>) (PDF) on September 27, 2007. Retrieved February 11, 2008.
39. "'Hundreds' dead in measles outbreak" (<http://irinnews.org/Report.aspx?ReportId=75883>). IRIN. December 14, 2007. Retrieved February 10, 2008.
40. "Frequently Asked Questions about Measles in U.S" (<https://www.cdc.gov/measles/about/faqs.html>). Centers for Disease Control and Prevention. August 28, 2018.
41. Parker AA, Staggs W, Dayan GH, Ortega-Sánchez IR, Rota PA, Lowe L, Boardman P, Teclaw R, Graves C, LeBaron CW (August 2006). "Implications of a 2005 measles outbreak in Indiana for sustained elimination of measles in the United States" (<https://semanticscholar.org/paper/9b464d9d3d2dd10d3590a905e7db409843946a12>). The New England Journal of Medicine. 355 (5): 447–55. doi:10.1056/NEJMoa060775 (<https://doi.org/10.1056%2FNEJMoa060775>). PMID 16885548 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/16885548>). S2CID 34529542 (<https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:34529542>).

42. Jaslow, Ryan (September 12, 2013). "CDC: Vaccine "philosophical differences" driving up U.S. measles rates" (https://www.cbsnews.com/8301-204_162-57602677/cdc-vaccine-philosophical-differences-driving-up-u.s-measles-rates/). CBS News. Retrieved September 19, 2013.
43. Centers for Disease Control Prevention (CDC) (September 2013). "National, state, and local area vaccination coverage among children aged 19–35 months – United States, 2012" (<https://www.cdc.gov/mmwr/preview/mmwrhtml/mm6236a1.htm>). Morbidity and Mortality Weekly Report. 62 (36): 733–40. PMC 4585572 (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC4585572>). PMID 24025754 (<http://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/24025754>).
44. Rañoa R, Zarracina J (January 15, 2015). "The spread of Disneyland measles outbreak" (<https://www.latimes.com/visuals/graphics/la-me-g-spread-of-disneyland-measles-outbreak-20150113-htmistory.html>). Los Angeles Times.
45. Glenza J (January 19, 2015). "Measles outbreak worsens in US after unvaccinated woman visits Disneyland" (<https://www.theguardian.com/us-news/2015/jan/14/measles-outbreak-spreads-unvaccinated-woman-disneyland>). The Guardian. Retrieved June 1, 2015.
46. Gastañaduy PA, Redd SB, Fiebelkorn AP, Rota JS, Rota PA, Bellini WJ, Seward JF, Wallace GS (June 2014). "Measles – United States, January 1 – May 23, 2014" (https://www.cdc.gov/mmwr/preview/mmwrhtml/mm6322a4.htm?s_cid=mm6322a4_w). Morbidity and Mortality Weekly Report. 63 (22): 496–99. PMC 5779360 (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC5779360>). PMID 24898167 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/24898167>).
47. CDC (June 30, 2015). "Measles Cases and Outbreaks" (<https://www.cdc.gov/measles/cases-outbreaks.html>). Retrieved July 2, 2015.
48. Press Release (July 2, 2015). "Measles led to death of Clallam Co. woman; first in US in a dozen years" (<http://www.doh.wa.gov/Newsroom/2015NewsReleases/15119WAMEaslesRelatedDeath>). Washington Department of Health.
49. Arizona measles outbreak: immigration workers blamed for refusing vaccines (<https://www.theguardian.com/us-news/2016/jul/08/arizona-measles-outbreak-immigration-detention-workers>), The Guardian, July 8, 2016. Retrieved March 10, 2019.
50. "Measles – Minnesota Dept. of Health" (<http://www.health.state.mn.us/divs/idepc/diseases/measles/>). Health.state.mn.us.
51. Sun LH (June 1, 2017). "Measles outbreak in Minnesota surpasses last year's total for the entire country" (https://www.washingtonpost.com/national/health-science/imams-in-us-take-on-the-anti-vaccine-movement-during-ramadan/2017/05/26/8660edc6-41ad-11e7-8c25-44d09ff5a4a8_story.html). The Washington Post.
52. Howard J (May 8, 2017). "Anti-vaccine groups blamed in Minnesota measles outbreak" (<http://www.cnn.com/2017/05/08/health/measles-minnesota-somali-anti-vaccine-bn/index.html>). CNN. Retrieved May 26, 2017.
53. "Minnesota measles outbreak follows anti-vaccination campaign" (<https://www.newscientist.com/article/mg23431253-200-minnesota-measles-outbreak-follows-antivaccination-campaign/>). New Scientist (3125) (published May 13, 2017). May 10, 2017. Retrieved May 26, 2017.
54. Zdechlik M (May 3, 2017). "Unfounded Autism Fears Are Fueling Minnesota's Measles Outbreak" (<https://www.npr.org/sections/health-shots/2017/05/03/526723028/autism-fears-fueling-minnesotas-measles-outbreak>). NPR.org. Retrieved May 26, 2017.
55. Howard J. "Anti-vaccine groups blamed in Minnesota measles outbreak" (<https://edition.cnn.com/2017/05/08/health/measles-minnesota-somali-anti-vaccine-bn/index.html>). CNN. Retrieved November 13, 2018.
56. Sohn E (May 3, 2017). "Understanding The History Behind Communities' Vaccine Fears" (<https://www.npr.org/sections/health-shots/2017/05/03/526595475/understanding-the-history-behind-communities-vaccine-fears>). NPR. Retrieved February 15, 2019.

57. Dyer, Owen (May 16, 2017). "Measles outbreak in Somali American community follows anti-vaccine talks". BMJ. 357: j2378. doi:10.1136/bmj.j2378 (<https://doi.org/10.1136%2Fbmj.j2378>). PMID 28512183 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/28512183>). S2CID 27124692 (<https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:27124692>).
58. Sun, Lena H. (May 5, 2017). "Anti-vaccine activists spark a state's worst measles outbreak in decades" (https://www.washingtonpost.com/national/health-science/anti-vaccine-activists-spark-a-states-worst-measles-outbreak-in-decades/2017/05/04/a1fac952-2f39-11e7-9dec-764dc781686f_story.html). The Washington Post. Retrieved February 17, 2019.
59. Otterman S (January 17, 2019). "New York Confronts Its Worst Measles Outbreak in Decades" (<https://www.nytimes.com/2019/01/17/nyregion/measles-outbreak-jews-nyc.html>). The New York Times. ISSN 0362-4331 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/0362-4331>). Retrieved January 19, 2019.
60. Howard J. "NY tackles 'largest measles outbreak' in state's recent history" (<https://www.cnn.com/2019/01/08/health/measles-outbreak-ny-bn/index.html>). CNN. Retrieved January 19, 2019.
61. Goldstein-Street, Jake (January 28, 2019). "Amid measles outbreak, legislation proposed to ban vaccine exemptions" (<https://www.seattletimes.com/seattle-news/amid-measles-outbreak-legislation-proposed-to-ban-vaccine-exemptions/>). The Seattle Times. Retrieved January 28, 2019.
62. "Washington state is averaging more than one measles case per day in 2019" (<https://www.nbcnews.com/storyline/measles-outbreak/measles-outbreak-southwestern-washington-rises-50-cases-n966751>). NBC News.
63. "Amid Measles Outbreak, Anti-Vaxx Parents Have Put Others' Babies At Risk" (<https://www.msn.com/en-ph/lifestyle/family/amid-measles-outbreak-anti-vaxx-parents-have-put-others-e2-80-99-babies-at-risk/ar-BBTbIBq>). MSN.
64. Belluz, Julia (January 27, 2019). "Washington declared a public health emergency over measles. Thank vaccine-refusing parents" (<https://www.vox.com/2019/1/27/18199514/measles-outbreak-2018-clark-county-washington>). Vox.
65. "'Dangerous' anti-vaxx warning issued by Washington officials as cases in measles outbreak continue to rise" (<https://www.newsweek.com/dangerous-anti-vaxx-warning-issued-washington-officials-cases-measles-1306997>). Newsweek. January 28, 2019.
66. "Public health emergency declared over measles in anti-vax hotspot near Portland, Oregon" (<https://www.cbsnews.com/news/measles-outbreak-public-health-emergency-declared-in-anti-vax-hotspot-near-portland-oregon-clark-county-washington/>). Cbsnews.com. Retrieved February 5, 2019.
67. "Swansea measles epidemic officially over" (<https://www.bbc.com/news/uk-wales-23168519>). BBC News. July 3, 2013. Retrieved October 8, 2014. "Large numbers of children in the 10–18 age group were not given the MMR vaccine as babies, the result of a scare that caused panic among parents. It followed research by Dr. Andrew Wakefield in the late 1990s that linked the vaccine with autism and bowel disease. His report, which was published in The Lancet medical journal, was later discredited, with health officials insisting the vaccine was completely safe."
68. "Swansea measles epidemic: Worries over MMR uptake after outbreak" (<https://www.bbc.com/news/uk-wales-politics-23244628>). BBC News. July 10, 2013. Retrieved October 8, 2014.
69. "600 children get MMR jab after measles outbreak in Newport" (<https://www.bbc.co.uk/news/uk-wales-south-east-wales-40366937>). BBC News. BBC. June 22, 2017.
70. Fair E, Murphy TV, Golaz A, Wharton M (January 2002). "Philosophic objection to vaccination as a risk for tetanus among children younger than 15 years" (<https://doi.org/10.1542%2Fpeds.109.1.e2>). Pediatrics. 109 (1): E2. doi:10.1542/peds.109.1.e2 (<https://doi.org/10.1542%2Fpeds.109.1.e2>). PMID 11773570 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/11773570>).
71. An unvaccinated child contracted tetanus. It took two months and more than $800K to save him. (<https://www.washingtonpost.com/health/2019/03/08/an-unvaccinated-child-contracted-tetanus-it-took-two-months-more-than-k-save-him/>), Washington Post, Amy Wang, March 8, 2019. Retrieved March 10, 2019.

72. Unvaccinated boy nearly died from tetanus. The cost of his care was almost $1 million. (<https://www.nbcnews.com/health/kids-health/unvaccinated-boy-almost-died-tetanus-hospital-bill-was-more-800-n981256>), NBC News, Linda Carroll, March 8, 2019. Retrieved March 10, 2019.
73. Ovidiu Covaciu (November 5, 2017). "How the Romanian anti-vaccine movement threatens Europe" (<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=wFpAiHCQ85g>). European Skeptics Congress. European Council of Skeptical Organisations. Retrieved November 6, 2017.
74. "Centrul Național de Supraveghere și Control al Bolilor Transmisibile – Informări săptămânale" (<http://www.cnscbt.ro/index.php/informari-saptamanale/rujeola-1/1143-situatia-rujeolei-in-romania-la-data-d-e-01-03-2019>). cnscbt.ro. Retrieved March 7, 2019.
75. "Australia – Oceania :: Samoa – The World Factbook" (<https://www.cia.gov/the-world-factbook/countries/samoa/>). cia.gov – Central Intelligence Agency (July 2018 est.). Retrieved December 6, 2019.
76. "Measles death toll rises to 68 in Samoa" (<https://www.rnz.co.nz/international/pacific-news/405090/measles-death-toll-rises-to-68-in-samoa>). RNZ. December 8, 2019. Retrieved December 8, 2019.
77. "Latest update: 4,357 measles cases have been reported since the outbreak with 140 recorded in the last 24 hours. mainly children under four years old" (<https://twitter.com/samoagovt/status/1202707973048418304>).
78. Beat, Pacific (November 26, 2019). "Samoa makes measles vaccinations compulsory after outbreak kills 32" (<https://www.abc.net.au/news/2019-11-26/samoa-measles-emergency-claims-32-lives-as-death-toll-rises/11738138>). ABC News. Retrieved November 26, 2019.
79. "Samoa declares state of emergency over deadly measles outbreak" (<https://www.abc.net.au/news/2019-11-17/samoa-declares-state-of-emergency-over-measles-outbreak/11711576>). abc.net.au. November 17, 2019. Retrieved November 26, 2019.
80. "Samoa measles outbreak worsens" (<https://www.bbc.com/news/world-asia-50528834>). November 23, 2019. Retrieved November 26, 2019.
81. France-Presse, Agence (November 28, 2019). "Samoa measles outbreak: WHO blames anti-vaccine scare as death toll hits 39" (<https://www.theguardian.com/world/2019/nov/28/samoa-measles-outbreak-who-blames-anti-vaccine-scare-death-toll>). The Guardian. Retrieved November 30, 2019.
82. Beat, Pacific (August 2, 2019). "'Her body was turning black': Samoan nurses jailed for infant vaccination deaths" (<https://www.abc.net.au/news/2019-08-02/samoa-nurses-sentenced-manslaughter-infant-vaccination-deaths/11378494>). ABC News. Retrieved November 29, 2019.
83. Dubé, E; Gagnon, D; MacDonald, NE; SAGE Working Group on Vaccine Hesitancy. (August 2015). "Strategies intended to address vaccine hesitancy: Review of published reviews" (<https://doi.org/10.1016%2Fj.vaccine.2015.04.041>). Vaccine (Review). 33 (34): 4191–4203. doi:10.1016/j.vaccine.2015.04.041 (<https://doi.org/10.1016%2Fj.vaccine.2015.04.041>). PMID 25896385 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/25896385>).
84. McKenzie, Peter (January 24, 2021). "Covid-19: Doctor using comics to confront vaccine conspiracy theories" (<https://www.stuff.co.nz/national/health/300212725/covid19-doctor-using-comics-to-confront-vaccine-conspiracy-theories>). Stuff (New Zealand). Retrieved March 23, 2021.
85. Brelsford, D; Knutzen, E; Neher, JO; Safranek, S (December 2017). "Clinical Inquiries: Which interventions are effective in managing parental vaccine refusal?" (<https://mdedge-files-live.s3.us-east-2.amazonaws.com/files/s3fs-public/Document/November-2017/JFP06612e12.PDF>) (PDF). Journal of Family Practice. 66 (12): E12-14. PMID 29202149 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/29202149>).
86. "Provider Resources for Vaccine Conversations with Parents" (<https://www.cdc.gov/vaccines/hcp/conversations/index.html>). cdc.gov. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention. May 28, 2019.
87. Jarrett, C; Wilson, R; O'Leary, M; Eckersberger, E; Larson, HJ; SAGE Working Group on Vaccine Hesitancy. (August 2015). "Strategies for addressing vaccine hesitancy – A systematic review" (<http://zenodo.org/record/1009492>). Vaccine. 33 (34): 4180–90. doi:10.1016/j.vaccine.2015.04.040 (<https://doi.org/10.1016%2Fj.vaccine.2015.04.040>). PMID 25896377 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/25896377>).

88. Kenen, Joanne (March 8, 2021). "Vaccine-skeptical Trump country poses challenge to immunization push" (<https://www.politico.com/news/2021/03/08/coronavirus-vaccine-rural-america-473940>). Politico.
89. Jamison, A.M.; Broniatowski, D. A.; Dredze, M. (November 13, 2019). "Vaccine-related advertising in the Facebook Ad Archive" (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC6954281>). Vaccine. 38 (3): 512–20. doi:10.1016/j.vaccine.2019.10.066 (<https://doi.org/10.1016%2Fj.vaccine.2019.10.066>). PMC 6954281 (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC6954281>). PMID 31732327 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/31732327>).
90. Sun, Lena H. (November 15, 2019). "Majority of anti-vaccine ads on Facebook were funded by two groups" (<https://www.washingtonpost.com/health/2019/11/15/majority-anti-vaccine-ads-facebook-were-funded-by-two-groups/>). The Washington Post. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20191117003403/https://www.washingtonpost.com/health/2019/11/15/majority-anti-vaccine-ads-facebook-were-funded-by-two-groups/>) from the original on November 17, 2019. Retrieved November 16, 2019.
91. How to respond to vocal vaccine deniers in public: World Health Organization (2016). https://www.who.int/immunization/sage/meetings/2016/october/8_Best-practice-guidance-respond-vocal-vaccine-deniers-public.pdf
92. Allen A (2007). Vaccine: The Controversial Story of Medicine's Greatest Lifesaver (<https://archive.org/details/vaccinecontrover00arth>). New York: W. W. Norton & Company, Inc. pp. 25–36. ISBN 978-0-393-05911-3.
93. Early religious opposition:
- White AD (1896). "Theological opposition to inoculation, vaccination, and the use of anæsthetics" (<http://abob.libs.uga.edu/bobk/whitem10.html>). A History of the Warfare of Science with Theology in Christendom. New York: Appleton.
 - Bazin H (September 2001). "The ethics of vaccine usage in society: lessons from the past". Endeavour. 25 (3): 104–08. doi:10.1016/S0160-9327(00)01376-4 (<https://doi.org/10.1016%2FS0160-9327%2800%2901376-4>). PMID 11725304 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/11725304>).
 - Noble M (December 2005). "Ethics in the trenches: a multifaceted analysis of the stem cell debate". Stem Cell Reviews. 1 (4): 345–76. CiteSeerX 10.1.1.465.2410 (<https://citeseerx.ist.psu.edu/viewdoc/summary?doi=10.1.1.465.2410>). doi:10.1385/SCR:1:4:345 (https://doi.org/10.1385%2FS0160-9327\(05\)00013-400013-4)). PMID 17142878 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/17142878>). S2CID 21775014 (<https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:21775014>).
94. Williams G (2010). Angel Of Death; the story of smallpox. Basingstoke, UK: Palgrave Macmillan. pp. 87–94. ISBN 978-0-230-27471-6.
95. Bazin H (October 2003). "A brief history of the prevention of infectious diseases by immunisations". Comparative Immunology, Microbiology and Infectious Diseases. 26 (5–6): 293–308. doi:10.1016/S0147-9571(03)00016-X (<https://doi.org/10.1016%2FS0147-9571%2803%2900016-X>). PMID 12818618 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/12818618>).
96. Ellner PD (1998). "Smallpox: gone but not forgotten". Infection. 26 (5): 263–69. doi:10.1007/BF02962244 (<https://doi.org/10.1007%2FBF02962244>). PMID 9795781 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/9795781>). S2CID 23658644 (<https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:23658644>).
97. Baxby D (2001). Smallpox Vaccine, Ahead of its Time. Berkeley, UK: the Jenner Museum. pp. 12–21. ISBN 0-9528695-1-9.
98. Bazin H (2000). The Eradication of Smallpox. London: Academic Press. p. 122. ISBN 0-12-083475-8.
99. Creighton C (1887). The Natural History of Cowpox and Vaccinal Syphilis. London: Cassell.
00. Williamson S (2007). The Vaccination Controversy; the rise, reign and decline of compulsory vaccination. Liverpool: Liverpool University Press. ISBN 978-1846310867.

01. Porter D, Porter R (July 1988). "The politics of prevention: anti-vaccinationism and public health in nineteenth-century England" (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC1139881>). Medical History. 32 (3): 231–52. doi:10.1017/s0025727300048225 (<https://doi.org/10.1017%2Fs0025727300048225>). PMC 1139881 (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC1139881>). PMID 3063903 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/3063903>).
02. Durbach N (April 2000). " 'They might as well brand us': working-class resistance to compulsory vaccination in Victorian England". Social History of Medicine. 13 (1): 45–62. doi:10.1093/shm/13.1.45 (<https://doi.org/10.1093%2Fshm%2F13.1.45>). PMID 11624425 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/11624425>).
03. Baxby, Derrick (1999). "The End of Smallpox". History Today. 49 (3): 14–16. PMID 21384695 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/21384695>).
04. (Royal Commission) (1898). Vaccination and its Results; a Report based on the Evidence taken by the Royal Commission. London: New Sydenham Society.
05. "Labour Party Manifesto 1900" (<https://suacs.wordpress.com/2014/04/20/labour-party-manifesto-1900/>). Voice of Anti-Capitalism in Guildford. April 20, 2014. Retrieved July 2, 2015.
06. Millard CK (December 1948). "The end of compulsory vaccination" (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC2092290>). British Medical Journal. 2 (4589): 1073–75. doi:10.1136/bmj.2.4589.1073 (<https://doi.org/10.1136%2Fbmj.2.4589.1073>). PMC 2092290 (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC2092290>). PMID 18121624 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/18121624>).
07. Mooney, Graham (2015). Intrusive Interventions: Public Health, Domestic Space, and Infectious Disease Surveillance in England, 1840–1914 (<http://www.urpress.com/store/viewItem.asp?idProduct=14810>). Rochester, NY: University of Rochester Press. ISBN 978-1580465274. Retrieved April 2, 2016.
08. Fraser SM (July 1980). "Leicester and smallpox: the Leicester method" (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC1082657>). Medical History. 24 (3): 315–32. doi:10.1017/s0025727300040345 (<https://doi.org/10.1017%2Fs0025727300040345>). PMC 1082657 (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC1082657>). PMID 6997656 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/6997656>).
09. Fenner F, Henderson DA, Arita I, Jezek Z, Ladnyi ID (1988). Smallpox and its Eradication. Geneva: World Health Organization. pp. 247, 275. ISBN 978-9241561105.
10. Henderson DA (2009). Smallpox; the death of a disease. Amherst, NY: Prometheus Books. pp. 90–92. ISBN 978-1-59102-722-5.
11. Henderson DA, Moss B (1999). "Public health" (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/books/NBK7293/>). In Plotkin SA, Orenstein WA (ed.). Vaccines (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/books/NBK7291/>) (3rd ed.). Philadelphia: W. B. Saunders. ISBN 0-7216-7443-7.
12. Wolfe RM, Sharp LK (August 2002). "Anti-vaccinationists past and present" (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC1123944>). BMJ. 325 (7361): 430–32. doi:10.1136/bmj.325.7361.430 (<https://doi.org/10.1136%2Fbmj.325.7361.430>). PMC 1123944 (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC1123944>). PMID 12193361 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/12193361>). "In 1879, after a visit to New York by William Tebb, the leading British anti-vaccinationist, the Anti-Vaccination Society of America was founded. Subsequently, the New England Anti-Compulsory Vaccination League was formed in 1882 and the Anti-Vaccination League of New York City in 1885."
13. "History of Anti-vaccination Movements" (<http://www.historyofvaccines.org/content/articles/history-anti-vaccination-movements>). College of Physicians of Philadelphia. March 8, 2012. Retrieved February 11, 2015. "The Anti Vaccination Society of America was founded in 1879, following a visit to America by leading British anti-vaccinationist William Tebb. Two other leagues, the New England Anti Compulsory Vaccination League (1882) and the Anti-Vaccination League of New York City (1885) followed. ..."
14. Kaufman M (1967). "The American anti-vaccinationists and their arguments". Bulletin of the History of Medicine. 41 (5): 463–78. PMID 4865041 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/4865041>).

15. Hopkins DR (2002). The Greatest Killer; smallpox in history (<https://archive.org/details/greatestkillersm0000hopk>). Chicago: University of Chicago Press. pp. 83–84 (<https://archive.org/details/greatestkillersm0000hopk/page/83>). ISBN 978-0226351667.
16. Mariner WK, Annas GJ, Glantz LH (April 2005). "Jacobson v Massachusetts: it's not your great-great-grandfather's public health law" (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC1449224>). American Journal of Public Health. 95 (4): 581–90. doi:10.2105/AJPH.2004.055160 (<https://doi.org/10.2105%2FAJPH.2004.055160>). PMC 1449224 (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC1449224>). PMID 15798113 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/15798113>).
17. Pitcairn J (1907). Vaccination (<https://archive.org/details/vaccination00pitcgoog>). Anti-Vaccination League of Pennsylvania. OCLC 454411147 (<https://www.worldcat.org/oclc/454411147>).
18. Higgins CM (1920). "Life sketch of John Pitcairn by a Philadelphia friend" (<https://archive.org/details/horrorsvaccinat00higggoog>). Horrors of Vaccination Exposed and Illustrated. Brooklyn, NY: C.M. Higgins. pp. 73–75. OCLC 447437840 (<https://www.worldcat.org/oclc/447437840>).
19. Meade T (1989). "'Living worse and costing more': resistance and riot in Rio de Janeiro, 1890–1917". J Lat Am Stud. 21 (2): 241–66. doi:10.1017/S0022216X00014784 (<https://doi.org/10.1017%2FS0022216X00014784>).
20. Ciok, Amy E. "Horses and the diphtheria antitoxin." Academic Medicine 75.4 (2000): 396.
21. Lilienfeld DE (2008). "The first pharmacoepidemiologic investigations: national drug safety policy in the United States, 1901–1902". Perspectives in Biology and Medicine. 51 (2): 188–98. doi:10.1353/pbm.0.0010 (<https://doi.org/10.1353%2Fpbm.0.0010>). PMID 18453724 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/18453724>). S2CID 30767303 (<https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:30767303>).
22. Gradman C (2009). Laboratory Disease; Robert Koch's medical bacteriology. Baltimore: Johns Hopkins University Press. pp. 133–36. ISBN 978-0-8018-9313-1.
23. Brock, Thomas. Robert Koch: A life in medicine and bacteriology. ASM Press: Washington DC, 1999. Print.
24. Offit PA (April 2005). "The Cutter incident, 50 years later". The New England Journal of Medicine. 352 (14): 1411–12. doi:10.1056/NEJMp048180 (<https://doi.org/10.1056%2FNEJMp048180>). PMID 15814877 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/15814877>).
25. "Scientist: autism paper had catastrophic effects" (<https://www.npr.org/templates/story/story.php?storyId=123472234>). NPR. February 7, 2010.
26. Goldacre B (August 30, 2008). "The MMR hoax" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20150206073230/http://www.theguardian.com/society/2008/aug/30/mmr.health.media>). The Guardian. London. Archived from the original (<https://www.theguardian.com/society/2008/aug/30/mmr.health.media>) on February 6, 2015. Retrieved August 30, 2008. Alt URL (<http://www.badscience.net/2008/08/the-medias-mmr-hoax/>)
27. Knox, Richard (September 19, 2011). "HPV Vaccine: The Science Behind The Controversy" (<https://www.npr.org/2011/09/19/140543977/hpv-vaccine-the-science-behind-the-controversy>). NPR. Retrieved September 30, 2015.
28. Chatterjee A, O'Keefe C (May 2010). "Current controversies in the USA regarding vaccine safety". Expert Review of Vaccines. 9 (5): 497–502. doi:10.1586/erv.10.36 (<https://doi.org/10.1586%2Ferv.10.36>). PMID 20450324 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/20450324>). S2CID 24443783 (<https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:24443783>).
29. Malik, Aryn A; McFadden, SarahAnn M; Elharake, Jad; Omer, Saad B (2020). "Determinants of COVID-19 vaccine acceptance in the US" (https://www.thelancet.com/journals/eclinm/article/PIIS2589-5370\(20\)30239-X/fulltext30239-X/fulltext)). EClinicalMedicine, the Lancet. 26: 100495. doi:10.1016/j.eclinm.2020.100495 (<https://doi.org/10.1016%2Fj.eclinm.2020.100495>). ISSN 2589-5370 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/2589-5370>). PMC 7423333 (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC7423333>). PMID 32838242 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/32838242>).

30. Linda Thunström, Madison Ashworth, David Finnoff, and Stephen C. Newbold. 2020. Hesitancy towards a COVID-19 vaccine and prospects for herd immunity. Covid Economics 35 (<https://cepr.org/file/9287/download?token=Ba6cin7P>): 7 July 2020
31. McDonnell, Adam (November 16, 2020). "How many Britons are willing to take a coronavirus vaccine?" (<https://yougov.co.uk/topics/health/articles-reports/2020/11/16/how-many-britons-are-willing-to-take-coronavirus-vacc>). YouGov. Retrieved December 10, 2020.
32. "Less than half of French want Covid vaccine: poll" (<https://news.yahoo.com/less-half-french-want-covid-173848670.html>). Yahoo News. AFP. December 29, 2020. Retrieved December 31, 2020.
33. "U.S. and U.K. are optimistic indicators for COVID-19 vaccination uptake" (<https://www.ipsos.com/en/global-attitudes-covid-19-vaccine-december-2020>). Ipsos. Retrieved December 31, 2020.
34. "Little Difference In Vaccine Hesitancy Among White And Black Americans, Poll Finds" (<https://www.npr.org/sections/coronavirus-live-updates/2021/03/12/976172586/little-difference-in-vaccine-hesitancy-among-white-and-black-americans-poll-find>). NPR.org. March 12, 2021.
35. Mahase, Elisabeth (June 4, 2021). "Covid-19: UK has highest vaccine confidence and Japan and South Korea the lowest, survey finds" (<https://www.bmj.com/content/373/bmj.n1439>). BMJ. 373: n1439. doi:<https://doi.org/10.1136/bmj.n1439> (<https://doi.org/https%3A%2F%2Fdoi.org%2F10.1136%2Fbmj.n1439>) Check |doi= value (help). Retrieved June 14, 2021.
36. Institute of Global Health Innovation (May 2021). "Global attitudes towards a COVID-19 vaccine" (https://www.imperial.ac.uk/media/imperial-college/institute-of-global-health-innovation/GlobalVaccineInsights_ICL-YouGov-Covid-19-Behaviour-Tracker_20210520_v2.pdf) (PDF). Imperial College London. Covid Data Hub. Retrieved June 14, 2021.
37. Attwell, K; Wiley, KE; Waddington, C; Leask, J; Snelling, T (October 2018). "Midwives' attitudes, beliefs and concerns about childhood vaccination: A review of the global literature". Vaccine. 36 (44): 6531–39. doi:10.1016/j.vaccine.2018.02.028 (<https://doi.org/10.1016%2Fj.vaccine.2018.02.028>). PMID 29483029 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/29483029>).
38. Pearce A, Law C, Elliman D, Cole TJ, Bedford H (April 2008). "Factors associated with uptake of measles, mumps, and rubella vaccine (MMR) and use of single antigen vaccines in a contemporary UK cohort: prospective cohort study" (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC2287222>). BMJ. 336 (7647): 754–57. doi:10.1136/bmj.39489.590671.25 (<https://doi.org/10.1136%2Fbmj.39489.590671.25>). PMC 2287222 (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC2287222>). PMID 18309964 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/18309964>).
39. Yang YT, Delamater PL, Leslie TF, Mello MM (January 2016). "Sociodemographic Predictors of Vaccination Exemptions on the Basis of Personal Belief in California" (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC4695929>). American Journal of Public Health. 106 (1): 172–77. doi:10.2105/AJPH.2015.302926 (<https://doi.org/10.2105%2FAJPH.2015.302926>). PMC 4695929 (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC4695929>). PMID 26562114 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/26562114>).
40. Toll, Mathew; Li, Ang (2020). "Vaccine sentiments and under-vaccination: Attitudes and behaviour around Measles, Mumps, and Rubella vaccine (MMR) in an Australian cohort" (<https://www.sciencedirect.com/science/article/pii/S0264410X20314614>). Vaccine. 39 (4): 751–759. doi:10.1016/j.vaccine.2020.11.021 (<https://doi.org/10.1016%2Fj.vaccine.2020.11.021>). PMID 33218781 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/33218781>).
41. Ogilvie G, Anderson M, Marra F, McNeil S, Pielak K, Dawar M, McIvor M, Ehlen T, Dobson S, Money D, Patrick DM, Naus M (May 2010). "A population-based evaluation of a publicly funded, school-based HPV vaccine program in British Columbia, Canada: parental factors associated with HPV vaccine receipt" (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC2864299>). PLOS Medicine. 7 (5): e1000270. doi:10.1371/journal.pmed.1000270 (<https://doi.org/10.1371%2Fjournal.pmed.1000270>). PMC 2864299 (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC2864299>). PMID 20454567 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/20454567>).

42. Amit Aharon A, Nehama H, Rishpon S, Baron-Epel O (April 2017). "Parents with high levels of communicative and critical health literacy are less likely to vaccinate their children". Patient Education and Counseling. 100 (4): 768–75. doi:10.1016/j.pec.2016.11.016 (<https://doi.org/10.1016%2Fj.pec.2016.11.016>). PMID 27914735 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/27914735>).
43. Kim SS, Frimpong JA, Rivers PA, Kronenfeld JJ (February 2007). "Effects of maternal and provider characteristics on up-to-date immunization status of children aged 19 to 35 months" (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC1781415>). American Journal of Public Health. 97 (2): 259–66. doi:10.2105/AJPH.2005.076661 (<https://doi.org/10.2105%2FAJPH.2005.076661>). PMC 1781415 (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC1781415>). PMID 17194865 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/17194865>).
44. Colgrove J, Bayer R (April 2005). "Manifold restraints: liberty, public health, and the legacy of Jacobson v Massachusetts" (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC1449222>). American Journal of Public Health. 95 (4): 571–76. doi:10.2105/AJPH.2004.055145 (<https://doi.org/10.2105%2FAJPH.2004.055145>). PMC 1449222 (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC1449222>). PMID 15798111 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/15798111>).
45. Salmon DA, Teret SP, MacIntyre CR, Salisbury D, Burgess MA, Halsey NA (February 2006). "Compulsory vaccination and conscientious or philosophical exemptions: past, present, and future". Lancet. 367 (9508): 436–42. doi:10.1016/s0140-6736(06)68144-0 (<https://doi.org/10.1016%2Fs0140-6736%2806%2968144-0>). PMID 16458770 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/16458770>). S2CID 19344405 (<https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:19344405>).
46. Moodley, Keymanthri; Hardie, Kate; Selgelid, Michael J.; Waldman, Ronald J.; Strebel, Peter; Rees, Helen; Durrheim, David N. (February 7, 2013). "Ethical considerations for vaccination programmes in acute humanitarian emergencies" (<https://www.who.int/bulletin/volumes/91/4/12-113480/en/>). Bulletin of the World Health Organization. 91 (4): 290–97. doi:10.2471/BLT.12.113480 (<https://doi.org/10.2471%2FBLT.12.113480>). PMC 3629456 (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC3629456>). PMID 23599553 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/23599553>).
47. "States With Religious and Philosophical Exemptions From School Immunization Requirements" (<https://archive.today/20201022191725/https://www.ncsl.org/research/health/school-immunization-exemption-state-laws.aspx>). National Conference of State Legislatures. Archived from the original (<https://www.ncsl.org/research/health/school-immunization-exemption-state-laws.aspx>) on October 22, 2020. Retrieved January 2, 2021.
48. Caplan AL. "Do Children Have Vaccination Rights?" (<https://www.medscape.com/viewarticle/902956>). Medscape Business of Medicine.
49. "Anti-vaccine misinformation denies children's rights" (<https://www.seattletimes.com/opinion/anti-vaccine-misinformation-denies-childrens-rights/>). April 18, 2018.
50. Parasidis E, Opel DJ (January 2017). "Parental Refusal of Childhood Vaccines and Medical Neglect Laws" (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC5308147>). American Journal of Public Health. 107 (1): 68–71. doi:10.2105/AJPH.2016.303500 (<https://doi.org/10.2105%2FAJPH.2016.303500>). PMC 5308147 (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC5308147>). PMID 27854538 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/27854538>).
51. "Should Pediatricians Refuse Unvaccinated Kids?" (<http://live.huffingtonpost.com/r/segment/should-pediatricians-refuse-unvaccinated-kids/53285f162b8c2a24f700070f>). The Huffington Post. Retrieved July 4, 2015.
52. Bachai, Sabrina (June 24, 2014). "NYC Schools Are Now Allowed To Ban Unvaccinated Kids, Rules Federal Judge" (<http://www.medicaldaily.com/nyc-schools-are-now-allowed-ban-unvaccinated-kids-rules-federal-judge-289614>). Medical Daily. Retrieved July 4, 2015.

53. Halperin, Beth; Melnychuk, Ryan; Downie, Jocelyn; Macdonald, Noni (December 2007). "When is it permissible to dismiss a family who refuses vaccines? Legal, ethical and public health perspectives" (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC2532570>). Paediatrics & Child Health. 12 (10): 843–45. doi:10.1093/pch/12.10.843 (<https://doi.org/10.1093%2Fpch%2F12.10.843>). PMC 2532570 (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC2532570>). PMID 19043497 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/19043497>).
54. May T, Silverman RD (2005). "Free-riding, fairness and the rights of minority groups in exemption from mandatory childhood vaccination". Human Vaccines. 1 (1): 12–15. doi:10.4161/hv.1.1.1425 (<https://doi.org/10.4161%2Fhv.1.1.1425>). PMID 17038833 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/17038833>). S2CID 39321188 (<https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:39321188>).
55. LeBlanc S (October 17, 2007). "Parents use religion to avoid vaccines" (https://www.usatoday.com/news/nation/2007-10-17-19819928_x.htm). USA Today. Retrieved November 24, 2007.
56. "Statement on Vaccinations from the OU and Rabbinical Council of America." (<https://www.ou.org/news/statement-vaccinations-ou-rabbinical-council-america/>) Orthodox Union. 14 November 2018. 21 May 2019.
57. Avaneha Barzel p. 31 #34
58. Milko, Victoria (December 20, 2020). "Concern among Muslims over halal status of COVID-19 vaccine" (<https://abcnews.go.com/Health/wireStory/concern-muslims-halal-status-covid-19-vaccine-74826269>). ABC News. Associated Press (AP). Retrieved December 30, 2020.
59. <https://www.bbc.com/news/health-30118984>
60. "Shot of life: saving vaccination drive from rumours and fake news" (<https://www.hindustantimes.com/india-news/shot-of-life-saving-vaccination-drive-from-rumours-and-fake-news/story-WHGsXRDrzKxpjPWpdCx7M.html>). Hindustan Times. May 19, 2018.
61. "Uttar Pradesh: WhatsApp rumours make 100s of UP madrassas reject vaccination" (<https://timesofindia.indiatimes.com/city/meerut/madrassas-in-west-up-say-no-to-measles-rubella-vaccination/articleshow/67184011.cms>). The Times of India.
62. Plotkin SA, Buser F (1985). "History of RA27/3 rubella vaccine". Reviews of Infectious Diseases. 7 (Suppl 1): S77–78. doi:10.1093/clinids/7.supplement_1.s77 (https://doi.org/10.1093%2Fclinids%2F7.supplement_1.s77). PMID 3890107 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/3890107>).
63. Grabenstein JD (1999). "Moral considerations with certain viral vaccines" (https://web.archive.org/web/20110718001330/http://www.immunizationinfo.org/files/nnii/files/Moral_Considerations_With_Certain_Viral_Vaccines.pdf) (PDF). Christ Pharm. 2 (2): 3–6. Archived from the original (http://www.immunizationinfo.org/files/nnii/files/Moral_Considerations_With_Certain_Viral_Vaccines.pdf) (PDF) on July 18, 2011. Retrieved May 11, 2009.
64. Pontifical Academy for Life (2005). "Moral reflections on vaccines prepared from cells derived from aborted human fetuses" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20060507072740/http://www.academiavita.org/template.jsp?sez=Documenti&pag=testo/vacc/vacc&lang=english>). Medicina e Morale. Archived from the original (<http://www.academiavita.org/template.jsp?sez=Documenti&pag=testo/vacc/vacc&lang=english>) on May 7, 2006. Retrieved December 3, 2008.
65. "Parents Fake Religion To Avoid Vaccines" (<https://www.cbsnews.com/news/parents-fake-religion-to-avoid-vaccines/>). CBS News. AP. October 17, 2007.
66. "State Vaccination Exemptions for Children Entering Public Schools" (<http://vaccines.procon.org/view.resource.php?resourceID=003597>). Vaccines.procon.org.
67. "Vaccine skepticism runs deep among white evangelicals in US" (<https://apnews.com/article/coronavirus-vaccine-skepticism-white-evangelicals-us-32898166bbb673ad87842af24c8daefb>). AP NEWS. April 5, 2021. Retrieved April 7, 2021.
68. Beinart, Peter (August 2019). "What the Measles Epidemic Really Says About America" (<https://www.theatlantic.com/magazine/archive/2019/08/measles-as-metaphor/592756/>). The Atlantic. Retrieved July 8, 2019.

69. Busse JW, Morgan L, Campbell JB (June 2005). "Chiropractic antivaccination arguments" (http://jmntonline.org/article/S0161-4754\(05\)00111-9/fulltext00111-9/fulltext)). Journal of Manipulative and Physiological Therapeutics. 28 (5): 367–73. doi:10.1016/j.jmnt.2005.04.011 (<https://doi.org/10.1016%2Fj.jmnt.2005.04.011>). PMID 15965414 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/15965414>).
70. Campbell JB, Busse JW, Injeyan HS (April 2000). "Chiropractors and vaccination: A historical perspective" (<http://pediatrics.aappublications.org/cgi/content/full/105/4/e43>). Pediatrics. 105 (4): E43. doi:10.1542/peds.105.4.e43 (<https://doi.org/10.1542%2Fpeds.105.4.e43>). PMID 10742364 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/10742364>).
71. Russell ML, Injeyan HS, Verhoef MJ, Eliasziw M (December 2004). "Beliefs and behaviours: understanding chiropractors and immunization". Vaccine. 23 (3): 372–79. doi:10.1016/j.vaccine.2004.05.027 (<https://doi.org/10.1016%2Fj.vaccine.2004.05.027>). PMID 15530683 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/15530683>).
72. Busse JW, Wilson K, Campbell JB (November 2008). "Attitudes towards vaccination among chiropractic and naturopathic students". Vaccine. 26 (49): 6237–43. doi:10.1016/j.vaccine.2008.07.020 (<https://doi.org/10.1016%2Fj.vaccine.2008.07.020>). PMID 18674581 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/18674581>).
73. Lameris M, Schmidt C, Gleberzon B, Ogrady J (September 2013). "Attitudes toward vaccination: A cross-sectional survey of students at the Canadian Memorial Chiropractic College" (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC3743647>). The Journal of the Canadian Chiropractic Association. 57 (3): 214–20. PMC 3743647 (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC3743647>). PMID 23997247 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/23997247>).
74. Yoo S (February 24, 2015), "Vaccine researcher Wakefield to testify in Oregon" (<http://www.statesmanjournal.com/story/news/health/2015/02/24/andrew-wakefield-vaccine-oregon/23967797/>), Statesman Journal, retrieved March 3, 2015
75. Yoo S (February 26, 2015), "Meeting on vaccine mandate bill canceled" (<http://www.statesmanjournal.com/story/news/health/2015/02/25/meeting-vaccine-mandate-bill-canceled/24020213/>), Statesman Journal, retrieved March 3, 2015
76. Mason M (March 5, 2015). "Chiropractors lobby against bill ending belief exemptions for vaccines" (<https://www.latimes.com/local/political/la-me-pc-vaccine-bill-chiropractors-20150305-story.html>). Los Angeles Times. Retrieved March 6, 2015.
77. Schmidt K, Ernst E (March 2003). "MMR vaccination advice over the Internet". Vaccine. 21 (11–12): 1044–47. doi:10.1016/S0264-410X(02)00628-X (<https://doi.org/10.1016%2FS0264-410X%2802%2900628-X>). PMID 12559777 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/12559777>).
78. Crislip M (November 5, 2010). "Homeopathic Vaccines" (<http://www.sciencebasedmedicine.org/?p=8003>).
79. Stop Nosodes/Bad Science Watch (August 2015). "Nosode Use in Canada" (<http://www.stopnosodes.org/the-problem/the-extent-of-nosode-use-in-canada/>).
80. Kerr MA (2009). "Movement impact" (https://web.archive.org/web/20110718173710/http://etd.library.pitt.edu/ETD/available/etd-04302009-115908/unrestricted/Kerr_FINAL.pdf) (PDF). The Autism Spectrum Disorders / vaccine link debate: a health social movement. University of Pittsburgh. pp. 194–203. Archived from the original (http://etd.library.pitt.edu/ETD/available/etd-04302009-115908/unrestricted/Kerr_FINAL.pdf) (PDF) on July 18, 2011. Retrieved February 25, 2010.
81. Weeks, Carly. "Health experts question lack of crackdown on 'homeopathic vaccines'" (<https://www.theglobeandmail.com/news/national/health-experts-question-lack-of-crackdown-on-homeopathic-vaccines/article23019800/>). The Globe and Mail. Retrieved July 4, 2015.
82. Sheridan C (June 2009). "Vaccine market boosters". Nature Biotechnology. 27 (6): 499–501. doi:10.1038/nbt0609-499 (<https://doi.org/10.1038%2Fnbt0609-499>). PMID 19513043 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/19513043>). S2CID 205268563 (<https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:205268563>).

83. Allen A (2007). "Epilogue: our best shots" (<https://archive.org/details/vaccinecontrover00arth>). Vaccine: the Controversial Story of Medicine's Greatest Lifesaver. W.W. Norton. pp. 421–42. ISBN 978-0-393-05911-3.
84. https://www.who.int/influenza_vaccines_plan/resources/session_10_kaddar.pdf
85. Willrich M (2010). Pox: An American History. New York: Penguin Group. pp. 117–65. ISBN 978-1101476222.
86. Clara E. Councell. "War and Infectious Disease." Public Health Reports (1896-1970), vol. 56, no. 12, 1941, pp. 547–573. JSTOR, www.jstor.org/stable/4583663. Accessed 16 May 2021.
87. Grabenstein, J. D.; Pittman, PR; Greenwood, JT; Engler, RJ (June 1, 2006). "Immunization to Protect the US Armed Forces: Heritage, Current Practice, and Prospects" (<https://doi.org/10.1093%2Fepirev%2Fmxj003>). Epidemiologic Reviews. 28 (1): 3–26. doi:10.1093/epirev/mxj003 (<https://doi.org/10.1093%2Fepirev%2Fmxj003>). PMID 16763072 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/16763072>).
88. Worthington B (March 17, 2011). "The Night the Viet Cong Stopped the War" (<http://www.historynet.com/the-night-the-viet-cong-stopped-the-war.htm>). History Net: Where History Comes Alive – World & US History Online. Retrieved November 18, 2015.
89. Rahman TA, Al-Haj P (2008). Profiles of Malaysia's Foreign Ministers. Kuala Lumpur: Institute of Diplomacy and Foreign Relations (IDFR), Ministry of Foreign Affairs. ISBN 978-9832220268. OCLC 774064073 (<https://www.worldcat.org/oclc/774064073>).
90. Broniatowski DA, Jamison AM, Qi S, AlKulaib L, Chen T, Benton A, Quinn SC, Dredze M (October 2018). "Weaponized Health Communication: Twitter Bots and Russian Trolls Amplify the Vaccine Debate" (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC6137759>). American Journal of Public Health. 108 (10): 1378–84. doi:10.2105/AJPH.2018.304567 (<https://doi.org/10.2105%2FAJPH.2018.304567>). PMC 6137759 (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC6137759>). PMID 30138075 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/30138075>).
91. Glenza J (August 23, 2018). "Russian trolls 'spreading discord' over vaccine safety online" (<https://www.theguardian.com/society/2018/aug/23/russian-trolls-spread-vaccine-misinformation-on-twitter>). The Guardian. Retrieved August 23, 2018.
92. "The State of Vaccine Confidence in the EU: 2018" (<https://www.vaccineconfidence.org/research/the-state-of-vaccine-confidence-in-the-eu-2018/>). Vaccine Confidence Project. London School of Hygiene & Tropical Medicine. Retrieved December 2, 2018.
93. Johnson, Deborah K.; Mello, Emily J.; Walker, Trent D.; Hood, Spencer J.; Jensen, Jamie L.; Poole, Brian D. (May 12, 2019). "Combating Vaccine Hesitancy with Vaccine-Preventable Disease Familiarization: An Interview and Curriculum Intervention for College Students" (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC6631173>). Vaccines. 7 (2): 39. doi:10.3390/vaccines7020039 (<https://doi.org/10.3390%2Fvaccines7020039>). PMC 6631173 (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC6631173>). PMID 31083632 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/31083632>).
94. Hall, Harriet. "Diving into the VAERS Dumpster" (https://www.csicop.org/si/show/diving_into_the_vaers_dumpster_fake_news_about_vaccine_injuries). CSI. Center for Inquiry. Retrieved December 15, 2018.

Further reading

- Largent, Mark A. (2012). Vaccine: The Debate in Modern America. Johns Hopkins University Press. ISBN 978-1421406077.
- Bedford H, Elliman D (January 2000). "Concerns about immunisation" (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC1117437>). BMJ. 320 (7229): 240–43. doi:10.1136/bmj.320.7229.240 (<https://doi.org/10.1136%2Fbmj.320.7229.240>). PMC 1117437 (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC1117437>). PMID 10642238 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/10642238>).
- Davies P, Chapman S, Leask J (July 2002). "Antivaccination activists on the world wide web" (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC1751143>). Archives of Disease in Childhood. 87 (1): 22–25.

- doi:10.1136/adc.87.1.22 (<https://doi.org/10.1136%2Fadc.87.1.22>). PMC 1751143 (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC1751143>). PMID 12089115 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/12089115>).
- Richardson PD, Mohammed SF, Mason RG, Steiner M, Kane R (2004). "Dynamics of platelet interaction with surfaces in steady flow conditions" (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC524574>). Transactions of the American Society for Artificial Internal Organs. 25 (7473): 147–51. doi:10.1136/bmj.329.7473.1049 (<https://doi.org/10.1136%2Fbmj.329.7473.1049>). PMC 524574 (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC524574>). PMID 524574 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/524574>).
 - Friedlander E (2007). "The anti-immunization activists: a pattern of deception" (<http://www.pathguy.com/antiimmu.htm>). Retrieved November 13, 2007.
 - Hanratty B, Holt T, Duffell E, Patterson W, Ramsay M, White JM, Jin L, Litton P (October 2000). "UK measles outbreak in non-immune anthroposophic communities: the implications for the elimination of measles from Europe" (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC2869610>). Epidemiology and Infection. 125 (2): 377–83. doi:10.1017/S0950268899004525 (<https://doi.org/10.1017%2FS0950268899004525>). PMC 2869610 (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC2869610>). PMID 11117961 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/11117961>).
 - Herlihy SM, Hagood EA, Offit PA (2012). Your Baby's Best Shot: Why Vaccines Are Safe and Save Lives. Rowman & Littlefield Publishers. ISBN 978-1442215788.
 - Miller CL (February 1985). "Deaths from measles in England and Wales, 1970–83" (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC1417782>). British Medical Journal. 290 (6466): 443–44. doi:10.1136/bmj.290.6466.443 (<https://doi.org/10.1136%2Fbmj.290.6466.443>). PMC 1417782 (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC1417782>). PMID 3918622 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/3918622>).
 - Myers MG, Pineda D (2008). Do Vaccines Cause That?! A Guide for Evaluating Vaccine Safety Concerns. Galveston, TX: Immunizations for Public Health (i4ph). ISBN 978-0-9769027-1-3.
 - Naono, Atsuko (2006). "Vaccination Propaganda: The Politics of Communicating Colonial Medicine in Nineteenth-Century Burma" (<https://archive.org/download/VaccinationPropagandaThePoliticsOfCommunicatingColonialMedicineIn/4.1naono.pdf>) (PDF). SOAS Bulletin of Burma Research. 4 (1): 30–44.
 - Offit, Paul A. (2008). Autism's False Prophets: Bad Science, Risky Medicine, and the Search for a Cure. Columbia University Press. ISBN 978-0-231-14636-4.
 - Offit, Paul A. (2012). Deadly Choices: How the Anti-Vaccine Movement Threatens Us All. Basic Books. ISBN 978-0465029624.
 - Orenstein WA, Hinman AR (October 1999). "The immunization system in the United States – the role of school immunization laws". Vaccine. 17 (Suppl 3): S19–24. doi:10.1016/S0264-410X(99)00290-X (<https://doi.org/10.1016%2FS0264-410X%2899%2900290-X>). PMID 10559531 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/10559531>).
 - Spier RE (November 1998). "Ethical aspects of vaccines and vaccination" (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC7173252>). Vaccine. 16 (19): 1788–94. doi:10.1016/S0264-410X(98)00169-8 (<https://doi.org/10.1016%2FS0264-410X%2898%2900169-8>). PMC 7173252 (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC7173252>). PMID 9795382 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/9795382>).
 - Vermeersch E (October 1999). "Individual rights versus societal duties". Vaccine. 17 (Suppl 3): S14–17. doi:10.1016/s0264-410x(99)00289-3 (<https://doi.org/10.1016%2Fs0264-410x%2899%2900289-3>). PMID 10627239 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/10627239>).
 - Wolfe RM, Sharp LK, Lipsky MS (June 2002). "Content and design attributes of antivaccination web sites" (<https://doi.org/10.1001%2Fjama.287.24.3245>). JAMA. 287 (24): 3245–48. doi:10.1001/jama.287.24.3245 (<https://doi.org/10.1001%2Fjama.287.24.3245>). PMID 12076221 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/12076221>).
 - "Six common misconceptions about immunization" (https://www.who.int/immunization_safety/aefi/immunization_misconceptions/en/). World Health Organization. February 16, 2006. Retrieved November 2, 2006.

- Lewandowsky et al. Anti-Vax Psychology Study ReportMooney, Chris (October 2, 2013). "If You Distrust Vaccines, You're More Likely to Think NASA Faked the Moon Landings" (<https://www.motherjones.com/environment/2013/10/vaccine-denial-conspiracy-theories-gmos-climate>). Mother Jones. Retrieved February 2, 2016.
- National Academies of Sciences, Engineering, and Medicine 2020. Vaccine Access and Hesitancy: Part One of a Workshop Series: Proceedings of a Workshop in Brief. Washington, DC: The National Academies Press.<https://doi.org/10.17226/25895>.

External links

- Vaccination (<https://curlie.org/Society/Issues/Health/Vaccination>) at Curlie
 - "Immunizations, vaccines and biologicals" (<https://www.who.int/immunization/en/>). World Health Organization.
 - "Vaccines & immunizations" (<https://www.cdc.gov/vaccines/>). Centers for Disease Control and Prevention. September 4, 2018.
 - The Vaccine War (<https://www.pbs.org/wgbh/pages/frontline/vaccines/>). Frontline. April 27, 2010. PBS.
 - Institute of Global Health Innovation (May 2021). "Global attitudes towards a COVID-19 vaccine" (https://www.imperial.ac.uk/media/imperial-college/institute-of-global-health-innovation/GlobalVaccineInsights_ICL-YouGov-Covid-19-Behaviour-Tracker_20210520_v2.pdf) (PDF). Imperial College London. Covid Data Hub.
 - "Vaccine Education Center" (<https://www.chop.edu/centers-programs/vaccine-education-center>). Children's Hospital of Philadelphia. Children's Hospital of Philadelphia.
-

Retrieved from "https://en.wikipedia.org/w/index.php?title=Vaccine_hesitancy&oldid=1028513900"

This page was last edited on 14 June 2021, at 12:24 (UTC).

Text is available under the Creative Commons Attribution-ShareAlike License; additional terms may apply. By using this site, you agree to the Terms of Use and Privacy Policy. Wikipedia® is a registered trademark of the Wikimedia Foundation, Inc., a non-profit organization.

Climate change denial

Climate change denial, or global warming denial, is denial, dismissal, or unwarranted doubt that contradicts the scientific consensus on climate change, including the extent to which it is caused by humans, its effects on nature and human society, or the potential of adaptation to global warming by human actions.^{[4][5][6]} Many who deny, dismiss, or hold unwarranted doubt about the scientific consensus on anthropogenic global warming self-label as "climate change skeptics",^{[7][5]} which several scientists have noted is an inaccurate description.^{[8][9][10]} Climate change denial can also be implicit when individuals or social groups accept the science but fail to come to terms with it or to translate their acceptance into action.^[11] Several social science studies have analyzed these positions as forms of denialism,^{[12][13]} pseudoscience,^[14] or propaganda.^[15]

The campaign to undermine public trust in climate science has been described as a "denial machine" organized by industrial, political and ideological interests, and supported by conservative media and skeptical bloggers to manufacture uncertainty about global warming.^{[16][17][18]}

The politics of global warming have been affected by climate change denial and the political global warming controversy, undermining the efforts to act on climate change or adapting to the warming climate.^{[19][15][20]} Those promoting denial commonly use rhetorical tactics to give the appearance of a scientific controversy where there is none.^{[21][22]}

Organised campaigning to undermine public trust in climate science is associated with conservative economic policies and backed by industrial interests opposed to the regulation of CO₂ emissions.^[23] Climate change denial has been associated with the fossil fuels lobby, the Koch brothers, industry advocates and conservative think tanks, often in the United States.^{[15][24][25][26]} More than 90% of papers skeptical on climate change originate from right-wing think tanks.^[27]

Since the late 1970s, oil companies have published research broadly in line with the standard views on global warming. Despite this, oil companies organized a climate change denial campaign to disseminate public disinformation for several decades, a strategy that has been compared to the organized denial of

Academic studies of scientific agreement on human-caused global warming among climate experts (2010-2015) reflect that the level of consensus correlates with expertise in climate science.^[1] A 2019 study found scientific consensus to be at 100%.^[2]

Former senator Tom Coburn of the United States in 2017 discussing the Paris agreement and denying the scientific consensus on human-caused global warming. Coburn claimed that sea level rise had been no more than 5 mm in 25 years, and asserted there was now global cooling. In 2013 he said "I am a global warming denier. I don't deny that."^[3] the hazards of tobacco smoking by the tobacco industry, and often even carried out by the same individuals who previously spread the tobacco industry's denialist propaganda.^{[28][29][30]}

Contents

Terminology

History

Denial networks

International

Arguments and positions on global warming

Conspiracy theories

Taxonomy of climate change denial

Pseudoscience

False beliefs

Emotional and psychological aspects

Responding to climate denial - the role of emotions and persuasive argument

Farmers and climate denial

People who have changed their position

Funding

Public opinion

United States

Europe

Nationalism

Lobbying

Private sector

Public sector

Schools

Effect

See also

References

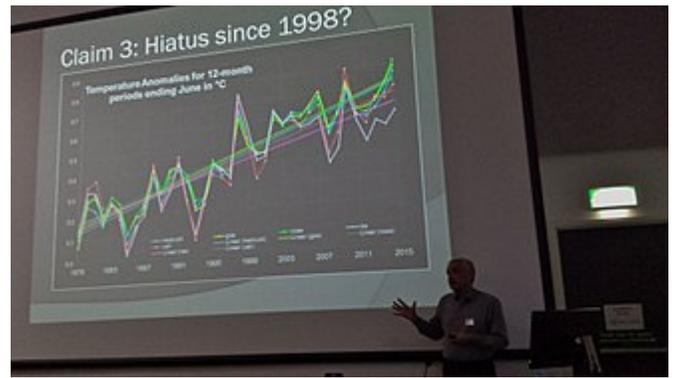

Bibliography

Further reading

Terminology

"Climate change skepticism" and "climate change denial" refer to denial, dismissal or unwarranted doubt of the scientific consensus on the rate and extent of global warming, its significance, or its connection to human behavior, in whole or in part.^{[31][32]} Though there is a distinction between skepticism which indicates doubting the truth of an assertion and outright denial of the truth of an assertion, in the public debate phrases such as "climate skepticism" have frequently been used with the same meaning as climate denialism or contrarianism.^{[33][34]}

The terminology emerged in the 1990s. Even though all scientists adhere to scientific skepticism as an inherent part of the process, by mid November 1995 the word "skeptic" was being used specifically for the minority who publicized views contrary to the scientific consensus. This small group of scientists presented their views in public statements and the media, rather than to the scientific community.^{[35][36]} This usage continued.^[37] In his December 1995 article "The Heat is On: The warming of the world's climate sparks a blaze of denial", Ross Gelbspan said industry had engaged "a small band of skeptics" to confuse public opinion in a "persistent and well-funded campaign of denial".^[38] His 1997 book The Heat is On may have been the first to concentrate specifically on the topic.^[39] In it, Gelbspan discussed a "pervasive denial of global warming" in a "persistent campaign of denial and suppression" involving "undisclosed funding of these 'greenhouse skeptics' " with "the climate skeptics" confusing the public and influencing decision makers.^[40]

Amardeo Sarma lecturing about climate change denialism and the future world energy and environmental problems during the European Skeptics Congress 2015

A November 2006 CBC Television documentary on the campaign was titled The Denial Machine.^{[41][42]} In 2007 journalist Sharon Begley reported on the "denial machine",^[43] a phrase subsequently used by academics.^{[17][42]}

In addition to explicit denial, social groups have shown implicit denial by accepting the scientific consensus, but failing to come to terms with its implications or take action to reduce the problem.^[11] This was exemplified in Kari Norgaard's study of a village in Norway affected by climate change, where residents diverted their attention to other issues.^[44]

The terminology is debated: most of those actively rejecting the scientific consensus use the terms skeptical and climate change skepticism, and only a few have expressed preference for being described as deniers,^{[32][9]} but the word "skepticism" is incorrectly used, as scientific skepticism is an intrinsic part of scientific methodology.^{[10][45][46]} The term contrarian is more specific, but used less frequently. In academic literature and journalism, the terms "climate change denial" and "climate change deniers" have well-established usage as descriptive terms without any pejorative intent.^[47] Both the National Center for Science Education and historian Spencer R. Weart recognize that either option is problematic, but have decided to use "climate change denial" rather than "skepticism".^{[47][48]}

Terms related to "denialism" have been criticized for introducing a moralistic tone, and potentially implying a link with Holocaust denial.^{[10][49]} There have been claims that this link is intentional, which academics have strongly disputed.^[50] The usage of "denial" long predates the Holocaust, and is commonly applied in other areas such as HIV/AIDS denialism: the claim is described by John Timmer of Ars Technica as itself being a form of denial.^[51]

In December 2014, an open letter from the Committee for Skeptical Inquiry called on the media to stop using the term "skepticism" when referring to climate change denial. They contrasted scientific skepticism—which is "foundational to the scientific method"—with denial—"the a priori rejection of ideas without objective consideration"—and the behavior of those involved in political attempts to undermine climate science. They said "Not all individuals who call themselves climate change skeptics are deniers. But virtually all deniers have falsely branded themselves as skeptics. By perpetrating this misnomer, journalists have granted undeserved credibility to those who reject science and scientific inquiry."^{[50][52]}

In June 2015 Media Matters for America were told by The New York Times public editor that the newspaper was increasingly tending to use "denier" when "someone is challenging established science", but assessing this on an individual basis with no fixed policy, and would not use the term when someone was "kind of wishy-washy on the subject or in the middle." The executive director of the Society of Environmental Journalists said that while there was reasonable skepticism about specific issues, she felt that denier was "the most accurate term when someone claims there is no such thing as global warming, or agrees that it exists but denies that it has any cause we could understand or any impact that could be measured."^[53]

The Committee for Skeptical Inquiry letter inspired a petition by climatetruth.org^[54] in which signers were asked to 'Tell the Associated Press: Establish a rule in the AP StyleBook ruling out the use of "skeptic" to describe those who deny scientific facts.' On 22 September 2015, the Associated Press announced "an addition to AP Stylebook entry on global warming" which advised, "to describe those who don't accept climate science or dispute the world is warming from human-made forces, use climate change doubters or those who reject mainstream climate science. Avoid use of skeptics or deniers."^{[55][56]} On 17 May 2019, The Guardian also rejected use of the term "climate skeptic" in favor of "climate science denier".^[57]

History

Research on the effect of CO₂ on the climate began in 1824, when Joseph Fourier inferred the existence of the atmospheric "greenhouse effect". In 1860, John Tyndall quantified the effects of greenhouse gases on absorption of infrared radiation. Svante Arrhenius in 1896 showed that coal burning could cause global warming, and in 1938 Guy Stewart Callendar found it already happening to some extent.^{[58][59]} Research advanced rapidly after 1940; from 1957, Roger Revelle alerted the public to risks that fossil fuel burning was "a grandiose scientific experiment" on climate.^{[60][61]} NASA and NOAA took on research, the 1979 Charney Report concluded that substantial warming was already on the way, and "A wait-and-see policy may mean waiting until it is too late."^{[62][63]}

In 1959, a scientist working for Shell suggested in a New Scientist article, that carbon cycles are too vast to upset Nature's balance.^[64] By 1966 however, a coal industry research organization, Bituminous Coal Research Inc., published its finding that if then prevailing trends of coal consumption continue, "the temperature of the earth's atmosphere will increase and that vast changes in the climates of the earth will result." "Such changes in temperature will cause melting of the polar icecaps, which, in turn, would result in the inundation of many coastal cities, including New York and London."^[65] In a discussion following this paper in the same publication, a combustion engineer for Peabody Coal, now Peabody Energy, the world's largest coal supplier, added that the coal industry was merely "buying time" before additional government air pollution regulations would be promulgated to clean the air. Nevertheless, the coal industry for decades thereafter publicly advocated the position that increased carbon dioxide in the atmosphere is beneficial for the planet.^[65]

In response to increasing public awareness of the greenhouse effect in the 1970s, conservative reaction built up, denying environmental concerns which could lead to government regulation. With the 1981 Presidency of Ronald Reagan, global warming became a political issue, with immediate plans to cut spending on environmental research, particularly climate-related, and stop funding for CO₂ monitoring. Reagan appointed as Secretary of Energy James B. Edwards, who said that there was no real global warming problem. Congressman Al Gore had studied under Revelle and was aware of the developing science: he joined others in arranging congressional hearings from 1981 onwards, with testimony by scientists including Revelle, Stephen Schneider and Wallace Smith Broecker. The hearings gained enough public attention to reduce the cuts in atmospheric research.^[66] A polarized party-political debate developed. In 1982, Sherwood B. Idso published his book Carbon Dioxide: Friend or Foe? which said increases in CO₂ would not warm the planet, but would fertilize crops and were "something to be encouraged and not suppressed", while complaining that his theories had been rejected by the "scientific establishment". An Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) report in 1983 said global warming was "not a theoretical problem but a threat whose effects will be felt within a few years", with potentially "catastrophic" consequences.^[67] The Reagan administration reacted by calling the report "alarmist", and the dispute got wide news coverage. Public attention turned to other issues, then the 1985 finding of a polar ozone hole brought a swift international response. To the public, this was related to climate change and the possibility of effective action, but news interest faded.^[68]

Public attention was renewed amidst summer droughts and heat waves when James Hansen testified to a Congressional hearing on 23 June 1988,^[69] stating with high confidence that long term warming was underway with severe warming likely within the next 50 years, and warning of likely storms and floods. There was increasing media attention: the scientific community had reached a broad consensus that the climate was warming, human activity was very likely the primary cause, and there would be significant consequences if the warming trend was not curbed.^[70] These facts encouraged discussion about new laws concerning environmental regulation, which was opposed by the fossil fuel industry.^[71]

From 1989 onwards industry-funded organizations including the Global Climate Coalition and the George C. Marshall Institute sought to spread doubt among the public, in a strategy already developed by the tobacco industry.^{[72][73][74]} A small group of scientists opposed to the consensus on global warming became politically involved, and with support from conservative political interests, began publishing in books and the press rather than in scientific journals.^[75] This small group of scientists included some of the same people that were part of the strategy already tried by the tobacco industry.^[76] Spencer Weart identifies this period as the point where legitimate skepticism about basic aspects of climate science was no longer justified, and those spreading mistrust about these issues became deniers.^[77] As their arguments were increasingly refuted by the scientific community and new data, deniers turned to political arguments, making personal attacks on the reputation of scientists, and promoting ideas of a global warming conspiracy.^[78]

With the 1989 fall of communism and the environmental movement's international reach at the 1992 Rio Earth Summit, the attention of U.S. conservative think tanks, which had been organized in the 1970s as an intellectual counter-movement to socialism, turned from the "red scare" to the "green scare" which they saw as a threat to their aims of private property, free trade market economies and global capitalism. As a counter-movement, they used environmental skepticism to promote denial of the reality of problems such as loss of biodiversity and climate change.^[79]

In 1992, an EPA report linked second-hand smoke with lung cancer. The tobacco industry engaged the APCO Worldwide public relations company, which set out a strategy of astroturfing campaigns to cast doubt on the science by linking smoking anxieties with other issues, including global warming, in order to turn public opinion against calls for government intervention. The campaign depicted public concerns as "unfounded fears" supposedly based only on "junk science" in contrast to their "sound science", and operated through front groups, primarily the Advancement of Sound Science Center (TASSC) and its Junk Science website, run by Steven Milloy. A tobacco company memo commented "Doubt is our product since it is the best means of competing with the 'body of fact' that exists in the mind of the general public. It is also the means of establishing a controversy." During the 1990s, the tobacco campaign died away, and TASSC began taking funding from oil companies including Exxon. Its website became central in distributing "almost every kind of climate-change denial that has found its way into the popular press."^[80]

In the 1990s, the Marshall Institute began campaigning against increased regulations on environmental issues such as acid rain, ozone depletion, second-hand smoke, and the dangers of DDT.^{[73][80][76]} In each case their argument was that the science was too uncertain to justify any government intervention, a strategy it borrowed from earlier efforts to downplay the health effects of tobacco in the 1980s.^{[72][74]} This campaign would continue for the next two decades.^[81]

These efforts succeeded in influencing public perception of climate science.^[82] Between 1988 and the 1990s, public discourse shifted from the science and data of climate change to discussion of politics and surrounding controversy.^[83]

The campaign to spread doubt continued into the 1990s, including an advertising campaign funded by coal industry advocates intended to "reposition global warming as theory rather than fact,"^{[84][85]} and a 1998 proposal written by the American Petroleum Institute intending to recruit scientists to convince politicians, the media and the public that climate science was too uncertain to warrant environmental regulation.^[86] The proposal included a US$ 5,000,000 multi-point strategy to "maximize the impact of scientific views consistent with ours on Congress, the media and other key audiences", with a goal of "raising questions about and undercutting the 'prevailing scientific wisdom'".^[87]

In 1998, Gelbspan noted that his fellow journalists accepted that global warming was occurring, but said they were in "'stage-two' denial of the climate crisis", unable to accept the feasibility of answers to the problem.^[88] A subsequent book by Milburn and Conrad on The Politics of Denial described "economic and psychological forces" producing denial of the consensus on global warming issues.^[89]

These efforts by climate change denial groups were recognized as an organized campaign beginning in the 2000s.^[90] The sociologists Riley Dunlap and Aaron McCright played a significant role in this shift when they published an article in 2000 exploring the connection between conservative think tanks and climate change denial.^[91] Later work would continue the argument specific groups were marshaling skepticism against climate change - A study in 2008 from the University of Central Florida analyzed the sources of "environmentally skeptical" literature published in the United States. The analysis demonstrated that 92% of the literature was partly or wholly affiliated with a self-proclaimed conservative think tanks.^[92] A later piece of research from 2015 identified 4,556 individuals with overlapping network ties to 164 organizations which are responsible for the most efforts to downplay the threat of climate change in the U.S.^{[93][94]}

Gelbspan's Boiling Point, published in 2004, detailed the fossil-fuel industry's campaign to deny climate change and undermine public confidence in climate science.^[95] In Newsweek's August 2007 cover story "The Truth About Denial", Sharon Begley reported that "the denial machine is running at full throttle", and said that this "well-coordinated, well-funded campaign" by contrarian scientists, free-market think tanks, and industry had "created a paralyzing fog of doubt around climate change."^[43]

Referencing work of sociologists Robert Antonio and Robert Brulle, Wayne A. White has written that climate change denial has become the top priority in a broader agenda against environmental regulation being pursued by neoliberals.^[96] Today, climate change skepticism is most prominently seen in the United States, where the media disproportionately features views of the climate change denial community.^[97] In addition to the media, the contrarian movement has also been sustained by the growth of the internet, having gained some of its support from internet bloggers, talk radio hosts and newspaper columnists.^[98]

The New York Times and others reported in 2015 that oil companies knew that burning oil and gas could cause climate change and global warming since the 1970s but nonetheless funded deniers for years.^{[28][29]} Dana Nuccitelli wrote in The Guardian that a small fringe group of climate deniers were no longer taken seriously at the 2015 United Nations Climate Change Conference, in an agreement that "we need to stop delaying and start getting serious about preventing a climate crisis."^[99] However, The New York Times says any implementation is voluntary and will depend on any future world leaders—and every Republican U.S. presidential candidate in 2016 questioned or denied the science of climate change.^[100]

Ernesto Araújo, the new Minister of Foreign Affairs appointed by the newly elected president Brazil's president Jair Bolsonaro has called global warming a plot by "cultural Marxists"^[101] and has eliminated the Climate Change Division of the ministry.^[102]

Brazilian President Jair Bolsonaro with Donald Trump's former National Security Adviser John Bolton in Rio de Janeiro, 29 November 2018

Denial networks

The climate change denial industry is most powerful in the United States.^{[103][104]} In the 2016 United States election cycle, every Republican presidential candidate questioned or denied climate change, and opposed U.S. government steps to address climate change as has the Republican leader in the U.S. Senate.^[105]

A Pentagon report has pointed out how climate change denial threatens national security.^[106] A study from 2015 identified 4,556 individuals with overlapping network ties to 164 organizations which are responsible for the most efforts to downplay the threat of climate change in the U.S.^{[107][108]}

In 2013, the Center for Media and Democracy reported that the State Policy Network (SPN), an umbrella group of 64 U.S. think tanks, had been lobbying on behalf of major corporations and conservative donors to oppose climate change regulation.^[109]

International

The Clexit Coalition claims to be: "A new international organisation (which) aims to prevent ratification of the costly and dangerous Paris global warming treaty".^[110] It has members in 26 countries.^[111] According to The Guardian newspaper: "Clexit leaders are heavily involved in tobacco and fossil fuel-funded organizations".^[112]

Arguments and positions on global warming

Some climate change denial groups say that because CO₂ is only a trace gas in the atmosphere (roughly 400ppm, or 0.04%, 4 parts per 10,000) it can only have a minor effect on the climate. Scientists have known for over a century that even this small proportion has a significant warming effect, and doubling the proportion leads to a large temperature increase.^[114] The scientific consensus, as summarized by the IPCC fourth assessment report, the U.S. Geological Survey, and other reports, is that human activity is the leading cause of climate change. The burning of fossil fuels accounts for around 30 billion tons of CO₂ each year, which is 130 times the amount produced by volcanoes.^[115] Some groups allege that water vapor is a more significant greenhouse gas, and is left out of many climate models.^[114] While water vapor is a greenhouse gas, the very short atmospheric lifetime of water vapor (about 10 days) compared that of CO₂ (hundreds of years) means that CO₂ is the primary driver of increasing temperatures; water vapour acts as a feedback, not a forcing mechanism.^[116] Water vapor has been incorporated into climate models since their inception in the late 1800s.^[117]

Climate denial groups may also argue that global warming stopped recently, a global warming hiatus, or that global temperatures are actually decreasing, leading to global cooling. These arguments are based on short term fluctuations, and ignore the long term pattern of warming.^[118]

These groups often point to natural variability, such as sunspots and cosmic rays, to explain the warming trend.^[119] According to these groups, there is natural variability that will abate over time, and human influences have little to do with it. These factors are already taken into account when developing climate models, and the scientific consensus is that they cannot explain the observed warming trend.^[120]

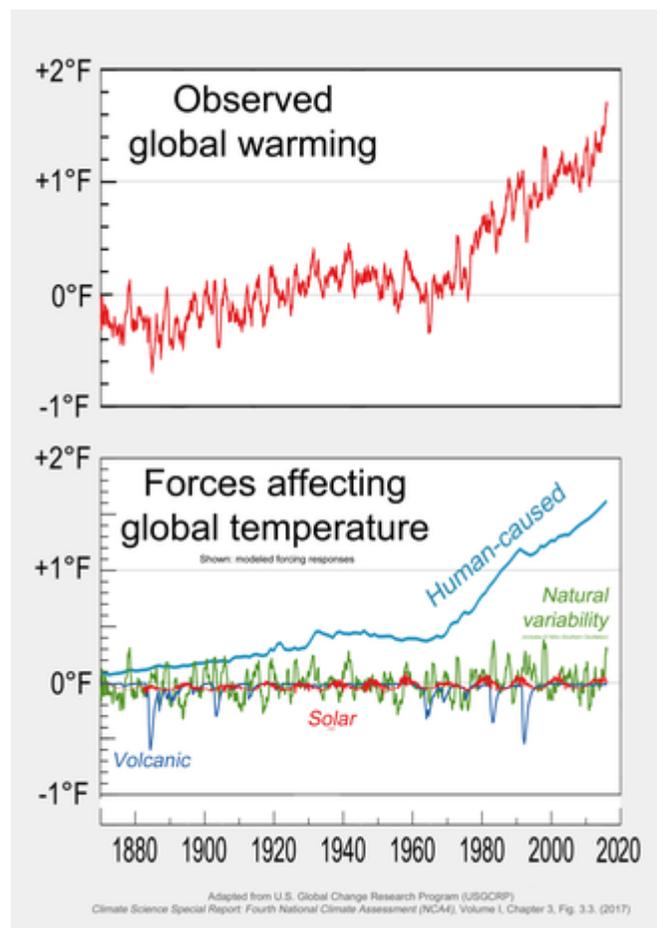

At a May 2018 meeting of the United States House Committee on Science, Space, and Technology, Alabama's Representative Mo Brooks claimed that sea level rise is caused not by melting glaciers but rather by coastal erosion and silt that flows from rivers into the ocean.^[121]

Climate change denial literature often features the suggestion that we should wait for better technologies before addressing climate change, when they will be more affordable and effective.^[122]

Conspiracy theories

Global warming conspiracy theories have been posited which allege that the scientific consensus is illusory, or that climatologists are acting on their own financial interests by causing undue alarm about a changing climate.^{[123][124][125]} Despite leaked emails during the Climatic Research Unit email controversy, as well as multinational, independent research on the topic, no evidence of such a conspiracy has been presented, and strong consensus exists among scientists from a multitude of political, social, organizational and national backgrounds about the extent and cause of climate change.^{[126][127]} Several researchers have concluded that around 97% of climate scientists agree with this consensus.^[128] As well, much of the data used in climate science is publicly available to be viewed and interpreted by competing researchers as well as the public.^[129]

In 2012, research by Stephan Lewandowsky (then of the University of Western Australia) concluded that belief in other conspiracy theories, such as that the FBI was responsible for the assassination of Martin Luther King, Jr., was associated with being more likely to endorse climate change denial.^[130]

The Fourth National Climate Assessment ("NCA4", U.S., 2017) includes charts^[113] illustrating how human factors—not various natural factors that have been investigated—are the predominant cause of observed global warming.

In February 2015, climate change denier Jim Inhofe, who had previously called climate change "the greatest hoax ever perpetrated against the American people," claimed to have debunked the alleged hoax when he brought a snowball with him in the U.S. Senate chamber and tossed it across the floor.^[131] He was succeeded in 2017 by John Barrasso, who similarly said: "The climate is constantly changing. The role human activity plays is not known."^[132]

Donald Trump tweeted in 2012 that the Chinese invented "the concept of global warming" because they believed it would somehow hurt U.S. manufacturing. In late 2015, he called global warming a "hoax."^[133]

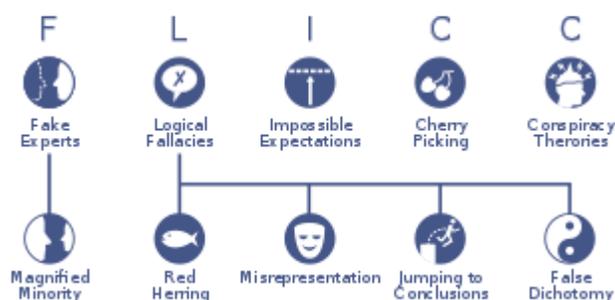

Inhofe holding a snowball on the U.S. Senate floor

Taxonomy of climate change denial

In 2004, Stefan Rahmstorf described how the media give the misleading impression that climate change was still disputed within the scientific community, attributing this impression to PR efforts of climate change skeptics. He identified different positions argued by climate skeptics, which he used as a taxonomy of climate change skepticism:^[134] Later the model was also applied on denial.^[8]

1. Trend sceptics or deniers (who deny there is global warming), [and] argue that no significant climate warming is taking place at all, claiming that the warming trend measured by weather stations is an artefact due to urbanisation around those stations ("urban heat island effect").
2. Attribution sceptics or deniers (who accept the global warming trend but see natural causes for this), [and] doubt that human activities are responsible for the observed trends. A few of them even deny that the rise in the atmospheric CO₂ content is anthropogenic [while others argue that] additional CO₂ does not lead to discernible warming [and] that there must be other—natural—causes for warming.
3. Impact sceptics or deniers (who think global warming is harmless or even beneficial).
— [8][134]

5 CHARACTERISTICS OF SCIENCE DENIAL

Characteristics of science denial (including climate science denial)

This taxonomy has been used in social science for analysis of publications, and to categorize climate change skepticism and climate change denial.^{[135][136]} Sometimes, a fourth category called "consensus denial" is added, which describes people who question the scientific consensus on anthropogenic global warming.^[8]

The National Center for Science Education describes climate change denial as disputing differing points in the scientific consensus, a sequential range of arguments from denying the occurrence of climate change, accepting that but denying any significant human contribution, accepting these but denying scientific findings on how this would affect nature and human society, to accepting all these but denying that humans can mitigate or reduce the problems.^[4] James L. Powell provides a more extended list,^[6] as does climatologist Michael E. Mann in "six stages of denial", a ladder model whereby deniers have over time conceded acceptance of points, while retreating to a position which still rejects the mainstream consensus.^[137]

1. CO₂ is not actually increasing.
2. Even if it is, the increase has no impact on the climate since there is no convincing evidence of warming.
3. Even if there is warming, it is due to natural causes.
4. Even if the warming cannot be explained by natural causes, the human impact is small, and the impact of continued greenhouse gas emissions will be minor.
5. Even if the current and future projected human effects on Earth's climate are not negligible, the changes are generally going to be good for us.
6. Whether or not the changes are going to be good for us, humans are very adept at adapting to changes; besides, it's too late to do anything about it, and/or a technological fix is bound to come along when we really need it.^[137]

Journalists and newspaper columnists including George Monbiot^{[138][139][140]} and Ellen Goodman,^[139] among others,^{[141][142]} have described climate change denial as a form of denialism.^[143]

Denialism in this context has been defined by Chris and Mark Hoofnagle as the use of rhetorical devices "to give the appearance of legitimate debate where there is none, an approach that has the ultimate goal of rejecting a proposition on which a scientific consensus exists." This process characteristically uses one or more of the following tactics:^{[22][144][145]}

1. Allegations that scientific consensus involves conspiring to fake data or suppress the truth: a global warming conspiracy theory.
2. Fake experts, or individuals with views at odds with established knowledge, at the same time marginalising or denigrating published topic experts. Like the manufactured doubt over smoking and health, a few contrarian scientists oppose the climate consensus, some of them the same individuals.
3. Selectivity, such as cherry picking atypical or even obsolete papers, in the same way that the MMR vaccine controversy was based on one paper: examples include discredited ideas of the medieval warm period.^[145]
4. Unworkable demands of research, claiming that any uncertainty invalidates the field or exaggerating uncertainty while rejecting probabilities and mathematical models.
5. Logical fallacies.

In 2015, environmentalist Bill McKibben accused President Obama (widely regarded as strongly in favour of action on climate change^[146]) of "Catastrophic Climate-Change Denial", for his approval of oil-drilling permits in offshore Alaska. According to McKibben, the President has also "opened huge swaths of the Powder River basin to new coal mining." McKibben calls this "climate denial of the status quo sort", where the President denies "the meaning of the science, which is that we must keep carbon in the ground."^[147]

A study assessed the public perception and actions to climate change, on grounds of belief systems, and identified seven psychological barriers affecting the behavior that otherwise would facilitate mitigation, adaptation, and environmental stewardship. The author found the following barriers: cognition, ideological world views, comparisons to key people, costs and momentum, discredence toward experts and authorities, perceived risks of change, and inadequate behavioral changes.^{[148][149]}

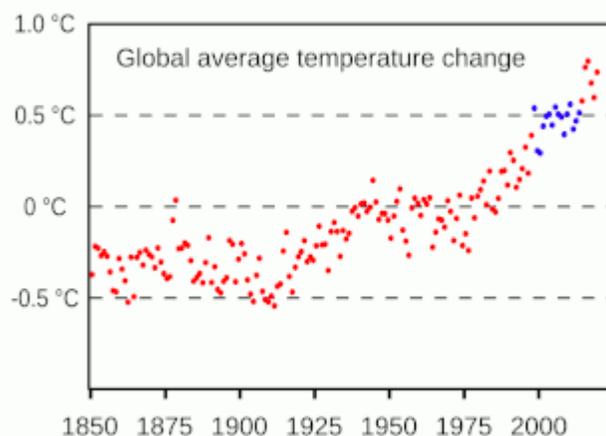

Pseudoscience

Various groups, including the National Center for Science Education, have described climate change denial as a form of pseudoscience.^{[152][153][154]} Climate change skepticism, while in some cases professing to do research on climate change, has focused instead on influencing the opinion of the public, legislators and the media, in contrast to legitimate science.^[155]

In a review of the book The Pseudoscience Wars: Immanuel Velikovsky and the Birth of the Modern Fringe by Michael D. Gordin, David Morrison wrote:

In his final chapter, Gordin turns to the new phase of pseudoscience, practiced by a few rogue scientists themselves. Climate change denialism is the prime example, where a handful of scientists, allied with an effective PR machine, are publicly challenging the scientific consensus that global warming is real and is due primarily to human consumption of fossil fuels. Scientists have watched in disbelief that as the evidence for global warming has become ever more solid, the deniers have been increasingly successful in the public and political arena. ... Today pseudoscience is still with us, and is as dangerous a challenge to science as it ever was in the past.^[156]

In 2019, Senator Gerard Rennick of Queensland, Australia, accused the Australian Bureau of Meteorology of changing data from temperature records to support a climate change narrative. (The Bureau had updated data collected with old equipment to enable it to be compared with data collected with newer equipment.) "I don't believe the record," the senator said, citing his own "background in system accounting where I've changed records."^[157]

One deceptive approach is cherry picking data from short time periods to assert that global average temperatures are not rising. Blue trendlines show short-term countertrends that mask longer-term warming trends that are shown by red trendlines.^[150] Such representations have been applied to the so-called Global warming hiatus (blue dots, 1998–2013).^[151]

False beliefs

In 2015, at a town council meeting in Woodland, North Carolina, two individuals said they feared that solar farms would draw too much energy from the sun, one of whom was a retired science teacher who worried that this would interfere with the photosynthesis of nearby plants and also that it could cause cancer in humans.^[158] (Solar panels do not attract energy from the sun; they simply use what lands on them.)

Explaining the techniques of science denial and misinformation, by presenting "examples of people using cherry-picking or fake experts or false balance to mislead the public," has been shown to inoculate people somewhat against misinformation.^{[159][160][161]}

Dialogue focused on the question of how belief differs from scientific theory may provide useful insights into how the scientific method works, and how beliefs may have strong or minimal supporting evidence.^{[162][163]} Wong-Parodi's survey of the literature shows four effective approaches to dialogue, including "[encouraging] people to openly share their values and stance on climate change before introducing actual scientific climate information into the discussion."^[164]

Emotional and psychological aspects

Florida State Senator Tom Lee has described the emotional impact and reactions of individuals to climate change. Lee says, "If these predictions do bear out, that it's just economically daunting. I mean, you have to be the Grim Reaper of reality in a world that isn't real fond of the Grim Reaper. That's why I use the term emotionally shut down, because I think you lose people at hello a lot of times in the Republican conversation over this."^[165] Emotional reactions to climate change may include guilt, fear, anger, and apathy. Psychology Today, in an article titled "The Existential Dread of Climate Change, has suggested that "despair about our changing climate may get in the way of fixing it."^[166] The American Psychological Association has urged psychologists and other social scientists to work on psychological barriers to taking action on climate change.^[167]

Responding to climate denial - the role of emotions and persuasive argument

An Irish Times article notes that climate denial "is not simply overcome by reasoned argument," because it is not a rational response. Attempting to overcome denial using techniques of persuasive argument, such as supplying a missing piece of information, or providing general scientific education may be ineffective. A person who is in denial about climate is most likely taking a position based on their feelings, especially their feelings about things they fear.^[168]

Lewandowsky has stated that "It is pretty clear that fear of the solutions drives much opposition to the science."^[169]

It can be useful to respond to emotions, including with the statement "It can be painful to realise that our own lifestyles are responsible," in order to help move "from denial to acceptance to constructive action."^{[168][170][171]}

Farmers and climate denial

Seeing positive economic results from efforts at climate-friendly agricultural practices, or becoming involved in intergenerational stewardship of a farm may play a role in turning farmers away from denial. One study of climate change denial among farmers in Australia found that farmers were less likely to take a position of climate denial if they had experienced improved production from climate-friendly practices, or identified a younger person as a successor for their farm.^[172]

In the United States, rural climate dialogues sponsored by the Sierra Club have helped neighbors overcome their fears of political polarization and exclusion, and come together to address shared concerns about climate impacts in their communities. Some participants who start out with attitudes of anthropogenic climate change denial have shifted to identifying concerns which they would like to see addressed by local officials.^[173]

People who have changed their position

"I used to be a climate-change skeptic," conservative columnist Max Boot admitted in 2018, one who believed that "the science was inconclusive" and that worry was "overblown". Now, he says, referencing the Fourth National Climate Assessment, "the scientific consensus is so clear and convincing."^[174]

Climate change doubter Bob Inglis, a former US representative for South Carolina, changed his mind after appeals from his son on his environmental positions, and after spending time with climate scientist Scott Heron studying coral bleaching in the Great Barrier Reef. Inglis lost his House race in 2010, and went on to found republicEn, a nonprofit promoting conservative voices and solutions on climate change.^[175]

Jerry Taylor promoted climate denialism for 20 years as former staff director for the energy and environment task force at the American Legislative Exchange Council (ALEC) and former vice president of the Cato Institute. Taylor began to change his mind after climate scientist James Hansen challenged him to reread some Senate testimony. He became President of the Niskanen Center in 2014, where he is involved in turning climate skeptics into climate activists, and making the business case for climate action.^{[176][177][178]}

In 2009, Russian president Dmitri Medvedev expressed his opinion that climate change was "some kind of tricky campaign made up by some commercial structures to promote their business projects." After the devastating 2010 Russian wildfires damaged agriculture and left Moscow choking in smoke, Medvedev commented, "Unfortunately, what is happening now in our central regions is evidence of this global climate change."^[179]

Michael Shermer, the publisher of Skeptic Magazine, reached a tipping point in 2006 as a result of his increasing familiarity with scientific evidence, and decided there was "overwhelming evidence for anthropogenic global warming." Journalist Gregg Easterbrook, an early skeptic of climate change who authored the influential book A Moment on the Earth, also changed his mind in 2006, and wrote an essay titled "Case Closed: The Debate About Global Warming is Over."^[179]

Weather Channel senior meteorologist Stu Ostro expressed skepticism or cynicism about anthropogenic global warming for some years, but by 2010, he had become involved in explaining the connections between man-made climate change and extreme weather."^[179]

Richard A. Muller, professor of physics at the University of California, Berkeley, and the co-founder of the Berkeley Earth Surface Temperature project, funded by Charles Koch Charitable Foundation, has been a prominent critic of prevailing climate science. In 2011, he stated that "following an intensive research effort involving a dozen scientists, I concluded that global warming was real and that the prior estimates of the rate of warming were correct. I'm now going a step further: Humans are almost entirely the cause."^[180]

Funding

Between 2002 and 2010, the combined annual income of 91 climate change counter-movement organizations—think tanks, advocacy groups and industry associations—was roughly $900 million.^{[181][182]} During the same period, billionaires secretly donated nearly $120 million (£77 million) via the Donors Trust and Donors Capital Fund to more than 100 organizations seeking to undermine the public perception of the science on climate change.^{[183][184]}

As of the end of 2019, in the current U.S. election cycle, 97 percent of the coal industry's political contributions and 88 percent of the oil and gas industries' contributions had gone to Republicans,^{[185][186]} leading Paul Krugman to call the Republicans "the world's only major climate-denialist party."^[187]

Public opinion

Public opinion on climate change is significantly affected by media coverage of climate change, and the effects of climate change denial campaigns. Campaigns to undermine public confidence in climate science have decreased public belief in climate change, which in turn have affected legislative efforts to curb CO₂ emissions.^[188] Another reason why the public is skeptical about climate change is their lack of knowledge.^[7]

United States

In a 2006 ABC News/Time Magazine poll, 56% of Americans correctly answered that average global temperatures had risen over the previous three years. However, in the same poll, two-thirds said they believed that scientists had "a lot of disagreement" about "whether or not global warming is happening."^[189]

From 2001 to 2012, the number of Americans who said they believe in anthropogenic global warming decreased from 75 percent to 44 percent.^[190] (Scientists believe it is happening.)^[191]

A study found that public climate change policy support and behavior are significantly influenced by public beliefs, attitudes and risk perceptions.^[193] As of March 2018 the rate of acceptance among U.S. TV forecasters that the climate is changing has increased to ninety-five percent. The number of local television stories about global warming has also increased, by fifteen-fold. Climate Central has received some of the credit for this because they provide classes for meteorologists and graphics for television stations.^[194]

The popular media in the U.S. gives greater attention to climate change skeptics than the scientific community as a whole, and the level of agreement within the scientific community has not been accurately communicated.^{[195][196][197]} In some cases, news outlets have allowed climate change skeptics to explain the science of climate change instead of experts in climatology.^[198] US and UK media coverage differ from that presented in other countries, where reporting is more consistent with the scientific literature.^{[199][200]} Some journalists attribute the difference to climate change denial being propagated, mainly in the US, by business-centered organizations employing tactics worked out previously by the US

tobacco lobby.^{[72][201][202]} In France, the US and the UK, the opinions of climate change skeptics appear much more frequently in conservative news outlets than other news, and in many cases those opinions are left uncontested.^[203]

The efforts of Al Gore and other environmental campaigns have focused on the effects of global warming and have managed to increase awareness and concern, but despite these efforts, the number of Americans believing humans are the cause of global warming was holding steady at 61% in 2007, and those believing the popular media was understating the issue remained about 35%.^[204] A recent poll from 2015 suggests that while Americans are growing more aware of the dangers and implications of climate change for future generations, the majority are not worried about it.^[205] From a survey conducted in 2004, it was found that more than 30% of news presented in the previous decade showed equal attention to both human and non human contributions to global warming.^[206]

In 2018, the National Science Teachers Association urged teachers to "emphasize to students that no scientific controversy exists regarding the basic facts of climate change."^[207]

Europe

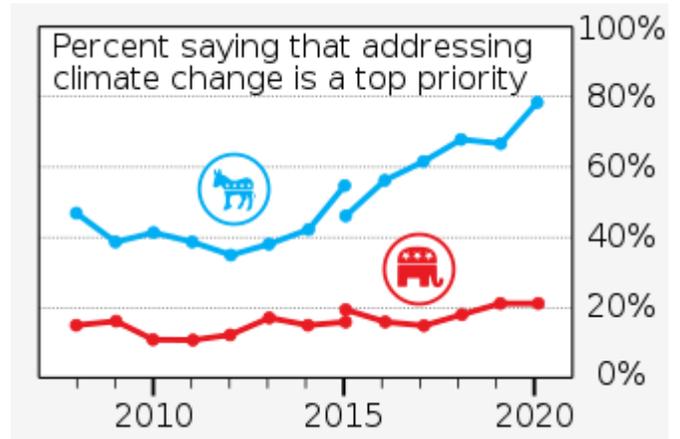

Climate change denial has been promoted by several far-right European parties, including Spain's Vox, Finland's far-right Finns Party, Austria's far-right Freedom Party, and Germany's anti-immigration Alternative for Deutschland (AFD).^[208]

Nationalism

It has been suggested that climate change can conflict with a nationalistic view because it is "unsolvable" at the national level and requires collective action between nations or between local communities, and that therefore populist nationalism tends to reject the science of climate change.^[209]

In a TED talk Yuval Noah Harari notes:^[210]

...nationalism has no solution to climate change. If you want to be a nationalist in the 21st century, you have to deny the problem. If you accept the reality of the problem, then you must accept that, yes, there is still room in the world for patriotism, there is still room in the world for having special loyalties and obligations towards your own people, towards your own country. I don't think anybody is really thinking of abolishing that. But in order to confront climate change, we need additional loyalties and commitments to a level beyond the nation.

Democrats (blue) and Republicans (red) have long differed in views of the importance of addressing climate change, with the gap widening in the late 2010s mainly through Democrats' share increasing by more than 30 points.^[192]

(Discontinuity resulted from survey changing in 2015 from reciting "global warming" to "climate change".)

In 2019, U.S. Undersecretary of Energy Mark W. Menezes said that the Freeport LNG project's exports would be "spreading freedom gas throughout the world," while Assistant Secretary for Fossil Energy Steven Winberg echoed the call to internationally export "molecules of US freedom."^[211]

On the other hand, it has been argued that effective climate action is polycentric rather than international, and national interest in multilateral groups can be furthered by overcoming climate change denial.^[212] Climate change contrarians may believe in a "caricature" of internationalist state intervention that is perceived as threatening national sovereignty, and may re-attribute risks such as flooding to international institutions.^[213] UK Independence Party policy on climate change has been influenced by noted contrarian Christopher Monckton and then by its energy spokesman Roger Helmer MEP who stated in a speech "It is not clear that the rise in atmospheric CO₂ is anthropogenic".^[214]

Jerry Taylor of the Niskanen Center posits that climate change denial is an important component of Trumpian historical consciousness, and "plays a significant role in the architecture of Trumpism as a developing philosophical system."^[215]

Lobbying

Efforts to lobby against environmental regulation have included campaigns to manufacture doubt about the science behind climate change, and to obscure the scientific consensus and data.^[216] These efforts have undermined public confidence in climate science, and impacted climate change lobbying.^{[15][188]}

The political advocacy organizations FreedomWorks and Americans for Prosperity, funded by brothers David and Charles Koch of Koch Industries, were important in supporting the Tea Party movement and in encouraging the movement to focus on climate change.^[217] Other conservative organizations such as the Heritage Foundation, Marshall Institute, Cato Institute and the American Enterprise Institute were significant participants in these lobbying attempts, seeking to halt or eliminate environmental regulations.^{[218][219]}

This approach to downplay the significance of climate change was copied from tobacco lobbyists; in the face of scientific evidence linking tobacco to lung cancer, to prevent or delay the introduction of regulation. Lobbyists attempted to discredit the scientific research by creating doubt and manipulating debate. They worked to discredit the scientists involved, to dispute their findings, and to create and maintain an apparent controversy by promoting claims that contradicted scientific research. "'Doubt is our product,' boasted a now infamous 1969 industry memo. Doubt would shield the tobacco industry from litigation and regulation for decades to come."^[220] In 2006, George Monbiot wrote in The Guardian about similarities between the methods of groups funded by Exxon, and those of the tobacco giant Philip Morris, including direct attacks on peer-reviewed science, and attempts to create public controversy and doubt.^[138]

Former National Academy of Sciences president Frederick Seitz, who, according to an article by Mark Hertsgaard in Vanity Fair, earned about US$585,000 in the 1970s and 1980s as a consultant to R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Company,^[221] went on to chair groups such as the Science and Environmental Policy Project and the George C. Marshall Institute alleged to have made efforts to "downplay" global warming. Seitz stated in the 1980s that "Global warming is far more a matter of politics than of climate." Seitz authored the Oregon Petition, a document published jointly by the Marshall Institute and Oregon Institute of Science and Medicine in opposition to the Kyoto protocol. The petition and accompanying "Research Review of Global Warming Evidence" claimed:^[138]

The proposed limits on greenhouse gases would harm the environment, hinder the advance of science and technology, and damage the health and welfare of mankind. There is no convincing scientific evidence that human release of carbon dioxide, methane, or other greenhouse gases is causing or will, in the foreseeable future, cause catastrophic heating of the Earth's atmosphere and disruption of the Earth's climate. ... We are living in an increasingly lush environment of plants and animals as a result of the carbon dioxide increase. Our children will enjoy an Earth with far more plant and animal life than that with which we now are blessed. This is a wonderful and unexpected gift from the Industrial Revolution.

George Monbiot wrote in The Guardian that this petition, which he criticizes as misleading and tied to industry funding, "has been cited by almost every journalist who claims that climate change is a myth." Efforts by climate change denial groups played a significant role in the eventual rejection of the Kyoto protocol in the US.^[222]

Monbiot has written about another group founded by the tobacco lobby, The Advancement of Sound Science Coalition (TASSC), that now campaigns against measures to combat global warming. In again trying to manufacture the appearance of a grass-roots movement against "unfounded fear" and "over-regulation," Monbiot states that TASSC "has done more damage to the campaign to halt [climate change] than any other body."^[138]

Drexel University environmental sociologist Robert Brulle analysed the funding of 91 organizations opposed to restrictions on carbon emissions, which he termed the "climate change counter-movement." Between 2003 and 2013, the donor-advised funds Donors Trust and Donors Capital Fund, combined, were the largest funders, accounting for about one quarter of the total funds, and the American Enterprise Institute was the largest recipient, 16% of the total funds. The study also found that the amount of money donated to these organizations by means of foundations whose funding sources cannot be traced had risen.^{[223][224][225][226][227]}

Private sector

Several large corporations within the fossil fuel industry provide significant funding for attempts to mislead the public about the trustworthiness of climate science.^[228] ExxonMobil and the Koch family foundations have been identified as especially influential funders of climate change contrarianism.^[229] The bankruptcy of the coal company Cloud Peak Energy revealed it funded the Institute for Energy Research, a climate denial think tank, as well as several other policy influencers.^{[230][231]}

After the IPCC released its February 2007 report, the American Enterprise Institute offered British, American and other scientists $10,000 plus travel expenses to publish articles critical of the assessment. The institute had received more than US$1.6 million from Exxon, and its vice-chairman of trustees was former head of Exxon Lee Raymond. Raymond sent letters that alleged the IPCC report was not "supported by the analytical work." More than 20 AEI employees worked as consultants to the George W. Bush administration.^[232] Despite her initial conviction that climate change denial would abate with time, Senator Barbara Boxer said that when she learned of the AEI's offer, she "realized there was a movement behind this that just wasn't giving up."^[233]

The Royal Society conducted a survey that found ExxonMobil had given US$2.9 million to American groups that "misinformed the public about climate change," 39 of which "misrepresented the science of climate change by outright denial of the evidence".^{[234][235]} In 2006, the Royal Society issued a demand that ExxonMobil withdraw funding for climate change denial. The letter drew criticism, notably from Timothy Ball who argued the society attempted to "politicize the private funding of science and to censor scientific debate."^[236]

ExxonMobil denied that it has been trying to mislead the public about global warming. A spokesman, Gantt Walton, said that ExxonMobil's funding of research does not mean that it acts to influence the research, and that ExxonMobil supports taking action to curb the output of greenhouse gasses.^[237] Research conducted at an Exxon archival collection at the University of Texas and interviews with former employees by journalists indicate the scientific opinion within the company and their public posture towards climate change was contradictory.^[238]

Between 1989 and 2002, the Global Climate Coalition, a group of mainly United States businesses, used aggressive lobbying and public relations tactics to oppose action to reduce greenhouse gas emissions and fight the Kyoto Protocol. The coalition was financed by large corporations and trade groups from the oil, coal and auto industries. The New York Times reported that "even as the coalition worked to sway opinion [towards skepticism], its own scientific and technical experts were advising that the science backing the role of greenhouse gases in global warming could not be refuted."^[239] In 2000, Ford Motor Company was the first company to leave the coalition as a result of pressure from environmentalists,^[240] followed by Daimler-Chrysler, Texaco, the Southern Company and General Motors subsequently left to GCC.^[241] The organization closed in 2002.

From January 2009 through June 2010, the oil, coal and utility industries spent $500 million in lobby expenditures in opposition to legislation to address climate change.^{[242][243]}

In early 2015, several media reports emerged saying that Willie Soon, a popular scientist among climate change deniers, had failed to disclose conflicts of interest in at least 11 scientific papers published since 2008.^[244] They reported that he received a total of $1.25m from ExxonMobil, Southern Company, the American Petroleum Institute and a foundation run by the Koch brothers.^[245] Charles R. Alcock, director of the Harvard–Smithsonian Center for Astrophysics, where Soon was based, said that allowing funders of Soon's work to prohibit disclosure of funding sources was a mistake, which will not be permitted in future grant agreements.^[246]

Lewandowsky reports that by asking four questions about the free market he is able to predict with "67% "confidence" (that is, variance)" an individual's attitudes towards climate change.^[169]

Public sector

The Republican Party in the United States is unique in denying anthropogenic climate change among conservative political parties across the Western world.^{[248][249]} In 1994, according to a leaked memo, the Republican strategist Frank Luntz advised members of the Republican Party, with regard to climate change, that "you need to continue to make the lack of scientific certainty a primary issue" and "challenge the science" by "recruiting experts who are sympathetic to your view."^[233] (In 2006, Luntz said he still believes "back [in] '97, '98, the science was uncertain", but he now agrees with the scientific consensus.)^[250] From 2008 to 2017, the Republican Party went from "debating how to combat human-caused climate change to arguing that it does not exist," according to The New York Times.^[251] In 2011, "more than half of the Republicans in the House and three-quarters of

In California during its 2020 wildfires

It'll start getting cooler, you just watch. ...
I don't think science knows, actually.

—U.S. President Donald Trump
September 13, 2020^[247]

Republican senators" said "that the threat of global warming, as a human-made and highly threatening phenomenon, is at best an exaggeration and at worst an utter "hoax"" according to Judith Warner writing in The New York Times Magazine.^[252] In 2014, more than 55% of congressional Republicans were climate change deniers, according to NBC News.^{[253][254]} According to PolitiFact in May 2014, Jerry Brown's statement that 'virtually no Republican' in Washington accepts climate change science, was "mostly true"; PolitiFact counted "eight out of 278, or about 3 percent" of Republican members of Congress who "accept the prevailing scientific conclusion that global warming is both real and man-made."^{[255][256]}

In 2005, The New York Times reported that Philip Cooney, former fossil fuel lobbyist and "climate team leader" at the American Petroleum Institute and President George W. Bush's chief of staff of the Council on Environmental Quality, had "repeatedly edited government climate reports in ways that play down links between such emissions and global warming, according to internal documents."^[257] Sharon Begley reported in Newsweek that Cooney "edited a 2002 report on climate science by sprinkling it with phrases such as 'lack of understanding' and 'considerable uncertainty.'" Cooney reportedly removed an entire section on climate in one report, whereupon another lobbyist sent him a fax saying "You are doing a great job."^[233] Cooney announced his resignation two days after the story of his tampering with scientific reports broke,^[258] but a few days later it was announced that Cooney would take up a position with ExxonMobil.^[259]

United States Secretary of Energy Rick Perry, in a 19 June 2017 interview with CNBC, acknowledged the existence of climate change and impact from humans, but said that he did not agree with the idea that carbon dioxide was the primary driver of global warming pointing instead to "the ocean waters and this environment that we live in".^[260] The American Meteorological Society responded in a letter to Perry saying that it is "critically important that you understand that emissions of carbon dioxide and other greenhouse gases are the primary cause", pointing to conclusions of scientists worldwide.^[261]

Republican Jim Bridenstine, the first elected politician to serve as NASA administrator, had previously stated that global temperatures were not rising. A month after the Senate confirmed his NASA position in April 2018, he acknowledged that human emissions of greenhouse gases are raising global temperatures.^{[262][263]}

Although climate denial positions have started to shift among the Republican Party leadership towards an acknowledgement that "the climate is changing", a 2019 report describes the climate right as "fragmented and underfunded."^[264]

Acknowledgement of climate change by politicians, while expressing uncertainty as to how much climate change can be attributed to human activity, has been described as a new form of climate denial, and "a reliable tool to manipulate public perception of climate change and stall political action."^{[265][266]}

Schools

According to documents leaked in February 2012, The Heartland Institute is developing a curriculum for use in schools which frames climate change as a scientific controversy.^{[267][268][269]} In 2017, Glenn Branch, Deputy Director of the National Center for Science Education (NCSE), wrote that "the Heartland Institute is continuing to inflict its climate change denial literature on science teachers across the country". He also described how some science teachers were reacting to Heartland's mailings: "Fortunately, the Heartland mailing continues to be greeted with skepticism and dismissed with scorn."^[270] The NCSE has prepared Classroom Resources in response to Heartland and other anti-science threats.^[271]

Branch also referred to an article by ClimateFeedback.org^[270] which reviewed an unsolicited Heartland booklet, entitled "Why Scientists Disagree about Global Warming", which was sent to science teachers in the United States. Their intention was to send it to "more than 200,000 K-12 teachers". Each significant claim was rated for accuracy by scientists who were experts on that topic. Overall, they scored the accuracy of the booklet with an "F": "it could hardly score lower", and "the "Key Findings" section are incorrect, misleading, based on flawed logic, or simply factually inaccurate."^[272]

Effect

Manufactured uncertainty over climate change, the fundamental strategy of climate change denial, has been very effective, particularly in the US. It has contributed to low levels of public concern and to government inaction worldwide.^{[20][273]} An Angus Reid poll released in 2010 indicates that global warming skepticism in the United States, Canada, and the United Kingdom has been rising.^{[274][275]} There may be multiple causes of this trend, including a focus on economic rather than environmental issues, and a negative perception of the United Nations and its role in discussing climate change.^[276]

Another cause may be weariness from overexposure to the topic: secondary polls suggest that the public may have been discouraged by extremism when discussing the topic,^[274] while other polls show 54% of U.S. voters believe that "the news media make global warming appear worse than it really is."^[277] A poll in 2009 regarding the issue of whether "some scientists have falsified research data to support their own theories and beliefs about global warming" showed that 59% of Americans believed it "at least somewhat likely", with 35% believing it was "very likely".^[276]

According to Tim Wirth, "They patterned what they did after the tobacco industry. [...] Both figured, sow enough doubt, call the science uncertain and in dispute. That's had a huge impact on both the public and Congress."^[72] This approach has been propagated by the US media, presenting a false balance between climate science and climate skeptics.^[278] Newsweek reports that the majority of Europe and Japan accept the consensus on scientific climate change, but only one third of Americans considered human activity to play a major role in climate change in 2006; 64% believed that scientists disagreed about it "a lot."^[279] A 2007 Newsweek poll found these numbers were declining, although majorities of Americans still believed that scientists were uncertain about climate change and its causes.^[280] Rush Holt wrote a piece for Science, which appeared in Newsweek:

... for more than two decades scientists have been issuing warnings that the release of greenhouse gases, principally carbon dioxide (CO₂), is probably altering Earth's climate in ways that will be expensive and even deadly. The American public yawned and bought bigger cars. Statements by the American Association for the Advancement of Science, American Geophysical Union, American Meteorological Society, Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change, and others underscored the warnings and called for new government policies to deal with climate change. Politicians, presented with noisy statistics, shrugged, said there is too much doubt among scientists, and did nothing.^[281]

Deliberate attempts by the Western Fuels Association "to confuse the public" have succeeded in their objectives. This has been "exacerbated by media treatment of the climate issue". According to a Pew poll in 2012, 57% of the US public are unaware of, or outright reject, the scientific consensus on climate change.^[282] Some organizations promoting climate change denial have asserted that scientists are increasingly rejecting climate change, but this notion is contradicted by research showing that 97% of published papers endorse the scientific consensus, and that percentage is increasing with time.^[282]

Social psychologist Craig Foster compares climate change denialists to flat-earth believers and the reaction to the latter by the scientific community. Foster states, "the potential and kinetic energy devoted to counter the flat-earth movement is wasteful and misguided... I don't understand why anybody would worry about the flat-earth gnat while facing the climate change mammoth... Climate change denial does not require belief. It only requires neglect."^[283]

In 2016, Aaron McCright argued that anti-environmentalism—and climate change denial specifically—has expanded to a point in the US where it has now become "a central tenet of the current conservative and Republican identity."^[284]

On the other hand, global oil companies have begun to acknowledge the existence of climate change and its risks.^[285] Still top oil firms are spending millions lobbying to delay, weaken or block policies to tackle climate change.^[286]

Manufactured climate change denial is also influencing how scientific knowledge is communicated to the public. According to climate scientist Michael E. Mann, "...universities and scientific societies and organizations, publishers, etc.—are too often risk averse when it comes to defending and communicating science that is perceived as threatening by powerful interests..."^{[287][288]}

See also

- Climate change
- Tobacco industry playbook
- Agnotology
- Anti-environmentalism
- Carbon bubble
- Effects of global warming
- Environmental skepticism
- Information Council on the Environment
- International Conference on Climate Change
- Climate alarmist
- Motivated reasoning
- Renewable energy commercialization: Non-technical barriers to acceptance
- Simmelweis reflex
- Films:
 - Climate Change Denial Disorder, satirical parody film about a fictional disease
 - Before the Flood, documenting climate change denial and lobbying processes

References

1. Cook, John; Oreskes, Naomi; Doran, Peter T.; Anderegg, William R. L.; et al. (2016). "Consensus on consensus: a synthesis of consensus estimates on human-caused global warming" (<https://doi.org/10.1088%2F1748-9326%2F11%2F4%2F048002>). Environmental Research Letters. 11 (4): 048002. Bibcode:2016ERL....11d8002C (<https://ui.adsabs.harvard.edu/abs/2016ERL....11d8002C>). doi:10.1088/1748-9326/11/4/048002 (<https://doi.org/10.1088%2F1748-9326%2F11%2F4%2F048002>).

2. Powell, James (20 November 2019). "Scientists Reach 100% Consensus on Anthropogenic Global Warming" (<https://journals.sagepub.com/doi/abs/10.1177/0270467619886266?journalCode=bstab>). Bulletin of Science, Technology & Society. 37 (4): 183–184. doi:10.1177/0270467619886266 (<https://doi.org/10.1177%2F0270467619886266>). S2CID 213454806 (<https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:213454806>). Retrieved 15 November 2020.
3. Brown, Alex (27 August 2013). "Tom Coburn Labels Himself a "Global Warming Denier" " (<https://www.theatlantic.com/politics/archive/2013/08/tom-coburn-labels-himself-a-global-warming-denier/442146/>). The Atlantic. Retrieved 23 October 2017. citing TulsaWorld (https://web.archive.org/web/20130827150105/http://www.tulsaworld.com/blogs/post.aspx/Coburn_on_revising_the_Constitution_global_warming/30-21971) [archived article]
4. National Center for Science Education 2010: "The first pillar of climate change denial—that climate change is bad science—attacks various aspects of the scientific consensus about climate change ... there are climate change deniers:
 - who deny that significant climate change is occurring
 - who ... deny that human activity is significantly responsible
 - who ... deny the scientific evidence about its significant effects on the world and our society ...
 - who ... deny that humans can take significant actions to reduce or mitigate its impact.
 Of these varieties of climate change denial, the most visible are the first and the second."
5. "Why Is It Called Denial?" (<http://ncse.com/climate/denial/why-is-it-called-denial>). National Center for Science Education. 15 January 2016. Retrieved 21 January 2016.
6. Powell 2012, pp. 170–173: "Anatomy of Denial—Global warming deniers.... throw up a succession of claims, and fall back from one line of defense to the next as scientists refute each one in turn. Then they start over:
 - 'The earth is not warming.'
 - 'All right, it is warming but the Sun is the cause.'
 - 'Well then, humans are the cause, but it doesn't matter, because it warming will do no harm. More carbon dioxide will actually be beneficial. More crops will grow.'
 - 'Admittedly, global warming could turn out to be harmful, but we can do nothing about it.'
 - 'Sure, we could do something about global warming, but the cost would be too great. We have more pressing problems here and now, like AIDS and poverty.'
 - 'We might be able to afford to do something to address global warming some-day, but we need to wait for sound science, new technologies, and geoengineering.'
 - 'The earth is not warming. Global warming ended in 1998; it was never a crisis.'
7. Matthews, Paul (3 April 2015). "Why Are People Skeptical about Climate Change? Some Insights from Blog Comments". Environmental Communication. 9 (2): 153–168. doi:10.1080/17524032.2014.999694 (<https://doi.org/10.1080%2F17524032.2014.999694>). ISSN 1752-4032 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/1752-4032>). S2CID 143727181 (<https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:143727181>).
8. Björnberg, Karin Edvardsson; et al. (2017). "Climate and environmental science denial: A review of the scientific literature published in 1990-2015" (<https://doi.org/10.1016%2Fj.jclepro.2017.08.066>). Journal of Cleaner Production. 167: 229–241. doi:10.1016/j.jclepro.2017.08.066 (<https://doi.org/10.1016%2Fj.jclepro.2017.08.066>).
9. Washington 2013, p. 2: "Many climate change deniers call themselves climate 'skeptics'...However, refusing to accept the overwhelming 'preponderance of evidence' is not skepticism, it is denial and should be called by its true name... The use of the term 'climate skeptic' is a distortion of reality... Skepticism is healthy in both science and society; denial is not."

10. O'Neill, Saffron J.; sjoneill@unimelb.edu.au; Boykoff, Max (28 September 2010). "Climate denier, skeptic, or contrarian?" (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC2947866>). Proceedings of the National Academy of Sciences. 107 (39): E151. Bibcode:2010PNAS..107E.151O (<https://ui.adsabs.harvard.edu/abs/2010PNAS..107E.151O>). doi:10.1073/pnas.1010507107 (<https://doi.org/10.1073%2Fpnas.1010507107>). ISSN 0027-8424 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/0027-8424>). PMC 2947866 (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC2947866>). PMID 20807754 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/20807754>). "Using the language of denialism brings a moralistic tone into the climate change debate that we would do well to avoid. Further, labeling views as denialist has the potential to inappropriately link such views with Holocaust denial... However, skepticism forms an integral part of the scientific method and thus the term is frequently misapplied in such phrases as "climate change skeptic"."
11. National Center for Science Education 2012: "Climate change denial is most conspicuous when it is explicit, as it is in controversies over climate education. The idea of implicit (or "implicatory") denial, however, is increasingly discussed among those who study the controversies over climate change. Implicit denial occurs when people who accept the scientific community's consensus on the answers to the central questions of climate change on the intellectual level fail to come to terms with it or to translate their acceptance into action. Such people are in denial, so to speak, about climate change."
12. Dunlap 2013, pp. 691–698: "There is debate over which term is most appropriate... Those involved in challenging climate science label themselves "skeptics"... Yet skepticism is... a common characteristic of scientists, making it inappropriate to allow those who deny AGW to don the mantle of skeptics... It seems best to think of skepticism-denial as a continuum, with some individuals (and interest groups) holding a skeptical view of AGW... and others in complete denial"
13. Timmer 2014
14. Ove Hansson, Sven (2017). "Science denial as a form of pseudoscience". Studies in History and Philosophy of Science. 63: 39–47. doi:10.1016/j.shpsa.2017.05.002 (<https://doi.org/10.1016%2Fj.shpsa.2017.05.002>). PMID 28629651 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/28629651>).
15. Jacques, Dunlap & Freeman 2008, p. 351: "Conservative think tanks... and their backers launched a full-scale counter-movement... We suggest that this counter-movement has been central to the reversal of US support for environmental protection, both domestically and internationally. Its major tactic has been disputing the seriousness of environmental problems and undermining environmental science by promoting what we term 'environmental scepticism.'"
16. Vaidyanathan 2014.
17. Dunlap 2013, pp. 691–698: "From the outset, there has been an organized "disinformation" campaign... to "manufacture uncertainty" over AGW ... especially by attacking climate science and scientists ... waged by a loose coalition of industrial (especially fossil fuels) interests and conservative foundations and think tanks ... often assisted by a small number of 'contrarian scientists. ... greatly aided by conservative media and politicians ... and more recently by a bevy of skeptical bloggers. This 'denial machine' has played a crucial role in generating skepticism toward AGW among laypeople and policymakers "
18. Begley 2007: "ICE and the Global Climate Coalition lobbied hard against a global treaty to curb greenhouse gases, and were joined by a central cog in the denial machine: the George C. Marshall Institute, a conservative think tank. the denial machine—think tanks linking up with like-minded, contrarian researchers"
19. Dunlap 2013: "Even though climate science has now firmly established that global warming is occurring, that human activities contribute to this warming... a significant portion of the American public remains ambivalent or unconcerned, and many policymakers (especially in the United States) deny the necessity of taking steps to reduce carbon emissions... From the outset, there has been an organized "disinformation" campaign... to generate skepticism and denial concerning AGW."
20. Painter & Ashe 2012: "Despite a high degree of consensus amongst publishing climate researchers that global warming is occurring and that it is anthropogenic, this discourse, promoted largely by non-scientists, has had a significant impact on public perceptions of the issue, fostering the impression that elite opinion is divided as to the nature and extent of the threat."

21. Hoofnagle, Mark (30 April 2007). "Hello Science blogs (Welcome to Denialism blog)" (<http://scienceblogs.com/denialism/about/>). "Denialism is the employment of rhetorical tactics to give the appearance of argument or legitimate debate, when in actuality there is none. These false arguments are used when one has few or no facts to support one's viewpoint against a scientific consensus or against overwhelming evidence to the contrary. They are effective in distracting from actual useful debate using emotionally appealing, but ultimately empty and illogical assertions. Examples of common topics in which denialists employ their tactics include: Creationism/Intelligent Design, Global Warming denialism ..." and "5 general tactics are used by denialists to sow confusion. They are conspiracy, selectivity (cherry-picking), fake experts, impossible expectations (also known as moving goalposts), and general fallacies of logic."
22. Diethelm & McKee 2009
23. Klein, Naomi (9 November 2011). "Capitalism vs. the Climate" (<http://www.thenation.com/print/article/164497/capitalism-vs-climate>). The Nation. Retrieved 2 January 2012.
24. Dunlap 2013: "The campaign has been waged by a loose coalition of industrial (especially fossil fuels) interests and conservative foundations and think tanks... These actors are greatly aided by conservative media and politicians, and more recently by a bevy of skeptical bloggers."
25. David Michaels (2008) Doubt is Their Product: How Industry's Assault on Science Threatens Your Health.
26. Hoggan, James; Littlemore, Richard (2009). Climate Cover-Up: The Crusade to Deny Global Warming (<https://books.google.com/books?id=tQYjQzOkYK0C&q=Climate+Cover-Up:+The+Crusade+to+Deny+Global+Warming>). Vancouver: Greystone Books. ISBN 978-1-55365-485-8. Retrieved 19 March 2010. See, e.g., p31 ff, describing industry-based advocacy strategies in the context of climate change denial, and p73 ff, describing involvement of free-market think tanks in climate-change denial.
27. Xifra, Jordi (2016). "Climate Change Deniers and Advocacy: A Situational Theory of Publics Approach". American Behavioral Scientist. 60 (3): 276–287. doi:10.1177/0002764215613403 (<https://doi.org/10.1177%2F0002764215613403>). hdl:10230/32970 (<https://hdl.handle.net/10230%2F32970>). S2CID 58914584 (<https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:58914584>).
28. Egan, Timothy (5 November 2015). "Exxon Mobil and the G.O.P.: Fossil Fools" (<https://www.nytimes.com/2015/11/06/opinion/fossil-fools.html>). The New York Times. Retrieved 9 November 2015.
29. Goldenberg, Suzanne (8 July 2015). "Exxon knew of climate change in 1981, email says – but it funded deniers for 27 more years" (<https://www.theguardian.com/environment/2015/jul/08/exxon-climate-change-1981-climate-denier-funding>). The Guardian. Retrieved 9 November 2015.
30. 'Shell knew': oil giant's 1991 film warned of climate change danger (<https://www.theguardian.com/environment/2017/feb/28/shell-knew-oil-giants-1991-film-warned-climate-change-danger>), The Guardian
31. Painter & Ashe 2012: "'Climate skepticism' and 'climate denial' are readily used concepts, referring to a discourse that has become important in public debate since climate change was first put firmly on the policy agenda in 1988. This discourse challenges the views of mainstream climate scientists and environmental policy advocates, contending that parts, or all, of the scientific treatment and political interpretation of climate change are unreliable."
32. National Center for Science Education 2012: "There is debate... about how to refer to the positions that reject, and to the people who doubt or deny, the scientific community's consensus on... climate change. Many such people prefer to call themselves skeptics and describe their position as climate change skepticism. Their opponents, however, often prefer to call such people climate change deniers and to describe their position as climate change denial... "Denial" is the term preferred even by many deniers."

33. Nerlich 2010, pp. 419, 437: "Climate scepticism in the sense of climate denialism or contrarianism is not a new phenomenon, but it has recently been very much in the media spotlight. Such disagreements are not new but the emails provided climate sceptics, in the sense of deniers or contrarians, with a golden opportunity to mount a sustained effort aimed at demonstrating the legitimacy of their views. This allowed them to question climate science and climate policies based on it and to promote political inaction and inertia. footnote 1. I shall use "climate sceptics" here in the sense of "climate deniers", although there are obvious differences between scepticism and denial (see Shermer, 2010; Kemp, et al., 2010). However, "climate sceptic" and "climate scepticism" were commonly used during the "climategate" debate as meaning "climate denier"."
34. Rennie 2009: "Within the community of scientists and others concerned about anthropogenic climate change, those whom Inhofe calls skeptics are more commonly termed contrarians, naysayers and denialists."
35. Brown 1996, pp. 9, 11 "Indeed, the 'skeptical' scientists¹⁴ were perceived to be all the more credible precisely because their views were contrary to the consensus of peer-reviewed science.
14. All scientists are skeptics because the scientific process demands continuing questioning. In this report, however, the scientists we refer to as 'skeptics' are those who have taken a highly visible public role in criticizing the scientific consensus on ozone depletion and climate change through publications and statements addressed more to the media and the public than to the scientific community."
36. Gelbspan 1998, pp. 69–70, 246 At 16 November 1995 United States House Science Subcommittee on Energy hearing, Pat Michaels testified of "a small minority" opposing the IPCC assessment, and said "that the so-called skeptics were right".
37. Antilla 2005, p. footnote 5
38. Gelbspan 1995
39. Painter & Ashe 2012: "The term 'climate scepticism' emerged in around 1995, the year journalist Ross Gelbspan authored perhaps the first book focusing directly on what would retrospectively be understood as climate scepticism."
40. Gelbspan 1998 p. 3 "But some individuals do not want the public to know about the immediacy and extent of the climate threat. They have been waging a persistent campaign of denial and suppression that has been lamentably effective."
pp. 33–34 "The campaign to keep the climate change off the public agenda involves more than the undisclosed funding of these 'greenhouse skeptics.' In their efforts to challenge the consensus scientific view....."
p. 35 "If the climate skeptics have succeeded in confusing the general public, their influence on decision makers has been, if anything, even more effective"
p. 173 "pervasive denial of global warming"
41. CBC News: the fifth estate 2007: "The Denial Machine investigates the roots of the campaign to negate the science and the threat of global warming. It tracks the activities of a group of scientists, some of whom previously consulted for Big Tobacco, and who are now receiving donations from major coal and oil companies. ... The documentary shows how fossil fuel corporations have kept the global warming debate alive long after most scientists believed that global warming was real and had potentially catastrophic consequences. ... The Denial Machine also explores how the arguments supported by oil companies were adopted by policy makers in both Canada and the U.S. and helped form government policy."
42. Orlóci 2008, pp. 86, 97: "The ideological justification for this came from the sceptics (e.g., Lomborg 2001a,b) and from the industrial 'denial machine'. ... CBC Television Fifth Estate, 15 November 2006, The Climate Denial Machine, Canada.

43. Begley 2007: "If you think those who have long challenged the mainstream scientific findings about global warming recognize that the game is over, think again. ... outside Hollywood, Manhattan and other habitats of the chattering classes, the denial machine is running at full throttle—and continuing to shape both government policy and public opinion. Since the late 1980s, this well-coordinated, well-funded campaign by contrarian scientists, free-market think tanks and industry has created a paralyzing fog of doubt around climate change. Through advertisements, op-eds, lobbying and media attention, greenhouse doubters (they hate being called deniers) argued first that the world is not warming; measurements indicating otherwise are flawed, they said. Then they claimed that any warming is natural, not caused by human activities. Now they contend that the looming warming will be minuscule and harmless. 'They patterned what they did after the tobacco industry,' says former senator Tim Wirth"
44. Norgaard, Kari (2011). Living in Denial: Climate Change, Emotions, and Everyday Life. Cambridge, Mass: MIT Press. pp. 1–4. ISBN 978-0-262-01544-8.
45. Mann, Michael E. (2013). The Hockey Stick and the Climate Wars: Dispatches from the Front Lines. Columbia University Press. ISBN 978-0-231-52638-8. "Skepticism plays an essential role in the progress of science... Yet...in the context of the climate change denial movement... the term skeptic has often been co-opted to describe those who simply deny, rather than appraise critically."
46. Jenkins 2015, p. 229: "many who deny the consensus on climate change are not really skeptics but rather contrarians who practice "a kind of one-sided skepticism that entails simply rejecting evidence that challenges one's preconceptions" (Mann 2012:26)"
47. National Center for Science Education 2012: "Recognizing that no terminological choice is entirely unproblematic, NCSE — in common with a number of scholarly and journalistic observers of the social controversies surrounding climate change — opts to use the terms "climate change deniers" and "climate change denial. The terms are intended descriptively, not in any pejorative sense, and are used for the sake of brevity and consistency with a well-established usage in the scholarly and journalistic literature."
48. Weart 2015 footnote 136a (http://www.aip.org/history/climate/public2.htm#N_136a_): "I do not mean to use the term 'denier' pejoratively—it has been accepted by some of the group as a self-description — but simply to designate those who deny any likelihood of future danger from anthropogenic global warming."
49. Anderegg, William R. L.; anderegg@stanford.edu; Prall, James W.; Harold, Jacob (19 July 2010). "Reply to O'Neill and Boykoff: Objective classification of climate experts" (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC2947900>). Proceedings of the National Academy of Sciences. 107 (39): E152. Bibcode:2010PNAS..107E.152A (<https://ui.adsabs.harvard.edu/abs/2010PNAS..107E.152A>). doi:10.1073/pnas.1010824107 (<https://doi.org/10.1073%2Fpnas.1010824107>). ISSN 0027-8424 (<http://www.worldcat.org/issn/0027-8424>). PMC 2947900 (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC2947900>).
50. Gillis, Justin (12 February 2015). "Verbal Warming: Labels in the Climate Debate" (<https://www.nytimes.com/2015/02/17/science/earth/in-climate-change-whats-in-a-name.html>). The New York Times. Retrieved 30 June 2015.
51. Timmer 2014: "some of the people who deserve that label are offended by it, thinking it somehow lumps them in with Holocaust deniers. But that in its own way is a form of denial; the word came into use before the Holocaust, and... denialism has been used as a label for people who refuse to accept the evidence for all sorts of things: HIV causing AIDS, vaccines being safe, etc."
52. Boslough 2014
53. "NY Times Public Editor: We're "Moving In A Good Direction" On Properly Describing Climate Deniers" (<http://mediamatters.org/blog/2015/06/22/ny-times-public-editor-were-moving-in-a-good-di/204089>). Media Matters for America. 22 June 2015. Retrieved 2 July 2015.
54. "AP: Deniers Are Not Skeptics!" (https://act.forecastthefacts.org/sign/ap_deniers_skeptics/). Oil Change U.S. Washington, D.C. Retrieved 22 May 2019.

55. Colford, Paul (22 September 2015). "An addition to AP Stylebook entry on global warming" (<https://blog.ap.org/announcements/an-addition-to-ap-stylebook-entry-on-global-warming>). Associated Press. Retrieved 7 October 2019.
56. Schlanger, Zoë (24 September 2015). "The real skeptics behind the AP decision to put an end to the term 'climate skeptics'" (<https://www.newsweek.com/associated-press-climate-skeptic-climate-denier-stylebook-center-skeptical-376197>). Newsweek. Retrieved 22 May 2019.
57. Carrington, Damian (17 May 2019). "Why the Guardian is changing the language it uses about the environment" (<https://www.theguardian.com/environment/2019/may/17/why-the-guardian-is-changing-the-language-it-uses-about-the-environment>). The Guardian. Retrieved 22 May 2019.
58. Conway & Oreskes 2010, p. 170: "The doubts and confusion of the American people are particularly peculiar when put into historical perspective"
59. Powell 2012, pp. 36–39
60. Weart 2015a: "From the late 1940s into the 1960s, many of the papers cited in these essays carried a thought-provoking footnote: "This work was supported by the Office of Naval Research." "
61. Weart 2007
62. Weart 2015a: quote p. viii in the Foreword by Climate Research Board chair Verner E. Suomi
63. Charney, Jule Gregory (23 July 1979). Carbon Dioxide and Climate: A Scientific Assessment, Report of an Ad Hoc Study Group on Carbon Dioxide and Climate (<https://www.nap.edu/catalog/12181/carbon-dioxide-and-climate-a-scientific-assessment>). Woods Hole, Massachusetts: National Research Council. doi:10.17226/12181 (<https://doi.org/10.17226/12181>). ISBN 978-0-309-11910-8. Retrieved 22 September 2017.
64. "US firms knew about global warming in 1968 – what about Australia?" (<https://theconversation.com/us-firms-knew-about-global-warming-in-1968-what-about-australia-57878>). The Conversation. 2016.
65. Young, Élan (22 November 2019). "Coal Knew, Too, A Newly Unearthed Journal from 1966 Shows the Coal Industry, Like the Oil Industry, Was Long Aware of the Threat of Climate Change" (https://www.huffpost.com/entry/coal-industry-climate-change_n_5dd6bbebe4b0e29d7280984f). Huffington Post.
66. Weart 2015a: Global Warming Becomes a Political Issue (1980–1983) (<https://www.aip.org/history/climate/Govt.htm#S7>); "In 1981, Ronald Reagan took the presidency with an administration that openly scorned their concerns. He brought with him a backlash that had been building against the environmental movement. Many conservatives denied nearly every environmental worry, global warming included. They lumped all such concerns together as the rants of business-hating liberals, a Trojan Horse for government regulation." For details, see Money for Keeling: Monitoring CO2 (https://www.aip.org/history/climate/Kfunds.htm#M_29_)
67. Weart, Spencer R. (30 June 2009). The Discovery of Global Warming (<https://books.google.com/books?id=qX8yCpETS-IC&pg=PA141>). Harvard University Press. ISBN 978-0-674-04497-5.
68. Weart 2015: Breaking into Politics (1980–1988) (https://www.aip.org/history/climate/public2.htm#L_0400), "Sherwood Idso, who published arguments that greenhouse gas emissions would not warm the Earth or bring any other harm to the climate. Better still, by fertilizing crops, the increase of CO2 would bring tremendous benefits."
69. Hansen, James (1988). "Statement of Dr. James Hansen, director, NASA Goddard Institute for space studies" (https://web.archive.org/web/20110822055700/http://climatechange.procon.org/sourcefiles/1988_Hansen_Senate_Testimony.pdf) (PDF). Climate Change ProCon.org. Archived from the original (http://climatechange.procon.org/sourcefiles/1988_Hansen_Senate_Testimony.pdf) (PDF) on 22 August 2011. Retrieved 30 November 2015.

70. Weart 2015 The Summer of 1988 (<https://www.aip.org/history/climate/public2.htm#S1988>): "A new breed of interdisciplinary studies was showing that even a few degrees of warming might have harsh consequences, both for fragile natural ecosystems and for certain agricultural systems and other human endeavours The timing was right, and the media leaped on the story. Hansen's statements, especially that severe warming was likely within the next 50 years, got on the front pages of newspapers and were featured in television news and radio talk shows.... The story grew as the summer of 1988 wore on. Reporters descended unexpectedly upon an international conference of scientists held in Toronto at the end of June. Their stories prominently reported how the world's leading climate scientists declared that atmospheric changes were already causing harm, and might cause much more; the scientists called for vigorous government action to restrict greenhouse gases."
71. Weart 2015: "Environmentalist organizations continued... lobbying and advertising efforts to argue for restrictions on emissions. The environmentalists were opposed and greatly outspent, by industries that produced or relied on fossil fuels. Industry groups not only mounted a sustained and professional public relations effort but also channeled considerable sums of money to individual scientists and small conservative organizations and publications that denied any need to act against global warming."
72. Begley 2007: "Through advertisements, op-eds, lobbying and media attention, greenhouse doubters (they hate being called deniers) argued first that the world is not warming... Then they claimed that any warming is natural... Now they contend that the looming warming will be minuscule and harmless. 'They patterned what they did after the tobacco industry,' says former senator Tim Wirth... 'Both figured, sow enough doubt, call the science uncertain and in dispute. That's had a huge impact on both the public and Congress.'"
73. Weart 2015: "The technical criticism most widely noted in the press came in several brief "reports"—not scientific papers in the usual sense—published between 1989 and 1992 by the conservative George C. Marshall Institute. The anonymously authored pamphlets ... [claimed] that proposed government regulation would be "extraordinarily costly to the U.S. economy," they insisted it would be unwise to act on the basis of the existing global warming theories ... In 1989 some of the biggest corporations in the petroleum, automotive, and other industries created a Global Climate Coalition, whose mission was to disparage every call for action against global warming."
74. Conway & Oreskes 2010: "Millions of pages of documents released during tobacco litigation ... show the crucial role that scientists played in sowing doubt about the links between smoking and health risks. These documents ... also show that the same strategy was applied not only to global warming, but to a laundry list of environmental and health concerns, including asbestos, secondhand smoke, acid rain, and the ozone hole."
75. Weart 2015: "Scientists noticed something that the public largely overlooked: the most outspoken scientific critiques of global warming predictions did not appear in the standard peer-reviewed scientific publications. The critiques tended to appear in venues funded by industrial groups, or in conservative media like the Wall Street Journal."
76. Conway & Oreskes 2010
77. Weart 2011, p. 46: "Scientists continually test their beliefs, seeking out all possible contrary arguments and evidence, and finally publish their findings in peer-reviewed journals, where further attempts at refutation are encouraged. But the small group of scientists who opposed the consensus on warming proceeded in the manner of lawyers, considering nothing that would not bolster their case, and publishing mostly in pamphlets, books, and newspapers supported by conservative interests. At some point they were no longer skeptics—people who would try to see every side of a case—but deniers, that is, people whose only interest was in casting doubt upon what other scientists agreed was true."
78. Weart 2011, pp. 47: "As the deniers found ever less scientific ground to stand on, they turned to political arguments. Some of these policy arguments were straightforward, raising serious questions about the efficacy and expense of proposed carbon taxes and emission-regulation schemes. But leading deniers also resorted to ad hominem tactics... On each side, some people were coming to believe that they faced a dishonest conspiracy, driven by ideological bias and naked self-interest"

79. Jacques, Dunlap & Freeman 2008, pp. 349–385: "Environmental skepticism encompasses several themes, but denial of the authenticity of environmental problems, particularly problems such as biodiversity loss or climate change that threaten ecological sustainability, is its defining feature"
80. (Hamilton 2011, pp. 104–106): "the tactics, personnel, and organisations mobilised to serve the interests of the tobacco lobby in the 1980s were seamlessly transferred to serve the interests of the fossil-fuel lobby in the 1990s. Frederick Seitz ... the task of the climate sceptics in the think tanks and PR companies hired by fossil fuel companies was to engage in 'consciousness lowering activities', to 'de-problematise' global warming by describing it as a form of politically driven panicmongering." For the tobacco company memo, see "Original "Doubt is our product..." memo" (<http://legacy.library.ucsf.edu/tid/wjh13f00>). University of California, San Francisco. 21 August 1969. Retrieved 19 March 2010.
81. Conway & Oreskes 2010, p. 105: "As recently as 2007, the George Marshall Institute continued to insist that the damages associated with acid rain were always "largely hypothetical," and that "further scientific investigation revealed that most of them were not in fact occurring." The Institute cited no studies to support this extraordinary claim."
82. Weart 2015: "Public support for environmental concerns, in general, seems to have waned after 1988."
83. Weart 2015: "A study of American media found that in 1987 most items that mentioned the greenhouse effect had been feature stories about the science, whereas in 1988 the majority of the stories addressed the politics of the controversy. It was not that the number of science stories declined, but rather that as media coverage doubled and redoubled, the additional stories moved into social and political areas ... Before 1988, the journalists had drawn chiefly on scientists for their information, but afterward, they relied chiefly on sources who were identified with political positions or special interest groups."
84. Wald, Matthew L. (8 July 1991). "Pro-Coal Ad Campaign Disputes Warming Idea" (<https://www.nytimes.com/1991/07/08/business/pro-coal-ad-campaign-disputes-warming-idea.html>). The New York Times. Retrieved 1 March 2013.
85. Begley 2007: "Individual companies and industry associations—representing petroleum, steel, autos, and utilities, for instance—formed lobbying groups ... [the Information Council on the Environment's] game plan called for enlisting greenhouse doubters to "reposition global warming as theory rather than fact," and to sow doubt about climate research just as cigarette makers had about smoking research ... The coal industry's Western Fuels Association paid Michaels to produce a newsletter called World Climate Report, which has regularly trashed mainstream climate science."
86. Cox, Robert (2009). Environmental Communication and the Public Sphere. Sage. pp. 311–312. "to recruit a cadre of scientists who share the industry's views of climate science and to train them in public relations so they can help convince journalists, politicians and the public that the risk of global warming is too uncertain to justify controls on greenhouse gases"
87. Cushman, John, "Industrial Group Plans to Battle Climate Treaty" (<https://www.nytimes.com/1998/04/26/us/industrial-group-plans-to-battle-climate-treaty.html?scp=2&sq=climate%20science%20and%20to%20train%20them%20&st=cse&pagewanted=print>), The New York Times, 25 April 1998. Retrieved 10 March 2010.
88. Gelbspan 1998, pp. 3, 35, 46, 197.
89. Milburn, Michael A.; Conrad, Sheree D. (January 1998). The Politics of Denial (<https://books.google.com/books?id=ntVE1n3g51wC&pg=PA216>). MIT Press. pp. 216–. ISBN 978-0-262-63184-6. "Here again, as in the case of ozone depletion, economic and psychological forces are operating to produce a level of denial that threatens future generations."
90. Painter & Ashe 2012: "Academics took note of the discourse when they began to analyse media representations of climate change knowledge and its effect on public perceptions and policy-making, but in the 1990s, they did not yet focus on it as a coherent and defined phenomenon. This changed in the 2000s when McCright and Dunlap played an important role in deepening the concept of climate skepticism."

91. Painter & Ashe 2012: "McCright and Dunlap played an important role in deepening the concept of climate skepticism. Examining what they termed a 'conservative countermovement' to undermine climate change policy...McCright and Dunlap went beyond the study of media representations of climate change knowledge to give a coherent picture of the movement behind climate skepticism in the US."
92. Jacques, Dunlap & Freeman 2008, pp. 349–385
93. BloombergBusiness (2015). "Unearthing America's Deep Network of Climate Change Deniers" (<http://www.bloomberg.com/news/articles/2015-11-30/unearthing-america-s-deep-network-of-climate-change-deniers>).
94. Farrell, Justin (2015). "Network structure and influence of the climate change counter-movement". Nature Climate Change. 6 (4): 370–374. Bibcode:2016NatCC...6..370F (<https://ui.adsabs.harvard.edu/abs/2016NatCC...6..370F>). doi:10.1038/nclimate2875 (<https://doi.org/10.1038%2Fncclimate2875>). S2CID 18207833 (<https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:18207833>).
95. Gelbspan, Ross (22 July 2004). "An excerpt from Boiling Point by Ross Gelbspan" (<http://grist.org/article/gelbspan-boiling/>). Grist. Retrieved 1 June 2015.
96. Wayne A. White (18 October 2012). Biosequestration and Ecological Diversity: Mitigating and Adapting to Climate Change and Environmental Degradation (<https://books.google.com/books?id=uif0DF0rFwMC&pg=PA206>). CRC Press. p. 206. ISBN 978-1-4398-5363-4. "Climate change denial and discrediting climate science have become pivotal to the antiregulatory cause of neoliberals."
97. Antilla 2005: "At the centre of this climate backlash is a group of dissident scientists. The number of these climate skeptics is greater in the US than in any other country. Although the peer-reviewed scientific literature agrees with the IPCC, within the media—wherefrom the majority of adults in the US are informed about science—claims that are dismissive of anthropogenic climate change are prominently featured."
98. Jenkins 2015, p. 243: "the community of climate change contrarians also includes a host of amateurs, from talk radio hosts to newspaper columnists to bloggers. In particular, the tremendous growth of the Internet has given sustenance to the contrarian movement"
99. Nuccitelli, Dana (2015). "The Paris agreement signals that deniers have lost the climate wars" (<http://www.theguardian.com/environment/climate-consensus-97-per-cent/2015/dec/14/the-paris-agreement-signals-that-deniers-have-lost-the-climate-wars>). The Guardian.
00. Davenport, Coral (12 December 2015). "Nations Approve Landmark Climate Accord in Paris" (https://www.nytimes.com/2015/12/13/world/europe/climate-change-accord-paris.html?_r=0). The New York Times.
01. Watts, Jonathan (15 November 2018). "Brazil's new foreign minister believes climate change is a Marxist plot" (<https://www.theguardian.com/world/2018/nov/15/brazil-foreign-minister-ernesto-araujo-climate-change-marxist-plot>). The Guardian. ISSN 0261-3077 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/0261-3077>). Retrieved 25 January 2019.
02. Escobar, Herton (22 January 2019). "Brazil's new president has scientists worried. Here's why" (<http://www.sciencemag.org/news/2019/01/brazil-s-new-president-has-scientists-worried-here-s-why>). Science / AAAS. Retrieved 25 January 2019.
03. Readfearn, Graham (5 March 2015). "Doubt over climate science is a product with an industry behind it" (<https://www.theguardian.com/environment/planet-oz/2015/mar/05/doubt-over-climate-science-is-a-product-with-an-industry-behind-it>). The Guardian.
04. Washington, Haydn; Cook, John (2011). Climate Change Denial: Heads in the Sand (<https://books.google.com/books?id=qbVclc8w6w4C&q=climate+change+denial+industry&pg=PA108>). Earthscan. p. 108. ISBN 978-1-84971-335-1.
05. The New York Times, 12 December 2015, "Nations Approve Landmark Climate Accord in Paris" (http://www.nytimes.com/2015/12/13/world/europe/climate-change-accord-paris.html?_r=0)

06. "The Pentagon & Climate Change: How Deniers Put National Security at Risk" (<https://www.rollingstone.com/politics/news/the-pentagon-climate-change-how-climate-deniers-put-national-security-at-risk-20150212>). Rolling Stone. 2015.
07. BloombergBusiness (2015). "Unearthing America's Deep Network of Climate Change Deniers" (<https://www.bloomberg.com/news/articles/2015-11-30/unearthing-america-s-deep-network-of-climate-change-deniers>).
08. Justin Farrell (2015). "Network structure and influence of the climate change counter-movement". Nature Climate Change. 6 (4): 370–374. Bibcode:2016NatCC...6..370F (<https://ui.adsabs.harvard.edu/abs/2016NatCC...6..370F>). doi:10.1038/nclimate2875 (<https://doi.org/10.1038%2Fclimate2875>). S2CID 18207833 (<https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:18207833>).
09. Pilkington, Ed (14 November 2013). "Facebook and Microsoft help fund rightwing lobby network, report finds" (<https://www.theguardian.com/world/2013/nov/14/facebook-microsoft-rightwing-lobby-network-spn>). The Guardian. Retrieved 17 November 2013.
10. "After Brexit, Clexit" (<http://clexit.net/wp-content/uploads/2016/07/clexit.pdf>) (PDF). Clexit. 1 August 2016. Retrieved 5 September 2018.
11. "Clexit now comprises 190 members from 26 countries" (<http://clexit.net/wp-content/uploads/2016/07/clexit-members.pdf>) (PDF). Clexit. 2016. Retrieved 5 September 2018.
12. Nuccitelli, Dana (8 August 2016). "Rejection of experts spreads from Brexit to climate change with 'Clexit' - Dana Nuccitelli" (<https://www.theguardian.com/environment/climate-consensus-97-per-cent/2016/aug/08/rejection-of-experts-spreads-from-brexit-to-climate-change-with-clexit>). the Guardian. Retrieved 15 April 2018.
13. "Climate Science Special Report: Fourth National Climate Assessment, Volume I - Chapter 3: Detection and Attribution of Climate Change" (<https://science2017.globalchange.gov/chapter/3/>). science2017.globalchange.gov. U.S. Global Change Research Program (USGCRP). 2017. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20190923190450/https://science2017.globalchange.gov/chapter/3/>) from the original on 23 September 2019. Adapted directly from Fig. 3.3.
14. Rennie 2009: "Claim 1: Anthropogenic CO2 can't be changing climate, because CO2 is only a trace gas in the atmosphere and the amount produced by humans is dwarfed by the amount from volcanoes and other natural sources. Water vapor is by far the most important greenhouse gas, so changes in CO2 are irrelevant."
15. Rennie 2009: " According to the U.S. Geological Survey, anthropogenic CO2 amounts to about 30 billion tons annually—more than 130 times as much as volcanoes produce."
16. Archer, David (6 April 2005). "Water vapour: feedback or forcing?" (<http://www.realclimate.org/index.php/archives/2005/04/water-vapour-feedback-or-forcing/>). RealClimate. Retrieved 5 September 2018.
17. Rennie 2009: "from Arrhenius on, climatologists have incorporated water vapor into their models. In fact, water vapor is why rising CO2 has such a big effect on climate... Nevertheless, within this dynamic, the CO2 remains the main driver... of the greenhouse effect."
18. Rennie 2009: "Claim 3: Global warming stopped a decade ago; Earth has been cooling since then."
19. Rennie 2009: "Claim 4: The sun or cosmic rays are much more likely to be the real causes of global warming. After all, Mars is warming up, too."
20. Rennie 2009: "But in defiance of the naysayers who want to chalk the recent warming up to natural cycles, there is insufficient evidence that enough extra solar energy is reaching our planet to account for the observed rise in global temperatures."
21. Waldman, Scott (17 May 2018). "Republican lawmaker: Rocks tumbling into ocean causing sea level rise" (<http://www.sciencemag.org/news/2018/05/republican-lawmaker-rocks-tumbling-ocean-causing-sea-level-rise>). Science. Retrieved 17 May 2018.
22. Rennie 2009: "Claim 7: Technological fixes, such as inventing energy sources that don't produce CO2 or geoengineering the climate, would be more affordable, prudent ways to address climate change than reducing our carbon footprint."

23. Rennie 2009: "Claim 5: Climatologists conspire to hide the truth about global warming by locking away their data. Their so-called "consensus" on global warming is scientifically irrelevant because science isn't settled by popularity.... Claim 6: Climatologists have a vested interest in raising the alarm because it brings them money and prestige."
24. White, Rob (2012). Climate Change from a Criminological Perspective (<https://books.google.com/books?id=NgzII7LvUVIC&pg=PA48>). Springer Science & Business Media. p. 49. ISBN 978-1-4614-3640-9. "many Americans, including many American politicians and decision-makers, are increasingly viewing climate change as a "left-wing plot"—part of the "one-world socialist agenda" or a "conspiracy to impose world government and a sweeping redistribution of wealth." Just as Republican Senator James Inhofe of Oklahoma proclaimed on the Senate floor that "[g]lobal warming is the greatest hoax ever perpetrated on the American people", many Americans believe that climate change is "a cynical hoax perpetrated by climate scientists... greedy for grants.""
25. Uscinski, Joseph E.; Douglas, Karen; Lewandowsky, Stephan (September 2017). "Climate Change Conspiracy Theories". Oxford Research Encyclopedia of Climate Science. 1. doi:10.1093/acrefore/9780190228620.013.328 (<https://doi.org/10.1093%2Facrefore%2F9780190228620.013.328>). ISBN 9780190228620.
26. Rennie 2009: "If there were a massive conspiracy to defraud the world on climate (and to what end?), surely the thousands of e-mails and other files stolen from the University of East Anglia's Climatic Research Unit and distributed by hackers on November 20 would bear proof of it. So far, however, none has emerged. Most of the few statements that critics claim as evidence of malfeasance seem to have more innocent explanations that make sense in the context of scientists conversing privately and informally."
27. Eight major investigations on the leaked emails include: House of Commons Science and Technology Committee (<http://www.deccanherald.com/content/61233/uk-climategate-inquiry-largely-clears.html>) (UK); Independent Climate Change Review (<https://www.nytimes.com/2010/07/08/science/earth/08climate.html>) (UK); International Science Assessment Panel ("Oxburgh panel") Reed, Sarah (14 April 2010). "Oxburgh Report Clears Controversial Climate Research Unit" (<http://www.sciencemag.org/news/2010/04/oxburgh-report-clears-controversial-climate-research-unit>). Science. Retrieved 22 September 2017. (UK); Pennsylvania State University (https://web.archive.org/web/20100704031346/http://views.washingtonpost.com/climate-change/post-carbon/2010/07/by_juliet_eilperin_a_pennsylvania.html) first panel Kintisch, Eli (3 February 2010). "Climate Scientist Mann Partially Absolved by Penn State" (<http://www.sciencemag.org/news/2010/02/climate-scientist-mann-partially-absolved-penn-state>). Science. Retrieved 22 September 2017. and second panel Kintisch, Eli (1 July 2010). "Michael Mann Exonerated as Penn State Inquiry Finds 'No Substance' To Allegations". Science. (US); United States Environmental Protection Agency (<https://www.bbc.co.uk/news/uk-engl-and-essex-10899538>) (US); Department of Commerce (<http://www.cbc.ca/news/technology/story/2011/02/24/science-climategate-noaa.html>) (US); National Science Foundation (<https://www.bloomberg.com/news/2011-08-22/climate-change-scientist-cleared-in-u-s-data-altering-inquiry.html>) (US)
28. Anderegg, William R L; Prall, James W.; Harold, Jacob; Schneider, Stephen H. (2010). "Expert credibility in climate change" (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC2901439>). Proc. Natl. Acad. Sci. U.S.A. 107 (27): 12107–9. Bibcode:2010PNAS..10712107A (<https://ui.adsabs.harvard.edu/abs/2010PNAS..10712107A>). doi:10.1073/pnas.1003187107 (<https://doi.org/10.1073%2Fpnas.1003187107>). PMC 2901439 (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC2901439>). PMID 20566872 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/20566872>). "(i) 97–98% of the climate researchers most actively publishing in the field support the tenets of ACC (Anthropogenic Climate Change) outlined by the Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change, and (ii) the relative climate expertise and scientific prominence of the researchers unconvinced of ACC are substantially below that of the convinced researchers."
29. Rennie 2009: "Climatologists are frequently frustrated by accusations that they are hiding their data or the details of their models because, as Gavin Schmidt points out, much of the relevant information is in public databases or otherwise accessible—a fact that contrarians conveniently ignore when insisting that scientists stonewall their requests."

30. Lewandowsky, Stephan; Oberauer, Klaus (2013). "NASA Faked the Moon Landing—Therefore, (Climate) Science Is a Hoax". Psychological Science. 24 (5): 622–633. doi:10.1177/0956797612457686 (<https://doi.org/10.1177%2F0956797612457686>). PMID 23531484 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/23531484>). S2CID 23921773 (<https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:23921773>).
31. Goldenberg, Suzanne (11 June 2015). "Republicans' leading climate denier tells the pope to butt out of climate debate" (<https://www.theguardian.com/environment/2015/jun/11/james-inhofe-republican-climate-denier-pope-francis>). The Guardian.
32. "Republican leader: Climate change science 'not known'" (<http://thehill.com/policy/energy-environment/208431-gop-leader-climate-change-science-not-known>). The Hill.
33. Zurcher, Anthony (2 June 2017). "Does Trump still think it's all a hoax?" (<https://www.bbc.com/news/world-us-canada-40128034>). BBC News. Retrieved 24 January 2020.
34. Rahmstorf, S., 2004, The climate sceptics: Weather Catastrophes and Climate Change—Is There Still Hope For Us? (http://www.pik-potsdam.de/~stefan/Publications/Other/rahmstorf_climate_sceptics_2004.pdf) (Munich: PG Verlag) pp 76–83 [note: numbering not shown in original]
35. Painter & Ashe 2012: "We focused on the marked differences in what climate sceptics are sceptical about ... (1) trend sceptics (who deny the global warming trend), (2) attribution sceptics (who accept the trend, but either question the anthropogenic contribution saying it is overstated, negligent or non-existent compared to other factors like natural variation, or say it is not known with sufficient certainty what the main causes are) and (3) impact sceptics (who accept human causation, but claim impacts may be benign or beneficial, or that the models are not robust enough) and/or question the need for strong regulatory policies or interventions. "
36. Dunlap & Jacques 2013, p. 702: "These books reject evidence that global warming is occurring, that human actions are the predominant cause of global warming, and/or that global warming will have negative impacts on human and natural systems. These arguments have been labelled trend, attribution, and impact denial (Rahmstorf, 2004). ... We located 108 books espousing one or more of these versions of climate change denial published through 2010"
37. Michael E. Mann (13 August 2013). The Hockey Stick and the Climate Wars: Dispatches from the Front Lines (<https://books.google.com/books?id=HK0CN6FVtfgC&pg=PA23>). Columbia University Press. p. 23. ISBN 978-0-231-52638-8.
38. Monbiot, George (19 September 2006). "The denial industry" (<https://www.theguardian.com/environment/2006/sep/19/ethicalliving.g2>). The Guardian. London.
39. Goodman, Ellen (9 February 2007). "No change in political climate" (http://www.boston.com/news/globe/editorial_opinion/oped/articles/2007/02/09/no_change_in_political_climate/). The Boston Globe. Retrieved 30 August 2008.
40. George Monbiot (27 February 2009). "Climate change: The semantics of denial" (<https://www.theguardian.com/environment/georgemonbiot/2009/feb/27/climate-change-deniers-sceptics>). The Guardian. Retrieved 27 May 2015.
41. Christoff, Peter (9 July 2007). "Climate change is another grim tale to be treated with respect – Opinion" (<http://www.theage.com.au/news/opinion/climate-change-is-another-grim-tale-to-be-treated-with-respect/2007/07/08/1183833338608.html>). Theage.com.au. Melbourne. Retrieved 19 March 2010.
42. Connelly, Joel (10 July 2007). "Deniers of global warming harm us" (http://www.seattlepi.com/connelly/323181_joel11.html). Seattle Post-Intelligencer. Retrieved 25 December 2009.
43. "Timeline, Climate Change and its Naysayers". Newsweek. 13 August 2007.
44. Liu, D. W. C. (2012). "Science Denial and the Science Classroom" (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC3366896>). CBE: Life Sciences Education. 11 (2): 129–134. doi:10.1187/cbe.12-03-0029 (<https://doi.org/10.1187%2F03-0029>). PMC 3366896 (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC3366896>). PMID 22665586 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/22665586>).

45. Hoofnagle, Mark (11 March 2009). "Climate change deniers: failsafe tips on how to spot them" (<http://www.theguardian.com/environment/blog/2009/mar/10/climate-change-denier>). the Guardian. Retrieved 30 June 2015.
46. Balakrishnan, Anita (13 October 2016). "Denial of climate change, AI puts American economy on 'path to ruin,' Obama says" (<https://www.cnbc.com/2016/10/13/denial-of-climate-change-ai-puts-american-economy-on-path-to-ruin-obama-says.html>). CNBC.
47. McKibben, Bill (12 May 2015). "Obama's Catastrophic Climate-Change Denial" (<https://www.nytimes.com/2015/05/13/opinion/obamas-catastrophic-climate-change-denial.html>). The New York Times.
48. Gifford R. (2011). "The dragons of inaction: psychological barriers that limit climate change mitigation and adaptation". Am Psychol. 66 (4): 290–302. doi:10.1037/a0023566 (<https://doi.org/10.1037/a0023566>). PMID 21553954 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/21553954>). S2CID 8356816 (<https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:8356816>).
49. Lejano, Raul P. (16 September 2019). "Ideology and the Narrative of Climate Skepticism" (<https://doi.org/10.1175%2FBAMS-D-16-0327.1>). Bulletin of the American Meteorological Society. 100 (12): ES415–ES421. Bibcode:2019BAMS..100S.415L (<https://ui.adsabs.harvard.edu/abs/2019BAMS..100S.415L>). doi:10.1175/BAMS-D-16-0327.1 (<https://doi.org/10.1175%2FBAMS-D-16-0327.1>). ISSN 0003-0007 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/0003-0007>).
50. Zimmerman, Jess (7 November 2011). "Handy image shows how climate deniers manipulate data" (<https://grist.org/article/2011-11-07-handy-image-shows-how-climate-deniers-manipulate-data/>). Grist. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20191001173511/https://grist.org/article/2011-11-07-handy-image-shows-how-climate-deniers-manipulate-data/>) from the original on 1 October 2019.
51. Stover, Dawn (23 September 2014). "The global warming 'hiatus'" (<https://thebulletin.org/2014/09/the-global-warming-hiatus/>). Bulletin of the Atomic Scientists. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20200711032006/https://thebulletin.org/2014/09/the-global-warming-hiatus/>) from the original on 11 July 2020.
52. "NCSE Tackles Climate Change Denial" (<http://ncse.com/climate-change-101/ncse-tackles-climate-change-denial>). National Center for Science Education. 13 January 2012. Retrieved 5 July 2015. "Science education is under attack... by climate change deniers, who ignore a mountain of evidence gathered over the last fifty years that the planet is warming and that humans are largely responsible. These deniers attempt to sabotage science education with fringe ideas, pseudoscience, and outright lies."
53. Lahsen, Myanna (Winter 2005). "Technocracy, Democracy, and the U.S. Climate Politics: The Need for Demarcations". Science, Technology, & Human Values. 30: 137–169. doi:10.1177/0162243904270710 (<https://doi.org/10.1177%2F0162243904270710>). S2CID 145482135 (<https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:145482135>). "Numerous high-ranked officers in the Clinton-Gore administration sought to dismiss all critics of the climate paradigm as "pseudoscientists""
54. Brown, Michael. Adversaries, zombies and NIPCC climate pseudoscience (<http://phys.org/news/2013-09-adversaries-zombies-nipcc-climate-pseudoscience.html>), Phys.org, 26 September 2013
55. Brown 1996, p. 28: "As the scientific fringe has become institutionalized, professionalized, and lionized... One finds that a fundamental difference between the traditional scientific establishment and the emerging "skeptic" establishment relates to their ultimate scientific goals. The former has traditionally emphasized the generation of new knowledge as a measure of productivity. That is, the collection of original data, construction of new mathematical techniques, and generation and validation of testable hypotheses have been the hallmarks of the traditional scientific community... On the other hand, the emerging culture profiled in these hearings emphasizes the generation of new perspectives. Productivity is measured on the ability to alter public opinion – through opinion pieces aimed not at their fellow scientists but at policymakers, the media, and the general public – and funding flows accordingly."

56. Morrison, David. The Parameters of Pseudoscience (http://www.csicop.org/si/show/the_parameters_of_pseudoscience/), Skeptical Inquirer, Volume 37.2, March/April 2013. Book review of The Pseudoscience Wars: Immanuel Velikovsky and the Birth of the Modern Fringe, by Michael D. Gordin.
57. "Liberal senator doubles down on accusing BoM of changing records to fit climate agenda" (<https://www.sbs.com.au/news/liberal-senator-doubles-down-on-accusing-bom-of-changing-records-to-fit-climate-agenda>). SBS News. Retrieved 24 January 2020.
58. Osborne, Samuel (13 December 2015). "A US town rejected solar panels amid fears 'they'd suck up all the energy from the sun'" (<http://www.independent.co.uk/news/world/americas/us-town-rejects-solar-panels-amid-fears-they-suck-up-all-the-energy-from-the-sun-a6771526.html>). The Independent. Retrieved 24 January 2020.
59. Nuccitelli, Dana (8 May 2017). "Study: to beat science denial, inoculate against misinformers' tricks" (<https://www.theguardian.com/environment/climate-consensus-97-per-cent/2017/may/08/study-to-beat-science-denial-inoculate-against-misinformers-tricks>). The Guardian. ISSN 0261-3077 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/0261-3077>). Retrieved 16 February 2020.
60. Cook, John (26 October 2016). "Countering Climate Science Denial and Communicating Scientific Consensus" (<https://oxfordre.com/climatescience/view/10.1093/acrefore/9780190228620.001.0001/acrefore-9780190228620-e-314>). Oxford Research Encyclopedias: Climate science. Oxford Research Encyclopedia of Climate Science. Oxford University Press. doi:10.1093/acrefore/9780190228620.013.314 (<https://doi.org/10.1093%2Facrefore%2F9780190228620.013.314>). ISBN 978-0-19-022862-0. Retrieved 16 February 2020.
61. Kwon, Diana. "How to Debate a Science Denier" (<https://www.scientificamerican.com/article/how-to-debate-a-science-denier/>). Scientific American. Retrieved 17 February 2020.
62. Lee, McIntyre (8 August 2019). "How to defend science to climate-change deniers and others who attack it (opinion)" (<https://www.insidehighered.com/views/2019/08/08/how-defend-science-climate-change-deniers-and-others-who-attack-it-opinion>). Inside Higher Ed. Retrieved 17 February 2020.
63. Kendi, Ibram X. (1 January 2019). "What the Believers Are Denying" (<https://www.theatlantic.com/ideas/archive/2019/01/what-deniers-climate-change-and-racism-share/579190/>). The Atlantic. Retrieved 17 February 2020.
64. Renner, Ben (18 January 2020). "Study Reveals Four 'Pathways To Changing The Minds Of Climate Deniers'" (<https://www.studyfinds.org/study-reveals-four-pathways-to-changing-the-minds-of-climate-deniers/>). Study Finds. Retrieved 17 February 2020.
65. "Florida's GOP Has A Change Of Heart About Climate Change" (<https://health.wusf.usf.edu/post/florida-s-gop-has-change-heart-about-climate-change>). Health News Florida, WUSF. 21 October 2019. Retrieved 16 February 2020.
66. Green, Emily (13 October 2017). "The Existential Dread of Climate Change" (<https://www.psychologytoday.com/blog/there-is-always-another-part/201710/the-existential-dread-climate-change>). Psychology Today. Retrieved 16 February 2020.
67. Swim, Janet. "Psychology and Global Climate Change: Addressing a Multi-faceted Phenomenon and Set of Challenges. A Report by the American Psychological Association's Task Force on the Interface Between Psychology and Global Climate Change" (<https://www.apa.org/science/about/publications/climate-change.pdf>) (PDF). American Psychological Association. p. 9.
68. Sharry, John. "How to turn climate-change denial into acceptance and action" (<https://www.irishtimes.com/life-and-style/health-family/parenting/how-to-turn-climate-change-denial-into-acceptance-and-action-1.4058069>). The Irish Times. Retrieved 16 February 2020.
69. Lewandowsky, Stephan (17 April 2014). "From conspiracy theories to climate change denial, a cognitive psychologist explains" (<https://phys.org/news/2014-04-conspiracy-theories-climate-denial-cognitive.html>). phys.org. Retrieved 16 February 2020.

70. Wong-Parodi, Gabrielle; Feygina, Irina (8 January 2020). "Understanding and countering the motivated roots of climate change denial" (<http://www.sciencedirect.com/science/article/pii/S1877343519301009>). Current Opinion in Environmental Sustainability. 42: 60–64. doi:10.1016/j.cosust.2019.11.008 (<https://doi.org/10.1016%2Fj.cosust.2019.11.008>). ISSN 1877-3435 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/1877-3435>).
71. O'Connor, Mary Catherine (26 April 2017). "How to Reason with the Climate Change Denier in Your Life" (<https://www.outsideonline.com/2176971/how-talk-climate-skeptic-or-denier-your-life>). Outside Online. Retrieved 17 February 2020.
72. Nauges, Céline; Wheeler, Sarah Ann. "Farmers' climate denial begins to wane as reality bites" (<http://theconversation.com/farmers-climate-denial-begins-to-wane-as-reality-bites-103906>). The Conversation. Retrieved 16 February 2020.
73. "Talking About Climate Change in Trump Country" (<https://www.sierraclub.org/sierra/2018-1-january-february/feature/talking-about-climate-change-trump-country>). Sierra Club. 7 December 2017. Retrieved 16 February 2020.
74. Boot, Max (26 November 2018). "I was wrong on climate change. Why can't other conservatives admit it, too?" (https://www.washingtonpost.com/opinions/global-opinions/i-was-wrong-on-climate-change-why-cant-other-conservatives-admit-it-too/2018/11/26/11d2b778-f1a1-11e8-bc79-68604ed88993_story.html). The Washington Post. Retrieved 24 January 2020.
75. "Why some Republicans are warming to climate action" (<https://www.csmonitor.com/Environment/2017/0523/Why-some-Republicans-are-warming-to-climate-action>). Christian Science Monitor. 23 May 2017. ISSN 0882-7729 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/0882-7729>). Retrieved 17 February 2020.
76. Lerner, Sharon (28 April 2017). "How a Professional Climate Change Denier Discovered the Lies and Decided to Fight for Science" (<https://theintercept.com/2017/04/28/how-a-professional-climate-change-denier-discovered-the-lies-and-decided-to-fight-for-science/>). The Intercept. Retrieved 17 February 2020.
77. "Former climate denier turned realist rallies businesses to take action" (<https://www.newhope.com/business-resources/former-climate-denier-turned-realist-rallies-businesses-take-action>). New Hope Network. 14 November 2018. Retrieved 17 February 2020.
78. Ahmed, Amel (16 April 2018). "Ex-'Professional Climate Denier' Aims to Convince Conservatives Threat is Real" (<https://www.kqed.org/science/1922675/a-growing-faction-of-conservatives-are-challenging-gop-stance-on-climate-change>). KQED. Retrieved 17 February 2020.
79. "6 global warming skeptics who changed their minds" (<https://theweek.com/articles/491378/6-global-warming-skeptics-who-changed-minds>). The Week. 1 September 2010. Retrieved 17 February 2020.
80. Banerjee, Neela (1 August 2012). "Climate-change denier changes his mind" (<https://www.news.com.au/world/breaking-news/climate-change-denier-changes-mind/news-story/e0433a661400feb82345e5d5108cc2ce>). NewsComAu. Retrieved 17 February 2020.
81. Goldenberg, Suzanne (20 December 2013). "Conservative groups spend up to $1bn a year to fight action on climate change" (<https://www.theguardian.com/environment/2013/dec/20/conservative-groups-1bn-against-climate-change>). The Guardian. ISSN 0261-3077 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/0261-3077>). Retrieved 24 January 2020.
82. Brulle, Robert (2014). "Institutionalizing delay: foundation funding and the creation of U.S. climate change counter-movement organizations". Climatic Change. 122 (4): 681–694. Bibcode:2014ClCh..122..681B (<https://ui.adsabs.harvard.edu/abs/2014ClCh..122..681B>). doi:10.1007/s10584-013-1018-7 (<https://doi.org/10.1007%2Fs10584-013-1018-7>). S2CID 27538787 (<https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:27538787>).
83. Goldenberg, Suzanne (14 February 2013). "Secret funding helped build vast network of climate denial thinktanks" (<https://www.theguardian.com/environment/2013/feb/14/funding-climate-change-denial-thinktanks-network>). The Guardian. ISSN 0261-3077 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/0261-3077>). Retrieved 24 January 2020.

84. Schultz, Colin (23 December 2013). "Meet the Money Behind The Climate Denial Movement" (<https://www.smithsonianmag.com/smart-news/meet-the-money-behind-the-climate-denial-movement-180948204/>). Smithsonian. Retrieved 7 October 2019.
85. "Coal Mining: Long-Term Contribution Trends" (<https://www.opensecrets.org/industries/totals.php?ind=E1210>). OpenSecrets. Retrieved 24 January 2020.
86. "Oil & Gas: Long-Term Contribution Trends" (<https://www.opensecrets.org/industries/totals.php?ind=E01++>). OpenSecrets. Retrieved 24 January 2020.
87. Krugman, Paul (12 December 2019). "Opinion | The Party That Ruined the Planet" (<https://www.nytimes.com/2019/12/12/opinion/climate-change-republicans.html>). The New York Times. ISSN 0362-4331 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/0362-4331>). Retrieved 24 January 2020.
88. Dunlap 2013: "From the outset, there has been an organized "disinformation" campaign... to "manufacture uncertainty" over AGW, especially by attacking climate science and scientists. This appears an effective strategy given that confidence in climate science and trust in climate scientists are key factors influencing the public's views of AGW."
89. ABC NEWS/TIME/STANFORD POLL (14 March 2006). "Intensity Spikes in Concern on Warming; Many See a Change in Weather Patterns" (<https://abcnews.go.com/images/Politics/1009a1GlobalWarming.pdf>) (PDF). ABC News. Retrieved 10 September 2020.
90. Hayes, Chris (2012). "Chapter 4". Twilight of the Elites. New York: Broadway. ISBN 9780307720474.
91. DiMento, J. and Doughman, P. (2017). Climate Change: What it Means for Us, Our Children, and Our Grandchildren. Cambridge, MA: MIT Press, pp. 25-29.
92. "As Economic Concerns Recede, Environmental Protection Rises on the Public's Policy Agenda / Partisan gap on dealing with climate change gets even wider" (<https://www.pewresearch.org/politics/2020/02/13/as-economic-concerns-recede-environmental-protection-rises-on-the-publics-policy-agenda/>). PewResearch.org. Pew Research Center. 13 February 2020. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20210116155958/https://www.pewresearch.org/politics/2020/02/13/as-economic-concerns-recede-environmental-protection-rises-on-the-publics-policy-agenda/>) from the original on 16 January 2021.
93. Howe, Peter D.; Mildenberger, Matto; Marlon, Jennifer R.; Leiserowitz, Anthony (1 January 2015). "Geographic variation in opinions on climate change at state and local scales in the USA" (<http://escholarship.org/uc/item/2bz0416w>). Nature Climate Change. 5 (6): 596–603. Bibcode:2015NatCC...5..596H (<https://ui.adsabs.harvard.edu/abs/2015NatCC...5..596H>). doi:10.1038/nclimate2583 (<https://doi.org/10.1038%2Fncclimate2583>). ISSN 1758-678X (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/1758-678X>).
94. Morrison, David (2018). "Some Good News on Climate: A Big Shift among TV Weathercasters". Skeptical Inquirer. 42 (5): 6.
95. Boykoff, M.; Boykoff, J. (July 2004). "Balance as bias: global warming and the US prestige press" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20151106081048/http://www.eci.ox.ac.uk/publications/downloads/boykoff04-gec.pdf>) (PDF). Global Environmental Change Part A. 14 (2): 125–136. doi:10.1016/j.gloenvcha.2003.10.001 (<https://doi.org/10.1016%2Fj.gloenvcha.2003.10.001>). Archived from the original (<http://www.eci.ox.ac.uk/publications/downloads/boykoff04-gec.pdf>) (PDF) on 6 November 2015.
96. Antilla 2005: "One problematic trend of the US media has been the suggestion that substantive disagreement exists within the international scientific community as to the reality of anthropogenic climate change; however, this concept is false...Although the science of climate change does not appear to be a prime news topic for most of the 255 newspapers included in this study...articles that framed climate change in terms of debate, controversy, or uncertainty were plentiful."
97. Painter & Ashe 2012: "Media analysis of climate change reporting was always of interest to academics but from the mid-2000s, it became one of the key areas of research interest, highlighting a tendency to give undue weight to voices questioning the science of climate change."

98. Antilla 2005: "Not only were there many examples of journalistic balance that led to bias, but some of the news outlets repeatedly used climate sceptics—with known fossil fuel industry ties—as primary definers"
99. Dispensa, Jaclyn Marisa; Brulle, Robert J. (2003). "Media's social construction of environmental issues: focus on global warming – a comparative study". International Journal of Sociology and Social Policy. 23 (10): 74–105. doi:10.1108/01443330310790327 (<https://doi.org/10.1108%2F01443330310790327>). ISSN 0144-333X (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/0144-333X>). S2CID 144662365 (<http://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:144662365>).
00. Painter & Ashe 2012: "news coverage of scepticism is mostly limited to the USA and the UK...the type of sceptics who question whether global temperatures are warming are almost exclusively found in the US and UK newspapers. Sceptics who challenge the need for robust action to combat climate change also have a much stronger presence in the media of the same two countries. "
01. David, Adam (20 September 2006). "Royal Society tells Exxon: stop funding climate change denial" (<https://www.theguardian.com/environment/2006/sep/20/oilandpetrol.business>). The Guardian. London. Retrieved 12 January 2009.
02. Sandell, Clayton (3 January 2007). "Report: Big Money Confusing Public on Global Warming" (<http://abcnews.go.com/Technology/Business/story?id=2767979&page=1>). ABC News. Retrieved 12 January 2009.
03. Painter & Ashe 2012: "in the USA and the UK... sceptical voices generally appear in much higher numbers... in France, the UK and the USA... right-leaning newspapers are much more likely to include uncontested sceptical voices."
04. Saad, Lydia (21 March 2007). "Did Hollywood's Glare Heat Up Public Concern About Global Warming?" (<http://www.gallup.com/poll/26932/Did-Hollywoods-Glare-Heat-Public-Concern-About-Global-Warming.aspx>). Gallup. Retrieved 12 January 2010.
05. Holthaus, Eric (6 April 2015). "Poll: Americans Don't Think Climate Change Will Affect Them Personally" (http://www.slate.com/blogs/the_slatest/2015/04/06/new_climate_change_poll_shows_americans_believe_in_global_warming.html). Slate. ISSN 1091-2339 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/1091-2339>). Retrieved 15 November 2015.
06. Boykoff, M.T.; Boykoff, J.M. (2004). "Balance as bias: Global warming and the US prestige press". Global Environmental Change. 14 (2): 125–136. doi:10.1016/j.gloenvcha.2003.10.001 (<https://doi.org/10.1016%2Fj.gloenvcha.2003.10.001>).
07. McKenna, Phil (13 September 2018). "National Teachers Group Confronts Climate Denial: Keep the Politics Out of Science Class" (<https://insideclimateneeds.org/news/13092018/science-teachers-climate-change-denial-nsta-national-association-position-statement-state-standards-heartland>). InsideClimate News. Retrieved 17 January 2020.
08. Maza, Cristina (11 November 2019). "Far-Right Climate Denial Is Growing in Europe" (<https://newrepublic.com/article/155669/far-right-climate-denial-growing-europe>). The New Republic. ISSN 0028-6583 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/0028-6583>). Retrieved 16 February 2020.
09. "Climate denial and the populist right" (<https://www.iied.org/climate-denial-populist-right>). International Institute for Environment and Development. 15 November 2016. Retrieved 4 March 2017.
10. Harari, Yuval Noah. "Transcript of "Nationalism vs. globalism: the new political divide"" (https://www.ted.com/talks/yuval_noah_harari_nationalism_vs_globalism_the_new_political_divide/transcript?language=en). Retrieved 4 March 2017.
11. O'Neil, Luke (29 May 2019). "US energy department rebrands fossil fuels as 'molecules of freedom'" (<https://www.theguardian.com/business/2019/may/29/energy-department-molecules-freedom-fossil-fuel-rebranding>). The Guardian. ISSN 0261-3077 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/0261-3077>). Retrieved 24 January 2020.
12. Robert J. Shiller (27 March 2015). "How Idealism, Expressed in Concrete Steps, Can Fight Climate Change" (https://www.nytimes.com/2015/03/29/upshot/how-idealism-expressed-in-concrete-steps-can-fight-climate-change.html?_r=0). The New York Times. Retrieved 6 March 2017.

13. Kyla Mandel (12 January 2016). "Why Are Climate Deniers Campaigning for Britain to Leave the EU?" (<https://www.desmog.uk/2016/01/12/why-are-climate-deniers-campaigning-britain-leave-eu>). Retrieved 5 March 2017.
14. Helmer, Roger (14 October 2015). "Plenary Speech Climate Change October 14th 2015" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170407061337/http://www.rogerhelmermep.co.uk/speeches/>). Archived from the original (<http://www.rogerhelmermep.co.uk/speeches/>) on 7 April 2017. Retrieved 6 March 2017.
15. "Climate Change Denial as the Historical Consciousness of Trumpism: Lessons from Carl Schmitt" (<https://www.niskanencenter.org/climate-change-denial-historical-consciousness-trumpism-lessons-carl-schmitt/>). Niskanen Center. 10 November 2017. Retrieved 17 February 2020.
16. Jacques, Dunlap & Freeman 2008, p. 352: "While these CTTs sometimes joined corporate America in directly lobbying against environmental policies, their primary tactic in combating environmentalism has been to challenge the need for protective environmental policy by questioning the seriousness of environmental problems and the validity of environmental science."
17. Dryzek, John S.; Norgaard, Richard B.; Schlosberg, David (2011). The Oxford Handbook of Climate Change and Society. Oxford University Press. p. 154. ISBN 978-0-19-968342-0.
18. "The Climate Denial Machine: How the Fossil Fuel Industry Blocks Climate Action" (<https://www.climate-realityproject.org/blog/climate-denial-machine-how-fossil-fuel-industry-blocks-climate-action>). The Climate Reality Project. 5 September 2019. Retrieved 7 October 2019.
19. Borowy, Iris (2014). Defining Sustainable Development for Our Common Future: A History of the World Commission on Environment and Development (<https://books.google.com/books?id=st9JAgAAQBAJ&pg=PA44>). Routledge. p. 44. ISBN 9781135961220. "Corporations and conservative think tanks such as the Heritage Foundation, Marshall Institute], the Cato Institute and the American Enterprise Institute waged campaigns to obscure scientific evidence about acid rain, ozone depletion and climate change and, thereby, to prevent or rollback environmental, health and safety regulations."
20. Manjit, Kumar (18 October 2010). "Merchants of Doubt, By Naomi Oreskes & Erik M Conway" (<http://www.independent.co.uk/arts-entertainment/books/reviews/merchants-of-doubt-by-naomi-oreskes-amp-erik-m-conway-2109256.html>). The Independent. London. Retrieved 17 February 2013.
21. Hertsgaard, Mark (May 2006). "While Washington Slept" (<http://www.vanityfair.com/politics/features/2006/05/warming200605>). Vanity Fair. Retrieved 2 August 2007.
22. Painter & Ashe 2012: "The work by McCright and Dunlap has highlighted the effectiveness of organized climate sceptic groups in influencing US policy making in the 1990s and early 2000s, including their central role in the rejection of the Kyoto Protocol by the US Congress"
23. Brulle, Robert J. (21 December 2013). "Institutionalizing delay: foundation funding and the creation of U.S. climate change counter-movement organizations". Climatic Change. 122 (4): 681–694. Bibcode:2014ClCh..122..681B (<https://ui.adsabs.harvard.edu/abs/2014ClCh..122..681B>). doi:10.1007/s10584-013-1018-7 (<https://doi.org/10.1007%2Fs10584-013-1018-7>). S2CID 27538787 (<https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:27538787>).
24. Goldenberg, Suzanne (20 December 2013). "Conservative groups spend up to $1bn a year to fight action on climate change" (<https://www.theguardian.com/environment/2013/dec/20/conservative-groups-1bn-against-climate-change>). The Guardian. Retrieved 7 October 2019.
25. Fischer, Douglas (23 December 2013). "'Dark Money' Funds Climate Change Denial Effort" (<http://www.scientificamerican.com/article/dark-money-funds-climate-change-denial-effort/>). Scientific American. Retrieved 29 January 2015.
26. Goldenberg, Suzanne (14 February 2013). "Secret funding helped build vast network of climate denial thinktanks" (<https://www.theguardian.com/environment/2013/feb/14/funding-climate-change-denial-thinktanks-network>). The Guardian. Retrieved 7 February 2015.
27. "Robert Brulle: Inside the Climate Change "Countermovement" " (<https://www.pbs.org/wgbh/pages/frontline/environment/climate-of-doubt/robert-brulle-inside-the-climate-change-countermovement/>). Frontline. PBS. 23 October 2012. Retrieved 21 February 2015.

28. Antilla 2005: "A number of large corporations that profit substantially from fossil fuel consumption, such as ExxonMobil, provide financial support to their political allies in an effort to undermine public trust in climate science."
29. Farrell, Justin (2015). "Corporate funding and ideological polarization about climate change. In" (<http://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC4711825>). Proceedings of the National Academy of Sciences. 113 (1): 92–97. doi:10.1073/pnas.1509433112 (<https://doi.org/10.1073/pnas.1509433112>). PMC 4711825 (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC4711825>). PMID 26598653 (<http://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/26598653>).
30. "A Major Coal Company Went Bust. Its Bankruptcy Filing Shows That It Was Funding Climate Change Denialism" (<https://theintercept.com/2019/05/16/coal-industry-climate-change-denial-cloud-peak-energy/>). 16 May 2019.
31. "Cloud Peak Energy" (<https://www.documentcloud.org/documents/6006068-Cloud-Peak-Energy.html>).
32. Sample, Ian (2 February 2007). "Scientists offered cash to dispute climate study" (<https://www.theguardian.com/environment/2007/feb/02/frontpagenews.climatechange>). The Guardian. London. Retrieved 16 August 2007. "The AEI has received more than $1.6m from ExxonMobil and more than 20 of its staff have worked as consultants to the Bush administration. Lee Raymond, a former head of ExxonMobil, is the vice-chairman of AEI's board of trustees."
33. Begley 2007
34. Adams, David (20 September 2006). "Royal Society tells Exxon: stop funding climate change denial" (<https://www.theguardian.com/environment/2006/sep/20/oilandpetrol.business>). The Guardian. London. Retrieved 2 August 2007.
35. Ward, Bob (4 September 2006). "Letter to Nick Thomas, Director, Corporate affairs, Esso UK Ltd. (ExxonMobil)" (<http://image.guardian.co.uk/sys-files/Guardian/documents/2006/09/19/LettertoNick.pdf>) (PDF). London: Royal Society. Retrieved 6 August 2007.
36. "Interfaith Stewardship Alliance Newsletter" (<http://www-tc.pbs.org/moyers/moyersonamerica/green/isnewsletter.pdf>) (PDF). Moyers on America. 2006. Retrieved 10 December 2014.
37. "Gore takes aim at corporately funded climate research" (<https://www.cbc.ca/news/world/gore-takes-aim-at-corporately-funded-climate-research-1.678882>). CBC News from Associated Press. 7 August 2007. Retrieved 16 August 2007.
38. Jennings, Katie, Grandoni, Dino, & Rust, Susanne. (23 October 2015) "How Exxon went from leader to skeptic on climate change research". Los Angeles Times. Retrieved 26 October 2015. LA Times website (<http://graphics.latimes.com/exxon-research/>)
39. Revkin, Andrew C. Industry Ignored Its Scientists on Climate (<https://www.nytimes.com/2009/04/24/science/earth/24deny.html>), The New York Times. 23 April 2009.
40. Bradsher, Keith (7 December 1999). "Ford Announces Its Withdrawal From Global Climate Coalition" (<https://www.nytimes.com/1999/12/07/business/ford-announces-its-withdrawal-from-global-climate-coalition.html>). The New York Times. Retrieved 21 July 2013. "the Ford Motor Company said today that it would pull out of the Global Climate Coalition, a group of big manufacturers and oil and mining companies that lobbies against restrictions on emissions of gases linked to global warming."
41. "GCC Suffers Technical Knockout, Industry defections decimate Global Climate Coalition" (<http://www.heatisonline.org/contentserver/objecthandlers/index.cfm?id=3440&method=full>).
42. Broder, John M. (20 October 2010). "Climate Change Doubt Is Tea Party Article of Faith" (<https://www.nytimes.com/2010/10/21/us/politics/21climate.html>). The New York Times. Retrieved 17 September 2017. "The oil, coal and utility industries have collectively spent $500 million just since the beginning of 2009 to lobby against legislation to address climate change and to defeat candidates, like Mr. Hill, who support it, according to a new analysis from the Center for American Progress Action Fund..."

43. Weiss, Daniel J.; Lefton, Rebecca; Lyon, Susan (27 September 2010). "Dirty Money, Oil Companies and Special Interests Spend Millions to Oppose Climate Legislation" (<https://www.americanprogressaction.org/issues/green/news/2010/09/27/8428/dirty-money/>). Center for American Progress Action Fund. Retrieved 17 September 2017. "The oil, gas, and coal industries have spent over $2 billion lobbying Congress since 1999. These three industries combined spent a whopping $543 million on lobbying in 2009 and the first two quarters of 2010."
44. Gillis, Justin; Schartz, John (21 February 2015). "Deeper Ties to Corporate Cash for Doubtful Climate Researcher" (<https://www.nytimes.com/2015/02/22/us/ties-to-corporate-cash-for-climate-change-researcher-Wei-Hock-Soon.html>). The New York Times. Retrieved 7 March 2015. "newly released documents show the extent to which Dr. Soon's work has been tied to funding he received from corporate interests. He has accepted more than $1.2 million in money from the fossil-fuel industry over the last decade while failing to disclose that conflict of interest in most of his scientific papers. At least 11 papers he has published since 2008 omitted such a disclosure, and in at least eight of those cases, he appears to have violated ethical guidelines of the journals that published his work. The documents show that Dr. Soon, in correspondence with his corporate funders, described many of his scientific papers as "deliverables" that he completed in exchange for their money."
45. Goldenberg, Suzanne (21 February 2015). "Work of prominent climate change denier was funded by energy industry" (<https://www.theguardian.com/environment/2015/feb/21/climate-change-denier-willie-soon-funded-energy-industry>). The Guardian. Retrieved 7 March 2015. "Over the last 14 years Willie Soon, a researcher at the Harvard-Smithsonian Centre for Astrophysics, received a total of $1.25m from Exxon Mobil, Southern Company, the American Petroleum Institute (API) and a foundation run by the ultra-conservative Koch brothers... the biggest single funder was Southern Company, one of the country's biggest electricity providers that relies heavily on coal."
46. Schwartz, John (25 February 2015). "Lawmakers Seek Information on Funding for Climate Change Critics" (<https://www.nytimes.com/2015/02/26/science/lawmakers-seek-information-on-funding-for-climate-change-critics.html>). The New York Times. Retrieved 7 March 2015. "Charles R. Alcock, director of the Harvard-Smithsonian Center for Astrophysics, said last week that a contract provision with funders of Dr. Soon's work that appeared to prohibit disclosure of funding sources "was a mistake." "We will not permit similar wording in future grant agreements""
47. Colman, Zack; Guillén, Alex (17 September 2021). "Trump's climate change rollbacks to drive up U.S. emissions" (<https://www.politico.com/news/2020/09/17/trump-climate-rollbacks-increase-emissions-417311>). Politico. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20210226023146/https://www.politico.com/news/2020/09/17/trump-climate-rollbacks-increase-emissions-417311>) from the original on 26 February 2021.
48. Båtstrand, Sondre (2015). "More than Markets: A Comparative Study of Nine Conservative Parties on Climate Change". Politics and Policy. 43 (4): 538–561. doi:10.1111/polp.12122 (<https://doi.org/10.1111%2Fpolp.12122>). ISSN 1747-1346 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/1747-1346>). S2CID 143331308 (<https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:143331308>). "The U.S. Republican Party is an anomaly in denying anthropogenic climate change."
49. Chait, Jonathan (27 September 2015). "Why Are Republicans the Only Climate-Science-Denying Party in the World?" (<http://nymag.com/daily/intelligencer/2015/09/whys-gop-only-science-denying-party-on-earth.html>). New York. Retrieved 20 September 2017. "Of all the major conservative parties in the democratic world, the Republican Party stands alone in its denial of the legitimacy of climate science. Indeed, the Republican Party stands alone in its conviction that no national or international response to climate change is needed. To the extent that the party is divided on the issue, the gap separates candidates who openly dismiss climate science as a hoax, and those who, shying away from the political risks of blatant ignorance, instead couch their stance in the alleged impossibility of international action."
50. "Frontline: Hot Politics: Interviews: Frank Luntz" (<https://www.pbs.org/wgbh/pages/frontline/hotpolitics/interviews/luntz.html>). PBS. 13 November 2006. Retrieved 19 March 2010.

51. Davenport, Coral; Lipton, Eric (3 June 2017). "How G.O.P. Leaders Came to View Climate Change as Fake Science" (<https://www.nytimes.com/2017/06/03/us/politics/republican-leaders-climate-change.html>). The New York Times. ISSN 0362-4331 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/0362-4331>). Retrieved 22 September 2017. "The Republican Party's fast journey from debating how to combat human-caused climate change to arguing that it does not exist is a story of big political money, Democratic hubris in the Obama years and a partisan chasm that grew over nine years like a crack in the Antarctic shelf, favoring extreme positions and uncompromising rhetoric over cooperation and conciliation."
52. Warner, Judith (27 February 2011). "Fact-Free Science" (<https://www.nytimes.com/2011/02/27/magazine/27FOB-WWLN-t.html>). The New York Times Magazine. pp. 11–12. Retrieved 9 September 2017. "It would be easier to believe in this great moment of scientific reawakening, of course, if more than half of the Republicans in the House and three-quarters of Republican senators did not now say that the threat of global warming, as a human-made and highly threatening phenomenon, is at best an exaggeration and at worst an utter "hoax," as James Inhofe of Oklahoma, the ranking Republican on the Senate Environment and Public Works Committee, once put it. These grim numbers, compiled by the Center for American Progress, describe a troubling new reality: the rise of the Tea Party and its anti-intellectual, anti-establishment, anti-elite worldview has brought both a mainstreaming and a radicalization of anti-scientific thought."
53. Matthews, Chris (12 May 2014). "Hardball With Chris Matthews for May 12, 2014" (https://archive.org/details/MSNBCW_20140512_230000_Hardball_With_Chris_Matthews). Hardball With Chris Matthews. MSNBC. NBC news – via ProQuest. "According to a survey by the Center for American Progress' Action Fund, more than 55 percent of congressional Republicans are climate change deniers. And it gets worse from there. They found that 77 percent of Republicans on the House Science Committee say they don't believe it in either. And that number balloons to an astounding 90 percent for all the party's leadership in Congress."
54. EarthTalk (22 December 2014). "How Does Climate Denial Persist?" (<https://www.scientificamerican.com/article/how-does-climate-denial-persist/>). Scientific American. Retrieved 25 September 2017. "...a recent survey by the non-profit Center for American Progress found that some 58 percent of Republicans in the U.S. Congress still "refuse to accept climate change.""
55. Kliegman, Julie (18 May 2014). "Jerry Brown says 'virtually no Republican' in Washington accepts climate change science" (<http://www.politifact.com/truth-o-meter/statements/2014/may/18/jerry-brown/jerry-brown-says-virtually-no-republican-believes-/>). PolitiFact. Tampa Bay Times. Retrieved 18 September 2017.
56. McCarthy, Tom (17 November 2014). "Meet the Republicans in Congress who don't believe climate change is real" (<https://www.theguardian.com/environment/2014/nov/17/climate-change-denial-scepticism-republicans-congress>). The Guardian. Retrieved 18 September 2017. "It's much easier to list Republicans in Congress who think climate change is real than it is to list Republicans who don't, because there are so few members of the former group. Earlier this year, Politifact went looking for congressional Republicans who had not expressed scepticism about climate change and came up with a list of eight (out of 278)."
57. Revkin, Andrew (8 June 2005). "Bush Aide Edited Climate Reports" (<https://query.nytimes.com/gst/fullpage.html?res=9E0DE1D71338F93BA35755C0A9639C8B63>). The New York Times. Retrieved 3 August 2007.
58. Revkin, Andrew (10 June 2005). "Editor of Climate Report Resigns" (<https://www.nytimes.com/2005/06/10/politics/11cooney.long.html>). The New York Times. Retrieved 23 April 2008.
59. Revkin, Andrew (15 June 2005). "Former Bush Aide Who Edited Reports Is Hired by Exxon" (<https://www.nytimes.com/2005/06/15/politics/former-bush-aide-who-edited-reports-is-hired-by-exxon.html>). The New York Times. Retrieved 22 September 2017.
60. "Energy Secty Rick Perry: CO2 is not the main driver of climate change" (<https://www.cnn.com/2017/06/19/energy-sec-rick-perry-says-co2-is-not-the-main-driver-of-climate-change.html>). 19 June 2017.

61. Seitter, Keith. "AMS Letter to Perry" (<https://www.ametsoc.org/ams/index.cfm/about-ams/ams-position-letters/letter-to-doe-secretary-perry-on-climate-change/>). American Meteorological Society.
62. Frej, Willa (18 May 2018). "Trump's NASA Chief Has Apparently Changed His Tune On Climate Change" (https://www.huffingtonpost.com/entry/trump-nasa-jim-bridenstine-climate-change_us_5afe9b49e4b0a046186a4f3b). Huffington Post. Retrieved 18 May 2018.
63. Koren, Marina (17 May 2018). "Trump's NASA Chief: 'I Fully Believe and Know the Climate Is Changing'" (<https://www.theatlantic.com/science/archive/2018/05/trump-nasa-climate-change-bridenstine/560642/>). The Atlantic. Retrieved 17 February 2020.
64. Roberts, David (26 April 2019). "Don't bother waiting for conservatives to come around on climate change" (<https://www.vox.com/energy-and-environment/2019/4/26/18512213/climate-change-republicans-conservatives>). Vox. Retrieved 16 February 2020.
65. Crist, Meehan (10 February 2017). "How the New Climate Denial Is Like the Old Climate Denial" (<https://www.theatlantic.com/science/archive/2017/02/the-new-rhetoric-of-climate-denial/516198/>). The Atlantic. Retrieved 16 February 2020.
66. "Why News Outlets Only Sometimes Push Back Against Climate Denial" (<https://www.mediamatters.org/new-york-times/why-news-outlets-only-sometimes-push-back-against-climate-denial>). Media Matters for America. 16 March 2017. Retrieved 16 February 2020.
67. Justin Gillis; Leslie Kaufman (15 February 2012). "Leak Offers Glimpse of Campaign Against Climate Science" (<https://www.nytimes.com/2012/02/16/science/earth/in-heartland-institute-leak-a-plan-to-discredit-climate-teaching.html>). The New York Times. Retrieved 16 February 2012. "plans to promote a curriculum that would cast doubt on the scientific finding that fossil fuel emissions endanger the long-term welfare of the planet."
68. Stephanie Pappas; LiveScience (15 February 2012). "Leaked: Conservative Group Plans Anti-Climate Education Program" (<http://www.scientificamerican.com/article.cfm?id=leaked-conservative-group>). Scientific American. Retrieved 15 February 2012.
69. Goldenberg, Suzanne (15 February 2012). "Heartland Institute claims fraud after leak of climate change documents" (<https://www.theguardian.com/environment/2012/feb/15/heartland-institute-fraud-leak-climate?guni=Article:in%20body%20link>). The Guardian. Retrieved 23 October 2014.
70. Branch, Glenn (5 June 2017). "The Heartbreak for Heartland Continues" (<https://ncse.com/blog/2017/06/heartbreak-heartland-continues-0018546>). NCSE. Retrieved 16 September 2017.
71. "Classroom Resources" (<https://ncse.com/classroom-resources>). NCSE. Retrieved 16 September 2017.
72. "Report Heartland Institute sent to influence US teachers on climate change earns an 'F' from scientists" (<https://climatefeedback.org/report-heartland-institute-sent-to-influence-us-teachers-on-climate-change-earns-an-f-from-scientists/>). ClimateFeedback.org. 31 May 2017. Retrieved 16 September 2017.
73. Lever-Tracy 2010, p. 255: "In sum, we see that manufacturing uncertainty over climate change is the fundamental strategy of the denial machine [...] As we reflect on the evolution of climate science and policy-making over the past few decades, we believe the denial machine has achieved considerable success – especially in the US but internationally as well. Public concern over global warming and support for climate policy-making in the US is low relative to other nations (see Chapter 10, this volume), contributing to inaction by the US government.
74. Corcoran, Terence (6 January 2010). "The cool down in climate polls" (<https://nationalpost.com/opinion/columnists/story.html>). Financial Post. "Angus Reid surveyed people...before and after [the] Copenhagen [summit]. The drop off in public support for the idea that global warming is a fact mostly caused by human activity looks most pronounced in Canada. In November, 63% of Canadians supported global warming as a human-made phenomenon. By 23 Dec, that support had fallen 52%... A similar trend has been noted in the United States, where confidence in global warming theory has dropped to 46%... down from 51% in July last year. In Britain, only 43% believe human-made global warming is a fact, down from... 55% in July. In all three countries, there are signs of growing skepticism."

75. White, Rob (2012). Climate Change from a Criminological Perspective (<https://books.google.com/books?id=NgzII7LvUVIC&pg=PA48>). Springer Science & Business Media. ISBN 978-1-4614-3640-9. "belief that climate change is "real" and confidence in climate science has surprisingly decreased... Angus Reid polls conducted in December 2009 found declining support for climate change...in Britain, Canada, and the United States."
76. "Americans Skeptical of Science Behind Global Warming" (http://www.rasmussenreports.com/public_content/politics/current_events/environment_energy/americans_skeptical_of_science_behind_global_warming). Rasmussen Reports. 3 December 2009.
77. "54% Say Media Hype Global Warming Dangers" (http://www.rasmussenreports.com/public_content/politics/current_events/environment_energy/54_say_media_hype_global_warming_dangers). Rasmussen Reports. 6 February 2009.
78. Antilla 2005: "the popular press uses a number of methods to frame climate science as uncertain, including 'through the practice of interjecting and emphasizing controversy or disagreement among scientists'... In order to provide balance while reporting on climate change, some journalists include rebuttals by experts who, often through think-tanks, are affiliated with the fossil fuel industry. Regrettably, this creates the impression that scientific opinion is evenly divided or completely unsettled"
79. Begley 2007: "polls found that 64 percent of Americans thought there was 'a lot' of scientific disagreement on climate change; only one third thought planetary warming was "mainly caused by things people do." In contrast, majorities in Europe and Japan recognize a broad consensus among climate experts"
80. Begley 2007: "A new NEWSWEEK Poll finds that the influence of the denial machine remains strong. Although the figure is less than in earlier polls, 39 percent of those asked say there is "a lot of disagreement among climate scientists" on the basic question of whether the planet is warming; 42 percent say there is a lot of disagreement that human activities are a major cause of global warming. Only 46 percent say the greenhouse effect is being felt today."
81. Holt, Rush (13 July 2007). "Trying to Get Us to Change Course" (film review.) (<https://zenodo.org/record/1230884>). Science. 317 (5835): 198–9. doi:10.1126/science.1142810 (<https://doi.org/10.1126%2Fscience.1142810>). S2CID 160406179 (<https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:160406179>).
82. Cook, John; et al. (15 May 2013). "Quantifying the consensus on anthropogenic global warming in the scientific literature" (<https://doi.org/10.1088%2F1748-9326%2F8%2F2%2F024024>). Environmental Research Letters. 8 (2): 024024. Bibcode:2013ERL.....8b4024C (<https://ui.adsabs.harvard.edu/abs/2013ERL.....8b4024C>). doi:10.1088/1748-9326/8/2/024024 (<https://doi.org/10.1088%2F1748-9326%2F8%2F2%2F024024>). "there is a significant gap between public perception and reality, with 57% of the US public either disagreeing or unaware that scientists overwhelmingly agree that the earth is warming due to human activity (Pew 2012). Contributing to this "consensus gap" are campaigns designed to confuse the public about the level of agreement among climate scientists....The narrative presented by some dissenters is that the scientific consensus is "... on the point of collapse" while "... the number of scientific 'heretics' is growing with each passing year" A systematic, comprehensive review of the literature provides quantitative evidence countering this assertion. The number of papers rejecting AGW is a minuscule proportion of the published research, with the percentage slightly decreasing over time. Among papers expressing a position on AGW, an overwhelming percentage (97.2% based on self-ratings, 97.1% based on abstract ratings) endorses the scientific consensus on AGW."
83. Foster, Craig (2018). "Flat-Earth Anxieties Reflect Misplaced Priorities". Skeptical Inquirer. 42 (3): 10–11.
84. Graham Redfearn (7 January 2016). "Era of climate science denial is not over, study finds" (<https://www.theguardian.com/environment/planet-oz/2016/jan/07/era-of-climate-science-denial-is-not-over-study-finds>). The Guardian.
85. "Oil Company Positions on the Reality and Risk of Climate Change" (<http://www.uwosh.edu/es/climate-change/oil-company-positions-on-the-reality-and-risk-of-climate-change>). Environmental Studies. University of Oshkosh—Wisconsin. Retrieved 27 March 2016.

86. Laville, Sandra (22 March 2019). "Top oil firms spending millions lobbying to block climate change policies, says report" (<https://www.theguardian.com/business/2019/mar/22/top-oil-firms-spending-millions-lobbying-to-block-climate-change-policies-says-report>). The Guardian. ISSN 0261-3077 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/0261-3077>). Retrieved 25 October 2019.
87. Boslough, Mark (20 October 2017). "An Interview with CSICoN Speaker Michael Mann" (https://www.csicop.org/specialarticles/show/an_interview_with_csicon_speaker_michael_mann). Committee for Skeptical Inquiry.
88. Jamieson, Dale; Oppenheimer, Michael; Oreskes, Naomi (25 October 2019). "The real reason scientists downplay the risks of climate change" (<https://www.theguardian.com/commentisfree/2019/oct/25/the-real-reason-some-scientists-downplay-the-risks-of-climate-change>). The Guardian. ISSN 0261-3077 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/0261-3077>). Retrieved 25 October 2019.

Bibliography

- Antilla, Liisa (2005). "Climate of scepticism: US newspaper coverage of the science of climate change". Global Environmental Change. 15 (4): 338–352. CiteSeerX 10.1.1.372.2033 (<https://citeseerx.ist.psu.edu/viewdoc/summary?doi=10.1.1.372.2033>). doi:10.1016/j.gloenvcha.2005.08.003 (<https://doi.org/10.1016%2Fj.gloenvcha.2005.08.003>).
- Begley, Sharon (13 August 2007). "The Truth About Denial" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20071021024942/http://www.newsweek.com/id/32482>). Newsweek. Archived from the original (<http://www.newsweek.com/id/32482>) on 21 October 2007. (MSNBC single page version, archived 20 August 2007 (<https://web.archive.org/web/20070820002929/http://www.msnbc.msn.com/id/20122975/site/newsweek/page/0/>))
- Björnberg, Karin Edvardsson; et al. (2017). "Climate and environmental science denial: A review of the scientific literature published in 1990-2015" (<https://doi.org/10.1016%2Fj.jclepro.2017.08.066>). Journal of Cleaner Production. 167: 229–241. doi:10.1016/j.jclepro.2017.08.066 (<https://doi.org/10.1016%2Fj.jclepro.2017.08.066>).
- Boslough, Mark (5 December 2014). "Deniers are not Skeptics" (http://www.csicop.org/news/how/deniers_are_not_skeptics). Committee for Skeptical Inquiry. Retrieved 7 July 2015.
- Brown, R. G. E., Jr. (23 October 1996). "Environmental science under siege: Fringe science and the 104th Congress, U. S. House of Representatives" (https://web.archive.org/web/20070926222320/http://democrats.science.house.gov/Media/File/Reports/environment_science_report_23oct96.pdf) (PDF). Report, Democratic Caucus of the Committee on Science. Washington, D. C.: U. S. House of Representatives. Archived from the original (http://democrats.science.house.gov/Media/File/Reports/environment_science_report_23oct96.pdf) (PDF) on 26 September 2007.
- CBC News: the fifth estate (2007). "The Denial Machine" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20070312023300/http://www.cbc.ca/fifth/denialmachine/>). Archived from the original (<http://www.cbc.ca/fifth/denialmachine/>) on 12 March 2007. Retrieved 29 July 2015.
- Conway, Erik; Oreskes, Naomi (2010). Merchants of Doubt: How a Handful of Scientists Obscured the Truth on Issues from Tobacco Smoke to Global Warming (<https://archive.org/details/merchantsofdoubt00ores>). USA: Bloomsbury. p. 170 (<https://archive.org/details/merchantsofdoubt00ores/page/170>). ISBN 978-1-59691-610-4.
- Diethelm, Pascal; McKee, Martin (January 2009). "Denialism: what is it and how should scientists respond?" (<https://doi.org/10.1093%2Feurpub%2Fckn139>). European Journal of Public Health. 19 (1): 2–4. doi:10.1093/eurpub/ckn139 (<https://doi.org/10.1093%2Feurpub%2Fckn139>). PMID 19158101 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/19158101/>).

- Dunlap, Riley E.; McCright, Aaron M. (2011). Climate Change Denial: Sources, actors, and strategies. Taylor & Francis. ISBN 978-0-415-54478-8.
- Dunlap, Riley E. (2013). "Climate Change Skepticism and Denial: An Introduction" (<http://www.researchgate.net/publication/274306932>). American Behavioral Scientist. 57 (6): 691–698. doi:10.1177/0002764213477097 (<https://doi.org/10.1177%2F0002764213477097>). S2CID 147126996 (<https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:147126996>). Retrieved 27 May 2015.
- Dunlap, Riley E.; McCright, Aaron M. (2011). "Organised Climate Change Denial". In Dryzek, John S.; Norgaard, Richard B.; Schlosberg, David (eds.). The Oxford Handbook of Climate Change and Society (<https://books.google.com/books?id=JihhbdpO-yoC&pg=PA153>). Oxford University Press. p. 153. ISBN 978-0-19-956660-0.
- Dunlap, R. E.; Jacques, P. J. (2013). "Climate Change Denial Books and Conservative Think Tanks: Exploring the Connection" (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC3787818>). American Behavioral Scientist. 57 (6): 699–731. doi:10.1177/0002764213477096 (<https://doi.org/10.1177%2F0002764213477096>). PMC 3787818 (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC3787818>). PMID 24098056 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/24098056>).
- Gelbspan, Ross (December 1995). "The heat is on: The warming of the world's climate sparks a blaze of denial" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20160307042257/http://www.sorryaboutthat.net/gelbspan.html>). Harper's Magazine. Archived from the original (<http://www.sorryaboutthat.net/gelbspan.html>) on 7 March 2016. Retrieved 2 June 2015.
- Gelbspan, Ross (1 January 1997). The Heat is on: The High Stakes Battle Over Earth's Threatened Climate (<https://archive.org/details/heatisonhighstak00gelb>). Addison-Wesley Publishing Company. ISBN 978-0-201-13295-3.
- Gelbspan, Ross (1998). The heat is on : the climate crisis, the cover-up, the prescription (<https://archive.org/details/heatisonclim00gelb>). Reading, Mass: Perseus Books. ISBN 978-0-7382-0025-5.
- Hamilton, Clive (7 April 2011). Requiem for a Species: Why We Resist the Truth about Climate Change (<https://books.google.com/books?id=BdDTUvcFE1YC&pg=PT137>). Routledge. ISBN 978-1-84977-498-7.
- Jacques, P.J.; Dunlap, Riley E.; Freeman, M. (2008). "The organisation of denial: Conservative think tanks and environmental scepticism". Environmental Politics. 17 (3): 349–385. doi:10.1080/09644010802055576 (<https://doi.org/10.1080%2F09644010802055576>). S2CID 144975102 (<https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:144975102>).
- Jenkins, Stephen H. (2015). Tools for Critical Thinking in Biology (<https://books.google.com/books?id=LkzTBgAAQBAJ&pg=PA229>). Oxford University Press. pp. 229, 243. ISBN 9780199981045.
- Kemp, Jeremy; Milne, Richard; Reay, Dave S. (2010). "Sceptics and deniers of climate change not to be confused" (<https://www.researchgate.net/publication/42833922>). Nature. 464 (7289): 673. Bibcode:2010Natur.464..673K (<https://ui.adsabs.harvard.edu/abs/2010Natur.464..673K>). doi:10.1038/464673a (<https://doi.org/10.1038%2F464673a>). PMID 20360714 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/20360714>). Retrieved 7 September 2015.
- Lever-Tracy, Constance (2010). Routledge Handbook of Climate Change and Society (<https://books.google.com/books?id=XfTISxCa6SwC>). Taylor & Francis. ISBN 978-0-203-87621-3.
- Mooney, Chris (2005). The Republican war on science (<https://books.google.com/books?id=D3-SAIY8MYcC>). New York: Basic Books. ISBN 978-0-465-04675-1.
- National Center for Science Education (5 January 2012). "Why Is It Called Denial?" (<http://ncse.com/climate/denial/why-is-it-called-denial>). National Center for Science Education. Retrieved 2 June 2015.
- National Center for Science Education (4 June 2010). "Climate change is good science" (<http://ncse.com/climate/denial/climate-change-is-good-science>). National Center for Science Education. Retrieved 21 June 2015.

- Nerlich, Brigitte (2010). "'Climategate': Paradoxical Metaphors and Political Paralysis" (<https://www.academia.edu/2521175>). Environmental Values. 19 (4): 419–442. doi:10.3197/096327110x531543 (<https://doi.org/10.3197%2F096327110x531543>). Retrieved 4 July 2015.
- Orlóci, L. (2008). "Vegetation displacement issues and transition statistics in climate warming cycle" (<https://www.researchgate.net/publication/250008746>). Community Ecology. 9 (1): 83–98. doi:10.1556/comec.9.2008.1.10 (<https://doi.org/10.1556%2Fcomec.9.2008.1.10>). Retrieved 29 July 2015.
- Painter, James; Ashe, Teresa (2012). "Cross-national comparison of the presence of climate scepticism in the print media in six countries, 2007" (<https://doi.org/10.1088%2F1748-9326%2F7%2F4%2F044005>). Environ. Res. Lett. 7 (4): 044005. Bibcode:2012ERL.....7d4005P (<https://ui.adsabs.harvard.edu/abs/2012ERL.....7d4005P>). doi:10.1088/1748-9326/7/4/044005 (<https://doi.org/10.1088%2F1748-9326%2F7%2F4%2F044005>).
- Powell, James Lawrence (1 December 2012). The Inquisition of Climate Science (<https://books.google.com/books?id=5SU7utP8PIMC&pg=PA172>). Columbia University Press. ISBN 978-0-231-15719-3.
- Rennie, John (30 November 2009). "Seven Answers to Climate Contrarian Nonsense" (<http://www.scientificamerican.com/article/seven-answers-to-climate-contrarian-nonsense/>). Scientific American.
- Timmer, John (16 December 2014). "Skeptics, deniers, and contrarians: The climate science label game" (<https://arstechnica.com/staff/2014/12/skeptics-deniers-and-contrarians-the-climate-science-label-game/>). Ars Technica.
- Vaidyanathan, Gayathri (2014). "What Have Climate Scientists Learned from 20-Year Fight with Deniers?" (<http://www.scientificamerican.com/article/what-have-climate-scientists-learned-from-20-year-fight-with-deniers/>). Scientific American.
- Washington, Haydn (2013). Climate Change Denial: Heads in the Sand. Routledge. ISBN 978-1-136-53004-3.
- Weart, Spencer R. (July 2007). "Roger Revelle's Discovery" (<https://www.aip.org/history/climate/Revelle.htm>). The Discovery of Global Warming. American Institute of Physics. Retrieved 18 July 2015.
- Weart, Spencer R. (February 2015). "The Public and Climate, cont" (<http://www.aip.org/history/climate/public2.htm>). The Discovery of Global Warming. American Institute of Physics. Retrieved 2 June 2015.
- Weart, Spencer R. (June 2015). "Government: The View from Washington, DC" (<https://www.aip.org/history/climate/Govt.htm>). The Discovery of Global Warming. American Institute of Physics. Retrieved 18 July 2015.
- Weart, Spencer (2011). "Global warming: How skepticism became denial" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20150610085845/http://www.staff.fcps.net/dgmartin/Global%20Warming%20-%20How%20Skepticism%20Became%20Denial.pdf>) (PDF). Bulletin of the Atomic Scientists. 67 (1): 41–50. Bibcode:2011BuAtS..67a..41W (<https://ui.adsabs.harvard.edu/abs/2011BuAtS..67a..41W>). doi:10.1177/0096340210392966 (<https://doi.org/10.1177%2F0096340210392966>). S2CID 53607015 (<https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:53607015>). Archived from the original (<http://www.staff.fcps.net/dgmartin/Global%20Warming%20-%20How%20Skepticism%20Became%20Denial.pdf>) (PDF) on 10 June 2015.

Further reading

- Kathy Mulvey (January 2017). "Tillerson Refuses to Acknowledge ExxonMobil's Efforts to Deceive the Public on Climate Change" (<https://therealnews.com/kmulvey0112exxon/>)
- Hausfather, Zeke (January 2017). "No 'Pause' in Global Warming: Oceans Heating Up and Sea Levels Rising at Alarming Pace" (<https://therealnews.com/zhausfather0109warming>). "Details the findings of a new report that confirms NOAA data about climate change."
- David Kaiser and Lee Wasserman (December 2016). "Part 1 (<http://www.nybooks.com/articles/2016/12/08/the-rockefeller-family-fund-vs-exxon/>)" and "Part 2 (<https://www.nybooks.com/articles/2016/12/22/rockefeller-family-fund-takes-on-exxon-mobil/>)," New York Review of Books

- "Frontline: Climate of Doubt" (<https://www.pbs.org/wgbh/frontline/film/climate-of-doubt/>). PBS. 23 October 2012. Retrieved 25 October 2012.
- "Dealing in Doubt: The climate denial industry and climate science - a brief history of attacks on climate science, climate scientists and the IPCC" (<http://www.greenpeace.org/international/en/publications/reports/dealing-in-doubt/>). Greenpeace. 24 March 2010. Retrieved 22 September 2014.
- Bowen, Mark (2008). Censoring Science: Dr. James Hansen and the Truth of Global Warming. Plume. ISBN 0-452-28962-9
- McCright, Aaron M.; Dunlap, Riley E. (2003). "Defeating Kyoto: The Conservative Movement's Impact on U.S. Climate Change Policy" (http://stephenschneider.stanford.edu/Publications/PDF_Papers/McCrightDunlap2003.pdf) (PDF). Social Problems. 50 (3): 348–373. CiteSeerX 10.1.1.189.3388 (<https://citeseerx.ist.psu.edu/viewdoc/summary?doi=10.1.1.189.3388>). doi:10.1525/sp.2003.50.3.348 (<https://doi.org/10.1525%2Fsp.2003.50.3.348>).
- Shearer, Christine (2011). "Kivalina: A Climate Change Story" (<https://www.haymarketbooks.org/books/375-kivalina>) Haymarket Books. ISBN 978-1-60846-128-8
- Montlake, Simon (2019) What does climate change have to do with socialism (<https://www.csmonitor.com/Environment/2019/0805/What-does-climate-change-have-to-do-with-socialism>) The Christian Science Monitor
- Oreskes, Naomi, "History Matters to Science: It helps to explain how cynical actors undermine the truth", Scientific American, vol. 323, no. 6 (December 2020), p. 81. "In our 2010 book, Merchants of Doubt, Erik M. Conway and I showed how the same arguments [as those used to cast doubt on the link between tobacco use and lung cancer] were used to delay action on acid rain, the ozone hole and climate change – and this year [2020] we saw the spurious "freedom" argument being used to disparage mask wearing [during the COVID-19 pandemic]."
- Climate fight 'is undermined by social media's toxic reports' (<https://www.theguardian.com/environment/2021/mar/21/climate-fight-is-undermined-by-social-medias-toxic-reports>). The Guardian. 21 March 2021.

Retrieved from "https://en.wikipedia.org/w/index.php?title=Climate_change_denial&oldid=1028442559"

This page was last edited on 14 June 2021, at 00:57 (UTC).

Text is available under the Creative Commons Attribution-ShareAlike License; additional terms may apply. By using this site, you agree to the Terms of Use and Privacy Policy. Wikipedia® is a registered trademark of the Wikimedia Foundation, Inc., a non-profit organization.

High-frequency Active Auroral Research Program

The High-frequency Active Auroral Research Program (HAARP) was initiated as an ionospheric research program jointly funded by the U.S. Air Force, the U.S. Navy, the University of Alaska Fairbanks, and the Defense Advanced Research Projects Agency (DARPA).^[1] It was designed and built by BAE Advanced Technologies. Its original purpose was to analyze the ionosphere and investigate the potential for developing ionospheric enhancement technology for radio communications and surveillance.^[2] As a university-owned facility, HAARP is a high-power, high-frequency transmitter used for study of the ionosphere.

The most prominent instrument at HAARP is the Ionospheric Research Instrument (IRI), a high-power radio frequency transmitter facility operating in the high frequency (HF) band. The IRI is used to temporarily excite a limited area of the ionosphere. Other instruments, such as a VHF and a UHF radar, a fluxgate magnetometer, a digisonde (an ionospheric sounding device), and an induction magnetometer, are used to study the physical processes that occur in the excited region.

Work on the HAARP facility began in 1993. The current working IRI was completed in 2007; its prime contractor was BAE Systems Advanced Technologies.^[1] As of 2008, HAARP had incurred around $250 million in tax-funded construction and operating costs. In May 2014, it was announced that the HAARP program would be permanently shut down later in the year.^[3] After discussions between the parties, ownership of the facility and its equipment was transferred to the University of Alaska Fairbanks in August 2015.^[4]

HAARP is a target of conspiracy theorists, who claim that it is capable of "weaponizing" weather. Commentators and scientists say that advocates of this theory are uninformed, as claims made fall well outside the abilities of the facility, if not the scope of natural science.^{[5][6]}

High-frequency Active Auroral Research Program Research Station

Established	1993
Field of research	Ionosphere
Location	Gakona, Alaska , United States
Operating agency	University of Alaska Fairbanks
Website	https://www.haarp.alaska.edu/

Contents

History

Project overview

Research

Instrumentation and operation

Site

Related facilities

Conspiracy theories

See also

References

Further reading

External links

History

The High-frequency Active Auroral Research Program began in 1990. Ted Stevens, Republican U.S. senator from Alaska, helped win approval for the facility,^[7] and construction began in 1993.

In early May 2013, HAARP was temporarily shut down, awaiting a change between contractors to operate the facility. In July 2013, HAARP program manager James Keeney said, "Defense Advanced Research Projects Agency (DARPA) is expected on site as a client to finish up some research in fall 2013 and winter 2014."^{[8][9]} The temporary shutdown was described as being due to "a contractor regime change." Ahtna, Incorporated, the Alaska Native corporation serving the region of Alaska where the HAARP site is located, was reportedly in talks to take over the facility administration contract from Marsh Creek, LLC.^[10]

In May 2014, the Air Force announced that the HAARP program would be shut down later in 2014.^{[3][11]} While experiments ended in the summer of 2014, the complete shutdown and dismantling of the facility was postponed until at least May 2015.^[12] In mid-August 2015 control of the facility and its equipment was turned over to the University of Alaska Fairbanks, which is making the facilities available for researchers on a pay-per-use basis.^[13]

Project overview

The HAARP project directs a 3.6 MW signal, in the 2.8–10 MHz region of the HF (high-frequency) band, into the ionosphere. The signal may be pulsed or continuous. Effects of the transmission and any recovery period can be examined using associated instrumentation, including VHF and UHF radars, HF receivers, and optical cameras. According to the HAARP team, this will advance the study of basic natural processes that occur in the ionosphere under the natural but much stronger influence of solar interaction. HAARP also enables studies of how the natural ionosphere affects radio signals.

HAARP antenna array

The insights gleaned at HAARP will enable scientists to develop methods to mitigate these effects to improve the reliability or performance of communication and navigation systems which would have a wide range of both civilian and military uses, such as an increased accuracy of GPS navigation and advances in underwater and underground research and applications. This may lead, among other things, to improved methods for submarine communication or an ability to remotely sense and map the mineral content of the terrestrial subsurface, and perhaps underground complexes, of regions or countries. The current facility lacks range to be used in regions like the oil-rich Middle East, according to one of the researchers involved, but the technology could be put on a mobile platform.^[14]

The project was originally funded by the Office of Naval Research and jointly managed by the ONR and Air Force Research Laboratory, with principal involvement of the University of Alaska Fairbanks. Many other US universities and educational institutions were involved in the development of the project and its instruments, namely the University of Alaska Fairbanks, Stanford University, Penn State University (ARL), Boston College, UCLA, Clemson University, Dartmouth College, Cornell University, Johns Hopkins University, University of Maryland, College Park, University of Massachusetts Amherst, MIT, Polytechnic Institute of New York University, Virginia Tech and the University of Tulsa. The project's specifications were developed by the universities, who continued to play a major role in the design of future research efforts.

According to HAARP's original management, the project strove for openness, and all activities were logged and publicly available, a practice which continues under the University of Alaska Fairbanks. Scientists without security clearances, even foreign nationals, were routinely allowed on site, which also continues today. HAARP hosts an open house annually, during which time any civilian can tour the entire facility. In addition, scientific results obtained using HAARP are routinely published in major research journals (such as Geophysical Research Letters and Journal of Geophysical Research), written both by university scientists (American and foreign) and by U.S. Department of Defense research lab scientists.

Research

HAARP's main goal is basic science research in the uppermost portion of the atmosphere, termed the ionosphere. Essentially a transition between the atmosphere and the magnetosphere, the ionosphere is where the atmosphere is thin enough that the sun's X-rays and UV rays can reach it, but thick enough that there are enough molecules present to absorb those rays. Consequently, the ionosphere consists of a rapid increase in density of free electrons, beginning at ≈ 70 km, reaching a peak at ~ 300 km, and then falling off again as the atmosphere disappears entirely by $\sim 1,000$ km. Various aspects of HAARP can study all of the main layers of the ionosphere.

The profile of the ionosphere is highly variable, changing constantly on timescales of minutes, hours, days, seasons, and years. This profile becomes even more complex near Earth's magnetic poles, where the nearly vertical alignment and intensity of earth's magnetic field can cause physical effects like the aurora.

The ionosphere is traditionally very difficult to measure. Balloons cannot reach it because the air is too thin, but satellites cannot orbit there because the air is too thick. Hence, most experiments on the ionosphere give only small pieces of information. HAARP approaches the study of the ionosphere by following in the footsteps of an ionospheric heater called EISCAT near Tromsø, Norway. There, scientists pioneered exploration of the ionosphere by perturbing it with radio waves in the 2–10 MHz range, and studying how the ionosphere reacts. HAARP performs the same functions but with more power and a more flexible and agile HF beam.

Some of the main capabilities of HAARP include:

1. Generating very low frequency (VLF) radio waves by modulated heating of the auroral electrojet, useful because generating VLF waves ordinarily requires gigantic antennas

2. Generating artificial Airglow, which is typically subvisual but routinely detectable. Under certain geophysical conditions and transmitter configurations, it can be bright enough to observe with the unaided eye.^{[15][16]}
3. Generating extremely low frequency (ELF) waves in the 0.1 Hz range. These are next to impossible to produce any other way, because the length of an antenna is dictated by the wavelength of the signal it emits or receives.
4. Generating whistler-mode VLF signals that enter the magnetosphere and propagate to the other hemisphere, interacting with Van Allen radiation belt particles along the way
5. VLF remote sensing of the heated ionosphere

Research at the HAARP has included:

1. Plasma line observations
2. Stimulated electron emission observations
3. Gyro frequency heating research
4. Spread F observations (blurring of ionospheric echoes of radio waves due to irregularities in electron density in the F layer)
5. High-velocity trace runs
6. Airglow observations^[17]
7. Heating induced scintillation observations
8. VLF and ELF generation observations^[18]
9. Radio observations of meteors
10. Polar mesospheric summer echoes (PMSE) have been studied, probing the mesosphere using the IRI as a powerful radar, and with a 28 MHz radar and two VHF radars at 49 MHz and 139 MHz. The presence of multiple radars spanning both HF and VHF bands allows scientists to make comparative measurements that may someday lead to an understanding of the processes that form these elusive phenomena.
11. Research into extraterrestrial HF radar echos: the Lunar Echo experiment (2008).^{[19][20]}
12. Testing of Spread Spectrum Transmitters (2009)
13. Meteor shower impacts on the ionosphere
14. Response and recovery of the ionosphere from solar flares and geomagnetic storms
15. The effect of ionospheric disturbances on GPS satellite signal quality
16. Producing high density plasma clouds in Earth's upper atmosphere^[21]
17. Underground imaging.^[22]

Research conducted at the HAARP facility has allowed the US military to perfect communications with its fleet of submarines by sending radio signals over long distances.^{[23][24]}

Instrumentation and operation

The main instrument at HAARP is the Ionospheric Research Instrument (IRI). This is a high-power, high-frequency phased array radio transmitter with a set of 180 antennas, disposed in an array of 12x15 units that occupy a rectangle of about 30–40 acres (12–16 hectares).^{[25][26]} The IRI is used to temporarily energize a small portion of the ionosphere. The study of these disturbed volumes yields important information for understanding natural ionospheric processes.

During active ionospheric research, the signal generated by the transmitter system is delivered to the antenna array and transmitted in an upward direction. At an altitude between 70 to 350 km (43 to 217 mi) (depending on operating frequency), the signal is partially absorbed in a small volume several tens of kilometers in diameter and a few meters thick over the IRI. The intensity of the HF signal in the ionosphere is less than $3 \mu\text{W}/\text{cm}^2$, tens of thousands of times less than the Sun's natural electromagnetic radiation reaching the earth and hundreds of times less than even the normal random variations in intensity of the Sun's natural ultraviolet (UV) energy which creates the ionosphere. The small effects that are produced, however, can be observed with the sensitive scientific instruments installed at the HAARP facility, and these observations can provide information about the dynamics of plasmas and insight into the processes of solar-terrestrial interactions.^[27]

Each antenna element consists of a crossed dipole that can be polarized for linear, ordinary mode (O-mode), or extraordinary mode (X-mode) transmission and reception.^{[28][29]} Each part of the two section crossed dipoles is individually fed from a specially designed, custom-built transmitter that operates at very low distortion levels. The effective radiated power (ERP) of the IRI is limited by more than a factor of 10 at its lower operating frequencies. Much of this is due to higher antenna losses and a less efficient antenna pattern.

The IRI can transmit between 2.7 and 10 MHz, a frequency range that lies above the AM radio broadcast band and well below Citizens' Band frequency allocations. However, HAARP is licensed to transmit only in certain segments of this frequency range. When the IRI is transmitting, the bandwidth of the transmitted signal is 100 kHz or less. The IRI can transmit in continuous waves (CW) or in pulses as short as 10 microseconds (μs). CW transmission is generally used for ionospheric modification, while transmission in short pulses frequently repeated is used as a radar system. Researchers can run experiments that use both modes of transmission, first modifying the ionosphere for a predetermined amount of time, then measuring the decay of modification effects with pulsed transmissions.

There are other geophysical instruments for research located at the HAARP facility. Some of them are:

- A fluxgate magnetometer built by the University of Alaska Fairbanks Geophysical Institute, available to chart variations in the Earth's magnetic field. Rapid and sharp changes of the magnetic field may indicate a geomagnetic storm.
- A digisonde that can provide ionospheric profiles, allowing scientists to choose appropriate frequencies for IRI operation. The HAARP makes current and historic digisonde information available online.
- An induction magnetometer, provided by the University of Tokyo, that measures the changing geomagnetic field in the Ultra Low Frequency (ULF) range of 0–5 Hz.

The facility is powered by a set of five 2500 kilowatt generators being driven by EMD 20-645-E4 diesel locomotive engines.

Site

The project site ($62^{\circ}23'30''\text{N}$ $145^{\circ}09'03''\text{W}$) is north of Gakona, Alaska just west of Wrangell-Saint Elias National Park. An environmental impact statement led to permission for an array of up to 180 antennas to be erected.^[30] HAARP was constructed at the previous site of an over-the-horizon radar (OTH) installation. A large structure, built to house the OTH now houses the HAARP control room, kitchen and offices. Several other small structures house various instruments.

The HAARP site was constructed in three distinct phases:^[31]

1. The Developmental Prototype (DP) had 18 antenna elements, organized in three columns by six rows. It was fed with a total of 360 kilowatts (kW) combined transmitter output power. The DP transmitted just enough power for the most basic of ionospheric testing.
2. The Filled Developmental Prototype (FDP) had 48 antenna units arrayed in six columns by eight rows, with 960 kW of transmitter power. It was fairly comparable to other ionospheric heating facilities. This was used for a number of successful scientific experiments and ionospheric exploration campaigns over the years.
3. The Final IRI (FIRI) is the final build of the IRI. It has 180 antenna units, organized in 15 columns by 12 rows, yielding a theoretical maximum gain of 31 dB. A total of 3.6 MW of transmitter power will feed it, but the power is focused in the upward direction by the geometry of the large phased array of antennas which allow the antennas to work together in controlling the direction. As of March 2007, all the antennas were in place, the final phase was completed and the antenna array was undergoing testing aimed at fine-tuning its performance to comply with safety requirements required by regulatory agencies. The facility officially began full operations in its final status of 3.6 MW transmitter power in the summer of 2007, yielding a maximum effective radiated power (ERP) of 5.1 gigawatts or 97.1 dBW. However, the site typically operates at a fraction of that power due to the lower antenna gain exhibited at frequencies used in standard operation.^[32]

Related facilities

In the United States, there are two related ionospheric heating facilities: the HIPAS, near Fairbanks, Alaska, which was dismantled in 2009, and one at the Arecibo Observatory^[33] in Puerto Rico, which collapsed in 2020. The European Incoherent Scatter Scientific Association (EISCAT) operates an ionospheric heating facility capable of transmitting over 1 GW effective radiated power (ERP), near Tromsø, Norway.^[34] The Sura Ionospheric Heating Facility, in Vasilsursk, Russia, near Nizhniy Novgorod, is capable of transmitting 190 MW ERP.

Conspiracy theories

HAARP is the subject of numerous conspiracy theories. Various individuals have speculated about hidden motivations and capabilities of the project. For example, Rosalie Bertell warned in 1996 about the deployment of HAARP as a military weapon.^[35] Michel Chossudovsky stated in a book published by the Committee on Monetary and Economic Reform that "recent scientific evidence suggests that HAARP is fully operational and has the capability of triggering floods, hurricanes, droughts and earthquakes."^[36] Over time, HAARP has been blamed for generating such catastrophes, as well as thunderstorms, in Iran, Pakistan, Haiti, Turkey, Greece and the Philippines, and even major power outages, the downing of TWA Flight 800, Gulf War syndrome, and chronic fatigue syndrome.^{[6][37][38]}

Allegations include the following:

- Nick Begich Jr., the son of the late U.S. Representative Nick Begich and brother of former U.S. Senator Mark Begich, is the author of Angels Don't Play This HAARP. He has claimed that the HAARP facility could trigger earthquakes and turn the upper atmosphere into a giant lens so that "the sky would literally appear to burn." He maintains a website that claims HAARP is a mind control device.^{[39][40]}
- A Russian military journal wrote that ionospheric testing would "trigger a cascade of electrons that could flip Earth's magnetic poles".^[39]
- The Alaska state legislature and the European Parliament held hearings about HAARP, the latter citing environmental concerns.^[41]

- Former Governor of Minnesota, ex-professional wrestler, and documentary maker Jesse Ventura questioned whether the government is using the site to manipulate the weather or to bombard people with mind-controlling radio waves. An Air Force spokeswoman said Ventura made an official request to visit the research station but was rejected. "He and his crew showed up at HAARP anyway and were denied access."^[42]
- Physicist Bernard Eastlund claimed that HAARP includes technology based on his own patents that has the capability to modify weather and neutralize satellites.^[5]
- It has been proposed as a cause of low frequency background hums said to be heard in various locales.^[43]

Two Georgia men arrested on drug charges in November 2016 were reportedly plotting domestic terrorism based on conspiracy theories about HAARP. The Coffee County Sheriff's Office said the men possessed a "massive arsenal" that included AR-15 rifles, Glock handguns, a Remington rifle and thousands of rounds of ammunition. According to police, the men wanted to destroy HAARP because they believed the facility manipulates the weather, controls minds and even traps the souls of people. Police say the men confessed that "God told them to go and blow this machine up that kept souls, so souls could be released."^{[44][45]}

Stanford University professor Umran Inan told Popular Science that weather-control conspiracy theories were "completely uninformed," explaining that "there's absolutely nothing we can do to disturb the Earth's [weather] systems. Even though the power HAARP radiates is very large, it's minuscule compared with the power of a lightning flash—and there are 50 to 100 lightning flashes every second. HAARP's intensity is very small."^[5] Computer scientist David Naiditch characterizes HAARP as "a magnet for conspiracy theorists," saying that HAARP attracts their attention because, "its purpose seems deeply mysterious to the scientifically uninformed."^[6] Journalist Sharon Weinberger called HAARP "the Moby Dick of conspiracy theories," and said the popularity of conspiracy theories often overshadows the benefits HAARP may provide to the scientific community.^{[46][47]} Austin Baird writing in the Alaska Dispatch said, "What makes HAARP susceptible to conspiracy criticism is simple. The facility doesn't open its doors in the same way as other federally-funded research facilities around the country, and it doesn't go to great efforts to explain the importance of its research to the public."^[37] In 2016, in response to these claims, the University of Alaska Fairbanks Geophysical Institute, which manages the facility, announced that HAARP will host an annual open house in August, allowing visitors to tour the complex.^[48]

See also

- EISCAT
- Geophysical Institute
- HIPAS Observatory
- Ionospheric reflection
- Poker Flat Research Range
- Riometer
- SuperDARN
- Sura Ionospheric Heating Facility

References

1. "HAARP Fact Sheet" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20091007235012/http://www.haarp.alaska.edu/haarp/factSheet.html>). HAARP. 15 June 2007. Archived from the original (<http://www.haarp.alaska.edu/>

- haarp/factSheet.html) on 7 October 2009. Retrieved 27 September 2009.
- "Purpose and Objectives of the HAARP Program" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20091001114140/http://www.haarp.alaska.edu/haarp/prpeis.html>). HAARP. Archived from the original (<http://www.haarp.alaska.edu/haarp/prpeis.html>) on 1 October 2009. Retrieved 27 September 2009.
 - Cole, Dermot (14 May 2014). "Air Force prepares to dismantle HAARP ahead of summer shutdown" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20140517010257/http://www.adn.com/2014/05/14/3470442/air-force-prepares-to-dismantle.html>). Anchorage Daily News. Archived from the original (<http://www.adn.com/2014/05/14/3470442/air-force-prepares-to-dismantle.html>) on 17 May 2014.
 - Rozell, Ned (6 September 2015). "Under new management, Alaska's HAARP facility open for business again" (<http://www.adn.com/article/20150906/under-new-management-alaskas-haarp-facility-open-business-again>). Alaska Dispatch News. Retrieved 10 September 2015.
 - Streep, Abe (18 June 2008). "The Military's Mystery Machine: The High-frequency Active Auroral Research Program, or HAARP, has been called a missile-defense tool and a mind-control device. The truth is a bit less ominous" (<http://www.popsci.com/military-aviation-space/article/2008-06/military-s-mystery-machine>). Popular Science. Retrieved 12 December 2012.
 - Naiditch, David (Spring 2003). "Is baked Alaska half-baked?" (<http://www.skeptic.com/eskeptic/10-03-03/#feature>). Skeptic Magazine. Retrieved 25 January 2010.
 - Weinberger, Sharon (16 May 2014). "US ionospheric research facility to close" (<http://www.nature.com/news/us-ionospheric-research-facility-to-close-1.15243>). Nature. Nature. Retrieved 18 August 2014.
 - "HAARP Facility Shuts Down" (<http://www.arrrl.org/news/view/haarp-facility-shuts-down>). ARRL. Retrieved 16 July 2013.
 - Byrd, Deborah. "Crazy weather? You can't blame HAARP anymore" (<http://earthsky.org/earth/crazy-weather-you-cant-blame-haarp-anymore>). EarthSky, 16 July 2013. Retrieved 17 July 2013.
 - Anderson, Ben (18 July 2013). "Alaska's controversial HAARP facility closed – will it come back online?" (<http://www.alaskadispatch.com/article/20130717/alaska-s-controversial-haarp-facility-closed-will-it-come-back-online>). Alaska Dispatch. Retrieved 18 July 2013.
 - Brumfiel, Geoff (10 June 2014). "Bye-Bye to the Home of a Favorite Internet Conspiracy Theory" (<https://www.npr.org/2014/06/10/319539712/bye-bye-to-the-home-of-a-favorite-internet-conspiracy-theory>). NPR. Retrieved 11 June 2014.
 - Cole, Dermot (2 July 2014). "HAARP closure postponed until 2015" (<http://www.adn.com/article/20140702/haarp-closure-postponed-until-2015>). Alaska Dispatch News. Retrieved 3 June 2015.
 - McCoy, Robert (2015). "Future Operations of HAARP with the UAF's Geophysical Institute" (<https://fallmeeting.agu.org/2015/abstract/future-operations-of-haarp-with-the-uafs-geophysical-institute/>). AGU Fall Meeting Abstracts. American Geophysical Union Fall Meeting 2015. Bibcode:2015AGUFMAE22A..07M (<https://ui.adsabs.harvard.edu/abs/2015AGUFMAE22A..07M>). AE22A–07. Retrieved 10 September 2015.
 - Hambling, David (12 January 2010). "Pentagon Scientists Target Iran's Nuclear Mole Men" (<https://www.wired.com/2010/01/irans-nuclear-molemen/>). Retrieved 18 December 2018 – via www.wired.com.
 - Pedersen, Todd R.; Gerken, Elizabeth A. (2005). "Creation of visible artificial optical emissions in the aurora by high-power radio waves". Nature. 433 (7025): 498–500. Bibcode:2005Natur.433..498P (<https://ui.adsabs.harvard.edu/abs/2005Natur.433..498P>). doi:10.1038/nature03243 (<https://doi.org/10.1038/nature03243>). ISSN 1476-4687 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/1476-4687>). PMID 15690034 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/15690034>). S2CID 3056957 (<https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:3056957>).
 - Hysell, D. L.; Miceli, R. J.; Kendall, E. A.; Schlatter, N. M.; Varney, R. H.; Watkins, B. J.; Pedersen, T. R.; Bernhardt, P. A.; Huba, J. D. (2014). "Heater-induced ionization inferred from spectrometric airglow measurements". Journal of Geophysical Research: Space Physics. 119 (3): 2038–2045. Bibcode:2014JGRA..119.2038H (<https://ui.adsabs.harvard.edu/abs/2014JGRA..119.2038H>). doi:10.1002/2013JA019663 (<https://doi.org/10.1002/2013JA019663>). ISSN 2169-9402 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/2169-9402>).

17. Kendall, Elizabeth; Marshall, Robert; Parris, Richard Todd; Bhatt, Asti; Coster, Anthea; Pedersen, Todd; Bernhardt, Paul; Selcher, Craig (2010). "Decameter structure in heater-induced airglow at the High frequency Active Auroral Research Program facility" (<https://doi.org/10.1029%2F2009JA015043>). Journal of Geophysical Research: Space Physics. 115 (A8): n/a. Bibcode:2010JGRA..115.8306K (<https://ui.adsabs.harvard.edu/abs/2010JGRA..115.8306K>). doi:10.1029/2009JA015043 (<https://doi.org/10.1029%2F2009JA015043>). ISSN 2156-2202 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/2156-2202>).
18. Cohen, M. B.; Inan, U. S.; Golkowski, M. A. (June 2008). "Geometric modulation: A more effective method of steerable ELF/VLF wave generation with continuous HF heating of the lower ionosphere" (<https://doi.org/10.1029%2F2008GL034061>). Geophysical Research Letters. 35 (L12101): n/a. Bibcode:2008GeoRL..3512101C (<https://ui.adsabs.harvard.edu/abs/2008GeoRL..3512101C>). doi:10.1029/2008GL034061 (<https://doi.org/10.1029%2F2008GL034061>).
19. Reeve, W.D. (2008). "The Lunar Echo Experiment (Part 1)". Radio User. 3 (8): 56–58. ISSN 1748-8117 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/1748-8117>).
20. Reeve, W.D. (2008). "The Lunar Echo Experiment (Part 2)". Radio User. 3 (9): 56–57. ISSN 1748-8117 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/1748-8117>).
21. "NRL Scientists Produce Densest Artificial Ionospheric Plasma Clouds Using HAARP" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20130302065739/http://www.nrl.navy.mil/media/news-releases/2013/nrl-scientists-produce-densest-artificial-ionospheric-plasma-clouds-using-haarp>) (Press release). U.S. Naval Research Lab. 25 February 2013. Archived from the original (<http://www.nrl.navy.mil/media/news-releases/2013/nrl-scientists-produce-densest-artificial-ionospheric-plasma-clouds-using-haarp>) on 2 March 2013. Retrieved 5 April 2013. "Using the 3.6-megawatt high-frequency (HF) HAARP transmitter, the plasma clouds, or balls of plasma, are being studied for use as artificial mirrors at altitudes 50 kilometers below the natural ionosphere and are to be used for reflection of HF radar and communications signals. Past attempts to produce electron density enhancements have yielded densities of 4×10^5 electrons per cubic centimeter (cm^3) using HF radio transmissions near the second, third, and fourth harmonics of the electron cyclotron frequency. This frequency near 1.44 MHz is the rate that electrons gyrate around the Earth's magnetic field. The NRL group succeeded in producing artificial plasma clouds with densities exceeding 9×10^5 electrons cm^3 using HAARP transmission at the sixth harmonic of the electron cyclotron frequency."
22. "Detection and Imaging of Underground Structures Using ELF/VLF Radio Waves" (<https://www.globalsecurity.org/intell/systems/haarp.htm>). GlobalSecurity. Retrieved 13 July 2018.
23. Bailey, Patrick; Worthington, Nancy (27 July 1997). "History and applications of HAARP technologies: the High Frequency Active Auroral Research Program". IECEC-97 Proceedings of the Thirty-Second Intersociety Energy Conversion Engineering Conference (Cat. No.97CH6203). IEEE. pp. 1317–1322 vol.2. doi:10.1109/IECEC.1997.661959 (<https://doi.org/10.1109%2FIECEC.1997.661959>). ISBN 0-7803-4515-0. S2CID 108467419 (<https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:108467419>).
24. Barr, R.; Llanwyn Jones, D.; Rodger, C.J. (2000). "ELF and VLF radio waves". Journal of Atmospheric and Solar-Terrestrial Physics. 62 (17–18): 1689–1718. Bibcode:2000JASTP..62.1689B (<https://ui.adsabs.harvard.edu/abs/2000JASTP..62.1689B>). doi:10.1016/S1364-6826(00)00121-8 (<https://doi.org/10.1016%2FS1364-6826%2800%2900121-8>).
25. "Opportunities for High-Power, High-Frequency Transmitters to Advance Ionospheric/Thermospheric Research: Report of a Workshop" (<https://www.nap.edu/read/18620/chapter/2>), National Academies Press. National Academy of Sciences, Engineering, and Medicine. 2014. Retrieved 8 February 2017
26. "Ionospheric Manipulation Made Easy" (<https://books.google.com/books?id=9jsEAAAAMBAJ&pg=PA62&dq>), Abe Streep. Popular Science Vol. 273, No. 1. July 2008. Retrieved 8 February 2017
27. "Technical Information" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20091002090806/http://www.haarp.alaska.edu/haarp/tech.html>). HAARP. 12 April 2007. Archived from the original (<http://www.haarp.alaska.edu/haarp/tech.html>) on 2 October 2009. Retrieved 27 September 2009.
28. "The HAARP Antenna Array" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20070415111323/http://www.haarp.alaska.edu/haarp/ant3.html>). HAARP. Archived from the original (<http://www.haarp.alaska.edu/haarp/ant3.html>) on 15 April 2007. Retrieved 27 September 2009.

29. "Details of the HAARP Antenna Design" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20070513135131/http://www.haarp.alaska.edu/haarp/ant2.html>). HAARP. Archived from the original (<http://www.haarp.alaska.edu/haarp/ant2.html>) on 13 May 2007. Retrieved 27 September 2009.
30. "The HAARP IRI As Described in the EIS" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20090925144409/http://www.haarp.alaska.edu/haarp/iriEis.html>). 17 May 2007. Archived from the original (<http://www.haarp.alaska.edu/haarp/iriEis.html>) on 25 September 2009. Retrieved 27 September 2009.
31. "Phases of Completion of the IRI" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20070501131817/http://www.haarp.alaska.edu/haarp/phases.html>). HAARP. Archived from the original (<http://www.haarp.alaska.edu/haarp/phases.html>) on 1 May 2007.
32. "HAARP IRI Performance Calculator" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20100419223036/http://www.haarp.alaska.edu/haarp/calci.html>). 10 May 2010. Archived from the original (<http://www.haarp.alaska.edu/haarp/calci.html>) on 19 April 2010. Retrieved 10 May 2010.
33. Link text (http://www.naic.edu/general_int/gen_wshops/AGRP%20workshop%20report5.pdf) Archived (https://web.archive.org/web/20101203075110/http://www.naic.edu/general_int/gen_wshops/AGRP%20workshop%20report5.pdf) 3 December 2010 at the Wayback Machine
34. B. Isham; C. La Hoz; M. T. Rietveld; F. T. Djuth; T. Hagfors; T. Grydeland (October 2000). "High Latitude HF-Induced Plasma Turbulence" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20111108050251/http://www.kurasc.kyoto-u.ac.jp/s-ramp/abstract/s19.txt>). The First S-RAMP Conference. Archived from the original (<http://www.kurasc.kyoto-u.ac.jp/s-ramp/abstract/s19.txt>) on 8 November 2011. Retrieved 27 September 2009.
35. ROSALIE BERTELL, Background on the HAARP Project (<http://www.globalpolicy.org/component/content/article/212/45492.html>). Global Policy Forum, 5 November 1996
36. MICHEL CHOSSUDOVSKY, Climate Manipulation as a War Weapon, p181-182. In WILLIAM KREHM, Meltdown : Money, Debt and Wealth of Nations : how Zero Inflation Policy is Leading the World's Monetary and Economic Systems to Collapse : an Anthology from the First Decade of Economic Reform, COMER Publications, 1 January 1999
37. Baird, Austin (20 September 2011). "HAARP conspiracies: Guide to most far-out theories behind government research in Alaska" (<http://www.alaskadispatch.com/article/haarp-conspiracies-guide-most-far-out-theories-behind-government-research-alaska>). Alaska Dispatch. Retrieved 8 December 2012.
38. Flock, Elizabeth (29 October 2012). "Conspiracy Theorists Say Obama Engineered Hurricane Sandy" (<https://www.usnews.com/news/blogs/washington-whispers/2012/10/29/conspiracy-theorists-say-obama-engineered-hurricane-sandy>). US News & World Report. Retrieved 8 December 2012.
39. Shachtman, Noah (20 July 2009). "Strange New Air Force Facility Energizes Ionosphere, Fans Conspiracy Flames" (http://archive.wired.com/politics/security/magazine/17-08/mf_haarp?currentPage=all). Wired Magazine. Retrieved 17 April 2011.
40. "About us - Dr. Nick Begich" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20110518105035/http://www.earthpulse.com/src/category.asp?catid=13>). Archived from the original (<http://www.earthpulse.com/src/category.asp?catid=13>) on 18 May 2011. Retrieved 2 June 2011.
41. "EU clashes with US over atmosphere tests" (<https://physicsworld.com/a/eu-clashes-with-us-over-atmosphere-tests>). physicsworld.com. IOP Publishing, 27 February 1998. Retrieved 10 May 2020.
42. Baenen, Jeff. "Ventura seeks out conspiracy theories at Alaska station" (https://web.archive.org/web/20131214195544/http://juneauempire.com/stories/120309/sta_531557452.shtml). Juneau Empire. Archived from the original (http://juneauempire.com/stories/120309/sta_531557452.shtml) on 14 December 2013. Retrieved 17 October 2011.
43. Josh Clark and Charles W. "Chuck" Bryant (9 December 2014). "How The Hum Works" (<http://www.stuffyoushouldknow.com/podcasts/how-the-hum-works/>). Stuff You Should Know (Podcast). Blucora. Retrieved 10 December 2014.

44. Zak, Annie. "Georgia men plotted attack on Alaska aurora research facility to 'release souls,' detective says" (<https://www.adn.com/alaska-news/2016/11/01/2-men-arrested-in-georgia-planned-to-attack-alaska-aurora-research-facility-investigators-say/>). Anchorage Daily News. Retrieved 2 January 2017.
45. Buckets, Re-Essa. "Suspected terrorists believe research facility controls minds, traps souls" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20180829081226/http://www.walb.com/story/33541811/suspected-terrorists-believes-research-facility-controls-minds-traps-souls>). WALB news. Archived from the original (<http://www.walb.com/story/33541811/suspected-terrorists-believes-research-facility-controls-minds-traps-souls>) on 29 August 2018. Retrieved 2 January 2017.
46. Weinberger, Sharon (23 April 2008). "Atmospheric physics: Heating up the heavens" (<https://doi.org/10.1038%2F452930a>). Nature. 452 (7190): 930–2. doi:10.1038/452930a (<https://doi.org/10.1038%2F452930a>). PMID 18441549 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/18441549>).
47. Weinberger, Sharon (25 April 2008). "The Strange Life and Times of HAARP" (<https://www.wired.com/dangerroom/2008/04/haarp/>). Wired Magazine. Retrieved 21 January 2010.
48. Rosen, Yereth (25 August 2016). "HAARP's new owner holds open house to prove facility 'is not capable of mind control'" (<https://www.adn.com/alaska-news/science/2016/08/24/haarps-new-owner-holds-open-house-to-prove-facility-is-not-capable-of-mind-control/>). Anchorage Daily News. Retrieved 18 December 2018.

Further reading

- Y. Zaitsev (11 May 2007). "From radio telescopes to electromagnetic weapons" (<http://en.rian.ru/analysis/20070511/65348455.html>). Ria Novosti. Retrieved 27 September 2009.
- "Evidence for Precipitation of Energetic Particles by Ionospheric "Heating" Transmissions" (<http://www.ngdc.noaa.gov/stp/IONO/Dynasonde/SpEatHeating.htm>). National Geophysical Data Center. 7 December 2004. Retrieved 27 September 2009.
- J. E. Smith (6 May 2006). "HAARPCompleted!" (<https://www.indybay.org/newsitems/2006/05/06/18214461.php>). Indybay. Retrieved 27 September 2009.
- U. S. Inan; T. F. Bell. "Polar Aeronomy and Radio Science (PARS):ULF/ELF/VLF Project" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20090827023437/http://www-star.stanford.edu/~vlf/pars/pars.htm>). STAR Laboratory, Stanford University. Archived from the original (<http://www-star.stanford.edu/~vlf/pars/pars.htm>) on 27 August 2009. Retrieved 27 September 2009.
- U. S. Inan; M. Golkowski; D. L. Carpenter; N. Reddell; R. C. Moore; T. F. Bell; E. Paschal; P. Kossey; E. Kennedy; S. Z. Meth (2004). "Multi-hop whistler-mode ELF/VLF signals and triggered emissions excited by the HAARP HF heater" (<http://vlf.stanford.edu/pubs/multi-hop-whistler-mode-elfvlf-signals-and-triggered-emissions-excited-haarp-hf-heater>). Geophysical Research Letters. 31 (24): L24805. Bibcode:2004GeoRL..3124805I (<https://ui.adsabs.harvard.edu/abs/2004GeoRL..3124805I>). doi:10.1029/2004GL021647 (<https://doi.org/10.1029%2F2004GL021647>).
- E. J. Kennedy; P. Rodriguez; C. A. Selcher. "The High Frequency Active Auroral Research Program" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20090305223823/http://www.nrl.navy.mil/content.php?P=04REVIEW106>). Archived from the original (<http://www.nrl.navy.mil/content.php?P=04REVIEW106>) on 5 March 2009. Retrieved 27 September 2009.
- H. L. Rowland (28 April 1999). "Simulations of ELF radiation generated by heating the high-latitude D- region" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20090427194255/http://wwwppd.nrl.navy.mil/whatsnew/haarp/>). Journal of Geophysical Research. 104 (A3): 4319–4327. Bibcode:1999JGR...104.4319R (<https://ui.adsabs.harvard.edu/abs/1999JGR...104.4319R>). doi:10.1029/1998JA900156 (<https://doi.org/10.1029%2F1998JA900156>). Archived from the original (<http://wwwppd.nrl.navy.mil/whatsnew/haarp/>) on 27 April 2009. Retrieved 27 September 2009.
- Donald Koehler N7MGT, "Secret Death Ray: Or is HAARP a useful science tool?" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20150723180321/https://archive.org/details/73-magazine-1999-12>), 73 Magazine (December 1999): 14–17, 37, archived from the original (<https://archive.org/details/73-magazine-1999-12>)

9-12) on 23 July 2015, retrieved 21 December 2011 A first person account from an amateur radio operator who got a full tour of the HAARP site.

Patents

- C. W. Hansell (1945). "Communication system by pulses through the Earth", U.S. Patent 2,389,432 (<https://patents.google.com/patent/US2389432>).
- R. L. Tanner (1965). "Extremely low-frequency antenna", U.S. Patent 3,215,937 (<https://patents.google.com/patent/US3215937>).
- G. F. Leydorf (1966). "Antenna near field coupling system", U.S. Patent 3,278,937 (<https://patents.google.com/patent/US3278937>).
- B. J. Eastlund (1987). "Method and apparatus for altering a region in the Earth's atmosphere, ionosphere, and/or magnetosphere", U.S. Patent 4,686,605 (<https://patents.google.com/patent/US4686605>).
- B. J. Eastlund (1991). "Method for producing a shell of relativistic particles at an altitude above the earth's surface", U.S. Patent 5,038,664 (<https://patents.google.com/patent/US5038664>).

External links

- Official website \(http://www.haarp.alaska.edu\)
 - HAARP \(https://web.archive.org/web/20110806030611/http://www.eastlundscience.com/HAARP.html\) at EastlundScience.com – website of Bernard Eastlund's Scientific Enterprises Corporation.
 - HAARP executive summary \(http://www.bariumblues.com/haarp_executive_summary.htm\)
 - GoogleMaps satellite image of HAARP \(https://maps.google.com/maps?f=q&hl=en&q=62.39%C2%B0+N,+145.15%C2%B0+W&ll=62.389972,-145.149994&spn=0.036835,0.171661&t=k\)
 - Dunning, Brian \(7 October 2008\). "Skeptoid #122: HAARP Myths" \(https://skeptoid.com/episodes/4122\). Skeptoid.
-

Retrieved from "https://en.wikipedia.org/w/index.php?title=High-frequency_Active_Auroral_Research_Program&oldid=1026429852"

This page was last edited on 2 June 2021, at 06:59 (UTC).

Text is available under the Creative Commons Attribution-ShareAlike License; additional terms may apply. By using this site, you agree to the Terms of Use and Privacy Policy. Wikipedia® is a registered trademark of the Wikimedia Foundation, Inc., a non-profit organization.

Chemtrail conspiracy theory

The chemtrail conspiracy theory posits the erroneous^[1] belief that long-lasting condensation trails are "chemtrails" consisting of chemical or biological agents left in the sky by high-flying aircraft, sprayed for nefarious purposes undisclosed to the general public.^[2] Believers in this conspiracy theory say that while normal contrails dissipate relatively quickly, contrails that linger must contain additional substances.^{[3][4]} Those who subscribe to the theory speculate that the purpose of the chemical release may be solar radiation management,^[3] weather modification, psychological manipulation, human population control, biological or chemical warfare, or testing of biological or chemical agents on a population, and that the trails are causing respiratory illnesses and other health problems.^{[2][5]}

An Airbus A340's engines leaving a water condensation trail (contrail) – miniature clouds formed by the engine exhaust

The claim has been dismissed by the scientific community. There is no evidence that purported chemtrails differ from normal water-based contrails routinely left by high-flying aircraft under certain atmospheric conditions.^[6] Although proponents have tried to prove that chemical spraying occurs, their analyses have been flawed or based on misconceptions.^{[7][8]} Because of the persistence of the conspiracy theory and questions about government involvement, scientists and government agencies around the world have repeatedly explained that the supposed chemtrails are in fact normal contrails.^{[3][9][10]}

The term chemtrail is a portmanteau of the words chemical and trail, just as contrail is a portmanteau of condensation and trail.^[11]

Contents

History

Description

Interpretation of evidence

Beliefs

Actions

Contrails

See also

References

Further reading

External links

History

Chemtrail conspiracy theories began to circulate after the United States Air Force (USAF) published a 1996 report about weather modification.^[10] Following the report, in the late 1990s the USAF was accused of "spraying the U.S. population with mysterious substances" from aircraft "generating unusual contrail patterns."^{[6][12]} The theories were posted on Internet forums by people including Richard Finke and William Thomas, and were among many conspiracy theories popularized by late-night radio host Art Bell, starting in 1999.^{[13][8]} As the chemtrail conspiracy theory spread, federal officials were flooded with angry calls and letters.^{[10][3]}

A multi-agency response attempting to dispel the rumors was published in 2000 by the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA), the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) and the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA).^{[14][15]} Many chemtrail believers interpreted agency fact sheets as further evidence of the existence of a government cover-up.^[3] The EPA refreshed its posting in 2015.^[16]

In the early 2000s the USAF released an undated fact sheet that stated the conspiracy theories were a hoax fueled in part by citations to a 1996 strategy paper drafted within their Air University titled Weather as a Force Multiplier: Owning the Weather in 2025.^{[17][18]} The paper was presented in response to a military directive to outline a future strategic weather modification system for the purpose of maintaining the United States' military dominance in the year 2025, and identified as "fictional representations of future situations/scenarios."^[18] The USAF further clarified in 2005 that the paper "does not reflect current military policy, practice, or capability", and that it is "not conducting any weather modification experiments or programs and has no plans to do so in the future."^{[6][19]} Additionally, the USAF states that the "'chemtrail' hoax has been investigated and refuted by many established and accredited universities, scientific organizations, and major media publications."^[6]

The conspiracy theories are seldom covered by the mainstream media, and when they are, they are usually cast as an example of anti-government paranoia.^[4] For example, in 2013, when it was made public that the CIA, NASA, and NOAA intended to provide funds to the National Academy of Sciences to conduct research into methods to counteract global warming with geoengineering, an article in the International Business Times anticipated that "the idea of any government agency looking at ways to control, or manipulate, the weather will be met with scrutiny and fears of a malign conspiracies" [sic], and mentioned chemtrail conspiracy theories as an example.^[20]

Description

Proponents of the chemtrail conspiracy theory find support for their theories in their interpretations of sky phenomena, videos posted to the Internet, and reports about government programs; they also have certain beliefs about the goals of the alleged conspiracy and the effects of its alleged efforts and generally take certain actions based on those beliefs.

Interpretation of evidence

Multiple concurrent contrails. How long they last depends upon the weather, especially the temperature, humidity, and wind speed.

Proponents of the chemtrail conspiracy theory say that chemtrails can be distinguished from contrails by their long duration, asserting that the chemtrails are those trails left by aircraft that persist for as much as a half-day or transform into cirrus-like clouds.^[4] The proponents claim that after 1995, contrails had a different chemical composition and lasted a lot longer in the sky; proponents fail to acknowledge evidence of long-lasting contrails shown in World War II–era photographs.^[8]

Proponents characterize contrails as streams that persist for hours and that, with their criss-cross, grid-like or parallel stripe patterns, eventually blend to form large clouds. Proponents view the presence of visible color spectra in the streams, unusual concentrations of sky tracks in a single area, or lingering tracks left by unmarked or military airplanes flying at atypical altitudes or locations as markers of chemtrails.^{[3][5][21][22][23]}

Photographs of barrels installed in the passenger space of an aircraft for flight test purposes have been claimed to show aerosol dispersion systems. The real purpose of the barrels is to simulate the weight of passengers or cargo. The barrels are filled with water, and the water can be pumped from barrel to barrel in order to test different centers of gravity while the aircraft is in flight.^[24]

Former CIA employee and whistleblower Edward Snowden, interviewed on "The Joe Rogan Experience", stated that he had searched through all the secret information of the US government for evidence about (aliens and) chemtrails. According to a CNN report^[25] about the webcast^[26] he said: "In case you were wondering: ... Chemtrails are not a thing", and: "I had ridiculous access to the networks of the NSA, the CIA, the military, all these groups. I couldn't find anything".

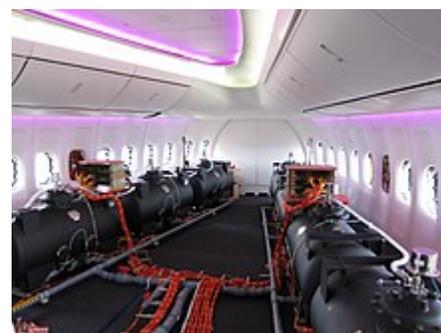

Jim Marrs has cited a 2007 Louisiana television station report as evidence for chemtrails. In the report, the air underneath a crosshatch of supposed chemtrails was measured and apparently found to contain unsafe levels of barium: at 6.8 parts per million, three times the US nationally recommended limit. A subsequent analysis of the footage showed, however, that the equipment had been misused, and the reading exaggerated by a factor of 100—the true level of barium measured was both usual and safe.^[7]

In May 2014 a video that went viral showed a commercial passenger airplane landing on a foggy night, which was described as emitting chemtrails.^[27] Discovery News pointed out that passengers sitting behind the wings would clearly see anything being sprayed, which would defeat any intent to be secretive, and that the purported chemical emission was normal air disruption caused by the wings, visible due to the fog.^[27]

In October 2014, Englishman Chris Bovey filmed a video of a plane jettisoning fuel on a flight from Buenos Aires to London, which had to dump fuel to lighten its load for an emergency landing in São Paulo. The clip went viral on Facebook, with over three million views and more than 52,000 shares, cited as evidence of chemtrails. He later disclosed that the video post was done as a prank, and consequently, he was subjected to some vitriolic abuse and threats from several conspiracy believers.^{[28][29]}

Airbus A380 water-filled tanks simulate passenger weight for different takeoff and landing displacement weights. Similar photographs are sometimes said to show chemtrail planes in action.

Ballast barrels with water in a prototype Boeing 747 flight-test plane

In some accounts, the chemicals are described as barium and aluminum salts, polymer fibers, thorium, or silicon carbide.^[30]

Chemtrail believers interpret the existence of cloud seeding programs and research into climate engineering as evidence for the conspiracy.^[31]

Beliefs

Various versions of the chemtrail conspiracy theory have been propagated via the Internet and radio programs.^[3] There are websites dedicated to the conspiracy theory, and it is particularly favored by far right groups because it fits well with deep suspicion of government.^[4]

A 2014 review of 20 chemtrail websites found that believers appeal to science in some of their arguments, but do not believe what academic or government-employed scientists say;^[30] scientists and federal agencies have consistently denied that chemtrails exist, explaining the sky tracks are simply persistent contrails.^{[3][12][32]} The review also found that believers generally hold that chemtrails are evidence of a global conspiracy; they allege various goals which include profit (for example, manipulating futures prices, or making people sick to benefit drug companies), population control, or weapons testing (use of weather as a weapon, or testing bioweapons).^{[30][32][2]} One of these ideas is that clouds are being seeded with electrically conductive materials as part of a massive electromagnetic superweapons program based around the High Frequency Active Auroral Research Program (HAARP).^{[33][34]} Believers say chemtrails are toxic; the 2014 review found that they generally hold that every person is under attack and often express fear, anxiety, sadness, and anger about this.^[30] A 2011 study of people from the US, Canada, and the UK found that 2.6% of the sample believed entirely in the conspiracy theory, and 14% believed it partially.^{[35][30]} An analysis of responses given to the 2016 Cooperative Congressional Election Study^[36] showed that 9% of the 36,000 respondents believed it was "completely true" that "...the government has a secret program that uses airplanes to put harmful chemicals into the air..." while a further 19% believed this was "somewhat true".^[37]

Actions

Chemtrail conspiracy theorists often describe their experience as being akin to a religious conversion experience. When they "wake up" and become "aware" of chemtrails, the experience motivates them to advocacy of various forms.^[30] For example, they often attend events and conferences on geoengineering, and have sent threats to academics working in the geoengineering field.^[30]

In 2001, in response to requests from constituents, US Congressman Dennis Kucinich introduced (but did not author) H.R. 2977 (107th), the Space Preservation Act of 2001 that would have permanently prohibited the basing of weapons in space, listing chemtrails as one of a number of "exotic weapons" that would be banned.^{[38][39]} Proponents have interpreted this explicit reference to chemtrails as official government acknowledgement of their existence.^{[21][40]} Skeptics note that the bill in question also mentions "extraterrestrial weapons" and "environmental, climate, or tectonic weapons".^[38] The bill received an unfavorable evaluation from the United States Department of Defense and died in committee, with no mention of chemtrails appearing in the text of any of the three subsequent failed attempts by Kucinich to enact a Space Preservation Act.

In 2003, in a response to a petition by concerned Canadian citizens regarding "chemicals used in aerial sprayings are adversely affecting the health of Canadians", the Government House Leader responded by stating, "There is no substantiated evidence, scientific or otherwise, to support the allegation that there is high altitude spraying conducted in Canadian airspace. The term 'chemtrails' is a popularised expression, and there is no scientific evidence to support their existence."^{[41][42][43][44]} The house leader went on to say that "it is our belief that the petitioners are seeing regular airplane condensation trails, or contrails."^[41]

In the United Kingdom, in 2005 Elliot Morley, a Minister of State for the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs^[45] was asked by David Drew, the Labour Party Member of Parliament for Stroud, "what research [the] Department has undertaken into the polluting effects of chemtrails for aircraft", and responded that "the Department is not researching into chemtrails from aircraft as they are not scientifically recognised phenomena", and that work was being conducted to understand "how contrails are formed and what effects they have on the atmosphere."^{[12][46]}

Some chemtrail believers adopt the notions of Wilhelm Reich (1897–1957) who devised a "cloudbuster" device from pipework. Reich claimed this device would influence weather and remove harmful energy from the atmosphere. Some chemtrail believers have built cloudbusters filled with crystals and metal filings, which are pointed at the sky in an attempt to clear it of chemtrails.^[47]

Chemtrail believers sometimes gather samples and have them tested, rather than rely on reports from government or academic laboratories, but their experiments are usually flawed; for example, collecting samples in jars with metal lids contaminates the sample and is not done in scientific testing.^{[30][48]}

Contrails

Contrails, or condensation trails, are "streaks of condensed water vapor created in the air by an airplane or rocket at high altitudes".^[6] Fossil fuel combustion (as in piston and jet engines) produces carbon dioxide and water vapor. At high altitudes the air is very cold. Hot humid air from the engine exhaust mixes with the colder surrounding air, causing the water vapor to condense into droplets or ice crystals that form visible clouds. The rate at which contrails dissipate is entirely dependent on weather conditions. If the atmosphere is near saturation, the contrail may exist for some time. Conversely, if the atmosphere is dry, the contrail will dissipate quickly.^[6]

Contrails from propeller-driven aircraft engine exhaust, early 1940s

Exhaust gases and emissions

Wingtip condensation trails

It is well established by atmospheric scientists that contrails can persist for hours, and that it is normal for them to spread out into cirrus sheets. The different-sized ice crystals in contrails descend at different rates, which spreads the contrail vertically. Then the differential in wind speeds between altitudes (wind shear) results in horizontal spreading of the contrail. This mechanism is similar to the formation of cirrus uncinus clouds. Contrails between 25,000 and 40,000 feet (7,600 and 12,200 m) can often merge into an "almost solid" interlaced sheet.^[49] Contrails can have a lateral spread of several kilometers, and given sufficient air traffic, it is possible for contrails to create an entirely overcast sky that increases the ice budget of individual contrails and persists for hours.^[50]

Experts on atmospheric phenomena say that the characteristics attributed to chemtrails are simply features of contrails responding to diverse conditions in terms of sunlight, temperature, horizontal and vertical wind shear, and humidity levels present at the aircraft's altitude.^{[3][6][5][21]} In the US, the gridlike nature of the National Airspace System's flight lanes tends to cause crosshatched contrails, and in general it is hard to discern from the ground whether overlapping contrails are at similar altitudes or not.^[6] The jointly published fact sheet produced by NASA, the EPA, the FAA, and NOAA in 2000 in response to alarms over chemtrails details the science of contrail formation, and outlines both the known and potential impacts contrails have on temperature and climate.^[19] The USAF produced a fact sheet that described these contrail phenomena as observed and analyzed since at least 1953. It also rebutted chemtrail theories more directly by identifying the theories as a hoax and disproving the existence of chemtrails.^{[6][3]}

Contrail testing being carried out on an Airbus A340 and much older Boeing 707^[6]

Patrick Minnis, an atmospheric scientist with NASA's Langley Research Center in Hampton, Virginia, has said that logic does not dissuade most chemtrail proponents: "If you try to pin these people down and refute things, it's, 'Well, you're just part of the conspiracy' ", he said.^[3]

Analysis of the use of commercial aircraft tracks for climate engineering has shown them to be generally unsuitable.^[51]

Astronomer Bob Berman has characterized the chemtrail conspiracy theory as a classic example of failure to apply Occam's razor, writing in 2009 that instead of adopting the long-established "simple solution" that the trails consist of frozen water vapour, "the conspiracy web sites think the phenomenon started only a decade ago and involves an evil scheme in which 40,000 commercial pilots and air traffic controllers are in on the plot to poison their own children."^[52]

A 2016 survey of 77 atmospheric scientists concluded that "76 out of 77 (98.7%) of scientists that took part in this study said there was no evidence of a [secret large-scale atmospheric program] (SLAP), and that the data cited as evidence could be explained through other factors, such as typical contrail formation and poor data sampling instructions presented on SLAP websites."^{[53][54]}

See also

- California drought manipulation conspiracy theory
- Cloud iridescence
- Fuel dumping
- Herbicidal warfare
- List of conspiracy theories
- Mass hysteria
- Mick West (chemtrail skeptic)
- Solar radiation management
- Stratospheric Particle Injection for Climate Engineering
- Stratospheric sulfate aerosols (geoengineering)

References

1. Science, Carnegie (12 August 2016). ""Chemtrails" not real, say leading atmospheric science experts" (<https://carnegiescience.edu/node/2077>). Carnegie Institution for Science. Retrieved 11 May 2019. "Some groups and individuals erroneously believe that the long-lasting condensation trails, or contrails, left behind aircraft are evidence of a secret large-scale spraying program. They call these imagined features "chemtrails"."
2. Fraser, Stephen (2009). "Phantom menace? Are conspirators using aircraft to pollute the sky?". Current Science. 94 (14): 8–9. ProQuest 195877531 (<https://search.proquest.com/docview/195877531>). "Some theorists speculate that the goal is population control; some say it's climate modification; others say it's military weapons testing." (subscription required)
3. Watson, Traci (7 March 2001). "Conspiracy theorists read between lines in the sky" (<http://usatoday30.usatoday.com/weather/science/2001-03-07-contrails.htm>). USA Today. p. A.04. "Exasperated by persistent questions, the Environmental Protection Agency, NASA, the Federal Aviation Administration and the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration joined forces last fall to publish a fact sheet explaining the science of contrail formation. A few months earlier, the Air Force had put out its own fact sheet, which tries to refute its opponents' arguments point by point. "If you try to pin these people down and refute things, it's, 'Well, you're just part of the conspiracy,' " says atmospheric scientist Patrick Minnis of NASA's Langley Research Center in Hampton, Va. "Logic is not exactly a real selling point for most of them.""
4. James, Nigel (2003). "Contrails" (<https://books.google.com/books?id=qMIDrggs8TsC&pg=PA197>). In Knight, Peter (ed.). Conspiracy Theories in American History: An Encyclopedia. ABC-CLIO. pp. 197–199. ISBN 978-1-57607-812-9. "there are no books on the subject to date. Reports on contrails are carried by dedicated websites...Mainstream news agencies rarely report on concerns over contrails, and when they do it is in terms of anti-government "paranoia". When USA Today ran a contrail story it likened the story to something out of The X-Files, arguing that it was only those who are suspicious of the government who believe that lines in the sky are evidence of malfeasance. Some suggested that they are trying to slow down global warming with compounds that reflect sunlight into the sky."
5. Schlatter, Thomas (9 March 2001). "Weather Queries: Chemtrail Controversy" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20010309094441/http://www.weatherwise.org/qr/qry.chemtrail.html>). Weatherwise. Archived from the original (<http://www.weatherwise.org/qr/qry.chemtrail.html>) on 9 March 2001.
6. "Contrails Facts" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20130306001902/http://www.af.mil/shared/media/document/AFD-051013-001.pdf>) (PDF). US Air Force. 13 October 2005. Archived from the original (<http://www.af.mil/shared/media/document/AFD-051013-001.pdf>) (PDF) on 6 March 2013.
7. Radford, Benjamin (March–April 2009). "Curious contrails: death from the sky?" (http://www.csicop.org/si/show/curious_contrails_death_from_the_sky/). Skeptical Inquirer. 33 (2): 25.
8. Kreidler, Marc (1 September 2008). "The 'Chemtrail Conspiracy'" (<https://skepticalinquirer.org/newsletter/chemtrail-conspiracy/>). Skeptical Inquirer. 18 (3). ISSN 0194-6730 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/0194-6730>). OCLC 819017418 (<https://www.worldcat.org/oclc/819017418>). Retrieved 6 May 2020.
9. Cama, Timothy (13 March 2015). "EPA confronts 'chemtrails' conspiracy talk" (<http://thehill.com/policy/energy-environment/235632-epa-confronts-chemtrails-conspiracy-theory>). the Hill. Retrieved 10 December 2016. "Conspiracy theorists say that government officials or others are using jets to spray harmful chemicals into the atmosphere. They cite the contrails left by jets as evidence of the chemicals. The EPA has added a new notice to its website, which links to a fact sheet explaining that the trails left by jets in the atmosphere are only ice particles and contain no harmful chemicals. "Contrails are line-shaped clouds or 'Condensation trails' composed of ice particles that are visible behind jet aircraft engines under certain atmospheric conditions and at times can persist", says the notice, posted to the EPA's website Friday. "EPA is not aware of any deliberate actions to release chemical or biological agents into the atmosphere". Theorists have posited that the chemicals are meant to control the climate, to harm humans or to kill them. The fact sheet from the EPA and other federal agencies like the Federal Aviation Administration and the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration was first published in 2000, when the chemtrails conspiracy became popular on the Web. An EPA spokeswoman said the agency frequently receives questions about chemtrails."

10. Smith, Oliver (24 September 2013). "'Chemtrails' and other aviation conspiracy theories" (<https://www.telegraph.co.uk/travel/news/Chemtrails-and-other-aviation-conspiracy-theories/>). The Telegraph. Retrieved 11 December 2016. "So persistent is the chemtrail theory that US government agencies regularly receive calls from irate citizens demanding an explanation...The conspiracy theory took root in the Nineties, with the publication of a US Air Force research paper about weather modification...Governments and scientific institutions have of course dismissed the theories, and claim those vapour trails which persist for longer than usual, or disperse to cover a wide area, are just normal contrails."
11. "chemtrail" (<http://www.oed.com/view/Entry/318007>). Oxford English Dictionary (Third ed.). Oxford University Press. December 2011.(subscription required)
12. Paul Simons (27 September 2013). "Weather Eye: contrail conspiracy" (<http://www.thetimes.co.uk/tto/weather/article3879866.ece>). The Times. "This conspiracy idea took hold in 1996 when the US Government was accused of trying to modify the weather for military means"(subscription required)
13. Reynolds, Jay (1 March 1999). "Those Mysterious Lines in the Sky" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20000817072216/http://www.fortunecity.com/greenfield/swallowtail/619/linesinsky.html>). Veritas. Archived from the original (<http://www.fortunecity.com/greenfield/swallowtail/619/linesinsky.html>) on 17 August 2000., cited in USAF Contrails (https://web.archive.org/web/20021202230839/http://www.af.mil/environment/contrails_chemtrail.shtml) page.
14. "Aircraft Contrails Factsheet" (http://www.faa.gov/regulations_policies/policy_guidance/envir_policy/media/contrails.pdf) (PDF). United States Environmental Protection Agency. September 2000.
15. Knickerbocker, Brad (14 March 2015). "EPA debunks 'chemtrails,' further fueling conspiracy theories (+video)" (<http://www.csmonitor.com/USA/2015/0314/EPA-debunks-chemtrails-further-fueling-conspiracy-theories-video>). Christian Science Monitor.
16. Cama, Timothy (13 March 2015). "EPA confronts 'chemtrails' conspiracy talk" (<http://thehill.com/policy/energy-environment/235632-epa-confronts-chemtrails-conspiracy-theory>). TheHill.
17. "The 'Chemtrail' Hoax" (https://web.archive.org/web/20021202230839/http://www.af.mil/environment/contrails_chemtrail.shtml). Air Force. Archived from the original (http://www.af.mil/environment/contrails_chemtrail.shtml) on 2 December 2002. Retrieved 7 May 2010.
18. "Weather as a Force Multiplier: Owning the Weather in 2025" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20090716000939/http://www.fas.org/spp/military/docops/usaf/2025/v3c15/v3c15-1.htm>). Fas.org. 1996. Archived from the original (<https://fas.org/spp/military/docops/usaf/2025/v3c15/v3c15-1.htm>) on 16 July 2009.
19. "Aircraft Contrails Factsheet" (http://www.faa.gov/regulations_policies/policy_guidance/envir_policy/media/contrails.pdf) (PDF). United States Environmental Protection Agency. Retrieved 30 August 2008.
20. Poladian, Charles (22 July 2013). "CIA Exploring Geoengineering, Ways To Control Weather, To Reverse Globing Warming: Report" (<http://www.ibtimes.com/cia-exploring-geoengineering-ways-control-weather-reverse-globing-warming-report-1356093>). International Business Times.
21. Thomas, William (Summer 2002). "Stolen Skies: The Chemtrail Mystery" (http://www.earthisland.org/journal/index.php/eij/article/stolen_skies_the_chemtrail_mystery/). Earth Island Journal. Retrieved 30 August 2008.
22. Hamilton, Dan (7 April 2009). "Contrails vs. Chemtrails" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20090412203719/http://www.fox12news.com/Global/story.asp?S=10147467>). Fox12 news at nine. Fox12 Idaho KTRV-TV. Archived from the original (<http://www.fox12news.com/Global/story.asp?S=10147467>) on 12 April 2009. Retrieved 11 April 2009.
23. Ferrell, Jeff (21 December 2007). "Chemtrails: Is U.S. Gov't. Secretly Testing Americans 'Again'?" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20110831131238/http://www.ksla.com/story/7339345/chemtrails-is-us-govt-secretly-testing-americans-again>). Shreveport, LA. Archived from the original (<http://www.ksla.com/global/story.asp?s=7339345>) on 31 August 2011. Retrieved 28 July 2009.
24. Haenggi, Michael (2003). Boeing Widebodies (<https://books.google.com/books?id=OEniu9ff-sC&pg=PA15>). Zenith Press. p. 15. ISBN 978-1610607070.

25. Kaur, Harmeet (23 October 2019). "Edward Snowden searched the CIA's networks for proof that aliens exist. Here's what he found" (<https://edition.cnn.com/2019/10/23/us/edward-snowden-joe-rogan-conspiracies-trnd/index.html>). CNN. Retrieved 23 October 2020.
26. starting minute 30:40 on <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=efs3QRr8LWw>
27. Benjamin Radford for Discovery. 1 May 2014. Viral Video Claims to Prove 'Chemtrails' Conspiracy (<http://news.discovery.com/human/psychology/viral-video-claims-to-prove-chemtrails-conspiracy-140501.htm>)
28. "The Man Who Tricked Chemtrails Conspiracy Theorists" (https://www.vice.com/en_us/read/i-tricked-chemtrail-conspiracy-theorists-947). Vice. 13 October 2014. Retrieved 6 February 2017.
29. "Chris Bovey – What are they spraying?" (<https://www.facebook.com/video.php?v=10203901372147247>) – via Facebook.
30. Cairns, Rose (March 2016). "Climates of suspicion: 'chemtrail' conspiracy narratives and the international politics of geoengineering" (http://sro.sussex.ac.uk/id/eprint/49709/3/GJ_SUBMISSION_Chemtrails__REVISED_DRAFT.pdf) (PDF). The Geographical Journal. 182 (1): 70–84. doi:10.1111/geoj.12116 (<https://doi.org/10.1111%2Fgeoj.12116>). Preprint available here (<http://www.geoengineering-governance-research.org/perch/resources/workingpaper9cairnsclimatesofsuspicion.pdf>)
31. Fountain, Henry (15 August 2016). "Scientists Just Say No to 'Chemtrails' Conspiracy Theory" (http://www.nytimes.com/2016/08/16/science/scientists-just-say-no-to-chemtrails-conspiracy-theory.html?_r=0). The New York Times. Retrieved 26 August 2016.
32. "Chemtrails Conspiracy Theory" (<http://keith.seas.harvard.edu/chemtrails-conspiracy-theory>). David Keith Lab, Harvard. Retrieved 16 December 2016.
33. Poladian, Charles (22 July 2013). "CIA Exploring Geoengineering, Ways To Control Weather, To Reverse Globing Warming: Report" (<http://www.ibtimes.com/cia-exploring-geoengineering-ways-control-weather-reverse-globing-warming-report-1356093>). International Business Times. Retrieved 15 March 2014.
34. Hodapp, Christopher; von Kannon, Alice (2008). "Conspiracy Theories & Secret Societies for Dummies" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20110713061237/http://www.isbnspy.com/iphone.php5?isbn=0470184086>). Archived from the original (<http://www.isbnspy.com/iphone.php5?isbn=0470184086>) on 13 July 2011. Retrieved 10 November 2010.
35. Mercer, A. M.; Keith, D. W. & Sharp, J. D. (2011). "Public understanding of solar radiation management" (<https://doi.org/10.1088%2F1748-9326%2F6%2F4%2F044006>). Environmental Research Letters. 6 (4): 044006. Bibcode:2011ERL.....6d4006M (<https://ui.adsabs.harvard.edu/abs/2011ERL.....6d4006M>). doi:10.1088/1748-9326/6/4/044006 (<https://doi.org/10.1088%2F1748-9326%2F6%2F4%2F044006>).
36. "Cooperative Election Study" (<https://cces.gov.harvard.edu/home>). cces.gov.harvard.edu. Retrieved 7 March 2021.
37. Tingley, Dustin; Wagner, Gernot (31 October 2017). "Solar geoengineering and the chemtrails conspiracy on social media" (<https://doi.org/10.1057%2Fs41599-017-0014-3>). Palgrave Communications. 7. doi:10.1057/s41599-017-0014-3 (<https://doi.org/10.1057%2Fs41599-017-0014-3>).
38. "Space Preservation Act of 2001 (2001 – H.R. 2977)" (<https://www.govtrack.us/congress/bills/107/hr2977>).
39. "Many Kucinich backers are out there – way out" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20071104163915/http://www.cleveland.com/kucinich/plaindealer/index.ssf?%2Fkucinich%2Fmore%2F1047214686213910.html>). Cleveland.com. 13 March 2001. Archived from the original (<http://www.cleveland.com/kucinich/plaindealer/index.ssf?/kucinich/more/1047214686213910.html>) on 4 November 2007. Retrieved 26 November 2010.

40. Bethel, Brian (1 July 2008). "Abilene man wants to warn you about the dangers of 'chemtrails'" (<http://web.archive.org/web/20140326093924/http://www.reporternews.com/news/2008/jul/01/do-you-believe/>). Abilene Reporter-News. Archived from the original (<http://www.reporternews.com/news/2008/jul/01/do-you-believe/>) on 26 March 2014. Retrieved 20 October 2008.
41. "A Petition to the Canadian House of Commons: The Government's Response" (<http://www.holmestead.ca/chemtrails/response-en.html>). Response. Holmestead.ca. Retrieved 13 April 2009.
42. "37th Parliament, 2nd Sessions Edited Hansard; Number 110 Contents" (<http://www2.parl.gc.ca/HousePublications/Publication.aspx?pub=hansard&mee=110&parl=37&ses=2&language=E#Int-579492>). Publications: Debates: Committees of the House: Petitions: The Environment 1030. Parliament of Canada. 3 June 2003. Retrieved 13 April 2009. "Mr. John Herron (Fundy–Royal, PC): Mr. Speaker, I am presenting a petition on behalf of Mr. Brian Holmes of Ontario regarding aerial spraying. Mr. Holmes has collected signatures from across the country from concerned Canadians who believe that chemicals used in aerial sprayings are adversely affecting the health of Canadians. The petitioners call upon Parliament to stop this type of high altitude spraying. The petition has been duly certified by the clerk and I present it at this time."
43. "Points to Ponder: Access to Information Act" (<http://www.holmestead.ca/chemtrails/access.html>). Chemtrails – spraying in our sky. Holmestead.ca/. Retrieved 13 April 2009.
44. "A Petition to the Canadian House of Commons" (<http://www.holmestead.ca/chemtrails/petition.html>). Chemtrails – spraying in our sky. Holmestead.ca/. Retrieved 13 April 2009.
45. "Elliot Morley, former MP, Scunthorpe" (https://www.theyworkforyou.com/mp/10444/elliott_morley/scunthorpe#profile). TheyWorkForYou. Retrieved 16 April 2017.
46. "House of Commons Hansard – 8 November 2005: Column 314W–315W" (<https://publications.parliament.uk/pa/cm200506/cmhansrd/vo051108/text/51108w11.htm>). United Kingdom Parliament. 8 November 2005. Retrieved 12 March 2009. "Mr. Morley: The Department is not researching into chemtrails from aircraft as they are not scientifically recognised phenomena."
47. Fleming JR (2010). Fixing the Sky: The Checkered History of Weather and Climate Control (<https://books.google.com/books?id=zmdBon09PY0C&pg=PA103>). Columbia Studies in International and Global History. Columbia University Press. p. 103. ISBN 9780231144131.
48. Bowerman, Mary (16 August 2016). "Scientists disprove airplane 'chemtrail' theory" (<https://www.usatoday.com/story/news/nation-now/2016/08/16/scientists-say-chemtrail-conspiracy-theory-isnt-real/88821176/>). USA Today.
49. Kuhn, P. M. (September 1970). "Airborne Observations of Contrail Effects on the Thermal Radiation Budget" (<https://doi.org/10.1175%2F1520-0469%281970%29027%3C0937%3AAOOCEO%3E2.0.CO%3B2>). Journal of the Atmospheric Sciences. 27 (6): 937–942. Bibcode:1970JAtS...27..937K (<http://ui.adsabs.harvard.edu/abs/1970JAtS...27..937K>). doi:10.1175/1520-0469(1970)027<0937:AOOCEO>2.0.CO;2 (<https://doi.org/10.1175%2F1520-0469%281970%29027%3C0937%3AAOOCEO%3E2.0.CO%3B2>).
50. R.G. Knollenberg (October 1972). "Measurements of the Growth of the Ice Budget in a Persisting Contrail" (<http://cires.colorado.edu/science/groups/pielke/classes/atoc7500/knollenberg72.pdf>) (PDF). Journal of the Atmospheric Sciences. 29 (7): 1367–1374. Bibcode:1972JAtS...29.1367K (<https://ui.adsabs.harvard.edu/abs/1972JAtS...29.1367K>). doi:10.1175/1520-0469(1972)029<1367:MOTGOT>2.0.CO;2 (<https://doi.org/10.1175%2F1520-0469%281972%29029%3C1367%3AMOTGOT%3E2.0.CO%3B2>).
51. Laakso, A.; Partanen, A. I.; Kokkola, H.; Laaksonen, A.; Lehtinen, K. E. J.; Korhonen, H. (2012). "Stratospheric passenger flights are likely an inefficient geoengineering strategy" (<https://doi.org/10.1088%2F1748-9326%2F7%2F3%2F034021>). Environmental Research Letters. 7 (3): 034021. Bibcode:2012ERL.....7c4021L (<https://ui.adsabs.harvard.edu/abs/2012ERL.....7c4021L>). doi:10.1088/1748-9326/7/3/034021 (<https://doi.org/10.1088%2F1748-9326%2F7%2F3%2F034021>).

52. Berman, Bob (2009). "Applying Occam's razor: problem solving isn't always a clean shave" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20140413143925/http://business.highbeam.com/136942/article-1G1-206342261/applying-occam-razor-problem-solving-isnt-always-clean>). Astronomy. 37 (9): 14. Archived from the original (<http://business.highbeam.com/136942/article-1G1-206342261/applying-occam-razor-problem-solving-isnt-always-clean>) on 13 April 2014. (subscription required)
53. Shearer, Christine; West, Mick; Caldeira, Ken; Davis, Steven J. (1 January 2016). "Quantifying expert consensus against the existence of a secret, large-scale atmospheric spraying program" (<https://doi.org/10.1088%2F1748-9326%2F11%2F8%2F084011>). Environ. Res. Lett. 11 (8): 084011. Bibcode:2016ERL....11h4011S (<https://ui.adsabs.harvard.edu/abs/2016ERL....11h4011S>). doi:10.1088/1748-9326/11/8/084011 (<https://doi.org/10.1088%2F1748-9326%2F11%2F8%2F084011>).
54. Fritz, Angela (16 August 2016). "Scientists tell the world: 'Chemtrails' are not real" (<https://www.washingtonpost.com/news/capital-weather-gang/wp/2016/08/16/scientists-to-world-chemtrails-are-not-real/>). The Washington Post.

Further reading

- Talbot, Margaret (30 August 2002). "The H-Word" (<https://www.theguardian.com/theguardian/2002/aug/31/weekend7.weekend2>). The Guardian. London.
- "'Chemtrails' not real, say leading atmospheric science experts" (<https://carnegiescience.edu/node/2077>), Carnegie Institution for Science
- "Lake Oroville Runoff Enhancement Project" Final Report (<https://www.usbr.gov/tsc/techreferences/reports/R9512.pdf>) submitted to California Dept. of Water Resources Division of Operations and Maintenance (September 1995); published by US Department of the Interior's Bureau of Reclamation Technical Service Center, River Systems and Meteorology Group.

Abstract: "Bureau of Reclamation cooperated with California Department of Water Resources to design and implement a snowpack augmentation program to increase runoff to Oroville Reservoir. The program involves the collection of data to document physical processes leading to increased precipitation. This report summarizes the main results from 3 yr of in-situ physical studies and statistical analysis of precipitation data collected during 87 randomized seeding cases. Liquid propane released from high elevation sites has proven to be a viable, reliable method of seeding wintertime clouds in the Sierra Nevada."

External links

 Media related to Chemtrail conspiracy theory at Wikimedia Commons

- Dunning, Brian (15 February 2007). "Skeptoid #27: Chemtrails: Real or Not?" (<https://skeptoid.com/episodes/4027>). Skeptoid.

Retrieved from "https://en.wikipedia.org/w/index.php?title=Chemtrail_conspiracy_theory&oldid=1020981849"

This page was last edited on 2 May 2021, at 06:41 (UTC).

Text is available under the Creative Commons Attribution-ShareAlike License; additional terms may apply. By using this site, you agree to the Terms of Use and Privacy Policy. Wikipedia® is a registered trademark of the Wikimedia Foundation, Inc., a non-profit organization.

Project MKUltra

Project MKUltra (or MK-Ultra) is the code name given to a program of experiments on human subjects that were designed and undertaken by the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency (CIA), some of which were illegal.^{[1][2][3]} Experiments on humans were intended to develop procedures and identify drugs such as LSD to be used in interrogations in order to weaken the individual and force confessions through brainwashing and psychological torture. The project was organized through the Office of Scientific Intelligence of the CIA and coordinated with the United States Army Biological Warfare Laboratories.^[4] Other code names for drug-related experiments were Project Bluebird and Project Artichoke.^{[5][6]}

The operation was officially sanctioned in 1953, reduced in scope in 1964 and further curtailed in 1967. It was officially halted in 1973. The program also engaged in illegal activities,^{[7][8][9]} including the use of U.S. and Canadian citizens as its unwitting test subjects, which led to controversy regarding its legitimacy.^{7[10][11][12]} MKUltra used numerous methods to manipulate its subjects' mental states and brain functions. Techniques included the covert administration of high doses of psychoactive drugs (especially LSD) and other chemicals, electroshocks,^[13] hypnosis,^{[14][15]} sensory deprivation, isolation, and verbal and sexual abuse, in addition to other forms of torture.^{[16][17]}

The scope of Project MKUltra was broad, with activities carried out under the guise of research at more than 80 institutions, including colleges and universities, hospitals, prisons, and pharmaceutical companies.^[18] The CIA operated using front organizations, although sometimes top officials at these institutions were aware of the CIA's involvement.^[19]

Project MKUltra was first brought to public attention in 1975 by the Church Committee of the United States Congress and Gerald Ford's United States President's Commission on CIA activities within the United States (also known as the Rockefeller Commission).

Investigative efforts were hampered by CIA Director Richard Helms's order that all MKUltra files be destroyed in 1973; the Church Committee and Rockefeller Commission investigations relied on the sworn testimony of direct participants and on the relatively small number of documents that survived Helms's destruction order.^[20] In 1977, a Freedom of Information Act request uncovered a cache of 20,000 documents relating to project MKUltra which led to Senate hearings later that year.^{[7][21]} Some surviving information regarding MKUltra was declassified in July 2001. In December 2018, declassified documents included a letter to an unidentified doctor discussing work on six dogs made to run, turn and stop via remote control and brain implants.^{[22][23]}

Declassified MKUltra documents

Contents

Background

Origin of cryptonym

Origin of project

Aims and leadership

Scale of project

Applications

Other related projects

Experiments on Americans

LSD

Other drugs

Hypnosis

Experiments on Canadians

Motivation and assessments

Secret detention camps

Revelation

1994 U.S. General Accounting Office report

Deaths

Legal issues involving informed consent

Notable people

Aftermath

In popular culture

Films

Television

Audio

Others

See also

References

Further reading

External links

Background

Origin of cryptonym

The project's CIA cryptonym is a combination of the digraph MK, indicating the sponsorship of the Technical Services Staff (TSS), and the word Ultra which formerly designated the most secret classification of World War II intelligence. Other related cryptonyms include Project MKNAOMI and Project MKDELTA.

Origin of project

According to author Stephen Kinzer, the CIA project "was a continuation of the work begun in WWII-era Japanese facilities and Nazi concentration camps on subduing and controlling human minds". Kinzer wrote that MKUltra's use of mescaline on unwitting subjects was a practice that Nazi doctors had begun in the Dachau concentration camp. Kinzer proposes evidence of the continuation of a Nazi agenda, citing the CIA's secret recruitment of Nazi torturers and vivisectionists to continue the experimentation on thousands of subjects, and Nazis brought to Fort Detrick, Maryland, to instruct CIA officers on the lethal uses of sarin gas.^[13]

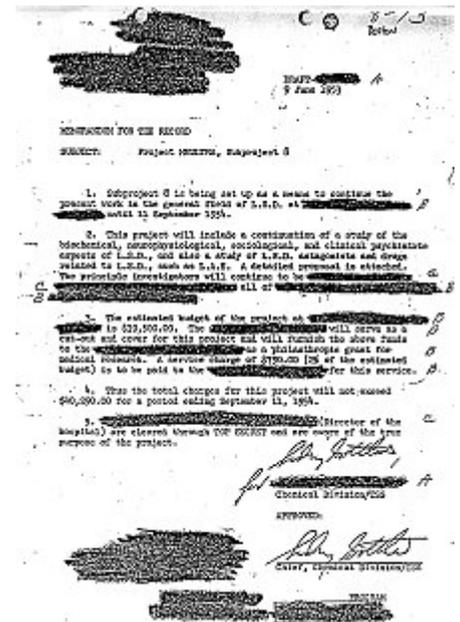

Aims and leadership

The project was headed by Sidney Gottlieb but began on the order of CIA director Allen Dulles on April 13, 1953.^{[24][25]} Its aim was to develop mind-controlling drugs for use against the Soviet bloc in response to alleged Soviet, Chinese, and North Korean use of mind control techniques on U.S. prisoners of war during the Korean War.^[26] The CIA wanted to use similar methods on their own captives, and was interested in manipulating foreign leaders with such techniques,^[27] devising several schemes to drug Fidel Castro. It often conducted experiments without the subjects' knowledge or consent.^[28] In some cases, academic researchers were funded through grants from CIA front organizations but were unaware that the CIA was using their work for these purposes.^[29]

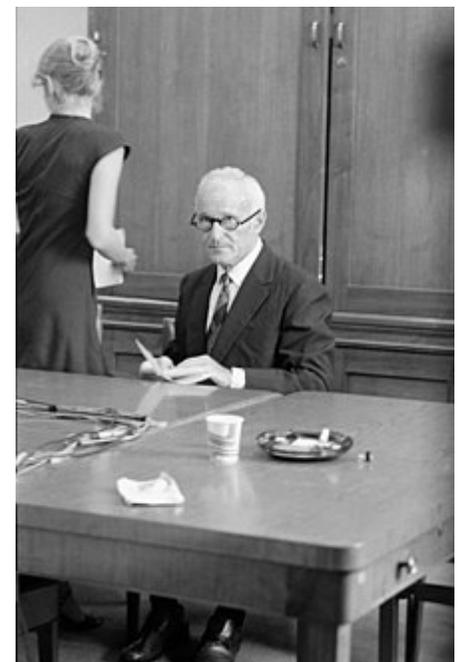

The project attempted to produce a perfect truth drug for interrogating suspected Soviet spies during the Cold War, and to explore other possibilities of mind control. Subproject 54 was the Navy's top-secret "Perfect Concussion" program, which was supposed to use sub-aural frequency blasts to erase memory; the program was never carried out.^[30]

Most MKUltra records were destroyed in 1973 by order of CIA director Richard Helms, so it has been difficult for investigators to gain a complete understanding of the more than 150 funded research subprojects sponsored by MKUltra and related CIA programs.^[31]

The project began during a period of what English journalist Rupert Cornwell described as "paranoia" at the CIA, when the U.S. had lost its nuclear monopoly and fear of communism was at its height.^[32] CIA counter-intelligence chief James Jesus Angleton believed that a mole had penetrated the organization at the highest levels.^[32] The agency poured millions of dollars into studies examining ways to influence and control the mind and to enhance its ability to extract information from resistant subjects during interrogation.^{[33][34]} Some historians assert that one goal of MKUltra and related CIA projects was to create a "Manchurian Candidate"-style subject.^[35] American historian Alfred W. McCoy has claimed that the CIA attempted to focus media attention on these sorts of "ridiculous" programs so that the public would not look at the research's primary goal, which was effective methods of interrogation.^[33]

Sidney Gottlieb approved of an MKUltra sub-project on LSD in this June 9, 1953, letter.

Sidney Gottlieb, Sept. 21, 1977

Scale of project

One 1955 MKUltra document gives an indication of the size and range of the effort. It refers to the study of an assortment of mind-altering substances described as follows:^[36]

1. Substances which will promote illogical thinking and impulsiveness to the point where the recipient would be discredited in public.
2. Substances which increase the efficiency of mentation and perception.
3. Materials which will prevent or counteract the intoxicating effect of alcohol.
4. Materials which will promote the intoxicating effect of alcohol.
5. Materials which will produce the signs and symptoms of recognized diseases in a reversible way so they may be used for malingering, etc.
6. Materials which will render the induction of hypnosis easier or otherwise enhance its usefulness.
7. Substances which will enhance the ability of individuals to withstand privation, torture, and coercion during interrogation and so-called "brain-washing".
8. Materials and physical methods which will produce amnesia for events preceding and during their use.
9. Physical methods of producing shock and confusion over extended periods of time and capable of surreptitious use.
10. Substances which produce physical disablement such as paralysis of the legs, acute anemia, etc.
11. Substances which will produce "pure" euphoria with no subsequent let-down.
12. Substances which alter personality structure in such a way the tendency of the recipient to become dependent upon another person is enhanced.
13. A material which will cause mental confusion of such a type the individual under its influence will find it difficult to maintain a fabrication under questioning.
14. Substances which will lower the ambition and general working efficiency of men when administered in undetectable amounts.
15. Substances which promote weakness or distortion of the eyesight or hearing faculties, preferably without permanent effects.
16. A knockout pill which can be surreptitiously administered in drinks, food, cigarettes, as an aerosol, etc., which will be safe to use, provide a maximum of amnesia, and be suitable for use by agent types on an ad hoc basis.
17. A material which can be surreptitiously administered by the above routes and which in very small amounts will make it impossible for a person to perform physical activity.

Applications

The 1976 Church Committee report found that, in the MKDELTA program, "Drugs were used primarily as an aid to interrogations, but MKULTRA/MKDELTA materials were also used for harassment, discrediting or disabling purposes."^{[37][38][39]}

Other related projects

In 1964, MKSEARCH was the name given to the continuation of the MKULTRA program. The MKSEARCH program was divided into two projects dubbed MKOFTEN and MKCHICKWIT. Funding for MKSEARCH commenced in 1965, and ended in 1971.^[40] The project was a joint project between the U.S. Army Chemical Corps and the CIA's Office of Research and Development to find new offensive-use agents, with a focus on incapacitating agents. Its purpose was to develop, test, and evaluate capabilities in the covert use of biological, chemical, and radioactive material systems and techniques of producing predictable human behavioral and/or physiological changes in support of highly sensitive operational requirements.^[40]

By March 1971 over 26,000 potential agents had been acquired for future screening.^[41] The CIA was interested in bird migration patterns for chemical and biological warfare (CBW) research; subproject 139 designated "Bird Disease Studies" at Penn State.^[42]

MKOFTEN was to deal with testing and toxicological transmissivity and behavioral effects of drugs in animals and, ultimately, humans.^[40]

MKCHICKWIT was concerned with acquiring information on new drug developments in Europe and Asia, and with acquiring samples.^[40]

Experiments on Americans

CIA documents suggest that they investigated "chemical, biological, and radiological" methods of mind control as part of MKUltra.^[43] They spent an estimated $10 million or more, roughly $87.5 million adjusted for inflation.^[44]

LSD

Early CIA efforts focused on LSD-25, which later came to dominate many of MKUltra's programs.^[45] The CIA wanted to know if they could make Soviet spies defect against their will and whether the Soviets could do the same to the CIA's own operatives.^[46]

Once Project MKUltra got underway in April 1953, experiments included administering LSD to mental patients, prisoners, drug addicts, and sex workers – "people who could not fight back," as one agency officer put it.^[47] In one case, they administered LSD to a mental patient in Kentucky for 174 days.^[47] They also administered LSD to CIA employees, military personnel, doctors, other government agents, and members of the general public to study their reactions. LSD and other drugs were often administered without the subject's knowledge or informed consent, a violation of the Nuremberg Code the U.S. had agreed to follow after World War II. The aim of this was to find drugs which would bring out deep confessions or wipe a subject's mind clean and program them as "a robot agent."^[48]

In Operation Midnight Climax, the CIA set up several brothels within agency safehouses in San Francisco to obtain a selection of men who would be too embarrassed to talk about the events. The men were dosed with LSD, the brothels were equipped with one-way mirrors, and the sessions were filmed for later viewing and study.^[49] In other experiments where people were given LSD without their knowledge, they were interrogated under bright lights with doctors in the background taking notes. They told subjects they would extend their "trips" if they refused to reveal their secrets. The people under this interrogation were CIA employees, U.S. military personnel, and agents suspected of working for the other side in the Cold War. Long-term debilitation and several deaths resulted from this.^[48] Heroin addicts were bribed into taking LSD with offers of more heroin.^{[19][50]}

At the invitation of Stanford psychology graduate student Vik Lovell, an acquaintance of Richard Alpert and Allen Ginsberg, Ken Kesey volunteered to take part in what turned out to be a CIA-financed study under the aegis of MKUltra,^[51] at the Menlo Park Veterans' Hospital^{[52][53]} where he worked as a night aide.^[54] The project studied the effects of psychoactive drugs, particularly LSD, psilocybin, mescaline, cocaine, AMT and DMT on people.^[55]

The Office of Security used LSD in interrogations, but Dr. Sidney Gottlieb, the chemist who directed MKUltra, had other ideas: he thought it could be used in covert operations. Since its effects were temporary, he believed it could be given to high-ranking officials and in this way affect the course of important meetings, speeches, etc. Since he realized there was a difference in testing the drug in a laboratory and using it in clandestine operations, he initiated a series of experiments where LSD was given to people in "normal" settings without warning. At first, everyone in Technical Services tried it; a typical experiment involved two people in a room where they observed each other for hours and took notes. As the experimentation progressed, a point arrived where outsiders were drugged with no explanation whatsoever and surprise acid trips became something of an occupational hazard among CIA operatives. Adverse reactions often occurred, such as an operative who received the drug in his morning coffee, became psychotic and ran across Washington, seeing a monster in every car passing him. The experiments continued even after Frank Olson, an army chemist who had never taken LSD, was covertly dosed by his CIA supervisor and nine days later plunged to his death from the window of a 13th-story New York City hotel room, supposedly as a result of deep depression induced by the drug.^[56] According to Stephen Kinzer, Olson had approached his superiors some time earlier, doubting the morality of the project, and asked to resign from the CIA.^[57]

Some subjects' participation was consensual, and in these cases they appeared to be singled out for even more extreme experiments. In one case, seven volunteers in Kentucky were given LSD for seventy-seven consecutive days.^[58]

MKUltra's researchers later dismissed LSD as too unpredictable in its results.^[59] They gave up on the notion that LSD was "the secret that was going to unlock the universe," but it still had a place in the cloak-and-dagger arsenal. However, by 1962 the CIA and the army developed a series of super-hallucinogens such as the highly touted BZ, which was thought to hold greater promise as a mind control weapon. This resulted in the withdrawal of support by many academics and private researchers, and LSD research became less of a priority altogether.^[56]

Other drugs

Another technique investigated was the intravenous administration of a barbiturate into one arm and an amphetamine into the other.^[60] The barbiturates were released into the person first, and as soon as the person began to fall asleep, the amphetamines were released. The person would begin babbling incoherently, and it was sometimes possible to ask questions and get useful answers.

Other experiments involved heroin, morphine, temazepam (used under code name MKSEARCH), mescaline, psilocybin, scopolamine, alcohol and sodium pentothal.^[61]

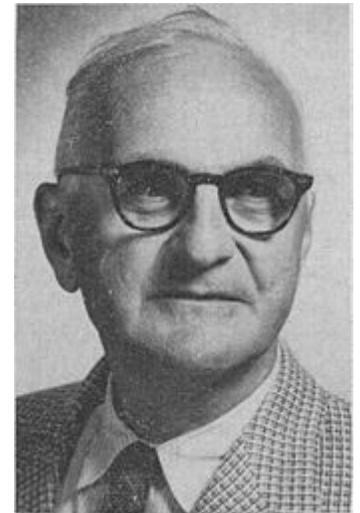

Hypnosis

Declassified MKUltra documents indicate they studied hypnosis in the early 1950s. Experimental goals included the creation of "hypnotically induced anxieties," "hypnotically increasing ability to learn and recall complex written matter," studying hypnosis and polygraph examinations, "hypnotically increasing ability to observe and recall complex arrangements of physical objects" and studying "relationship of personality to susceptibility to hypnosis."^[62] They conducted experiments with drug-induced hypnosis and with anterograde and retrograde amnesia while under the influence of such drugs.

Experiments on Canadians

The CIA exported experiments to Canada when they recruited British psychiatrist Donald Ewen Cameron, creator of the "psychic driving" concept, which the CIA found interesting. Cameron had been hoping to correct schizophrenia by erasing existing memories and reprogramming the psyche. He commuted from Albany, New York to Montreal every week to work at the Allan Memorial Institute of McGill University, and was paid $69,000 from 1957 to 1964 (which would be US$579,480 in 2021, adjusting for inflation) to carry out MKUltra experiments there, the Montreal experiments. These research funds were sent to Cameron by a CIA front organization, the Society for the Investigation of Human Ecology, and as shown in internal CIA documents, Cameron did not know the money came from the CIA.^[63](pp141–142 (<https://archive.org/details/searchformanchuroojohn/page/141>))

Donald Ewen Cameron
c. 1967

In addition to LSD, Cameron also experimented with various paralytic drugs as well as electroconvulsive therapy at thirty to forty times the normal power. His "driving" experiments consisted of putting subjects into drug-induced comas for weeks at a time (up to three months in one case) while playing tape loops of noise or simple repetitive statements. His experiments were often carried out on patients who entered the institute for common problems such as anxiety disorders and postpartum depression, many of whom suffered permanent effects from his actions.^[63](pp140–150 (<https://archive.org/details/searchformanchuroojohn/page/140>)) His treatments resulted in victims' urinary incontinence, amnesia, forgetting how to talk, forgetting their parents and thinking their interrogators were their parents.^[64]

During this era, Cameron became known worldwide as the first chairman of the World Psychiatric Association as well as president of both the American Psychiatric Association and the Canadian Psychiatric Association. Cameron was also a member of the Nuremberg medical tribunal in 1946–1947.^[63](p141 (<https://archive.org/details/searchformanchuroojohn/page/141>))

Motivation and assessments

His work was inspired and paralleled by the British psychiatrist William Sargant at St Thomas' Hospital, London, and Belmont Hospital, Sutton, who was also involved in the Secret Intelligence Service and who experimented on his patients without their consent, causing similar long-term damage.^[65]

In the 1980s, several of Cameron's former patients sued the CIA for damages, which the Canadian news program The Fifth Estate documented.^[66] Their experiences and lawsuit was made into a 1998 television miniseries called The Sleep Room.^[67]

Naomi Klein argues in her book The Shock Doctrine that Cameron's research and his contribution to the MKUltra project was not about mind control and brainwashing, but about designing "a scientifically based system for extracting information from 'resistant sources'. In other words, torture."^[68]

Alfred W. McCoy writes, "Stripped of its bizarre excesses, Dr. Cameron's experiments, building upon Donald O. Hebb's earlier breakthrough, laid the scientific foundation for the CIA's two-stage psychological torture method",^[69] referring to first creating a state of disorientation in the subject, and then creating a situation of "self-inflicted" discomfort in which the disoriented subject can alleviate their pain by capitulating.^[69]

Secret detention camps

In areas under American control in the early 1950s in Europe and East Asia, mostly Japan, Germany and the Philippines, the CIA created secret detention centers so that the U.S. could avoid criminal prosecution. The CIA captured people suspected of being enemy agents and other people it deemed "expendable" to undertake various types of torture and human experimentation on them. The prisoners were interrogated while being administered psychoactive drugs, electroshocked and subjected to extremes of temperature, sensory isolation and the like to develop a better understanding of how to destroy and to control human minds.^[13]

Revelation

In 1973, amid a government-wide panic caused by Watergate, CIA Director Richard Helms ordered all MKUltra files destroyed.^[70] Pursuant to this order, most CIA documents regarding the project were destroyed, making a full investigation of MKUltra impossible. A cache of some 20,000 documents survived Helms's purge, as they had been incorrectly stored in a financial records building and were discovered following a FOIA request in 1977. These documents were fully investigated during the Senate Hearings of 1977.^[7]

In December 1974, The New York Times alleged that the CIA had conducted illegal domestic activities, including experiments on U.S. citizens, during the 1960s.^[71] That report prompted investigations by the United States Congress, in the form of the Church Committee, and by a commission known as the Rockefeller Commission that looked into the illegal domestic activities of the CIA, the FBI and intelligence-related agencies of the military.

In the summer of 1975, congressional Church Committee reports and the presidential Rockefeller Commission report revealed to the public for the first time that the CIA and the Department of Defense had conducted experiments on both unwitting and cognizant human subjects as part of an extensive program to find out how to influence and control human behavior through the use of psychoactive drugs such as LSD and mescaline and other chemical, biological, and psychological means. They also revealed that at least one subject, Frank Olson had died after administration of LSD. Much of what the Church Committee and the Rockefeller Commission learned about MKUltra was contained in a report, prepared by the Inspector General's office in 1963, that had survived the destruction of records ordered in 1973.^[72] However, it contained little detail. Sidney Gottlieb, who had retired from the CIA two years previously and had headed MKUltra, was interviewed by the committee but claimed to have very little recollection of the activities of MKUltra.^[18]

The congressional committee investigating the CIA research, chaired by Senator Frank Church, concluded that "prior consent was obviously not obtained from any of the subjects". The committee noted that the "experiments sponsored by these researchers ... call into question the decision by the agencies not to fix guidelines for experiments."

Frank Church headed the Church Committee, an investigation into the practices of the U.S. intelligence agencies.

Following the recommendations of the Church Committee, President Gerald Ford in 1976 issued the first Executive Order on Intelligence Activities which, among other things, prohibited "experimentation with drugs on human subjects, except with the informed consent, in writing and witnessed by a disinterested party, of each such human subject" and in accordance with the guidelines issued by the National Commission. Subsequent orders by Presidents Carter and Reagan expanded the directive to apply to any human experimentation.

In 1977, during a hearing held by the Senate Select Committee on Intelligence, to look further into MKUltra, Admiral Stansfield Turner, then Director of Central Intelligence, revealed that the CIA had found a set of records, consisting of about 20,000 pages,^[73] that had survived the 1973 destruction orders because they had been incorrectly stored at a records center not usually used for such documents.^[72] These files dealt with the financing of MKUltra projects and contained few project details, but much more was learned from them than from the Inspector General's 1963 report.

On the Senate floor in 1977, Senator Ted Kennedy said:

The Deputy Director of the CIA revealed that over thirty universities and institutions were involved in an "extensive testing and experimentation" program which included covert drug tests on unwitting citizens "at all social levels, high and low, native Americans and foreign." Several of these tests involved the administration of LSD to "unwitting subjects in social situations.

1977 United States Senate report on MKUltra

At least one death, the result of the defenestration of Dr. Frank Olson, was attributed to Olson's being subjected, unaware, to such experimentation, nine days before his death. The CIA itself subsequently acknowledged that these tests had little scientific rationale. The agents conducting the monitoring were not qualified scientific observers.^{[74][75]}

In Canada, the issue took much longer to surface, becoming widely known in 1984 on a CBC news show, The Fifth Estate. It was learned that not only had the CIA funded Dr. Cameron's efforts, but also that the Canadian government was fully aware of this, and had later provided another $500,000 in funding to continue the experiments. This revelation largely derailed efforts by the victims to sue the CIA as their U.S. counterparts had, and the Canadian government eventually settled out of court for $100,000 to each of the 127 victims. Dr. Cameron died on September 8, 1967, after suffering a heart attack while he and his son were mountain climbing. None of Cameron's personal records of his involvement with MKUltra survived, since his family destroyed them after his death.^{[76][77]}

1994 U.S. General Accounting Office report

The U.S. General Accounting Office issued a report on September 28, 1994, which stated that between 1940 and 1974, DOD and other national security agencies studied thousands of human subjects in tests and experiments involving hazardous substances.

The quote from the study:^[78]

Working with the CIA, the Department of Defense gave hallucinogenic drugs to thousands of "volunteer" soldiers in the 1950s and 1960s. In addition to LSD, the Army also tested quinuclidinyl benzilate, a hallucinogen code-named BZ. (Note 37) Many of these tests were conducted under the so-called MKULTRA program, established to counter perceived Soviet and Chinese advances in brainwashing techniques. Between 1953 and 1964, the program consisted of 149 projects involving drug testing and other studies on unwitting human subjects

Deaths

Given the CIA's purposeful destruction of most records, its failure to follow informed consent protocols with thousands of participants, the uncontrolled nature of the experiments, and the lack of follow-up data, the full impact of MKUltra experiments, including deaths, may never be known.^{[31][36][78][79]}

Several known deaths have been associated with Project MKUltra, most notably that of Frank Olson. Olson, a United States Army biochemist and biological weapons researcher, was given LSD without his knowledge or consent in November 1953, as part of a CIA experiment, and died by suicide by jumping out of a 13th-story window a week later. A CIA doctor assigned to monitor Olson claimed to have been asleep in another bed in a New York City hotel room when Olson fell to his death. In 1953, Olson's death was described as a suicide that had occurred during a severe psychotic episode. The CIA's own internal investigation concluded that the head of MKUltra, CIA chemist Sidney Gottlieb, had conducted the LSD experiment with Olson's prior knowledge, although neither Olson nor the other men taking part in the experiment were informed as to the exact nature of the drug until some 20 minutes after its ingestion. The report further suggested that Gottlieb was nonetheless due a reprimand, as he had failed to take into account Olson's already-diagnosed suicidal tendencies, which might have been exacerbated by the LSD.^[80]

The Olson family disputes the official version of events. They maintain that Frank Olson was murdered because, especially in the aftermath of his LSD experience, he had become a security risk who might divulge state secrets associated with highly classified CIA programs, about many of which he had direct personal knowledge.^[81] A few days before his death, Frank Olson quit his position as acting chief of the Special Operations Division at Detrick, Maryland (later Fort Detrick) because of a severe moral crisis concerning the nature of his biological weapons research. Among Olson's concerns were the development of assassination materials used by the CIA, the CIA's use of biological warfare materials in covert operations, experimentation with biological weapons in populated areas, collaboration with former scientists under Operation Paperclip, LSD mind-control research, and the use of psychoactive drugs during "terminal" interrogations under a program code-named Project ARTICHOKE.^[82] Later forensic evidence conflicted with the official version of events; when Olson's body was exhumed in 1994, cranial injuries indicated that Olson had been knocked unconscious before he exited the window.^[80] The medical examiner termed Olson's death a "homicide".^[83] In 1975, Olson's family received a $750,000 settlement from the U.S. government and formal apologies from President Gerald Ford and CIA Director William Colby, though their apologies were limited to informed consent issues concerning Olson's ingestion of LSD.^[79] On 28 November 2012, the Olson family filed suit against the U.S. federal government for the wrongful death of Frank Olson.^[84] The case was dismissed in July 2013, due in part to the 1976 settlement between the family and government.^[85] In the decision dismissing the suit, U.S.

District Judge James Boasberg wrote, "While the court must limit its analysis to the four corners of the complaint, the skeptical reader may wish to know that the public record supports many of the allegations [in the family's suit], farfetched as they may sound."^[86]

A 2010 book by H. P. Albarelli Jr. alleged that the 1951 Pont-Saint-Esprit mass poisoning was part of MKDELTA, that Olson was involved in that event, and that he was eventually murdered by the CIA.^{[87][88]} However, academic sources attribute the incident to ergot poisoning through a local bakery.^{[89][90][91]}

Legal issues involving informed consent

The revelations about the CIA and the army prompted a number of subjects or their survivors to file lawsuits against the federal government for conducting experiments without informed consent. Although the government aggressively, and sometimes successfully, sought to avoid legal liability, several plaintiffs did receive compensation through court order, out-of-court settlement, or acts of Congress. Frank Olson's family received $750,000 by a special act of Congress, and both President Ford and CIA director William Colby met with Olson's family to apologize publicly.

Previously, the CIA and the army had actively and successfully sought to withhold incriminating information, even as they secretly provided compensation to the families. One subject of army drug experimentation, James Stanley, an army sergeant, brought an important, albeit unsuccessful, suit. The government argued that Stanley was barred from suing under the Feres doctrine.

In 1987, the Supreme Court affirmed this defense in a 5–4 decision that dismissed Stanley's case: United States v. Stanley.^[92] The majority argued that "a test for liability that depends on the extent to which particular suits would call into question military discipline and decision making would itself require judicial inquiry into, and hence intrusion upon, military matters." In dissent, Justice William Brennan argued that the need to preserve military discipline should not protect the government from liability and punishment for serious violations of constitutional rights:

The medical trials at Nuremberg in 1947 deeply impressed upon the world that experimentation with unknowing human subjects is morally and legally unacceptable. The United States Military Tribunal established the Nuremberg Code as a standard against which to judge German scientists who experimented with human subjects.... [I]n defiance of this principle, military intelligence officials ... began surreptitiously testing chemical and biological materials, including LSD.

Justice Sandra Day O'Connor, writing a separate dissent, stated:

No judicially crafted rule should insulate from liability the involuntary and unknowing human experimentation alleged to have occurred in this case. Indeed, as Justice Brennan observes, the United States played an instrumental role in the criminal prosecution of Nazi officials who experimented with human subjects during the Second World War, and the standards that the Nuremberg Military Tribunals developed to judge the behavior of the defendants stated that the 'voluntary consent of the human subject is absolutely essential ... to satisfy moral, ethical, and legal concepts.' If this principle is violated, the very least that society can do is to see that the victims are compensated, as best they can be, by the perpetrators.

In another lawsuit, Wayne Ritchie, a former United States Marshal, after hearing about the project's existence in 1990, alleged the CIA laced his food or drink with LSD at a 1957 Christmas party which resulted in his attempting to commit a robbery at a bar and his subsequent arrest. While the government admitted it was, at that time, drugging people without their consent, U.S. District Judge Marilyn Hall Patel found Ritchie could not prove he was one of the victims of MKUltra or that LSD caused his robbery attempt and dismissed the case in 2005.^{[93][94]}

Notable people

Experimenters

- Harold Alexander Abramson
- Donald Ewen Cameron
- Sidney Gottlieb
- Harris Isbell^[21]
- Louis Jolyon West
- Martin Theodore Orne

Documented subjects

- American poet Allen Ginsberg first took LSD in an experiment on Stanford University's campus where he could listen to records of his choice (he chose a Gertrude Stein reading, a Tibetan mandala, and Wagner). He said the experience resulted in "a slight paranoia that hung on all my acid experiences through the mid-1960s until I learned from meditation how to disperse that."^[95] He became an outspoken advocate for psychedelics in the 1960s and, after hearing suspicions that the experiment was CIA-funded, wrote, "Am I, Allen Ginsberg, the product one of the CIA's lamentable, ill-advised, or triumphantly successful experiments in mind control?"^[96]
- Ken Kesey, author of One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest, is said to have volunteered for MKUltra experiments involving LSD and other psychedelic drugs at the Veterans Administration Hospital in Menlo Park while he was a student at nearby Stanford University. Kesey's experiences while under the influence of LSD inspired him to promote the drug outside the context of the MKUltra experiments, which influenced the early development of hippie culture.^{[97][55]}
- Robert Hunter was an American lyricist, singer-songwriter, translator, and poet, best known for his association with Jerry Garcia and the Grateful Dead. Along with Ken Kesey, Hunter was said to be an early volunteer MKUltra test subject at Stanford University. Stanford test subjects were paid to take LSD, psilocybin, and mescaline, then report on their experiences. These experiences were creatively formative for Hunter:

Sit back picture yourself swooping up a shell of purple with foam crests of crystal drops soft nigh they fall unto the sea of morning creep-very-softly mist ... and then sort of cascade tinkley-bell-like (must I take you by the hand, ever so slowly type) and then conglomerate suddenly into a peal of silver vibrant uncomprehendingly, blood singingly, joyously resounding bells ... By my faith if this be insanity, then for the love of God permit me to remain insane.^[98]

- Boston mobster James "Whitey" Bulger alleged he had been subjected to weekly injections of LSD and subsequent testing while in prison in Atlanta in 1957.^{[99][100]}

Alleged subjects

- Ted Kaczynski, an American domestic terrorist known as the Unabomber, was said to be a subject of a voluntary psychological study alleged by some sources to have been a part of MKUltra.^{[101][102][103]} As a sophomore at Harvard, Kaczynski participated in a study described by author Alston Chase as a "purposely brutalizing psychological experiment", led by Harvard psychologist Henry Murray.^{[104][105]} In total, Kaczynski spent 200 hours as part of the study.^[106]
- Lawrence Teeter was the attorney for Sirhan Sirhan who assassinated Robert F. Kennedy, and he believed that Sirhan was "operating under MK-ULTRA mind control techniques".^[107]

Aftermath

After retiring in 1972, Gottlieb dismissed his entire effort for the CIA's MKUltra program as useless.^{[32][108]} The CIA insists that MKUltra-type experiments have been abandoned.

In popular culture

MKUltra plays a part in many conspiracy theories due to its nature and the destruction of most records.^[109]

Films

- 1963 film The Mind Benders depicts the investigation of sensory deprivation by intelligence agencies for use in extracting information via torture, i.e. sensory deprivation.
- 1990 film Jacob's Ladder alludes to Project MKUltra throughout the movie.
- 1997 film Conspiracy Theory Project MKUltra is referred to by Dr. Jonas (Patrick Stewart) who says he headed the project. Also, the protagonist, Jerry (Mel Gibson) is reported by Dr. Jonas to be a test subject of Project MKUltra.
- 2006 film Shadow Man starring Steven Seagal has a plot that revolves around a (fictional) cancer-causing biological weapon called "MK Ultra".
- 2006 film The Good Shepherd depicts a defector who takes his own life by jumping from a high window after interrogation using torture and LSD.
- 2008 film Pineapple Express depicts Project MKUltra in the intro scene, although it is portrayed as taking place in 1937.
- 2009 film The Killing Room invokes Project MKUltra as the foundation to the base plot.
- Marvin Boggs (played by John Malkovich) in the films RED (2010) and RED 2 (2013) had unknowingly been provided daily doses of LSD over a period of 11 years, making him highly paranoid, echoing the actions of MKUltra.
- 2013 film The Banshee Chapter is largely based around MKUltra.
- 2015 film American Ultra stars Jesse Eisenberg as a stoner slacker who discovers he is the sole survivor of the "Ultra" program, which turned him into the ultimate assassin.
- 2015 film Mr. Right depicts Hopper (portrayed by Tim Roth) mentioning the MKUltra program (at 27 minutes 15 seconds) as part of the foundation to the main character's motives and backstory.
- The Jason Bourne books and films starring Matt Damon, written by Robert Ludlum, are all based on MKUltra techniques.

Television

- The 1998 CBC miniseries The Sleep Room dramatizes brainwashing experiments funded by MKUltra that were performed on Canadian mental patients in the 1950s and 60s, and their subsequent efforts to sue the CIA.^[67]
- BYUtv's drama Granite Flats is a fictional dramatization of the implementation of MKUltra by a military hospital in Colorado.
- In season 2, episode 19 of Bones, "Spaceman in a Crater", Jack Hodgins mentions that Frank Olson was an unwitting participant and committed suicide, but that an exhumation 45 years later proved he was murdered.^[110]
- In an episode of ABC's Marvel's Agents of S.H.I.E.L.D., "The Things We Bury", one of the characters makes a reference to MKUltra.
- In season 2, episode 5 of Fringe, "Dream Logic", Walter Bishop briefly mentions his involvement with MKUltra.
- In season 6, episode 7 of Archer, "Nellis", Archer briefly mentions MKUltra while bluffing his way into Area 51; in season 7, episode 8, "Liquid Lunch", the program is explained to Archer's colleagues.
- In episode "Via Negativa" from the eighth season of The X-Files, The Lone Gunmen mention MKUltra while discussing a case with Agent Doggett.
- In The X-Files third-season episode "Jose Chung's From Outer Space", Jose Chung mentions the experiments as an example of the powerful effect "mere words" can have over the human mind.
- In Alphas, events imply that the Alphas program had its starts in the MKUltra program, and Dr. Rosen has access to certain files from the MKUltra project.
- In season 3, episode 10 of NUMB3RS, Don Eppes investigates the assassinations of a senator and a psychiatrist with links to MKUltra.
- In the fourth episode of Season 2 of The Blacklist, Cooper mentions Project MKUltra while talking to Elizabeth Keen. The entire episode is based on the premise of using genetic predisposition to make someone commit an act that they most likely would not have done in the first place.
- In season 1 of Stranger Things, the antagonist Dr. Martin Brenner is discovered to have been involved in MKUltra. One of the young protagonists, Eleven, was raised in a government laboratory after being born to an MKUltra test subject.
- In Season 5, Episode 10 of The West Wing, the White House press secretary is questioned by a reporter about mind control, leading her to investigate MKUltra and the budgetary allocations of DARPA for the project.
- Netflix original series Manhunt: Unabomber portrays the psychological torture of 16-year-old Harvard student Theodore Kaczynski by MKUltra researchers. Kaczynski was the perpetrator of serial bombings over a 17-year period and became known as the Unabomber.
- The 2017 Netflix documentary re-enactment mini-series Wormwood tells the story of Frank Olson and MKUltra through the eyes of his son, Eric.
- In the first season of Dexter's Laboratory, episode 27, Dexter falls asleep to a literal broken record that only recites a single phrase. He "wakes up" and moves through his day as a brain-washed shell, reciting only one phrase; this style of mind control echoes the MKUltra experiments carried out at Ravens Crag in Montreal, Canada.

Audio

- The song "MK Ultra" by British band Muse makes direct reference to this project in the title and uses lyrics to convey the effects of the project directly on a subject.
- Lyrics of "Look ... The Sun is Rising", the opening track to The Flaming Lips' 2013 album The Terror, narrate "a little spaceship" as a mechanism for MKUltra mind control.
- The song "The 4th Branch" by rapper Immortal Technique from his album Revolutionary Volume 2, compares modern media to MKUltra, "controlling your brain".

- Black Rebel Motorcycle Club's songs "US Government" and "MK Ultra" make direct reference to the project, as well as more oblique references.
- Progressive metal band Periphery's song "MK Ultra" makes direct reference to the project in the title.
- Olympia-based band Unwound's song "Mkultra" appears on both the A Single History: 1991–1997 and Rat Conspiracy compilations.
- In 2019 British guitar amplifier manufacturer Orange Music Electronic Company designed a custom "one off" amplifier for blues guitarist Marcus King named the "MK Ultra".^[111]
- Rapper Lupe Fiasco's song "They. Resurrect. Over. New." from his 2015 album Tetsuo & Youth mentions MKUltra.
- Heavy metal band Toxic Holocaust's album Chemistry of Consciousness contains several references to the experiments, including the song "Mkultra".
- On metal band Arsonists Get All the Girls' 2013 album Listen to the Color, the songs "MK-ULTRA: Psychotropic Puppets" and "MK-DELTA: Glorified Killers" reference the program through title and lyrics.
- German band [:SITD:]'s song "MK Ultra" is titled for the project; the lyrics describe a person under the influence of drugs used in the project, losing their grasp on their humanity and mind.
- American singer-songwriter Will Wood's song "BlackBoxWarrior / OKULTRA" describes a person suffering from Stevens-Johnson Syndrome. Wood also references and builds off of MKULTRA history in his alternate reality game Mary Bell University.

Others

- The Stephen King book Firestarter is based on a fictionalized version of the MK Ultra experiments, and the protagonists all acquire powers as a result of the experimentation.
- Alan Glynn, the Irish novelist, uses Project MKUltra as part of the background for his plot in Limitless (also a film) and Paradime (2016).
- The horror game Outlast makes several major references to MK Ultra and implies that the experiments on the asylum inmates in the game are either a part of or associated with the program.
- Project MKUltra is mentioned in Call of Duty: Black Ops as the Soviet Union's attempt to turn protagonist Alex Mason into a Soviet sleeper agent with orders to assassinate President Kennedy. Mason's handler, CIA agent Jason Hudson, even mentions it when telling Mason he had been brainwashed by the Soviets, but was sabotaged to turn on his brainwashers.
- Project MKUltra is again mentioned in Call of Duty: Black Ops Cold War as the CIA's attempt to turn protagonist "Bell" into an American sleeper agent with orders to find out who "Perseus" is. It is revealed and mentioned at the end of the story that "Bell" is a Russian agent who has undergone Project MKUltra.
- The game Manhunt 2 is based around "The Pickman Project" which has several similarities to MKUltra and it is likely it was directly inspired by it.
- A cannabis strain called MKUltra has been developed by T.H.Seeds of Amsterdam.^[112]
- Project MKUltra is mentioned in the 2016 video game Mafia III by one of the characters, ex-CIA agent John Donovan.
- In the Broadway musical We Will Rock You, MKUltra is referred to as the Bohemians are brainwashed and experimented on to become vegetables.
- The online, anonymously-written science fiction and horror story 9MOTHER9HORSE9EYES9 borrows from and refers to the MKUltra project directly.^[113]
- The fictitious video game known as Polybius had spread around as an urban myth in the early 2000s. Many of the key points of Polybius allude to government control testing and other "men in black" type figures, suggesting Polybius took inspiration from project MKUltra at the time of its creation.^[114]

See also

United States

- CIA activities in the United States
- Unethical human experimentation in the United States

International

- Allegations of CIA drug trafficking
- Human radiation experiments
- Human rights violations by the CIA
- Poison laboratory of the Soviet secret services
- Unit 731

Operations

- Category:Central Intelligence Agency operations
- Project MKCHICKWIT
- Project MKOFTEN

Other

- Montauk Project
- Harold Blauer – a man who died within project MK-Ultra as a result of a 3,4-methylenedioxyamphetamine injection

References

1. "One of the Most Shocking CIA Programs of All Time: Project MKUltra" (<http://www.todayifoundout.com/index.php/2013/09/one-shocking-cia-programs-time-project-mkultra/>). 2013-09-23. Retrieved 2016-08-18.
2. Editors, History.com (2018-08-21). "MK-Ultra" (<https://www.history.com/topics/us-government/history-of-mk-ultra>). History.com. A&E Television Networks. Retrieved 2019-01-02. "Though Project MK-Ultra lasted from 1953 until about 1973, details of the illicit program didn't become public until 1975, during a congressional investigation into widespread illegal CIA activities within the U.S. and around the world."
3. Valentine, Douglas (2016). The CIA as Organized Crime: How Illegal Operations Corrupt America and the World. Clarity Press. ISBN 978-0997287011. "As Vietnam was winding down, the CIA was beset by Congressional investigations that revealed some of the criminal activities it was involved in, like MKULTRA."
4. "Advisory on Human Radiation Experiments, July 5, 1994, National Security Archives, retrieved January 16, 2014" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20130713145805/http://www.gwu.edu/~nsarchiv/radiation/dir/mstreet/commeet/meet4/trnsct04.txt>). Archived from the original (<http://www2.gwu.edu/~nsarchiv/radiation/dir/mstreet/commeet/meet4/trnsct04.txt>) on July 13, 2013.
5. "FOIA I CIA FOIA (foia.cia.gov)" (<https://www.cia.gov/library/readingroom/search/site/artichoke>). www.cia.gov.
6. "PROJECT BLUEBIRD I CIA FOIA (foia.cia.gov)" (<https://www.cia.gov/library/readingroom/document/cia-rdp83-01042r000800010003-1>). www.cia.gov.

7. "Project MKUltra, the Central Intelligence Agency's Program of Research into Behavioral Modification. Joint Hearing before the Select Committee on Intelligence and the Subcommittee on Health and Scientific Research of the Committee on Human Resources, United States Senate, Ninety-Fifth Congress, First Session" (https://www.nytimes.com/packages/pdf/national/13inmate_ProjectMKULTRA.pdf) (PDF). U.S. Government Printing Office (copy hosted at the New York Times website). August 8, 1977. Retrieved 2010-04-18.
8. "Chapter 3: Supreme Court Dissents Invoke the Nuremberg Code: CIA and DOD Human Subjects Research Scandals" (https://web.archive.org/web/20130331150116/http://www.hss.doe.gov/healthsafety/ohre/roadmap/achre/chap3_4.html). Archived from the original (http://www.hss.doe.gov/healthsafety/ohre/roadmap/achre/chap3_4.html) on 2013-03-31. Retrieved 2012-11-08.
9. "U.S. Senate Report on CIA MKULTRA Behavioral Modification Program 1977" (<https://publicintelligence.net/ssci-mkultra-1977/>). publicintelligence.net – Public Intelligence.
10. Richelson, JT (ed.) (2001-09-10). "Science, Technology and the CIA: A National Security Archive Electronic Briefing Book" (<http://www.gwu.edu/~nsarchiv/NSAEBB/NSAEBB54/>). George Washington University. Retrieved 2009-06-12.
11. "Chapter 3, part 4: Supreme Court Dissents Invoke the Nuremberg Code: CIA and DOD Human Subjects Research Scandals" (https://web.archive.org/web/20070430101158/http://hss.energy.gov/healthsafety/ohre/roadmap/achre/chap3_4.html). Advisory Committee on Human Radiation Experiments Final Report. Archived from the original (http://www.hss.energy.gov/healthsafety/ohre/roadmap/achre/chap3_4.html) on 2007-04-30. Retrieved 2005-08-24.
12. "The Select Committee to Study Governmental Operations with Respect to Intelligence Activities, Foreign and Military Intelligence" (http://www.aarclibrary.org/publib/church/reports/book1/html/ChurchB1_0200b.htm). Church Committee report, no. 94-755, 94th Cong., 2d Sess. Washington, D.C.: United States Congress. 1976. p. 392.
13. National Public Radio (NPR), 9 Sept. 2019, "The CIA's Secret Quest For Mind Control: Torture, LSD And A 'Poisoner In Chief'" (<https://www.npr.org/2019/09/09/758989641/the-cias-secret-quest-for-mind-control-torture-lsd-and-a-poisoner-in-chief>) (On-air interview with journalist Stephen Kinzer)
14. "Dialogue Sought With Professor In CIA Probe" (<https://www.cia.gov/readingroom/document/cia-rdp88-01315r000400250013-0>). 1977-08-27. Retrieved 2017-12-27.
15. "Statement of Director of Central Intelligence Before Subcommittee On Health And Scientific Research Senate Committee on Human Resources" (<https://www.cia.gov/library/readingroom/docs/CIA-RDP99-00498R000300020007-3.pdf>) (PDF). 1977-09-21. Retrieved 2017-12-27.
16. Otterman, Michael (2007). American Torture: From the Cold War to Abu Ghraib and Beyond. Melbourne University Publishing. p. 24. ISBN 978-0522853339.
17. McCoy, Alfred (2007). A Question of Torture: CIA Interrogation, from the Cold War to the War on Terror. Macmillan. p. 29. ISBN 978-1429900683.
18. Horrock, Nicholas M. (4 Aug 1977). "80 Institutions Used in CIA Mind Studies: Admiral Turner Tells Senators of Behavior Control Research Bars Drug Testing Now" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20210330005628/https://www.nytimes.com/1977/08/04/archives/80-institutions-used-in-cia-mind-studies-admiral-turner-tells.html>). New York Times. Archived from the original (<https://www.nytimes.com/1977/08/04/archives/80-institutions-used-in-cia-mind-studies-admiral-turner-tells.html>) on 30 March 2021.
19. United States Senate, 95th Congress, 1st session (3 August 1977). Project MKUltra, The CIA's Program of Research in Behavioral Modification (https://www.nytimes.com/packages/pdf/national/13inmate_ProjectMKULTRA.pdf) (PDF). Joint Hearing Before the Select Committee on Intelligence and the Subcommittee on Health and Scientific Research of the Committee on Human Resources (Report).
20. "An Interview with Richard Helms" (https://www.cia.gov/library/center-for-the-study-of-intelligence/ken-t-csi/vol44no4/html/v44i4a07p_0021.htm). Central Intelligence Agency. 2007-05-08. Retrieved 2008-03-16.

21. "Private Institutions Used In C.I.A Effort To Control Behavior. 25-Year, $25 Million Program. New Information About Funding and Operations Disclosed by Documents and Interviews Private Institutions Used in C.I.A. Plan" (<https://query.nytimes.com/gst/abstract.html?res=9902EED9113FE334BC4A53DFBE66838C669EDE>). New York Times. August 2, 1977. Retrieved 2014-07-30. "Several prominent medical research institutions and Government hospitals in the United States and Canada were involved in a secret, 25-year, $25-million effort by the Central Intelligence Agency to learn how to control the human mind. ... Dr. Harris Isbell, who conducted the research between 1952 and 1963, kept up a secret correspondence with the C.I.A."
22. Andrew Whalen On 12/7/18 at 7:24 PM (2018-12-07). "How the CIA used brain surgery to make six remote control dogs" (<https://www.newsweek.com/cia-mkultra-documents-files-remote-control-dogs-1250519>). Newsweek. Retrieved 2018-12-12.
23. O'Neill, Natalie (2018-12-11). "CIA once secretly implanted mind-control devices in dogs' brains" (<http://nypost.com/2018/12/11/cia-once-secretly-implanted-mind-control-devices-in-dogs-brains/>). New York Post. Retrieved 2018-12-12.
24. Marks, John (1991). The Search for the "Manchurian Candidate" : The CIA and Mind Control. W. W. Norton & Company. p. 61. ISBN 978-0393307948.
25. Church Committee; p. 390 (http://www.aarclibrary.org/publib/church/reports/book1/html/ChurchB1_0199b.htm) "MKUltra was approved by the DCI [Director of Central Intelligence] on April 13, 1953"
26. "Chapter 3, part 4: Supreme Court Dissents Invoke the Nuremberg Code: CIA and DOD Human Subjects Research Scandals" (https://web.archive.org/web/20041109061412/http://www.eh.doe.gov/ohre/roadmap/achre/chap3_4.html). Advisory Committee on Human Radiation Experiments Final Report. Archived from the original (http://www.eh.doe.gov/ohre/roadmap/achre/chap3_4.html) on November 9, 2004. Retrieved August 24, 2005. "MKUltra, began in 1950 and was motivated largely in response to alleged Soviet, Chinese, and North Korean uses of mind-control techniques on U.S. prisoners of war in Korea."
27. Church Committee; p. 391 (http://www.aarclibrary.org/publib/church/reports/book1/html/ChurchB1_0200a.htm) "A special procedure, designated MKDELTA, was established to govern the use of MKUltra materials abroad. Such materials were used on a number of occasions."
28. Church Committee; "The congressional committee investigating the CIA research, chaired by Senator Frank Church, concluded that "[p]rior consent was obviously not obtained from any of the subjects."
29. Price, David (June 2007). "Buying a Piece of Anthropology: Human Ecology and unwitting anthropological research for the CIA" (<https://file.wikileaks.org/file/AT-june07-Price-PT1.pdf>) (PDF). Anthropology Today. 23 (3): 3–13. doi:10.1111/j.1467-8322.2007.00510.x (<https://doi.org/10.1111%2Fj.1467-8322.2007.00510.x>). Retrieved 2008-04-13.
30. "Retrieved 25 April 2008" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20100620105003/http://druglibrary.org/schafferr/history/e1950/mkultra/Hearing05.htm>). Druglibrary.org. Archived from the original (<http://www.druglibrary.org/schafferr/History/e1950/mkultra/Hearing05.htm>) on 20 June 2010. Retrieved 2010-03-26.
31. "Chapter 3, part 4: Supreme Court Dissents Invoke the Nuremberg Code: CIA and DOD Human Subjects Research Scandals" (https://web.archive.org/web/20130331150116/http://www.hss.doe.gov/healthsafety/ohre/roadmap/achre/chap3_4.html). Advisory Committee on Human Radiation Experiments Final Report. Archived from the original (http://www.hss.doe.gov/healthsafety/ohre/roadmap/achre/chap3_4.html) on March 31, 2013. Retrieved April 16, 2013. (identical sentence) "Because most of the MK-ULTRA records were deliberately destroyed in 1973 ... MK-ULTRA and the related CIA programs."
32. Rupert Cornwell (March 16, 1999). "Obituary: Sidney Gottlieb" (<https://www.independent.co.uk/arts-entertainment/obituary-sidney-gottlieb-1080920.html>). The Independent (London). Retrieved 25 June 2012.
33. McCoy, Alfred (2006). A Question of Torture: CIA Interrogation from the Cold War to the War on Terror. New York: Metropolitan Books. pp. 8, 22, 30. ISBN 0805080414.

34. Klein, Naomi (2007). The Shock Doctrine: The Rise of Disaster Capitalism (<https://archive.org/details/shockdoctriner00unse>). New York: Picador. pp. 47 (<https://archive.org/details/shockdoctriner00unse/page/47>)–49. ISBN 978-0312427993.
35. Ranelagh, John (March 1988). The Agency: The Rise and Decline of the CIA. Sceptre. pp. 208–210. ISBN 0340412305.
36. "Senate MKUltra Hearing: Appendix C – Documents Referring to Subprojects, (p. 167, in PDF document page numbering)" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20071128230208/http://www.arts.rpi.edu/~pellr/lansberry/mkultra.pdf>) (PDF). Senate Select Committee on Intelligence and Committee on Human Resources. August 3, 1977. Archived from the original (<http://www.arts.rpi.edu/~pellr/lansberry/mkultra.pdf>) (PDF) on 2007-11-28. Retrieved 2007-08-22.
37. Book 1: Final report of the Select Committee to Study Governmental Operations with Respect to Intelligence Activities, United States Senate : together with additional, supplemental, and separate views (<https://archive.org/stream/finalreportofsel01unit#page/390/mode/2up>). United States Government Printing Office. April 26, 1976. p. 391.
38. Schefflin, Jr, Alan W.; Opton, Edward M. (1978). The mind manipulators : a non-fiction account. New York: Paddington Press. p. 158. ISBN 978-0448229775.
39. Thomas, Gordon (1989). Journey into madness : the true story of secret CIA mind control and medical abuse. New York: Bantam Books. p. 123. ISBN 978-0553053579.
40. 1977 Senate MKULTRA Hearing: Appendix C – Documents Referring to subprojects
41. Martin A. Lee; Bruce Shlain (2007). Acid Dreams: The Complete Social History of LSD: The CIA, the Sixties, and Beyond (https://books.google.com/books?id=_oq8djFLFL0C&pg=PT373). Grove/Atlantic. pp. 373–. ISBN 978-0802196064.
42. Richards, Bill (June 17, 1977). "Data shows 50s projects: Germ Testing by the CIA" (<http://jfk.hood.edu/Collection/Weisberg%20Subject%20Index%20Files/C%20Disk/CIA%20CBW/Item%2001.pdf>) (PDF). The Washington Post. p. A1. Retrieved January 20, 2014.
43. "Declassified" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20020131080119/http://www.michael-robinett.com/declass/c010.htm>). Michael-robinett.com. Archived from the original (<http://www.michael-robinett.com/declass/c010.htm>) on 2002-01-31. Retrieved 2010-03-26.
44. Brandt, Daniel (1996-01-03). "Mind Control and the Secret State" (<https://archive.today/20120804222524/http://www.namebase.org/news12.html>). NameBase NewsLine. Archived from the original (<http://www.namebase.org/news12.html>) on 2012-08-04. Retrieved 2010-03-26.
45. "Hss.doe.gov" (https://web.archive.org/web/20130331150116/http://www.hss.doe.gov/healthsafety/ohre/roadmap/achre/chap3_4.html). Archived from the original (http://www.hss.doe.gov/healthsafety/ohre/roadmap/achre/chap3_4.html) on 2013-03-31. Retrieved 2012-11-08.
46. Marks, John. "The Search for the Manchurian Candidate – Chapter 4" (<http://www.druglibrary.org/schaffer/lsd/marks4.htm>). www.druglibrary.org.
47. Tim Weiner (10 Mar 1999). "Sidney Gottlieb, 80, Dies; Took LSD to C.I.A." (<https://www.nytimes.com/1999/03/10/us/sidney-gottlieb-80-dies-took-lsd-to-cia.html>) New York Times. Retrieved 25 June 2012.
48. Rappoport, J. (1995). "CIA Experiments With Mind Control on Children". Perceptions Magazine, p. 56.
49. Marks, John (1979). The Search for the Manchurian Candidate (<https://archive.org/details/searchformanchur00john/page/106>). New York: Times Books. pp. 106–107 (<https://archive.org/details/searchformanchur00john/page/106>). ISBN 0812907736.
50. Marks, John (1991). The Search for the "Manchurian Candidate" : The CIA and Mind Control. W. W. Norton & Company. p. 67. ISBN 978-0393307948.
51. Szalavitz, Maia. "The Legacy of the CIA's Secret LSD Experiments on America" (<http://healthland.time.com/2012/03/23/the-legacy-of-the-cias-secret-lsd-experiments-on-america/>). Time – via healthland.time.com.
52. VA Palo Alto Health Care System. "Menlo Park Division" (http://www.paloalto.va.gov/locations/menlo_park.asp). va.gov. Retrieved 2014-12-14.

53. "Cloak and Dropper – The Twisted History of the CIA and LSD" (<https://www.thefix.com/cloak-and-dropper-twisted-history-cia-and-ld?page=all>). The Fix. 2015-09-18.
54. Reilly, Edward C. "Ken Kesey." Critical Survey of Long Fiction, Second Revised Edition (2000): EBSCO. Web. Nov 10. 2010.
55. Baker, Jeff (2001-11-11). "All times a great artist, Ken Kesey is dead at age 66". The Oregonian. pp. A1.
56. Lee, M. A., Shlain, B. (1985). Acid Dreams, the Complete Social History of LSD: the CIA, the Sixties, and Beyond. Grove Press.
57. "י"וקד, צח (2019-12-09). "המדען היהודי שהיה הדבר הכי קרוב למנגלה בהיסטוריה של ארה"ב" (<https://www.haaretz.co.il/gallery/literature/.premium-1.8251405>). הארץ (in Hebrew). Retrieved 2019-12-11.
58. NPR Fresh Air. June 28, 2007 and Tim Weiner, The Legacy of Ashes: The History of the CIA.
59. "Declassified" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20020131081305/http://www.michael-robinett.com/declass/c011.htm>). Michael-robinett.com. Archived from the original (<http://www.michael-robinett.com/declass/c011.htm>) on 2002-01-31. Retrieved 2010-03-26.
60. Marks, John (1979). The Search for the Manchurian Candidate (<https://archive.org/details/searchformanchur00john/page/40>). New York: Times Books. pp. 40–42 (<https://archive.org/details/searchformanchur00john/page/40>). ISBN 0812907736.
61. Marks, John (1979). The Search for the Manchurian Candidate (<https://archive.org/details/searchformanchur00john>). New York: Times Books. chapters 3 and 7. ISBN 0812907736.
62. "Declassified" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20020428104652/http://www.michael-robinett.com/declass/c078.htm>). Michael-robinett.com. Archived from the original (<http://www.michael-robinett.com/declass/c078.htm>) on 2002-04-28. Retrieved 2010-03-26.
63. Marks, John (1979). The Search for the Manchurian Candidate (<https://archive.org/details/searchformanchur00john/page/141>). New York: Times Books. pp. 140–150. ISBN 0812907736.
64. Turbide, Diane (1997-04-21). "Dr. Cameron's casualties" (<http://www.ect.org/dr-camerons-casualties/>). ect.org. Retrieved 2007-09-09.
65. Collins, Anne (1998) [1988]. In the Sleep Room: The story of CIA brainwashing experiments in Canada. Toronto: Key Porter Books. pp. 39, 42–43, 133. ISBN 1550139320.
66. "MK Ultra episodes" (<http://www.cbc.ca/fifth/episodes/40-years-of-the-fifth-estate/mk-ultra>). Canadian Broadcasting Corporation (CBC). 40 years of The Fifth Estate.
67. "The Sleep Room" (<https://www.imdb.com/title/tt0138104/>). IMDb. 31 March 1998.
68. Klein, N. (2007). The Shock Doctrine (<https://books.google.com/books?id=C0Kly92V58wC&pg=PA37>). Metropolitan Books. pp. 39–41 (<https://books.google.com/books?id=C0Kly92V58wC&pg=PA37#v=onepage&q&f=false>). ISBN 978-0676978018 – via Google Books.
69. McCoy, Alfred (2006). "Cruel science: CIA torture and U.S. foreign policy" (<https://books.google.com/books?id=dbGDjfx0XxcC&pg=PA173>). Sticks and Stones: 172–174. ISBN 1558495355 – via Google Books.
70. Elizabeth Nickson (October 16, 1994). "Mind Control: My Mother, the CIA and LSD". The Observer.
71. Hersh, Seymour M. (1974-12-22). "Huge C.i.a. Operation Reported in U.s. Against Antiwar Forces, Other Dissidents in Nixon Years" (<https://www.nytimes.com/1974/12/22/archives/huge-cia-operation-reported-in-u-s-against-antiwar-forces-other.html>). The New York Times. ISSN 0362-4331 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/0362-4331>). Retrieved 2018-12-12.
72. Prepared Statement of Admiral Stansfield Turner, Director of Central Intelligence (<http://www.parascope.com/ds/documentslibrary/documents/mkultrahearing/mkultraHearing02.htm>) Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20060526151923/http://www.parascope.com/ds/documentslibrary/documents/mkultrahearing/mkultraHearing02.htm>) 2006-05-26 at the Wayback Machine. ParaScope.
73. Tourek, Mary (2013-08-02). "CIA Director Admits Documents on Secret Drug Experiments Destroyed" (<http://todayinlh.com/?event=cia-director-admits-documents-on-drug-experiments-destroyed>). Today in Civil Liberties History. Retrieved 2019-12-13.

74. "Opening Remarks by Senator Ted Kennedy" (<http://www.druglibrary.org/schaffer/history/e1950/mkultra/Hearing01.htm>). U.S. Senate Select Committee On Intelligence, and Subcommittee On Health And Scientific Research of the Committee On Human Resources. 1977-08-03.
75. Ignatieff, Michael (April 1, 2001). "What did the C.I.A. do to Eric Olson's father?" (<https://www.nytimes.com/2001/04/01/magazine/01OLSON.html>). The New York Times Magazine. Retrieved 13 January 2017.
76. "Podcast 98 – MKUltra" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20150610221320/http://historyonair.com/?s=mkultra>). HistoryOnAir.com. 2005-06-16. Archived from the original (<http://historyonair.com/?s=mkultra>) on 2015-06-10. Retrieved 2013-03-04.
77. Stunning tale of brainwashing, the CIA and an unsuspecting Scots researcher (<http://www.scotsman.com/lifestyle/stunning-tale-of-brainwashing-the-cia-and-an-unsuspecting-scots-researcher-1-466144>), The Scotsman, January 5, 2006. Retrieved 13 January 2017.
78. Quote from "Is Military Research Hazardous to Veterans Health? Lessons Spanning Half A Century", part F. Hallucinogens (<http://www.gulfweb.org/bigdoc/rockrep.cfm#hallucinogens>) Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20060813164326/http://gulfweb.org/bigdoc/rockrep.cfm#hallucinogens>) 2006-08-13 at the Wayback Machine 103rd Congress, 2nd Session-S. Prt. 103-97; Staff Report prepared for the committee on veterans' affairs December 8, 1994 John D. Rockefeller IV, West Virginia, Chairman. Online copy provided by gulfweb.org, which describes itself as "Serving the Gulf War Veteran Community Worldwide Since 1994". (The same document is available from many other (unofficial) sites (<https://www.google.com/search?q=%22installing+several+telephone+hotlines.+As+of+September+1994%2C+86%22>), which may or may not be independent.)
79. Albarelli, H. P. (2009). A Terrible Mistake: The Murder of Frank Olson and the CIA's Secret Cold War Experiments (<https://archive.org/details/terriblemistake00hpal/page/350>). Trine Day. pp. 350–58, 490, 581–83, 686–92 (<https://archive.org/details/terriblemistake00hpal/page/350>). ISBN 978-0977795376.
80. Marks 1979: chapter 5.
81. "The Olson File" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20010804055955/http://www.frankolsonproject.org/Articles/LondonMail.html>). Frankolsonproject.org. Archived from the original (<http://www.frankolsonproject.org/Articles/LondonMail.html>) on 2001-08-04. Retrieved 2012-12-24.
82. Olson, E (2002-08-22). "Family Statement on the Murder of Frank Olson" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20030211052410/http://www.frankolsonproject.org/Statements/FamilyStatement2002.html>). Archived from the original (<http://www.frankolsonproject.org/Statements/FamilyStatement2002.html>) on 2003-02-11. Retrieved 2008-10-16.
83. Ronson, Jon (2004). The Men Who Stare at Goats (https://archive.org/details/menwhostareatgoa00rons_1). New York: Picador. ISBN 0330375482.
84. "News from The Associated Press" (https://web.archive.org/web/20121201232401/http://hosted.ap.org/dynamic/stories/U/US_SCIENTISTS_DEATH_LAWSUIT?SITE=AP&SECTION=HOME&TEMPLATE=DEFAULT&CTIME=2012-11-28-16-47-42). Archived from the original (http://hosted.ap.org/dynamic/stories/U/US_SCIENTISTS_DEATH_LAWSUIT?SITE=AP&SECTION=HOME&TEMPLATE=DEFAULT&CTIME=2012-11-28-16-47-42) on 2012-12-01.
85. Gaines, Danielle (July 18, 2013). "Lawsuit by family of drugged Detrick employee dismissed" (http://www.fredericknews.com/news/crime_and_justice/article_8705f623-edfd-59b0-9e04-548b15a2c423.html?TNNNoMobile). Frederick News-Post. Retrieved October 20, 2013.
86. Schoenberg, Tom (July 17, 2013). "CIA Cover-Up Suit Over Scientist's Fatal Fall Dismissed" (<https://www.bloomberg.com/news/2013-07-17/cia-cover-up-suit-over-scientist-s-fatal-fall-dismissed.html>). Bloomberg News. Retrieved February 22, 2014.
87. Thomson, Mike (23 August 2010). "Pont-Saint-Esprit poisoning: Did the CIA spread LSD?" (<https://www.bbc.com/news/world-10996838>). BBC.com. BBC News.
88. Schpolianksy, Christophe (23 March 2010). "Did CIA Experiment LSD on French Town?" (<https://abcnews.go.com/Health/International/book-claims-cia-ld-experiment-made-french-town/story?id=10171002>). ABCnews.com. ABC News.

89. Gabbai, Lisbonne and Pourquier (15 September 1951). "Ergot Poisoning at Pont St. Esprit" (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC2069953>). British Medical Journal. 2 (4732): 650–51. doi:10.1136/bmj.2.4732.650 (<https://doi.org/10.1136%2Fbmj.2.4732.650>). PMC 2069953 (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC2069953>). PMID 14869677 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/14869677>).
90. Finger, Stanley (2001). Origins of Neuroscience: A History of Explorations Into Brain Function (https://books.google.com/books?id=_GMeW9E1IB4C&pg=PA221). Oxford University Press. pp. 221–. ISBN 978-0195146943. Retrieved 24 February 2013.
91. Jeffrey C. Pommerville; I. Edward Alcamo (2012). Alcamo's Fundamentals of Microbiology: Body Systems Edition (https://books.google.com/books?id=Uf_HI3Exti8C&pg=PA734). Jones & Bartlett Publishers. pp. 734–. ISBN 978-1449605940. Retrieved 24 February 2013.
92. United States v. Stanley, 483 U.S. 669 (<https://supreme.justia.com/cases/federal/us/483/669/>) (1987)
93. "Ritchie v. United States of America: United States District Court, Northern District of California No. C 00-3940 MHP. Findings of Fact and Conclusion of Law Re: Motion for Judgment on Partial Findings" (<https://www.courtlistener.com/recap/gov.uscourts.cand.28985/gov.uscourts.cand.28985.250.0.pdf>) (PDF). Retrieved 2021-04-20.
94. Egelko, Bob (13 April 2005). "Bid to sue over LSD rejected" (<https://www.sfgate.com/bayarea/article/SAN-FRANCISCO-Bid-to-sue-over-LSD-rejected-2687007.php>). SFGate. Hearst Communications. Retrieved 28 September 2019.
95. Marks, John, 1943- (1991). The search for the "Manchurian candidate" (<https://www.worldcat.org/oclc/23973516>). New York: Norton. pp. 129–130. ISBN 0-393-30794-8. OCLC 23973516 (<https://www.worldcat.org/oclc/23973516>).
96. Lee, Martin A.; Shlain, Bruce (1992). Acid Dreams: The Complete Social History of LSD: The CIA, the Sixties, and Beyond. USA: Grove Press. pp. xix. ISBN 0802130623.
97. Lehmann-Haupt, C (2001-11-01). "Ken Kesey, Author of 'Cuckoo's Nest,' Who Defined the Psychedelic Era, Dies at 66" (<https://www.nytimes.com/2001/11/11/nyregion/ken-kesey-author-of-cuckoo-s-nest-who-defined-the-psychedelic-era-dies-at-66.html?pagewanted=1>). The New York Times. Retrieved 2010-09-08.
98. McNally, DA (2002). A Long Strange Trip: The Inside History of the Grateful Dead. Broadway Books. pp. 42–3 (<https://books.google.com/books?id=BxA5sA-HA2UC&pg=PA42#v=onepage&q&f=false>). ISBN 0767911865.
99. Weeks, Kevin (2007). Brutal: The Untold Story Of My Life Inside Whitey Bulger's Irish Mob. Harper Collins. pp. 83–84. ISBN 978-0061148064.
00. Bulger, James "Whitey" (2017-05-09). "I'm Whitey Bulger. Here's How the CIA Used Me for Drug Experiments" (<http://www.ozy.com/true-story/whitey-bulger-i-was-a-guinea-pig-for-cia-drug-experiments/76409>).
01. Moreno, Jonathan (2012). Mind Wars: Brain Science and the Military in the 21st Century. Bellevue Literary Press, NYU School of Medicine. ISBN 978-1934137437.
02. "MKUltra: Inside the CIA's Cold War mind control experiments" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20171122053010/http://www.theweek.co.uk/86961/mkultra-inside-the-cias-cold-war-mind-control-experiments>). The Week. Archived from the original (<http://www.theweek.co.uk/86961/mkultra-inside-the-cias-cold-war-mind-control-experiments>) on November 22, 2017. Retrieved December 23, 2017.
03. Chase, Alston (June 2000). "Harvard and the Making of the Unabomber" (<https://www.theatlantic.com/magazine/archive/2000/06/harvard-and-the-making-of-the-unabomber/378239/>). The Atlantic. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20140821120634/https://www.theatlantic.com/magazine/archive/2000/06/harvard-and-the-making-of-the-unabomber/378239/>) from the original on August 21, 2014. Retrieved December 23, 2017.
04. Moreno, Jonathan D (May 25, 2012). "Harvard's Experiment on the Unabomber, Class of '62" (<https://www.psychologytoday.com/blog/impromptu-man/201205/harvards-experiment-the-unabomber-class-62>). Psychology Today.

05. Haas, Michaela. "My Brother, the Unabomber" (<https://medium.com/life-tips/my-brother-the-unabomber-1ea71ea1f7af>). Life Tips. Medium. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20160409134205/https://medium.com/life-tips/my-brother-the-unabomber-1ea71ea1f7af>) from the original on April 9, 2016. Retrieved April 9, 2016.
06. Gitlin, Todd (March 2, 2003). "A Dangerous Mind" (<https://www.washingtonpost.com/archive/entertainment/books/2003/03/02/a-dangerous-mind/b003b569-3159-47da-bf95-17bef527f8bb/>). The Washington Post.
07. Hunt, H.E. (2008-11-19). "The 30 greatest conspiracy theories" (<https://www.telegraph.co.uk/news/newstopics/howaboutthat/3483477/The-30-greatest-conspiracy-theories-part-1.html>). The Telegraph. Telegraph Media Group. Retrieved 22 February 2018.
08. "Sidney Gottlieb". The Times (London). March 12, 1999.
09. Knight, P (2003). Conspiracy theories in American history: an encyclopedia, Volume 2. ABC-CLIO. pp. 490 (<https://books.google.com/books?id=qMIDrggs8TsC&pg=PA490>). ISBN 1576078124.
10. "Bones / 2x20transcript" (<http://bonestv.pbworks.com/w/page/10717790/2x20transcript>). bonestv.pbworks.com.
11. "Instagram" (<https://www.instagram.com/p/B0MNDPLna4R/>). Instagram @realmarcusking. July 23, 2019. Retrieved July 23, 2019.
12. MKUltra. "Mind Control Box" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20160404064305/http://www.thseeds.com/mind-control-box>). THSeeds.com. T.H.Seeds. Archived from the original (<http://www.thseeds.com/mind-control-box>) on 4 April 2016. Retrieved 8 March 2016.
13. Alexander, Leigh (2016-05-05). "_9MOTHER9HORSE9EYES9: the mysterious tale terrifying Reddit" (<https://www.theguardian.com/technology/2016/may/05/9mother9horse9eyes9-the-mysterious-tale-terrifying-reddit>). The Guardian. ISSN 0261-3077 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/0261-3077>). Retrieved 2017-03-28.
14. "Polybius (1981)" (<http://www.coinop.org/Game/103223/Polybius>). Coinop.org. Retrieved 2017-09-24.

Further reading

- Poisoner in Chief: Sidney Gottlieb and the CIA Search for Mind Control, Henry Holt and Co., by Stephen Kinzer, 2019, ISBN 978-1250140432
- The Secret History of Fort Detrick, the CIA's Base for Mind Control Experiments, by Stephen Kinzer, Politico, 2019.
- Potash, John L. (2015). Drugs as Weapons Against Us. Trine Day LLC. ISBN 978-1937584924.
- "U.S. Congress: The Select Committee to Study Governmental Operations with Respect to Intelligence Activities, Foreign and Military Intelligence (Church Committee report), report no. 94-755, 94th Cong., 2d Sess. (Washington, D.C.: GPO, 1976), 394" (<http://www.aarclibrary.org/publib/church/reports/book1/contents.htm>).
- "U.S. Senate: Joint Hearing before The Select Committee on Intelligence and The Subcommittee on Health and Scientific Research of the Committee on Human Resources, 95th Cong., 1st Sess. August 3, 1977" (<http://www.druglibrary.org/schaffer/history/e1950/mkultra/index.htm>).
- "The Search for the "Manchurian Candidate": The CIA and Mind Control: The Secret History of the Behavioral Sciences" (<http://www.druglibrary.org/schaffer/lsd/marks.htm>).
- Acid: The Secret History of LSD, by David Black, London: Vision, 1998, ISBN 1901250113. Later edition exists.
- Acid Dreams: The Complete Social History of LSD: The CIA, the Sixties, and Beyond by Martin Lee and Bruce Shlain, New York: Grove Press, 1985, ISBN 0802130623
- The Agency: The Rise and Decline of the CIA, by John Ranelagh, pp. 208–10.

- 80 Greatest Conspiracies of All Time, by Jonathan Vankin and John Whalin, chapter 1, "CIAcid Drop".
- In the Sleep Room: The Story of CIA Brainwashing Experiments in Canada, Anne Collins, Lester & Orpen Dennys (Toronto), 1988.
- Journey into Madness: The True Story of Secret CIA Mind Control and Medical Abuse, by Gordon Thomas, NY: Bantam, 1989, ISBN 0553284134
- Operation Mind Control: Our Secret Government's War Against Its Own People, by W H Bowart, New York: Dell, 1978, ISBN 0440167558
- The Men Who Stare at Goats, by Jon Ronson, Picador, 2004, ISBN 0330375482
- The Search for the Manchurian Candidate, by John Marks, W.W. Norton & Company Ltd, 1999, ISBN 0393307948
- Storming Heaven: LSD and The American Dream, by Jay Stevens, New York: Grove Press, 1987, ISBN 0802135870

External links

- Stephen Kinzer – Poisoner in Chief: Sidney Gottlieb and the CIA Search for Mind Control, Watson Institute for International and Public Affairs, 2. Oktober 2019 (<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=uX4ksoSCoeE>)
- Entire Four (4) CD-ROM set of CIA / MKUltra Declassified documents released by the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA), image format (<http://www.theblackvault.com/documentarchive/cia-mkultra-collection/>), The Black Vault
- MKUltra Declassified documents, PDF format
- U.S. Supreme Court, CIA v. Sims, 471 U.S. 159 (1985) 471 U.S. 159 (<https://archive.today/20121227172157/http://laws.findlaw.com/us/471/159.html>), Findlaw
- U.S. Supreme Court, United States v. Stanley, 483 U.S. 669 (1987) 483 U.S. 669 (<https://archive.today/20121227171939/http://laws.findlaw.com/us/483/669.html>), Findlaw
- Mind Control and MKULTRA (<https://web.archive.org/web/20060612210310/http://www.angelfire.com/or/mctrl/gall.html>) by Richard G. Gall
- The Most Dangerous Game (https://archive.org/movies/details-db.php?collection=independent_news&collectionid=tmdg) Downloadable 8 minute documentary by independent filmmakers GNN
- Results of the 1973 Church Committee Hearings, on CIA misdeeds, and the 1984 Iran/Contra Hearings (https://web.archive.org/web/20150618232600/http://pw1.netcom.com/~ncoic/cia_info.htm#Project%20NKNAOMI)
- XXVII. Testing and Use of Chemical and Biological Agents by the Intelligence Community (<https://web.archive.org/web/20050421233209/http://www.mindcontrolforums.com/church-committee-drugtesting-report.htm>)
- List of MKULTRA Unclassified Documents including subprojects (<https://web.archive.org/web/20090307031543/http://www.nemasys.com/rahome/library/programming/mkultra.shtml>)
- MK Ultra Project (<http://www.commissiononassisteddying.co.uk/mk-ultra-project/>)
- Dunning, Brian (July 30, 2013). "Skeptoid #373: The Secrets of MKULTRA" (<https://skeptoid.com/episodes/4373>). Skeptoid.

Retrieved from "https://en.wikipedia.org/w/index.php?title=Project_MKUltra&oldid=1028876895"

This page was last edited on 16 June 2021, at 14:51 (UTC).

Text is available under the Creative Commons Attribution-ShareAlike License; additional terms may apply. By using this site, you agree to the Terms of Use and Privacy Policy. Wikipedia® is a registered trademark of the Wikimedia Foundation, Inc., a non-profit organization.

Radio-frequency identification

Radio-frequency identification (RFID) uses electromagnetic fields to automatically identify and track tags attached to objects. An RFID system consists of a tiny radio transponder, a radio receiver and transmitter. When triggered by an electromagnetic interrogation pulse from a nearby RFID reader device, the tag transmits digital data, usually an identifying inventory number, back to the reader. This number can be used to track inventory goods.

There are two types of RFID tags:

- Passive tags are powered by energy from the RFID reader's interrogating radio waves.
- Active tags are powered by a battery and thus can be read at a greater range from the RFID reader, up to hundreds of meters.

Unlike a barcode, the tag does not need to be within the line of sight of the reader, so it may be embedded in the tracked object. RFID is one method of automatic identification and data capture (AIDC).^[1]

RFID tags are used in many industries. For example, an RFID tag attached to an automobile during production can be used to track its progress through the assembly line, RFID-tagged pharmaceuticals can be tracked through warehouses, and implanting RFID microchips in livestock and pets enables positive identification of animals. Tags can also be used in shops to expedite checkout, and to prevent theft by customers and employees.

Since RFID tags can be attached to physical money, clothing, and possessions, or implanted in animals and people, the possibility of reading personally-linked information without consent has raised serious privacy concerns.^[2] These concerns resulted in standard specifications development addressing privacy and security issues. ISO/IEC 18000 and ISO/IEC 29167 use on-chip cryptography methods for untraceability, tag and reader authentication, and over-the-air privacy. ISO/IEC 20248 specifies a digital signature data structure for RFID and barcodes providing data, source and read method authenticity. This work is done within ISO/IEC JTC 1/SC 31 Automatic identification and data capture techniques.

In 2014, the world RFID market was worth US$8.89 billion, up from US$7.77 billion in 2013 and US$6.96 billion in 2012. This figure includes tags, readers, and software/services for RFID cards, labels, fobs, and all other form factors. The market value is expected to rise from US$12.08 billion in 2020 to US$16.23 billion by 2029.^[3]

Contents

History

Design

Tags

Readers

Frequencies

Signaling

Bulk reading

Miniaturization

Lifecycle

Manufacture

Disposal

Uses

Commerce

Retail

Access control

Advertising

Promotion tracking

Transportation and logistics

Hose stations and conveyance of fluids

Track and trace test vehicles and prototype parts

Infrastructure management and protection

Passports

Transportation payments

Animal identification

Human implantation

Institutions

Hospitals and healthcare

Libraries

Museums

Schools and universities

Sports

Complement to barcode

Waste management

Telemetry

Regulation and standardization

EPC Gen2

Problems and concerns

Data flooding

Global standardization

Security concerns

Health

Shielding

Controversies

Privacy

Government control

Deliberate destruction in clothing and other items

Reliability

Tag reliability

See also

References

External links

History

In 1945, Léon Theremin invented a listening device for the Soviet Union which retransmitted incident radio waves with the added audio information. Sound waves vibrated a diaphragm which slightly altered the shape of the resonator, which modulated the reflected radio frequency. Even though this device was a covert listening device, rather than an identification tag, it is considered to be a predecessor of RFID because it was passive, being energized and activated by waves from an outside source.^[4]

Similar technology, such as the Identification friend or foe transponder, was routinely used by the Allies and Germany in World War II to identify aircraft as friendly or hostile. Transponders are still used by most powered aircraft.^[5] An early work exploring RFID is the landmark 1948 paper by Harry Stockman,^[6] who predicted that "Considerable research and development work has to be done before the remaining basic problems in reflected-power communication are solved, and before the field of useful applications is explored."

Mario Cardullo's device, patented on January 23, 1973, was the first true ancestor of modern RFID,^[7] as it was a passive radio transponder with memory.^[8] The initial device was passive, powered by the interrogating signal, and was demonstrated in 1971 to the New York Port Authority and other potential users. It consisted of a transponder with 16 bit memory for use as a toll device. The basic Cardullo patent covers the use of RF, sound and light as transmission carriers. The original business plan presented to investors in 1969 showed uses in transportation (automotive vehicle identification, automatic toll system, electronic license plate, electronic manifest, vehicle routing, vehicle performance monitoring), banking (electronic checkbook, electronic credit card), security (personnel identification, automatic gates, surveillance) and medical (identification, patient history).^[7]

In 1973, an early demonstration of reflected power (modulated backscatter) RFID tags, both passive and semi-passive, was performed by Steven Depp, Alfred Koelle and Robert Frayman at the Los Alamos National Laboratory.^[9] The portable system operated at 915 MHz and used 12-bit tags. This technique is used by the majority of today's UHFID and microwave RFID tags.^[10]

In 1983, the first patent to be associated with the abbreviation RFID was granted to Charles Walton.^[11]

Design

A radio-frequency identification system uses tags, or labels attached to the objects to be identified. Two-way radio transmitter-receivers called interrogators or readers send a signal to the tag and read its response.^[12]

Tags

RFID tags are made out of three pieces: a micro chip (an integrated circuit which stores and processes information and modulates and demodulates radio-frequency (RF) signals), an antenna for receiving and transmitting the signal and a substrate.^[13] The tag information is stored in a non-volatile memory.^[13] The RFID tag includes either fixed or programmable logic for processing the transmission and sensor data, respectively.

RFID tags can be either passive, active or battery-assisted passive. An active tag has an on-board battery and periodically transmits its ID signal.^[13] A battery-assisted passive tag has a small battery on board and is activated when in the presence of an RFID reader. A passive tag is cheaper and smaller because it has no battery; instead, the tag uses the radio energy transmitted by the reader. However, to operate a passive tag, it must be illuminated with a power level roughly a thousand times stronger than an active tag for signal transmission.^[14] This makes a difference in interference and in exposure to radiation.^[15]

Tags may either be read-only, having a factory-assigned serial number that is used as a key into a database, or may be read/write, where object-specific data can be written into the tag by the system user. Field programmable tags may be write-once, read-multiple; "blank" tags may be written with an electronic product code by the user.^[16]

The RFID tag receives the message and then responds with its identification and other information. This may be only a unique tag serial number, or may be product-related information such as a stock number, lot or batch number, production date, or other specific information. Since tags have individual serial numbers, the RFID system design can discriminate among several tags that might be within the range of the RFID reader and read them simultaneously.

FasTrak, an RFID tag used for electronic toll collection in California

Readers

RFID systems can be classified by the type of tag and reader. There are 3 types:^[17]

- A Passive Reader Active Tag (PRAT) system has a passive reader which only receives radio signals from active tags (battery operated, transmit only). The reception range of a PRAT system reader can be adjusted from 1–2,000 feet (0–600 m), allowing flexibility in applications such as asset protection and supervision.
- An Active Reader Passive Tag (ARPT) system has an active reader, which transmits interrogator signals and also receives authentication replies from passive tags.
- An Active Reader Active Tag (ARAT) system uses active tags activated with an interrogator signal from the active reader. A variation of this system could also use a Battery-Assisted Passive (BAP) tag which acts like a passive tag but has a small battery to power the tag's return reporting signal.

Fixed readers are set up to create a specific interrogation zone which can be tightly controlled. This allows a highly defined reading area for when tags go in and out of the interrogation zone. Mobile readers may be handheld or mounted on carts or vehicles.

Frequencies

RFID frequency bands^{[18][19]}

Band	Regulations	Range	Data speed	ISO/IEC 18000 section	Remarks	Approximate tag cost in volume (2006)
LF: 120–150 kHz	Unregulated	10 cm	Low	Part 2 (http://www.iso.org/iso/home/store/catalogue_ics/catalogue_detail_ics.htm?csnumber=46146)	Animal identification, factory data collection	US$1
HF: 13.56 MHz	ISM band worldwide	10 cm–1 m	Low to moderate	Part 3	Smart cards (ISO/IEC 15693, ISO/IEC 14443 A, B), ISO-non-compliant memory cards (Mifare Classic, iCLASS, Legic, Felica ...), ISO-compatible microprocessor cards (Desfire EV1, Seos)	US$0.02 to US$5
UHF: 433 MHz	Short range devices	1–100 m	Moderate	Part 7 (https://www.iso.org/standards/57336.html)	Defense applications, with active tags	US$5
UHF: 865–868 MHz (Europe) 902–928 MHz (North America)	ISM band	1–12 m	Moderate to high	Part 6 (https://www.iso.org/standards/59644.html)	EAN, various standards; used by railroads ^[20]	US$0.04 to US$1.00 (passive tags)
microwave: 2450–5800 MHz	ISM band	1–2 m	High	Part 4 (http://www.iso.org/iso/home/store/catalogue_ics/catalogue_detail_ics.htm?csnumber=62539)	802.11 WLAN, Bluetooth standards	US$25 (active tags)
microwave: 3.1–10 GHz	Ultra wide band	up to 200 m	High	not defined	Requires semi-active or active tags	US$5 projected

Signaling

Signaling between the reader and the tag is done in several different incompatible ways, depending on the frequency band used by the tag. Tags operating on LF and HF bands are, in terms of radio wavelength, very close to the reader antenna because they are only a small percentage of a wavelength away. In this near field region, the tag is closely coupled electrically with the transmitter in the reader. The tag can modulate the field produced by the reader by changing the electrical loading the tag represents. By switching between lower and higher relative loads, the tag produces a change that the reader can detect. At UHF and higher frequencies, the tag is more than one radio wavelength away from the reader, requiring a different approach. The tag can backscatter a signal. Active tags may contain functionally separated transmitters and receivers, and the tag need not respond on a frequency related to the reader's interrogation signal.^[21]

RFID hard tag

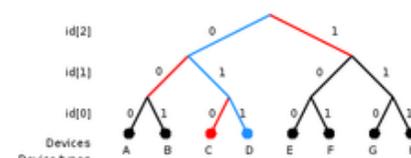

An Electronic Product Code (EPC) is one common type of data stored in a tag. When written into the tag by an RFID printer, the tag contains a 96-bit string of data. The first eight bits are a header which identifies the version of the protocol. The next 28 bits identify the organization that manages the data for this tag; the organization number is assigned by the EPCGlobal consortium. The next 24 bits are an object class, identifying the kind of product. The last 36 bits are a unique serial number for a particular tag. These last two fields are set by the organization that issued the tag. Rather like a URL, the total electronic product code number can be used as a key into a global database to uniquely identify a particular product.^[22]

Often more than one tag will respond to a tag reader, for example, many individual products with tags may be shipped in a common box or on a common pallet. Collision detection is important to allow reading of data. Two different types of protocols are used to "singulate" a particular tag, allowing its data to be read in the midst of many similar tags. In a slotted Aloha system, the reader broadcasts an initialization command and a parameter that the tags individually use to pseudo-randomly delay their responses. When using an "adaptive binary tree" protocol, the reader sends an initialization symbol and then transmits one bit of ID data at a time; only tags with matching bits respond, and eventually only one tag matches the complete ID string.^[23]

Both methods have drawbacks when used with many tags or with multiple overlapping readers.

Bulk reading

"Bulk reading" is a strategy for interrogating multiple tags at the same time, but lacks sufficient precision for inventory control. A group of objects, all of them RFID tagged, are read completely from one single reader position at one time. Bulk reading is a possible use of HF (ISO 18000-3), UHF (ISO 18000-6) and SHF (ISO 18000-4) RFID tags. However, as tags respond strictly sequentially, the time needed for bulk reading grows linearly with the number of labels to be read. This means it takes at least twice as long to read twice as many labels. Due to collision effects, the time required is greater.^[24]

An example of a binary tree method of identifying an RFID tag

A group of tags has to be illuminated by the interrogating signal just like a single tag. This is not a challenge concerning energy, but with respect to visibility; if any of the tags are shielded by other tags, they might not be sufficiently illuminated to return a sufficient response. The response conditions for inductively coupled HF RFID tags and coil antennas in magnetic fields appear better than for UHF or SHF dipole fields, but then distance limits apply and may prevent success.

Under operational conditions, bulk reading is not reliable. Bulk reading can be a rough guide for logistics decisions, but due to a high proportion of reading failures, it is not (yet) suitable for inventory management. However, when a single RFID tag might be seen as not guaranteeing a proper read, multiple RFID tags, where at least one will respond, may be a safer approach for detecting a known grouping of objects. In this respect, bulk reading is a fuzzy method for process support. From the perspective of cost and effect, bulk reading is not reported as an economical approach to secure process control in logistics.^[25]

Miniaturization

RFID tags are easy to conceal or incorporate in other items. For example, in 2009 researchers at Bristol University successfully glued RFID micro-transponders to live ants in order to study their behavior.^[26] This trend towards increasingly miniaturized RFIDs is likely to continue as technology advances.

Hitachi holds the record for the smallest RFID chip, at 0.05 mm × 0.05 mm. This is 1/64th the size of the previous record holder, the mu-chip.^[27] Manufacture is enabled by using the silicon-on-insulator (SOI) process. These dust-sized chips can store 38-digit numbers using 128-bit Read Only Memory (ROM).^[28] A major challenge is the attachment of antennas, thus limiting read range to only millimeters.

Lifecycle

Manufacture

The microchip is designed and made by a semiconductor manufacturer. The tag manufacturer cuts the chip from the wafer and connects it to the antenna.^[13]

The antenna is usually designed and made by a tag manufacturer. It can be made out of copper, aluminum, or silver strips. The antenna can take different shapes: a spiral, a single dipole antenna, two dipoles with one dipole perpendicular to another, or a folded dipole. The antenna length and geometry depends on the frequency at which the tag operates.^[13]

Chip and antenna are embedded onto a thin plastic substrate of 100 to 200 nm, for example polymer, PVC, polyethylene terephthalate (PET), phenolics, polyesters, styrene, or paper via copper etching or hot stamping. The fastest and cheapest process is via screen printing using conductive ink containing copper, nickel, or carbon.^[13]

Disposal

Tags contain metals and recycling is desirable on environmental grounds.^[29]

RFID tags can interfere with recycling in the waste stream: Aluminium antennas on glass containers can reduce the amount and quality of recycled glass, if they cannot be separated within the process.^{[29]:12}

In the paper waste stream, laminated copper foil antennas do not readily break down, but have to be removed in pulp as a non-recyclable solid waste, while silver ink from printed, non-laminated labels remains with paper substrate and cannot easily be extractable from paper.^[30]

RFID tags which cannot be removed from products or do not contain a kill switch – or partial kill switch – may present a privacy concern.^{[29]:12}

As of 2012, the EU had not addressed the question of disposal in its Waste Electrical and Electronic Equipment Directive.^{[29]:13}

Uses

An RFID tag can be affixed to an object and used to track and manage inventory, assets, people, etc. For example, they can be affixed to cars, computer equipment, books, mobile phones, etc.

RFID offers advantages over manual systems or use of barcodes. The tag can be read if passed near a reader, even if it is covered by the object or not visible. The tag can be read inside a case, carton, box or other container, and unlike barcodes, RFID tags can be read hundreds per second; barcodes can only be read one at a time using current devices. Some RFID tags, such as Battery-Assisted Passive tags, are also able to monitor temperature and humidity.^[31]

In 2011, the cost of passive tags started at US$0.09 each; special tags, meant to be mounted on metal or withstand gamma sterilization, could cost up to US$5. Active tags for tracking containers, medical assets, or monitoring environmental conditions in data centers started at US$50 and could be over US$100 each. Battery-Assisted Passive (BAP) tags were in the US$3–10 range.

RFID can be used in a variety of applications,^{[32][33]} such as:

- Access management
- Tracking of goods
- Tracking of persons and animals^[34]
- Toll collection and contactless payment
- Machine readable travel documents
- Smartdust (for massively distributed sensor networks)
- Locating lost airport baggage^[35]
- Timing sporting events
- Tracking and billing processes
- Monitoring the physical state of perishable goods^[36]

In 2010, three factors drove a significant increase in RFID usage: decreased cost of equipment and tags, increased performance to a reliability of 99.9%, and a stable international standard around HF and UHF passive RFID. The adoption of these standards were driven by EPCglobal, a joint venture between GS1 and GS1 US, which were responsible for driving global adoption of the barcode in the 1970s and 1980s. The EPCglobal Network was developed by the Auto-ID Center.^[37]

Commerce

RFID provides a way for organizations to identify and manage stock, tools and equipment (asset tracking), etc. without manual data entry. Manufactured products such as automobiles or garments can be tracked through the factory and through shipping to the customer. Automatic identification with RFID can be used for inventory systems. Many organisations require that their vendors place RFID tags on all shipments to improve supply chain management.

Retail

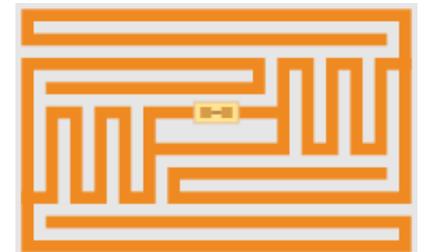

RFID is used for item level tagging in retail stores. In addition to inventory control, this provides both protection against theft by customers (shoplifting) and employees ("shrinkage") by using electronic article surveillance (EAS), and a self checkout process for customers. Tags of different types can be physically removed with a special tool or deactivated electronically once items have been paid for.^[38] On leaving the shop, customers have to pass near an RFID detector; if they have items with active RFID tags, an alarm sounds, both indicating an unpaid-for item, and identifying what it is.

Casinos can use RFID to authenticate poker chips, and can selectively invalidate any chips known to be stolen.^[39]

Access control

Electronic key for RFID based lock system

An EPC RFID tag used by Wal-Mart

Sewn-in RFID label in garment manufactured by the French sports supplier Decathlon. Front, back, and transparency scan.

RFID tags are widely used in identification badges, replacing earlier magnetic stripe cards. These badges need only be held within a certain distance of the reader to authenticate the holder. Tags can also be placed on vehicles, which can be read at a distance, to allow entrance to controlled areas without having to stop the vehicle and present a card or enter an access code.

Advertising

In 2010 Vail Resorts began using UHF Passive RFID tags in ski passes.^[40]

Facebook is using RFID cards at most of their live events to allow guests to automatically capture and post photos.

Automotive brands have adopted RFID for social media product placement more quickly than other industries. Mercedes was an early adopter in 2011 at the PGA Golf Championships,^[41] and by the 2013 Geneva Motor Show many of the larger brands were using RFID for social media marketing.^[42]

Promotion tracking

To prevent retailers diverting products, manufacturers are exploring the use of RFID tags on promoted merchandise so that they can track exactly which product has sold through the supply chain at fully discounted prices.^[43]

Transportation and logistics

Yard management, shipping and freight and distribution centers use RFID tracking. In the railroad industry, RFID tags mounted on locomotives and rolling stock identify the owner, identification number and type of equipment and its characteristics. This can be used with a database to identify the type, origin, destination, etc. of the commodities being carried.^[44]

In commercial aviation, RFID is used to support maintenance on commercial aircraft. RFID tags are used to identify baggage and cargo at several airports and airlines.^{[45][46]}

Some countries are using RFID for vehicle registration and enforcement.^[47] RFID can help detect and retrieve stolen cars.^{[48][49]}

RFID is used in intelligent transportation systems. In New York City, RFID readers are deployed at intersections to track E-ZPass tags as a means for monitoring the traffic flow. The data is fed through the broadband wireless infrastructure to the traffic management center to be used in adaptive traffic control of the traffic lights.^[50]

Hose stations and conveyance of fluids

The RFID antenna in a permanently installed coupling half (fixed part) unmistakably identifies the RFID transponder placed in the other coupling half (free part) after completed coupling. When connected, the transponder of the free part transmits all important information contactless to the fixed part. The coupling's location can be clearly identified by the RFID transponder coding. The control is enabled to automatically start subsequent process steps.

Track and trace test vehicles and prototype parts

RFID antenna for vehicular access control

RFID E-ZPass reader attached to the pole and mast arm (right) used in traffic monitoring in New York City

In the automotive industry, RFID is used to track and trace test vehicles and prototype parts (project Transparent Prototype).

Infrastructure management and protection

At least one company has introduced RFID to identify and locate underground infrastructure assets such as gas pipelines, sewer lines, electrical cables, communication cables, etc.^[51]

Passports

The first RFID passports ("E-passport") were issued by Malaysia in 1998. In addition to information also contained on the visual data page of the passport, Malaysian e-passports record the travel history (time, date, and place) of entry into and exit out of the country.

Other countries that insert RFID in passports include Norway (2005),^[52] Japan (March 1, 2006), most EU countries (around 2006), Australia, Hong Kong, the United States (2007), the United Kingdom and Northern Ireland (2006), India (June 2008), Serbia (July 2008), Republic of Korea (August 2008), Taiwan (December 2008), Albania (January 2009), The Philippines (August 2009), Republic of Macedonia (2010), Argentina (2012), Canada (2013), Uruguay (2015)^[53] and Israel (2017).

Standards for RFID passports are determined by the International Civil Aviation Organization (ICAO), and are contained in ICAO Document 9303, Part 1, Volumes 1 and 2 (6th edition, 2006). ICAO refers to the ISO/IEC 14443 RFID chips in e-passports as "contactless integrated circuits". ICAO standards provide for e-passports to be identifiable by a standard e-passport logo on the front cover.

Since 2006, RFID tags included in new United States passports will store the same information that is printed within the passport, and include a digital picture of the owner.^[54] The United States Department of State initially stated the chips could only be read from a distance of 10 centimetres (3.9 in), but after widespread criticism and a clear demonstration that special equipment can read the test passports from 10 metres (33 ft) away,^[55] the passports were designed to incorporate a thin metal lining to make it more difficult for unauthorized readers to skim information when the passport is closed. The department will also implement Basic Access Control (BAC), which functions as a personal identification number (PIN) in the form of characters printed on the passport data page. Before a passport's tag can be read, this PIN must be entered into an RFID reader. The BAC also enables the encryption of any communication between the chip and interrogator.^[56]

Transportation payments

In many countries, RFID tags can be used to pay for mass transit fares on bus, trains, or subways, or to collect tolls on highways.

Some bike lockers are operated with RFID cards assigned to individual users. A prepaid card is required to open or enter a facility or locker and is used to track and charge based on how long the bike is parked.

The Zipcar car-sharing service uses RFID cards for locking and unlocking cars and for member identification.^[57]

In Singapore, RFID replaces paper Season Parking Ticket (SPT).^[58]

Animal identification

RFID tags for animals represent one of the oldest uses of RFID. Originally meant for large ranches and rough terrain, since the outbreak of mad-cow disease, RFID has become crucial in animal identification management. An implantable RFID tag or transponder can also be used for animal identification. The transponders are better known as PIT (Passive Integrated Transponder) tags, passive RFID, or "chips" on animals.^[59] The Canadian Cattle

Identification Agency (<http://www.canadaid.com/>) began using RFID tags as a replacement for barcode tags. Currently CCIA tags are used in Wisconsin and by United States farmers on a voluntary basis. The USDA is currently developing its own program.

RFID tags are required for all cattle sold in Australia and in some states, sheep and goats as well.^[60]

Human implantation

Biocompatible microchip implants that utilize RFID technology are being routinely implanted in humans. The first-ever human to receive an RFID microchip implant was American artist Eduardo Kac in 1997.^{[61][62]} Kac implanted the microchip live on television in the context of his artwork Time Capsule. A year later, British professor of cybernetics Kevin Warwick had an RFID chip implanted in his arm by his general practitioner, George Boulos.^{[63][64]} In 2004 the 'Baja Beach Clubs' operated by Conrad Chase in Barcelona^[65] and Rotterdam offered implanted chips to identify their VIP customers, who could in turn use it to pay for service. In 2009 British scientist Mark Gasson had an advanced glass capsule RFID device surgically implanted into his left hand and subsequently demonstrated how a computer virus could wirelessly infect his implant and then be transmitted on to other systems.^[66]

The Food and Drug Administration in the United States approved the use of RFID chips in humans in 2004.^[67]

There is controversy regarding human applications of implantable RFID technology including concerns that individuals could potentially be tracked by carrying an identifier unique to them. Privacy advocates have protested against implantable RFID chips, warning of potential abuse. Some are concerned this could lead to abuse by an authoritarian government, to removal of freedoms,^[68] and to the emergence of an "ultimate panopticon", a society where all citizens behave in a socially accepted manner because others might be watching.^[69]

On July 22, 2006, Reuters reported that two hackers, Newitz and Westhues, at a conference in New York City demonstrated that they could clone the RFID signal from a human implanted RFID chip, indicating that the device was not as secure as was previously claimed.^[70]

Institutions

Hospitals and healthcare

In healthcare, there is a need for increased visibility, efficiency, and gathering of data around relevant interactions. RFID tracking solutions are able to help healthcare facilities manage mobile medical equipment, improve patient workflow, monitor environmental conditions, and protect patients, staff and visitors from infection or other hazards.

Adoption of RFID in the medical industry has been widespread and very effective.^[71] Hospitals are among the first users to combine both active and passive RFID.^[72] Many successful deployments in the healthcare industry have been cited where active technology tracks high-value, or frequently moved items, and where passive technology tracks smaller, lower cost items that only need room-level identification.^[73] For example, medical facility rooms can collect data from transmissions of RFID badges worn by patients and employees, as well as from tags assigned to facility assets, such as mobile medical devices.^[74] The U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs (VA) recently announced plans to deploy RFID in hospitals across America to improve care and reduce costs.^[75]

A surgeon implants British scientist Dr Mark Gasson in his left hand with an RFID microchip (March 16, 2009)

A physical RFID tag may be incorporated with browser-based software to increase its efficacy. This software allows for different groups or specific hospital staff, nurses, and patients to see real-time data relevant to each piece of tracked equipment or personnel. Real-time data is stored and archived to make use of historical reporting functionality and to prove compliance with various industry regulations. This combination of RFID real-time locating system hardware and software provides a powerful data collection tool for facilities seeking to improve operational efficiency and reduce costs.^[76]

The trend is toward using ISO 18000-6c as the tag of choice and combining an active tagging system that relies on existing 802.11X wireless infrastructure for active tags.^[77]

Since 2004 a number of U.S. hospitals have begun implanting patients with RFID tags and using RFID systems, usually for workflow and inventory management.^{[78][79][80]} The use of RFID to prevent mix-ups between sperm and ova in IVF clinics is also being considered.^[81]

In October 2004, the FDA approved the USA's first RFID chips that can be implanted in humans. The 134 kHz RFID chips, from VeriChip Corp. can incorporate personal medical information and could save lives and limit injuries from errors in medical treatments, according to the company. Anti-RFID activists Katherine Albrecht and Liz McIntyre discovered an FDA Warning Letter that spelled out health risks.^[82] According to the FDA, these include "adverse tissue reaction", "migration of the implanted transponder", "failure of implanted transponder", "electrical hazards" and "magnetic resonance imaging [MRI] incompatibility."

Libraries

Libraries have used RFID to replace the barcodes on library items. The tag can contain identifying information or may just be a key into a database. An RFID system may replace or supplement bar codes and may offer another method of inventory management and self-service checkout by patrons. It can also act as a security device, taking the place of the more traditional electromagnetic security strip.^[83]

It is estimated that over 30 million library items worldwide now contain RFID tags, including some in the Vatican Library in Rome.^[84]

Since RFID tags can be read through an item, there is no need to open a book cover or DVD case to scan an item, and a stack of books can be read simultaneously. Book tags can be read while books are in motion on a conveyor belt, which reduces staff time. This can all be done by the borrowers themselves, reducing the need for library staff assistance. With portable readers, inventories could be done on a whole shelf of materials within seconds.^[85] However, as of 2008 this technology remained too costly for many smaller libraries, and the conversion period has been estimated at 11 months for an average-size library. A 2004 Dutch estimate was that a library which lends 100,000 books per year should plan on a cost of €50,000 (borrow- and return-stations: 12,500 each, detection porches 10,000 each; tags 0.36 each). RFID taking a large burden off staff could also mean that fewer staff will be needed, resulting in some of them getting laid off,^[84] but that has so far not happened in North America where recent surveys have not returned a single library that cut staff because of adding RFID.^[86] In fact, library budgets are being reduced for personnel and increased for infrastructure, making it necessary for libraries to add automation to compensate for the reduced staff size.^[86] Also, the tasks that RFID takes over are largely not the primary tasks of librarians.^[86] A finding in the Netherlands is that borrowers are pleased with the fact that staff are now more available for answering questions.^[86]

Privacy concerns have been raised surrounding library use of RFID.^{[87][88]} Because some RFID tags can be read up to 100 metres (330 ft) away, there is some concern over whether sensitive information could be collected from an unwilling source. However, library RFID tags do not contain any patron information,^[89] and the tags used in the majority of libraries use a frequency only readable from approximately 10 feet (3.0 m).^[83] Another concern is that a non-library agency could potentially record the RFID tags of every person leaving the library without the library

RFID tags used in libraries: square book tag, round CD/DVD tag and rectangular VHS tag

administrator's knowledge or consent. One simple option is to let the book transmit a code that has meaning only in conjunction with the library's database. Another possible enhancement would be to give each book a new code every time it is returned. In future, should readers become ubiquitous (and possibly networked), then stolen books could be traced even outside the library. Tag removal could be made difficult if the tags are so small that they fit invisibly inside a (random) page, possibly put there by the publisher.

Museums

RFID technologies are now also implemented in end-user applications in museums.^[90] An example was the custom-designed temporary research application, "eXspot," at the Exploratorium, a science museum in San Francisco, California. A visitor entering the museum received an RF tag that could be carried as a card. The eXspot system enabled the visitor to receive information about specific exhibits. Aside from the exhibit information, the visitor could take photographs of themselves at the exhibit. It was also intended to allow the visitor to take data for later analysis. The collected information could be retrieved at home from a "personalized" website keyed to the RFID tag.^[91]

Schools and universities

In 2004 school authorities in the Japanese city of Osaka made a decision to start chipping children's clothing, backpacks, and student IDs in a primary school.^[92] Later, in 2007, a school in Doncaster, England is piloting a monitoring system designed to keep tabs on pupils by tracking radio chips in their uniforms.^[93] St Charles Sixth Form College in west London, England, started in 2008, uses an RFID card system to check in and out of the main gate, to both track attendance and prevent unauthorized entrance. Similarly, Whitcliffe Mount School in Cleckheaton, England uses RFID to track pupils and staff in and out of the building via a specially designed card. In the Philippines, during 2012, some schools already use RFID in IDs for borrowing books.^[94] Gates in those particular schools also have RFID scanners for buying items at school shops and canteens. RFID is also used in school libraries, and to sign in and out for student and teacher attendance.^[86]

Sports

RFID for timing races began in the early 1990s with pigeon racing, introduced by the company Deister Electronics in Germany. RFID can provide race start and end timings for individuals in large races where it is impossible to get accurate stopwatch readings for every entrant.

In races utilizing RFID, racers wear tags that are read by antennas placed alongside the track or on mats across the track. UHF tags provide accurate readings with specially designed antennas. Rush error, lap count errors and accidents at race start are avoided, as anyone can start and finish at any time without being in a batch mode.

The design of the chip and of the antenna controls the range from which it can be read. Short range compact chips are twist tied to the shoe, or strapped to the ankle with hook-and-loop fasteners. The chips must be about 400mm from the mat, therefore giving very good temporal resolution. Alternatively, a chip plus a very large (125mm square) antenna can be incorporated into the bib number worn on the athlete's chest at a height of about 1.25 m (4.10 ft).

Passive and active RFID systems are used in off-road events such as Orienteering, Enduro and Hare and Hounds racing. Riders have a transponder on their person, normally on their arm. When they complete a lap they swipe or touch the receiver which is connected to a computer and log their lap time.

RFID is being adapted by many recruitment agencies which have a PET (physical endurance test) as their qualifying procedure, especially in cases where the candidate volumes may run into millions (Indian Railway recruitment cells, police and power sector).

ChampionChip

J-Chip 8-channel receiver next to timing mat. The athlete wears a chip on a strap around his ankle.

Ironman Germany \(https://web.archive.org/web/19961218232821/http://www.ironman.de/\) 2007 in Frankfurt.

A number of ski resorts have adopted RFID tags to provide skiers hands-free access to ski lifts. Skiers do not have to take their passes out of their pockets. Ski jackets have a left pocket into which the chip+card fits. This nearly contacts the sensor unit on the left of the turnstile as the skier pushes through to the lift. These systems were based on high frequency (HF) at 13.56 megahertz. The bulk of ski areas in Europe, from Verbier to Chamonix, use these systems.^{[95][96][97]}

The NFL in the United States equips players with RFID chips that measures speed, distance and direction traveled by each player in real-time. Currently cameras stay focused on the quarterback; however, numerous plays are happening simultaneously on the field. The RFID chip will provide new insight into these simultaneous plays.^[98] The chip triangulates the player's position within six inches and will be used to digitally broadcast replays. The RFID chip will make individual player information accessible to the public. The data will be available via the NFL 2015 app.^[99] The RFID chips are manufactured by Zebra Technologies. Zebra Technologies tested the RFID chip in 18 stadiums last year to track vector data.^[100]

Complement to barcode

RFID tags are often a complement, but not a substitute, for UPC or EAN barcodes. They may never completely replace barcodes, due in part to their higher cost and the advantage of multiple data sources on the same object. Also, unlike RFID labels, barcodes can be generated and distributed electronically, e.g. via e-mail or mobile phone, for printing or display by the recipient. An example is airline boarding passes. The new EPC, along with several other schemes, is widely available at reasonable cost.

The storage of data associated with tracking items will require many terabytes. Filtering and categorizing RFID data is needed to create useful information. It is likely that goods will be tracked by the pallet using RFID tags, and at package level with Universal Product Code (UPC) or EAN from unique barcodes.

The unique identity is a mandatory requirement for RFID tags, despite special choice of the numbering scheme. RFID tag data capacity is large enough that each individual tag will have a unique code, while current barcodes are limited to a single type code for a particular product. The uniqueness of RFID tags means that a product may be tracked as it moves from location to location while being delivered to a person. This may help to combat theft and other forms of product loss. The tracing of products is an important feature that is well supported with RFID tags containing a unique identity of the tag and the serial number of the object. This may help companies cope with quality deficiencies and resulting recall campaigns, but also contributes to concern about tracking and profiling of persons after the sale.

Waste management

Since around 2007 there been increasing development in the use of RFID in the waste management industry. RFID tags are installed on waste collection carts, linking carts to the owner's account for easy billing and service verification.^[101] The tag is embedded into a garbage and recycle container, and the RFID reader is affixed to the garbage and recycle trucks.^[102] RFID also measures a customer's set-out rate and provides insight as to the number of carts serviced by each waste collection vehicle. This RFID process replaces traditional "pay as you throw" (PAYT) municipal solid waste usage-pricing models.

Telemetry

Active RFID tags have the potential to function as low-cost remote sensors that broadcast telemetry back to a base station. Applications of tagometry data could include sensing of road conditions by implanted beacons, weather reports, and noise level monitoring.^[103]

Passive RFID tags can also report sensor data. For example, the Wireless Identification and Sensing Platform is a passive tag that reports temperature, acceleration and capacitance to commercial Gen2 RFID readers.

It is possible that active or battery-assisted passive (BAP) RFID tags could broadcast a signal to an in-store receiver to determine whether the RFID tag – and by extension, the product it is attached to – is in the store.

Regulation and standardization

To avoid injuries to humans and animals, RF transmission needs to be controlled.^[104] A number of organizations have set standards for RFID, including the International Organization for Standardization (ISO), the International Electrotechnical Commission (IEC), ASTM International, the DASH7 Alliance and EPCglobal.^[105]

Several specific industries have also set guidelines, including the Financial Services Technology Consortium (FSTC) for tracking IT Assets with RFID, the Computer Technology Industry Association CompTIA for certifying RFID engineers, and the International Airlines Transport Association IATA for luggage in airports.

Every country can set its own rules for frequency allocation for RFID tags, and not all radio bands are available in all countries. These frequencies are known as the ISM bands (Industrial Scientific and Medical bands). The return signal of the tag may still cause interference for other radio users.

- Low-frequency (LF: 125–134.2 kHz and 140–148.5 kHz) (LowFID) tags and high-frequency (HF: 13.56 MHz) (HighFID) tags can be used globally without a license.
- Ultra-high-frequency (UHF: 865–928 MHz) (Ultra-HighFID or UHFID) tags cannot be used globally as there is no single global standard, and regulations differ from country to country.

In North America, UHF can be used unlicensed for 902–928 MHz (± 13 MHz from the 915 MHz center frequency), but restrictions exist for transmission power. In Europe, RFID and other low-power radio applications are regulated by ETSI recommendations EN 300 220 and EN 302 208, and ERO recommendation 70 03, allowing RFID operation with somewhat complex band restrictions from 865–868 MHz. Readers are required to monitor a channel before transmitting ("Listen Before Talk"); this requirement has led to some restrictions on performance, the resolution of which is a subject of current research. The North American UHF standard is not accepted in France as it interferes with its military bands. On July 25, 2012, Japan changed its UHF band to 920 MHz, more closely matching the United States' 915 MHz band, establishing an international standard environment for RFID.

In some countries, a site license is needed, which needs to be applied for at the local authorities, and can be revoked.

As of 31 October 2014, regulations are in place in 78 countries representing approximately 96.5% of the world's GDP, and work on regulations was in progress in three countries representing approximately 1% of the world's GDP.^[106]

Standards that have been made regarding RFID include:

- ISO 11784/11785 – Animal identification. Uses 134.2 kHz.
- ISO 14223 – Radiofrequency identification of animals – Advanced transponders
- ISO/IEC 14443: This standard is a popular HF (13.56 MHz) standard for HighFIDs which is being used as the basis of RFID-enabled passports under ICAO 9303. The Near Field Communication standard that lets mobile devices act as RFID readers/transponders is also based on ISO/IEC 14443.
- ISO/IEC 15693: This is also a popular HF (13.56 MHz) standard for HighFIDs widely used for non-contact smart payment and credit cards.
- ISO/IEC 18000: Information technology—Radio frequency identification for item management:
- ISO/IEC 18092 Information technology—Telecommunications and information exchange between systems—Near Field Communication—Interface and Protocol (NFCIP-1)
- ISO 18185: This is the industry standard for electronic seals or "e-seals" for tracking cargo containers using the 433 MHz and 2.4 GHz frequencies.

- ISO/IEC 21481 Information technology—Telecommunications and information exchange between systems—Near Field Communication Interface and Protocol –2 (NFCIP-2)
- ASTM D7434, Standard Test Method for Determining the Performance of Passive Radio Frequency Identification (RFID) Transponders on Palletized or Unitized Loads
- ASTM D7435, Standard Test Method for Determining the Performance of Passive Radio Frequency Identification (RFID) Transponders on Loaded Containers
- ASTM D7580, Standard Test Method for Rotary Stretch Wrapper Method for Determining the Readability of Passive RFID Transponders on Homogenous Palletized or Unitized Loads
- ISO 28560-2— specifies encoding standards and data model to be used within libraries.^[107]

In order to ensure global interoperability of products, several organizations have set up additional standards for RFID testing. These standards include conformance, performance and interoperability tests.

EPC Gen2

EPC Gen2 is short for EPCglobal UHF Class 1 Generation 2.

EPCglobal, a joint venture between GS1 and GS1 US, is working on international standards for the use of mostly passive RFID and the Electronic Product Code (EPC) in the identification of many items in the supply chain for companies worldwide.

One of the missions of EPCglobal was to simplify the Babel of protocols prevalent in the RFID world in the 1990s. Two tag air interfaces (the protocol for exchanging information between a tag and a reader) were defined (but not ratified) by EPCglobal prior to 2003. These protocols, commonly known as Class 0 and Class 1, saw significant commercial implementation in 2002–2005.^[108]

In 2004, the Hardware Action Group created a new protocol, the Class 1 Generation 2 interface, which addressed a number of problems that had been experienced with Class 0 and Class 1 tags. The EPC Gen2 standard was approved in December 2004. This was approved after a contention from Intermec that the standard may infringe a number of their RFID-related patents. It was decided that the standard itself does not infringe their patents, making the standard royalty free.^[109] The EPC Gen2 standard was adopted with minor modifications as ISO 18000-6C in 2006.^[110]

In 2007, the lowest cost of Gen2 EPC inlay was offered by the now-defunct company SmartCode, at a price of $0.05 apiece in volumes of 100 million or more.^[111]

Problems and concerns

Data flooding

Not every successful reading of a tag (an observation) is useful for business purposes. A large amount of data may be generated that is not useful for managing inventory or other applications. For example, a customer moving a product from one shelf to another, or a pallet load of articles that passes several readers while being moved in a warehouse, are events that do not produce data that are meaningful to an inventory control system.^[112]

Event filtering is required to reduce this data inflow to a meaningful depiction of moving goods passing a threshold. Various concepts have been designed, mainly offered as middleware performing the filtering from noisy and redundant raw data to significant processed data.

Global standardization

The frequencies used for UHF RFID in the USA are as of 2007 incompatible with those of Europe or Japan. Furthermore, no emerging standard has yet become as universal as the barcode.^[113] To address international trade concerns, it is necessary to use a tag that is operational within all of the international frequency domains.

Security concerns

A primary RFID security concern is the illicit tracking of RFID tags. Tags, which are world-readable, pose a risk to both personal location privacy and corporate/military security. Such concerns have been raised with respect to the United States Department of Defense's recent adoption of RFID tags for supply chain management.^[114] More generally, privacy organizations have expressed concerns in the context of ongoing efforts to embed electronic product code (EPC) RFID tags in general-use products. This is mostly as a result of the fact that RFID tags can be read, and legitimate transactions with readers can be eavesdropped on, from non-trivial distances. RFID used in access control,^[115] payment and eID (e-passport) systems operate at a shorter range than EPC RFID systems but are also vulnerable to skimming and eavesdropping, albeit at shorter distances.^[116]

A second method of prevention is by using cryptography. Rolling codes and challenge–response authentication (CRA) are commonly used to foil monitor-repetition of the messages between the tag and reader, as any messages that have been recorded would prove to be unsuccessful on repeat transmission. Rolling codes rely upon the tag's ID being changed after each interrogation, while CRA uses software to ask for a cryptographically coded response from the tag. The protocols used during CRA can be symmetric, or may use public key cryptography.^[117]

Unauthorized reading of RFID tags presents a risk to privacy and to business secrecy.^[118] Unauthorized readers can potentially use RFID information to identify or track packages, persons, carriers, or the contents of a package.^[117] Several prototype systems are being developed to combat unauthorized reading, including RFID signal interruption,^[119] as well as the possibility of legislation, and 700 scientific papers have been published on this matter since 2002.^[120] There are also concerns that the database structure of Object Naming Service may be susceptible to infiltration, similar to denial-of-service attacks, after the EPCglobal Network ONS root servers were shown to be vulnerable.^[121]

Health

Microchip–induced tumours have been noted during animal trials.^{[122][123]}

Shielding

In an effort to prevent the passive “skimming” of RFID-enabled cards or passports, the U.S. General Services Administration (GSA) issued a set of test procedures for evaluating electromagnetically opaque sleeves.^[124] For shielding products to be in compliance with FIPS-201 guidelines, they must meet or exceed this published standard; compliant products are listed on the website of the U.S. CIO's FIPS-201 Evaluation Program.^[125] The United States government requires that when new ID cards are issued, they must be delivered with an approved shielding sleeve or holder.^[126] Although many wallets and passport holders are advertised to protect personal information, there is little evidence that RFID skimming is a serious threat; data encryption and use of EMV chips rather than RFID makes this sort of theft rare.^{[127][128]}

There are contradictory opinions as to whether aluminum can prevent reading of RFID chips. Some people claim that aluminum shielding, essentially creating a Faraday cage, does work.^[129] Others claim that simply wrapping an RFID card in aluminum foil only makes transmission more difficult and is not completely effective at preventing it.^[130]

Shielding effectiveness depends on the frequency being used. Low-frequency LowFID tags, like those used in implantable devices for humans and pets, are relatively resistant to shielding, although thick metal foil will prevent most reads. High frequency HighFID tags (13.56 MHz—smart cards and access badges) are sensitive to shielding and are difficult to read when within a few centimetres of a metal surface. UHF Ultra-HighFID tags (pallets and cartons) are difficult to read when placed within a few millimetres of a metal surface, although their read range is actually increased when they are spaced 2–4 cm from a metal surface due to positive reinforcement of the reflected wave and the incident wave at the tag.^[131]

Controversies

Privacy

The use of RFID has engendered considerable controversy and some consumer privacy advocates have initiated product boycotts. Consumer privacy experts Katherine Albrecht and Liz McIntyre are two prominent critics of the "spychip" technology. The two main privacy concerns regarding RFID are as follows:

- As the owner of an item may not necessarily be aware of the presence of an RFID tag and the tag can be read at a distance without the knowledge of the individual, sensitive data may be acquired without consent.
- If a tagged item is paid for by credit card or in conjunction with use of a loyalty card, then it would be possible to indirectly deduce the identity of the purchaser by reading the globally unique ID of that item contained in the RFID tag. This is a possibility if the person watching also had access to the loyalty card and credit card data, and the person with the equipment knows where the purchaser is going to be.

Logo of the anti-RFID campaign by German privacy group digitalcourage (formerly FoeBuD)

Most concerns revolve around the fact that RFID tags affixed to products remain functional even after the products have been purchased and taken home and thus can be used for surveillance and other purposes unrelated to their supply chain inventory functions.^[132]

The RFID Network responded to these fears in the first episode of their syndicated cable TV series, saying that they are unfounded, and let RF engineers demonstrate how RFID works.^[133] They provided images of RF engineers driving an RFID-enabled van around a building and trying to take an inventory of items inside. They also discussed satellite tracking of a passive RFID tag.

The concerns raised may be addressed in part by use of the Clipped Tag. The Clipped Tag is an RFID tag designed to increase privacy for the purchaser of an item. The Clipped Tag has been suggested by IBM researchers Paul Moskowitz and Guenter Karjoth. After the point of sale, a person may tear off a portion of the tag. This allows the transformation of a long-range tag into a proximity tag that still may be read, but only at short range – less than a few inches or centimeters. The modification of the tag may be confirmed visually. The tag may still be used later for returns, recalls, or recycling.

However, read range is a function of both the reader and the tag itself. Improvements in technology may increase read ranges for tags. Tags may be read at longer ranges than they are designed for by increasing reader power. The limit on read distance then becomes the signal-to-noise ratio of the signal reflected from the tag back to the reader. Researchers at two security conferences have demonstrated that passive Ultra-HighFID tags normally read at ranges of up to 30 feet can be read at ranges of 50 to 69 feet using suitable equipment.^{[134][135]}

In January 2004 privacy advocates from CASPIAN and the German privacy group FoeBuD were invited to the METRO Future Store in Germany, where an RFID pilot project was implemented. It was uncovered by accident that METRO "Payback" customer loyalty cards contained RFID tags with customer IDs, a fact that was disclosed neither to customers receiving the cards, nor to this group of privacy advocates. This happened despite assurances by METRO that no customer identification data was tracked and all RFID usage was clearly disclosed.^[136]

During the UN World Summit on the Information Society (WSIS) between the 16th to 18 November 2005, founder of the free software movement, Richard Stallman, protested the use of RFID security cards by covering his card with aluminum foil.^[137]

In 2004–2005 the Federal Trade Commission staff conducted a workshop and review of RFID privacy concerns and issued a report recommending best practices.^[138]

RFID was one of the main topics of the 2006 Chaos Communication Congress (organized by the Chaos Computer Club in Berlin) and triggered a large press debate. Topics included electronic passports, Mifare cryptography and the tickets for the FIFA World Cup 2006. Talks showed how the first real-world mass application of RFID at the 2006 FIFA Football World Cup worked. The group monochrom staged a special 'Hack RFID' song.^[139]

Government control

Some individuals have grown to fear the loss of rights due to RFID human implantation.

By early 2007, Chris Paget of San Francisco, California, showed that RFID information could be pulled from a US passport card by using only $250 worth of equipment. This suggests that with the information captured, it would be possible to clone such cards.^[140]

According to ZDNet, critics believe that RFID will lead to tracking individuals' every movement and will be an invasion of privacy.^[141] In the book SpyChips: How Major Corporations and Government Plan to Track Your Every Move by Katherine Albrecht and Liz McIntyre, one is encouraged to "imagine a world of no privacy. Where your every purchase is monitored and recorded in a database and your every belonging is numbered. Where someone many states away or perhaps in another country has a record of everything you have ever bought. What's more, they can be tracked and monitored remotely".^[142]

Deliberate destruction in clothing and other items

According to an RSA laboratories FAQ, RFID tags can be destroyed by a standard microwave oven;^[143] however some types of RFID tags, particularly those constructed to radiate using large metallic antennas (in particular RF tags and EPC tags), may catch fire if subjected to this process for too long (as would any metallic item inside a microwave oven). This simple method cannot safely be used to deactivate RFID features in electronic devices, or those implanted in living tissue, because of the risk of damage to the "host". However the time required is extremely short (a second or two of radiation) and the method works in many other non-electronic and inanimate items, long before heat or fire become of concern.^[144]

Some RFID tags implement a "kill command" mechanism to permanently and irreversibly disable them. This mechanism can be applied if the chip itself is trusted or the mechanism is known by the person that wants to "kill" the tag.

UHF RFID tags that comply with the EPC2 Gen 2 Class 1 standard usually support this mechanism, while protecting the chip from being killed with a password.^[145] Guessing or cracking this needed 32-bit password for killing a tag would not be difficult for a determined attacker.^[146]

Reliability

Tag reliability

Generally, an RFID tag has an inlay, composed of three components, namely silicon (Si) chip, ACA (Anisotropic conductive adhesive) layer and flexible substrate (Al/PET), as shown in Fig.1(a). The chip is flip-chip assembled on the Al/PET flexible substrate through ACA hot-press process. After the bonding process, the shear strength of the tag inlay can be measured using the bond tester. The shear strength test principle is based on the solder ball shear test standard,^[147] as shown in Fig.1(b). A rigid clamping device is used to fix one side of the substrate, and the vacuum plate is used to absorb the bottom of the sample. The blade is pushed horizontally from one side. The maximum shear force for each joint, which finally separates the chip from the substrate, is recorded, as shown in Fig.1(c).^[148]

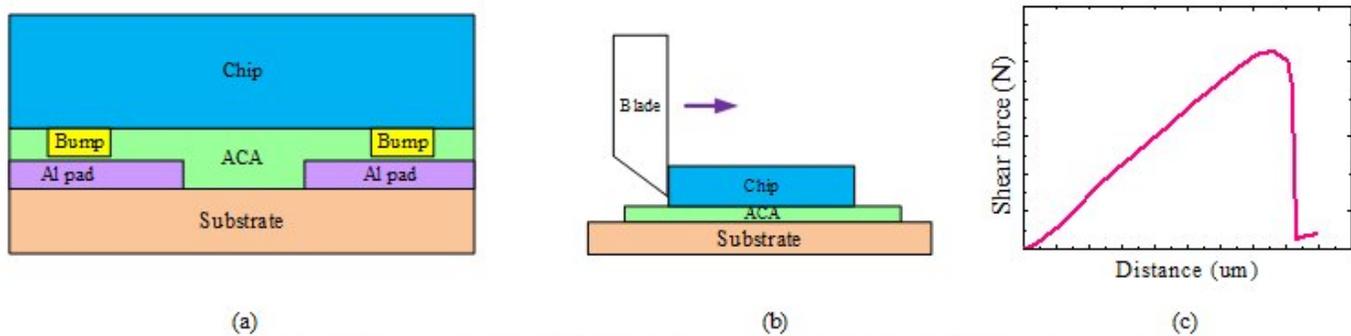

Fig. 1. (a) schematic of the RFID inlay (b) measurement principle (c) plot of maximum shear force

See also

- AS5678
- Balise
- Bin bug
- Chipless RFID
- Internet of Things
- Mass surveillance
- Microchip implant \(human\)
- Near Field Communication \(NFC\)
- PositiveID
- Privacy by design
- Proximity card
- Resonant inductive coupling
- RFdump
- RFID in schools
- RFID Journal
- RFID on metal
- RSA blocker tag
- Smart label
- Speedpass
- TecTile
- Tracking system

References

1. Automatic Identification and Data Collection (AIDC) (<http://www.mhi.org/fundamentals/automatic-identification>) Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20160505190510/http://www.mhi.org/fundamentals/automatic-identification>) May 5, 2016, at the Wayback Machine
2. Angell, I., Kietzmann, J. (2006). "RFID and the end of cash?" (https://web.archive.org/web/20140224155226/http://beedie.sfu.ca/files/Research/Journal_Articles/Journal_Articles_misc/RFID_and_the_end_of_Cash.pdf) (PDF). Communications of the ACM. 49 (12): 90–96. doi:10.1145/1183236.1183237 (<https://doi.org/10.1145%2F1183236.1183237>). S2CID 3559353 (<https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:3559353>). Archived from the original (http://beedie.sfu.ca/files/Research/Journal_Articles/Journal_Articles_misc/RFID_and_the_end_of_Cash.pdf) (PDF) on 2014-02-24. Retrieved 9 November 2013.
3. "RFID Forecasts, Players and Opportunities 2019-2029" (<https://www.idtechex.com/en/research-report/rfid-forecasts-players-and-opportunities-2019-2029/700>). IDTechEx. 2020-02-27.
4. Hacking Exposed Linux: Linux Security Secrets & Solutions (<https://books.google.com/books?id=f5Vz08spzw8C>) (third ed.). McGraw-Hill Osborne Media. 2008. p. 298. ISBN 978-0-07-226257-5.
5. "What are IFF Technologies?" (<https://www.baesystems.com/en-us/definition/what-are-iff-technologies>). BAE Systems | United States. Retrieved 2021-03-29.
6. Stockman, Harry (October 1948), "Communication by Means of Reflected Power", Proceedings of the IRE, 36 (10): 1196–1204, doi:10.1109/JRPROC.1948.226245 (<https://doi.org/10.1109%2FJRPROC.1948.226245>), S2CID 51643576 (<https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:51643576>)
7. "Genesis of the Versatile RFID Tag" (<http://www.rfidjournal.com/article/view/392/1/2>). RFID Journal. Retrieved 2013-09-22.
8. US 3713148 (<https://worldwide.espacenet.com/textdoc?DB=EPODOC&IDX=US3713148>), Cardullo, Mario W. & William L. Parks, "Transponder apparatus and system", published May 21, 1970, issued Jan 23, 1973

9. Landt, Jerry (2001). "Shrouds of Time: The history of RFID" (https://web.archive.org/web/20090327005501/http://www.transcore.com/pdf/AIM%20shrouds_of_time.pdf) (PDF). AIM, Inc. Archived from the original (http://www.transcore.com/pdf/AIM%20shrouds_of_time.pdf) (PDF) on 2009-03-27. Retrieved 2006-05-31.
10. "Real Time Location Systems" (http://www.clarinox.com/docs/whitepapers/RealTime_main.pdf) (PDF). clarinox. Retrieved 2010-08-04.
11. Charles A. Walton "Portable radio frequency emitting identifier" U.S. Patent 4,384,288 (<https://patents.google.com/patent/US4384288>) issue date May 17, 1983
12. "RFID-Tag" (<https://www.behance.net/gallery/67918923/RFID-Tag>). Behance. Retrieved 15 July 2018.
13. "Construction of RFID Tags - RFID chip and antenna" (<https://rfid4u.com/rfid-basics-resources/dig-deep-rfid-tags-construction/>). RFID4U. n.d. Retrieved 2020-03-01.
14. Bays, Barbara; McGowan, Mike (2016). "Use of RFID for Tracking Government Property - Proof of Concept/Pilot". Sandia National Laboratories. Sandia Corporation: 24.
15. "An introduction to RFID technology" (<https://www.researchgate.net/publication/271292563>). ResearchGate. Retrieved 2021-03-29.
16. Want, Roy (January–March 2006). "An Introduction to RFID Technology" (https://home.cs.colorado.edu/~rhan/CSCI_7143_001_Fall_2002/Papers/rfid_intro_01593568.pdf) (PDF). Pervasive Computing. January - March 2006: 25–33. doi:10.1109/MPRV.2006.2 (<https://doi.org/10.1109%2FMPRV.2006.2>). S2CID 130729 (<https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:130729>). Retrieved 2021-04-09 – via <https://home.cs.colorado.edu/>.
17. "How Does RFID Technology Work?" (<https://www.makeuseof.com/tag/technology-explained-how-do-rfid-tags-work/>). MakeUseOf. Retrieved 2019-04-22.
18. Sen, Dipankar; Sen, Prosenjit; Das, Anand M. (2009), RFID For Energy and Utility Industries, PennWell, ISBN 978-1-59370-105-5, pp. 1-48
19. Weis, Stephen A. (2007), RFID (Radio Frequency Identification): Principles and Applications, MIT CSAIL, CiteSeerX 10.1.1.182.5224 (<https://citeseerx.ist.psu.edu/viewdoc/summary?doi=10.1.1.182.5224>)
20. "RFID and Rail: Advanced Tracking Technology – Railway Technology" (<http://www.railway-technology.com/features/feature1684/>). 16 March 2008. Retrieved 14 March 2018.
21. Daniel M. Dobkin, The RF in RFID: Passive UHF RFID In Practice, Newnes 2008 ISBN 978-0-7506-8209-1, chapter 8
22. John R. Vacca Computer and information security handbook, Morgan Kaufmann, 2009 ISBN 0-12-374354-0, page 208
23. Bill Glover, Himanshu Bhatt ,RFID essentials, O'Reilly Media, Inc., 2006 ISBN 0-596-00944-5, pages 88–89
24. "Frequently Asked Questions - RFID Journal" (<https://www.rfidjournal.com/site/faqs>). www.rfidjournal.com. Retrieved 2019-04-22.
25. "STGF Report" (http://www.nerc.com/files/SGTF_Report_Final_posted_v1.1.pdf) (PDF).
26. "Ants' home search habit uncovered" (<http://news.bbc.co.uk/1/hi/england/bristol/8011998.stm>). BBC News. 2009-04-22. Retrieved 2013-09-03.
27. "Hitachi's RFID powder freaks us the heck out" (<https://www.engadget.com/2007/02/14/hitachis-rfid-powder-freaks-us-the-heck-out>). Engadget. Retrieved 2010-04-24.
28. TFOT (2007). "Hitachi Develops World's Smallest RFID Chip" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20090416235559/http://thefutureofthings.com/news/1032/hitachi-develops-worlds-smallest-rfid-chip.html>). Archived from the original (<http://thefutureofthings.com/news/1032/hitachi-develops-worlds-smallest-rfid-chip.html>) on 2009-04-16. Retrieved 2009-03-27.
29. Europe, RAND (2012). "SMART TRASH: Study on RFID tags and the recycling industry: Interim Report (D3) SMART 2010/0042" (https://www.rand.org/pubs/working_papers/WR922.html). www.rand.org. Retrieved 2020-03-01.
30. "Can RFID Tags Become An Environmental Problem?" (<https://www.industryweek.com/the-economy/environment/article/21933239/can-rfid-tags-become-an-environmental-problem>). www.industryweek.com. 2005-08-05. Retrieved 2020-03-01.
31. "EPTLS I The Electronic Product Tag & Labelling Scheme" (<http://eptls.org/rfid.html>). eptls.org. Retrieved 2019-04-22.
32. Martein Meints (June 2007). "D3.7 A Structured Collection on Information and Literature on Technological and Usability Aspects of Radio Frequency Identification (RFID), FIDIS deliverable 3(7)" (<http://www.fidis.net/resources/deliverables/hightechid/#c1782>). Retrieved 2013-09-22.

33. Paolo Magrassi (2001). "A World Of Smart Objects: The Role Of Auto Identification Technologies" (<http://www.gartner.com>). Retrieved 2007-06-24.
34. Silva, S., Lowry, M., Macaya-Solis, C., Byatt, B., & Lucas, M. C. (2017). Can navigation locks be used to help migratory fishes with poor swimming performance pass tidal barrages? (<https://www.sciencedirect.com/science/article/pii/S0925857417300940>) A test with lampreys. Ecological engineering, 102, 291–302.
35. Pete Harrison (2009-07-28). "EU considers overhauling rules for lost air luggage" (<https://www.reuters.com/article/rbssIndustryMaterialsUtilitiesNews/idUSLS63631320090728>). Reuters. Retrieved 2009-09-09.
36. Vivaldi, F.; Melai, B.; Bonini, A.; Poma, N.; Salvo, P.; Kirchhain, A.; Tintori, S.; Bigongiari, A.; Bertuccelli, F.; Isola, G.; Di Francesco, F. (October 2020). "A Temperature-Sensitive RFID Tag for the Identification of Cold Chain Failures" (https://figshare.com/articles/A_Temperature-Sensitive_RFID_Tag_for_the_Identification_of_Cold_Chain_Failures/12197784). Sensors Actuators A: Physical. 313: 112182. doi:10.1016/j.sna.2020.112182 (<https://doi.org/10.1016%2Fj.sna.2020.112182>).
37. [Miles, Stephen Bell (2011). RFID Technology and Applications. London: Cambridge University Press. pp. 6–8]
38. "Benefits of RFID in Theft Protection – CONTROLTEK" (<http://www.controltekusa.com/controltek-news/benefits-of-rfid-in-theft-protection/>). Controltek. 14 February 2014. Retrieved 11 October 2017.
39. Rohrlich, Justin (15 December 2010). "RFID-Tagged Gaming Chips Render Hotel Bellagio Robbery Haul Worthless" (<http://www.minyanville.com/businessmarkets/articles/bellagio-wynn-casino-rfid-gambling-las/12/15/2010/id/31714>). Minyanville Financial Media. Retrieved 16 December 2010.
40. "RFID use raises on-slope privacy concerns" (<https://www.espn.com/action/news/story?id=5810585>). ESPN.com. 2010-11-15. Retrieved 2021-03-23.
41. "Mercedes Provides RFID Facebook Checkins at PGA Championship" (<http://mashable.com/2011/08/11/mercedes-rfid-facebook/>). Mashable.com. 2011-08-11. Retrieved 2013-09-22.
42. Patrick Sweeney (2013-03-26). "Social Media Winner's Circle at Geneva Motor Show [Video]" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20130927053606/http://socialmediatoday.com/pjsweeney/1322626/social-media-winner-s-circle-geneva-motor-show>). Social Media Today. Archived from the original (<http://socialmediatoday.com/pjsweeney/1322626/social-media-winner-s-circle-geneva-motor-show>) on 2013-09-27. Retrieved 2013-09-22.
43. James P. Farrell & Ralf Saykiewicz. "Keeping Track of Promotion Progress: How Marketing Will Become the Greatest Advocate of RFID" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20080411211453/http://www.consumergoods.com/ME2/dirmod.asp?sid=&nm=&type=Publishing&mod=Publications%3A%3AArticle&mid=8F3A7027421841978F18BE895F87F791&tier=4&id=07CA1C544D3E4FD1916C7A6D2638913E>). Consumer Goods Technology. Archived from the original (<http://www.consumergoods.com/ME2/dirmod.asp?sid=&nm=&type=Publishing&mod=Publications%3A%3AArticle&mid=8F3A7027421841978F18BE895F87F791&tier=4&id=07CA1C544D3E4FD1916C7A6D2638913E>) on 2008-04-11. Retrieved 2008-04-10.
44. "AEI technology" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20080406031000/http://www.aeitag.com/aeirfidtec.html>). Softrail. Archived from the original (<http://www.aeitag.com/aeirfidtec.html>) on 2008-04-06. Retrieved 2008-10-12.
45. "Qantas Next Generation Check-in" (<http://www.qantas.com.au/travel/airlines/next-generation-checkin/global/en>). Qantas Airways Limited. Retrieved 2010-12-27.
46. [1] (<http://www.cargo-box.com>) Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20150801102438/http://www.cargo-box.com/>) August 1, 2015, at the Wayback Machine
47. "Bermuda's RFID Vehicle Registration System Could Save $2 Million/Year" (<http://www.rfidjournal.com/article/view/3321>). Rfidjournal.com. 2007-05-18. Retrieved 2013-09-03.
48. "Smart License May Cut Car Theft" (<http://www.rfidjournal.com/article/view/89>). Rfidjournal.com. 2002-10-11. Retrieved 2013-09-03.
49. "Mexico's Electronic Vehicle Registration system opens with Sirit open road toll technology, Dec 29, 2009" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20130703170620/http://www.tollroadsnews.com/node/4513>). Tollroadsnews.com. Archived from the original (<http://www.tollroadsnews.com/node/4513>) on 2013-07-03. Retrieved 2013-09-03.
50. "New York's award-winning traffic control system" (<http://www.itsinternational.com/sections/nafta/features/new-yorks-award-winning-traffic-control-system/>). ITS International. January–February 2013. Retrieved 3 May 2014.
51. "Locating and Marking Products" (http://solutions.3m.com/wps/portal/3M/en_US/Telecom/Home/Products/LocatingMarking/). 3M Company. Retrieved 25 June 2012.
52. "Datatilsynet misfornøyd med nye pass" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20080405212252/http://www.digi.no/php/art.php?id=275753>). Digi.no. Archived from the original (<http://www.digi.no/php/art.php?id=275753>) on 2008-04-05. Retrieved 2013-09-22.

53. "Uruguay a la vanguardia con nuevo pasaporte electrónico" (https://web.archive.org/web/20210223164859/http://www.minterior.gub.uy/index.php?option=com_content&view=article&id=3227). Ministerio del Interior. 2015-10-15. Archived from the original (https://www.minterior.gub.uy/index.php?option=com_content&view=article&id=3227) on 2021-02-23. Retrieved 2021-02-23.
54. "Contactless inlays from SMARTRAC ordered for US ePassport project" (<http://www.contactlessnews.com/2006/11/30/contactless-inlays-from-smartrac-ordered-for-us-epassport-project>). Retrieved 2009-03-25.
55. Lettice, John (30 January 2006). "Face and fingerprints swiped in Dutch biometric passport crack: Chip skimmed, then security breached" (https://web.archive.org/web/20060131005717/https://www.theregister.co.uk/2006/01/30/dutch_biometric_passport_crack/). The Register. Archived from the original (https://www.theregister.co.uk/2006/01/30/dutch_biometric_passport_crack/) on 31 January 2006. Retrieved 9 September 2013.
56. "United States sets date for E-passports" (<http://rfidjournal.com/article/articleview/1951/1/132/>).
57. Mary Catherine O'Connor (7 January 2008). "RFID Is Key to Car Clubs' Success" (<http://www.rfidjournal.com/article/view/3839/2>). RFID Journal. Retrieved 9 May 2011.
58. Tay, Lay (2007-11-01). "HDB Introduces RFID Season Parking Ticket" (<http://www.rfid-asia.info/2007/11/hdb-introduce-rfid-season-parking.htm>). RFID Asia. Retrieved 2009-10-17.
59. *USDA Bets the Farm on Animal ID Program (http://www.thenation.com/doc/20071231/pentland_gumpert)
60. "National Livestock Identification System" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20130820085741/http://www.mla.com.au/Meat-safety-and-traceability/National-Livestock-Identification-System>). Meat & Livestock Australia Limited. Archived from the original (<http://www.mla.com.au/Meat-safety-and-traceability/National-Livestock-Identification-System>) on 2013-08-20. Retrieved 2013-09-03.
61. Carvalho, Mario Cesar. "– Artista implanta hoje chip no corpo – November 11, 1997" (<https://acervo.folha.com.br/leitor.do?numero=13700&keyword=Kac&anchor=282247&origem=busca&originURL=&pd=e5616b5794dde0ab6a687a693c931980/>). www1.folha.uol.com. Retrieved 14 June 2021.
62. Esnal, Luis. "– Un hombre llamado 026109532 – December 15, 1997" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170201160159/http://www.ekac.org:80/lanacion.html/>). web.archive.org. Retrieved 14 June 2021.
63. Witt, Sam. "CNN – Is human chip implant wave of the future? – January 14, 1999" (<http://edition.cnn.com/TECH/computing/9901/14/chipman.idg/>). edition.cnn.com. Retrieved 14 March 2018.
64. "Professor has world's first silicon chip implant" (<https://www.independent.co.uk/news/professor-has-worlds-first-silicon-chip-implant-1174101.html>). 26 August 1998. Retrieved 14 March 2018.
65. "Technology | Barcelona clubbers get chipped" (<http://news.bbc.co.uk/2/hi/technology/3697940.stm>). BBC News. 2004-09-29. Retrieved 2013-09-22.
66. Gasson, M. N. (2010). "Human Enhancement: Could you become infected with a computer virus?" (http://centaur.reading.ac.uk/29329/1/GASSON_ISTAS2010.pdf) (PDF). 2010 IEEE International Symposium on Technology and Society. pp. 61–68. doi:10.1109/ISTAS.2010.5514651 (<https://doi.org/10.1109%2FISTAS.2010.5514651>). ISBN 978-1-4244-7777-7. S2CID 3098538 (<https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:3098538>).
67. Greene, Thomas C. (2004). "Feds approve human RFID implants" (https://www.theregister.co.uk/2004/10/14/human_rfid_implants/). Retrieved 2007-03-01.
68. Monahan, Torin and Tyler Wall. 2007. Somatic Surveillance: Corporeal Control through Information Networks (http://www.surveillance-and-society.org/articles4\(3\)/somatic.pdf/somatic.pdf)). Surveillance & Society 4 (3): 154–173 Archived (https://web.archive.org/web/20160615201126/http://www.surveillance-and-society.org/articles4\(3\)/somatic.pdf/somatic.pdf)) 2016-06-15 at the Wayback Machine
69. Kietzmann, J., Angell, I. (2010). "Panopticon revisited" (https://web.archive.org/web/20140224154000/http://beedie.sfu.ca/files/Research/Journal_Articles/Journal_Articles_2010/Panopticon_revisited.pdf) (PDF). Communications of the ACM. 53 (6): 135–138. doi:10.1145/1743546.1743582 (<https://doi.org/10.1145%2F1743546.1743582>). S2CID 10487109 (<https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:10487109>). Archived from the original (http://beedie.sfu.ca/files/Research/Journal_Articles/Journal_Articles_2010/Panopticon_revisited.pdf) (PDF) on 2014-02-24. Retrieved 9 November 2013.
70. Fulton, Nic (2006-07-22). "Reuters" (<http://blogs.reuters.com/mediafile/2006/07/22/high-tech-cloning/>). Blogs.reuters.com. Retrieved 2013-09-03.
71. Rosenbaum, Benjamin P. (28 February 2014). "Radio Frequency Identification (RFID) in Health Care: Privacy and Security Concerns Limiting Adoption". Journal of Medical Systems. 38 (3): 19. doi:10.1007/s10916-014-0019-z (<https://doi.org/10.1007%2Fs10916-014-0019-z>). PMID 24578170 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/24578170/>). S2CID 11368940 (<https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:11368940>).
72. Lahtela, Antti. "A Short Overview of the RFID Technology in Healthcare" (<https://www.academia.edu/703195>). 2009 Fourth International Conference on Systems and Networks Communications.

73. "RFID Frequently Asked Questions" (<http://www.rfidjournal.com/faq/show?68>). RFIDJournal.com. Retrieved 2013-05-20.
74. "Group Health Reinvents Patient Care With RTLS" (<http://www.rfidjournal.com/article/print/9828>). RFID Journal. 22 August 2012.
75. "Veterans Affairs to Install RFID in Hospitals across America" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20140319083312/http://www.impinj.com/blog/veteran-affairs-to-install-rfid-in-hospitals-across-america/>). Impinj. 14 June 2013. Archived from the original (<http://www.impinj.com/blog/veteran-affairs-to-install-rfid-in-hospitals-across-america/>) on 19 March 2014.
76. "Case Study - Learn How UniGuard Improves Businesses" (<https://www.uniguard.com.au/about/case-study/>). Staff & Asset Tracking with Workforce Management Software by UniGuard. Retrieved 2021-03-29.
77. Systems, computer media, and methods for using electromagnetic frequency (EMF) identification (ID) devices for monitoring, collection, analysis, use and tracking of personal, medical, transaction, and location data for one or more individuals (<https://patents.google.com/patent/US20160189174A1/en>), retrieved 2019-04-22
78. Fisher, Jill A., Monahan, Torin (2012). "Evaluation of Real-time Location Systems in their Hospital Contexts" (http://publicsurveillance.com/papers/Fisher_Monahan_IJMI-2012.pdf) (PDF). International Journal of Medical Informatics. 81 (10): 705–712. doi:10.1016/j.ijmedinf.2012.07.001 (<https://doi.org/10.1016%2Fj.ijmedinf.2012.07.001>). PMID 22857790 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/22857790>).
79. Fisher, Jill A., Monahan, Torin (2008). "Tracking the Social Dimensions of RFID Systems in Hospitals" (http://publicsurveillance.com/papers/Fisher_Monahan_RFID_IJMI.pdf) (PDF). International Journal of Medical Informatics. 77 (3): 176–183. doi:10.1016/j.ijmedinf.2007.04.010 (<https://doi.org/10.1016%2Fj.ijmedinf.2007.04.010>). PMID 17544841 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/17544841>).
80. Fisher, Jill A. 2006. Indoor Positioning and Digital Management: Emerging Surveillance Regimes in Hospitals (http://media.wix.com/ugd/e5e1e1_9618d4aaaa1240f4bfa2e6fc8178b144.pdf). In T. Monahan (Ed), Surveillance and Security: Technological Politics and Power in Everyday Life (pp. 77–88). New York: Routledge.
81. "Electronic tags for eggs, sperm and embryos – life – 30 March 2005" (<https://www.newscientist.com/article.n.s?id=dn7209>). New Scientist. Retrieved 2010-04-24.
82. "Verichip Special Report" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20120323031257/http://www.spychips.com/devices/verichip-fda-report.html>). spychips.com. Archived from the original (<http://www.spychips.com/devices/verichip-fda-report.html>) on 2012-03-23. Retrieved 2013-09-22.
83. Butters, Alan (December 2006). "Radio Frequency Identification: An Introduction for Library Professionals" (<http://search.informit.com.au/documentSummary;dn=312996058408409;res=IELHSS>). Australasian Public Libraries and Information Services. 19 (4): 164–74. ISSN 1030-5033 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/1030-5033>).
84. Sing, Jay; Brar, Navjit; Fong, Carmen (2013). "The State of RFID Applications in Libraries" (<https://doi.org/10.6017%2Fital.v25i1.3326>). Information Technology and Libraries. 25–32: 24. doi:10.6017/ital.v25i1.3326 (<https://doi.org/10.6017%2Fital.v25i1.3326>).
85. Wadham, Rachel (2003). "Radio Frequency Identification". Library Mosaics. 14 (5): 22.
86. Chellappandi, P; Sivankalai, S (October 2013). ISSN: 2321 – 788X. "Implementation Of RFID Technology In Library – Book Exhausting and Retrieval For Readers" (<https://www.researchgate.net/publication/259854363>). Shanlax International Journal of Arts, Science & Humanities. 1 (2): 25–32 – via ResearchGate.
87. Molnar, David; Wagner, David (June 8, 2004). "Privacy and Security in Library RFID: Issues, Practices, and Architectures" (<https://www.researchgate.net/publication/221609472>). Conference: Proceedings of the 11th ACM Conference on Computer and Communications Security, CCS 2004, Washington, DC, USA, October 25–29, 2004. 1: 1–20 – via ResearchGate.
88. "How do libraries manage the ethical and privacy issues of RFID implementation? A qualitative investigation into the decision-making processes of ten libraries" (<https://www.researchgate.net/publication/270618836>). ResearchGate. Retrieved 2021-03-29.
89. Dorman, David (December 2003). "RFID Poses No Problem for Patron Privacy" (<http://www.ala.org/PrinterTemplate.cfm?section=archive&template=/ContentManagement/ContentDisplay.cfm&ContentID=50931>). American Libraries. 34 (11): 86.
90. Rowe, Paul (November 9, 2011). "RFID Technology in use at the Otago Museum" (<https://vernonsystems.com/rfid-technology-in-use-at-the-otago-museum/>). Vernon Systems.

91. Hsi, Sherry; Fait, Holly (2005). "RFID enhances visitors' museum experience at the Exploratorium". Communications of the ACM. 48 (9): 60–5. doi:10.1145/1081992.1082021 (https://doi.org/10.1145%2F1081992.1082021). S2CID 8334725 (https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:8334725).
92. "Schoolchildren to be RFID-chipped" (https://web.archive.org/web/20120427003216/http://networks.silicon.com/lans/0,39024663,39122042,00.htm). Networks.silicon.com. Archived from the original (http://networks.silicon.com/lans/0,39024663,39122042,00.htm) on April 27, 2012. Retrieved 2013-09-03.
93. Williams, Christopher (2007-10-22). "Schoolkid chipping trial 'a success'" (https://www.theregister.co.uk/2007/10/22/kid_chipping_doncaster_go/). Theregister.co.uk. Retrieved 2013-09-03.
94. Baghya Lakshmi (2012-09-16). "Using rfid technology to develop an attendance system and avoid traff..." (http://www.slideshare.net/baghyaharini/using-rfid-technology-to-develop-an-attendance-system-and-avoid-traffic-1).
95. "Epic Mix – Skiers [sic] and Snowboarders Social Media Dream" (http://cliqology.com/2010/09/epic-mix-skiers-and-snowboards-social-media-dream/). 2010-09-07. Retrieved 2013-09-22.
96. "Vail Resorts Launches Epic Mix | SNOWBOARD MAGAZINE" (https://web.archive.org/web/20100904085254/http://snowboard-mag.com/content/vail-resorts-launches-epic-mix-39814). Archived from the original (http://snowboard-mag.com/content/vail-resorts-launches-epic-mix-39814) on 2010-09-04. Retrieved 2020-03-01.
97. Kinsella, Bret. (2010-09-07) Vail shows that Consumer RFID delivers a better experience (http://blog.odintechnologies.com/odin-rfid-blog/bid/51179/Vail-shows-that-Consumer-RFID-delivers-a-better-experience) Archived (https://web.archive.org/web/20101106030526/http://blog.odintechnologies.com/odin-rfid-blog/bid/51179/Vail-shows-that-Consumer-RFID-delivers-a-better-experience) 2010-11-06 at the Wayback Machine. Blog.odintechnologies.com. Retrieved on 2013-08-16.
98. "How a pair of microchips could transform football into an intricate dance of data" (http://www.dailydot.com/technology/nfl-rfid-player-tracking-zebra-technologies/). DailyDot. 2015-08-12. Retrieved 1 September 2015.
99. "The NFL has a (RFID) Chip on its shoulder" (https://web.archive.org/web/20150906105747/http://news.surgogroup.com/nfl-has-a-rfid-chip-on-its-shoulder/). News Surgo Group. Archived from the original (http://news.surgogroup.com/nfl-has-a-rfid-chip-on-its-shoulder/) on 2015-09-06. Retrieved 1 September 2015.
00. Moynihan, Tim (2015-08-07). "All NFL Players Are Getting RFID Chips This Season" (https://www.wired.com/2015/08/nfl-players-getting-rfid-chips-season/). Wired. Retrieved 1 September 2015.
01. Chowdhury, Belal; Chowdhury, Morshed (December 2, 2007). "RFID-based Real-time Smart Waste Management System" (http://dro.deakin.edu.au/eserv/DU:30008105/chowdhury-rfidbased-2007.pdf) (PDF). 2007 Australasian Telecommunication Networks and Applications Conference December 2nd – 5th 2007. 1: 175–180. doi:10.1109/ATNAC.2007.4665232 (https://doi.org/10.1109%2FATNAC.2007.4665232). hdl:10536/DRO/DU:30008105 (https://hdl.handle.net/10536%2FDRO%2FDU%3A30008105). ISBN 978-1-4244-1557-1. S2CID 18506491 (https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:18506491) – via Deakin University DRO.
02. "RFID Still In Early Stages of Adoption by Waste Industry" (http://www.waste360.com/route-optimization/rfid-still-early-stages-adoption-waste-industry). 2016-08-10.
03. 0001-0782 (https://www.worldcat.org/search?fq=x0:jrnl&q=n2:0001-0782)
04. "RFID Regulations" (https://rfid4u.com/rfid-basics-resources/basics-rfid-regulations/). RFID4U. n.d. Retrieved 2020-03-01.
05. Yang, Kuo-pao; Beaubouef, Theresa (2011-04-01). "Radio frequency identification (RFID) projects for computer science" (https://dl.acm.org/doi/abs/10.5555/1953573.1953586). Journal of Computing Sciences in Colleges. 26 (4): 78–84. ISSN 1937-4771 (https://www.worldcat.org/issn/1937-4771).
06. "Regulatory status for using RFID in the EPC Gen 2 band (860 to 960 MHz) of the UHF spectrum" (http://www.gs1.org/docs/epc/UHF_Regulations.pdf) (PDF). GS1.org. 2014-10-31. Retrieved 2015-03-23.
07. "ISO 28560-2:2011 – Information and documentation – RFID in libraries – Part 2: Encoding of RFID data elements based on rules from ISO/IEC 15962" (http://www.iso.org/iso/iso_catalogue/catalogue_tc/catalogue_detail.htm?csnumber=50997). www.iso.org. Retrieved 14 March 2018.
08. "RFID Standards and Mandates" (https://rfid4u.com/rfid-basics-resources/how-to-select-a-correct-rfid-tag-standards-mandates/).
09. Roberti, Mark (2004-12-16). "EPCglobal Ratifies Gen 2 Standard" (http://www.rfidjournal.com/article/view/1293). RFID Journal. Retrieved 2011-07-07.
10. Catherine O'Connor, Mary (2004-07-12). "Gen 2 EPC Protocol Approved as ISO 18000-6C" (http://www.rfidjournal.com/article/view/2481/1/1). RFID Journal. Retrieved 2011-07-07.

11. Roberti, Mark (2006-05-06). "A 5-Cent Breakthrough" (<http://www.rfidjournal.com/article/articleview/2295/1/128/>). RFID Journal. Retrieved 2007-01-26.
12. Bill Glover, Himanshu Bhatt, RFID Essentials, O'Reilly Media, Inc., 2006 ISBN 0-596-00944-5 page 43
13. "Radio Silence" (http://economist.com/printedition/displaystory.cfm?story_id=9249278). The Economist. 7 June 2007.
14. "What's New" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20060228101133/http://www.acq.osd.mil/log/rfid/index.htm>). Radio Frequency Identification (RFID). 4 April 2007. Archived from the original (<http://www.acq.osd.mil/log/rfid/index.htm>) on 28 February 2006.
15. S. A. E., Elshrief; R. A. Sadek; A. Ghalwash (March 2014). "Comparative analysis of authentication techniques to Secure Low Level Reader Protocol (LLRP)". 2014 31st National Radio Science Conference (NRSC), Cairo, Egypt. 73–81. doi:10.1109/NRSC.2014.6835063 (<https://doi.org/10.1109%2FNRSC.2014.6835063>). S2CID 21520509 (<https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:21520509>).
16. Hancke, Gerhard P (2011). "Practical eavesdropping and skimming attacks on high-frequency RFID tokens" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20160527141257/http://iospress.metapress.com/content/xx855446h2kh84r2/>). Journal of Computer Security. 19 (2): 259–288. CiteSeerX 10.1.1.169.9341 (<https://citeseerx.ist.psu.edu/viewdoc/summary?doi=10.1.1.169.9341>). doi:10.3233/JCS-2010-0407 (<https://doi.org/10.3233%2FJCS-2010-0407>). Archived from the original (<http://iospress.metapress.com/content/xx855446h2kh84r2/>) on 27 May 2016. Retrieved 10 August 2012.
17. Ilyas, edited by Syed Ahson, Mohammad (2008). "26.5" (<https://books.google.com/books?id=q4aCyZnq0cwC&q=Rather,+the+reader+issues+a+challenge+to+the+tag,+which+responds+with+a+result+computed+using+a+cryptographic+circuit+keyed+with+some+secret+value&pg=PA478>). RFID handbook : applications, technology, security, and privacy ([Online-Ausg.] ed.). Boca Raton: CRC Press. p. 478. ISBN 9781420054996. Retrieved 7 August 2012.
18. "Business risks from naive use of RFID in tracking, tracing and logistics - Conference papers - VDE Publishing House" (<https://www.vde-verlag.de/proceedings-en/453168007.html>). www.vde-verlag.de. Retrieved 2019-12-09.
19. "RFID Privacy and Security" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20061218210709/http://www.rsasecurity.com/rsalabs/node.asp?id=2115>). RSA Laboratories. Archived from the original (<http://www.rsasecurity.com/rsalabs/node.asp?id=2115>) on 2006-12-18. Retrieved 2013-09-22.
20. "RFID Security and Privacy Lounge" (<http://avoine.net/rfid/>). Avoine.net. Retrieved 2013-09-22.
21. Tedjasaputra, Adi (2006-12-11). "Putting RFID Network Security in Perspective" (<http://www.rfid-asia.info/2007/02/putting-rfid-network-security-in.htm>). RFID Asia. Retrieved 2007-08-03.
22. Albrecht, Katherine (2010). Microchip-induced tumors in laboratory rodents and dogs: A review of the literature 1990–2006. IEEE. pp. 337–349. doi:10.1109/ISTAS.2010.5514622 (<https://doi.org/10.1109%2FISTAS.2010.5514622>). ISBN 978-1-4244-7777-7. S2CID 2813360 (<https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:2813360>).
23. Lewan, Todd (8 September 2007). "Chip Implants Linked to Animal Tumors" (https://www.washingtonpost.com/wp-dyn/content/article/2007/09/08/AR2007090800997_pf.html). Washington Post.
24. "Electromagnetically Opaque Sleeve Test Procedure version 3.0.0" (https://fips201ep.cio.gov/documents/Electromagnetically%20Opaque%20Sleeve_Test%20Procedure_v3.0.0.pdf) (PDF). GSA.
25. "FIPS 201 Evaluation Program Approved Products List (APL)" (<https://www.idmanagement.gov/approved-products-list>). U.S. CIO and the Federal CIO Councils.
26. "FIPS-201, Personal Identity Verification (PIV) of Federal Employees and Contractors" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20101226075308/http://csrc.nist.gov/publications/fips/fips201-1/FIPS-201-1-chng1.pdf>) (PDF). NIST. Archived from the original (<http://csrc.nist.gov/publications/fips/fips201-1/FIPS-201-1-chng1.pdf>) (PDF) on 2010-12-26. Retrieved 2019-01-10.
27. Oremus, Will (2015-08-25). "Do You Really Need an RFID-Blocking Wallet?" (<https://slate.com/human-interest/2015/08/credit-cards-passports-and-rfid-fraud-are-special-blocking-wallets-necessary.html>). Slate Magazine. Retrieved 2019-11-10.
28. "There Are Plenty Of RFID-Blocking Products, But Do You Need Them?" (<https://www.npr.org/sections/alltechconsidered/2017/07/04/535518514/there-are-plenty-of-rfid-blocking-products-but-do-you-need-them>). NPR.org. Retrieved 2019-11-10.
29. "Can Aluminum Shield RFID Chips?" (https://web.archive.org/web/20140330050519/http://www.rfid-shield.com/info_doesitwork.php). RFID Shield. Archived from the original (http://www.rfid-shield.com/info_doesitwork.php) on 2014-03-30. Retrieved 2007-03-27.
30. "Aluminum Foil Does Not Stop RFID" (<http://www.omniscienceisbliss.org/rfid.html>). Omniscience is Bliss.

31. "A Primer on RFID" (http://www.falkensecurenetworks.com/PDFs/A_Primer_on_RFID.pdf) (PDF).
32. Markus Hansen, Sebastian Meissner: Identification and Tracking of Individuals and Social Networks using the Electronic Product Code on RFID Tags (<https://tepin.aiki.de/blog/uploads/2007-hansen-meissner-tracking-epc-rfid-ifip.pdf>), IFIP Summer School, Karlstad, 2007, Slides (<https://tepin.aiki.de/blog/uploads/20070807-ifip-hansen-meissner-tracking-rfid-epc.pdf>).
33. "How to read data from rfid reader" (<http://0y3v.errandrunner.org/onbqfGf>). 0y3v.errandrunner.org. Retrieved 2019-04-22.
34. [2] (<http://blogs.pcworld.com/staffblog/archives/000798.html>) Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20110928040106/http://blogs.pcworld.com/staffblog/archives/000798.html>) September 28, 2011, at the Wayback Machine
35. [3] (http://blog.makezine.com/archive/2005/07/_defcon_rfid_wo.html) Archived (https://web.archive.org/web/20090207081350/http://blog.makezine.com/archive/2005/07/_defcon_rfid_wo.html) February 7, 2009, at the Wayback Machine
36. Katherine Albrecht; Liz McIntyre. "The METRO "Future Store" Special Report" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20050508083244/http://www.spychips.com/metro/overview.html>). Spychips. Archived from the original (<http://www.spychips.com/metro/overview.html>) on 2005-05-08. Retrieved 2005-05-05.
37. Richard M Stallman. "The WSIS in Tunis" (<http://www.fsf.org/blogs/rms/entry-20060125.html>). Fsf.org. Retrieved 2013-09-22.
38. "Radio Frequency Identification: Applications and Implications for Consumers" (<http://www.ftc.gov/os/2005/03/50308rfidrpt.pdf>) (PDF). Ftc.gov. March 2005. Retrieved 2013-09-22.
39. monochrom. "R F I D" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20100220122421/http://www.monochrom.at/rfid/>). Archived from the original (<http://www.monochrom.at/rfid/>) on 2010-02-20. Retrieved 2007-01-04.
40. Iain Thomson in San Francisco. "Hacker clones passports in drive-by RFID heist – V3.co.uk – formerly vnunet.com" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20100324060524/http://www.v3.co.uk/vnunet/news/2235666/hackers-clones-passports-drive>). V3.co.uk. Archived from the original (<http://www.v3.co.uk/vnunet/news/2235666/hackers-clones-passports-drive>) on 2010-03-24. Retrieved 2010-04-24.
41. "Human chips more than skin-deep | Tech News on ZDNet" (https://web.archive.org/web/20100324122642/http://news.zdnet.com/2100-9584_22-138001.html). News.zdnet.com. Archived from the original (http://news.zdnet.com/2100-9584_22-138001.html) on 2010-03-24. Retrieved 2010-04-24.
42. Katherine Albrecht; Liz McIntyre (2005). Spychips: how major corporations and government plan to track your every move with RFID (<https://books.google.com/books?id=YDxDuMYVJdcC&q=RFID+Government&pg=PR9>). Thomas Nelson Inc. ISBN 978-1-59555-020-0.
43. "FAQ on RFID and RFID privacy" (<http://www.emc.com/emc-plus/rsa-labs/research-areas/faq-on-rfid-and-rfid-privacy.htm#13>). rsa.com. Retrieved 2015-03-23.
44. "Declara | Your Personal Knowledge Engine" (<https://declara.com/content/kaZAL635>). declara.com. Retrieved 2019-04-22.
45. "EPC™ Radio-Frequency Identity Protocols Generation-2 UHF RFID, Version 2.0.0" (http://www.gs1.org/sites/default/files/docs/epc/uhfc1g2_2_0_0_standard_20131101.pdf) (PDF). GS1.org. November 2013. Retrieved 23 March 2015.
46. "EPC Gen 2 FAQ" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20150320225151/http://www.smartcardalliance.org/publications-epc-gen2-faq/>). Smart Card Alliance. July 2006. Archived from the original (<http://www.smartcardalliance.org/publications-epc-gen2-faq/>) on 2015-03-20. Retrieved 2015-03-25.
47. JEDEC Standard JESD22-B117A. [" Solder Ball Shear "]. JEDEC Solid State Technology Association. 2006.
48. G. Wu et al. "Study on the shear strength degradation of ACA joints induced by different hygrothermal aging conditions " (<https://www.sciencedirect.com/science/article/pii/S0026271413001637>). Microelectronics Reliability. 2013.

External links

- An open source RFID library used as door opener (<https://www.codeproject.com/Articles/1096861/DIY-electronic-RFID-Door-Lock-with-Battery-Backup>)
- UHF regulations overview by GS1 (http://www.gs1.org/docs/epc/UHF_Regulations.pdf)
- What is RFID? Educational video by The RFID Network (<https://web.archive.org/web/20100530071726/http://rfid.net/basics>)
- How RFID Works (<http://www.howstuffworks.com/rfid.htm>) at HowStuffWorks

- Privacy concerns and proposed privacy legislation (<http://www.privacyrights.org/ar/RFIDposition.htm>)
 - RFID (https://curlie.org/Society/Issues/Science_and_Technology/RFID/) at Curlie
 - What is RFID? – animated explanation (<https://web.archive.org/web/20120322194318/http://www.explaniam.com/en/channels/technology/detail/what-is-rfid>)
 - Hardgrave, Bill C.; Aloysius, John; Goyal, Sandeep (2009). "Does RFID improve inventory accuracy? A preliminary analysis". International Journal of RF Technologies: Research and Applications. 1 (1): 45–56. doi:10.1080/17545730802338333 (<https://doi.org/10.1080%2F17545730802338333>).
 - IEEE Council on RFID (<http://www.ieee-rfid.org/>)
 - Proximity cards (<https://hundnet.com/proximity-cards/>)
-

Retrieved from "https://en.wikipedia.org/w/index.php?title=Radio-frequency_identification&oldid=1028861131"

This page was last edited on 16 June 2021, at 12:53 (UTC).

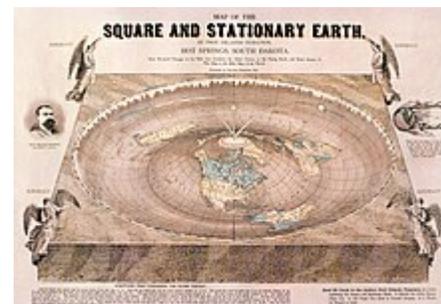

Text is available under the Creative Commons Attribution-ShareAlike License; additional terms may apply. By using this site, you agree to the Terms of Use and Privacy Policy. Wikipedia® is a registered trademark of the Wikimedia Foundation, Inc., a non-profit organization.

Flat Earth

The flat Earth model is an archaic conception of Earth's shape as a plane or disk. Many ancient cultures subscribed to a flat Earth cosmography, including Greece until the classical period (323 BC), the Bronze Age and Iron Age civilizations of the Near East until the Hellenistic period (31 BC), India until the Gupta period (early centuries AD), and China until the 17th century.

The idea of a spherical Earth appeared in ancient Greek philosophy with Pythagoras (6th century BC), although most pre-Socratics (6th–5th century BC) retained the flat Earth model. In the early 4th century BC Plato wrote about a spherical Earth, and by about 330 BC his former student, Aristotle, had provided strong empirical evidence for this. Knowledge of the Earth's global shape then gradually began to spread beyond the Hellenistic world.^{[1][2][3][4]}

Despite the scientific fact of Earth's sphericity, pseudoscientific^[5] flat Earth conspiracy theories are espoused by modern flat Earth societies and, increasingly, by unaffiliated individuals using social media.^{[6][7]}

Flat Earth map drawn by Orlando Ferguson in 1893. The map contains several references to biblical passages as well as various jabs at the "Globe Theory".

Contents

History

Belief in flat Earth

West Asia

Greece

Northern Europe

East Asia

Alternate or mixed theories

Greece: spherical Earth

South Asia

Early Christian Church

Europe: Early Middle Ages

Europe: Late Middle Ages

Middle East: Islamic scholars

Ming Dynasty in China

Myth of flat-Earth prevalence

Modern flat-Earthers

Flat Earth Society

Internet-era resurgence

Conspiracy theory

Cultural references

See alsoReferencesBibliographyFurther reading*External links

History

Belief in flat Earth

West Asia

In early Egyptian^[8] and Mesopotamian thought, the world was portrayed as a disk floating in the ocean. A similar model is found in the Homeric account from the 8th century BC in which "Okeanos, the personified body of water surrounding the circular surface of the Earth, is the begetter of all life and possibly of all gods."^[9]

The Pyramid Texts and Coffin Texts of ancient Egypt show a similar cosmography; Nun (the Ocean) encircled nbwt ("dry lands" or "Islands").^{[10][11][12]}

The Israelites also imagined the Earth to be a disc floating on water with an arched firmament above it that separated the Earth from the heavens.^[13] The sky was a solid dome with the Sun, Moon, planets, and stars embedded in it.^[14]

Imago Mundi Babylonian map, the oldest known world map, 6th century BC Babylonia

Greece

Poets

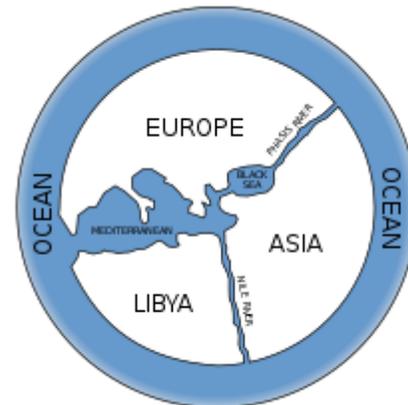

Both Homer^[15] and Hesiod^[16] described a disc cosmography on the Shield of Achilles.^{[17][18]} This poetic tradition of an Earth-encircling (gaiakhos) sea (Oceanus) and a disc also appears in Stasinus of Cyprus,^[19] Mimnermus,^[20] Aeschylus,^[21] and Apollonius Rhodius.^[22]

Homer's description of the disc cosmography on the shield of Achilles with the encircling ocean is repeated far later in Quintus Smyrnaeus' Posthomerica (4th century AD), which continues the narration of the Trojan War.^[23]

Philosophers

Several pre-Socratic philosophers believed that the world was flat: Thales (c. 550 BC) according to several sources,^[25] and Leucippus (c. 440 BC) and Democritus (c. 460–370 BC) according to Aristotle.^{[26][27][28]}

Thales thought that the Earth floated in water like a log.^[29] It has been argued, however, that Thales actually believed in a round Earth.^{[30][31]} Anaximander (c. 550 BC) believed that the Earth was a short cylinder with a flat, circular top that remained stable because it was the same distance from all things.^{[32][33]} Anaximenes of Miletus believed that "the Earth is flat and rides on air; in the same way the Sun and the Moon and the other heavenly bodies, which are all fiery, ride the air because of their flatness".^[34] Xenophanes of Colophon (c. 500 BC) thought that the Earth was flat, with its upper side touching the air, and the lower side extending without limit.^[35]

Possible rendering of Anaximander's world map^[24]

Belief in a flat Earth continued into the 5th century BC. Anaxagoras (c. 450 BC) agreed that the Earth was flat,^[36] and his pupil Archelaus believed that the flat Earth was depressed in the middle like a saucer, to allow for the fact that the Sun does not rise and set at the same time for everyone.^[37]

Historians

Hecataeus of Miletus believed that the Earth was flat and surrounded by water.^[38] Herodotus in his Histories ridiculed the belief that water encircled the world,^[39] yet most classicists agree that he still believed Earth was flat because of his descriptions of literal "ends" or "edges" of the Earth.^[40]

Northern Europe

The ancient Norse and Germanic peoples believed in a flat Earth cosmography with the Earth surrounded by an ocean, with the axis mundi, a world tree (Yggdrasil), or pillar (Irminsul) in the centre.^{[41][42]} In the world-encircling ocean sat a snake called Jormungandr.^[43] The Norse creation account preserved in Gylfaginning (VIII) states that during the creation of the Earth, an impassable sea was placed around it:^[44]

And Jafnhárr said: "Of the blood, which ran and welled forth freely out of his wounds, they made the sea, when they had formed and made firm the Earth together, and laid the sea in a ring round. about her; and it may well seem a hard thing to most men to cross over it."

The late Norse Konungs skuggsjá, on the other hand, explains Earth's shape as a sphere:^[45]

If you take a lighted candle and set it in a room, you may expect it to light up the entire interior, unless something should hinder, though the room be quite large. But if you take an apple and hang it close to the flame, so near that it is heated, the apple will darken nearly half the room or even more. However, if you hang the apple near the wall, it will not get hot; the candle will light up the whole house; and the shadow on the wall where the apple hangs will be scarcely half as large as the apple itself. From this you may infer that the Earth-circle is round like a ball and not equally near the sun at every point. But where the curved surface lies nearest the sun's path, there will the greatest heat be; and some of the lands that lie continuously under the unbroken rays cannot be inhabited.

East Asia

In ancient China, the prevailing belief was that the Earth was flat and square, while the heavens were round,^[46] an assumption virtually unquestioned until the introduction of European astronomy in the 17th century.^{[47][48][49]} The English sinologist Cullen emphasizes the point that there was no concept of a round Earth in ancient Chinese astronomy:^[50]

Chinese thought on the form of the Earth remained almost unchanged from early times until the first contacts with modern science through the medium of Jesuit missionaries in the seventeenth century. While the heavens were variously described as being like an umbrella covering the Earth (the Kai Tian theory), or like a sphere surrounding it (the Hun Tian theory), or as being without substance while the heavenly bodies float freely (the Hsüan yeh theory), the Earth was at all times flat, although perhaps bulging up slightly.

The model of an egg was often used by Chinese astronomers such as Zhang Heng (78–139 AD) to describe the heavens as spherical:^[51]

The heavens are like a hen's egg and as round as a crossbow bullet; the Earth is like the yolk of the egg, and lies in the centre.

This analogy with a curved egg led some modern historians, notably Joseph Needham, to conjecture that Chinese astronomers were, after all, aware of the Earth's sphericity. The egg reference, however, was rather meant to clarify the relative position of the flat Earth to the heavens:^[52]

In a passage of Zhang Heng's cosmogony not translated by Needham, Zhang himself says: "Heaven takes its body from the Yang, so it is round and in motion. Earth takes its body from the Yin, so it is flat and quiescent". The point of the egg analogy is simply to stress that the Earth is completely enclosed by Heaven, rather than merely covered from above as the Kai Tian describes. Chinese astronomers, many of them brilliant men by any standards, continued to think in flat-Earth terms until the seventeenth century; this surprising fact might be the starting-point for a re-examination of the apparent facility with which the idea of a spherical Earth found acceptance in fifth-century BC Greece.

Further examples cited by Needham supposed to demonstrate dissenting voices from the ancient Chinese consensus actually refer without exception to the Earth being square, not to it being flat.^[53] Accordingly, the 13th-century scholar Li Ye, who argued that the movements of the round heaven would be hindered by a square Earth,^[46] did not advocate a spherical Earth, but rather that its edge should be rounded off so as to be circular.^[54] However, Needham disagrees, affirming that Li Ye believed the Earth to be spherical, similar in shape to the heavens but much smaller.^[55] This was preconceived by the 4th-century scholar Yu Xi, who argued for the infinity of outer space surrounding the Earth and that the latter could be either square or round, in accordance to the shape of the heavens.^[56] When Chinese geographers of the 17th century, influenced by European cartography and astronomy, showed the Earth

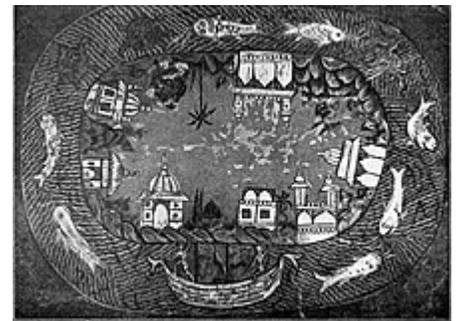

Illustration based on that of a 12th-century Asian cosmographer

as a sphere that could be circumnavigated by sailing around the globe, they did so with formulaic terminology previously used by Zhang Heng to describe the spherical shape of the Sun and Moon (i.e. that they were as round as a crossbow bullet).^[57]

As noted in the book Huainanzi,^[58] in the 2nd century BC, Chinese astronomers effectively inverted Eratosthenes' calculation of the curvature of the Earth to calculate the height of the Sun above the Earth. By assuming the Earth was flat, they arrived at a distance of 100 000 li (approximately 200 000 km). The Zhoubi Suanjing also discusses how to determine the distance of the Sun by measuring the length of noontime shadows at different latitudes, a method similar to Eratosthenes' measurement of the circumference of the Earth, but the Zhoubi Suanjing assumes that the Earth is flat.^[59]

Alternate or mixed theories

Greece: spherical Earth

Pythagoras in the 6th century BC and Parmenides in the 5th century stated that the Earth is spherical,^[60] and this view spread rapidly in the Greek world. Around 330 BC, Aristotle maintained on the basis of physical theory and observational evidence that the Earth was spherical, and reported an estimate of its circumference.^[61] The Earth's circumference was first determined around 240 BC by Eratosthenes.^[62] By the 2nd century AD, Ptolemy had derived his maps from a globe and developed the system of latitude, longitude, and climes. His Almagest was written in Greek and only translated into Latin in the 11th century from Arabic translations.

Semi-circular shadow of Earth on the Moon during a partial lunar eclipse

Lucretius (1st century BC) opposed the concept of a spherical Earth, because he considered that an infinite universe had no center towards which heavy bodies would tend. Thus, he thought the idea of animals walking around topsy-turvy under the Earth was absurd.^{[63][64]} By the 1st century AD, Pliny the Elder was in a position to claim that everyone agreed on the spherical shape of Earth,^[65] though disputes continued regarding the nature of the antipodes, and how it is possible to keep the ocean in a curved shape.

South Asia

The Vedic texts depict the cosmos in many ways.^{[66][67]} One of the earliest Indian cosmological texts picture the Earth as one of a stack of flat disks.^[68]

In the Vedic texts, Dyaus (heaven) and Prithvi (Earth) are compared to wheels on an axle, yielding a flat model. They are also described as bowls or leather bags, yielding a concave model.^[69] According to Macdonell: "the conception of the Earth being a disc surrounded by an ocean does not appear in the Samhitas. But it was naturally regarded as circular, being compared with a wheel (10.89) and expressly called circular (parimandala) in the Shatapatha Brahmana."^[70]

By about the 5th century CE, the siddhanta astronomy texts of South Asia, particularly of Aryabhata, assume a spherical Earth as they develop mathematical methods for quantitative astronomy for calendar and time keeping.^[71]

The medieval Indian texts called the Puranas describe the Earth as a flat-bottomed, circular disk with concentric oceans and continents.^{[69][72]} This general scheme is present not only in the Hindu cosmologies, but also in Buddhist and Jain cosmologies of South Asia.^[69] However, some Puranas include other models. For example, the fifth canto of the Bhagavata Purana, includes sections that describe the Earth both as flat and spherical.^{[73][74]}

An image of Thorntonbank Wind Farm (near the Belgian coast) with the lower parts of the more distant towers increasingly hidden by the horizon, demonstrating the curvature of the Earth

Early Christian Church

During the early period of the Christian Church, the spherical view continued to be widely held, with some notable exceptions.^[75] Athenagoras, an eastern Christian writing around the year 175 CE, said that the Earth was spherical.^[76] Methodius (c. 290 AD), an eastern Christian writing against "the theory of the Chaldeans and the Egyptians" said: "Let us first lay bare ... the theory of the Chaldeans and the Egyptians. They say that the circumference of the universe is likened to the turnings of a well-rounded globe, the Earth being a central point. They say that since its outline is spherical, ... the Earth should be the center of the universe, around which the heaven is whirling."^[76] Lactantius, a western Christian writer and advisor to the first Christian Roman Emperor, Constantine, writing sometime between 304–313 CE, ridiculed the notion of antipodes and the philosophers who fancied that "the universe is round like a ball. They also thought that heaven revolves in accordance with the motion of the heavenly bodies. ... For that reason, they constructed brass globes, as though after the figure of the universe."^{[77][76]} Arnobius, another eastern Christian writing sometime around 305 CE, described the round Earth: "In the first place, indeed, the world itself is neither right nor left. It has neither upper nor lower regions, nor front nor back. For whatever is round and bounded on every side by the circumference of a solid sphere, has no beginning or end ..."^[76]

The influential theologian and philosopher Saint Augustine, one of the four Great Church Fathers of the Western Church, similarly objected to the "fable" of antipodes:^[78]

But as to the fable that there are Antipodes, that is to say, men on the opposite side of the Earth, where the sun rises when it sets to us, men who walk with their feet opposite ours that is on no ground credible. And, indeed, it is not affirmed that this has been learned by historical knowledge, but by scientific conjecture, on the ground that the Earth is suspended within the concavity of the sky, and that it has as much room on the one side of it as on the other: hence they say that the part that is beneath must also be inhabited. But they do not remark that, although it be supposed or scientifically demonstrated that the world is of a round and spherical form, yet it does not follow that the other side of the Earth is bare of water; nor even, though it be bare, does it immediately follow that it is peopled. For Scripture, which proves the truth of its historical statements by the accomplishment of its prophecies, gives no false information; and it is too absurd to say, that some men might have taken ship and traversed the whole wide ocean, and crossed from this side of the world to the other, and that thus even the inhabitants of that distant region are descended from that one first man.

Some historians do not view Augustine's scriptural commentaries as endorsing any particular cosmological model,^[79] but while the view that Augustine shared the common view of his contemporaries that the Earth is spherical, in line with his endorsement of science in De Genesi ad

litteram,^[80] is still occasionally challenged,^[81] most scholars agree that "Augustine's acceptance of the earth's spherical shape [is] a well-established fact".^[82]

Diodorus of Tarsus, a leading figure in the School of Antioch and mentor of John Chrysostom, may have argued for a flat Earth; however, Diodorus' opinion on the matter is known only from a later criticism.^[83] Chrysostom, one of the four Great Church Fathers of the Eastern Church and Archbishop of Constantinople, explicitly espoused the idea, based on scripture, that the Earth floats miraculously on the water beneath the firmament.^[84] Athanasius the Great, Church Father and Patriarch of Alexandria, expressed a similar view in Against the Heathen.^[85]

Christian Topography (547) by the Alexandrian monk Cosmas Indicopleustes, who had traveled as far as Sri Lanka and the source of the Blue Nile, is now widely considered the most valuable geographical document of the early medieval age, although it received relatively little attention from contemporaries. In it, the author repeatedly expounds the doctrine that the universe consists of only two places, the Earth below the firmament and heaven above it. Carefully drawing on arguments from scripture, he describes the Earth as a rectangle, 400 days' journey long by 200 wide, surrounded by four oceans and enclosed by four massive walls which support the firmament. The spherical Earth theory is contemptuously dismissed as "pagan".^{[86][87][88]}

Cosmas Indicopleustes' world view – flat Earth in a Tabernacle

Severian, Bishop of Gabala (d. 408), wrote that the Earth is flat and the Sun does not pass under it in the night, but "travels through the northern parts as if hidden by a wall".^[89] Basil of Caesarea (329–379) argued that the matter was theologically irrelevant.^[90]

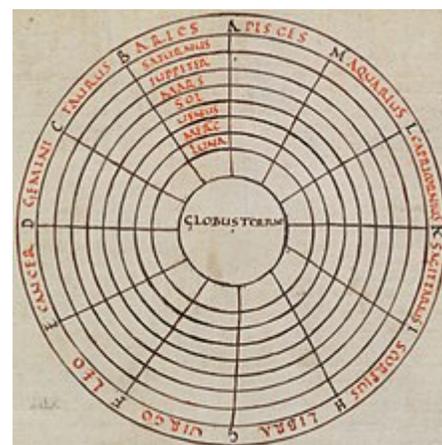

Europe: Early Middle Ages

Early medieval Christian writers in the early Middle Ages felt little urge to assume flatness of the Earth, though they had fuzzy impressions of the writings of Ptolemy and Aristotle, relying more on Pliny.^[91]

With the end of the Western Roman Empire, Western Europe entered the Middle Ages with great difficulties that affected the continent's intellectual production. Most scientific treatises of classical antiquity (in Greek) were unavailable, leaving only simplified summaries and compilations. In contrast, the Eastern Roman Empire did not fall, and it preserved the learning.^[92] Still, many textbooks of the Early Middle Ages supported the sphericity of the Earth in the western part of Europe.^[93]

Europe's view of the shape of the Earth in Late Antiquity and the Early Middle Ages may be best expressed by the writings of early Christian scholars:

Bishop Isidore of Seville (560–636) taught in his widely read encyclopedia, the Etymologies, diverse views such as that the Earth "resembles a wheel"^[94] resembling Anaximander in language and the map that he provided. This was widely interpreted as referring to a disc-shaped Earth.^{[95][96]} An illustration from Isidore's De Natura Rerum shows the five zones of the 9th-century Macrobian cosmic diagram showing the sphere of the Earth at the center (globus terrae)

Earth as adjacent circles. Some have concluded that he thought the Arctic and Antarctic zones were adjacent to each other.^[97] He did not admit the possibility of antipodes, which he took to mean people dwelling on the opposite side of the Earth, considering them legendary^[98] and noting that there was no evidence for their existence.^[99] Isidore's T and O map, which was seen as representing a small part of a spherical Earth, continued to be used by authors through the Middle Ages, e.g. the 9th-century bishop Rabanus Maurus, who compared the habitable part of the northern hemisphere (Aristotle's northern temperate clime) with a wheel. At the same time, Isidore's works also gave the views of sphericity, for example, in chapter 28 of De Natura Rerum, Isidore claims that the Sun orbits the Earth and illuminates the other side when it is night on this side. See French translation of De Natura Rerum.^[100] In his other work Etymologies, there are also affirmations that the sphere of the sky has Earth in its center and the sky being equally distant on all sides.^{[101][102]} Other researchers have argued these points as well.^{[91][103][104]} "The work remained unsurpassed until the thirteenth century and was regarded as the summit of all knowledge. It became an essential part of European medieval culture. Soon after the invention of typography it appeared many times in print."^[105] However, "The Scholastics – later medieval philosophers, theologians, and scientists – were helped by the Arabic translators and commentaries, but they hardly needed to struggle against a flat-Earth legacy from the early middle ages (500–1050). Early medieval writers often had fuzzy and imprecise impressions of both Ptolemy and Aristotle and relied more on Pliny, but they felt (with one exception), little urge to assume flatness."^[91]

St Vergilius of Salzburg (c. 700–784), in the middle of the 8th century, discussed or taught some geographical or cosmographical ideas that St Boniface found sufficiently objectionable that he complained about them to Pope Zachary. The only surviving record of the incident is contained in Zachary's reply, dated 748, where he wrote:^[106]

As for the perverse and sinful doctrine which he (Virgil) against God and his own soul has uttered – if it shall be clearly established that he professes belief in another world and other men existing beneath the Earth, or in (another) sun and moon there, thou art to hold a council, deprive him of his sacerdotal rank, and expel him from the Church.

Some authorities have suggested that the sphericity of the Earth was among the aspects of Vergilius's teachings that Boniface and Zachary considered objectionable.^{[107][108]} Others have considered this unlikely, and take the wording of Zachary's response to indicate at most an objection to belief in the existence of humans living in the antipodes.^{[109][110][111][112][113]} In any case, there is no record of any further action having been taken against Vergilius. He was later appointed bishop of Salzburg and was canonised in the 13th century.^[114]

12th-century T and O map representing the inhabited world as described by Isidore of Seville in his Etymologiae (chapter 14, de terra et partibus)

Isidore's portrayal of the five zones of the Earth

A possible non-literary but graphic indication that people in the Middle Ages believed that the Earth (or perhaps the world) was a sphere is the use of the orb (globus cruciger) in the regalia of many kingdoms and of the Holy Roman Empire. It is attested from the time of the Christian late-Roman emperor Theodosius II (423) throughout the Middle Ages; the Reichsapfel was used in 1191 at the coronation of emperor Henry VI. However the word orbis means "circle", and there is no record of a globe as a representation of the Earth since ancient times in the west until that of Martin Behaim in 1492. Additionally it could well be a representation of the entire "world" or cosmos.^[115]

A recent study of medieval concepts of the sphericity of the Earth noted that "since the eighth century, no cosmographer worthy of note has called into question the sphericity of the Earth".^[116] However, the work of these intellectuals may not have had significant influence on public opinion, and it is difficult to tell what the wider population may have thought of the shape of the Earth, if they considered the question at all.

12th-century depiction of a spherical Earth with the four seasons (book Liber Divinorum Operum by Hildegard of Bingen)

Europe: Late Middle Ages

Picture from a 1550 edition of On the Sphere of the World, the most influential astronomy textbook of 13th-century Europe

Hermannus Contractus (1013–1054) was among the earliest Christian scholars to estimate the circumference of Earth with Eratosthenes' method. St. Thomas Aquinas (1225–1274), the most widely taught theologian of the Middle Ages, believed in a spherical Earth; and he even took for granted his readers also knew the Earth is round.^[117] Lectures in the medieval universities commonly advanced evidence in favor of the idea that the Earth was a sphere.^[118]

Tattersall shows that in many vernacular works in 12th- and 13th-century French texts the Earth was considered "round like a table" rather than "round like an apple". "In virtually all the examples quoted ... from epics and from non-'historical' romances (that is, works of a less learned character) the actual form of words used suggests strongly a circle rather than a sphere", though he notes that even in these works the language is ambiguous.^[119]

Portuguese navigation down and around the coast of Africa in the latter half of the 1400s gave wide-scale observational evidence for Earth's sphericity. In these explorations, the Sun position moved more northward the further south the explorers travelled. Its position directly overhead at noon gave evidence for crossing the equator. These apparent solar motions in detail were more consistent with north–south curvature and a distant Sun, than with any flat-Earth explanation. The ultimate demonstration came when Ferdinand Magellan's expedition completed the first global circumnavigation in 1521. Antonio Pigafetta, one of the few survivors of the voyage, recorded the loss of a day in the course of the voyage, giving evidence for east–west curvature.

Middle East: Islamic scholars

The Abbasid Caliphate saw a great flowering of astronomy and mathematics in the 9th century AD. Muslim scholars of the past believed in a spherical Earth.^[120]

The Quran mentions that the Earth (al-arḍ) was "spread out".^[121] To this 12th-century commentary, the Tafsir al-Kabir (al-Razi) by Fakhr al-Din al-Razi states: "If it is said: Do the words 'And the Earth We spread out' indicate that it is flat? We would respond: Yes, because the Earth, even though it is round, is an enormous sphere, and each little part of this enormous sphere, when it is looked at, appears to be flat. As that is the case, this will dispel what they mentioned of confusion. The evidence for that is the verse in which Allah says (interpretation of the meaning): 'And the mountains as pegs' [an-Naba' 78:7]. He called them awtaad (pegs) even though these mountains may have large flat surfaces. And the same is true in this case."^[122]

The 11th-century scholar Ibn Hazm stated: "Evidence shows that the Earth is a sphere but public people say the opposite." He added: "None of those who deserve being Imams for Muslims has denied that Earth is round. And we have not received anything indicates a denial, not even a single word."^[123]

The 13th-century scholar Ibn Taymiyyah stated that the Earth is spherical and not flat. He stated that the Arabic word falak (Arabic: فَلَكَ) refers to that which is round. The word is used in Quran 21:33^[124] and Quran 36:40^[125] to say that the sun and moon, night and day, each float in a falak. Unlike the previous scholars, scholar Al-Suyuti (d. 1505 CE) stated that the Earth is flat in his commentary on Quran 88:20,^[126] which he said was the opinion of the scholars of the law.^[127]

Ming Dynasty in China

A spherical terrestrial globe was introduced to Yuan-era Khanbaliq (i.e. Beijing) in 1267 by the Persian astronomer Jamal ad-Din, but it is not known to have made an impact on the traditional Chinese conception of the shape of the Earth.^[128] As late as 1595, an early Jesuit missionary to China, Matteo Ricci, recorded that the Ming-dynasty Chinese say: "The Earth is flat and square, and the sky is a round canopy; they did not succeed in conceiving the possibility of the antipodes."^[54]

In the 17th century, the idea of a spherical Earth spread in China due to the influence of the Jesuits, who held high positions as astronomers at the imperial court.^[129] Matteo Ricci, in collaboration with Chinese cartographers and translator Li Zhizao, published the Kunyu Wanguo Quantu in 1602, the first Chinese world map based on European discoveries.^[130] The astronomical and geographical treatise Gezhicao (格致草) written in 1648 by Xiong Mingyu (熊明遇) explained that the Earth was spherical, not flat or square, and could be circumnavigated.^[129]

Myth of flat-Earth prevalence

Beginning in the 19th century, a historical myth arose which held that the predominant cosmological doctrine during the Middle Ages was that the Earth was flat. An early proponent of this myth was the American writer Washington Irving, who maintained that Christopher Columbus had to overcome the opposition of churchmen to gain sponsorship for his voyage of exploration. Later significant advocates of this view were John William Draper and Andrew Dickson White, who used it as a major element in their advocacy of the thesis^[131] that there was a long-lasting and essential conflict between science and religion.^[132] Some studies of the historical connections between science and religion have demonstrated that theories of their mutual antagonism ignore examples of their mutual support.^{[133][134]}

Illustration of the spherical Earth in a 14th-century copy of L'Image du monde (c. 1246)

Subsequent studies of medieval science have shown that most scholars in the Middle Ages, including those read by Christopher Columbus, maintained that the Earth was spherical.^[135]

Modern flat-Earthers

In the modern era, the pseudoscientific belief in a flat Earth has been expressed by a variety of individuals and groups:

- English writer Samuel Rowbotham (1816–1885), writing under the pseudonym "Parallax", produced in 1849 a pamphlet "Zetetic Astronomy" arguing for a flat Earth and published results of many experiments that tested the curvatures of water over a long-drainage ditch, followed by another, called The inconsistency of Modern Astronomy and its Opposition to the Scripture. One of his supporters, John Hampden, lost a bet to Alfred Russel Wallace in the famous Bedford Level experiment, which attempted to prove it. In 1877, Hampden produced a book A New Manual of Biblical Cosmography.^[136] Rowbotham also produced studies that purported to show that the effects of ships disappearing below the horizon could be explained by the laws of perspective in relation to the human eye.^[137] In 1883, he founded Zetetic Societies in England and New York, to which he shipped a thousand copies of Zetetic Astronomy.
- William Carpenter, a printer originally from Greenwich, was a supporter of Rowbotham. Carpenter published Theoretical Astronomy Examined and Exposed – Proving the Earth not a Globe in eight parts from 1864 under the name Common Sense.^[138] He later emigrated to Baltimore, where he published One Hundred Proofs the Earth is Not a Globe in 1885.^[139] He wrote: "There are rivers that flow for hundreds of miles towards the level of the sea without falling more than a few feet – notably, the Nile, which, in a thousand miles, falls but a foot. A level expanse of this extent is quite incompatible with the idea of the Earth's convexity. It is, therefore, a reasonable proof that Earth is not a globe", as well as: "If the Earth were a globe, a small model globe would be the very best – because the truest – thing for the navigator to take to sea with him. But such a thing as that is not known: with such a toy as a guide, the mariner would wreck his ship, of a certainty! This is a proof that Earth is not a globe."
- John Jasper, an American slave turned prolific preacher, and friend of Carpenter's, echoed his friend's sentiments in his most famous sermon "The Sun do move", preached over 250 times, always by invitation. In a written account of his sermon, published in The Richmond Whig of March 19, 1878, Jasper says he would frequently cite the verse "I saw four angels standing on the four corners of the earth"^[140] and follow up by arguing: "So we are living on a four-cornered earth; then, my friends, will you tell me how in the name of God can an earth with four corners be round!" In the same article he argued: "if the earth is like others say, who hold a different theory, peopled on the other side, those people would be obliged to walk on the ground with their feet upward like flies on the ceiling of a room".^[141]
- In Brockport, New York, in 1887, M. C. Flanders argued the case of a flat Earth for three nights against two scientific gentlemen defending sphericity. Five townsmen chosen as judges voted unanimously for a flat Earth at the end. The case was reported in the Brockport Democrat.^[142]
- Joseph W. Holden of Maine, a former justice of the peace, gave numerous lectures in New England and lectured on flat-Earth theory at the Columbian Exposition in Chicago. His fame stretched to North Carolina, where the Statesville Semi-weekly Landmark recorded at his death in 1900: "We hold to the doctrine that the Earth is flat ourselves and we regret exceedingly to learn that one of our members is dead."^[143]

- After Rowbotham's death, Lady Elizabeth Blount (Elizabeth de Sodington Blount, née Elizabeth Anne Mould Williams) created the Universal Zetetic Society in 1893 in England and created a journal called Earth not a Globe Review, which sold for twopence, as well as one called Earth, which only lasted from 1901 to 1904. She held that the Bible was the unquestionable authority on the natural world and argued that one could not be a Christian and believe the Earth is a globe. Well-known members included E. W. Bullinger of the Trinitarian Bible Society, Edward Haughton, senior moderator in natural science in Trinity College, Dublin and an archbishop. She repeated Rowbotham's experiments, generating some counter-experiments, but interest declined after the First World War.^[143] The movement gave rise to several books that argued for a flat, stationary Earth, including Terra Firma by David Wardlaw Scott.^[144]
- In 1898, during his solo circumnavigation of the world, Joshua Slocum encountered a group of flat-Earthers in Durban, South Africa. Three Boers, one of them a clergyman, presented Slocum with a pamphlet in which they set out to prove that the world was flat. Paul Kruger, President of the Transvaal Republic, advanced the same view: "You don't mean round the world, it is impossible! You mean in the world. Impossible!"^[145]
- From 1915 to 1942 Wilbur Glenn Voliva, who in 1906 took over the Christian Catholic Church, a Pentecostal sect that established a utopian community in Zion, Illinois, preached flat Earth doctrine. He used a photograph of a twelve-mile (19 km) stretch of the shoreline at Lake Winnebago, Wisconsin, taken three feet (91 cm) above the waterline to prove his point. When the airship Italia disappeared on an expedition to the North Pole in 1928, he warned the world's press that it had sailed over the edge of the world. He offered a $5000 award for proving that the Earth is not flat, under his own conditions.^[146] Teaching a globular Earth was banned in the Zion schools, and the message was transmitted on his WCB radio station.^[143]
- In 1956, Samuel Shenton set up the International Flat Earth Research Society (IFERS), better known as the Flat Earth Society from Dover, UK, as a direct descendant of the Universal Zetetic Society.
- Along with those who followed him, Frank Cherry (died 1963), the founder of the Black Hebrew Israelite religion, taught the existence of a flat Earth "surrounded by three layers of heaven."^[147]
- In 2018, astronomer Yaël Nazé analyzed the controversy over a Ph.D. dissertation proposed by a student at the University of Sfax in Tunisia, which defended a flat Earth, as well as a geocentric model of the solar system and a young Earth. The dissertation, which had not been approved by the committee overseeing environmental studies theses, had been made public and denounced in 2017 by Hafedh Ateb, a founder of the Tunisian Astronomical Society on his Facebook page.^[148]

Flat Earth Society

The International Flat Earth Research Society (IFERS), better known as the Flat Earth Society, was set up by Samuel Shenton in 1956, in Dover, UK, as a direct descendant of the Universal Zetetic Society. This was just before the Soviet Union launched the first artificial satellite, Sputnik; he responded: "Would sailing round the Isle of Wight prove that it were spherical? It is just the same for those satellites."

His primary aim was to reach children before they were convinced about a spherical Earth. Despite plenty of publicity, the space race eroded Shenton's support in Britain until 1967, when he started to become famous due to the Apollo program.^[143]

In 1972, Shenton's role was taken over by Charles K. Johnson, a correspondent from California, US. He incorporated the IFERS and steadily built it up to about 3000 members. He spent years examining the studies of flat- and round-Earth theories and proposed evidence of a conspiracy against flat Earth: "The idea of a spinning globe is only a conspiracy of error that Moses, Columbus, and FDR all fought..." His article was published in the magazine Science Digest in 1980. It goes on to state: "If it is a sphere, the surface of a large body of water must be curved. The Johnsons have checked the surfaces of Lake Tahoe and the Salton Sea without detecting any curvature."^[151]

The Society declined in the 1990s following a fire at its headquarters in California, and Johnson died in 2001.^[152] It was revived as a website in 2004 by Daniel Shenton (no relation to Samuel Shenton). He believes that no one has provided proof that the world is not flat.^[153]

Internet-era resurgence

In the Internet era, the proliferation of communications technology and social-media platforms such as YouTube,^[154] Facebook^[155] and Twitter have given individuals, famous^[156] or otherwise, a platform to spread pseudo-scientific ideas and build stronger followings. The flat-Earth conjecture has flourished in this environment.^{[6][7][157]} Social media and the internet, furthermore, have made it easier for like-minded theorists to connect with one another and mutually reinforce their beliefs. In other words, social media has had a "levelling effect", in that experts have less sway in the public mind than they used to.^[158]

YouTube had faced criticism for allowing the spread of misinformation and conspiracy theories through its platform. In 2019, YouTube stated that it was making changes in its software to reduce the distribution of videos based on conspiracy theories including flat Earth.^{[159][154][160]}

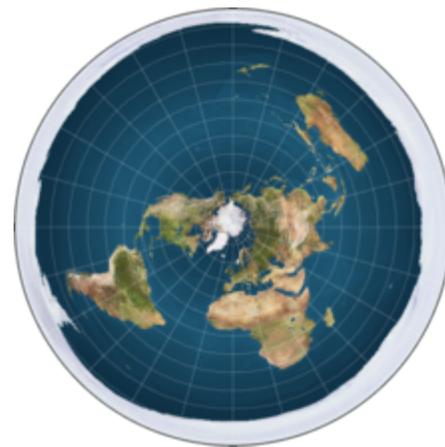

Organizations skeptical of fringe beliefs have occasionally performed tests to demonstrate the local curvature of the Earth. One of these, conducted by members of the Independent Investigations Group at the Salton Sea on June 10, 2018, was attended also by supporters of a flat Earth, and the encounter between the two groups was recorded by the National Geographic Explorer. This experiment successfully demonstrated the curvature of the Earth by the disappearance over distance of boat-based and shore-based targets.^{[161][162]}

Conspiracy theory

Members of the Flat Earth Society and other flat-Earthers claim that NASA and other government agencies conspire to fabricate evidence that the Earth is spherical.^[163] According to the most widely spread version of current flat-Earth theory, NASA is guarding the Antarctic ice wall that surrounds Earth.^[163] Flat-Earthers argue that NASA photoshops its satellite images, based on observations that the color of the oceans changes from image to image and that continents seem to be in different places.^[164] The publicly perpetuated image is kept up through a large-scale practice of "compartmentalization", according to which only a select number of individuals have knowledge about the truth.^[165]

Cultural references

The term flat-earth-man, used in a derogatory sense to mean anyone who holds ridiculously antiquated or impossible views, predates the more compact flat-earthier. It was recorded in 1908: "Fewer votes than one would have thought possible for any human candidate, were he even a flat-earth-man."^[166]

Azimuthal equidistant projections of the sphere like this one have also been co-opted as images of the flat Earth model depicting Antarctica as an ice wall^{[149][150]} surrounding a disk-shaped Earth.

According to the Oxford English Dictionary flat-Earther's first use is in 1934 in Punch magazine: "Without being a bigoted flat-earther, [Mercator] perceived the nuisance ... of fiddling about with globes ... in order to discover the South Seas."^[167]

See also

- List of topics characterized as pseudoscience
- Alderson disk
- Denialism
- Earth's rotation
- Geographical distance
- Hollow Earth
- Scientific mythology
- Scientific skepticism
- World Turtle

References

1. Continuation of Greek concept into Roman and medieval Christian thought: Reinhard Krüger: Materialien und Dokumente zur mittelalterlichen Erdkugeltheorie von der Spätantike bis zur Kolumbusfahrt (1492) (http://www.uni-stuttgart.de/lettres/krueger/forschungsvorhaben_erdkugeltheorie_biblio.html).
2. Direct adoption of the Greek concept by Islam: Ragep, F. Jamil: "Astronomy", in: Krämer, Gudrun (ed.) et al.: Encyclopaedia of Islam, THREE, Brill 2010, without page numbers.
3. Direct adoption by India: D. Pingree: "History of Mathematical Astronomy in India", Dictionary of Scientific Biography, Vol. 15 (1978), pp. 533–633 (554ff.); Glick, Thomas F., Livesey, Steven John, Wallis, Faith (eds.): "Medieval Science, Technology, and Medicine: An Encyclopedia", Routledge, New York 2005, ISBN 0-415-96930-1, p. 463.
4. Adoption by China via European science: Jean-Claude Martzloff, "Space and Time in Chinese Texts of Astronomy and of Mathematical Astronomy in the Seventeenth and Eighteenth Centuries" (<http://www.eastm.org/index.php/journal/article/viewFile/526/457>), Chinese Science 11 (1993–94): 66–92 (69) and Christopher Cullen, "A Chinese Eratosthenes of the Flat Earth: A Study of a Fragment of Cosmology in Huai Nan tzu 淮南子", Bulletin of the School of Oriental and African Studies, Vol. 39, No. 1 (1976), pp. 106–27 (107).
5. MacDougall, Robert. "Strange enthusiasms: a brief history of American pseudoscience" (<http://www.columbia.edu/cu/21stC/issue-3.4/macdougall.html>). Columbia University. Retrieved July 5, 2016.
6. Ambrose, Graham (7 July 2017). "These Coloradans say Earth is flat. And gravity's a hoax. Now, they're being persecuted" (<http://www.denverpost.com/2017/07/07/colorado-earth-flat-gravity-hoax/>). The Denver Post. Retrieved 19 August 2017.
7. Dure, Beau (20 January 2016). "Flat-Earthers are back: 'It's almost like the beginning of a new religion'" (<https://www.theguardian.com/science/2016/jan/20/flat-earth-believers-youtube-videos-conspiracy-theorists>). The Guardian. Retrieved 19 August 2017.
8. H. and H. A. Frankfort, J. A. Wilson, and T. Jacobsen, Before Philosophy (Baltimore: Penguin, 1949) 54.
9. Gottlieb, Anthony (2000). The Dream of Reason (<https://archive.org/details/dreamofreasonhis00anth/page/6>). Penguin. p. 6 (<https://archive.org/details/dreamofreasonhis00anth/page/6>). ISBN 978-0-393-04951-0.

10. Pyramid Texts, Utterance 366, 629a–29c: "Behold, thou art great and round like the Great Round; Behold, thou are bent around, and art round like the Circle which encircles the nbwt; Behold, thou art round and great like the Great Circle which sets." (Faulkner 1969, 120)
11. Ancient Near Eastern Texts, Pritchard, 1969, p. 374.
12. Coffin Texts, Spell 714.
13. Berlin, Adele (2011). "Cosmology and creation" (<https://books.google.com/books?id=hKAaJXvUaUoC&pg=PA189>). In Berlin, Adele; Grossman, Maxine (eds.). The Oxford Dictionary of the Jewish Religion. Oxford University Press. ISBN 9780199730049.
14. Seely, Paul H. (1991). "The Firmament and the Water Above" (http://faculty.gordon.edu/hu/bi/Ted_Hil_debrandt/OTeSources/01-Genesis/Text/Articles-Books/Seely-Firmament-WTJ.pdf) (PDF). Westminster Theological Journal. 53: 227–40. Retrieved 2010-02-02.
15. Iliad, 28. 606.
16. The Shield of Heracles, 314–16, transl. Hugh G. Evelyn-White, 1914.
17. The shield of Achilles and the poetics of ekphrasis, Andrew Sprague Becker, Rowman & Littlefield, 1995, p. 148.
18. Professor of Classics (Emeritus) Mark W. Edwards in his The Iliad. A commentary (1991, p. 231) has noted of Homer's usage of the flat Earth disc in the Iliad: "Okeanos...surrounds the pictures on the shield and he surrounds the disc of the Earth on which men and women work out their lives". Quoted in The shield of Achilles and the poetics of ekphrasis, Andrew Sprague Becker, Rowman & Littlefield, 1995, p. 148
19. Stasinus of Cyprus wrote in his Cypria (lost, only preserved in fragment) that Oceanus surrounded the entire Earth: deep eddying Oceanus and that the Earth was flat with furthest bounds, these quotes are found preserved in Athenaeus, Deipnosophistae, VIII. 334B.
20. Mimnermus of Colophon (630BC) details a flat Earth model, with the sun (Helios) bathing at the edges of Oceanus that surround the Earth (Mimnermus, frg. 11)
21. Seven against Thebes, verse 305; Prometheus Bound, 1, 136; 530; 665 (which also describe the 'edges' of the Earth).
22. Apollonius Rhodius, in his Argonautica (3rd century BC) included numerous flat Earth references (IV. 590 ff): "Now that river, rising from the ends of the Earth, where are the portals and mansions of Nyx (Night), on one side bursts forth upon the beach of Okeanos."
23. Posthomerica (V. 14). "Here [on the shield of Achilles] Tethys' all-embracing arms were wrought, and Okeanos fathomless flow. The outrushing flood of Rivers crying to the echoing hills all round, to right, to left, rolled o'er the land." Translation by Way, A.S. 1913.
24. According to John Mansley Robinson, An Introduction to Early Greek Philosophy, Houghton and Mifflin, 1968.
25. Sambursky, Samuel (August 1987). The Physical World of the Greeks. Princeton University Press. p. 12. ISBN 9780691024110.
26. Burch, George Bosworth (1954). "The Counter-Earth". Osiris. Saint Catherines Press. 11 (1): 267–94. doi:10.1086/368583 (<https://doi.org/10.1086%2F368583>). S2CID 144330867 (<https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:144330867>).
27. De Fontaine, Didier (2002). "Flat worlds: Today and in antiquity" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20070825010821/http://www.mse.berkeley.edu/faculty/deFontaine/flatworlds.html>). Memorie della Società Astronomica Italiana. 1 (3): 257–62. Bibcode:2002MmSAI..73S.257D (<https://ui.adsabs.harvard.edu/abs/2002MmSAI..73S.257D>). Archived from the original (<http://www.mse.berkeley.edu/faculty/deFontaine/flatworlds.html>) on August 25, 2007. Retrieved August 3, 2007.
28. Aristotle, De Caelo, 294b13–21
29. Aristotle, De Caelo, II. 13. 3; 294a 28: "Many others say the Earth rests upon water. This... is the oldest theory that has been preserved, and is attributed to Thales of Miletus."

30. O'Grady, Patricia F. (2002). Thales of Miletus: the beginnings of Western science and philosophy. Aldershot: Ashgate. pp. 87–107. ISBN 9780754605331.
31. Pseudo-Plutarch. Placita Philosophorum (<https://www.perseus.tufts.edu/hopper/text?doc=Perseus%3Atext%3A2008.01.0404%3Abook%3D3%3Achapter%3D10>). Perseus Digital Library. V. 3, Ch. 10. Retrieved December 24, 2014.
32. Hippolytus, Refutation of all Heresies, i. 6.
33. Anaximander; Fairbanks (editor and translator), Arthur. "Fragments and Commentary" (<http://history.hanover.edu/texts/presoc/anaximan.html>). The Hanover Historical Texts Project. (Plut., Strom. 2; Dox. 579).
34. Hippolytus, Refutation of all Heresies, i. 7; Cf. Aristotle, De Caelo, 294b13–21.
35. Xenophanes DK 21B28, quoted in Achilles, Introduction to Aratus 4.
36. Diogenes Laërtius, ii. 8.
37. Hippolytus, Refutation of all Heresies, i. 9.
38. FGrH F 18a.
39. Herodotus knew of the conventional view, according to which the river Ocean runs around a circular flat Earth (4.8), and of the division of the world into three – Jacoby, RE Suppl. 2.352 ff, yet rejected this personal belief (Histories, 2. 21; 4. 8; 4. 36).
40. The history of Herodotus, George Rawlinson, Appleton and company, 1889, p. 409.
41. The Sacred Tree in Religion and Myth, Mrs. J. H. Philpot, Courier Dover Publications, 2004, p. 113.
42. "The world was a flat disk, with the Earth in the center and the sea all around. Thus the serpent is about as far away from the center, where men and gods lived" (Norse mythology: a guide to the Gods, heroes, rituals, and beliefs, John Lindow, Oxford University Press, 2002) p. 253.
43. One of the earliest literary references to the world encircling water snake comes from Bragi Boddason who lived in the 9th century, in his Ragnarsdrápa (XIV).
44. "Gylfaginning" (<http://www.sacred-texts.com/neu/pre/pre04.htm>). Sacred-texts.com. Retrieved February 9, 2013.
45. "The King's Mirror" (<http://www.mediumaevum.com/75years/mirror/sec1.html>). mediumaevum.com. Retrieved November 6, 2013.
46. Needham, Joseph (1986). Science and Civilization in China: Volume 3. Taipei: Caves Books, Ltd. p. 498.
47. Martzloff, Jean-Claude (1993–1994). "Space and Time in Chinese Texts of Astronomy and of Mathematical Astronomy in the Seventeenth and Eighteenth Centuries" (<http://www.eastm.org/index.php/journal/article/viewFile/526/457>). Chinese Science (11): 66–92 [p. 69]. JSTOR 43290474 (<https://www.jstor.org/stable/43290474>).
48. Cullen, Christopher (1980). "Joseph Needham on Chinese Astronomy". Past & Present. 87 (1): 39–53 [pp. 42, 49]. doi:10.1093/past/87.1.39 (<https://doi.org/10.1093%2Fpast%2F87.1.39>). JSTOR 650565 (<https://www.jstor.org/stable/650565>).
49. Cullen, Christopher (1976). "A Chinese Eratosthenes of the Flat Earth: A Study of a Fragment of Cosmology in Huai Nan tzu 淮南子". Bulletin of the School of Oriental and African Studies. 39 (1): 106–27 [pp. 107–09]. doi:10.1017/S0041977X00052137 (<https://doi.org/10.1017%2FS0041977X00052137>).
50. Cullen, Christopher (1976). "A Chinese Eratosthenes of the Flat Earth: A Study of a Fragment of Cosmology in Huai Nan tzu 淮南子". Bulletin of the School of Oriental and African Studies. 39 (1): 106–27 [p. 107]. doi:10.1017/S0041977X00052137 (<https://doi.org/10.1017%2FS0041977X00052137>).
51. Needham, Joseph (1959). Science and Civilisation in China. 3. Cambridge University Press. p. 219. ISBN 978-0-521-05801-8.

52. Cullen, Christopher (1980). "Joseph Needham on Chinese Astronomy". Past & Present. 87 (87): 39–53 [p. 42]. doi:10.1093/past/87.1.39 (<https://doi.org/10.1093/past/87.1.39>). JSTOR 650565 (<https://www.jstor.org/stable/650565>).
53. Cullen, Christopher (1976). "A Chinese Eratosthenes of the Flat Earth: A Study of a Fragment of Cosmology in Huai Nan tzu 淮南子". Bulletin of the School of Oriental and African Studies. 39 (1): 106–27 [p. 108]. doi:10.1017/S0041977X00052137 (<https://doi.org/10.1017/S0041977X00052137>).
54. Cullen, Christopher (1976). "A Chinese Eratosthenes of the Flat Earth: A Study of a Fragment of Cosmology in Huai Nan tzu 淮南子". Bulletin of the School of Oriental and African Studies. 39 (1): 106–27 [p. 109]. doi:10.1017/S0041977X00052137 (<https://doi.org/10.1017/S0041977X00052137>).
55. Needham, Joseph; Wang, Ling. (1995) [1959]. Science and Civilization in China: Mathematics and the Sciences of the Heavens and the Earth, vol. 3, reprint edition. Cambridge: Cambridge University Press. ISBN 0-521-05801-5, p. 498.
56. Needham, Joseph; Wang, Ling. (1995) [1959]. Science and Civilization in China: Mathematics and the Sciences of the Heavens and the Earth, vol. 3, reprint edition. Cambridge: Cambridge University Press. ISBN 0-521-05801-5, pp. 220, 498.
57. Needham, Joseph; Wang, Ling. (1995) [1959]. Science and Civilization in China: Mathematics and the Sciences of the Heavens and the Earth, vol. 3, reprint edition. Cambridge: Cambridge University Press. ISBN 0-521-05801-5, pp. 227, 499.
58. Joseph Needham, p. 225.
59. Lloyd, G. E. R. (1996). Adversaries and Authorities: Investigations into ancient Greek and Chinese science. Cambridge: Cambridge University Press. pp. 59–60. ISBN 978-0-521-55695-8.
60. Dreyer, John Louis Emil (1953) [1905]. A History of Astronomy from Thales to Kepler (<https://archive.org/details/historyofplaneta00dreyuoft>). New York, NY: Dover Publications. pp. 20 (<https://archive.org/stream/historyofplaneta00dreyuoft#page/20/mode/1up>), 37–38 (<https://archive.org/stream/historyofplaneta00dreyuoft#page/37/mode/1up>). ISBN 978-0-486-60079-6.
61. On the Heavens, Book ii Chapter 14. Lloyd, G. E. R. (1968). Aristotle: The Growth and Structure of His Thought (<https://archive.org/details/aristotlegrowths0000lloy/page/162>). Cambridge Univ. Press. pp. 162–64 (<https://archive.org/details/aristotlegrowths0000lloy/page/162>). ISBN 978-0-521-07049-2.
62. Van Helden, Albert (1985). Measuring the Universe: Cosmic Dimensions from Aristarchus to Halley. University of Chicago Press. pp. 4–5. ISBN 978-0-226-84882-2.
63. Sedley, David N. (2003). Lucretius and the Transformation of Greek Wisdom. Cambridge: Cambridge University Press. pp. 78–82. ISBN 978-0-521-54214-2.
64. Lucretius, De rerum natura, 1.1052–82.
65. Natural History, 2.64.
66. Tull, Herman Wayne (1989). The Vedic Origins of Karma: Cosmos as Man in Ancient Indian Myth and Ritual (<https://books.google.com/books?id=auqGWz2l9pYC&pg=PA47>). State University of New York Press. pp. 47–49. ISBN 978-0-7914-0094-4. "The Vedic texts contain several depictions of the shape of the cosmos. The Rigveda alone contains two basic images of the cosmos: a bipartite cosmos, consisting of the two spheres of heavens and Earth, and a tripartite cosmos consisting of the three spheres of heavens and Earth (...)"
67. Sarma, K. V. (2013). Selin, Helaine (ed.). Encyclopaedia of the History of Science, Technology, and Medicine in Non-Western Cultures (<https://books.google.com/books?id=GzjpCAAQBAJ>). Springer Science & Business Media. pp. 114–15. ISBN 978-94-017-1416-7.
68. Plofker 2009, p. 52.
69. Gombrich, R. F. (1975). Blacker, Carmen; Loewe, Michael (eds.). Ancient Cosmologies (<https://archive.org/details/ancientcosmologi0000unse/page/110>). George Allen & Unwin. pp. 110–39 (<https://archive.org/details/ancientcosmologi0000unse/page/110>). ISBN 9780041000382.

70. A. A. Macdonell (1986). Vedic Mythology (<https://books.google.com/books?id=b7Meabtj8mcC&pg=PA9>). Motilal Banarsidass. p. 9. ISBN 978-81-208-1113-3.
71. Plofker (2009, pp. 50–53 (<https://books.google.com/books?id=DHvThPNp9yMC&pg=PA50>)).
72. D. Pingree: "History of Mathematical Astronomy in India", Dictionary of Scientific Biography, Vol. 15 (1978), pp. 533–633 (554ff.), Quote: "In the Purānas, the Earth is a flat-bottomed, circular disk, in the center of which is a lofty mountain, Meru. Surrounding Meru is the circular continent Jambūdvīpa, which is in turn surrounded by a ring of water known as the Salt Ocean. There follow alternating rings of land and sea until there are seven continents and seven oceans. In the southern quarter of Jambūdvīpa lies India–Bhāratavarsa."
73. Edelmann, Jonathan (2013). Gupta, Ravi M.; Valpey, Kenneth R. (eds.). The Bhagavata Purana: Sacred Text and Living Tradition (<https://books.google.com/books?id=eEPfrzAwO0sC&pg=PA58>). Columbia University Press. pp. 58–59. ISBN 978-0-231-53147-4.
74. Dimmitt, Cornelia; van Buitenen, J. A. B. (2012). Classical Hindu Mythology: A Reader in the Sanskrit Puranas (<https://books.google.com/books?id=re7CR2jKn3QC>). Temple University Press (1st Edition: 1977). pp. 4–5, 17–25, 46–47. ISBN 978-1-4399-0464-0.
75. Cormack, Lesley (2009). "Myth 3: That Medieval Christians Taught that the Earth was Flat". In Ronald Numbers (ed.). Galileo Goes to Jail and Other Myths About Science and Religion. Harvard University Press. pp. 30–31. ISBN 9780674057418.
76. Bercot, David (1998). A Dictionary of Early Christian Beliefs (https://books.google.com/books?id=jF_tPQAACAAJ). Massachusetts: Hendrickson Publishers. p. 222. ISBN 978-1565633575. "The world, being made spherical, is confined within the circles of heaven."
77. Lactantius, The Divine Institutes, Book III, Chapter XXIV (<http://www.ccel.org/ccel/schaff/anf07.iii.ii.iii.xxiv.html>), The Ante-Nicene Fathers, Vol VII, ed. Rev. Alexander Roberts and James Donaldson, American reprint of the Edinburgh edition (1979), William B. Eerdmans Publishing Co., Grand Rapids, MI, pp. 94–95.
78. De Civitate Dei, Book XVI, Chapter 9 – Whether We are to Believe in the Antipodes (<http://www.ccel.org/ccel/schaff/npnf102.iv.XVI.9.html>), translated by Rev. Marcus Dods; from the Christian Classics Ethereal Library at Calvin College.
79. Nothaft, C. P. E. (2011). "Augustine and the Shape of the Earth: A Critique of Leo Ferrari". Augustinian Studies. 42 (1): 33–48. doi:10.5840/augstudies20114213 (<https://doi.org/10.5840%2Faugstudies20114213>).
80. Lindberg, David C. (1986). "Science and the Early Church". In Lindberg, David C.; Numbers, Ronald L. (eds.). God & Nature: Historical Essays on the Encounter between Christianity and Science. Berkeley and Los Angeles: University of California Press. ISBN 978-0-520-05692-3.
81. name=Ferrari>Leo Ferrari, "Rethinking Augustine's Confessions, Thirty Years of Discoveries", Religious Studies and Theology (2000).
82. Nothaft, C. P. E. (2011), "Augustine and the Shape of the Earth: A Critique of Leo Ferrari", Augustinian Studies, 42 (1): 35, doi:10.5840/augstudies20114213 (<https://doi.org/10.5840%2Faugstudies20114213>)
83. J. L. E. Dreyer, A History of Planetary Systems from Thales to Kepler. (1906); unabridged republication as A History of Astronomy from Thales to Kepler (New York: Dover Publications, 1953).

84. St. John Chrysostom, Homilies Concerning the Statues, Homily IX, paras. 7–8, in A Select Library of the Nicene and Post-Nicene Fathers of the Christian Church, Series I, Vol IX, ed. Philip Schaff, American reprint of the Edinburgh edition (1978), Wm. B. Eerdmans Publishing Co., Grand Rapids, MI, p. 403 (<https://archive.org/stream/aselectlibrary09unknuoft#page/403/mode/1up>): "When therefore thou beholdest not a small pebble, but the whole earth borne upon the waters, and not submerged, admire the power of Him who wrought these marvellous things in a supernatural manner! And whence does this appear, that the earth is borne upon the waters? The prophet declares this when he says, 'He hath founded it upon the seas, and prepared it upon the floods.' And again: 'To him who hath founded the earth upon the waters.' What sayest thou? The water is not able to support a small pebble on its surface, and yet bears up the earth, great as it is; and mountains, and hills, and cities, and plants, and men, and brutes; and it is not submerged!"
85. St. Athanasius, Against the Heathen, Ch. 27 (<http://www.ccel.org/ccel/schaff/npnf204.vi.ii.i.xxvii.html>), Ch. 36 (<http://www.ccel.org/ccel/schaff/npnf204.vi.ii.iii.ii.html>), in A Select Library of the Nicene and Post-Nicene Fathers of the Christian Church, Series II, Vol IV, ed. Philip Schaff, American reprint of the Edinburgh edition (1978), Wm. B. Eerdmans Publishing Co., Grand Rapids, MI.
86. "Cosmas Indicopleustes, Christian Topography. Preface to the online edition" (https://www.ccel.org/ccel/pearse/morefathers/files/cosmas_00_0_eintro.htm). www.ccel.org.
87. "Cosmas Indicopleustes, Christian Topography (1897) Introduction" (http://www.tertullian.org/fathers/cosmas_00_2_intro.htm). www.tertullian.org.
88. White, Andrew Dickson (1896). "Ch. 2, part 1" (http://www.gutenberg.org/files/505/505-h/505-h.htm#link2H_4_0014). History of the Warfare of Science with Theology in Christendom. Retrieved 25 August 2015.
89. J. L. E. Dreyer (1906), A History of Planetary Systems (<https://books.google.com/books?id=BTI9AAAIAAAJ&pg=PA211>), (1906), pp. 211–212 (<http://www.roger-pearse.com/weblog/?p=3921>).
90. "Saint Basil the Great, Hexaemeron 9 – Homily IX – "The creation of terrestrial animals" Holy Innocents Orthodox Church" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20121030154740/http://www.reu.org/public/basil/bas011.txt>). Archived from the original (<http://www.reu.org/public/basil/bas011.txt>) on 30 October 2012. Retrieved 9 February 2013.
91. Russell, Jeffrey Burton (1991). Inventing the Flat Earth: Columbus and Modern Historians (<https://archive.org/details/inventingflatear00russ>). Praeger. pp. 86–87 (<https://archive.org/details/inventingflatear00russ/page/86>). ISBN 978-0-275-95904-3.
92. Lindberg, David. (1992) The Beginnings of Western Science. University of Chicago Press. Page 363.
93. B. Eastwood and G. Graßhoff, Planetary Diagrams for Roman Astronomy in Medieval Europe, ca. 800–1500, Transactions of the American Philosophical Society, 94, 3 (Philadelphia, 2004), pp. 49–50.
94. Stephen A. Barney, W. J. Lewis, J. A. Beach, Oliver Berghof (translators) (2010). "XIV ii 1" (<https://books.google.com/books?id=3ep502syZv8C>). The Etymologies of Isidore of Seville. Cambridge University Press. ISBN 978-0-521-83749-1.
95. W. G. Randles (2000). Geography, Cartography and Nautical Science in the Renaissance. UK, Ashgate Variorum. p. 15. ISBN 978-0-86078-836-2. "In other passages of the Etymologies, he writes of an orbis". Also in: Wolfgang Haase; Meyer Reinhold, eds. (1994). The Classical tradition and the Americas, vol. 1 (<https://books.google.com/books?id=I1LEmKPgJ8MC>). p. 15. ISBN 978-3-11-011572-7. Retrieved November 28, 2010.
96. Lyons, Jonathan (2009). The House of Wisdom. Bloomsbury. pp. 34–35. ISBN 978-1-58574-036-9.
97. Ernest Brehaut (1912). An Encyclopedist of the Dark Ages (<http://bestiary.ca/etexts/brehaut1912/brehaut1912.htm>). Columbia University.
98. Isidore, Etymologiae, XIV.v.17 (<http://www.thelatinlibrary.com/isidore/14.shtml>).
99. Isidore, Etymologiae, IX.ii.133 (<http://www.thelatinlibrary.com/isidore/9.shtml>).
00. Fontaine, Jacques (1960). Isidore de Seville: Traité de la Nature (in French). Bordeaux.

01. Isidore, Etymologiae, III. XXXII (https://books.google.com/books?id=igxC93_A-fIC&printsec=frontcover&cad=0#v=onepage).
02. Isidore, Etymologiae, XIV. I (<https://books.google.com/books?id=6jjsJ9NP6hYC&printsec=frontcover&cad=0#v=onepage>).
03. Wesley M. Stevens, "The Figure of the Earth in Isidore's De natura rerum", Isis, 71 (1980): 268–77. Stevens, Wesley M. (1980). "The Figure of the Earth in Isidore's De natura rerum". Isis. 71 (2): 268–77. doi:10.1086/352464 (<https://doi.org/10.1086%2F352464>). JSTOR 230175 (<https://www.jstor.org/stable/230175>). S2CID 133430429 (<https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:133430429>), page 274
04. Grant, Edward (1974). A Sourcebook in Medieval Science (Source Books in the History of the Sciences). Harvard University Press. ISBN 978-0-674-82360-0.
05. Thomas Glick; Stephen John Livesley; Faith Wallis (2005). Medieval Science Technology and Medicine, an Encyclopedia. NY: Taylor & Francis.
06. English translation by Laistner, M. L. W. (1966) [1931]. "Thought and Letters in Western Europe: A.D. 500 to 900" (<https://books.google.com/books?id=sI0OAAAQAQAJ>) (2nd ed.). Ithaca, NY: Cornell University Press: 184–185 (<https://books.google.com/books?id=sI0OAAAQAQAJ&pg=PA184>). The original Latin reads: De perversa autem et iniqua doctrina, quae contra Deum et animam suam locutus est, si clarificatum fuerit ita eum confiteri, quod alius mundus et alii homines sub terra seu sol et luna, hunc habito concilio ab ecclesia pelle sacerdotii honore privatum. (MGH, 1, 80, pp. 178–79 (<http://www.dmgh.de/de/fs1/object/goToPage/bsb00000525.html?pageNo=178&sortIndex=040%3A040%3A0001%3A010%3A00%3A00>)).
07. Laistner, (1966, p. 184 (<https://books.google.com/books?id=sI0OAAAQAQAJ&pg=PA184>)).
08. Simek (1996, p. 53 (<https://books.google.com.au/books?id=gXBSKZAIAdMC&pg=PA53>)).
09. Carey, John (1989). "Ireland and the Antipodes: The Heterodoxy of Virgil of Salzburg". Speculum. 64 (1): 1–10. doi:10.2307/2852184 (<https://doi.org/10.2307%2F2852184>). JSTOR 2852184 (<https://www.jstor.org/stable/2852184>). S2CID 162378383 (<https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:162378383>).
10. Kaiser, Christopher B. (1997). Creational Theology and the History of Physical Science: the Creationist Tradition from Basil to Bohr (https://books.google.com/books?id=BBgXuy_D8WEC). Leiden: Koninklijke Brill. p. 48 (https://books.google.com/books?id=BBgXuy_D8WEC&pg=PA48). ISBN 978-90-04-10669-7.
11. Hasse, Wolfgang; Reinhold, Meyer, eds. (1993). The Classical Tradition and the Americas (<https://books.google.com/books?id=l1LEmKpgJ8MC>). Berlin: Walter de Gruyter. ISBN 978-3-11-011572-7.
12. Moretti, Gabriella (1993). The Other World and the 'Antipodes'. The Myth of Unknown Countries between Antiquity and the Renaissance (<https://books.google.com/books?id=l1LEmKpgJ8MC&pg=241>). p. 265 (<https://books.google.com/books?id=l1LEmKpgJ8MC&pg=265>). ISBN 978-3-11-011572-7. In Hasse & Reinhold (1993, pp. 241–284).
13. Wright, Charles Darwin (1993). The Irish Tradition in Old English Literature (<https://books.google.com/books?id=0R0rL2luVQYC>). Cambridge, UK: Cambridge University Press. p. 41 (<https://books.google.com/books?id=0R0rL2luVQYC&pg=PA41>). ISBN 978-0-521-41909-3.
14. "Catholic Encyclopedia: St. Vergilius of Salzburg" (<http://www.newadvent.org/cathen/15353d.htm>). Newadvent.org. October 1, 1912. Retrieved February 9, 2013.
15. Fallacara, Giuseppe; Occhinegro, Ubaldo (2013), Manoscritto Voynich e Castel del Monte: Nuova chiave interpretativa del documento per inediti percorsi di ricerca (<https://books.google.com/books?id=MiNOAgAAQBAJ>) [The Voynich Manuscript and Castel del Monte: A new interpretive key to the document through unpublished courses of research] (in Italian), Gangemi Editore, p. 127 (<https://books.google.com.au/books?id=MiNOAgAAQBAJ&pg=PT128>), ISBN 9788849277494
16. Vogel, Klaus Anselm (1995). Sphaera terrae – das mittelalterliche Bild der Erde und die kosmographische Revolution (<http://webdoc.sub.gwdg.de/diss/2000/vogel/index.htm#inhalt>) (in German). PhD dissertation Georg-August-Universität Göttingen. p. 19.

17. "SUMMA THEOLOGIAE: The distinction of habits (Prima Secundae Partis, Q. 54)" (<https://www.newadvent.org/summa/2054.htm>). www.newadvent.org.
18. Grant, Edward (1994), Planets, Stars, & Orbs: The Medieval Cosmos, 1200–1687, Cambridge: Cambridge University Press, pp. 626–30, ISBN 978-0-521-56509-7
19. Jill Tattersall (1981). "The Earth, Sphere or Disc?". Modern Language Review. 76 (1): 31–46. doi:10.2307/3727009 (<https://doi.org/10.2307%2F3727009>). JSTOR 3727009 (<https://www.jstor.org/table/3727009>).
20. Ash-Shareef, Abdurrahim Khairullah Omar (15 November 2014). "Aspects of Ancient Muslim Scholars' Induction Drawn from the Holy Qur'an in Proving Earth is Spherical". Journal of Education and Practice. 5: 210–218. CiteSeerX 10.1.1.832.9945 (<https://citeseerx.ist.psu.edu/viewdoc/summary?doi=10.1.1.832.9945>).
21. For example, see verses Q15:19 [Quran 15:19 (<https://www.perseus.tufts.edu/hopper/text?doc=Perseus%3Atext%3A2002.02.0006%3Asura%3D15%3Averse%3D19>)], Q20:53 [Quran 20:53 (<https://www.perseus.tufts.edu/hopper/text?doc=Perseus%3Atext%3A2002.02.0006%3Asura%3D20%3Averse%3D53>)], Q50:7 [Quran 50:7 (<https://www.perseus.tufts.edu/hopper/text?doc=Perseus%3Atext%3A2002.02.0006%3Asura%3D50%3Averse%3D7>)], and Q51:48 [Quran 51:48 (<https://www.perseus.tufts.edu/hopper/text?doc=Perseus%3Atext%3A2002.02.0006%3Asura%3D51%3Averse%3D48>)].
22. Al-Razi, Fakhr al-Din. "19/131" (<https://archive.org/details/altafsirkabir19rzfauoft>). Al-Tafsir Al-Kabir. Misr al-Matba'ah al-Bahiyah al-Misriyah. Retrieved February 13, 2013.
23. Ash-Shareef, Abdurrahim Khairullah Omar (2014). "Aspects of Ancient Muslim Scholars' Induction Drawn from the Holy Qur'an in Proving Earth is Spherical". Zarqa University: 217.
24. Q21:33 (<https://www.islamawakened.com/quran/21/33/>), 50+ translations, islamawakened.com
25. Q36:40 (<https://www.islamawakened.com/quran/36/40/>), 50+ translations, islamawakened.com
26. Q88:20 (<https://www.islamawakened.com/quran/88/20/>), 50+ translations, islamawakened.com
27. "Tafsir al Jalalayn" (<https://www.altafsir.com/Tafasir.asp?tMadhNo=0&tTafsirNo=74&tSoraNo=88&tAyahNo=20&tDisplay=yes&UserProfile=0&LanguageId=2>). www.altafsir.com. Retrieved 24 April 2021.
28. Joseph Needham et al.: "Heavenly clockwork: the great astronomical clocks of medieval China", Antiquarian Horological Society, 2nd. ed., Vol. 1, 1986, ISBN 0-521-32276-6, p. 138.
29. Needham, Joseph (1986). Science and Civilization in China: Volume 3. Taipei: Caves Books, Ltd. p. 499.
30. Baran, Madeleine (December 16, 2009). "Historic map coming to Minnesota" (<http://minnesota.publicradio.org/display/web/2009/12/16/tulip-map/>). St. Paul, Minn.: Minnesota Public Radio. Retrieved 19 February 2018.
31. Russell, Jeffrey Burton (1991), Inventing the Flat Earth: Columbus and Modern Historians (<https://archive.org/details/inventingflatear00russ/page/37>), New York: Praeger, pp. 37–45 (<https://archive.org/details/inventingflatear00russ/page/37>), ISBN 978-0275939564
32. Lindberg, David C.; Numbers, Ronald L., eds. (1986), "Introduction", God and Nature: Historical Essays on the Encounter between Christianity and Science, Berkeley and Los Angeles: University of California Press, pp. 1–3, ISBN 978-0-520-05692-3
33. Lindberg, David C. (2000), "Science and the Early Christian Church", in Shank, Michael H. (ed.), The Scientific Enterprise in Antiquity and the Middle Ages: Readings from Isis, Chicago and London: University of Chicago Press, pp. 125–146, ISBN 978-0-226-74951-8
34. Ferngren, Gary, ed. (2002), "Introduction", Science & Religion: A Historical Introduction, Baltimore: Johns Hopkins University Press, p. ix, ISBN 978-0-8018-7038-5
35. Grant, Edward (1994), Planets, Stars, & Orbs: The Medieval Cosmos, 1200–1687, Cambridge: Cambridge University Press, pp. 620–622, 626–630, ISBN 978-0-521-56509-7
36. Fiske, John (1892). The Discovery of America (<https://archive.org/details/discoveryameric13fiskgoog>). The Riverside Press. p. 267 (<https://archive.org/details/discoveryameric13fiskgoog/page/n317>).

37. Parallax (Samuel Birley Rowbotham) (1881). Zetetic Astronomy: Earth Not a Globe (<http://www.sacred-texts.com/earth/za/za32.htm>) (Third ed.). London: Simpkin, Marshall, and Co.
38.), William Carpenter (of Greenwich (1864). Theoretical astronomy examined and exposed, by 'Common sense' (https://books.google.com/books?id=oB1cxm_M-zUC).
39. Carpenter, William (1885). One Hundred Proofs that the Earth is Not a Globe (<https://www.gutenberg.org/files/55387/55387-h/55387-h.htm>). Baltimore: William Carpenter – via Project Gutenberg.
40. Rev. 7:1.
41. Hatcher (1908, p. 20 (<https://archive.org/details/johnjasperunmatc00hatciala/page/20>)), Garwood (2007, p. 165), Randolph (1884, pp. 47–53 (<https://docsouth.unc.edu/neh/jasper/jasper.html#p47>)).
42. The Earth: Scripturally, Rationally, and Practically Described. A Geographical, Philosophical, and Educational Review, Nautical Guide, and General Student's Manual, n. 17 (November 1, 1887), p. 7. Cited in Schadewald, Robert J. (1981). "Scientific Creationism, Geocentricity, and the Flat Earth" (<http://www.lhup.edu/~dsimanek/crea-fe.htm>). Skeptical Inquirer. Lock Haven University. Retrieved August 21, 2010 – via lhup.edu.
43. Garwood (2007).
44. Wardlaw Scott, David (1901). Terra Firma (<https://archive.org/details/cu31924031764594>). Retrieved December 13, 2010.
45. Slocum, Joshua (1900). "17–18" (<http://www.ibiblio.org/eldritch/js/saaw.htm>). Sailing Alone Around the World. New York: The Century Company.
46. "$5,000 for Proving the Earth is a Globe" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20110411223327/http://blog.modernmechanix.com/2006/05/19/5000-for-proving-the-earth-is-a-globe/>). Modern Mechanix. May 19, 2006. Archived from the original (<http://blog.modernmechanix.com/2006/05/19/5000-for-proving-the-earth-is-a-globe/>) on April 11, 2011. Retrieved February 9, 2013.
47. Gallagher, Eugene V. (2006). Introduction to New and Alternative Religions in America [Five Volumes]. Greenwood Publishing Group. p. 73. ISBN 978-0-313-05078-7. "...he accepted the collection of Jewish law known as the Talmud as the ultimate authority on religious matters. Like many black Israelites and black Muslims, Cherry stigmatized Southern black culture, forbidding his followers to eat pork, drink heavily, or observe Christian holidays. He also separated himself from African American Christianity by forbidding pianos, public collections, emotional expression in worship, or speaking in tongues. ... Services began and ended with a prayer said while facing east ... Prophet Cherry's theology was strongly millenarian, black nationalist, and idiosyncratic. He emphasized strict adherence to the Ten Commandments, and his followers believed in a square Earth surrounded by three layers of heaven. He claimed that Jesus was black and would return in the year 2000 and raise all the saints who obeyed the Ten Commandments and the teachings of Prophet Cherry. Cherry denigrated white Jews as interlopers and frauds and vilified them for denying the divinity of Jesus. Prophet Cherry passed away in 1963 and was succeeded by his son Prince Benjamin F. Cherry."
48. Nazé, Yaël (2018). "A Doctoral Dissertation on a Geocentric Flat Earth: 'Zetetic' Astronomy at the University Level". Skeptical Inquirer. 42 (3): 12–14.
49. Schadewald, Robert J. "The Flat-out Truth: Earth Orbits? Moon Landings? A Fraud! Says This Prophet", Science Digest, July 1980.
50. Schick, Theodore; Lewis Vaughn, How to think about weird things: critical thinking for a new age, Houghton Mifflin (Mayfield) (October 31, 1995), ISBN 978-1-55934-254-4, p. 197.
51. Robert J. Schadewald. "The Flat-out Truth" (<https://www.lockhaven.edu/~dsimanek/fe-scidi.htm>). Lhup.edu. Retrieved January 22, 2018.
52. Donald E. Simanek. "The Flat Earth" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20130128084210/http://www.lhup.edu/~dsimanek/flat/flaearth.htm>). Lhup.edu. Archived from the original (<http://www.lhup.edu/~dsimanek/flat/flaearth.htm>) on January 28, 2013. Retrieved February 9, 2013.
53. "Ingenious 'Flat Earth' Theory Revealed In Old Map" (<http://www.livescience.com/14754-ingenious-flat-earth-theory-revealed-map.html>). LiveScience. Retrieved February 9, 2013.

54. "How YouTube converted people to flat Earth" (<https://www.bbc.com/news/av/stories-49021903/flat-earth-how-did-youtube-help-spread-a-conspiracy-theory>). BBC News. Retrieved 17 November 2019.
55. Abbott, Erica. "Mark Zuckerberg Banning All Flat Earth Groups from Facebook Is A Hoax" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170819231354/http://www.business2community.com/facebook/mark-zuckerberg-banning-flat-earth-groups-facebook-hoax-01890594#WRFxzo1QOD9xCO2F.97>). Business2community.com. Business2community. Archived from the original (<http://www.business2community.com/facebook/mark-zuckerberg-banning-flat-earth-groups-facebook-hoax-01890594#WRFxzo1QOD9xCO2F.97>) on 19 August 2017. Retrieved 19 August 2017.
56. Heigl, Alex (February 20, 2017). "The Short List of Famous People Who Think the Earth Is Flat (Yes, Really)" (<http://people.com/celebrity/flat-earth-celebrities-world-not-round/>). People.
57. Herreria, Carla (2017-04-22). "Neil deGrasse Tyson Cites Celebrity Flat-Earthers To Make A Point About Politics" (http://www.huffingtonpost.com/entry/neil-degrasse-tyson-flat-earth-pop-stars-flawed_us_58faa373e4b06b9cb91719ad). Huffington Post. Retrieved 19 August 2017.
58. "The rise of the Flat Earthers" (<https://www.sciencefocus.com/the-human-body/the-rise-of-the-flat-earthers/>). Science Focus – BBC Focus Magazine. Retrieved 2019-01-17.
59. "YouTube says it will crack down on recommending conspiracy videos" (<https://edition.cnn.com/2019/01/25/tech/youtube-conspiracy-video-recommendations/index.html>). CNN. Retrieved 17 November 2019.
60. CNN, Rob Picheta. "The flat earth conspiracy is spreading around the globe. Does it hide a darker core?" (<https://edition.cnn.com/2019/11/16/us/flat-earth-conference-conspiracy-theories-scli-intl/index.html>). CNN. Retrieved 17 November 2019.
61. Underdown, James (2018). "Commentary: The Salton Sea Flat Earth Test: When Skeptics Meet Deniers". Skeptical Inquirer. 42 (6): 14–15.
62. Underdown, Jim (November 2018). "The Salton Sea Flat Earth Test: When Skeptics Meet Deniers" (https://www.csicop.org/si/show/the_salton_sea_flat_earth_test_when_skeptics_meet_deniers). CSICOP.org. CFI. Archived (https://web.archive.org/web/20190224135255/https://www.csicop.org/si/show/the_salton_sea_flat_earth_test_when_skeptics_meet_deniers) from the original on 24 February 2019. Retrieved 24 February 2019.
63. Natalie Wolchover, Live Science Staff (30 May 2017). "Are Flat-Earthers Being Serious?" (<https://www.livescience.com/24310-flat-earth-belief.html>). Live Science. Retrieved 2019-01-17.
64. Moshakis, Alex (2018-05-27). "Is the Earth flat? Meet the people questioning science" (<https://www.theguardian.com/global/2018/may/27/is-the-earth-pancake-flat-among-the-flat-earthers-conspiracy-theories-fake-news>). The Observer. ISSN 0029-7712 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/0029-7712>). Retrieved 2019-01-17.
65. Burdick, Alan (2018-05-30). "Looking for Life on a Flat Earth" (<https://www.newyorker.com/science/elements/looking-for-life-on-a-flat-earth>). The New Yorker. ISSN 0028-792X (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/0028-792X>). Retrieved 2019-01-17.
66. Shaw, George B. (1908). Fabian Essays on Socialism (new ed.) (<https://archive.org/stream/fabianessaysins00olivgoog#page/n25/mode/2up>). Ball. p. xviii.
67. "Flat-Earth" (<http://www.oed.com/view/Entry/71171?redirectedFrom=flat-earth#eid118363999>). Oxford English Dictionary. Retrieved July 29, 2013.

Bibliography

- Garwood, Christine (2007), Flat Earth: The History of an Infamous Idea (<https://books.google.com/books?id=Gvm5Ou9B0FwC>), Pan Books, ISBN 978-1-4050-4702-9
- Hatcher, William E. (1908), John Jasper (<https://archive.org/details/johnjasperunmatc00hatciala>), New York, NY: Fleming Revell
- Simek, Rudolf (1996) [1992]. Heaven and Earth in the Middle Ages: The Physical World Before Columbus (<https://books.google.com/books?id=gXBSKZAIAdMC&pg=PR7>). Angela Hall (trans.). The Boydell Press. ISBN 9780851156088. Retrieved February 9, 2013.

- Plofker, Kim (2009). Mathematics in India. Princeton University Press. ISBN 978-0691120676.
- Randolph, Edwin Archer (1884), The Life of Rev. John Jasper, Pastor of Sixth Mt. Zion Baptist Church, Richmond, Va., from His Birth to the Present Time, with His Theory on the Rotation of the Sun (<https://docsouth.unc.edu/neh/jasper/jasper.html>), Richmond, VA: R.T. Hill & Co.

Further reading

- Fraser, Raymond (2007). When The Earth Was Flat: Remembering Leonard Cohen, Alden Nowlan, the Flat Earth Society, the King James monarchy hoax, the Montreal Story Tellers and other curious matters. Black Moss Press, ISBN 978-0-88753-439-3

External links

- Robbins, Stuart (2012-05-01). "Episode 33: Flat Earth" (http://podcast.sjrdesign.net/shownotes_033.php). Exposing PseudoAstronomy Podcast.
- Robbins, Stuart (2016-09-05). "Episode 145: Modern Flat Earth Theory, Part 1" (http://podcast.sjrdesign.net/shownotes_145.php). Exposing PseudoAstronomy Podcast.
- Robbins, Stuart (2016-10-04). "Episode 149: Modern Flat Earth Thought, Part 2" (http://podcast.sjrdesign.net/shownotes_149.php). Exposing PseudoAstronomy Podcast.
- Power, Myles; James, James (2016-10-31). "Episode 146: The Lies of the Sun" (<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=D2RDpPrKwI8>). League of Nerds (YouTube). – Review of a pro-Flat Earth documentary.
- The Myth of the Flat Earth (<http://www.veritas-ucsb.org/library/russell/FlatEarth.html>)
- The Myth of the Flat Universe (<https://www.newscientist.com/article/mg20227084.500-flat-universe-may-be-the-new-flat-earth.html>)
- You say the earth is round? Prove it (http://www.straightdope.com/classics/a2_087.html) (from The Straight Dope)
- Flat Earth Fallacy (<http://archives.math.utk.edu//hypermail/historia/feb00/0164.html>)
- Zetetic Astronomy, or Earth Not a Globe by Parallax (Samuel Birley Rowbotham (1816–1884)) (<http://www.sacred-texts.com/earth/za/index.htm>) at sacred-texts.com
- Flat Earth idea of the suns trajectory (<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=ThPgMu2-ToM>)
- Flat Earth Theory of the Moon & Sun's paths around the world (<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=dtHuTVXZGFw>)

Retrieved from "https://en.wikipedia.org/w/index.php?title=Flat_Earth&oldid=1028567769"

This page was last edited on 14 June 2021, at 18:38 (UTC).

Text is available under the Creative Commons Attribution-ShareAlike License; additional terms may apply. By using this site, you agree to the Terms of Use and Privacy Policy. Wikipedia® is a registered trademark of the Wikimedia Foundation, Inc., a non-profit organization.

Phoebus cartel

The Phoebus cartel existed to control the manufacture and sale of incandescent light bulbs. They appropriated market territories and fixed the useful life of such bulbs.^[1] Corporations based in Europe and America founded the cartel on January 15, 1925 in Geneva.^[2] Phoebus based itself in Switzerland. The corporation named itself Phœbus S.A. Compagnie Industrielle pour le Développement de l'Éclairage (French for "Phoebus, Inc. Industrial Company for the Development of Lighting"). They had intended the cartel to last for thirty years (1925 to 1955). The cartel ceased operations in 1939 owing to the outbreak of World War II. The cartel included manufacturers Osram, General Electric, Associated Electrical Industries, and Philips,^[3] among others.

Contents

History

Purpose

See also

References

Further reading

External links

Phoebus cartel

Predecessor	Internationale Glühlampen Preisvereinigung
Formation	15 January 1925
Founders	Osram , General Electric , Associated Electrical Industries , and Philips among others
Founded at	Geneva, Switzerland
Dissolved	1939
Type	Cartel
Purpose	Planned obsolescence
Products	Incandescent light bulbs

History

Osram, Philips, Tungfram, Associated Electrical Industries, ELIN, Compagnie des Lampes, International General Electric, and the GE Overseas Group created and joined the Phoebus cartel,^[4] holding shares in the Swiss corporation proportional to their lamp sales.

Osram founded a precursor organisation in 1921, the Internationale Glühlampen Preisvereinigung. When Philips and other manufacturers entered the American market, General Electric reacted by setting up the "International General Electric Company" in Paris. Both organisations co-ordinated the trading of patents and market penetration. Increasing international competition led to negotiations between all the major companies to control and restrict their respective activities in order not to interfere in each other's spheres.^{[5][6]}

In the late 1920s, a Swedish-Danish-Norwegian union of consumer cooperatives formed the North European Luma Co-op Society as an independent manufacturing center. Economic and legal threats by Phoebus did not achieve the desired effect, and in 1931 the Scandinavians produced and sold lamps at a considerably lower price than Phoebus.^[7]

The Phoebus cartel was intended to be dissolved in 1955^[6] but World War II greatly disrupted its operation.

Purpose

The Phoebus cartel divided the world's lamp markets into three categories:

- Home territories, the home country of individual manufacturers
- British overseas territories, under control of Associated Electrical Industries, Osram, Philips, and Tungsram
- Common territory, the rest of the world

The cartel lowered operational costs and worked to standardize the life expectancy of light bulbs at 1,000 hours^[6] (down from 2,500 hours),^[6] and raised prices without fear of competition. The cartel tested their bulbs and fined manufacturers for bulbs that lasted more than 1,000 hours. A 1929 table listed the amount of Swiss francs paid that depended on the exceeding hours of lifetime.^[8]

Some engineers deemed 1,000 hours a reasonable figure to balance the various operational aspects of an incandescent bulb, since longer lifespan means reduced efficacy (lumens per watt): a longer-life bulb of a given wattage puts out less light (and therefore proportionally more heat) than a shorter-life bulb of the same wattage.^[9] Nevertheless, long-life incandescent bulbs were and are available with lifespan ratings up to 2,500 hours, and these do in fact produce less light per watt.^[10]

In 1951, Monopolies and Restrictive Practices Commission in the United Kingdom issued a report to Parliament and noted that:

"As regards life standards, before the Phoebus Agreement and to this day the general service filament lamp was and is designed to have, on average, a minimum life of 1,000 hours. It has often been alleged—though not in evidence to us—that the Phoebus organisation artificially made the life of a lamp short with the object of increasing the number of lamps sold. As we have explained in Chapter 9, there can be no absolutely right life for the many varying circumstances to be found among the consumers in any given country, so that any standard life must always represent a compromise between conflicting factors. B.S.I. has always adopted a single life standard for general service filament lamps, and the representatives of both B.S.I. and B.E.A., as well as most lamp manufacturers, have told us in evidence that they regard 1,000 hours as the best compromise possible at the present time, nor has an evidence been offered to us to the contrary. Accordingly we must dismiss as misconceived the allegation referred to above."^[11]

In Gravity's Rainbow (1973), Thomas Pynchon wrote about "Byron the Bulb", an anthropomorphic eternal lightbulb who fights against the Phoebus Cartel. Pynchon's story has been credited with bringing the Phoebus Cartel to the public eye.^{[12][13]}

See also

- Planned obsolescence
- Centennial Light

References

1. MacKinnon, J. B. (2016-07-14). "The L.E.D. Quandary: Why There's No Such Thing as "Built to

- Last" (<https://www.newyorker.com/business/currency/the-l-e-d-quandary-why-theres-no-such-thing-as-built-to-last>). The New Yorker. ISSN 0028-792X (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/0028-792X>). Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20171114154744/https://www.newyorker.com/business/currency/the-l-e-d-quandary-why-theres-no-such-thing-as-built-to-last>) from the original on 2017-11-14. Retrieved 2017-11-05.
2. Feuille officielle suisse du commerce. Berne. February 7, 1925. p. 216.
 3. Metzger, Marcel "Anton Philips (1874-1951). They will know who they're dealing with", Uitgeverij Balans, Amsterdam, 2004, ISBN 90 5018 612 2 (Summary) (<http://www.metze-research.com/tekst/Anton%20Philips%20summary.pdf>) Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20140413123349/http://www.metze-research.com/tekst/Anton%20Philips%20summary.pdf>) 2014-04-13 at the Wayback Machine.
 4. "Corporations: A Very Tough Baby" (<http://www.time.com/time/magazine/article/0,9171,803625,00.html>). Time Magazine. 1945-07-23. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20090801214915/http://www.time.com/time/magazine/article/0,9171,803625,00.html>) from the original on 2009-08-01. Retrieved 2009-04-11.
 5. Jürgen Bönig (1993). Die Einführung von Fließbandarbeit in Deutschland bis 1933 (<https://books.google.com/books?id=8FiukcQvB1kC&pg=PA277&lpg=PA277>) (in German). LIT Verlag Münster. p. 277. ISBN 3894731117. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20160701221056/https://books.google.co.uk/books?id=8FiukcQvB1kC&pg=PA277&lpg=PA277>) from the original on 2016-07-01. Retrieved 2016-05-03.
 6. Markus Krajewski (24 September 2014). "The Great Lightbulb Conspiracy" (<https://spectrum.ieee.org/tech-history/dawn-of-electronics/the-great-lightbulb-conspiracy>). IEEE Spectrum. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20171029040239/https://spectrum.ieee.org/tech-history/dawn-of-electronics/the-great-lightbulb-conspiracy>) from the original on 29 October 2017. Retrieved 3 November 2017.
 7. A history of pre-war lightbulb manufacture (<https://www.simplelighting.co.uk/knowledge-hub/history-pre-war-lightbulb-manufacture/>) Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20150614160017/https://www.simplelighting.co.uk/knowledge-hub/history-pre-war-lightbulb-manufacture/>) 2015-06-14 at the Wayback Machine, 14-04-2015,
 8. Peretti, Jacques (July 2014). "The Men Who Made Us Spend, Episode 1" (<http://www.bbc.co.uk/programmes/p01zxm9b>). BBC. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20140707001537/http://www.bbc.co.uk/programmes/p01zxm9b>) from the original on 2014-07-07. Retrieved 2014-07-10.
 9. Hehkulampussa ja ledissä sama ongelma: lämpö (<http://suomenkuvalehti.fi/jutut/kotimaa/hehkulampussa-ja-ledissa-sama-ongelma-lampo>) Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20111015135444/http://suomenkuvalehti.fi/jutut/kotimaa/hehkulampussa-ja-ledissa-sama-ongelma-lampo>) 2011-10-15 at the Wayback Machine, Suomen Kuvalehti 13.10.2011, an interview of research scientist, D.Sc. Eino Tetri, Leader of the Light Sources and Energy Group in Aalto University
 10. "Incandescent, LED, Fluorescent, Compact Fluorescent and Halogen Bulbs" (<https://archive.is/20120728221025/www.consumerenergycenter.org/lighting/bulbs.html>). Archived from the original (<http://www.consumerenergycenter.org/lighting/bulbs.html>) on 2012-07-28.
 11. Monopolies and Restrictive Practices Commission (1951). Report on the Supply of Electric Lamps (https://assets.publishing.service.gov.uk/government/uploads/system/uploads/attachment_data/file/235313/0287.pdf) (PDF). London: His Majesty's Stationery Office. p. 98. ISBN 010518487X. Archived (https://web.archive.org/web/20190905125524/https://assets.publishing.service.gov.uk/government/uploads/system/uploads/attachment_data/file/235313/0287.pdf) (PDF) from the original on 2019-09-05. Retrieved 2020-04-14.
 12. <https://spectrum.ieee.org/tech-talk/geek-life/history/the-story-behind-the-story-behind-the-great-lightbulb-conspiracy>
 13. <https://www.npr.org/transcripts/707382853>

Further reading

- Wells, Wyatt C. (2002). Antitrust and the Formation of the Postwar World (<https://archive.org/details/antitrustformati0000well>). New York: Columbia University Press. ISBN 0-231-12398-1.

External links

- Patrick Gaughen "Structural Inefficiency in the Early Twentieth Century: Studies in the Aluminum and Incandescent Lamp Markets" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20050204082354/http://www.andover.edu/aep/papers/610/pgaughen98.pdf>) Social Science 610, December, 1998, 36 pp.
 - U K Monopolies Commission "Report on the Supply of Electric Lamps" (http://webarchive.nationalarchives.gov.uk/20120119163804/http://www.competition-commission.org.uk/rep_pub/reports/1950_1959/003lamp.htm), His Majesty's Stationery Office, London, October 1951, v + 199 pp.
 - Markus Krajewski "The Great Lightbulb Conspiracy" (<https://spectrum.ieee.org/geek-life/history/the-great-lightbulb-conspiracy/>) IEEE Spectrum, September, 2014.
 - Cosima Dannoritzer "The Light Bulb Conspiracy - Extended Video Version" (<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=BWJC5ieUAe4>) New World News Network, August 8, 2016
-

Retrieved from "https://en.wikipedia.org/w/index.php?title=Phoebus_cartel&oldid=1027351171"

This page was last edited on 7 June 2021, at 12:26 (UTC).

Text is available under the Creative Commons Attribution-ShareAlike License; additional terms may apply. By using this site, you agree to the Terms of Use and Privacy Policy. Wikipedia® is a registered trademark of the Wikimedia Foundation, Inc., a non-profit organization.

Phantom time hypothesis

The phantom time hypothesis is a historical conspiracy theory asserted by Heribert Illig. First published in 1991, it hypothesizes a conspiracy by the Holy Roman Emperor Otto III, Pope Sylvester II, and possibly the Byzantine Emperor Constantine VII, to fabricate the Anno Domini dating system retroactively, in order to place them at the special year of AD 1000, and to rewrite history^[1] to legitimize Otto's claim to the Holy Roman Empire. Illig believed that this was achieved through the alteration, misrepresentation and forgery of documentary and physical evidence.^[2] According to this scenario, the entire Carolingian period, including the figure of Charlemagne, is a fabrication, with a "phantom time" of 297 years (AD 614–911) added to the Early Middle Ages.

The hypothesis has never attracted any support from historians.

Contents

Heribert Illig

Proposal

Criticism

Bibliography

See also

References

External links

Heribert Illig

Illig was born in 1947 in Vohenstrauß, Bavaria. He was active in an association dedicated to Immanuel Velikovsky, catastrophism and historical revisionism, the Gesellschaft zur Rekonstruktion der Menschheits- und Naturgeschichte (English: Society for the Reconstruction of Human and Natural History). From 1989 to 1994 he acted as editor of the journal Vorzeit-Frühzeit-Gegenwart (English: Past-Early-Present). Since 1995, he has worked as a publisher and author under his own publishing company, Mantis-Verlag, and publishing his own journal, Zeitensprünge (English: Leaps in Time). Outside of his publications related to revised chronology, he has edited the works of Egon Friedell.

Before focusing on the early medieval period, Illig published various proposals for revised chronologies of prehistory and of Ancient Egypt. His proposals received prominent coverage in German popular media in the 1990s. His 1996 Das erfundene Mittelalter (English: The Invented Middle Ages) also received scholarly recensions, but was universally rejected as fundamentally flawed by historians.^[3] In 1997, the journal Ethik und Sozialwissenschaften (English: Ethics and Social Sciences) offered a platform for critical discussion to Illig's proposal, with a number of historians commenting on its various aspects.^[4] After 1997, there has been little scholarly reception of Illig's ideas, although they continued to be discussed as pseudohistory in German popular media.^[5] Illig continued to publish on the "phantom time hypothesis" until at least 2013. Also in 2013, he published on an unrelated topic of art history, on German Renaissance master Anton Pilgram, but again proposing revisions to conventional chronology, and arguing for the abolition of the art historical category of Mannerism.^[6]

Proposal

The bases of Illig's hypothesis include:^{[7][8]}

- The scarcity of archaeological evidence that can be reliably dated to the period AD 614–911, the perceived inadequacies of radiometric and dendrochronological methods of dating this period, and the over-reliance of medieval historians on written sources.
- The presence of Romanesque architecture in tenth-century Western Europe, suggesting the Roman era was not as long ago as conventionally thought.
- The relation between the Julian calendar, Gregorian calendar and the underlying astronomical solar or tropical year. The Julian calendar, introduced by Julius Caesar, was long known to introduce a discrepancy from the tropical year of around one day for each century that the calendar was in use. By the time the Gregorian calendar was introduced in AD 1582, Illig alleges that the old Julian calendar should have produced a discrepancy of thirteen days between it and the real (or tropical) calendar. Instead, the astronomers and mathematicians working for Pope Gregory XIII had found that the civil calendar needed to be adjusted by only ten days. (The Julian calendar day Thursday, 4 October 1582 was followed by the first day of the Gregorian calendar, Friday, 15 October 1582). From this, Illig concludes that the AD era had counted roughly three centuries which never existed.

Criticism

- The most difficult challenge to the theory is through observations in ancient astronomy, especially those of solar eclipses cited by European sources prior to 600 AD (when phantom time would have distorted the chronology). Besides several others that are perhaps too vague to disprove the phantom time hypothesis, two in particular are dated with enough precision to question the hypothesis. One is reported by Pliny the Elder in 59 AD^[9] and one by Photius in 418 AD.^[10] Both of these dates and times have confirmed eclipses. In addition, observations during the Tang dynasty in China, and Halley's Comet, for example, are consistent with current astronomy with no "phantom time" added.^{[11][12]}
- Archaeological remains and dating methods such as dendrochronology (tree-ring dating) refute, rather than support, "phantom time".^[13]
- The Gregorian reform was never purported to bring the calendar in line with the Julian calendar as it had existed at the time of its institution in 45 BC, but as it had existed in 325 AD, the time of the Council of Nicaea, which had established a method for determining the date of Easter Sunday by fixing the vernal equinox on March 21 in the Julian calendar. By 1582, the astronomical equinox was occurring on March 10 in the Julian calendar, but Easter was still being calculated from a nominal equinox on March 21. In 45 BC the astronomical vernal equinox took place around March 23. Illig's "three missing centuries" thus correspond to the 369 years between the institution of the Julian calendar in 45 BC, and the fixing of the Easter Date at the Council of Nicaea in 325 AD.^[14]
- If Charlemagne and the Carolingian dynasty were fabricated, there would have to be a corresponding fabrication of the history of the rest of Europe, including Anglo-Saxon England, the Papacy, and the Byzantine Empire. The "phantom time" period also encompasses the life of Muhammad and the Islamic expansion into the areas of the former Roman Empire, including the conquest of Visigothic Iberia. This history too would have to be forged or drastically misdated. It would also have to be reconciled with the history of the Tang dynasty of China and its contact with Islam, such as at the Battle of Talas.^{[12][15]}

Bibliography

Publications by Illig:

- Egon Friedell und Immanuel Velikovsky. Vom Weltbild zweier Außenseiter, Basel 1985.
- Die veraltete Vorzeit, Heribert Illig, Eichborn, 1988
- with Gunnar Heinsohn: Wann lebten die Pharaonen?, Mantis, 1990, revised 2003 ISBN 3-928852-26-4
- Karl der Fiktive, genannt Karl der Große, 1992
- Hat Karl der Große je gelebt? Bauten, Funde und Schriften im Widerstreit, 1994
- Hat Karl der Große je gelebt?, Heribert Illig, Mantis, 1996
- Das erfundene Mittelalter. Die größte Zeitfälschung der Geschichte, Heribert Illig, Econ 1996, ISBN 3-430-14953-3 (revised ed. 1998)
- Das Friedell-Lesebuch, Heribert Illig, C.H. Beck 1998, ISBN 3-406-32415-0
- Heribert Illig, with Franz Löhner: Der Bau der Cheopspyramide, Mantis 1998, ISBN 3-928852-17-5
- Wer hat an der Uhr gedreht?, Heribert Illig, Ullstein 2003, ISBN 3-548-36476-4
- Heribert Illig, with Gerhard Anwander: Bayern in der Phantomzeit. Archäologie widerlegt Urkunden des frühen Mittelalters., Mantis 2002, ISBN 3-928852-21-3

See also

- Historical revisionism
- The Chronology of Ancient Kingdoms Amended
- Glasgow Chronology
- New Chronology \(Fomenko\)
- New Chronology \(Rohl\)
- Revised chronology of Immanuel Velikovsky
- Jean Hardouin

References

1. Hans-Ulrich Niemitz, Did the Early Middle Ages Really Exist? (<http://www.cl.cam.ac.uk/~mgk25/volatil/e/Niemitz-1997.pdf>) pp. 9–10.
2. Fomenko, Anatoly (2007). History: Chronology 1: Second Edition. Mithec. ISBN 2-913621-07-4.
3. Johannes Fried: Wissenschaft und Phantasie. Das Beispiel der Geschichte, in: Historische Zeitschrift Band 263,2/1996, 291–316. Matthias Grässlin, Frankfurter Allgemeine Zeitung 1. Oktober 1996
4. EuS 1997 Heft 4. Theo Kölzer (Bonn University) refused to contribute, and the journal printed his letter of refusal instead in which Kölzer criticizes the journal for lending credibility to Illig's "abstruse" idea. A favourable review was published by sociologist Gunnar Heinsohn, which later led to a collaboration between Illig and Heinsohn until 2011, when Heinsohn left the board of editors of Illig's journal and published his rejection of Illig's core idea that the figure of Charlemagne is a high medieval fiction.
5. Michael Borgolte. In: Der Tagesspiegel vom 29. Juni 1999. Stephan Matthiesen: Erfundenes Mittelalter – fruchtlose These! (<https://www.stephan-matthiesen.de/de/texte/archaeologie-geschichte/erfundenes-mittelalter-illig.html>), in: Skeptiker 2/2001
6. Meister Anton, gen. Pilgram, oder Abschied vom Manierismus (2013).
7. Illig, Heribert (2000). Wer hat an der Uhr gedreht?. Econ Verlag. ISBN 3-548-75064-8.

8. Illig, Heribert. Das erfundene Mittelalter. ISBN 3-548-36429-2.
9. Pliny the Elder. Natural History (Book II) (<http://www.masseiana.org/pliny.htm#BOOK%20II>) Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170101063545/http://www.masseiana.org/pliny.htm>) 2017-01-01 at the Wayback Machine, accessed 14 June 2017
10. Photius. Epitome of the Church History of Philostorgius (<http://www.tertullian.org/fathers/philostorgius.htm>), accessed 4 May 2016
11. Dieter Herrmann (2000), "Nochmals: Gab es eine Phantomzeit in unserer Geschichte?", Beiträge zur Astronomiegeschichte 3 (in German), pp. 211–14
12. Dutch, Stephen. "Is a Chunk of History Missing?" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20110527014124/http://www.uwgb.edu/dutchs/PSEUDOSC/Phantom%20Time.HTM>). Archived from the original (<http://www.uwgb.edu/dutchs/PSEUDOSC/Phantom%20Time.HTM>) on 27 May 2011. Retrieved 14 May 2011.
13. Föbel, Amalie (1999). "Karl der Fiktive?". Damals, Magazin für Geschichte und Kultur. No. 8. pp. 20f.
14. Karl Mütz: Die „Phantomzeit“ 614 bis 911 von Heribert Illig. Kalendertechnische und kalenderhistorische Einwände. In: Zeitschrift für Württembergische Landesgeschichte. Band 60, 2001, S. 11–23.
15. Adams, Cecil. "Did the Middle Ages Not Really Happen?" (<http://www.straightdope.com/columns/read/2992/did-the-middle-ages-not-really-happen>). Retrieved 9 July 2014.
 - Illig, Heribert: Enthält das frühe Mittelalter erfundene Zeit? and subsequent discussion, in: Ethik und Sozialwissenschaften 8 (1997), pp. 481–520.
 - Schieffer, Rudolf: Ein Mittelalter ohne Karl den Großen, oder: Die Antworten sind jetzt einfach, in: Geschichte in Wissenschaft und Unterricht 48 (1997), pp. 611–17.
 - Matthiesen, Stephan: Erfundenes Mittelalter – fruchtlose These! (<https://www.stephan-matthiesen.de/texte-blog/geschichte/31-erfundenes-mittelalter-illig.html>), in: Skeptiker 2 (2002).

External links

- Explanation of the "phantom time hypothesis" in English (<http://www.cl.cam.ac.uk/~mgk25/volatile/Niemitz-1997.pdf>) (pdf)
 - Critique of Illig personal interactions, not his hypothesis in English (http://www.philjohn.com/papers/pjkd_h04.html)
 - A short explanation of the "phantom time hypothesis" (<http://www.damninteresting.com/?p=164>)
 - Dunning, Brian \(2012-10-16\). "Skeptoid #332: The Phantom Time Hypothesis" (<https://skeptoid.com/episodes/4332>). Skeptoid.
-

Retrieved from "https://en.wikipedia.org/w/index.php?title=Phantom_time_hypothesis&oldid=1027257106"

This page was last edited on 6 June 2021, at 23:27 (UTC).

Text is available under the Creative Commons Attribution-ShareAlike License; additional terms may apply. By using this site, you agree to the Terms of Use and Privacy Policy. Wikipedia® is a registered trademark of the Wikimedia Foundation, Inc., a non-profit organization.

Death of Diana, Princess of Wales, conspiracy theories

After 1998, it was theorised that there was an orchestrated criminal conspiracy surrounding the death of Diana, Princess of Wales.^[1] Official investigations in both Britain and France found that Diana died in a manner consistent with media reports following the fatal car crash in Paris on 31 August 1997. In 1999, a French investigation concluded that Diana died as the result of a crash.^[2] The French investigator, Judge Hervé Stephan, concluded that the paparazzi were some distance from the Mercedes S280 when it crashed and were not responsible.^[3] After hearing evidence at the British inquest, a jury in 2008 returned a verdict of "unlawful killing" by driver Henri Paul and the paparazzi pursuing the car.^[4] The jury's verdict also stated: "In addition, the death of the deceased was caused or contributed to by the fact that the deceased were not wearing a seat belt and by the fact that the Mercedes struck the pillar in the Alma Tunnel rather than colliding with something else".^[5]

Prominent in disputing the official version of events have been the British newspaper Daily Express^{[6][7]} and Egyptian businessman Mohamed Al-Fayed, whose son, Dodi, was Diana's boyfriend at the time and also died with her in the crash. In 2003, Diana's butler Paul Burrell published a note that he claimed had been written by Diana, in which there were allegations that her former husband was "planning 'an accident' in [Diana's] car, brake failure and serious head injury" so that he could marry again.^{[8][9][10]} A special Metropolitan Police inquiry team was established in 2004, Operation Paget, headed by Commissioner John Stevens to investigate the various conspiracy theories which led up to the British inquest. This investigation looked into 175 conspiracy claims that had been made by Fayed.^[11] Fayed has persistently suggested what were found to be conspiracy theories at the inquest^{[12][13]} and has repeatedly claimed that he believes his son was murdered with Diana.^[14]

Contents

Henri Paul

Security service connections

Blood samples

Tomlinson's allegation of MI6 involvement

Relationship with Dodi Fayed

Pregnancy

Absence of CCTV images

White Fiat Uno and James Andanson

Andanson's suicide

Le Van Thanh

Bright flash

Seat belt

Transport to the hospital

Embalming of the body

SASConspiracy theories in other mediaNotes and references

Henri Paul

Security service connections

Theorists have alleged that the driver of the Mercedes-Benz, acting head of Ritz security Henri Paul, was in the pay of a national security service, though different versions of the allegation name the country of the security service alternately as Britain, France or the United States. Evidence purported to support this arises mainly from money in his possession at the time of his death and his personal wealth. These allegations are covered in chapter four of the Operation Paget criminal investigation report. Mohamed Al-Fayed claims that Henri Paul was working for MI6 and that they set him up.^[15] The inquiry found no evidence Henri Paul was an agent for any security service.^[16]

Blood samples

Another allegation concerns the reliability of blood tests carried out, which indicated Paul had been drinking before he took the controls of the car. The French investigators' conclusion that Paul was drunk was made on the basis of an analysis of blood samples, which were said to contain an alcohol level that (according to Jay's September 1997 report) was three times the French legal limit. This initial analysis was challenged by a British pathologist hired by Al-Fayed. In response, French authorities carried out a third test, this time using the more medically conclusive vitreous fluid from inside the eye, which confirmed the level of alcohol measured by blood and also showed Paul had been taking antidepressants.^[17]

It has been claimed that the level of alcohol reported to have been found in Paul's blood was inconsistent with his sober demeanour, as captured on the CCTV of the Ritz that evening.^[18] Professor Robert Forrest, a forensic pathologist, said that an alcoholic like Paul, with a higher tolerance for alcohol, would be able to appear more sober than he actually was.^{[19][20]} The families of Dodi Fayed and Henri Paul did not accept the findings of the French investigation.

It was disclosed in November 2006 that Lord Stevens had met with Paul's elderly parents telling them that their son was not drunk.^[21] Just prior to Stevens's appearance at the inquest, a source close to Stevens stated that this inconsistency could be explained as him being "considerate" and "sensitive" towards the elderly couple,^[21] an assessment Scott Baker suggested might be credible in his opening comments to the jury.^[22] Under cross-examination at the inquest in February 2008, Stevens denied "deliberately misleading" Paul's parents and said that the chauffeur's condition at the time of the crash did not match the police's definition of being drunk, which he said relied upon someone's physical responses.^[23] Stevens said that the available evidence suggested Paul had consumed only two alcoholic drinks, but this was not necessarily all that Paul had consumed, and that he was indeed "under the influence" of alcohol at the time of the crash.^[23] An expert cited in the report estimated that Paul had drunk the equivalent of five measures of Ricard, his favourite liquorice-flavoured French aperitif, before driving.^[24]

In the two French TOXLAB tests, Paul was found to have 12.8% carbon haemoglobin saturation, a combination of blood's iron-carrying pigment and carbon monoxide. A smoker normally has about 10%, so the result was not unusual.^[25] Paul had been smoking small cigars, Cigarillos, in the hours before the crash.^[26] Another test, backed by the opponents of the official findings, showed Paul had 20.7% in his blood at the time of death; if accurate, the rate of dispersal of carbon monoxide from the bloodstream would have meant that Paul's blood had 40% saturation a few hours earlier, and he would scarcely have been able to function at all.^[25]

On 9 December 2009, it was reported that DNA samples confirm the blood samples with high alcohol levels were indeed from the driver.^[27] This was established by a comparison with samples provided by Paul's parents, demonstrating that the blood tested was that of Henri Paul and that he had three times the French legal limit of alcohol in his blood.^[27]

Tomlinson's allegation of MI6 involvement

Richard Tomlinson, a former MI6 officer who was dismissed from the intelligence services and later served five months in prison for breaching the Official Secrets Act 1989,^[28] claimed in a sworn statement to the French inquiry in May 1999 that Britain's MI6 had been involved in the crash, suggesting that the security service had documentation which would assist Judge Stephan in his inquiry.^[29] The previous August, he had been reported by the BBC to have claimed that Paul was working for the security services and that one of Diana's bodyguards, either Trevor Rees-Jones (now known as Trevor Rees) or Kes Wingfield, was a contact for British intelligence.^[30] Tomlinson alleged that MI6 was monitoring Diana before her death, had told Mohamed Al-Fayed that Paul was an MI6 agent,^[31] and that her death mirrored plans he saw in 1992 for the assassination of then President of Serbia Slobodan Milošević, using a strobe light to blind his chauffeur.^[32]

On 13 February 2008, Tomlinson told the inquest that he may have misremembered and that he had no evidence that Paul was an MI6 agent,^[31] but he had said in the previous day's court session that Paul was supplying MI6 with information.^[32] Speaking by video-link from France, Tomlinson conceded that, after the interval of 16 or 17 years, he "could not remember specifically" whether the document he had seen during 1992 had in fact proposed the use of a strobe light to cause a traffic crash as a means of assassinating Milošević, although use of lights for this purpose had been covered in his MI6 training.^[31] The Operation Paget Inquiry was given unprecedented access to the offices of both MI5 and MI6 to investigate Tomlinson's claims. It was later revealed that the mentioned memo was a proposal written in March 1993 to assassinate another Serbian figure if he gained power, not Milošević.^{[33][34][35]} Furthermore, the plan did not involve anything about using flashlights.^[36]

Further evidence discrediting Tomlinson's claims was found in drafts of a book he was writing about his time in MI6 before he was jailed in 1998 for breaching the Official Secrets Act. The draft, dating from 1996, referred to the memo and contained none of the detail about a staged car crash with flashlights in a tunnel.^[36]

The inquest was later told by an anonymous MI6 manager (referred to during proceedings as "Miss X") that MI6 were not keeping any file on either the Princess or Dodi, and that there was no plan involving them.^[37] The inquiry concluded by dismissing Tomlinson's claims as an embellishment. It went on to comment that this embellishment was largely responsible for giving rise to the theories Diana was murdered.^[38]

Tomlinson was arrested by French authorities in July 2006 as part of their inquiry into the death of Diana.^[39] French police were also reported to have seized computer files and personal papers from his home in Cannes.

Relationship with Dodi Fayed

One of the main motives which has been advanced for alleged murder includes suggestions Diana was pregnant with Mohamed "Dodi" Fayed's child and the couple were about to get engaged. The alleged dislike of the idea of a non-Christian within the British Royal Family meant such a relationship between the mother of the future king and a prominent Egyptian Muslim would not be tolerated.^[40] In Mohamed Al-Fayed's view, which he repeated in court at the inquest in February 2008, Prince Philip, the Prince of Wales, Diana's sister Lady Sarah McCorquodale and numerous others were all involved in a plot to kill the Princess and his son.^[41] Jeffrey Steinberg of the Executive Intelligence Review, a publication of the American Lyndon LaRouche movement, has also put forward theories that the Princess of Wales was murdered by the security services under the instructions of Prince Philip.^[42] An article in The Daily Telegraph in 1998 reporting the EIR conspiracy theories alleged earlier links between the EIR and Al-Fayed,^[43] while Francis Wheen reported the following year that Al-Fayed's spokesman had advised journalists to contact Steinberg.^[44]

Al-Fayed made the assertion in television interviews that the couple were going to announce their engagement on the Monday after the crash, 1 September 1997. Operation Paget commented that an announcement of such magnitude from the Princess of Wales would have been a substantial media event of worldwide interest and would have required significant preparation. No evidence was found that any such preparation had been made.^[45]

CCTV evidence shown at the inquest indicates that Dodi left Alberto Repossi jewellers on the 30 August with nothing more than a catalogue.^[46] Repossi said in 2003 that the ring had been placed on Diana's finger in a St Tropez hotel, and was being resized for future collection in Paris, but later admitted to writer Martyn Gregory that he had received "legal papers" from Al-Fayed, a client for more than 20 years.^[3] Al-Fayed said the couple chose the ring in Monte Carlo, and Dodi had picked it up in Paris the day before he died after it had been altered.^[46] This statement of Al-Fayed was contradicted by the statements of Claude Roulet, a shop assistant, and the CCTV footage.^[47] A CCTV recording demonstrated that a ring had been selected by a Ritz hotel official. It was bought by Mohammed Al-Fayed after the couple's death.^[3]

A few hours before the crash, on the afternoon of 30 August, Diana's journalist friend Richard Kay received a call on his mobile phone from Diana in which she asked about what was likely to appear in the following day's Sunday papers about her.^[48] During this call, she made no mention of any announcement she intended to make.^[49]

More revealing was the statement given by Diana's eldest sister, Lady Sarah McCorquodale, who testified that in a phone conversation with Diana on Friday 29 August, Diana spoke about Dodi Fayed in a manner that gave her sister the impression the relationship was on "stony ground".^[50] Statements from other friends and confidantes Diana spoke to in the week before her death, including her butler Paul Burrell, her friend Lady Annabel Goldsmith, and her spiritual adviser Rita Rogers, were unanimous that she was firm about not wanting to get engaged or married to anyone at that point in her life. A week before she died, the princess had told Goldsmith: "I need marriage like a rash on my face."^[51]

Diana's former private secretary, Patrick Jephson, said to the BBC in reaction to the publication of the Operation Paget Report in December 2006 that her facial expression in the CCTV footage of her at the Paris Ritz on her final evening with Dodi Fayed was one she would wear when she was disgruntled with a situation.^[52] However, CCTV images released on 6 October taken just minutes before their deaths, show a relaxed Diana and Dodi affectionately holding hands.^[53]

An inquiry witness was Hasnat Khan, a Muslim heart surgeon of Pakistani origin based in London, who had a relationship with Diana for two years. Diana had explored the possibility of marriage with him. This had been met with no opposition from the Royal Family and Prince Charles had given his blessing.^[51] Khan stated that he had received some racist hate mail from members of the public because of the relationship but had no reason to take what was said in this hate mail seriously. He also stated that he felt the relationship was not opposed by the Royal Family or any other branch of the British Government including the security services. Paul Burrell stated that Diana was still not over her break-up with Khan at the time of her death.^[54] It was also pointed out that Dodi and Diana had only met just under seven weeks before the crash, at Al-Fayed's villa in St. Tropez on 14 July, meaning there were only 47 days from their first meeting until the night of the crash. Of those days, their schedules permitted them to be together for an absolute maximum of 35 days. From analysis of Diana's actual movements, it is likely they had spent approximately 23 days together before the crash.^[55]

John Macnamara, a former senior detective at Scotland Yard, headed Al-Fayed's own investigation for five years from 1997. Cross-examined at the inquest on 14 February, he conceded that he had found no evidence of a criminal conspiracy to kill the Princess, or that she was engaged or pregnant at the time of her death, apart from the claims Al-Fayed had relayed to him.^[56]

Pregnancy

In January 2004, the former coroner of the Queen's Household, Dr. John Burton, said (in an interview with The Times) that he attended a post-mortem examination of the Princess's body at Fulham mortuary, where he personally examined her womb and found her not to be pregnant.^{[50][57]}

In an effort to examine the assertions made by Al-Fayed, Operation Paget had scientific tests carried out on pre-transfusion blood found in the footwell of the seat in the wrecked Mercedes the Princess of Wales occupied at the time of the crash. This blood was found to have no trace of the hCG hormone associated with pregnancy.^[58] The inquiry also extensively interviewed friends of Diana's who were in close contact with her in the weeks leading up to her death. The evidence obtained from these witnesses was of a very sensitive nature and most of it was not included in Operation Paget's criminal investigation report. However, it was reported that friends said she was in her normal menstrual cycle and there was evidence she was using contraception.^[59]

Al-Fayed's persistence in asserting Diana was pregnant led him to get members of his staff to tell the media that on their final day together, Diana and his son had visited a villa he owned in Paris to choose a room "for the baby". While the couple had indeed visited the villa, the circumstances of the visit were exaggerated to say it had lasted two hours and that it was in the presence of a prominent Italian interior designer. A security guard at the villa, Reuben Murrell, felt uncomfortable lying about the matter and sold his story to The Sun stating that the visit lasted just under thirty minutes and was not in the company of any interior designer. He provided stills from CCTV to prove this and said he had been in the presence of Diana and Dodi for the entirety of their visit, with there having been no conversation about them coming to live at the villa. He later resigned from Al-Fayed's employment and initiated an employment tribunal for constructive dismissal after Al-Fayed successfully sued him for breach of contract because of the CCTV images he supplied to The Sun.^{[60][61][62]} Senior members of Al-Fayed's staff made derogatory comments about Murrell and Trevor Rees-Jones in their statements to Operation

Paget.^[63] In 2004, a Channel 4 documentary, The Diana Conspiracy, claimed that the butler at the villa who, in a June 1998 interview with the ITV documentary Diana: Secrets Behind the Crash, claimed to have shown the couple around with their intent being to live there, was not even present at the villa on that day as he was on vacation.^[64]

Al-Fayed first claimed that the Princess of Wales was pregnant at the time of her death to the Daily Express in May 2001. "If it is true, it is strange that he sat upon this important information for three and a half years," Scott Baker said at the inquest.^[51]

Absence of CCTV images

The absence of CCTV images showing the Mercedes's journey from the hotel to the crash site has been frequently cited as evidence of an organised conspiracy. According to The Independent newspaper in 2006, there were more than 14 CCTV cameras in the Pont de l'Alma underpass, though none recorded footage of the fatal collision.^[65]

Judge Hervé Stéphan was appointed as Examining Magistrate in this case on 2 September 1997. On that day, by Judicial Order, he tasked the Brigade Criminelle with identifying all video and photographic images along the route taken by the Mercedes. Lieutenant Eric Gigou of the Brigade Criminelle led the team that carried out that work, initially by retracing the route several times and drawing up a list of possible locations. His report showed that the team identified ten locations of CCTV cameras. None of these had any images relevant to the inquiry, since they were principally security cameras facing the entrances to buildings. Most of the cameras were not maintained by the City of Paris; the owners of the buildings to which they were attached operated them privately. There was a traffic-monitoring camera above the underpass in the Place de l'Alma itself but this was under the control of la Compagnie de Circulation Urbaine de Paris (Paris Urban Traffic Unit). That department closed down at about 11 p.m., had no night duty staff and made no recordings. Officers in the Police Headquarters Information and Command Centre could continue to view the pictures shown by the traffic camera in real time but could not control it.

The subject of the CCTV cameras is dealt with in Chapter 5 of the Operation Paget report. It was also found that a photograph that was published in a book by David Cohen Diana, Death of a Goddess and captioned as having been taken just before the car entered the tunnel was in fact taken by a photographer as the car left the back of the Paris Ritz.^[66]

White Fiat Uno and James Andanson

Analysis of the wreckage of the Mercedes revealed it had glancing contact with a white Fiat Uno car which left traces of paint on the Mercedes bodywork. Extensive attempts by the French police to find the vehicle involved were unsuccessful.^[67] Although no one had seen the Fiat in the tunnel, some witnesses reported seeing an Uno exiting the tunnel.^[68]

Mohamed Al-Fayed alleged in his July 2005 statement to Operation Paget, and at other times, that the white Fiat Uno was being used by MI6^[69] as a means of causing the Mercedes to swerve and thereby crash into the side of the tunnel. Al-Fayed further alleged that the Fiat Uno was owned by a French photojournalist named Jean-Paul James Andanson,^[70] a security services agent according to Fayed,^[25] who had photographed Diana while she was at his villa in St. Tropez in July 1997. Andanson's death in May 2000, Al-Fayed claimed, was either due to guilt over what he had done or because he was assassinated by the French or British security services to silence him.^[49]

Operation Paget found that the white Fiat Uno Andanson owned was in an unroadworthy condition, being nine years old at the time, with 325,000 km on the odometer^[71] (suggesting that the car had been driven 27,000 miles per annum) and had not been maintained for several years prior. Andanson's neighbours confirmed the veracity of this evidence.^[71] Andanson had sold the car in October 1997.^[70] Operation Paget concluded it was extremely unlikely due to the car's condition and the fact Andanson had so openly disposed of it that it was the one at the scene of the crash in Paris. French police had examined Andanson's car as part of their effort to trace the one that had come into contact with the Mercedes with a view to prosecuting the driver for failing to render assistance and had reached the same conclusion. The French police spent a year after the crash searching for the vehicle and eliminated over 4,000 white Fiat Unos from their inquiry. Operation Paget decided it would be unlikely renewed enquiries would identify the vehicle involved as such a long period had elapsed since the crash. It concluded the threat of prosecution for a custodial offence probably deterred the driver from coming forward at the time.^[72]

A retired major in the French Brigade Criminelle, Jean Claude Mules, gave evidence to the inquest in February 2008. Andanson had been interviewed by French police in February 1998, and had been able to provide documentary evidence about his movements on the previous 30 and 31 August which had satisfied them that he could not have been the driver of the Fiat Uno involved. These demonstrated that Andanson could only have been at his home in Lignieres, 177 miles from Paris, at the time of the crash.^[70] Elizabeth, his widow, said at the London inquest in February 2008 that her husband had been at home in bed with her at the time of the crash.^[73]

Andanson's suicide

Andanson died in May 2000. The official verdict was suicide.^[74] His body was found in a black, burnt-out BMW in a forest near the town of Nant, near Millau, in the south of France. Andanson's death was attributed to problems in his private life. The 2008 inquest into the death of the Princess of Wales heard that evidence was uncovered from his friends and associates that prior to his death he had talked of suicide by pouring petrol in a car and lighting a cigar, as noted by Richard Horwell QC, for the Metropolitan Commissioner.^[75]

The Paget report states that when the car was found, Andanson's body was in the driver's seat of the car, and his head was detached and lay between the front seats. There was a hole in his left temple. The French pathologist concluded this hole was caused by the intense heat of the fire rather than, for example, a bullet wound.^[76]

Operation Paget found no evidence Andanson was known to any security service and, contrary to Al-Fayed's claims, his death was thoroughly investigated by French police (although the whereabouts of the car keys has never been explained). A break-in at his former workplace in June 2000 alleged to have been carried out by security services was found to be unconnected to his death, as no items related to him were stolen.^[77]

Le Van Thanh

It has been reported by numerous publications that the white Fiat Uno belonged to Le Van Thanh who was a 22-year-old taxi driver at the time of the crash. Thanh owned a white Fiat Uno identical to the one that struck the Princess of Wales' Mercedes. Georges and Sabine Dauzonne identified Thanh as "the agitated man they may have seen driving the car".^[78] Thanh has always refused interview requests.^{[79][80]} In 2006, Thanh's father said his son had re-sprayed his white Uno red hours after the crash, allegedly waking up his mechanic brother in the night to help him.^[81] Following tests, it was concluded that the car "could have been involved in the accident", but Thanh's involvement in the crash "was ruled out by French police because he said he was at work on the night in question".^[79] It was later uncovered that he had left work early that night and could have been at the scene of the crime. Multiple witnesses recall seeing a man matching his description exit the tunnel seconds after the crash.^[6]

Bright flash

An alternative explanation for the cause of the crash has been reports of a bright white flash just before the car entered the tunnel, blinding the driver. Richard Tomlinson made this allegation at the inquiry, but the veracity of his evidence was found wanting.

It was found by the authorities that three eyewitnesses at the scene of the crash claimed to see a bright flash of light before the crash.^[82] François Levistre (originally François Levi)^[83] made a clear, specific claim that he saw a bright flash, but his three statements to the authorities were in conflict with each other.^[84] Both the French detectives investigating after the crash^[85] and later the officers who worked on Operation Paget rejected his evidence.^[86] With the Mercedes behind him, he claimed to have seen the flash in his rear-view mirror and recounted other elements of what he saw while he was negotiating the difficult bend out of the tunnel.^[87] Crucially, however, his testimony was directly contradicted by his then-wife, who was in the passenger seat next to him.^[86] However, eyewitness Brian Anderson, an American tourist, told detectives that he too saw a bright flash.^[88]

French Police in 1997 were aware of Levistre's conviction in Rouen during 1989 for dishonesty and his subsequent prison sentence,^[85] and he was not thought by them to be a reliable witness.^[89] Television documentaries produced by Channel 4 in 2004 and the BBC in 2006 both raised this issue;^[89] he appeared as a witness at the British inquiry via a video link in October 2007. Diana: Secrets Behind the Crash (3 June 1998), an ITV programme presented by Nicholas Owen, then ITN's Royal Correspondent, gave enough weight to the claims of Levistre that 93% of viewers polled by the Mirror newspaper just after the broadcast believed there had been a bright flash of light at the time of the crash.^[83]

The detail of eyewitness testimony was thoroughly reviewed and Operation Paget officers succeeded in uncovering two new witnesses. Other eyewitness testimony made little reference to the appearance of any inexplicable flashes at the crash site. Several witnesses who would be expected to have seen a blinding flash made no reference to one. In any event, the detailed crash reconstruction revealed that the chain of events that led to the car unavoidably colliding with the pillar started well before it was at the mouth of the tunnel where the flash is alleged to have occurred. Furthermore, a strobe light of the type that was alleged to have been used is so powerful that a flash emitted from it would have been bright enough to illuminate a very wide area. It would have likely blinded not only Paul, but also the driver of the white Fiat Uno, the pursuing paparazzi and witnesses standing at the road side. The Operation Paget report concluded that the alleged flash did not happen.^[90]

Seat belt

There was some media discussion in April 2006 suggesting that Diana was a faithful seat belt user and therefore the fact that both her and Dodi's seat belts either failed or were not used was sinister and might suggest sabotage.^[91] Her sister, Lady Sarah McCorquodale later said that Diana "was religious in putting on her seat belt".^[92] Other sources question if she did in fact use her seat belt all the time, as was suggested.^[91]

"What is certain is that she was not wearing a seat belt and this made things worse. We would like to think that if she had been wearing a seat belt, we'd have been able to save her," said Prof. André Lienhart, who reviewed the emergency services' response for the French government investigation of the incident.^[93] CNN did an analysis of the crash in early September 1997 and concluded that injuries would have been minor had the occupants been wearing seat belts. The conclusions were provisional owing to limited data about the specific Mercedes model as the limousine was not sold in the US.^[94]

Analysis of the wreckage of the car after its repatriation to England in 2005 by a forensic accident investigator from the Transport Research Laboratory of thirty-five years experience on behalf of Operation Paget found that all the seat belts were in good working order except for the right rear one which was attached to the seat Diana occupied. Follow up enquiries with French investigators found that they had declared all the seat belts operational at an examination in October 1998, suggesting the damage to this seat belt took place after the crash.^[95]

The British inquest verdict explicitly stated that lack of seat belts had "caused or contributed to" the deaths of both Dodi and Diana.^[96]

Transport to the hospital

The first call to the emergency services' switchboard was logged at 12.26 a.m. The SAMU ambulance carrying the Princess arrived at the Pitié-Salpêtrière Hospital at 2.06 a.m. This length of time has prompted much conspiracy-related comment.

The period between the crash and the arrival at the hospital takes into account the following: the time taken for emergency services to arrive; the time taken by the Sapeurs-Pompiers (fire service) of Paris to remove Diana from the damaged car; and the actual journey time from the crash site to the hospital. Police Officers Sébastien Dorzee and Lino Gagliadone were the first emergency officials to arrive at the scene at around 12:30 a.m. Sergeants Xavier Gourmelom and Philippe Boyer of the Sapeurs-Pompiers arrived at around 12:32 a.m. Doctor Jean-Marc Martino, a specialist in anaesthetics and intensive care treatment and the doctor in charge of the SAMU ambulance, arrived at around 12:40 a.m. Diana was removed from the car at 1:00 a.m. She then went into cardiac arrest. Following external cardiopulmonary resuscitation, her heart started beating again. She was moved to the SAMU ambulance at 1:18 a.m.^[97]

The ambulance departed the crash scene at 1:41 a.m. and arrived at the hospital at 2:06 a.m.—a journey time of approximately 26 minutes. This included a stop at the Gare d'Austerlitz ordered by Dr Martino because of the drop in the blood pressure of the Princess of Wales and the necessity to deal with it. The ambulance was travelling slowly on his express instructions. The doctor was concerned about Diana's blood pressure and the effects on her medical condition of deceleration and acceleration.^[98]

The SAMU ambulance carrying Diana passed the Hôtel-Dieu Hospital on the Ile de la Cité en route to the Pitié-Salpêtrière Hospital. The decision to transfer her to the Pitié-Salpêtrière Hospital was taken by Dr Marc Lejay who was on despatch duty in SAMU Control on that night, in consultation with Dr Derossi, who was at the scene. The Pitié-Salpêtrière Hospital was the main reception centre for multiple trauma patients in Paris. The Hôtel-Dieu was not equipped to deal with the injuries Diana had sustained. Lejay stated: "The Hôtel-Dieu hospital on the 'Ile de la Cité' is closer but not equipped with heart surgery teams or neurosurgical teams or teams trained to take patients with multiple injuries." Lejay was also aware that Professor Bruno Riou was on duty at the Pitié-Salpêtrière that night and was particularly skilled to treat her injuries. Dr Jean-Marc Martino supported this view.^[99]

Embalming of the body

Mohamed Al-Fayed alleged that Diana's body was deliberately embalmed shortly after her death to ensure that any pregnancy test at the post-mortem would produce a false result.

Operation Paget found that 31 August 1997 was a very hot day in Paris. Diana's body had been stored in an empty room adjacent to the emergency room where she had been treated at the Pitié-Salpêtrière Hospital, as the mortuary was on the other side of the hospital grounds and some distance away. Dry ice and air conditioning units were placed in the room to keep it cool but appeared to have had little success.^[100]

Diana's two sisters and Prince Charles were scheduled to view the body later that afternoon before bringing it back to the United Kingdom. President Jacques Chirac and his wife also wished to pay their respects. This meant there was very little time to prepare the body for viewing, and it was deemed unacceptable to present Diana's body to her family and the President of France in the state it was in. Faced with this situation, the hospital staff decided to press ahead with embalming with only verbal authority from Madame Martine Monteil, the local superintendent of police, who assured Jean Monceau "that everything would be in order". Under French law, paperwork must be completed before undertaking the embalming of any corpse likely to be subject to a post-mortem. This paperwork was completed, but only after the embalming had been carried out, giving rise to allegations of suspicious circumstances. The allegations were made despite there being no way the hospital staff could have known whether or not Diana was pregnant, as a pregnancy test would have been irrelevant to her post crash treatment and accordingly was not carried out.^[101]

SAS

The Court Martial of SAS Sniper Danny Nightingale led to a letter written by witness, Soldier N, and sent to his in-laws coming to wider attention. Soldier N, Nightingale's former roommate, was in prison for illegally hiding firearms and ammunition. On 17 August 2013, the Metropolitan Police announced they were reviewing evidence that Soldier N had boasted that the SAS were behind the death of Princess Diana.^[102] The parents of Soldier N's estranged wife reportedly wrote to the SAS's commanding officer, claiming Soldier N had told his wife the unit "arranged" Diana's death and it was "covered up".^{[103][104]} The information was reportedly passed onto Scotland Yard by the Royal Military Police. However, Scotland Yard stressed that this information would not lead to a re-investigation and that they were examining its "relevance and credibility".^[105] They also confirmed that Prince Charles and Mohamed Al-Fayed were being kept informed as preliminary examination progressed. At the end of November 2013, Scotland Yard ended its study of the SAS allegations and released a statement: "The Metropolitan Police Service has scoped the information and is in the process of drawing up conclusions, which will be communicated to the families and interested parties first, before any further comment can be made,"^[106] On 16 December, it emerged from Sky News reports that there was "no credible evidence" that the SAS was involved in the death of the Princess and the others, and thus no reason to re-open the investigation.^{[107][108]}

Conspiracy theories in other media

The Murder of Princess Diana is a bestselling 2004 book by British journalist Noel Botham which disputes the official version of events and suggests an orchestrated conspiracy. A fictionalised telemovie adaptation, The Murder of Princess Diana was later released.

Unlawful Killing, a British documentary film about the deaths of Diana and Dodi, was shown May 2011 in Cannes, while the 2011 Cannes Film Festival was in progress. It was directed by Keith Allen and funded by Mohamed Al-Fayed. The film was not shown in British cinemas; lawyers for the producers suggested that 87 cuts needed to be made before it could be certified for release.^[109] Following its failure to gain insurance against possible legal action, following putative distribution in the United States, the film was shelved in 2012.^[110]

Notes and references

- ^[109] "Anniversary in the papers" (http://news.bbc.co.uk/2/hi/uk_news/161091.stm). BBC. 30 August 1998. Retrieved 29 May 2018.
- Paul Webster and Stuart Millar "Diana verdict sparks Fayed appeal" (<https://www.theguardian.com/uk/1999/sep/04/monarchy.paulwebster>), The Guardian, 5 September 1999
- Martyn Gregory "Stranded on Planet Fayed" (<http://www.spectator.co.uk/features/33084/stranded-on-planet-fayed/>), The Spectator, 27 June 2007
- "Diana jury blames paparazzi and Henri Paul for her 'unlawful killing' " (<https://www.telegraph.co.uk/news/uknews/1584160/Diana-jury-blames-paparazzi-and-Henri-Paul-for-her-unlawful-killing.html>). Daily Telegraph. 7 April 2008. Retrieved 12 October 2013.
- Scott Baker's hearing transcripts at the verdict (http://webarchive.nationalarchives.gov.uk/20080521144222/http://www.scottbaker-inquests.gov.uk/hearing_transcripts/verdict.htm)
- Tina Brown The Diana Chronicles (<https://books.google.com/books?id=bKKXzseSgi0C&pg=PA406>), Random House, 2007, p.406
- Louise Jack "The Express' and Diana: Cover-ups, spies and conspiracies" (<https://www.independent.co.uk/news/media/the-express-and-diana-coverups-spies-and-conspiracies-429277.html>), The Independent, 18 December 2006
- "Diana letter 'warned of car plot' " (<http://www.cnn.com/2003/WORLD/europe/10/20/diana.letter/>). CNN. 20 October 2003. Retrieved 14 April 2019.
- Eleftheriou-Smith, Loulla-Mae (30 August 2017). "Princess Diana letter claims Prince Charles was 'planning an accident' in her car just 10 months before fatal crash" (<https://www.independent.co.uk/news/uk/home-news/princess-diana-death-letter-prince-charles-accident-plan-car-paris-tunnel-crash-10-months-a7918671.html>). The Independent. Retrieved 14 April 2019.
- Rayner, Gordon (20 December 2007). "Princess Diana letter: 'Charles plans to kill me'" (<https://www.telegraph.co.uk/news/uknews/1573170/Princess-Diana-letter-Charles-plans-to-kill-me.html>). The Telegraph. Retrieved 28 November 2020.
- Martyn Gregory "Al-Fayed can't rewrite the death of Diana" (<https://www.independent.co.uk/voices/commentators/martyn-gregory-alfayed-cant-rewrite-the-death-of-diana-394391.html>), The Independent, 7 October 2007
- Gordon Rayner "Coroner: No evidence Diana was murdered" (<https://www.telegraph.co.uk/news/uknews/1583367/Coroner-No-evidence-Diana-was-murdered.html>), telegraph.co.uk, 31 March 2008
- Stephen Bates "No evidence Diana killed by MI6, coroner tells jury" (<https://www.theguardian.com/uk/2008/apr/01/diana.monarchy>), The Guardian, 1 April 2008
- "Diana murdered, Al Fayed claims" (<http://news.bbc.co.uk/1/hi/uk/7250002.stm>), BBC News, 18 February 2008
- Verkaik, Robert (5 October 2007). "CCTV footage suggests Henri Paul tipped off paparazzi about Diana's movements" (<https://www.independent.co.uk/news/uk/crime/cctv-footage-suggests-henri-paul-tipped-off-paparazzi-about-dianas-movements-396029.html>). The Independent. London. Retrieved 2 November 2010.
- "Lord Stevens report: Claims and conclusions" (<https://www.telegraph.co.uk/news/uknews/1544282/Lord-Stevens-report-Claims-and-conclusions.html>). The Telegraph. 2 March 2007. Retrieved 18 October 2016.
- "Driver with a drinking problem and more comfortable in a Mini" (<https://www.theguardian.com/uk/2008/apr/08/diana.monarchy>). The Guardian. 8 April 2008.

18. "Q&A: What really happened" (<http://news.bbc.co.uk/1/hi/programmes/6162121.stm>), BBC News, 8 April 2008
19. Martyn Gregory Diana: The Last Days (<https://books.google.com/books?id=vZPJwm6ITMC&pg=PT122&lpg=PT122>), p.122
20. Clive Myrie "A tragic end to a day in Paris" (<http://news.bbc.co.uk/1/hi/uk/7335453.stm>), BBC News, 7 April 2008
21. Andrew Alderson "Stevens faces grilling over Diana's driver" (<https://www.telegraph.co.uk/news/uknews/1578182/Stevens-faces-grilling-over-Dianas-driver.html>), telegraph.co.uk, 10 February 2008
22. Paul Cheston and Robert Jobson "Stevens must explain 'drunk'U-turn" (<https://www.standard.co.uk/news/stevens-must-explain-drunkuturn-6681801.html>), Evening Standard, 3 October 2007
23. "Lord Stevens demands apology for Al Fayed allegations 'that he failed to properly investigate Diana's death'" (<https://www.standard.co.uk/news/lord-stevens-demands-apology-for-al-fayed-allegations-that-he-failed-to-properly-investigate-dianas-death-7301258.html>), Evening Standard, 15 February 2008
24. Alleyne, Richard (22 January 2008). "Diana's driver had 'up to eight drinks'" (<https://www.telegraph.co.uk/news/uknews/1576216/Dianas-driver-had-up-to-eight-drinks.html>). The Telegraph. Retrieved 18 October 2016.
25. Martyn Gregory Diana: The Last Days (<https://books.google.com/books?id=vZPJwm6ITMC&pg=PT124>), Random House, 2010, p.74
26. "A tender touch, minutes before death drive" (<http://www.scotsman.com/news/uk/a-tender-touch-minutes-before-death-drive-1-693975>), The Scotsman, 5 October 2007
27. Pierce, Andrew (9 December 2006). "DNA tests prove Diana's driver was drunk, says BBC television documentary" (<https://www.telegraph.co.uk/news/uknews/1536398/DNA-tests-prove-Dianas-driver-was-drunk-says-BBC-television-documentary.html>). The Daily Telegraph. London. Retrieved 2 November 2010.
28. "Richard Tomlinson and the Big Breach" (<http://www.mi5.com/security/mi6org/tomlinson.htm>), MI5 website
29. "Tomlinson deposition" (http://www.inside-news.ch/Tomlinson/Tomlinson_deposition.htm) Archived (https://web.archive.org/web/20150503221152/http://www.inside-news.ch/Tomlinson/Tomlinson_deposition.htm) 2015-05-03 at the Wayback Machine, Inside News website (Switzerland)
30. "Ex-spy speaks to Diana inquiry" (<http://news.bbc.co.uk/1/hi/uk/160515.stm>), BBC News, 28 August 1998
31. "MI6 'Diana-style' plot dismissed" (<http://news.bbc.co.uk/1/hi/uk/7243053.stm>), BBC News, 13 February 2008
32. Nick Allen "Diana inquest: MI6 'plotted tunnel murder'" (<https://www.telegraph.co.uk/news/uknews/1578498/Diana-inquest-MI6-plotted-tunnel-murder.html>), The Telegraph, 12 February 2013
33. Allen, Nick (14 February 2008). "Princess Diana 'could have been killed by MI6'" (<https://www.telegraph.co.uk/news/uknews/1578621/Princess-Diana-could-have-been-killed-by-MI6.html>). The Telegraph. Retrieved 19 October 2016.
34. Balakrishnan, Angela (7 April 2008). "Pregnancy rumours, MI6 plots and Henri Paul" (<https://www.theguardian.com/uk/2008/apr/07/diana.monarchy1>). The Guardian. Retrieved 16 October 2016.
35. Palmer, Richard (14 February 2008). "Diana death crash was 'just like a plot by MI6'" (<http://www.express.co.uk/dianainquest/34939/Diana-death-crash-was-just-like-a-plot-by-MI6>). Daily Express. Retrieved 19 October 2016.
36. Palmer, Richard (8 April 2008). "Diana: Why the conspiracy theories died" (<http://www.express.co.uk/dianainquest/40646/Diana-Why-the-conspiracy-theories-died>). Daily Express. Retrieved 19 October 2016.
37. "Diana inquest: Key events" (http://news.bbc.co.uk/2/hi/uk_news/7026611.stm). BBC. 7 April 2008. Retrieved 19 October 2016.

38. "The detail of the investigation into the claims of Richard Tomlinson are in Chapter 16 of the Operation Paget report" (<https://www.webcitation.org/6GJ3f2u6Z?url=http://web.archive.org/web/20100704230302/http://www.met.police.uk/news/docs/OperationPagetReport.pdf>) (PDF). Metropolitan Police. Archived from the original (<http://www.met.police.uk/news/docs/OperationPagetReport.pdf>) (PDF) on 2 May 2013. Retrieved 2 November 2010.
39. "Intelligence: NZ's Tomlinson Draws MI6 Wrath Again" (<http://www.scoop.co.nz/stories/HL0607/S00040.htm>). New Zealand's Independent News Media. 5 July 2006. Retrieved 2 November 2010.
40. "The detail of the investigation into the claims of pregnancy and the nature of her relationship with Dodi Fayed are in Chapter 1 of the Operation Paget report" (<https://www.webcitation.org/6GJ3f2u6Z?url=http://web.archive.org/web/20100704230302/http://www.met.police.uk/news/docs/OperationPagetReport.pdf>) (PDF). Metropolitan Police. Archived from the original (<http://www.met.police.uk/news/docs/OperationPagetReport.pdf>) (PDF) on 2 May 2013. Retrieved 2 November 2010.
41. Stephen Bates "They're all guilty? 'Definitely.' Fayed gets his day in court" (<https://www.theguardian.com/uk/2008/feb/19/diana.monarchy>), The Guardian, 19 February 2008
42. John David Bausch "Executive Intelligence Review" in Peter Knight (ed.) Conspiracy Theories in American History: An Encyclopedia (<https://books.google.com/books?id=qMIDrpgs8TsC&pg=PA246>), Santa Barbara, California: ABC-CLIO, p.246
43. Ambrose Evans Pritchard "US cult is source of theories" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20050412210745/http://www.telegraph.co.uk/htmlContent.jhtml?html=%2Farchive%2F1998%2F06%2F04%2Fndi104.html>), The Daily Telegraph, 4 June 1998
44. Francis Wheen "Francis Wheen on: conspiracy theories, Blair and Clinton vs Slobodan, and Labour's lucky escape" (<https://www.theguardian.com/theguardian/1999/may/19/features11.g24>), The Guardian, 19 May 1999
45. Operation Paget report (https://downloads.bbc.co.uk/news/nol/shared/bsp/hi/pdfs/14_12_06_diana_report.pdf) (PDF). BBC. 14 December 2006. p. 86. Retrieved 20 October 2016.
46. Gordon Rayner and Richard Holt "Princess Diana jury shown CCTV footage" (<https://www.telegraph.co.uk/news/uknews/1564972/Princess-Diana-jury-shown-CCTV-footage.html>), telegraph.co.uk, 3 October 2007
47. Operation Paget Report, pp. 54-78
48. Tina Brown The Diana Chronicles, p.17
49. "No paparazzi conspiracy to kill Diana - and journalists deny she wanted to marry Dodi" (<http://www.pressgazette.co.uk/node/36446>) Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20140528050021/http://www.pressgazette.co.uk/node/36446>) 2014-05-28 at the Wayback Machine, Press Gazette, 16 December 2006
50. Operation Paget Report, page 26
51. Angela Balakrishnan "Pregnancy rumours, MI6 plots and Henri Paul" (<https://www.theguardian.com/uk/2008/apr/07/diana.monarchy1>), theguardian.com, 7 April 2008
52. "Reaction to Diana report findings" (<http://news.bbc.co.uk/1/hi/uk/6180239.stm>). BBC News. 14 December 2006. Retrieved 21 October 2007.
53. "A 'public inquiry in all but name'" (<http://news.bbc.co.uk/1/hi/uk/7031092.stm>). BBC News. 6 October 2007. Retrieved 19 October 2007.
54. Operation Paget Report, pp. 121-129
55. Operation Paget Report, pp. 20-25
56. Stephen Bates "Diana conspiracy theory unravels as Fayed's investigator tells of lies and lack of evidence" (<https://www.theguardian.com/uk/2008/feb/15/monarchy>), The Guardian, 15 February 2008
57. "Diana was not pregnant - coroner" (http://news.bbc.co.uk/2/hi/uk_news/3376857.stm). BBC. 7 January 2004. Retrieved 29 May 2018.
58. Operation Paget Report, p. 82

59. Operation Paget report (https://downloads.bbc.co.uk/news/nol/shared/bsp/hi/pdfs/14_12_06_diana_report.pdf) (PDF). p. 93.
60. Operation Paget Report, pages 668-671
61. "BBC News article on outcome of copyright case involving Reuben Murrell" (<http://news.bbc.co.uk/1/hi/uk/638181.stm>). BBC. 10 February 2000. Retrieved 2 January 2010.
62. "Full text of judgement on copyright case involving Reuben Murrell" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20081025022029/http://www.hmcourts-service.gov.uk/judgmentsfiles/j495/hydepark.htm>). HM Courts Service. Archived from the original (<http://www.hmcourts-service.gov.uk/judgmentsfiles/j495/hydepark.htm>) on 2008-10-25. Retrieved 2008-05-11.
63. "The details of the deteriorating relationship between Mohamed Al-Fayed and bodyguards associated with the deaths of his son and Princess Diana are in Chapter 13 of the Operation Paget report" (<https://www.webcitation.org/6GJ3f2u6Z?url=http://web.archive.org/web/20100704230302/http://www.met.police.uk/news/docs/OperationPagetReport.pdf>) (PDF). Metropolitan Police. Archived from the original (<http://www.met.police.uk/news/docs/OperationPagetReport.pdf>) (PDF) on 2013-05-02. Retrieved 2008-05-11.
64. "The Diana Conspiracy - 2004 Channel 4 Documentary" (<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=J1DSMWUv3Ao>). YouTube. Retrieved 16 October 2016.
65. "Princess Diana's death: the conspiracy theories" (<https://www.telegraph.co.uk/news/uknews/theroyalfamily/10250727/Princess-Dianas-death-the-conspiracy-theories.html>). The Daily Telegraph. 18 August 2013. Retrieved 17 October 2016.
66. Operation Paget report (https://downloads.bbc.co.uk/news/nol/shared/bsp/hi/pdfs/14_12_06_diana_report.pdf) (PDF). p. 402.
67. "The details of the investigation of the allegations surrounding the white Fiat Uno are in chapter 14 of the Operation Paget report" (<https://www.webcitation.org/6GJ3f2u6Z?url=http://web.archive.org/web/20100704230302/http://www.met.police.uk/news/docs/OperationPagetReport.pdf>) (PDF). Metropolitan Police. Archived from the original (<http://www.met.police.uk/news/docs/OperationPagetReport.pdf>) (PDF) on 2013-05-02. Retrieved 2008-05-11.
68. Gregory, Martyn (24 August 2017). "Beach BBQs with Dodi, rows with bodyguards and that 'engagement ring'... The truth about the last week of Princess Diana's life" (<https://www.telegraph.co.uk/women/life/beach-bbqs-dodi-rows-bodyguards-engagement-ring-truth-last-week/>). The Daily Telegraph. Retrieved 29 May 2018.
69. Gregory, p.140
70. Elizabeth Stewart "Diana inquest hears Fiat conspiracy theory" (<https://www.theguardian.com/uk/2008/feb/05/monarchy>), theguardian.com, 5 February 2008
71. Martyn Gregory Diana: The Last Days (<https://books.google.com/books?id=vZPJw6ITMC&pg=PT129>), Random House, 2010, p.129
72. Operation Paget report (https://downloads.bbc.co.uk/news/nol/shared/bsp/hi/pdfs/14_12_06_diana_report.pdf) (PDF). p. 728.
73. Pavia, Will (21 February 2008). "James Andanson was 'at home on night of Diana crash'" (<http://www.thetimes.co.uk/tto/news/uk/article1917310.ece>). The Times. London. Retrieved 12 January 2016. (subscription required)
74. Gregory Diana: The Last Days, p.130
75. "Diana inquest told dead photographer had hole in his head" (<https://www.irishexaminer.com/ireland/diana-inquest-told-dead-photographer-had-hole-in-his-head-54721.html>). The Irish Examiner.
76. "The main players in a tragic story: what we now know" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20071104114252/http://news.independent.co.uk/uk/legal/article2076155.ece>). The Independent. London. 15 December 2006. Archived from the original (<http://news.independent.co.uk/uk/legal/article2076155.ece>) on 4 November 2007. Retrieved 22 October 2007.
77. "Diana: Secret Documents Revealed" (<http://www.cbsnews.com/news/diana-secret-documents-revealed/>). CBS News. 20 April 2004. Retrieved 13 January 2016.

78. Pallister, David (30 October 2007). "Diana's driver behaved like an alcoholic, witness says" (<https://www.irishtimes.com/news/diana-s-driver-behaved-like-an-alcoholic-witness-says-1.977282>). Irish Times. Retrieved 23 October 2018.
79. Rayner, Gordon (7 April 2008). "Inquest shed light on mystery of white Fiat Uno" (<https://www.telegraph.co.uk/news/uknews/1584166/Inquest-shed-light-on-mystery-of-white-Fiat-Uno.html>). The Daily Telegraph. Retrieved 23 October 2018.
80. "Accident or assassination?: Diana: a bluffer's guide" (<https://www.independent.co.uk/news/uk/crime/accident-or-assassination-diana-a-bluffers-guide-765590.html>). The Independent. 16 December 2007. Retrieved 23 October 2018.
81. "Princess Diana remembered: Conspiracy theories surrounding her death" (<https://www.foxnews.com/entertainment/princess-diana-remembered-conspiracy-theories-surrounding-her-death>). Fox News. 25 August 2017. Retrieved 23 October 2018.
82. Gordon Rayner "Diana witness: crash was like an explosion" (<https://www.telegraph.co.uk/news/uknews/1566393/Diana-witness-crash-was-like-an-explosion.html>), telegraph.co.uk, 17 October 2007
83. Gregory Diana: The Last Day (<https://books.google.com/books?id=vZPJjwm6ITMC&pg=PT89>), p.89
84. Martyn Gregory "Of course there was no 'flash before the crash'" (<http://www.spectator.co.uk/features/292166/of-course-there-was-no-flash-before-the-crash/>), The Spectator, 24 October 2007
85. Gregory Diana: The Last Days (<https://books.google.com/books?id=vZPJjwm6ITMC&pg=PT69&lpg=PT69>), p.69
86. Gregory Diana: The Last Days (<https://books.google.com/books?id=vZPJjwm6ITMC&pg=PT143>), p.143
87. James Orr "Diana crash witness tells of 'white flash'" (<https://www.theguardian.com/uk/2007/oct/15/moarchy>), theguardian.com, 15 October 2007
88. "The main players in a tragic story: what we now know" (<https://www.independent.co.uk/news/uk/crime/the-main-players-in-a-tragic-story-what-we-now-know-428562.html>). The Independent. 15 December 2006.
89. How Diana Died: The Conspiracy Files (http://news.bbc.co.uk/1/shared/spl/hi/programmes/if/transcripts/how_diana_died.txt), BBC Two, 10 December 2006 (BBC transcript); "How Diana Died: The Conspiracy Files" (<http://news.bbc.co.uk/1/hi/6159583.stm>), BBC News, 7 December 2006
90. "The details of the investigation of the allegations surrounding the alleged bright flash are in chapter 7 of the Operation Paget report" (<https://www.webcitation.org/6GJ3f2u6Z?url=http://web.archive.org/web/20100704230302/http://www.met.police.uk/news/docs/OperationPagetReport.pdf>) (PDF). Metropolitan Police. Archived from the original (<http://www.met.police.uk/news/docs/OperationPagetReport.pdf>) (PDF) on 2013-05-02. Retrieved 2008-05-11.
91. "Express Claims Diana's Seatbelt May Have Been 'Sabotaged'" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20080804163731/http://www.theroyalist.net/content/view/633/2/>). The Royalist. Archived from the original (<http://www.theroyalist.net/content/view/633/2/>) on 2008-08-04.
92. "'She was religious in putting on her seat belt:' Princess Diana's sister speaks out" (<https://abcnews.go.com/GMA/video/religious-putting-seat-belt-princess-dianas-sister-speaks-49460444>). ABC News. 28 August 2017. Retrieved 29 May 2018.
93. "DNA evidence shows Diana's driver drunk: BBC" (<https://www.cbc.ca/news/world/dna-evidence-shows-diana-s-driver-drunk-bbc-1.600682>). CBC News. 9 December 2006.
94. "Could a seat belt have saved Diana?" (<http://www.cnn.com/WORLD/9709/05/crash.analysis/>). CNN. 5 September 1997. Retrieved 1 May 2010.
95. "Operation Paget Report, page 421" (<https://www.webcitation.org/6GJ3f2u6Z?url=http://web.archive.org/web/20100704230302/http://www.met.police.uk/news/docs/OperationPagetReport.pdf>) (PDF). Metropolitan Police. Archived from the original (<http://www.met.police.uk/news/docs/OperationPagetReport.pdf>) (PDF) on 2013-05-02. Retrieved 2008-05-11.

96. "Coroner's inquests into the deaths of Diana, Princess of Wales and Mr Dodi Al Fayed" (http://webarhive.nationalarchives.gov.uk/20080521144323/http://www.scottbaker-inquests.gov.uk/hearing_transcripts/verdict.htm). scottbaker-inquests.gov.uk. Archived from the original (http://www.scottbaker-inquests.gov.uk/hearing_transcripts/verdict.htm) on May 21, 2008.
97. Hitchens, Christopher (June 2007). "'Princess Diana - The Witnesses in the Tunnel'" (https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=_1YtUqz0xNY). Britain's Channel 4. Retrieved 26 March 2018.
98. Operation Paget Report, pp. 525-527
99. "The issue of post-crash medical treatment of the Princess of Wales is dealt with in Chapter Eight of the Operation Paget Report" (<https://www.webcitation.org/6GJ3f2u6Z?url=http://web.archive.org/web/20100704230302/http://www.met.police.uk/news/docs/OperationPagetReport.pdf>) (PDF). Metropolitan Police. Archived from the original (<http://www.met.police.uk/news/docs/OperationPagetReport.pdf>) (PDF) on 2013-05-02. Retrieved 2008-05-11.
00. The Operation Paget inquiry report into the allegation of conspiracy to murder (<http://www.met.police.uk/news/docs/OperationPagetReport.pdf>) Archived (<https://www.webcitation.org/6GJ3f2u6Z?url=http://web.archive.org/web/20100704230302/http://www.met.police.uk/news/docs/OperationPagetReport.pdf>) 2013-05-02 at WebCite Metropolitan Police Service, 2006-12-14, Chapter 9, page 532, paragraph 4, page 538, statement 177: 'Jean Monceau is an experienced embalmer. ... He believed she needed to be embalmed. This was principally for presentation purposes before the Princess of Wales's family ...', page 539: 'I suggested arterial injections to preserve the body from the proliferation of bacteria (odours and change of colour), especially given that the heat in the room where the body was, being so high was a contributory factor.'
01. Operation Paget Report, Chapter Nine
02. "Report: Princess Diana Death Probe: British Media Reports Allegation That Royal's Death Was No Accident" (<http://gma.yahoo.com/princess-diana-death-probe-british-media-reports-allegation-170105344--abc-news-topstories.html?vp=1/>), ABC News, 19 August 2013
03. "Diana letter: were the SAS involved in her death?" (<http://www.channel4.com/news/princess-diana-death-sas-letter-dodi-al-fayed-letter>), Channel 4 News, 18 August 2013
04. Sam Marsden, and Ben Farmer "Royal bodyguards' shock at claims SAS killed Princess Diana" (<http://www.telegraph.co.uk/news/newstopics/diana/10250966/Royal-bodyguards-shock-at-claims-SAS-killed-Princess-Diana.html>), telegraph.co.uk, 18 August 2013
05. Richard Osley "Scotland Yard to assess fresh claims over death of Princess Diana" (<https://www.independent.co.uk/news/uk/crime/scotland-yard-to-assess-fresh-claims-over-death-of-princess-diana-8772691.html>), The Independent, 18 August 2013
06. Richard Eden "Princes William and Harry to learn 'truth' of Diana murder claims" (<https://www.telegraph.co.uk/news/uknews/theroyalfamily/10486123/Princes-William-and-Harry-to-learn-truth-of-Diana-murder-claims.html>), telegraph.co.uk, 1 December 2013
07. Hayley Dixon "Princess Diana was not murdered by SAS, Met Police say" (<https://www.telegraph.co.uk/news/newstopics/diana/10521651/Princess-Diana-was-not-murdered-by-SAS-Met-Police-say.html>), telegraph.co.uk, 16 December 2013
08. Press Association "Diana, Princess of Wales death: no evidence SAS was involved, says Met" (<http://www.theguardian.com/uk-news/2013/dec/16/diana-princess-wales-death-sas-no-evidence>), theguardian.com, 16 December 2013
09. Higgins, Charlotte (13 May 2011). "Not for British eyes: Keith Allen's Diana film seeks headlines in Cannes" (<https://www.theguardian.com/film/2011/may/13/keith-allen-diana-film-cannes>). The Guardian. London.
10. Child, Ben (5 July 2012). "Princess Diana documentary Unlawful Killing is shelved" (<https://www.theguardian.com/film/2012/jul/05/princess-diana-documentary-unlawful-killing>). The Guardian.

Retrieved from "https://en.wikipedia.org/w/index.php?title=Death_of_Diana,_Princess_of_Wales,_conspiracy_theories&oldid=1024680670"

This page was last edited on 23 May 2021, at 15:25 (UTC).

Text is available under the Creative Commons Attribution-ShareAlike License; additional terms may apply. By using this site, you agree to the Terms of Use and Privacy Policy. Wikipedia® is a registered trademark of the Wikimedia Foundation, Inc., a non-profit organization.

Denver International Airport

Denver International Airport (IATA: DEN, ICAO: KDEN, FAA LID: DEN), locally known as DIA, is an international airport in the Western United States, primarily serving metropolitan Denver, Colorado, as well as the greater Front Range Urban Corridor. At 33,531 acres (52.4 sq mi; 135.7 km²),^[3] it is the largest airport in North America by land area and the second largest in the world, behind King Fahd International Airport.^[4] Runway 16R/34L, with a length of 16,000 feet (3.03 mi; 4.88 km), is the longest public use runway in North America and the seventh longest in the world. The airport is 25 miles (40 km) driving distance from Downtown Denver,^[5] which is 19 miles (31 km) farther away than Stapleton International Airport, the airport DIA replaced.^[6]

Opened in 1995, DEN currently has non-stop service to 215 destinations amongst 23 different airlines throughout North America, Latin America, Europe, and Asia; it is the fourth airport in the U.S. to exceed 200 destinations.^[7] The airport is a hub for both United Airlines and Frontier Airlines and a base for Southwest Airlines. With over 35,000 employees, the airport is the largest employer in Colorado. The airport is located on the western edge of the Great Plains and within sight of the Front Range of the Rocky Mountains.

Contents

History

Facilities

Terminal

Art & Aesthetics

Ground transportation

Airlines and destinations

Passenger

Cargo

Statistics

Top destinations

Annual traffic

Airline market share

Denver International Airport

IATA: DEN · ICAO: KDEN · FAA LID: DEN · WMO: 72565

Summary

Airport type	Public
Owner	City & County of Denver Department of Aviation
Operator	City & County of Denver Department of Aviation
Serves	 Denver , Front Range Urban Corridor
Location	Northeast Denver , Colorado , U.S.
Opened	February 28, 1995
Hub for	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Frontier Airlines United Airlines
Focus city for	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Southwest Airlines
Elevation AMSL	5,434 ft / 1,656 m
Coordinates	39°51′42″N 104°40′23″W﻿ / ﻿39.86167°N 104.67306°W﻿ / 39.86167; -104.67306
Website	 flydenver.com (http://www.flydenver.com)

Accidents and incidents

See also

References

External links

History

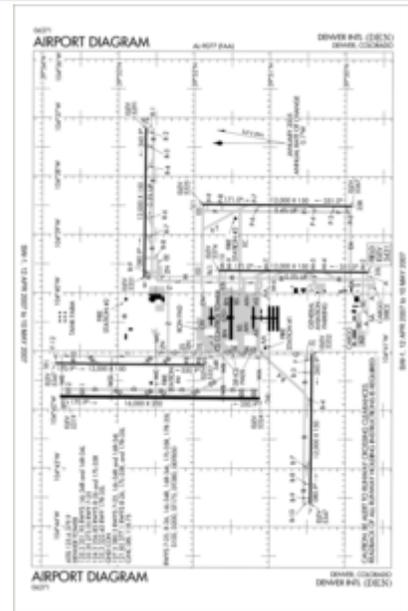

The Air Traffic Control Tower and Concourse C at Denver International Airport with a United Airlines Boeing 737-800 taxiing below

Denver has traditionally been home to one of the busier airports in the United States because of its location. Many airlines, including United Airlines, Western Airlines, former Frontier Airlines, Continental Airlines and People Express were hubbed at the former Stapleton International Airport. At times, Stapleton was a hub for three or four airlines. Reasons that justified the construction of the new DEN were that space was severely limited at Stapleton, and its runways were unable to deal efficiently with Denver's weather and wind patterns, causing nationwide travel disruption.

From 1980 to 1983, the Denver Regional Council of Governments (DRCOG) investigated six areas for a new metro area airport that were north and east of Denver. In September 1989, under the leadership of Denver Mayor Federico Peña, federal officials authorized the outlay of the first $60 million (equivalent to $125 million today) for the construction of DEN. Two years later, Mayor Wellington Webb inherited the megaproject, scheduled to open on October 29, 1993.^[8]

Delays caused by poor planning and repeated design changes due to changing requirements from United Airlines caused Mayor Webb to push opening day back, first to December 1993, then to March 1994. By September 1993, delays due to a millwright strike and other events meant opening day was pushed back

Maps

FAA airport diagram

- Show map of the United States
- Show map of Colorado
- Show all

Runways

Direction	Length		Surface
	ft	m
7/25	12,000	3,658	Concrete
8/26	12,000	3,658	Concrete
16L/34R	12,000	3,658	Concrete
16R/34L	16,000	4,877	Concrete
17L/35R	12,000	3,658	Concrete
17R/35L	12,000	3,658	Concrete

Statistics (2020)

Passengers	33,741,129
Aircraft operations	442,571
Total cargo (lbs.)	661,094,348
Economic impact (2018)	$33.5 billion ^[1]

Source: Denver International Airport^[2]

again, to May 15, 1994. In April 1994, the city invited reporters to observe the first test of the new automated baggage system. Reporters were treated to scenes of clothing and other personal effects scattered beneath the system's tracks, while the actuators that moved luggage from belt to belt would often toss the luggage right off the system instead. The mayor cancelled the planned May 15 opening. The baggage system continued to be a maintenance hassle and was finally terminated in September 2005, with traditional baggage handlers manually handling cargo and passenger luggage.^[9] On September 25, 1994, the airport hosted a fly-in that drew several hundred general aviation aircraft, providing pilots with a unique opportunity to operate in and out of the new airport, and to wander around on foot looking at the ground-side facilities—including the baggage system, which was still under testing. FAA controllers also took advantage of the event to test procedures, and to check for holes in radio coverage as planes taxied around and among the buildings.

DEN finally replaced Stapleton on February 28, 1995, 16 months behind schedule and at a cost of $4.8 billion (equivalent to $8.2 billion today),^[10] nearly $2 billion over budget ($3.4 billion today).^[6] The construction employed 11,000 workers.^[11] United Airlines Flight 1062 to Kansas City International Airport was the first to depart DIA and United Flight 1474 from Colorado Springs Airport was the first to arrive at the new airport.^[6] After the airport's runways were completed but before it opened, the airport used the codes (IATA: DVX, ICAO: KD VX). DIA later took over (IATA: DEN, ICAO: KD EN) as its codes from Stapleton when the latter airport closed.

In September 2003, the sixth and longest runway – 16R/34L – was added; at 16,000 ft (3.0 mi; 4.9 km), it is 4,000 ft (0.76 mi; 1.2 km) longer than the other runways. Its length – exceeded by only six other runways in the world – allows fully-laden Airbus A380s and Boeing 747-8s to take off in hot and high conditions at the airport, which is roughly 1 mi (1.6 km) above sea level.

During a blizzard on March 17–19, 2003, the weight of heavy snow tore a hole in the terminal's white fabric roof, and over 2 feet (0.61 m) of snow on paved areas closed the airport and its main access road (Peña Boulevard) for almost two days, stranding several thousand people.^{[12][13]}

In 2004, DEN was ranked first in major airports for on-time arrivals according to the FAA. Another blizzard on December 20–21, 2006, dumped over 20 inches (51 cm) of snow in about 24 hours. The airport was closed for more than 45 hours, stranding thousands.^[14] Following this, the airport invested heavily in new snow-removal equipment that has led to a dramatic reduction in runway occupancy times to clear snow, down from an average of 45 minutes in 2006 to just 15 minutes in 2014.

After shunning DEN for over a decade due to high fees, Southwest Airlines entered the airport in January 2006 with 13 daily flights.^[15] Southwest has since rapidly expanded and is now the airport's second-largest carrier after United.^[16]

On September 9, 2015, a political campaign was launched by Mayor Michael Hancock to radically expand commercial development at DIA, development previously prohibited by intergovernmental agreement between Denver and Adams County.^[17] The changes to the agreement were approved by both Denver and Adams County voters in November 2015.^[18] On November 19, 2015, the first part of a Hotel and Transit Center, the hotel, opened adjacent to the Jeppesen Terminal. On April 22, 2016, commuter rail service to the Hotel and Transit Center from Denver Union Station began.

A Southwest Airlines Boeing 737-800 taxis north at Denver International Airport.

In 2018, work began on a major interior renovation and reconfiguration including the beginning phases of construction to relocate two out of the three TSA security checkpoints from the Great Hall on Level 5 to Level 6 (East & West) while simultaneously updating and consolidating airline ticket counters/check-in for all airlines. Eventually, both pre- and post-security gathering and leisure areas will be incorporated into the spaces where both expansive TSA security areas on Level 5 are currently located. The third TSA security checkpoint currently accessible via the Concourse A bridge is expected to be removed. The renovation and reconfiguration will bring back the original intent and use of the Great Hall as a large commons area for airport patrons and visitors to enjoy. This phased terminal project is expected to be completed by 2025.^[19]

Additionally, work is underway on expanding all three concourses, with 12 new gates being added to A (including several gates with direct access to U.S. Customs and Border Protection), 11 to B, and 16 to C for a total of 39 gates.^[20] Following the completion of this project, United Airlines will lease 24 additional gates on both A and B (bringing its total gate count at DEN to around 90), as well as build a new United Club in A and expand their existing clubs in B.^[21] Southwest Airlines will lease 16 of the new gates on C bringing its total gate count at DEN to 40.^[22] When both the ongoing terminal and concourse projects are completed, the airport will be able to handle upwards of 90 million passengers per year.^[23]

Facilities

The airport is 25 miles (40 km) driving distance from Downtown Denver, which is 19 miles (31 km) farther away than Stapleton International Airport, the airport DIA replaced.^[6] The distant location was chosen to avoid aircraft noise affecting developed areas, to accommodate a generous runway layout that would not be compromised by blizzards, and to allow for future expansion.

The 52.4 square miles (136 km²; 33,500 acres)^[3] of land occupied by the airport is more than one and a half times the size of Manhattan (33.6 square miles or 87 square kilometres). DIA occupies the largest amount of commercial airport land area in North America, by a great extent. The land was transferred from Adams County to Denver after a 1989 vote,^[24] increasing the city's size by 50 percent and bifurcating the western portion of the neighboring county. All freeway traffic accessing the airport from central Denver leaves the city and passes through Aurora for nearly two miles (3.2 km), making the airport a practical exclave. Similarly, the A Line rail service connecting the airport with downtown Denver has two intervening stations in Aurora.

Terminal

DIA has one terminal, named The Jeppesen Terminal after aviation safety pioneer Elrey Borge Jeppesen, and three midfield concourses, spaced far apart.^[25] Concourse A is accessible via a pedestrian bridge directly from the terminal building, as well as via the underground train system that services all three concourses. For access to Concourses B and C, passengers must utilize the train. All international arrivals without border pre-clearance are processed in Concourse A.

The pedestrian bridge connecting the Jeppesen Terminal with Concourse A

Overhead view of the Concourse C train station

- Concourse A has 51 gates, including several ground level boarding slips.^[25]
- Concourse B has 66 gates.^[25]
- Concourse C has 29 gates.^[25]

United operates two United Clubs in Concourse B and will be opening one in Concourse A soon.^[26] American Airlines and Delta Air Lines operate an Admirals Club and Sky Club respectively in Concourse A.^{[27][28]} American Express operates a Centurion Lounge in Concourse C.^[29]

Art & Aesthetics

The Jeppesen Terminal's internationally recognized peaked roof, designed by Fentress Bradburn Architects, resembles snow-capped mountains and evokes the early history of Colorado when Native American teepees were located across the Great Plains. The catenary steel cable system, similar to the Brooklyn Bridge design, supports the fabric roof. DIA is also known for a pedestrian bridge connecting the terminal to Concourse A that allows travelers to walk from the main Terminal to Concourse A, while viewing planes taxiing beneath them. It offers views of the Rocky Mountains to the west and the high plains to the east.

The Teflon-coated fiberglass roof of Denver International Airport resembles the Rocky Mountains.

Both during construction and after opening, DIA has set aside a portion of its construction and operation budgets for art. The corridor from the main terminal and Concourse A frequently displays temporary art exhibits. A number of public artworks are present in the underground train that links the main terminal with concourses, including art pieces from the history of Colorado.

The airport features a bronze statue of Denver native Jack Swigert in Concourse B. Swigert flew on Apollo 13 as Command Module Pilot, and was elected to the House of Representatives in 1982, but died of cancer before he was sworn in. The statue is dressed in an A7L pressure suit, and is posed holding a gold-plated helmet. It is a duplicate of a statue placed at the United States Capitol in 1997.^[30]

Denver International Airport has four murals, all of which have been the topic of conspiracy theorists and debate. The murals are ambiguous in meaning, depicting scenes including caged animals, fires, suffering people, and a soldier with a blade and a gas mask. They have been interpreted in the past by onlookers to represent war, hope, and even the New World Order.

In March 2019 the airport unveiled an animated, talking gargoyle in the middle of one of the concourses. The gargoyle interacts with passengers and jokes about the supposed conspiracies connected to the airport.^[31]

The Blue Mustang, by El Paso-born artist Luis Jiménez, was one of the earliest public art commissions for Denver International Airport in 1993. The 32-foot-tall (9.8 m) Blue Mustang is a bright blue cast-fiberglass sculpture of a horse with glowing red eyes located between the inbound and outbound lanes of Peña Boulevard.^[32] Jiménez was killed in 2006 at age 65 while creating the sculpture when the head fell on him and severed an artery in his leg. At the time of his death, Jiménez had completed painting the head of the mustang. Blue Mustang was completed by others, and unveiled at the airport on February 11, 2008.^[33] The statue has been the subject of considerable controversy, and has acquired the nickname Blucifer for its demonic appearance.^{[34][35]} The sculpture has been defended and disparaged by many people; one incident involved the vandalizing of the sculpture's hooves with orange paint.

Ground transportation

The Regional Transportation District (RTD) operates three bus routes under the frequent airport express bus service called skyRide, as well as one Express bus route and one Limited bus route, between DIA and various locations throughout the Denver-Aurora and Boulder metropolitan areas. RTD also operates the University of Colorado A Line, a commuter rail line that runs between the airport and Denver Union Station in downtown Denver.

Scheduled bus service is also available to points such as Fort Collins, and van services stretch into Nebraska, Wyoming, and Colorado summer and ski resort areas. Amtrak offers a Fly-Rail plan for ticketing with United Airlines for trips into scenic areas in the Western U.S. via a Denver stopover.

The Regional Transportation District's airport rail link is an electric commuter rail line that runs from Denver Union Station to the DIA Hotel and Transit Center. The A Line, sometimes called the East Rail Line, and under a sponsorship agreement called "University of Colorado A Line", connects passengers between downtown Denver and Denver International Airport in about 37 minutes. The line connects to RTD's rail service that runs throughout the metro area. The A Line is a 22.8-mile commuter rail transit corridor connecting these two important areas while serving adjacent employment centers, neighborhoods and development areas in Denver and Aurora. The A Line was constructed and funded as part of the Eagle P3 public-private partnership and opened for service on April 22, 2016. Above the station is a 519-room Westin hotel and conference center that opened in November 2015.^[36]

Airlines and destinations

Passenger

Airlines	Destinations	Refs
Aeroméxico	Mexico City	[37]
Air Canada	Montréal–Trudeau , Toronto–Pearson	[38]
Air Canada Express	Vancouver	[38]
Air France	Seasonal: Paris–Charles de Gaulle (begins July 2, 2021) ^[39]	[40]
Alaska Airlines	Portland (OR) , Seattle/Tacoma Seasonal: Anchorage (begins June 17, 2021) ^[41]	[42]
Allegiant Air	Cincinnati Seasonal: Asheville , Knoxville , Peoria , Provo	[43]
American Airlines	Charlotte , Chicago–O'Hare , Dallas/Fort Worth , Los Angeles , Miami , New York–LaGuardia , Philadelphia , Phoenix–Sky Harbor	[44]
American Eagle	Los Angeles	[44]
Boutique Air	Chadron (ends June 20, 2021), ^[45] Cortez , McCook	[46]
British Airways	London–Heathrow	[47]
Cayman Airways	Seasonal: Grand Cayman	[48]
Copa Airlines	Panama City–Tocumen	[49]
Delta Air Lines	Atlanta , Cincinnati , Detroit , Los Angeles , Minneapolis/St. Paul , New York–JFK , New York–LaGuardia , Salt Lake City , Seattle/Tacoma	[50]
Delta Connection	Los Angeles , Seattle/Tacoma
Denver Air Connection	Alliance , Clovis (NM) , Pierre (begins July 1, 2021), ^[51] Telluride (CO) , Watertown (SD) (begins July 1, 2021) ^[52]	[53]
Edelweiss Air	Seasonal: Zürich	[54]

Airlines	Destinations	Refs
Frontier Airlines	Albuquerque, Atlanta, Austin, Billings, Buffalo, Burbank (begins July 15, 2021), Calgary, Cancún, Cozumel, Charlotte, Chicago–O'Hare, Cincinnati, Cleveland, Columbus–Glenn, Dallas/Fort Worth, Des Moines, El Paso, Fayetteville/Bentonville, Greenville/Spartanburg, Harlingen, Houston–Intercontinental, Indianapolis, Kansas City, Knoxville, Las Vegas, Little Rock, Los Angeles (ends October 1, 2021), Louisville, Madison, Memphis, Miami, Milwaukee, Minneapolis/St. Paul, Nashville, Newark, New Orleans, Norfolk, Oakland, Oklahoma City, Omaha, Ontario, Orange County, Orlando, Pensacola, Philadelphia, Phoenix–Sky Harbor, Portland (OR), Raleigh/Durham, Reno/Tahoe, Sacramento, St. Louis, Salt Lake City, San Antonio, San Diego, San Francisco, San Jose (CA), Seattle/Tacoma, Tampa, Tucson, Washington–Dulles, Washington–National, Wichita Seasonal: Albany, Anchorage, Baltimore, Bismarck, Bloomington/Normal, Boise, Boston, Bozeman, Branson, Burlington (VT), Cedar Rapids/Iowa City, Charleston (SC), Detroit, Durango (CO), Fargo, Fort Myers, Fresno, Grand Junction,^[55] Grand Rapids, Green Bay, Hartford, Huntsville, Jackson (MS), Jackson Hole, Jacksonville (FL), Kalispell (begins June 17, 2021),^[55] Lafayette (LA), Missoula, Myrtle Beach, New York–LaGuardia, Palm Springs, Portland (ME), Puerto Vallarta, Santa Barbara, Savannah, Sioux Falls, Spokane, Syracuse, Tulsa	[56]
Icelandair	Reykjavík–Keflavík	[57]
JetBlue	Boston , New York–JFK , New York–LaGuardia (begins July 1, 2021) ^[58]	[59]
Lufthansa	Frankfurt , Munich	[60]
Southern Airways Express	Chadron (begins June 21, 2021) ^[61]	[62]
Southwest Airlines	Albany, Albuquerque, Atlanta, Austin, Baltimore, Birmingham (AL), Boise, Boston, Bozeman, Buffalo, Burbank, Cancún, Charlotte, Chicago–Midway, Chicago–O'Hare, Cincinnati, Cleveland, Colorado Springs, Columbus–Glenn, Dallas–Love, Des Moines, Detroit, El Paso, Fort Lauderdale, Fresno, Grand Rapids, Hartford, Hayden/Steamboat Springs, Houston–Hobby, Houston–Intercontinental, Indianapolis, Jacksonville (FL), Kansas City, Las Vegas, Liberia (CR) (begins November 13, 2021),^[63] Little Rock, Long Beach, Los Angeles, Louisville, Lubbock, Memphis, Miami, Milwaukee, Minneapolis/St. Paul, Montrose, Nashville, New Orleans, New York–LaGuardia, Oakland, Oklahoma City, Omaha, Ontario, Orange County (CA), Orlando, Palm Springs, Panama City (FL), Philadelphia, Phoenix–Sky Harbor, Pittsburgh, Portland (OR), Puerto Vallarta, Raleigh/Durham, Reno/Tahoe, Richmond, Sacramento, St. Louis, Salt Lake City, San Antonio, San Diego, San Francisco, San Jose (CA), San José del Cabo, Santa Barbara, Savannah, Seattle/Tacoma, Spokane, Tampa, Tucson, Tulsa, Washington–Dulles, Wichita Seasonal: Belize City (resumes November 20, 2021),^[63] Charleston (SC), Fort Myers, Midland/Odessa, Norfolk, Pensacola, Sarasota	[64]

Airlines	Destinations	Refs
Spirit Airlines	Atlanta, Baltimore, Chicago–O'Hare, Detroit, Fort Lauderdale, Houston–Intercontinental, Las Vegas, Miami (begins November 17, 2021)^[65] Seasonal: Los Angeles, Minneapolis/St. Paul	[66]
Sun Country Airlines	Minneapolis/St. Paul	[67]
United Airlines	Albuquerque, Anchorage, Atlanta, Austin, Baltimore, Billings, Boise, Boston, Bozeman, Burbank, Calgary, Cancún, Cedar Rapids/Iowa City, Chicago–O'Hare, Cincinnati, Cleveland, Colorado Springs, Columbus–Glenn, Dallas/Fort Worth, Des Moines, Detroit, Eugene, Fort Lauderdale, Fort Myers, Frankfurt, Fresno, Grand Rapids, Hartford, Honolulu, Houston–Intercontinental, Indianapolis, Jacksonville (FL), Kahului, Kailua–Kona, Kansas City, Las Vegas, Lihue, London–Heathrow, Los Angeles, Madison, Medford, Memphis, Milwaukee, Minneapolis/St. Paul, Missoula, Nashville, Newark, New Orleans, New York–LaGuardia, Norfolk, Oklahoma City, Omaha, Ontario, Orange County, Orlando, Philadelphia, Phoenix–Sky Harbor, Pittsburgh, Portland (OR), Puerto Vallarta, Raleigh/Durham, Reno/Tahoe, Richmond, Sacramento, St. Louis, Salt Lake City, San Antonio, San Diego, San Francisco, San Jose (CA), San José del Cabo, Santa Barbara, Seattle/Tacoma, Sioux Falls, Spokane, Tampa, Tokyo–Narita, Toronto–Pearson, Tulsa, Vancouver, Washington–Dulles, Washington–National, Wichita Seasonal: Belize City, Burlington (VT), Charlotte, Cozumel, Fairbanks, Jackson Hole, Kalispell, Liberia (CR), Miami, Nassau, Palm Springs, Portland (ME), Redmond/Bend, San Jose (CR), Sarasota, Tucson	[68]

Airlines	Destinations	Refs
United Express	Alamosa, Albuquerque, Amarillo, Appleton, Aspen, Atlanta, Austin, Bakersfield, Billings, Birmingham (AL), Bismarck, Boise, Bozeman, Burbank, Calgary, Casper, Cedar Rapids/Iowa City, Charleston (SC), Charlotte, Cheyenne, Cody, Colorado Springs, Columbia (MO), Dallas/Fort Worth, Dayton, Des Moines, Devils Lake, Dickinson, Dodge City, Durango (CO), Eagle/Vail, Edmonton, El Paso, Eugene, Eureka, Everett, Fargo, Fayetteville/Bentonville, Flagstaff, Fresno, Gillette, Grand Junction, Grand Rapids, Great Falls, Greenville/Spartanburg, Gunnison/Crested Butte, Hayden/Steamboat Springs, Hays, Helena, Hobbs, Huntsville, Idaho Falls, Indianapolis, Jackson Hole, Jamestown (ND), Joplin, Kalispell, Kansas City, Kearney, Laramie, Liberal, Lincoln, Little Rock, Louisville, Lubbock, Madison, Medford, Memphis, Midland/Odessa, Minot, Missoula, Moab, Monterey, Moline/Quad Cities, Montrose, Nashville, New Orleans, North Platte, Oklahoma City, Omaha, Palm Springs, Pierre^[69], Phoenix–Sky Harbor, Prescott, Pueblo, Rapid City, Redmond/Bend, Reno/Tahoe, Rochester (MN), Richmond, Riverton, Rock Springs, Sacramento, St. George (UT), St. Louis, Salt Lake City, Salina, San Antonio, San Diego, San Jose (CA), San Luis Obispo, Santa Barbara, Santa Fe, Santa Maria (CA), Santa Rosa (resumes September 8, 2021), Savannah, Scottsbluff, Sheridan (WY), Shreveport, Sioux City, Sioux Falls, Spokane, Springfield/Branson, Syracuse, Toronto–Pearson, Tri-Cities (WA), Tucson, Tulsa, Twin Falls, Vernal, Watertown (SD), Wichita, Williston (ND), Winnipeg Seasonal: Destin/Fort Walton Beach, Mammoth Lakes, Norfolk, North Bend/Coos Bay, Panama City (FL), Pensacola, Sun Valley, Traverse City, West Yellowstone	[68]
Volaris	Chihuahua , Guadalajara , Mexico City	[70]
WestJet	Calgary	[71]

Cargo

Airlines	Destinations
AirNet Express	Columbus–Rickenbacker
Amazon Air	Cincinnati, Ontario
Bemidji Airlines	Colby, Goodland, McCook, North Platte, Sidney, Trinidad
DHL Aviation	Cincinnati, Reno/Tahoe
FedEx Express	Billings, Fort Worth/Alliance, Fresno, Indianapolis, Los Angeles, Memphis, Oakland, Phoenix–Sky Harbor, San Jose Seasonal: Houston– Intercontinental
IAG Cargo	London–Heathrow
Lufthansa Cargo	Frankfurt, Munich
UPS Airlines	Billings, Burbank, Chicago/Rockford, Everett, Louisville, Ontario, Reno/Tahoe, Salt Lake City, Seattle–Boeing Seasonal: Hartford

Statistics

Top destinations

Busiest domestic routes from DEN (March 2020 – February 2021)^[72]

Rank	City	Passengers	Carriers
1	Phoenix–Sky Harbor, Arizona	569,000	American, Frontier, Southwest, United
2	Dallas/Fort Worth, Texas	478,000	American, Frontier, United
3	Chicago–O'Hare, Illinois	455,000	American, Frontier, Southwest, Spirit, United
4	Los Angeles, California	444,000	American, Delta, Frontier, Southwest, Spirit, United
5	Las Vegas, Nevada	436,000	Frontier, Southwest, Spirit, United
6	Houston–Intercontinental, Texas	418,000	Frontier, Spirit, United
7	Atlanta, Georgia	401,000	Delta, Frontier, Southwest, United
8	Seattle/Tacoma, Washington	354,000	Alaska, Delta, Frontier, Southwest, United
9	Salt Lake City, Utah	350,000	Delta, Frontier, Southwest, United
10	Minneapolis/St. Paul, Minnesota	330,000	Delta, Frontier, Southwest, Spirit, Sun Country, United

Largest Airlines at DEN
(September 2019 - August 2020)^[76]

Rank	Airline	Passengers	Share
1	Southwest Airlines	12,513,000	30.15%
2	United Airlines	12,257,000	29.54%
3	Frontier Airlines	5,534,355	13.33%
4	SkyWest Airlines	3,683,000	8.88%
5	Delta Air Lines	2,055,000	4.95%
6	Other	5,456,000	13.15%

Accidents and incidents

- On September 5, 2001, a British Airways Boeing 777 caught on fire while it was being refueled at the gate. None of the deplaning passengers or crew were injured, but the refueler servicing the aircraft died from his injuries six days after the fire. The NTSB found that the accident occurred due to a failure of the aircraft's refueling ring when the fuel hose was disconnected at an improper angle.^[77]
- On February 16, 2007, 14 aircraft suffered windshield failures within a three-and-a-half-hour period at the airport. A total of 26 windshields on these aircraft failed. The NTSB opened an investigation, determining that foreign object damage was the cause, possibly the sharp sand used earlier that winter for traction purposes combined with wind gusts of 48 mph (77 km/h).^[78]
- On December 20, 2008, a Continental Airlines Boeing 737-500 operating as Flight 1404 to Houston–Intercontinental Airport veered off the left side of runway 34R and caught fire during its takeoff roll at DIA. There was no snow or ice on the runway, however there were 31-knot (36 mph; 57 km/h) crosswinds at the time of the accident. On July 13, 2010, the NTSB published that the probable cause of this accident was the captain's cessation of right rudder input, which was needed to maintain directional control of the airplane. Of the 115 people on board, at least 38 sustained injuries, at least two critically.^{[79][80][81]}
- On April 12, 2011, a 22-year-old woman was raped in the airport near a gate by a man she met there after both missed their flights. The crime was halted by two Frontier Airlines mechanics who saw what was happening. Ex-Marine Noel Bertrand was convicted of sexual assault with force and received a life sentence with no parole for six years. His lawyer indicated Bertrand would likely remain in prison for the rest of his life as he would not confess and therefore could not attend therapy.^[82]
- On April 3, 2012, an ExpressJet Embraer ERJ-145, registration N15973, operating as Flight UA/EV-5912 from Peoria, IL to Denver, was landing on 34R when the aircraft hit the approach lights and stopped on the runway. Smoke developed inside the aircraft and passengers were evacuated onto the runway. One passenger was taken to hospital for treatment of his injuries.^[83]
- On February 20, 2021, United Airlines Flight 328, a Boeing 777-200 that was on its way from Denver to Honolulu, Hawaii, suffered engine damage just after takeoff and had to return to Denver International Airport. Debris from the damaged engine fell on a neighborhood in Broomfield, a city near the airport. The damaged airplane landed safely on runway 26 and no injuries were reported.^[84]

The wreckage of Continental Airlines Flight 1404

See also

- Busiest airports in the United States by international passenger traffic
- Busiest airports in the United States by total passenger boardings
- List of airports in the Denver area
- List of the busiest airports in the United States
- List of longest runways
- Megaprojects and Risk: An Anatomy of Ambition
- World's busiest airports by passenger traffic
- World's busiest airports by traffic movements
- World's busiest airports by cargo traffic
- World's busiest airports by international passenger traffic

References

1. 2013 Economic Impact Study for Colorado Airports \(https://www.codot.gov/programs/aeronautics/PDF_Files/2013_CO_EIS_ExecutiveSummary_WEB.pdf\) (PDF) (Report). Colorado Department of Transportation, Division of Aeronautics. Archived (https://web.archive.org/web/20150402115942/http://www.codot.gov/programs/aeronautics/PDF_Files/2013_CO_EIS_ExecutiveSummary_WEB.pdf) (PDF) from the original on April 2, 2015. Retrieved March 11, 2015.
2. "Passenger Traffic Reports" (https://www.flydenver.com/about/financials/passenger_traffic). Denver International Airport. Retrieved June 15, 2020.
3. FAA Airport Form 5010 for DEN \(https://www.gcr1.com/5010ReportRouter/default.aspx?airportID=DEN\) PDF
4. "Denver Airport 2nd Largest In The World, Twice the Size of Manhattan" (<http://www.industrytap.com/denver-airport-2nd-largest-in-the-world-twice-the-size-of-manhattan/7982>). Industry Tap. August 26, 2013. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20150829183431/http://www.industrytap.com/denver-airport-2nd-largest-in-the-world-twice-the-size-of-manhattan/7982>) from the original on August 29, 2015. Retrieved February 22, 2021.
5. "Distance From Downtown Denver As Per MapQuest" (<http://www.mapquest.com/directions/main.asp?do=nw&go=1&r=f&aoh=&aot=&aof=&1a=&1c=&1s=&1z=&1y=US&1l=&1g=&1pl=&1v=COUNTRY&1ffi=&1n=&1qn=denver%20international%20airport&2a=&2c=Denver&2s=CO&2z=&2y=US&2l=36cA6vHcgcp2r%2b1shHeSWQ%3d%3d&2g=6uCrHfAwVdiZOF%2bMfwHG9A%3d%3d&2pn=&2pl=&2v=CITY&2ffi=&2n=Denver%20County&2qn=&2qc=&q=denver%20international%20airport&1pn=denver%20international%20airport&1sb=Denver%20International%20Airport%20%28DEN%29%7c8500%20Pena%20Bld%7cDenver%7cCO%7c80249%7c39836959%7c%2d104671890%7c303%2d342%2d2000%7cUS&1qc=Airports>). MapQuest. Retrieved September 8, 2011.
6. "Finally, 16 Months Late, Denver Has a New Airport" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20150526141251/http://www.nytimes.com/1995/03/01/us/finally-16-months-late-denver-has-a-new-airport.html>). The New York Times. March 1, 1995. Archived from the original on May 26, 2015. Retrieved February 22, 2021.
7. "Denver International Airport reaches milestone with 200 nonstop destinations" (<https://www.denverpost.com/2018/08/22/dia-200-nonstop-destinations/>). The Denver Post. August 22, 2018. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20180828035655/https://www.denverpost.com/2018/08/22/dia-200-nonstop-destinations/>) from the original on August 28, 2018. Retrieved August 27, 2018.
8. Metro Airport Study: Final Report. Denver Regional Council of Governments; Peat, Marwick, Mitchell & Co. 1983.

9. Johnson, Kirk (August 27, 2005). "Denver Airport Saw the Future. It Didn't Work" (<https://www.nytimes.com/2005/08/27/us/denver-airport-saw-the-future-it-didnt-work.html>). The New York Times. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20150529193239/http://www.nytimes.com/2005/08/27/us/denver-airport-saw-the-future-it-didnt-work.html>) from the original on May 29, 2015. Retrieved July 11, 2012.
10. "Denver International Airport Construction and Operating Costs" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20080208150555/http://www.colorado.edu/libraries/govpubs/dia.htm>). University of Colorado at Boulder Government Publications Library. July 5, 1997. Archived from the original (<http://www.colorado.edu/libraries/govpubs/dia.htm>) on February 8, 2008. Retrieved February 1, 2008.
11. Dear, Joseph A., Assistant Secretary of Labor for Occupational Safety and Health (April 11, 1995). Rocky Mountain Health & Safety Conference (https://web.archive.org/web/20070813011621/http://osha.gov/pls/oshaweb/owadisp.show_document?p_table=SPEECHES&p_id=194) (Speech). John Q. Hammons Trade Center, Denver, Colorado. Archived from the original (https://www.osha.gov/pls/oshaweb/owadisp.show_document?p_table=SPEECHES&p_id=194) on August 13, 2007. Retrieved January 27, 2008.
12. Hake, Tony. "This week in Denver weather history: March 11 to March 17". Examiner. AXS Digital Group. "Denver International Airport was closed...stranding about 4000 travelers. The weight of the heavy snow caused a 40-foot gash in a portion of the tent roof...forcing the evacuation of that section of the main terminal building."
13. "DEN Evacuates Main Terminal For Fear Of Roof Collapse" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20150817205204/http://www.thedenverchannel.com/lifestyle/travel/dia-evacuates-main-terminal-for-fear-of-roof-collapse>). KMGH-TV. Denver, Colorado. March 19, 2003. Archived from the original (<http://www.thedenverchannel.com/lifestyle/travel/dia-evacuates-main-terminal-for-fear-of-roof-collapse>) on August 17, 2015. Retrieved September 2, 2015.
14. Sink, Mindy (December 22, 2006). "Thousands Stranded in Denver Airport and Environs After Blizzard" (<https://www.nytimes.com/2006/12/22/us/22storm.html>). The New York Times. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20151017192323/http://www.nytimes.com/2006/12/22/us/22storm.html>) from the original on October 17, 2015. Retrieved September 2, 2015.
15. "Southwest Airlines Begins Service in Denver, Announces Additional Flights and Destinations" (<http://investors.southwest.com/news-and-events/news-releases/2006/03-01-2006>). Retrieved February 25, 2021.
16. "Southwest aims to add 16 gates and a host of new flights at Denver International Airport" (<https://denverite.com/2020/02/26/southwest-aims-to-add-16-gates-and-a-host-of-new-flights-at-denver-international-airport/>). Retrieved February 25, 2021.
17. "Yes on 1A for DEN – Not so fast" (<http://northdenvernews.com/yes-on-1a-for-dia-not-so-fast/>). North Denver News. September 9, 2015. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20150910003211/http://northdenvernews.com/yes-on-1a-for-dia-not-so-fast/>) from the original on September 10, 2015. Retrieved September 14, 2015.
18. "Denver Voters OK National Western DEN Ballot Measures" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20151203055508/http://www.coloradostatesman.com/content/996312-denver-voters-ok-national-western-dia-ballot-measures>). Colorado Statesman. Archived from the original (<http://www.coloradostatesman.com/content/996312-denver-voters-ok-national-western-dia-ballot-measures>) on December 3, 2015. Retrieved January 12, 2016.
19. "Denver council gives blessing to $2 billion city budget and $1.5 billion gate expansion at DIA" (<http://www.denverpost.com/2017/11/13/denver-budget-dia-gate-expansion-approved/>). November 14, 2017. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20171114202216/http://www.denverpost.com/2017/11/13/denver-budget-dia-gate-expansion-approved/>) from the original on November 14, 2017. Retrieved November 14, 2017.
20. Riley, Cindy. "$1.5B Gate Expansion at Denver Intl. Under Way" (<https://www.constructionequipmentguide.com/15b-gate-expansion-at-denver-intl-under-way/43151>). Retrieved January 30, 2020.

34. "Despite criticism, airport's 'Devil Horse' sculpture likely to stay" (<https://www.nbcnews.com/news/despite-criticism-denver-airports-devil-horse-sculpture-likely-stay-1C8543778>). NBC News. March 4, 2013. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20160801150553/http://www.nbcnews.com/news/despite-criticism-denver-airports-devil-horse-sculpture-likely-stay-1C8543778>) from the original on August 1, 2016. Retrieved August 6, 2016.
35. "Keep remarkable "Mustang" sculpture at DIA" (<http://www.denverpost.com/2013/02/06/keep-remarkable-mustang-sculpture-at-dia/>). The Denver Post. February 6, 2013. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20160819011226/http://www.denverpost.com/2013/02/06/keep-remarkable-mustang-sculpture-at-dia/>) from the original on August 19, 2016. Retrieved August 6, 2016.
36. "Denver International Airport and the Westin Announces November 19 Opening Date for the new Westin Denver International airport" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20150702193133/http://www.flydenver.com/sites/default/files/downloads/June%201%20DIA%20Westin%20Opening.pdf>) (PDF) (Press release). Denver International Airport. June 1, 2015. Archived from the original (<http://www.flydenver.com/sites/default/files/downloads/June%201%20DIA%20Westin%20Opening.pdf>) (PDF) on July 2, 2015. Retrieved June 2, 2015.
37. "Flight Schedule" (https://booking.aeromexico.com/SSW2010/D5DE/flightSchedulePage.html?_ga=1.18768702.686413547.1491325115). Archived (https://web.archive.org/web/20170406022455/https://booking.aeromexico.com/SSW2010/D5DE/flightSchedulePage.html?_ga=1.18768702.686413547.1491325115) from the original on April 6, 2017. Retrieved March 23, 2018.
38. "Flight Schedules" (<https://www.aircanada.com/ca/en/aco/home/book/routes-and-partners/flight-schedules.html>). Air Canada. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20180323072516/https://www.aircanada.com/ca/en/aco/home/book/routes-and-partners/flight-schedules.html>) from the original on March 23, 2018. Retrieved March 23, 2018.
39. <https://www.flydenver.com/sites/default/files/downloads/21-22%20AF%20DEN%20FINAL.pdf>
40. "Air France Timetable" (<https://www.airfrance.com/CW/en/local/resainfovol/infovols/actualiteDesVols.do>). Air France. Retrieved April 15, 2021.
41. "Alaska Airlines adds more 'sun and fun' destinations from Anchorage" (<https://newsroom.alaskaair.com/2020-12-16-Alaska-Airlines-adds-more-sun-and-fun-destinations-from-Anchorage>). Alaska Airlines. December 16, 2020. Retrieved December 16, 2020.
42. "Flight Timetable" (<https://www.alaskaair.com/content/travel-info/timetables.aspx>). Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170202123138/https://www.alaskaair.com/content/travel-info/timetables.aspx>) from the original on February 2, 2017. Retrieved March 23, 2018.
43. "Flight schedules and notifications" (<https://www.allegiantair.com>). Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20110224233038/http://www.allegiantair.com/>) from the original on February 24, 2011. Retrieved March 23, 2018.
44. "Flight schedules and notifications" (<https://www.aa.com/travelInformation/flights/schedule>). Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170202010611/https://www.aa.com/travelInformation/flights/schedule>) from the original on February 2, 2017. Retrieved March 23, 2018.
45. https://www.bradfordera.com/news/local/southern-airways-names-bradford-tops-in-customer-satisfaction/article_084be4e4-fd23-54ce-bca4-48bf508c89bd.html
46. "Route Map and Schedule" (<https://www.boutiqueair.com/p/schedule>). Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20161205023354/https://www.boutiqueair.com/p/schedule>) from the original on December 5, 2016. Retrieved March 23, 2018.
47. "Timetables" (https://www.britishairways.com/travel/schedules/public/en_gb). British Airways. Archived (https://web.archive.org/web/20170330083400/https://www.britishairways.com/travel/schedules/public/en_gb) from the original on March 30, 2017. Retrieved March 23, 2018.
48. "Flight Schedule" (<https://www.caymanairways.com/DenverAnnouncement>). Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20180828035558/https://www.caymanairways.com/DenverAnnouncement>) from the original on August 28, 2018. Retrieved August 27, 2018.

49. "Flight Schedule" (<https://www.copaair.com/en/web/us/timetables>). Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170810014849/https://www.copaair.com/en/web/us/timetables>) from the original on August 10, 2017. Retrieved March 23, 2018.
50. "FLIGHT SCHEDULES" (<https://www.delta.com/flightinfo/viewFlightSchedulesSetup.action>). Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20150621123636/http://www.delta.com/flightinfo/viewFlightSchedulesSetup.action>) from the original on June 21, 2015. Retrieved March 17, 2018.
51. https://www.capjournal.com/community/skywest-to-be-replaced-by-denver-air-connections-at-pierre-airport/article_2798e264-9d28-11eb-b03c-8735e3ecfec2.html
52. https://www.mykxlg.com/news/local/dot-selects-new-essential-air-service-carrier-for-watertown-regional-airport/article_e429159e-9cc3-11eb-936f-df1e57b47cef.html
53. "Destinations - Denver Air Connection" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20180324041123/http://www.denverairconnection.com/destinations>). Archived from the original (<http://www.denverairconnection.com/destinations>) on March 24, 2018. Retrieved March 23, 2018.
54. "Timetable" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20180114184229/https://www.flyedelweiss.com/en/inform/travel-information/timetable/pages/timetable.aspx>). Archived from the original (<https://www.flyedelweiss.com/EN/inform/travel-information/timetable/Pages/timetable.aspx>) on January 14, 2018. Retrieved March 23, 2018.
55. "Frontier Airlines Announces 8 New Nonstop Routes for Summer 2021" (<https://news.flyfrontier.com/frontier-airlines-announces-8-new-nonstop-routes-for-summer-2021/>). Frontier. Retrieved April 13, 2021.
56. "Frontier" (<https://www.flyfrontier.com>). Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170912053526/http://www.flyfrontier.com/>) from the original on September 12, 2017. Retrieved March 23, 2018.
57. "Flight Schedule" (<http://www.icelandair.ca/information/travel-guide/timetable/>). Icelandair. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20171116064841/http://www.icelandair.ca/information/travel-guide/timetable/>) from the original on November 16, 2017. Retrieved March 23, 2018.
58. "JetBlue Launches First Phase of Codeshare with American Airlines, Adding New Routes and Destinations" (<http://mediaroom.jetblue.com/investor-relations/press-releases/2021/02-18-2021-160050512>). JetBlue. February 18, 2021. Retrieved February 22, 2021.
59. "JetBlue Airlines Timetable" (https://b6.innosked.com/\(S\(ke2am3wxgiegj0zs1pxotirq\)\)/default.aspx)/default.aspx)). Archived (https://web.archive.org/web/20130713064749/http://b6.innosked.com/\(S\(52udsaj2thvywnmtihnsdo55\)\)/default.aspx)/default.aspx)) from the original on July 13, 2013. Retrieved March 23, 2018.
60. "Timetable - Lufthansa Canada" (<http://www.lufthansa.com/ca/en/Online-timetable>). Lufthansa. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20171109191434/http://www.lufthansa.com/ca/en/Online-timetable>) from the original on November 9, 2017. Retrieved March 23, 2018.
61. https://www.bradfordera.com/news/local/southern-airways-names-bradford-tops-in-customer-satisfaction/article_084be4e4-fd23-54ce-bca4-48bf508c89bd.html
62. <https://iflysouthern.com/>
63. <https://wieck-swa-production.s3.amazonaws.com/NovemberBaseScheduleExtension.pdf>
64. "Check Flight Schedules" (<https://www.southwest.com/air/flight-schedules/index.html>). Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170202053931/https://www.southwest.com/air/flight-schedules/index.html>) from the original on February 2, 2017. Retrieved March 23, 2018.
65. https://amp.miamiherald.com/news/business/tourism-cruises/article251977383.html?__twitter_impression=true
66. "Where We Fly" (<https://www.spirit.com/RouteMaps.aspx>). Spirit Airlines. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20171223042503/https://www.spirit.com/routemaps.aspx>) from the original on December 23, 2017. Retrieved March 23, 2018.
67. "Travel Destinations" (<https://www.suncountry.com/Explore/Travel-Destinations.html>). Sun Country Airlines. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20190321073415/https://www.suncountry.com/Explore/Travel-Destinations.html>) from the original on March 21, 2019. Retrieved June 4, 2019.

68. "Timetable" (<https://www.united.com/web/en-US/apps/travel/timetable/default.aspx>). Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170128165254/https://www.united.com/web/en-US/apps/travel/timetable/default.aspx>) from the original on January 28, 2017. Retrieved March 23, 2018.
69. <https://www.todayskccr.com/2021/06/08/skywest-tells-pierre-it-intends-to-continue-air-service-after-june-30th-from-pierre/>
70. "Volaris Flight Schedule" (<http://cms.volaris.com/en/travel-with-volaris/flight-information/complete-timetable-of-our-flights/>). Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170227151536/http://cms.volaris.com/en/travel-with-volaris/flight-information/complete-timetable-of-our-flights/>) from the original on February 27, 2017. Retrieved March 23, 2018.
71. "Flight schedules" (<https://www.westjet.com/en-ca/travel-info/flight-info/flight-schedules>). Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170210131344/https://www.westjet.com/en-ca/travel-info/flight-info/flight-schedules>) from the original on February 10, 2017. Retrieved March 17, 2018.
72. "Denver, CO: Denver International (DEN)" (https://www.transtats.bts.gov/airports.asp?20=E&Nv42146=QRa&Nv42146_anzr=Qr08r4,%20Pb:%20Qr08r4%20V06r40n6v10ny&pn44vr4=SNPgf). Bureau of Transportation Statistics. Retrieved May 18, 2021.
73. Office of the Assistant Secretary for Aviation and International Affairs (October 8, 2019). U.S.-International Passenger Raw Data for Calendar Year 2016 (<https://www.transportation.gov/policy/aviation-policy/us-international-air-passenger-and-freight-statistics-report>) (Report). US Department of Transportation. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20180615135121/https://www.transportation.gov/policy/aviation-policy/us-international-air-passenger-and-freight-statistics-report>) from the original on June 15, 2018. Retrieved August 10, 2017.
74. "Passenger Traffic Reports" (http://www.flydenver.com/about/financials/passenger_traffic). Denver International Airport. City & County of Denver Department of Aviation. Archived (https://web.archive.org/web/20171006162308/https://www.flydenver.com/about/financials/passenger_traffic) from the original on October 6, 2017. Retrieved December 4, 2017.
75. DENVER INTERNATIONAL TOTAL PASSENGERS BY AIRLINE DECEMBER 1996 AND YEAR TO DATE (<https://drive.google.com/file/d/0B6ZkfGghUbm9cnZCVTJUeDNjN3MxOUdEZjIPsmtRNFhMbW9B/view?usp=sharing>) (PDF) (Report). p. 3. Retrieved January 31, 2019.
76. Bureau of Transportation Statistics, [1] (<https://www.transtats.bts.gov/airports.asp?pn=1>) Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170525054818/https://www.transtats.bts.gov/airports.asp?pn=1>) May 25, 2017, at the Wayback Machine. Accessed February 12, 2019.
77. "NTSB Report DEN01FA157" (https://www.nts.gov/aviationquery/brief2.aspx?ev_id=20010918X01956&ntsbno=DEN01FA157&akey=1). National Transportation Safety Board. Archived (https://web.archive.org/web/20120723191446/https://www.nts.gov/aviationquery/brief2.aspx?ev_id=20010918X01956&ntsbno=DEN01FA157&akey=1) from the original on July 23, 2012. Retrieved September 10, 2011.
78. "NTSB Report DEN07IA069" (https://www.nts.gov/_layouts/nts.gov/aviation/brief2.aspx?ev_id=20070313X00281&ntsbno=DEN07IA069&akey=1). National Transportation Safety Board. June 27, 2007. Archived (https://web.archive.org/web/20150405201142/https://www.nts.gov/_layouts/nts.gov/aviation/brief2.aspx?ev_id=20070313X00281&ntsbno=DEN07IA069&akey=1) from the original on April 5, 2015. Retrieved April 3, 2015.
79. Simpson, Kevin; Bunch, Joey; Pankratz, Howard (December 21, 2008). "Continental Jet Veers Off Runway on Takeoff, Slams into Ravine, Catches Fire" (http://nl.newsbank.com/nl-search/we/Archives?p_product=DP&p_theme=dp&p_action=search&p_maxdocs=200&p_topdoc=1&p_text_direct-0=1254071AF5055188&p_field_direct-0=document_id&p_perpage=10&p_sort=YMD_date:D). The Denver Post. p. A1. Archived (https://web.archive.org/web/20181002102244/http://nl.newsbank.com/nl-search/we/Archives?p_product=DP&p_theme=dp&p_action=search&p_maxdocs=200&p_topdoc=1&p_text_direct-0=1254071AF5055188&p_field_direct-0=document_id&p_perpage=10&p_sort=YMD_date:D) from the original on October 2, 2018. Retrieved July 11, 2012.
80. "Continental Flight Slides Off Runway; Dozens Injured" (<http://www.9news.com/news/article.aspx?storyid=106325&catid=339>). KUSA. December 21, 2008. Retrieved December 21, 2008.

81. "NTSB Begins Investigation into Why Plane Slid Off Runway" (<https://archive.is/20121203003133/http://www.9news.com/news/article.aspx?storyid=106332&catid=339>). KUSA. December 21, 2008. Archived from the original (<http://www.9news.com/news/article.aspx?storyid=106332&catid=339>) on December 3, 2012. Retrieved December 21, 2008.
82. "Former Marine Sentenced 6 Years To Life For Sexual Assault At DIA" (<https://denver.cbslocal.com/2012/11/30/convicted-rapist-sentenced-6-years-to-life/>). CBS Denver. November 30, 2012. Retrieved May 4, 2021.
83. Hradecky, Simon (April 3, 2012). "Accident: Expressjet E145 at Denver on Apr 3rd 2012, Smoke in Cockpit, Hard Short Landing" (<http://www.avherald.com/h?article=44d72e46&opt=0>). The Aviation Herald. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20150923181010/http://www.avherald.com/h?article=44d72e46&opt=0>) from the original on September 23, 2015. Retrieved July 11, 2012.
84. <https://www.msn.com/en-us/news/us/plane-lands-safely-after-dropping-debris-outside-house/ar-BB1dRvt5?ocid=msedgntp>

External links

- Denver International Airport \(http://www.flydenver.com/\), official site
 - Denver International Airport \(https://web.archive.org//http://infodenver.denver.co.us/~aviation/diaintro.html\) at the Wayback Machine (archive index)
- FAA Airport Diagram \(https://aeronav.faa.gov/d-tpp/2105/09077AD.PDF\) (PDF), effective May 20, 2021
- Resources for this airport:
 - AirNav airport information for KDEN \(http://www.airnav.com/airport/KDEN\)
 - ASN accident history for DEN \(https://aviation-safety.net/database/airport/airport.php?id=DEN\)
 - FlightAware airport information \(https://flightaware.com/resources/airport/KDEN\) and live flight tracker \(https://flightaware.com/live/airport/KDEN\)
 - NOAA/NWS weather observations: current \(https://tgftp.nws.noaa.gov/weather/current/KDEN.html\), past three days \(https://w1.weather.gov/data/obhistory/KDEN.html\)
 - SkyVector aeronautical chart for KDEN \(https://skyvector.com/perl/code?id=KDEN&scale=2\)
 - FAA current DEN delay information \(https://www.fly.faa.gov/flyfaa/flyfaaindex.jsp?ARPT=DEN&p=0\)

Retrieved from "https://en.wikipedia.org/w/index.php?title=Denver_International_Airport&oldid=1028472799"

This page was last edited on 14 June 2021, at 05:46 (UTC).

Text is available under the Creative Commons Attribution-ShareAlike License; additional terms may apply. By using this site, you agree to the Terms of Use and Privacy Policy. Wikipedia® is a registered trademark of the Wikimedia Foundation, Inc., a non-profit organization.

TWA Flight 800 conspiracy theories

TWA Flight 800 conspiracy theories are discredited alternative explanations of the crash Trans World Airlines Flight 800 (TWA 800) in 1996.^[1] The NTSB found that the probable cause of the crash of TWA Flight 800 was an explosion of flammable fuel/air vapors in a fuel tank, most likely from a short circuit. Conspiracy theories claim that the crash was due to a U.S. Navy missile test gone awry, a terrorist missile strike, or an on-board bomb. In 2013, a documentary alleging that the investigation into the crash was a cover-up made news headlines with statements from six members of the original investigation team, now retired, who also filed a petition to reopen the probe.^[2]

Contents

Background

Search and recovery

Aspects of conspiracy theories

Explosive residues

Radar data

Unidentified radar tracks

TWA 800 flightpath after explosion

Ray Lahr

Bolide strike

Electromagnetic interference

Dissenting views from the investigation

IAMAW

William Donaldson

Public acceptance of conspiracy theories

Documentary

See also

References

Further reading

External links

Background

TWA 800, a Boeing 747-131, was a scheduled international passenger flight from New York City, New York to Rome, Italy, with a stopover in Paris, France. At about 20:31 EDT, on July 17, 1996, about 12 minutes after takeoff from John F. Kennedy International Airport (JFK), TWA 800 exploded and then crashed into the Atlantic Ocean near East Moriches, New York.^{[3]:1} Of the 230 passengers and crew on board, no survivors were found, making TWA 800 the second-deadliest aircraft accident in the United States at that time.^[4]

While investigators from the NTSB arrived on scene the following day,^{[5]:313} many witnesses to the accident had seen a "streak of light" that was usually described as ascending,^{[3]:230} moving to a point where a large fireball appeared.^{[3]:3} There was intense public interest in these witness reports and much speculation that the reported streak of light was from a missile that had struck TWA 800, causing the airplane to explode.^{[3]:262} Consequently, the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) initiated a parallel criminal investigation alongside the NTSB's accident investigation.^[6]

Search and recovery

Pieces of the airplane wreckage were discovered floating on and beneath the surface of the Atlantic Ocean about eight miles south of East Moriches, New York.^{[3]:4} The main wreckage was found scattered on the ocean floor in an area about 4 miles long by 3 1/2 miles wide.^{[3]:62} In one of the largest diver-assisted salvage operations ever conducted,^[6] over 95 percent of the airplane wreckage was eventually recovered.^{[3]:65} Recovered wreckage was transported by boat to shore and then by truck to leased hangar space at the former Grumman Aircraft facility in Calverton, New York, for storage, examination, and reconstruction.^{[3]:63}

Aspects of conspiracy theories

Explosive residues

As wreckage was recovered, preliminary testing indicated the presence of explosive residue on three samples of material from three separate locations of the recovered airplane wreckage (described by the FBI as a piece of canvas-like material and two pieces of a floor panel).^{[3]:118} These samples were submitted to the FBI's laboratory in Washington, D.C., which determined that one sample contained traces of cyclotrimethylenetrinitramine (RDX), another nitroglycerin, and the third a combination of RDX and pentaerythritol tetranitrate (PETN).^{[3]:118} these findings received much media attention at the time.^{[7][8]} While investigators from the FBI viewed these positive tests as strong indications of a criminal act, the NTSB was more cautious, noting the lack of any patterns on the recovered wreckage characteristic of an explosion.

Ultimately, the NTSB was unable to determine the exact source of explosive residues found on the wreckage. Some of the possibilities considered were contamination from the aircraft's use in 1991 transporting troops during the Gulf War or its possible use in a dog-training explosive detection exercise about one month before the accident;^{[3]:258–259} however, the lack of any other corroborating evidence associated with a high-energy explosion led the NTSB to conclude that "the in-flight breakup of TWA flight 800 was not initiated by a bomb or missile strike".^{[3]:259}

Meanwhile, TWA chief 747 pilot Robert Terrell Stacey, who was participating in the official investigation as a TWA representative, became convinced that a reddish-brown substance observed on the backs of recovered passenger seats was suspicious, and possibly indicative of explosive residue or rocket fuel. Working with journalist James Sanders, and Sanders' wife Elizabeth, a TWA flight attendant, he removed items from the wreckage reconstruction site, specifically the samples of seat fabric as well as documents related to the investigation.^[9] In 1997 Sanders' published the book The Downing of TWA Flight 800, in which he proposed that TWA 800 had been downed by a missile, and that a government cover-up had taken place so as to not panic the public. Later, with the information provided by Sanders, the Riverside Press-Enterprise published a series of articles alleging that the substance was consistent with unexpended rocket fuel from a missile that struck TWA 800.^[10]

The NTSB determined the locations and appearance of the substance found on the seatbacks was consistent with adhesive used in the construction of the seats, and additional laboratory testing by NASA identified the substance as being consistent with those adhesives (results which Sanders disputed).^{[3]:118}

On December 5, 1997, federal prosecutors charged Sanders, his wife Elizabeth, and Stacey with theft of government property.^[11] The Sanders' defense attorney Bruce Maffeo described the prosecution as "extremely vindictive" and insisted that the couple had a First Amendment right to take the sample and crash-related documents to expose a cover-up.^[12] In April 1999, both were convicted of stealing evidence from civil aircraft wreckage, and were sentenced to probation (Stacey had previously pleaded guilty to a misdemeanor in the case).^[12] In 1999, James Sanders authored a second book, Altered Evidence.

Radar data

Unidentified radar tracks

One of the first widely reported criticisms of the official investigation was by former reporter Pierre Salinger, who held a press conference in Cannes, France on November 7, 1996. He stated he had proof that TWA 800 was shot down by friendly fire, and the incident was being covered up by the government.^[13] Salinger said "he was basing the claims on information he saw in a document given to him six weeks ago by someone in French Intelligence with close contacts to U.S. officials",^[13] but refused to name his source. CNN quickly found Salinger's document to be "a widely accessible e-mail letter that has been circulating for at least six weeks on the Internet's World Wide Web."^[13] Salinger's evidence was actually an e-mail from Richard Russell, a retired airline pilot.^[14]

Salinger's previous position as White House Press Secretary, as well as longtime correspondent for ABC News, initially gave credence to his statements, transforming them from "internet conspiracies" into the mainstream.^[14] However, under scrutiny, his allegations, and the reports issued with his collaborators, became the subject of much criticism in the media.^{[15][16]} NTSB Vice chairman Bob Francis was quoted as saying "He was an idiot, he didn't know what he was talking about, and he was totally irresponsible."^[14]

TWA 800 flightpath after explosion

Ray Lahr

Another proponent of the U.S. Navy shootdown theory and prominent critic of the zoom climb scenario was H. Ray Lahr, a retired United Airlines pilot. Lahr, recipient of the Laura Taber Barbour Air Safety Award by the Flight Safety Foundation in 1994,^[17] filed a Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) suit in U.S. District Court, Central District of California, Western Division, on November 6, 2003, against the NTSB and CIA.^[18] Lahr sought documentation and data denied to him through previous FOIA requests that the NTSB and CIA used for their calculations of the zoom climb, which was used to produce the CIA animation.^[18] When asked for his reasons for seeking this documents, Lahr stated "I believe that I could show that the zoom climb never happened. If the zoom climb never happened then they've got to find out what the eyewitnesses saw and the only logical conclusion there is that they saw a missile."^[19]

On August 31, 2006, the District Court issued an initial ruling that the evidence submitted by Lahr as justification for his FOIA lawsuit was "sufficient for the plaintiff to proceed based on his claim that the government acted improperly,"^[20] and that Lahr should be granted access to some, but not all, of the documents he was seeking, based on the FOIA statutes and case law.^[20] In a further ruling on October 4, 2006, the court finalized the list of documents that the NTSB and CIA must provide to Lahr (again granting some, but not all, of his FOIA requests).^[21] While the court reaffirmed its previous ruling that Lahr had provided proof "sufficient to suggest that the government acted improperly", it also clarified that this "conclusion is based on a characterization of the evidence in a light most favorable to the plaintiff, but does not reflect or constitute any finding by the court."^[21] Upon being handed this verdict by the court, the agencies involved claimed the documents had been "lost" and could not be located, according to the plaintiff.^[22]

Bolide strike

A theory was posited in 1997 by Michael Davis, an American amateur geologist, that a bolide exploded near the airplane. A bolide is a large meteoroid, explosively torn apart as it hits the atmosphere. Davis proposed that the mysterious streak observed just before the explosion was the meteoroid's entry path, moments before it blew apart. At least one of the resulting pieces of the exploding meteoroid could have penetrated the fuselage and ripped through the almost empty central wing tank, destroying the wing's structural integrity before exiting the other side. "The damage to the CWT seems to start at the center and work its way forward along a discernible path. A fuel explosion would radiate damage in all directions." The vapor in the fuel tank could have ignited due to the searing heat produced by the bolide's high velocity. Other data appear to fit the hypothesis; the sequence of multiple sonic booms heard by witnesses onshore could be explained by the explosion and subsequent scattering of the heavier bolide remnants; the estimated 200 holes in the fuselage (cited in FBI report) could be indicative of metal cut by objects traveling at extremely high speed.

Although raising an interesting possibility, other scientists dismissed this theory due to the extremely low probability of a bolide's intersecting the aircraft's flight path at precisely the required moment.^[23]

Electromagnetic interference

On April 9, 1998, Elaine Scarry's article in The New York Review of Books, titled "The Fall of TWA 800: The Possibility of Electromagnetic Interference", was published. Scarry, a professor of English and American Literature and Language at Harvard, proposed that electromagnetic interference, also referred to as "High Intensity Radiated Fields" (HIRF), could have been the cause of the TWA 800 crash, specifically energy emitted from a U.S. military craft.^[24] Later that year, The New York Review of Books published a series of letters between Scarry and NTSB Chairman James Hall discussing the possibility of HIRF being causal to the accident, and what steps the NTSB was taking in its investigation to determine if it was a factor.^{[25][26]}

After the adoption of the final report, Scarry published another article in the New York Review of Books titled "TWA 800 and Electromagnetic Interference: Work Already Completed and Work that Still Needs to be Done".^[27] While praising the initial research done by the NTSB into HIRFs, she also stated that much more additional research was needed.^[27] Scarry criticized what she felt was a bias in the investigation to the "meticulous" detailing of events inside the airplane, while not fully exploring the electromagnetic environment outside the airplane.^[27] Scarry focused on a U.S. Navy P-3 Orion close to TWA 800 as being a possible source of electromagnetic interference and cause of the CWT explosion on TWA 800.^[27]

Scarry has since written about Swissair Flight 111 and EgyptAir Flight 990 crashes in connection with electromagnetic radiation.^{[28][29]}

Dissenting views from the investigation

IAMAW

As an invited party to the NTSB investigation, the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers (IAMAW) submitted a report into the public docket. In this report the IAMAW disputed the NTSB's sequencing study, and proposed a breakup sequence that started on the lower left side of the airplane, when a high-pressure event "unzipped" the fuselage.^[30] The IAMAW wrote that "a major event may have occurred on the left side of the aircraft. It could have contributed to or been the cause of the destruction of Flight 800."^[30] and that "the CWT exploded, but as a result of the airplane's breakup, and was not the initial event."^[30]

The IAMAW criticized the accuracy of the "Tag database" used to document the recovered wreckage and the reliability of the witness statements.^[30] The IAMAW strongly criticized the FBI's conduct during the investigation, including the undocumented removal by FBI agents of wreckage from the hangar where it was stored.^[30] However, they also commended the NTSB staff, management and board members for their cooperation during the investigation, and stated that "The fact the media has put and other groups continue to bring pressure on the board, we find it very comforting that the focus was not changed due to these forces."^[30] They concluded that "The causes and circumstances that contributed directly to the accident are unknown."^[30]

William Donaldson

William S. Donaldson, a retired Naval officer, formed the Associated Retired Aviation Professionals (ARAP) to investigate the TWA 800 crash. He authored the "Interim Report on the Crash of TWA Flight 800 and the Actions of the NTSB and the FBI" (the "Donaldson Report"), which was released on July 17, 1998, two years before the NTSB's Final Report. In it, Donaldson stated that TWA 800 was struck by two missiles, fired from the water, most likely as a terrorist attack, and subsequently the FBI and NTSB conspired to cover up this fact due to political pressure.^[31]

Donaldson disputed the CWT fuel-air vapor explosion scenario, stating that "In the history of aviation, there has never been an in-flight explosion in any Boeing airliner of a Jet-A kerosene fuel vapor/air mixture in any tank, caused by mechanical failure."^[31] Eyewitness, debris field, metallurgical, and victim injury evidence were all cited by Donaldson as proof of the missile-attack scenario.^[31] Donaldson acknowledged James Sanders' theory of an accidental shoot-down, and did not rule out U.S. Navy involvement; however, he viewed circumstantial evidence of a terrorist attack "more compelling".^[31]

Much of the report dealt with Donaldson's assertions of a conspired cover-up by the FBI and NTSB, in co-operation with the Justice Department.^[31] Donaldson believed that the Clinton Administration wanted to hide the actual cause of the crash for political reasons, specifically the upcoming presidential elections.^[31] Donaldson concluded his report with the request that Congress hold Congressional hearings into the crash and/or request that the Justice Department appoint an Independent Counsel to investigate (neither of which happened).^[31]

Donaldson received support and funding from the advocacy group Accuracy in Media,^[31] which promoted his views. He died in 2001; the ARAP Web site is still active.^[31]

Public acceptance of conspiracy theories

As of 1998, only about half of Americans accepted the NTSB's conclusion that the crash was the result of a mechanical malfunction.^[1] According to the rhetorician Shane Miller, the widespread acceptance of conspiracy theories is a result of a lack solid evidence of the direct cause of the source of ignition for the center fuel tank explosion.^[1] The heavy redaction of FBI interviews with witnesses also contributed to public doubt of official explanation.^[32]

Documentary

On July 17, 2013, the 17th anniversary of the tragedy, the Epix premium TV channel aired the documentary TWA Flight 800, directed by Kristina Borjesson, which alleges that the crash investigation was a cover-up. The film highlights extensive eyewitness interviews, with many interviewees directly objecting to publicly described versions of their own descriptions of events. It also highlights interviews with investigators who had been involved in the original inquest, six of whom had filed a petition to reopen the probe. Their petition was based on eyewitness accounts, radar evidence indicating a possible missile and claims of evidence tampering. They dubbed it "The TWA 800 Project". Former NTSB investigator Henry Hughes has been quoted that he believes a bomb or a missile caused the crash.^{[33][34][35][36][37]}

See also

- Korean Air Lines Flight 007 (September 1983) alternative theories

References

- Miller, Shane (June 1, 2002). "Conspiracy Theories: Public Arguments as Coded Social Critiques: a Rhetorical Analysis of the Twa Flight 800 Conspiracy Theories" (<https://doi.org/10.1080/00028533.2002.11821576>). Argumentation and Advocacy. 39 (1): 40–56. doi:10.1080/00028533.2002.11821576 (<https://doi.org/10.1080%2F00028533.2002.11821576>). ISSN 1051-1431 (<https://www.worldcat.org/isn/1051-1431>). S2CID 140394144 (<https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:140394144>).
- ABC (June 19, 2013). "TWA Flight 800 documentary hints at crash cover-up" (http://abclocal.go.com/kabc/story?section=news/national_world&id=9144746). Retrieved June 19, 2013.
- National Transportation Safety Board (2000). "Aircraft Accident Report: In-flight Breakup Over the Atlantic Ocean Trans World Airlines Flight 800" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20130615201201/http://www.nts.gov/doclib/reports/2000/AAR0003.pdf>) (PDF). NTSB Aar-00/03. Archived from the original (<https://www.nts.gov/doclib/reports/2000/AAR0003.pdf>) (PDF) on June 15, 2013. Retrieved July 17, 2017.
- Aviation Safety Network. "ASN Aircraft accident Boeing 747-131 N93119 East Moriches, NY" (<http://aviation-safety.net/database/record.php?id=19960717-0>). Aviation Safety Network (Web). Retrieved April 5, 2011.
- National Transportation Safety Board (2000). "Aircraft Accident Report: In-flight Breakup Over the Atlantic Ocean Trans World Airlines Flight 800 (Appendices)" (https://web.archive.org/web/20121017021323/https://www.nts.gov/doclib/reports/2000/AAR0003_app.pdf) (PDF). NTSB/AAR-00/03 Appendices. Archived from the original (https://www.nts.gov/doclib/reports/2000/AAR0003_App.pdf) (PDF) on October 17, 2012. Retrieved July 17, 2017.
- National Transportation Safety Board. "NTSB Board Meeting on TWA 800 August 22, 2000, Morning Session" (https://www.nts.gov/events/TWA800/Transcript_8_22.htm). Retrieved April 5, 2011.
- Don Van Natta Jr. (August 31, 1996). "More Traces Of Explosive In Flight 800" (<https://www.nytimes.com/1996/08/31/nyregion/more-traces-of-explosive-in-flight-800.html>). The New York Times. Retrieved January 12, 2010.

8. "Source: Traces of 2nd explosive found in TWA debris" (<http://www.cnn.com/US/9608/30/twa.pm/index.html>). CNN. August 30, 1996. Retrieved January 13, 2010.
9. [1] (<http://www.cnn.com/US/9712/09/briefs.pm/twa/index.html?eref=sitesearch>) CNN: "Couple arraigned on TWA evidence theft" December 9, 1997
10. "Archived copy" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20070928021420/http://www.press-enterprise.com/newarchive/1998/07/17/900658161.html>). Archived from the original (<http://www.press-enterprise.com/newarchive/1998/07/17/900658161.html>) on September 28, 2007. Retrieved September 4, 2007. Riverside Press-Enterprise News Archive for July 17, 1998
11. [2] (<http://www.cnn.com/US/9712/05/twa.800.theft/index.html?eref=sitesearch>) CNN: "Pilot and author charged with stealing TWA 800 wreckage" December 5, 1997
12. [3] (<http://www.cnn.com/US/9907/17/twa.flight.800/index.html?eref=sitesearch>) CNN: "Mystery of Flight 800: Three years after crash, questions linger" July 17, 1999
13. [4] (<http://www.cnn.com/US/9611/08/twa.salinger/index.html?eref=sitesearch>) CNN: "Federal agencies deny TWA Flight 800 shot down by missile" November 8, 1996
14. [5] (<http://www.cnn.com/2006/US/07/12/twa.conspiracy/index.html>) CNN: "'Pierre Salinger Syndrome' and the TWA 800 conspiracies" July 17, 2006
15. [6] (<http://www.cnn.com/US/9703/12/twa.salinger/index.html?eref=sitesearch#dr>) CNN: "Salinger offers new 'evidence' in Flight 800 missile theory" March 12, 1997
16. [7] (<http://www.time.com/time/magazine/article/0,9171,985752,00.html>) Time Magazine: "The Worst Performance of 1996" December 23, 1996
17. Flight Safety Foundation: The Laura Taber Barbour Air Safety Award (http://www.flightsafety.org/ltb_award.html) Archived (https://web.archive.org/web/20070918041410/http://www.flightsafety.org/ltb_award.html) September 18, 2007, at the Wayback Machine
18. "Archived copy" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20070930022044/http://www.foiac.org/CourtDocuments.htm>). Archived from the original (<http://www.foiac.org/CourtDocuments.htm>) on September 30, 2007. Retrieved September 4, 2007. Freedom of Information Advocacy Coalition, Inc.
19. [8] (<http://abclocal.go.com/wabc/story?section=local&id=4808741>) ABC 7 Eyewitness News: "Major court ruling in TWA Flight 800 case"
20. [9] (<http://raylahr.entryhost.com/104-Order.pdf>) Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20101008181756/http://raylahr.entryhost.com/104-Order.pdf>) October 8, 2010, at the Wayback Machine United States District Court, Central District of California, Case No. CV 03-8023 AHM (RZx)
21. [10] (<http://raylahr.entryhost.com/113-Order.pdf>) Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20101008181805/http://raylahr.entryhost.com/113-Order.pdf>) October 8, 2010, at the Wayback Machine United States District Court, Central District of California, Case No. CV 03-8023 AHM (AJWx)
22. "TWA Flight 800: The Impossible Zoom Climb" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20130202015649/http://raylahr.entryhost.com/tenyearcommemoration.php>). Raylahr.entryhost.com. Archived from the original (<http://raylahr.entryhost.com/tenyearcommemoration.php>) on February 2, 2013. Retrieved June 19, 2013.
23. Air & Space/Smithsonian, October/November 1997, p. 16 "Was It a Cosmic Catastrophe?"
24. [11] (<http://cryptome.org/twa800-emi.htm>) "The Fall of TWA 800: The Possibility of Electromagnetic Interference" Elaine Scarry, The New York Review of Books, April 9, 1998
25. [12] (<http://www.nybooks.com/articles/790>) "An Exchange on TWA 800" Elaine Scarry, The New York Review of Books, July 16, 1998
26. [13] (<http://www.nybooks.com/articles/767>) "TWA 800: A Second Exchange" Elaine Scarry, The New York Review of Books, August 13, 1998
27. [14] (<http://www.nybooks.com/articles/13896>) "TWA 800 and Electromagnetic Interference: Work Already Completed and Work that Still Needs to be Done" Elaine Scarry, The New York Review of Books, October 5, 2000

28. [15] (<http://www.nybooks.com/articles/13898>) "Swissair 111, TWA 800, and Electromagnetic Interference" Elaine Scarry, The New York Review of Books, September 21, 2000
29. [16] (<http://www.nybooks.com/articles/13830>) The Fall of EGYPTAIR 990 Elaine Scarry, The New York Review of Books, October 5, 2000
30. International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers: Analysis and Recommendations Regarding T.W.A. Flight 800 (https://www.nts.gov/events/TWA800/exhibits/IAMAW_submission.pdf)
31. [17] (<http://twa800.com/report/final.pdf>) Interim Report on the Crash of TWA Flight 800 and the Actions of the NTSB and the FBI
32. Nyhan, Brendan; Dickinson, Franklin; Dudding, Sasha; Dylgjeri, Enxhi; Neiley, Eric; Pullerits, Christopher; Seog, Minae; Simpson, Andy; Szilagyi, Heather; Walmsley, Colin (2016). "Classified or Coverup? The Effect of Redactions on Conspiracy Theory Beliefs" (<https://www.cambridge.org/core/journals/journal-of-experimental-political-science/article/classified-or-coverup-the-effect-of-redactions-on-conspiracy-theory-beliefs/88DB61FA87834E7D0687867EA7F0A600/share/c09dcfae3527d5d4deca4a4618aaa2c11c185a9a>). Journal of Experimental Political Science. 3 (2): 109–123. doi:10.1017/XPS.2015.21 (<https://doi.org/10.1017%2FXPS.2015.21>). ISSN 2052-2630 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/2052-2630>).
33. "U.S. investigators will not reopen TWA Flight 800 crash probe" (<http://in.reuters.com/article/2014/07/02/usa-flight-probe-idINL2N0PD2HU20140702>). July 3, 2014. Retrieved July 2, 2014.
34. "TWA Flight 800 documentary hints at crash cover-up" (<http://abclocal.com/kabc/story?id=9144746>). ABC News. June 19, 2013. Retrieved December 27, 2013.
35. Devaney, Robert (July 18, 2013). "Salinger's Accusations About TWA Flight 800 Resurface in New Documentary" (<http://www.georgetowner.com/articles/2013/jul/18/salingers-accusations-about-twa-flight-800-resurface-new-documentary/>). The Georgetowner. Retrieved July 20, 2013.
36. Davies, Alex (July 17, 2013). "New Documentary Fails To Prove That TWA Flight 800 Was Hit By A Missile" (<http://www.businessinsider.com/flight-twa-800-doesnt-support-claims-2013-7>). Business Insider. Retrieved August 1, 2013.
37. "NTSB Denies Petition on 1996 Crash of TWA Flight 800" (<https://www.nts.gov/news/press-release/s/Pages/PR20140702.aspx>). nts.gov.

Further reading

- Cashill, Jack (2016). TWA 800: The Crash, the Cover-Up, and the Conspiracy. Washington, DC: Regnery. ISBN 978-1621574712.

External links

- Dunning, Brian (May 6, 2008). "Skeptoid #99: Reassembling TWA Flight 800" (<https://skeptoid.com/episodes/4099>). Skeptoid.
-

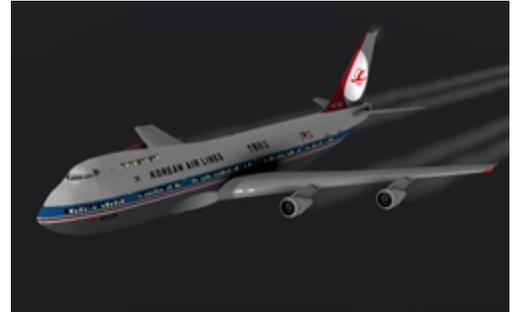

Retrieved from "https://en.wikipedia.org/w/index.php?title=TWA_Flight_800_conspiracy_theories&oldid=1027851371"

This page was last edited on 10 June 2021, at 11:08 (UTC).

Text is available under the Creative Commons Attribution-ShareAlike License; additional terms may apply. By using this site, you agree to the Terms of Use and Privacy Policy. Wikipedia® is a registered trademark of the Wikimedia Foundation, Inc., a non-profit organization.

Korean Air Lines Flight 007 alternative theories

Korean Air Lines Flight 007 alternative theories concerns the various theories put forward regarding the shooting down of Korean Air Lines Flight 007. The aircraft was en route from New York City via Anchorage to Seoul on September 1, 1983, when it strayed into prohibited Soviet airspace and was shot down by Soviet fighter jets.

KAL 007 (artist's rendition)

Flight 007 has been the subject of ongoing controversy and has spawned a number of conspiracy theories.^[1] Many of these are based on the suppression of evidence such as the flight data recorders,^[2] unexplained details such as the role of a USAF RC-135 surveillance aircraft,^{[3][4]} or merely Cold War disinformation and propaganda.^{[5][6][7]} Some commentators also felt that the International Civil Aviation Organization (ICAO) report into the incident failed to address key points adequately, such as the reason for the aircraft's deviation.^{[8][9]} The release of flight data recorder evidence by the Russian Federation in 1993, ten years after the event, seriously challenged many of these theories. Some alternative interpretations focus on evidential questions largely independent of political considerations.

One of the first theories was that Space Shuttle Challenger and a satellite were monitoring the airliner's progress over Soviet territory. Defence Attaché, which printed this claim, was sued by Korean Air Lines and forced to pay damages and print an apology.^[10]

Contents

Flight crew awareness of deviation

Planned spy mission theory

Theory of intentional deviation by pilots

Theory of spy mission involving USAF aircraft

Theories about lack of human remains and luggage at impact site

Crab theory

Decompression theory

"Wind tunnel" theory

Theory of Soviet removal of bodies

Theory of abduction and retention of passengers and crew

Meaoning theory

US government cover-up theory

See also

Notes

Footnotes

References

External links

Flight crew awareness of deviation

The reasons put forward for the aircraft's deviation range from a lack of situational awareness by the pilots (ICAO), to a planned and intentional deviation (Pearson^[11]), to an Inertial Navigation system (INS) programming error by 10 degrees of longitude during the inputting of the ramp starting position by the crew.^[12] All accounts note that the pilots had several sources of information that could have alerted them to their increasing deviation from their planned route.^{[13][14]} The H/E scenario additionally suggests the flight's first officer did know they were flying away from the planned course, but the airline's culture discouraged anyone from questioning the captain's conduct of the flight, so he remained silent.^[14]

The theory that the INS system was set incorrectly gains considerable credibility if the following are considered:

1. Although there are three independent inertial platforms, when in the ramp position, the operator only inputs one initial position in order for the platform to "erect".
2. This would have been done by the Flight Engineer alone, before the other crew members arrive.
3. In order to erect properly (that is, enter gyro-compassing mode), each platform relies on the correct latitude, but not the longitude.
4. Therefore, if the longitude was incorrectly set, all three platforms would seem to erect normally, but with a position some 10 degrees in error.

Once airborne, an incorrect aircraft system position (of at higher latitudes a small amount) would immediately direct all the flight navigational displays to fly the aircraft to what it thinks is the correct track to the first way point. Once on the wrong track, all would appear normal, HSI's included. This would even be true if there were pictorial navigational displays, similar to modern aircraft.

The deviated track can be compared with the required track. As the aircraft moves south, the lines of longitude expand and the track deviation gets greater. That is the initial 10 degree error that was sent to the INS gets wider.

The horizontal situation indicator (HSI): Pearson contends that the HSI's needle could have alerted the pilots of their course deviation.^[15] He postulates that the needle of each pilot's HSI, capable of showing deviation only up to 8 nautical miles (15 km), should have been "pegged" all the way to the side. The pilots, thus, could in theory have known that they were at least 8 nautical miles (15 km) off course.^[16]

Despite this, at 1349 UTC, the pilots were reporting that they were on course ("007, Bethel at forty niner.")^[17] Fifty minutes after takeoff, military radar at King Salmon, Alaska acquired KAL 007 at more than 12.6 nautical miles (23.3 km) off course. The deviation exceeded the expected accuracy of the INS (2 nautical miles (3.7 km) an hour) by a factor of five.^[18]

Difficulties in making required reports: Pilot and copilot could also have been aware of the aircraft's serious deviation because now, much more than 12 nautical miles (22 km) off course, KAL 007 was too far off course for the pilots to make their required Very High Frequency (VHF) radio reports, and had to relay these reports via KAL Flight 015, just minutes behind and on course (KAL 007, increasingly off course, relied on KAL 015 three times to relay its reports to Anchorage Air Traffic Control). By being forced to rely on KAL 015 to relay messages, KAL 007 should have (by definition) understood that they were well off course.^[19]

At one point in this section of its flight, (1443 UTC) KAL 007 put a call through a navigational "hookup", the International Flight Service Station on HF. Flight 007, now too distant to speak directly with Anchorage controller through VHF, was transmitting its message using HF. At another point of this section of the flight, at waypoint NABIE, KAL 007 was too far north to make radio contact with the VHF air traffic control relay station on St. Paul Island. KAL 015 relayed for KAL 007. The message was a change in the estimated time of arrival (ETA) for the next waypoint called NEEVA, delaying by four minutes the ETA that KAL 015 had previously relayed on behalf of KAL 007. Since a revised ETA could only be calculated by means of readout information presented by KAL 007's Inertial Navigation Systems Control Display unit, Pearson asserts that pilot and copilot were once again presented with the opportunity of verifying their position and becoming aware of their enormous deviation.^[20]

Contrary wind conditions of KAL 007 and KAL 015: KAL 015 had departed about 15 minutes behind KAL 007. About 23 minutes before the tragedy, the two aircraft compared the times that they expected to reach waypoint NOKKA, at which point it became apparent that KAL 015 would reach it only four minutes behind KAL 007. KAL 015 reported experiencing strong tailwinds, while KAL 007 was experiencing a headwind. The paradox of the different flying conditions experienced by two aircraft supposedly flying so close together was discussed in the cabin of KAL 007, but the crew failed to draw any conclusions from it.^[21]

Weather radar: There was one last aid to warn the crew. Displayed in consoles at the knees of both pilot and copilot, the plane's weather radar ^[Notes 1] could have alerted them, both over Kamchatka and later over Sakhalin, to the fact that they were no longer flying over water, as they should have been.^[22] Weather radar has two modes—ground mapping (when it would be possible to look down and see water or land masses as well as the contours of the coast lines) and weather surveillance mode for thunderstorm detection.^[23] In ground mapping mode, KAL 007 had only to make sure that the land mass of Kamchatka and the island string of the Kurile chain would remain to the right. That night, KAL 007's weather radar was probably not in land mapping mode, for the weather was inclement.^[24] The ICAO's meteorological analysis concluded that "there was extensive coverage of low, medium, and high level clouds over southern Kamchatka associated with an active cold front".^[24] ICAO's analysis of KAL 007's weather radar functioning would state, "it was concluded that the radar was not functioning properly or that the ground mapping capability was not used".^[25]

According to the ICAO, an indicator of pilot unawareness of the deviation from route of their flight was the bantering and casual cockpit conversation at the times that awareness of deviation into hostile airspace would have increased tension and have precluded this. (See Korean Air Lines Flight 007 transcripts.)

Planned spy mission theory

In 1994, Robert W Allardyce and James Gollin wrote Desired Track: The Tragic Flight of KAL Flight 007, supporting the spy mission theory.^[26] In 2007, they reiterated their position in a series of articles in Airways Magazine, arguing that the investigation by the International Civil Aviation Organization was a cover-up of a "carefully planned ferret mission".^[27] Furthermore, they suggested that the NSA had implemented Electronic Counter Measures to cover for the mission and that the flight recorder tapes had been planted for the Soviet recovery effort to find.^[28]

Planned spy mission theories point out the incongruity of a civilian passenger liner going accidentally astray and unnoticed precisely in one of the most militarily sensitive and well-observed areas in the Cold War. They point out that there were powerful land and sea radar arrays that could have tracked KAL 007 as it crossed through the NORAD prohibited-to-civilian flight zone and approached and entered Soviet territory. These were:

- COBRA JUDY aboard the missile range instrumentation ship USNS Observation Island, then off the coast of Kamchatka;
- Shemya Island's COBRA DANE line of sight radar which was capable of tracking an aircraft at up to a 30,000 feet (9,100 m) altitude through an area covering 400 miles (640 km) (the curvature of the earth being its limiting factor);
- Shemya Island's COBRA TALON, an over-the-horizon radar array with a range from 575 miles (925 km) to 2,070 miles (3,330 km). COBRA TALON operated by bouncing its emissions off the ionosphere (deflection) to the other side of the line of sight horizon, thus acquiring its targets.

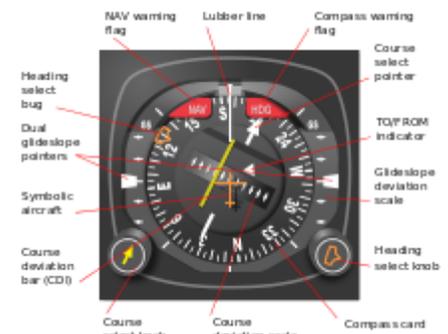

COBRA DANE, an intelligence-gathering phased array radar system specially constructed to monitor Soviet ballistic missile testing on Siberia's Kamchatka Peninsula

These radar arrays had capability for both surveillance and tracking. Whether this capability was actually used in the case of Flight 007 is currently unknown. In addition, the United States Air Force radar stations at Cape Newenham and Cape Romanzoff, two of twelve stations comprising the United States Alaskan Distant Early Warning/Aircraft Control and Warning (DEW/ACW) System, had the capability to track all aircraft heading toward the Russian Buffer Zone. Well within range of these radar sites, KAL 007 had veered directly toward Kamchatka. This theory postulates that the CIA put out disinformation about the aircraft landing at Sakhalin after their mission failed in order to buy time to construct a more credible story.^[29]

Theory of intentional deviation by pilots

This theory, promoted by David Pearson in his book KAL 007: the Cover-up postulates that the pilots made "a deliberate, carefully planned intrusion into Soviet territory with the knowledge of US military and intelligence agencies."^[11] He argues that it was impossible for the pilots not to know that they were off course. Various mechanisms, such as the Horizontal Situation Indicator,^[30] should, assuming that the aircraft's navigation systems were functional and correctly programmed, have alerted the pilots of their course deviation. In addition, VHF transmissions to Anchorage had to be relayed via flight KAL 015 (which should have been a few minutes behind KAL 007, had it been on course), because the plane had travelled too far off course.

Horizontal Situation Indicator (stock image)

Pearson has also questioned why, if the pilots had unintentionally strayed off course, a US RC-135 reconnaissance plane in the area did not see the jumbo jet (or pick up the Soviet radio chatter regarding it) and warn it of its danger, as well as informing its own command and civilian air traffic controllers.

The theory of intentional deviation suffered a blow in 1992 with the handover by the Russian Federation of the Cockpit Voice Recorder tape. This showed that at the times of most danger during the flight, the flight crew was relaxed speaking about currency exchange at Kimpo airport, or bored, or even bantering with each other, indicating to ICAO analysts that the crew of KAL 007 were unaware of the danger they were then exposed to.^[31]

USAF RC-135

Murray Sayle described an earlier version of Pearson's theory published in The Nation as containing "schoolboy howlers, or, better, graduate-student howlers" regarding the operation of cockpit positioning monitors, and Pearson's approach in general as lacking objectivity, and the work of a conspiracy theorist.^[32]

Theory of spy mission involving USAF aircraft

Another theory was suggested by a French aeronautical expert, Michel Brun, in his book Incident at Sakhalin: The True Mission of KAL Flight 007. It has been supported by a former American diplomat to Moscow, John Keppel, and the American association Foundation for Constitutional Government.^[33]

According to this book, the USSR was not guilty. The massacre of Flight 007 was directly caused by the Americans or Japanese. KAL 007 was involved in a spy mission intended to trigger Soviet air defences and to cover up for the missions of several USAF surveillance aircraft. Soviet Fighters attacked these aircraft but did not destroy KAL 007 which crashed far away from Sakhalin in Japanese "friendly" territory in the Japanese sea near North Honshu.

Moneron Island

The Korean aircraft was correctly communicating with other KAL crews, forty-six minutes after the official time of the shutdown. A large air battle allegedly occurred between the Soviet Air Force and the USAF, during which the Soviets shot down several American aircraft, including an RC-135, an EF-111 and probably even an SR-71. The SU-15 pilot, Major Osipovich, flew two sorties and shot down two targets (contradicted by the 1991 interview with Osipovich^[34]). Furthermore, for a long time all the experts believed that the Soviet fighter pilot was called Major Kazmin.^[35] Michel Brun believes that Kazmin and Osipovich twice destroyed an aircraft, but absolutely not the KAL 007. According to the theory, the whereabouts of the KAL-007 wreckage is not known to anyone, but is probably 500 kilometres (310 mi) away from Moneron Island down the coast of Japan. The theory postulates further that the real cause of the destruction is not known, but could have been a surface-to-air missile fired from USS Badger (similar case with USS Vincennes shooting down of Iran Air Flight 655)^[36] or from Japanese forces, who could not identify the airliner which was keeping radio silence.

In March 1991 an anonymous Japanese pilot said on TV that he knew who was guilty: a colleague who became a taxi driver in Tokyo.^[37] The lack of bodies, body parts, and wreckage of KAL 007 around Sakhalin and Moneron Islands was an indication to Brun that KAL 007 did not come down in those locales. Sparse remains showing up on the beaches of Hokkaido, nine days after the destruction of KAL 007 south of Moneron and Sakhalin, are evidence to Brun that KAL 007 was downed further south and that these remains were brought northward by the north running Tsushima current along the west Japanese coast.^[38] This opposes the commonly held understanding that the remains were carried from the waters near the islands of Sakhalin and Moneron by the West Sakhalin current flowing south between the two islands (at 1 mile per hour (1.6 km/h)), then by the West Sakhalin convergent current (6.9–8.1 mph, 11–13 km/h) near the tip of Sakhalin (35 nautical miles away from Moneron), into the Soya Strait, and finally onto the beaches of Hokkaido. Brun also discovered that KAL 007 communicated by radio in Korean with two other Korean aircraft after 03:27, the official time of its destruction: at 03:54 with KAL 015,^[39] 04:10 with KE50,^[40] and twice at 04:13,^[41] the true time of the aircraft crashing. This unusual last call, which was sent to the two aircraft and suddenly cut, could probably be explained by a serious problem occurring.^[42]

In his book, Brun published a photograph of a weapon found by Japanese sailors from JMSA among KAL 007 debris "north of Moneron Island on 10 September 1983",^[43] bearing the mark "N3".^[44] The letter N does not exist in the Russian Cyrillic alphabet, suggesting that the weapon was not Soviet.^[45]

Brun's theory attempts to account for the only eyewitness report of an explosion near Moneron Island which is considered to be that of KAL 007 on its way to the water. A Japanese fisherman aboard the Chidori Maru 58 had reported to the Japanese Maritime Safety Agency (and this report was forgotten in 1984^[46] but cited by the ICAO analysis in 1993) of hearing a plane at low altitude but not seeing it. Then he heard "a loud sound followed by a bright flash of light on the horizon, then another dull sound and a less intense flash of light on the horizon"^[47] as well as smelling aviation fuel.^[48]

Brun maintains that the fisherman's account of the destruction of KAL 007 was not sustainable because if the aircraft exploded while low on the horizon, the sound of the explosion could not have, as reported by the fishermen, reached his ear before the flash of the explosion reached the eye, as light travels faster than sound. Brun further maintains, in accordance with his theory of an aerial combat between Russian and US aircraft, that the "loud sound" heard prior to the "flash of light on the horizon" could have been the sound of a missile fired by a military jet flying above or near the Chidori Maru 58, at an opposing military jet, the explosion of which was seen by the fisherman, and wrongly attributed by ICAO analysts to KAL 007, which Brun believes went down in Japanese waters much further south of Moneron at 04:13:16s. Among Michel Brun's supporters since 1995 is David Pearson, author of KAL 007: the Cover-up.^[49]

Theories about lack of human remains and luggage at impact site

These theories attempt to explain why there were no surface finds at the place postulated for the KAL 007's impact with the water. There were no bodies, body parts, or body tissues, and there was no luggage. Furthermore, on the sea bottom there was only one partial torso and 10 body parts or tissues, possibly from the same individual, noted by Soviet civilian divers who had commenced diving to the wreckage purported to be of KAL 007 just two weeks after the shutdown. Furthermore, for all of the 269 occupants, divers reported with surprise either no luggage or, in one diver's report, there were only a few pieces of luggage at the bottom. Of the thirteen body parts or tissues washed up on the Japanese Hokkaido beaches 70 miles from Soviet Moneron Island and starting eight days after the shoot down, all were unidentifiable. All the non-human items (see main article) recovered from Hokkaido's beaches were those generally coming from a passenger cabin of an aircraft and none from the cargo hold, contrary to what would be expected if there had been a total destruction from a passenger aircraft crashing into the sea.

Crab theory

In his book The Mystery of Korean Boeing 747, Soviet correspondent Andrey Illesh proposes that the bodies were eaten by giant crabs. The crab theory has been persistent and been echoed by the Soviet interceptor pilot Gennady Osipovich, who fired the missile that shot down the plane.

Japanese spider crab

"... I heard that they had found the 'Boeing' when I was still on Sakhalin. And even investigated it. But no one saw people there. I, however, explain that by the fact that there are crabs in the sea off Sakhalin that immediately devour everything ... I did hear that they found only a hand in a black glove. Perhaps it was the hand of the pilot of the aircraft that I shot down. You know, even now I cannot really believe that there were passengers on board. You cannot write off everyone to the crabs ... Surely something would be left? ... Nevertheless, I am a supporter of the old version: It was a spy plane. In any event, it was not happenstance that it flew towards us."^[50]

Professor William Newman, marine biologist, explains why the crab (or any other sea creature) theory is untenable: "Even if we proceed from the supposition that crustaceans, or sharks, or something else fell upon the flesh, the skeletons should have remained. In many cases, skeletons were found on the sea or ocean floor, which had sat there for many years and, even decades. In addition, the crustaceans would not have touched bones." Also, the crab theory could not account for the lack of luggage.

Decompression theory

Another explanation is provided by Izvestiya correspondents Shalnev and Illesh's interview of Mikhail Igorevich Girs, Captain of the Tinro 2 submersible which made most of the dives. In the May 31, 1991, edition of Izvestiya, Capt. Girs suggested that the passengers were sucked out of the aircraft, leaving their clothes behind.^[51]

"Something else was inexplicable to us—zipped-up clothes. For instance, a coat, slacks, shorts, a sweater with zippers—the items were different, but, zipped up. And nothing inside. We came to this conclusion then: Most likely, the passengers had been pulled out of the plane by decompression, and they fell in a completely different place from where we found the debris. They had been spread out over a much larger area. The current also did its work."^[52]

"Wind tunnel" theory

The latest reference to the decompression theory of the missing bodies was made by Lieutenant General Valeri Kamenski, most recently Chief of Staff and Deputy Commander of the Ukrainian Air Force and formerly Chief of Staff of the Soviet Far East Military District Air Defense Force. In an article dated March 15, 2001, in the Ukrainian weekly Fakty i Kommentarii, General Kamenski spoke about this lingering question: "It is still a mystery what happened to the bodies of the crew and passengers on the plane. According to one theory, right after the rocket's detonation, the nose and tail section of the jumbo fell off and the mid-fuselage became a sort of wind tunnel so the people were swept through it and scattered over the surface of the ocean. Yet in this case, some of the bodies were to have been found during the search operations in the area. The question of what actually happened to the people has not been given a distinct answer."

Theory of Soviet removal of bodies

This theory rests on the fact that when the Soviet civilian divers first went down to the wreck just two weeks after the shootdown, the finds they encountered were contrary to an aircraft having fallen from the sky. They reportedly corresponded more to "secondary placement" of the wreckage, and removal of both the passengers and aircrew of KAL 007, by the Soviet navy, who they claim had been at work prior to them, using both divers and trawlers.

"The first submergence was on 15 September, two weeks after the aircraft had been shot down. As we learned then, before us the trawlers had done some 'work' in the designated quadrant. It is hard to understand what sense the military saw in the trawling operation. First drag everything haphazardly around the bottom by the trawls, and then send in the submersibles? ... It is clear that things should have been done in the reverse order."^[53]

Captain Mikhail Igorevich Girs: "Submergence 10 October. Aircraft pieces, wing spars, pieces of aircraft skin, wiring, and clothing. But—no people. The impression is that all of this has been dragged here by a trawl rather than falling down from the sky ..."^[51]

This was one of the theories expressed in the original Izvestia series of 1990–91, and the later interview of deep sea diver Vadim Kondrabayev (subsequently reprinted in English by Roy's Russian Aircraft Review). Kondrabayev, one of the civilian divers brought to explore the wreckage of KAL 007 in 1983, gave an interview to the Russian magazine Itogi, published on October 1, 2000. He points out that after he and the other civilian divers were brought to Sakhalin on September 10, 1983, they were kept there until "the end of September. ... They literally forgot about us for several days." When they did get to the wreckage, they were surprised to find neither bodies nor luggage: "... of the people who supposedly were on board, something should have remained. We worked beneath the water almost a month for five hours a day and didn't find one suitcase, not even a handle from them. After all there is baggage on any air trip. We either were able to work on the remains, which already had been filtered by the special services, or, what I also do not discount, there were no passengers at all on the airplane, and they stuffed the cabin with rubbish. ... It is quite possible that several mini-submarines with military divers went down to the Boeing even before us and collected everything, and scattered the remaining parts of the destroyed liner about or left them there where they were needed, and afterwards called us as a smoke screen."^{[54][55]}

Theory of abduction and retention of passengers and crew

The abduction theory proposes that KAL 007, having been missed by one of the missiles, landed or successfully ditched with passengers and crew surviving; they were then abducted and put into prison camps by the Soviet authorities. Among its advocates are the Israeli-American Bert Schlossberg, a son-in-law of one of the crash victims (and his organisation, the International Committee for the Rescue of KAL 007 Survivors^[56]), and Avraham Shifrin, a Soviet emigre to Israel in the 1970s and former Soviet prison camp inmate. It has received some coverage in the conservative news agency Accuracy in Media^{[57][58][59]} and also the magazine of the John Birch Society,^{[60][61]} whose second president, the Democratic representative from Georgia Larry McDonald, was a passenger on the flight.

Larry McDonald

Schlossberg, as a new citizen of Israel, met Shifrin in 1989, and through Shifrin, met and questioned one of his sources, and came to question the accepted belief that the people of KAL 007 had perished. Through his own investigation and research of newly released documents, Schlossberg became convinced that the passengers and crew of KAL 007 had been recovered by the Russians and then imprisoned. In a self-published book^[62] and on the Committee website, Schlossberg corroborates this theory with claims that Soviet military communication and cockpit voice

Guided missile cruiser Petropavlovsk (565) in 225-square-nautical-mile (770 km²) search area north of Moneron recorder transcripts show a post-missile detonation flightpath at altitude 5,000 meters for almost 5 minutes until over the only land mass in the Tatar Straits and within Soviet territorial waters, where it began a slow spiral descent. He claims this indicates both the aircraft's capability of extended flight, and the pilots' intention to water land near the only point where rescue would be feasible. He furthermore claims that a lack of bodies, body parts and tissues, and luggage, both on the surface of the sea and at the bottom; the Soviet obstruction of US, Korean, and Japanese search vessels trying to enter into Soviet territorial waters around Moneron Island, near which KAL 007 was last tracked spiraling downward; previously unknown Soviet transcripts, released by the Russian Federation, of mission orders within one half hour of the shutdown, sending helicopters, KGB patrol boats, and civilian trawlers to Moneron Island; and the Russian Federation acknowledgement of Soviet deception in its part of the search for KAL 007 all indicate a Soviet recovery of passengers and crew from the damaged and downed passenger jet.

Lubyanka in 1983

Schlossberg has also claimed that a letter sent in 1991 by Senator Jesse Helms, while he was ranking minority member of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations, to Russian President Boris Yeltsin, requesting information about the fate of KAL 007, indicates that Helms took the abduction theory seriously. The letter included, in a list of questions, a request to know the whereabouts of any survivors and their camp locations, and requested also to know of the fate of Larry McDonald.^[63]

Schlossberg's work has not gained mainstream media attention; in a review of the circumstances of the death of Larry McDonald, University of Georgia Law Professor Donald E. Wilkes considered the theory as "even more preposterous" than Michel Brun's theory of a Japanese locale for the shutdown and an air battle having taken place between Soviet and American aircraft.^[64]

Avraham Shifrin, a self-declared KGB expert,^[65] claimed that, according to the investigation of his research centre, KAL 007 landed on water north of Moneron, and the passengers successfully disembarked on emergency floats. The Soviets collected them and subsequently sent them to camps (with the children "separated from their parents and safely hidden in the orphan houses of one of the Soviet Middle Asian republics"). McDonald in particular was supposed to have gone through a number of prisons in Moscow, among them the Central Lubyanka, and Lefortovo.^[66]

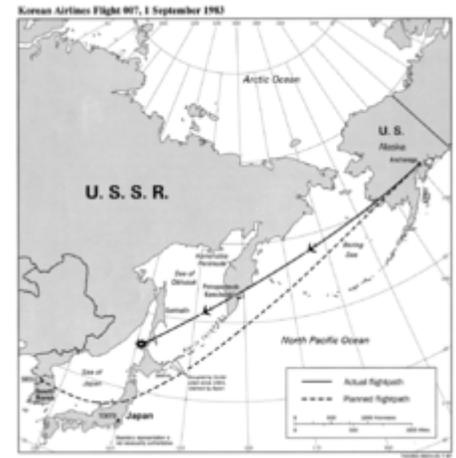

The aeronautics journalist James Oberg, while acknowledging Shifrin's expertise on Soviet prison camps, has stated that Shifrin "got real confused" about the fate of KAL 007.^[67] Hans Ephraimson, a relative of one of the passengers, has called Shifrin a "con man who has no idea how much grief he has caused to families," having been frustrated in his attempts to meet Shifrin's sources.^[67]

According to Michel Brun this theory is not entirely preposterous. In his book he analyses the first news, communicated by CIA and South Korean government: that KAL 007 landed in Sakhalin and all passengers were safe. In his careful searches, he discovered the source of this first information. It was published in a Japanese newspaper, Mainichi Shinboun, on September 1, 1983.^[68] According to him, this observation came from Wakkanai radars. So, he suggests that another aircraft, probably military, landed at Sakhalin during the "Sakhalin battle" and that its passengers, American, South Korean, or both, were jailed in the Soviet Union.

Meaconing theory

Meaconing is the term to describe the interception and rebroadcasting of navigational signals in order to confuse the sending aircraft about its own true location. (There is an assumption that the target does not have secondary navigational aids such as INS or radar). This is a prelude to a deviation such as that experienced by KAL 007 on its intended course from Anchorage, Alaska, to Seoul, Korea. Meaconing was used frequently during the Cold War. The theory that meaconing was used against KAL 007 often entails the following points which are shown to be true from the transcripts or assumed to be true by the theory's proponents:

- the pilots of KAL 007 clearly believed that they were on a course different from the one that they were actually flying;
- Democratic Congressman Larry McDonald was known to be aboard KAL 007 and was considered the chief anti-Communist in Congress, and was also the second head of the John Birch Society;
- other anti-communist lawmakers were understood to have been with Larry McDonald aboard KAL 007, as it was not known that they had opted for another flight, KAL 015; these congressmen were North Carolina Sen. Jesse Helms, Idaho Sen. Steven Symms, and Kentucky Rep. Carroll Hubbard. The intended destination and purpose of all these congressmen was ostensibly the Seoul celebration of the 30-year anniversary of the US–South Korea Mutual Defense Treaty, but in actuality, their main purpose was to further the anti-Communist coalition and activity.

KAL 007's increasingly deviated flight

It is sometimes suggested^[69] that Soviet meaconing of KAL 007 was performed with the tacit approval or with the active participation and planning of leftist and socialist power centres in the US government.

Finally, in support of the meacon theory, this information that surfaced during the ICAO investigation and is considered indicative of purposeful intent to cause KAL 007 to go astray: At 28 minutes after takeoff, civilian radar at Kenai, on the eastern shore of Cook Inlet and 53 nautical miles (98 km) southwest of Anchorage, with a radar coverage of 175 miles (282 km) west of Anchorage, tracked KAL 007 more than six miles (10 km) north of its intended course. KAL 007 and all flights departing from Anchorage on route J501 had to pass Cairn Mountain, which was the site of a nondirectional radio beacon (NDB). An NDB navigational aid operates by transmitting a continuous three-letter identification code which is picked up by the airborne receiver, the Automatic Direction Finder (ADF). Cairn Mountain was KAL 007's first assigned navigational aid out of Anchorage Airport. That night, Douglas L. Porter was the controller at Air Route Traffic Control Center at Anchorage, assigned to monitor all flights in that sector and record their observed position in relation to the fix provided by the Cairn Mountain nondirectional beacon. Porter later testified that all had seemed normal to him.^[70] Yet he apparently failed to record,^[71] as required, the position of two flights that night: KAL 007 and KAL 015, which followed KAL 007 by several minutes. Had he done so, it would have provided an opportunity to warn KAL 007 of its deviation, resulting in the necessary correction for the rest of the flight. To holders of the meaconing theory, the above seem curious, ominous, and ancillary to their theory.

US government cover-up theory

Holders of this theory point to two sets of facts indicating that the US government had covered up the incident and had skewed the investigation for political ends. The first set of facts relate to US capability and actuality of tracking KAL 007 in its deviated flight, thus presenting the possibility of warning the aircraft in time to avert its entrance into harm's way.

The Cape Newenham and Cape Romanzoff radars monitored at the NORAD Regional Operations Command Center were but two of twelve comprising the United States Alaskan Distant Early Warning / Aircraft Control and Warning (DEW/ACW) System. These United States Air Force radar stations at Cape Newenham and Cape Romanzoff in Alaska had the capability to track all aircraft heading toward the Russian Buffer Zone, though it is not known if the radar results of such "outgoing" tracking would have been monitored in "real-time" at the facility at Elmendorf Air Force base. These tapes remain unavailable to the public for national security reasons. However, there was another location at which KAL 007 could well have been tracked in its deviation. This was at the installation at King Salmon, Alaska. It is customary for the Air Force to impound radar trackings involving possible litigation in cases of aviation accidents.^[72] In the civil litigation for damages, the United States Department of Justice explained that the tapes from the Air Force radar installation at King Salmon, pertinent to KAL 007's flight in the Bethel area had been destroyed and could therefore not be supplied to the plaintiffs. At first, Justice Department lawyer Jan Van Flatern stated that they were destroyed 15 days after the shootdown. Later, he said he had "misspoken" and changed the time of destruction to 30 hours after the event. A Pentagon spokesman concurred, saying that the tapes are re-cycled for reuse from 24 to 30 hours afterwards,^[73] however the fate of KAL 007 was known inside this timeframe.^[72]

The second set of facts relate to a series of moves taking the investigation out of the hands of the National Transportation Safety Board and in the hands of the International Civil Aviation Organization. Normally, when an airliner crashes, responsibility for the inquiry falls to the NTSB, which has the technical expertise to assess what happened. Although the downing of the Flight 007 cannot be classified as a routine aviation disaster, the NTSB office in Anchorage was notified that the plane was missing just three hours after it had come down in the Sea of Japan (East Sea) and immediately began to look into the matter. Shortly, after that, it was told to cease its investigation and forward to its headquarters in Washington all the material—originals and copies—it had gathered. From there, the information was sent to the State Department. James Michelangelo, chief of the NTSB's Anchorage office, was told by headquarters that the Board was off the case and that the State Department would handle the investigation. Eighteen months after the airliner was shot down, when asked if the State Department had ever conducted such an enquiry, a high-level State Department official, Lynn Pascoe, replied, "How is the State Department going to investigate?"^{[74][75]}

Holders of this theory ask why the effective investigation in progress, conducted by NTSB—Anchorage station chief James Michelangelo, was preempted (the very first occurrence) by the Washington-based NTSB home office under orders from the State Department, which itself did not, as originally announced, investigate the disaster, but rather referred the investigation to the political and investigatively ineffective United Nations International Civil Aviation Organization. The ICAO has no subpoena powers and, according to its mandate, can analyse only material presented to it by its constituent interested members. ICAO's final reports, it is maintained, are reflections of the politically expedient rather than of an independent investigative determination. The only other air disaster ICAO had ever investigated was the Israeli shootdown of Libyan Arab Airlines Flight 114 over the Sinai.

In January 1996, Hans Ephraimson, chairman of the "American Association for Families of KAL 007 Victims", claimed that South Korean President Chun Doo-hwan accepted $4 million from Korean Air in order to gain "government protection" during the investigation of the shootdown.^[76]

See also

- Korean Air Lines Flight 007 transcripts
- List of airliner shootdown incidents
- Pan Am Flight 103 conspiracy theories

- TWA Flight 800 conspiracy theories
- MH17

Notes

1. KAL 007's two Bendix RDR-IF radars had a maximum range of 200 nautical miles (370 km) with a 180° scan capability. ICAO 1983, p. 14, section 1.6.4.1

Footnotes

1. Knight, p. 381
2. Bohlen, Celestine (October 16, 1992). "Tape Displays the Anguish On Jet the Soviets Downed" (<http://query.nytimes.com/gst/fullpage.html?res=9E0CE1D91030F935A25753C1A964958260>). New York Times. Retrieved February 1, 2009.
3. Schultz, p. 367
4. Johnson, p. 175
5. Pry, p. 31
6. Pearson, p.17
7. Young, p. 137
8. Daniloff, p. 304
9. Johnson, pp. 230–237
10. Time, December 3, 1984
11. Pearson, David (1987). KAL 007: the Cover-up (<https://archive.org/details/kal007coverup00pear>). Summit Books.
12. Hersh pp. 199–213, the "Harold Ewing (H/E) scenario," which ICAO studied in great detail
13. Pearson, pp. 38–39
14. Hersh, pp. 199–213
15. KAL 007 Cover-Up. David Pearson, Summit Books, N.Y., Pg. 277, point 10
16. An aircraft HSI generally has an image of a plane directly above the Horizontal Situation Indicator's needle when the aircraft is on course. A needle pointing to the left or to the right of the image would indicate that the plane is deviated left or right of the course. KAL 007's HSI's needle should have been pegged all the way to the right (North). The ICAO expanded on the HSI's capability of showing course deviation. Though the HSI was primarily designed to show the aircraft's situation with regard to the horizon, the 747's HSI contained an indicator to register deviation from plotted course. "Indications [of being on course] available to the crew would have been a reducing or zero track bar displacement with the HSI display set to the INS and a similar reducing or zero cross track error on the CDUs [consoles]. There would have been a similar effect with the VOR track displacement..."— ICAO report 1993, p. 42, sect. 2.4.4.
17. Pearson, p. 40
18. Pearson, pp. 40
19. KAL 007: Cover-Up, David Pearson, Summit Books, 1987, pg. 277, point 8.
20. KAL 007:the cover-up, David Pearson, Summit, New York, pg. 46
21. Kleiner, p. 198
22. ICAO '93, pg. 45,2.9.1
23. ICAO '93, pg. 45, 2.9.1.
24. ICAO 1983, section 1.7.1., p. 9.
25. ICAO 1983, p. 45. Section 2.9.1.

26. Robert W Allardyce; James Gollin (1994). "Desired Track: The Tragic Flight of KAL Flight 007" (<http://web.archive.org/web/20080325113455/http://www.planesafe.org/books/desiredtrack.shtml>). planesafe.org. Archived from the original (<http://www.planesafe.org/books/desiredtrack.shtml>) on March 25, 2008. Retrieved July 13, 2010.
27. Allardyce & Gollin, 2007
28. Allardyce & Gollin, October 2007, pp 52–56.
29. The American TV picture Shootdown
30. An aircraft HSI generally has an image of a plane directly above the Horizontal Situation Indicator's needle when the aircraft is on course. A needle pointing to the left or to the right of the image would indicate that the plane is deviated left or right of the course. KAL 007's HSI's needle should have been pegged all the way to the right (North). The ICAO expanded on the HSI's capability of showing course deviation. Though the HSI was primarily designed to show the aircraft's situation with regard to the horizon, the 747's HSI contained an indicator to register deviation from plotted course. "Indications [of being on course] available to the crew would have been a reducing or zero track bar displacement with the HSI display set to the INS and a similar reducing or zero cross track error on the CDUs [consoles]. There would have been a similar effect with the VOR track displacement..." — ICAO report 1993, p. 42, sect. 2.4.4.
31. ICAO '93, pg. 2, pg, 61 sect. 3.36
32. Sayle, Murray (April 25, 1985). "Review: KE007 A Conspiracy of Circumstance". The New York Review of Books.
33. Burnett, p. 156 ; Michel Brun,Incident at Sakalin, the true Mission of KAL Flight, 007, translated by Robert Bonomo, 326 p., preface by John Keppel, p.XV-XXVI
34. Illesh, The Mystery of the KAL-007
35. M Brun, op cit, p. 285&288.
36. M Brun, op.cit. p.144 et 242-243
37. M. Brun, op cit, p.246-247
38. M.Brun, op cit, figure 5, p.36
39. Michel Brun, op cit, p. 86-87
40. M. Brun, op cit p. 88
41. M. Brun, op cit, p.90
42. M Brun p.90
43. M. Brun, op cit, p.46
44. M. Brun, op cit, p.245
45. M. Brun, op cit, p.63
46. In France, Michel Brun had already written three articles about the [KAL 007] affair. About the first ICAO report he published : "KE007, The Report from ICAO (Fr)", Aviation magazine international, October 15, 1990>. Like Robert Alardyce and James Gollin, he said that the ICAO report was a cover-up. He is going to say that in his book, about the second ICAO report and the Russian black boxes which were given to South Korean government by Boris Yeltsin in 1992.
47. ICAO, '93, 1.2.1, pg. 5
48. Daniloff, p. 300
49. Michel Brun, op cit, fourth page of covert
50. Izvestia, February 8, 1991, pg. 7
51. Izvestiya, May 28, 1991, p. 8
52. Izvestiya, May 28, 1991
53. Izvestia, May 27, 1991, pg. 6
54. <http://www.royfc.com/news/oct/0001oct01.html>

55. Тайна пустого самолёта, "Итоги", №41 / 279, 16.10.2001. (<http://www.itogi.ru/archive/2001/41/108726.html>)
56. <http://www.rescue007.org/>
57. Irvine, Reed (November 1, 2001). "Let's ask Putin" (http://www.aim.org/publications/weekly_column/2001/11/01.html). Accuracy in Media. Retrieved October 20, 2010.
58. Irvine, Reed (December 6, 2001). "Put it to Putin" (http://www.aim.org/publications/aim_report/2001/21.html). Accuracy in Media.
59. Irvine, Reed (November 16, 2001). "Questions for President Putin" (http://www.aim.org/publications/weekly_column/2001/11/16.html). Accuracy in Media. Retrieved October 20, 2010.
60. Lee, Robert W. (September 10, 1991). "KAL 007 Remembered: The Questions Remain Unanswered" (<http://www.thenewamerican.com/usnews/foreign-policy/item/1147-kal-007-remembered-the-questions-remain-unanswered>). The New American. John Birch Society.
61. Mass, Warren (September 1, 2008). "KAL flight 007 remembered" (<http://thenewamerican.com/culture/history/item/4684-kal-flight-007-remembered>). The New American. John Birch Society. Retrieved October 20, 2010.
62. <http://www.rescue007.org/book.htm>
63. http://www.rescue007.org/helms_letter.htm
64. Wilkes jr., Donald E (September 3, 2003). "The Death Flight of Larry MacDonald" (http://digitalcommons.law.uga.edu/cgi/viewcontent.cgi?article=1049&context=fac_pm). Flagpole Magazine. Retrieved October 20, 2010.
65. "In War-Crimes Trial, Horror and Humdrum" (<https://select.nytimes.com/gst/abstract.html?res=F40713FF3A550C708DDDAB0994DF484D81>). New York Times. December 13, 1987.
66. Shifrin, Avraham (July 11, 1991). "Press Release" (<http://www.rescue007.org/docs/ShifrinPressRelease1991-07-11.pdf>) (PDF). Research Centre for Prisons, Psychprisons and Forced Labor Concentration Camps of the USSR.
67. Maier, Timothy W. (April 16, 2001). "Kal 007 Mystery" (https://web.archive.org/web/20120624043129/http://findarticles.com/p/articles/mi_m1571/is_14_17/ai_75819892/?tag=content%3Bcol1). Insight on the News. Archived from the original (http://findarticles.com/p/articles/mi_m1571/is_14_17/ai_75819892/?tag=content;col1) on June 24, 2012. Retrieved October 28, 2010.
68. Michel Brun, Incident at Sakhlina... p. 20
69. "who killed congressman lawrence patton mcdonald?: part 1" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20100711135036/http://old.disinfo.com/archive/pages/article/id1197/pg1/index.html>). Archived from the original (<http://old.disinfo.com/archive/pages/article/id1197/pg1/index.html>) on July 11, 2010. Retrieved July 20, 2010.
70. Testimony of Douglas L. Porter, U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia, October 6, 1984.
71. KAL 007: the Coverup, David Pearson, Summit Books, New York 1987, Pg. 37
72. Pearson, p. 309
73. US District Court, District of Columbia, In re: Korean Airlines disaster of September 1, 1983, February 28, 1985
74. The Nation Magazine, David Corn, Aug 17/ August 24, 1985
75. KAL 007: the Cover-up, David Pearson, Summit books, N.Y., pg. 128
76. Ephraimson, Korean Bribe Rekindles Flight 007 Issues

References

- Pry, Peter Vincent (1999). War Scare: Russia and America on the Nuclear Brink (<https://books.google.com/books?id=WigJ8ZsWE1QC>). Greenwood Publishing Group. ISBN 0-275-96643-7.

- Johnson, Richard William (1986). Shutdown: Flight 007 and the American Connection (<https://books.google.com/books?id=hyuTAAAIAAJ>). Viking. ISBN 0-670-81209-9.
- Illsh, Andrey (1992). "The Mystery of the KAL-007 (English translation)". Izvestia.
- Daniloff, Nicholas (2008). "The KAL Shootdown". Of Spies and Spokesmen: My Life as a Cold War Correspondent (reprint, illustrated ed.). University of Missouri Press. p. 301. ISBN 978-0-8262-1793-6. Izvestia 1991 interview with Gennadi Osipovich.
- Doerner, William R; Ed Magnuson (September 12, 1983). "Atrocity In the Skies" (<http://www.time.com/time/magazine/article/0,9171,926169-5,00.html>). Time. Retrieved January 10, 2009.
- Pearson, David; Keppel, John (August 17, 1985). "New Pieces in the Puzzle of Flight 007: Journey into Doubt" (<http://jeff-dev.thenation.com/archive/detail/10978501>). The Nation. 421. Retrieved February 17, 2007.
- Knight, Peter (2003). Conspiracy Theories in American History (<https://books.google.com/books?id=qMIDrggs8TsC>). ABC-CLIO. p. 382. ISBN 1-57607-812-4.
- Allardyce, Robert W; Gollin, James (2007). "Flight KAL007: The Anatomy of a Cover-up" (https://web.archive.org/web/20090129212122/http://www.airwaysmag.com/channels.html?article_id=144&channel_id=15). Airways Magazine. Archived from the original (http://www.airwaysmag.com/channels.html?article_id=144&channel_id=15) on January 29, 2009. Retrieved March 7, 2009.
- Ephraimson, Hans (January 20, 1996). "Korean Bribe Rekindles Flight 007 Issues" (<https://query.nytimes.com/gst/fullpage.html?res=9905EFDD1E39F933A15752C0A960958260>). The New York Times. Retrieved January 13, 2009.
- Burnett, Tom (2006). Conspiracy Encyclopedia (<https://books.google.com/books?id=4QBjaEMELsC>). Franz Steiner Verlag. ISBN 1-84340-381-1.
- Young, Marilyn J; Launer, Michael K. (1988). Flights of Fancy, Flight of Doom: KAL 007 and Soviet-American Rhetoric (<https://books.google.com/books?id=fbN1AAAAMAAJ>). University Press of America. ISBN 0-8191-7225-1.
- Brun, Michel (1995). Incident at Sakhaline. The True Mission of KAL Flight 007, French book translated by Robert Bononno, New York/London, Four Walls Eight Windows, preface by John Keppel.

External links

- Diver Vadim Kondrabaev interview (<http://www.royfc.com/news/oct/0001oct01.html>)
 - Gen. Valeri Kamenski/ Itogi interview (<http://www.rescue007.org/kaminski.htm>)
-

Retrieved from "https://en.wikipedia.org/w/index.php?title=Korean_Air_Lines_Flight_007_alternative_theories&oldid=993665526"

This page was last edited on 11 December 2020, at 20:46 (UTC).

Text is available under the Creative Commons Attribution-ShareAlike License; additional terms may apply. By using this site, you agree to the Terms of Use and Privacy Policy. Wikipedia® is a registered trademark of the Wikimedia Foundation, Inc., a non-profit organization.

Malaysia Airlines Flight 17

Malaysia Airlines Flight 17 (MH17)^[a] was a scheduled passenger flight from Amsterdam to Kuala Lumpur that was shot down on 17 July 2014 while flying over eastern Ukraine. All 283 passengers and 15 crew were killed.^[3] Contact with the aircraft, a Boeing 777-200ER, was lost when it was about 50 km (31 mi) from the Ukraine–Russia border, and wreckage of the aircraft fell near Hrabove in Donetsk Oblast, Ukraine, 40 km (25 mi) from the border.^[4] It was Malaysia Airlines' second aircraft loss during 2014, after the disappearance of Flight 370 on 8 March.^[5] The shoot-down occurred in the War in Donbass, during the Battle in Shakhtarsk Raion, in an area controlled by pro-Russian rebels.^[6] The Ukrainian Air Force had suffered losses from increasingly sophisticated air defence weaponry. Immediately after contact with the aircraft was lost, the rebel militia in Donetsk claimed to have shot down a Ukrainian An-26 military transport airplane.^[7] When it became apparent that the wreckage that fell near Hrabove was from a civilian airliner, the separatists withdrew this claim and denied shooting down any aircraft.^{[8][9][10]}

The responsibility for investigation was delegated to the Dutch Safety Board (DSB) and the Dutch-led joint investigation team (JIT), who concluded that the airliner was downed by a Buk surface-to-air missile launched from pro-Russian separatist-controlled territory in Ukraine.^{[11][12]} According to the JIT, the Buk that was used originated from the 53rd Anti-Aircraft Missile Brigade of the Russian Federation^{[13][14]} and had been transported from Russia on the day of the crash, fired from a field in a rebel-controlled area and returned to Russia afterwards.^{[1][2][13]} The findings by the DSB and JIT are consistent with the earlier claims by American and German intelligence sources^{[15][16]} and claims by the Ukrainian government.^[17] On the basis of the JIT's conclusions, the governments of the Netherlands and Australia held Russia responsible for the deployment of the Buk installation and were pursuing legal routes as of May 2018.^{[18][19]} The Russian government denied involvement in the shooting down of the airplane,^{[14][20][21]} and its account of how the aircraft was shot down has varied over time.^[22] Coverage in Russian media has also differed from that in other countries.^{[23][24]} Russia holds the Ukrainian government at fault for allowing civilian flights in a war zone.^[25]

Malaysia Airlines Flight 17

9M-MRD, the aircraft involved, 2011

Shootdown

Date	17 July 2014
Summary	Shot down by a Buk 9M83 surface-to-air missile transported from Russia on the day of the crash ^{[1][2]}
Site	Near Hrabove , Donetsk Oblast , Ukraine 48°8′17″N 38°38′20″E﻿ / ﻿48.13806°N 38.63889°E﻿ / 48.13806; 38.63889

Aircraft

Aircraft type	Boeing 777-200ER
Operator	Malaysia Airlines
IATA flight No.	MH17
ICAO flight No.	MAS17
Call sign	Malaysian 17
Registration	9M-MRD
Flight origin	Amsterdam Airport Schiphol , the Netherlands
Destination	Kuala Lumpur International Airport , Malaysia
Occupants	298
Passengers	283
Crew	15
Fatalities	298

Contents

Aircraft

Passengers and crew

Background

Crash

Recovery of bodies

Aftermath

Investigation

On-site investigation

Cause of the crash

Dutch Safety Board reports

Preliminary report

Final report

Criminal investigation

Findings of the joint investigation team (JIT)

Proposed international tribunal

Criminal prosecution

British ISC report

Identification of command figures

Civil cases

Reactions

Countries

Organisations

Memorials

Russian media coverage

Initial reactions

Claims of shoot-down by the Ukrainian Air Force

Claims of shoot-down by a Ukrainian Buk

Conspiracy theories

Maps

In popular culture

See also

Notes

References

External links

Aircraft

Flight 17, which was also marketed as KLM Flight 4103 (KL4103) through a codeshare agreement,^[26] was operated with a Boeing 777-2H6ER,^[b] serial number 28411, registration 9M-MRD.^{[11]:30} The 84th Boeing 777 produced, it first flew on 17 July 1997, exactly 17 years before the incident, and was delivered new to Malaysia Airlines on 29 July 1997.^[27] Powered by two Rolls-Royce Trent 892 engines and carrying 280 seats (33 business and 247 economy), the aircraft had recorded more than 76,300 hours in 11,430 cycles before the crash.^{[11]:30} The aircraft was in an airworthy condition at departure.^{[11]:31}

The Boeing 777, which entered commercial service on 7 June 1995, has one of the best safety records among commercial aircraft.^[28] In June 2014 there were about 1,212 aircraft in service, with 340 more on order.^[29]

Passengers and crew

The incident is the deadliest airliner shoot-down incident to date.^[32] All 283 passengers and 15 crew died.^{[11]:27} By 19 July, the airline had determined the nationalities of all 298 passengers and crew.^[5]

The crew were all Malaysian, while over two-thirds (68%) of the passengers were Dutch. Most of the other passengers were Malaysians and Australians; the remainder were citizens of seven other countries.^{[11]:27}

Among the passengers were delegates en route to the 20th International AIDS Conference in Melbourne, including Joep Lange, a former president of the International AIDS Society, which organised the conference.^[33] Many initial reports had erroneously indicated that around 100 delegates to the conference were aboard, but this was later revised to six.^[34] Also on board were Dutch Senator Willem Witteveen,^[35] Australian author Liam Davison,^[36] and Malaysian actress Shuba Jay.^[37]

At least twenty family groups were on the aircraft and eighty passengers were under the age of 18.^{[38][39]}

The flight crew were captains Wan Amran Wan Hussin and Eugene Choo Jin Leong, and first officers Ahmad Hakimi Hanapi and Muhd Firdaus Abdul Rahim.^{[40][h]}

Background

An armed conflict in Eastern Ukraine led some airlines to avoid eastern Ukrainian airspace in early March 2014 due to safety concerns.^{[42][43]} In the months prior to 17 July, reports circulated in the media on the presence of weapons, including surface-to-air missiles, in the hands of the rebels that were fighting the Ukrainian government in eastern Ukraine. On 26 May a spokesperson of the Ukrainian Armed Forces stated that a surface-to-air missile system that was being used by the rebels near Donetsk airport had been destroyed by a helicopter of the Ukrainian army. On 6 June 2014 The International New York Times reported that surface-to-air missiles had been seized from military bases. On 11 June the newspaper Argumenty nedeli reported that a Buk-M1 missile launcher had been present in an area under the separatists' control. On 29 June the Russian news agencies reported that insurgents had obtained a Buk missile system after having taken control of a Ukrainian military unit A-1402;^{[44][45]} the Donetsk People's Republic claimed possession of such a system in a since-deleted tweet.^{[44][46][47]} Such

People on board by nationality^{[11]:27}

Nation	Number
Australia	27
Belgium	4
Canada ^[c]	1
Germany ^[d]	4
Indonesia	12
Malaysia ^[e]	43
Netherlands ^[f]	193
New Zealand	1
Philippines	3
United Kingdom ^[g]	10
Total	298

air defence systems cannot reliably identify and avoid civilian aircraft.^{[48][49]} The Ukrainian authorities declared in the media that this system was not operational.^{[11]:187–188} According to the subsequent statement of the Security Service of Ukraine three Buk missile systems were located on Ukrainian territory controlled by militia at the time that Malaysia Airlines Boeing 777 was shot down. On the night following the downing of MH17, two Buk launcher vehicles, one of which carried three missiles, (out of a normal complement of four), was observed moving into Russia.^{[50][51][52]}

Several aircraft from the Ukrainian Air Force were shot down in the months and days preceding the MH17 incident. On 14 June 2014, a Ukrainian Air Force Ilyushin Il-76 military transport was shot down on approach to Luhansk International Airport, with loss of nine crew members and forty troops.^{[11]:183} On 14 July 2014, a Ukrainian Air Force An-26 transport aircraft flying at 6,500 m (21,300 ft) was shot down.^{[11]:183} The militia reportedly claimed via social media that a Buk missile launcher, which they had previously seized and made operational, had been used to bring down the aircraft.^[53] American officials later said evidence suggested the aircraft had been shot down from Russian territory.^[54]

On 16 July, the Ministry of Defence of Ukraine reported that at about 13:00 local time terrorists used MANPADs against a Su-25 jet which was performing a flight mission in the ATO zone. According to the report, the airplane received minor damage and was forced to make a landing.^{[55][56][57]} Later, the Ministry of Defence of Ukraine reported on the second Su-25 that was attacked on the same day at about 19:00 local time near the Ukrainian-Russian border in the area of Amvrosiivka.^{[58][59]} According to the details reported by Ukraine's RNBO spokesperson Andriy Lysenko, the Ukrainian Su-25 was shot down by an R-27T medium range air-to-air missile fired by a MiG-29 jet from Russian territory while the Su-25 was at an altitude of 8,250 m.^{[11]:185[60]} The Russian Defence Ministry said that the accusations were false.^{[61][62]} In response to additional questions by the Dutch Safety Board, the Ukrainian authorities reported that a "provisional investigation" had revealed that the airplane had been shot down while flying at an altitude of 6,250 m. Ukrainian authorities also thought that the Su-25 could have been shot down with a Pantsir missile system from Russian territory, though they thought this less likely.^{[11]:185}

On 17 July, an Associated Press journalist saw a Buk launcher in Snizhne, in Donetsk Oblast, 16 kilometres (10 mi) southeast of the crash site. The reporter also saw seven separatist tanks near the town.^[63] Associated Press journalists reported that the Buk M-1 was operated by a man "with unfamiliar fatigues and a distinctive Russian accent" escorted by two civilian vehicles.^[64] The battle around Savur-Mohyla has been suggested as the possible context within which the missile that brought down MH17 was fired, as separatists deployed increasingly sophisticated anti-aircraft weaponry in this battle, and had brought down several Ukrainian jets in July.^[65]

In April, the International Civil Aviation Organization had warned governments that there was a risk to commercial passenger flights over south-eastern Ukraine.^{[11]:217} The American Federal Aviation Administration issued restrictions on flights over Crimea, to the south of MH17's route, and advised airlines flying over some other parts of Ukraine to "exercise extreme caution". This warning did not include the MH17 crash region.^{[66][67]} 37 airlines continued overflying eastern Ukraine and about 900 flights crossed the Donetsk region in the seven days before the Boeing 777 was shot down.^[68] On 17 July at 00:00 Russian air traffic controllers closed the airspace in the adjacent area over Russia below 53,000 feet (16,000 m). Long-distance flights typically travel at altitudes of 33,000 to 44,000 feet,^[69] so this restriction effectively closed their airspace to civilian overflights. The reason given was "armed conflict in Ukraine". The Dutch Safety Board asked for, but did not receive, a more detailed explanation for this restriction.^{[70][71]}

The airspace above Donetsk was managed by Ukraine. The Ukrainian authorities imposed restrictions for flights under 32,000 feet (9,800 m), but did not consider closing the airspace to civil aviation completely.^{[11]:10[72][73]} As with other countries, Ukraine receives overflight fees for commercial aircraft that fly through their territory and this may have contributed to the continued availability of civilian flight paths through the conflict zone.^{[74][75]}

According to aviation expert Vadim Lukashevich in an interview to Novaya Gazeta, on the day of MH17 incident, a Ukrainian An-26 was scheduled to deliver paratroopers to the battle arena and it might have been the intended target of the attack.^{[72][76]}

Crash

On Thursday, 17 July 2014, Malaysia Airlines Flight 17 departed from Amsterdam Airport Schiphol Gate G3 at 12:13 CEST (10:13 UTC)^{[11]:23} and took off at 12:31 local time (10:31 UTC). It was due to arrive at Kuala Lumpur International Airport at 06:10 MYT, Friday, 18 July (22:10 UTC, 17 July).^[77]

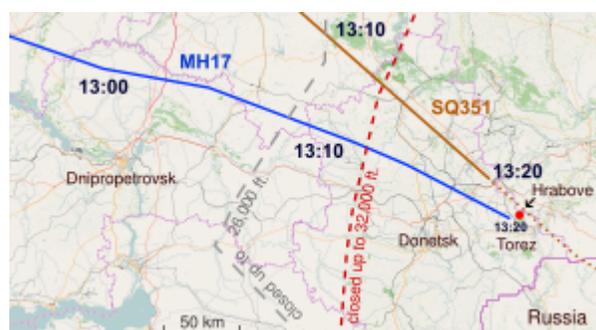

According to the original flight plan, MH17 was to fly over Ukraine at flight level 330 (33,000 feet or 10,060 metres) and then change to FL 350 around the Ukrainian city of Dnipropetrovsk. When it reached the area as planned, at 15:53 local time (12:53 UTC), Dnipropetrovsk Air Control (Dnipro Control) asked MH17 if they could climb to FL 350 as planned, and also to maintain separation from another flight, Singapore Airlines Flight 351 (SQ351), also at FL 330. The crew asked to remain at FL 330 and the air traffic controller approved this request, moving the other flight to FL 350. At 16:00 local time (13:00 UTC), the crew asked for a deviation of 20 nautical miles (37 km) to the left (north) off course, on airway L980, due to weather conditions. This request was also approved by Dnipro Control ATC. The crew then asked if they could climb to FL 340, which was rejected as this flight level was not available, so MH17 remained at FL 330. At 16:19 local time (13:19 UTC), Dnipro Control noticed that the flight was 3.6 nautical miles (6.7 km) north of the centreline of its approved airway and instructed MH17 to return to the track. At 16:19 local time (13:19 UTC), Dnipro Control contacted Russian ATC in Rostov-on-Don (RND Control) by telephone and requested clearance to transfer the flight to Russian airspace. After obtaining permission, Dnipro Control attempted to contact MH17 for handing them off to RND Control at 16:20 local time (13:20 UTC), but the aircraft did not respond. When MH17 did not respond to several calls, Dnipro Control contacted RND Control again to check if they could see the aircraft on their radar. RND Control confirmed that the airliner had disappeared.^[3]

The Dutch Safety Board reported a last flight data recording at 16:20 local time (13:20 UTC), located west of the urban-type settlement Rozsypne (Розсипне), near Hrabove heading east-southeast (ESE, 115°) at 494 knots (915 km/h; 568 mph).^[3]

At 16:20:03 local time (13:20:03 UTC) a Buk ground-to-air missile, which had been launched from an area east from the aircraft, detonated outside the aircraft just above the cockpit to the left. An explosive decompression occurred, resulting in both the cockpit and tail sections tearing away from the middle portion of the fuselage. All three sections disintegrated as they fell towards the ground.

Route of Malaysia Airlines Flight 17

Routes of Malaysia Airlines Flight 17 (MH17) and Singapore Airlines Flight 351 (SQ351), including airspace restrictions

Most of the debris landed near Hrabove, north of Torez in eastern Ukraine's Donetsk Oblast; it spread over a 50 square kilometres (19 sq mi) area to the southwest of Hrabove.^{[11]:53} The fireball on impact is believed to have been captured on video.^[78] Photographs from the site of the crash show scattered pieces of broken fuselage and engine parts, bodies, and passports.^[79] Some of the wreckage fell close to houses.^[80] Dozens of bodies fell into crop fields, and some fell into houses.^[81]

Three other commercial aircraft were in the same area when the Malaysian airliner crashed: Air India Flight 113 (AI113), a Boeing 787 en route from Delhi to Birmingham, EVA Air Flight 88 (BR88), a Boeing 777 en route from Paris to Taipei, and the closest aircraft, Singapore Airlines Flight 351 (SQ351), was 33 kilometres (21 mi) away, a Boeing 777 en route from Copenhagen to Singapore.^{[11]:41}

Recovery of bodies

A Ukraine Foreign Ministry representative said that the bodies found at the crash site would be taken to Kharkiv for identification, 270 kilometres (170 mi) to the north. By the day after the crash, 181 of the 298 bodies had been found.^[82] Some were observed being placed in body bags and loaded onto trucks.^{[83][84][85]}

Dutch Prime Minister Mark Rutte initially complained about looting of personal belongings from the dead and the careless handling of their bodies, but later stated they had been handled with more care than originally thought.^{[86][87][88]} Other media complained that credit and debit cards were being looted,^[89] and there were accusations that evidence at the crash site had been destroyed.^{[90][91]}

The Guardian noted that tales of looting seemed to be exaggerated, but the chaos at the crash site risked the accidental destruction of evidence which, the paper contended, journalists were contributing to.^[92]

On 20 July, Ukrainian emergency workers, observed by armed separatists, began loading the remains of the passengers of MH17 into refrigerated railway wagons for transport and identification.^[93]

On 21 July, pro-Russian rebels allowed Dutch investigators to examine the bodies. By this time, 272 bodies had been recovered, according to Ukrainian officials.^[94] Remains left Torez on a train on the evening of 21 July, en route to Kharkiv to be flown to the Netherlands for identification.^[95] On the same day, Malaysian Prime Minister Najib Razak announced that the Malaysian government had reached a tentative agreement to retrieve the remains of the Malaysians who died in the crash, following any necessary forensic work.^[96]

It was reported on 21 July that with 282 bodies and 87 body fragments found, there were still 16 bodies missing.^[97] An agreement had been reached that the Netherlands would co-ordinate the identification effort. A train carrying the bodies arrived at the Malyshev Factory, Kharkiv on 22 July.^[98] Dutch authorities stated that they found 200 bodies on the train when it arrived at Kharkiv, leaving almost 100 unaccounted for.^[99] In late July, the UK Metropolitan Police sent specialist officers to Ukraine to assist with the recovery, identification and repatriation of bodies.^[100]

First arrival of bodies at Eindhoven Airport

Convoy of 40 hearses heading to Hilversum, while other traffic stopped

The first remains were flown to Eindhoven in the Netherlands on 23 July,^[101] moved there with Dutch air force C-130 and Australian C-17 transport aircraft,^{[102][103]} which landed at Eindhoven Airport just before 16:00 local time.^[104] The day after, another 74 bodies arrived.^[105] The examination and identification of the bodies was conducted at the Netherlands Army medical regiment training facility in Hilversum and was coordinated by a Dutch forensic team.^[106]

On 1 August it was announced that a search and recovery mission, including about 80 forensic police specialists from the Netherlands, Malaysia and Australia, and led by Colonel Cornelis Kuijs of the Royal Marechaussee, would use drones, sniffer dogs, divers and satellite mapping to search for missing body parts at the crash site.^{[107][108]} Australian officials had believed that as many as 80 bodies were still at the site,^[109] but after some days of searching the international team had "found remains of only a few victims" and concluded that "the recovery effort undertaken by local authorities immediately after the crash was more thorough than initially thought."^[88]

On 6 August the Dutch Prime Minister Mark Rutte announced that the recovery operation would be temporarily halted due to an upsurge in fighting around the crash site threatening the safety of crash investigators and recovery specialists, and that all international investigators and humanitarian forces conducting searches would leave the country leaving behind a small communications and liaison team.^[110]

On 22 August the bodies of 20 Malaysians (of 43 killed in the incident) arrived in Malaysia.^[111] The government announced a National Mourning Day, with a ceremony broadcast live on radio and television.^[112]

On 9 October a spokesman for the Dutch national prosecutor's office stated that one victim had been found with an oxygen mask around his neck; a forensic investigation of the mask for fingerprints, saliva and DNA did not produce any results and it is therefore not known how or when the mask got around the neck of the victim.^{[11]:99}

By 5 December 2014, the Dutch-led forensic team had identified the bodies of 292 out of 298 victims of the crash.^[113] In February and April 2015 new remains were found on the site,^{[114][115]} after which only two victims, both Dutch citizens, had not been identified.^[115]

Aftermath

About 90 minutes after the incident, Ukraine closed all routes in Eastern Ukrainian airspace, at all altitudes.^{[11]:101} The incident dramatically heightened fears about airliner shoot-downs,^[116] leading to some airlines announcing they would avoid overflying conflict zones.

Shortly after the crash, it was announced that Malaysia Airlines would retire flight number MH17 and change the Amsterdam–Kuala Lumpur route to flight number MH19 beginning on 25 July 2014, with the outbound flight unchanged.^{[117][118]} In association with the retirement of the Boeing 777 aircraft type from Malaysia Airlines' fleet, Malaysia Airlines ended its service to Amsterdam on 25 January 2016, opting to codeshare with KLM on the KUL-AMS route for the services instead.^[119] On 18 July 2014, shares in Malaysia Airlines dropped by nearly 16%.^[120]

On 23 July 2014, two Ukrainian military jets were hit by missiles at the altitude of 17,000 feet (5,200 m) close to the area of the MH17 crash. According to the Ukrainian Security Council, preliminary information indicated that the missiles came from Russia.^[121]

In July 2015, Malaysia proposed that the United Nations Security Council set up an international tribunal to prosecute those deemed responsible for the downing of the aircraft. The Malaysian resolution received the support of 11 of the 15 nation security council, with three abstentions, but the resolution was vetoed by Russia.^[122] Russia proposed an alternative draft resolution, which would not have set up a tribunal.^{[123][124][125][126][127]}

On 9 June 2016, a Russian businessman claimed that the shooting down of the airliner put an end to hopes of a Russian nation in Ukraine and prolonged the War in Donbass.^[128]

Investigation

Two parallel investigations were led by the Dutch, one into the technical cause of the crash, and a separate criminal inquiry.^[129] The technical report was released on 13 October 2015,^[130] and the criminal investigation reported some of their findings in September 2016.^{[2][131]} According to the Convention on International Civil Aviation, the country in which an aviation incident occurs is responsible for the investigation, but that country may delegate the investigation to another state; Ukraine has delegated the leadership of both investigations to the Netherlands.^{[132][133][134][135]}

On-site investigation

In the hours following the crash, a meeting was convened of the Trilateral Contact Group. After they had held a video conference with representatives of insurgents affiliated with the Donetsk People's Republic (who controlled the area where the aircraft crashed), the rebels promised to "provide safe access and security guarantees" to "the national investigation commission" by co-operating with Ukrainian authorities and OSCE (Organization for Security and Co-operation in Europe) monitors.^[136] During the first two days of investigation, the militants prevented the OSCE and the workers of Ukrainian Emergencies Ministry from freely working at the crash site. Andrei Purgin, a leader of the Donetsk People's Republic, declared later that "we will guarantee the safety of international experts on the scene as soon as Kiev concludes a ceasefire agreement".^[137]

By 18 July 2014, the flight data recorder and the cockpit voice recorder had been recovered by separatists,^[138] and three days later were handed over to Malaysian officials in Donetsk.^{[11]:44[139]} The voice recorder was damaged but there was no evidence that data had been tampered with.^{[11]:45}

The National Bureau of Air Accidents Investigation of Ukraine, which led investigations, both off- and on-site, during the first days after the crash,^[140] had by August 2014 delegated the investigation to the DSB because of the large number of Dutch passengers and the flight having originated in Amsterdam.^{[11]:14[141][142]}

Dutch and Australian police at the crash site on 3 August 2014

On 22 July 2014, a Malaysian team of 133 officials, search and recovery personnel, and forensics, technical and medical experts arrived in Ukraine.^[94] Also Australia sent a 45-member panel headed by former Air Chief Marshal Angus Houston, who had earlier supervised the MH 370 probe.^[143] Approximately 200 special forces soldiers from Australia were also deployed to provide support for the JIT investigators.^[144] The United Kingdom sent six investigators from the Air

Accidents Investigation Branch (AAIB) and the UK Foreign Office sent extra consular staff to Ukraine.^[100] It took until late July before the full international team could start working at the crash site,^[145] under the leadership of the Dutch Ministry of Defence.^[146]

On 30 July 2014, a Ukrainian representative said that pro-Russian rebels had mined approaches to the crash site and moved heavy artillery.^[147]

On 6 August 2014, the experts left the crash site due to concerns about their safety.^[148] In mid-September they unsuccessfully attempted to regain access to the site.^{[149][150]} On 13 October 2014, a Dutch-Ukrainian team resumed recovery of victims' personal belongings.^[151] In mid-November 2014, work was undertaken to remove part of the wreckage from the crash site. Earlier efforts by the recovery team to salvage the MH17 wreckage had been frustrated by disagreements with the local rebels.^{[152][153]} The recovery operation took a week. The debris was transported to the Netherlands where investigators reconstructed parts of the aircraft.^[154]

In August 2015, possible Buk missile launcher parts were found at the crash site by the Dutch-led joint investigation team (JIT).^{[155][156]}

Cause of the crash

Soon after the crash both American and Ukrainian officials said that a 9M38 series surface-to-air missile strike was the most likely cause.^[160] If so, then the missile was fired from a mobile Soviet-designed Buk missile system (NATO reporting name: SA-11 "Gadfly"). At the time, Buk was the only surface-to-air missile system known to be deployed in the region that was capable of reaching the cruising altitude of commercial air traffic.^{[54][161][162][163][164][165]} Such systems, unless they receive information from larger networks, have limited capacity to distinguish between military and civilian aircraft.^{[166][167][168]}

According to defence analyst Reed Foster (from Jane's Information Group), the contour of the aluminium and the blistering of the paint around many of the holes on the aircraft fragments indicate that small, high-velocity fragments entered the aircraft externally, a damage pattern indicative of an SA-11.^[169] Ballistics specialist Stephan Fruhling of the Australian National University's Strategic and Defence Studies Centre concurred with this, explaining that since it struck the cockpit rather than an engine it was probably a radar guided, rather than heat seeking, missile equipped with a proximity fuzed warhead such as an SA-11.^[170]

Shortly after the crash, Igor Girkin, leader of the Donbass separatists, was reported to have posted on social media network Vkontakte, taking credit for downing a Ukrainian An-26.^{[7][171][172]} This news was repeated by channels in Russia, with LifeNews reporting "a new victory of Donetsk self-defence who shot down yet another Ukrainian airplane".^[173] Russian news agency TASS also reported eyewitness accounts claiming that the Donbass militia had just shot down a Ukrainian An-26 military aircraft with a missile.^[174] The separatists later denied involvement, saying they

A mobile Buk surface-to-air missile launcher, similar to that used in the incident

External audio

 Pro-Russian rebels discuss the shooting down of an aircraft (<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=BbyZYgSXdyw>) on YouTube Intercepted phone calls, verified with voice recognition by the National Security Agency,^[157] between rebels discussing which rebel group shot down the aircraft and initial reports that it was a civilian aircraft. Audio (in Russian) released by Security Service of Ukraine with English subtitles.^{[158][159]}

did not have the equipment or training to hit a target at that altitude.^{[175][176][177]} Russian media also reported that Alexander Borodai called one of the Moscow media managers 40 minutes after the crash, saying that "likely we shot down a civilian airliner".^[172]

Witnesses in Torez reported sightings on the day of the incident of what appeared to be a Buk missile launcher,^[178] and AP journalists reported sightings of a Buk system in separatist controlled Snizhne.^[64] The witness reports backed up photographs and videos which had been posted online, of the Buk launcher in rebel-held territory.^[178]

On 19 July 2014, Vitaly Nayda, the chief of the Counter Intelligence Department of the Security Service of Ukraine (SBU), told a news conference, "We have compelling evidence that this terrorist act was committed with the help of the Russian Federation. We know clearly that the crew of this system were Russian citizens."^{[179][180][181]} He cited what he said were recorded conversations in which separatists expressed satisfaction to Russian intelligence agents that they had brought down an aircraft.^{[182][183]} One of the separatists acknowledged that the conversations had taken place, but denied that they were related to the crash of MH17 and blamed the Ukrainian government for shooting it down.^{[77][184][185]} According to Nayda, a Buk launcher used in the shoot-down was moved back into Russia the night after the attack.^[64] The SBU released another recording, which they said was of pro-Russian-separatist leader Igor Bezler being told of an approaching aircraft two minutes before MH17 was shot down. Bezler said the recording was real, but referred to a different incident.^[186] The head of the SBU, Valentyn Nalyvaichenko, later claimed that rebels had intended to shoot down a Russian airliner in a false flag operation to give Russia a pretext to invade Ukraine, but shot down MH17 by mistake.^{[187][188][189]}

Journalists from the Associated Press in Snizhne, Ukraine reported seeing a Buk M-1 enter the town operated by a man "with unfamiliar fatigues and a distinctive Russian accent" escorted by two civilian vehicles, which then moved off in the direction where the shoot-down later occurred. According to Ukrainian counterterrorism chief, Vitaly Nayda, after downing the airliner under separatist direction, the launcher's Russian crew quickly moved it back across the border into Russia.^[64]

On 22 July 2014, a rebel fighter claimed that fellow separatists had told his unit that the aircraft had been shot down under the assumption that it was Ukrainian and that he had been ordered to the crash site to arrest "the pilots".^{[190][191]} Unnamed American intelligence officials stated that sensors that traced the path of the missile, shrapnel patterns in the wreckage, voice print analysis of separatists' conversations in which they claimed credit for the strike, and photos and other data from social media sites all indicated that Russian-backed separatists had fired the missile.^[16]

American officials said that satellite data from infrared sensors detected the explosion of Flight MH17.^[192] American intelligence agencies said that analysis of the launch plume and trajectory suggested the missile was fired from an area near Torez and Snizhne.^{[54][162]} The Daily Telegraph said: "The Telegraph's own inquiries suggest the missile, an SA-11 from a Buk mobile rocket launcher, was possibly fired from a cornfield about 19 kilometres (12 mi) to the south of the epicentre of the crash site."^[163] Other sources suggest the missile was launched from the separatist-controlled town of Chernukhino.^[193] Several other media outlets including The Guardian, The Washington Post and the Sydney Morning Herald, reported that the aircraft was believed to have been downed by a rebel-fired missile.^{[109][194][195]}

An unnamed American intelligence official stated that Malaysia Airlines Flight MH17 may have been shot down in error by pro-Russian separatists, citing evidence that separatists launched an SA-11 surface-to-air missile. The official said that it was possible that the rebel was a former member of the Armed Forces of Ukraine who had defected to the pro-Russian separatists.^[15] The official dismissed Russian allegations that MH17 took evasive action and said the claim that the Ukrainian government had shot down MH17 was not realistic, as Kyiv had no such missile systems in the area, which was rebel-controlled.^[164] American intelligence officials also said that Russia was attempting to disguise the flow of weaponry it was delivering to the rebels by sending older weapons that matched Ukraine's inventory.^[16] The British Foreign Office stated that it was "highly likely" that the missile was fired from an area controlled by Russian-backed separatists.^[196]

According to the Russian military, in what New York magazine called "Russia's Conspiracy Theory", MH17 was shot down by the Ukrainians, using either a surface-to-air missile or a fighter aircraft.^{[197][198]} On 21 July 2014, the Russian Ministry of Defence (MoD) held a press conference and claimed that satellite photographs showed that the Ukrainian army moved a Buk SAM battery to the area close to the territory controlled by the rebels on the morning of 17 July, hours before the crash. They said the installation was moved away again by 18 July. The Russian MoD also claimed that they had detected a Ukrainian airforce Su-25 and that this ground-attack aircraft approached to within 3 to 5 kilometres (1.9 to 3.1 mi) of the Malaysian airliner wreckage.^[198] Although promoted by Russian media, the idea that a Su-25 could have downed the Boeing 777 with an air-to-air missile was dismissed by chief designer of the Su-25, Vladimir Babak.^{[199][200][201]} In 2015 Bellingcat purchased satellite photos from the same area and time as used by the MoD and demonstrated that the MoD had used older photos (May and June 2014) in their presentation, and that the presentation had been edited to make a Ukrainian Buk launcher appear as if it had been removed after the attack.^[202] In the report published by the Dutch Safety Board, an air-to-air missile strike was ruled out.^[12]

In an interview with Reuters on 23 July 2014, Alexander Khodakovsky, the commander of the pro-Russian Vostok Battalion, acknowledged that the separatists had an anti-aircraft missile system of the type the Americans had said was used to shoot down the aircraft, and said that it could have been sent back to Russia to remove proof of its presence;^{[203][204][205]} he later retracted his comments, saying that he had been misquoted and stating that rebels never had a Buk.^[204] In November 2014 he repeated that the separatists had a Buk launcher at the time, but stated that the vehicle, under control of fighters from Luhansk, had still been on its way to Donetsk when MH17 crashed. It was then withdrawn to avoid being blamed.^[206]

On 28 July 2014, Ukrainian security official Andriy Lysenko announced, at a press conference, that black box recorder analysis had revealed that the aircraft had been brought down by shrapnel that caused "massive explosive decompression." Dutch officials were reported to be "stunned" by what they saw as a "premature announcement" and said that they had not provided this information.^[207]

On 8 September 2014, the BBC released new material by John Sweeney who cited three civilian witnesses from Donbass who saw the Buk launcher in the rebel-controlled territory on the day when MH17 crashed. Two witnesses said the crew of the launcher and a military vehicle escorting it spoke with Moscow accents.^[208] On the same day Ignat Ostanin, a Russian journalist, published an analysis of photos and films of Buk units moving in Russia and Ukraine in the days before and after the MH17 crash. According to Ostanin, the markings on the specific launcher suspected of being used to shoot MH17, together with the number plates of the large goods vehicle that carried the launcher, suggested that it belonged to the 53rd Anti-Aircraft Missile Brigade of the Air Defence Forces of the Russian Ground Forces.^{[209][210]}

On 8 October 2014 the president of the German Federal Intelligence Service (BND) gave a presentation about MH17 to a German parliamentary committee overseeing intelligence activities. According to Der Spiegel, the report contained a detailed analysis which concluded that pro-Russian separatists had used a captured Ukrainian Buk system to shoot down Flight MH17. The report also noted that "Russian claims the missile had been fired by Ukrainian soldiers and that a Ukrainian fighter jet had been flying close to the passenger jet were false".^{[211][212]} The Attorney General of Germany opened an investigation against unknown persons due to a suspected war crime.^[213]

Between November 2014 and May 2016, UK-based investigative collective Bellingcat made a series of claims, based on their examination of photos in social media and other open-source information. Bellingcat said that the launcher used to shoot down the aircraft was a Buk of the Russian 53rd Anti-Aircraft Missile Brigade based in Kursk, which had been transported from Donetsk to Snizhne and was controlled by separatists in Ukraine on the day of the attack,^{[214][215][216][217]} and that the Buk launcher had a serial number 332.^[218]

On 22 December 2014 the Dutch news service RTL Nieuws published a statement from an unnamed local resident who said he had witnessed the shooting down of MH17, which he said was shot down by a missile from rebel territory. He had taken photographs which he had passed to the SBU.^{[219][220]}

In January 2015 a report produced by the German investigative team CORRECT!V concluded a Buk surface-to-air missile launcher operated by the 53rd Anti-Aircraft Missile Brigade shot down MH17.^[221] Other circumstantial evidence was presented separately by various parties that supported this version, identifying specific launcher vehicle, operator name, truck transporting it and its alleged route through Russia and Ukraine.^[222]

In March 2015 Reuters published statements from named witnesses from Chervonyi Zhovten (Ukrainian: Червоний Жовтень), close to Torez and Snizhne, who said they saw the Buk rocket passing over the village when it was fired from a field around 1.5 km away. It also published a statement from a witness who was said to be a separatist fighter (referred to by first name only) who confirmed that the launcher was placed in that area on the day of the Boeing crash to prevent Ukrainian airstrikes.^[223]

In July 2015, News Corp Australia published the transcript of a 17-minute video recorded at the scene shortly after the crash. The transcript and published segments of the video indicated that Russian-backed rebels arrived at the crash site expecting to find the wreckage of a military aircraft and crew who had parachuted from the aircraft.^[224]

In May 2016, Stratfor released satellite imagery taken five hours before the crash which showed a Russian Buk system travelling on a flatbed truck east through Makiivka, 40 km away from Snizhne. Stratfor's concluded that a Buk system had moved from the Russian border toward Donetsk on 15 July 2014, and then moved back to the east on the afternoon of 17 July 2014, hours before Flight MH17 was shot down.^[225]

Dutch Safety Board reports

Preliminary report

On 9 September 2014, the preliminary report was released by the Dutch Safety Board (DSB).^{[3][226]:16} This preliminary report concluded that there was no evidence of any technical or operational failure in the aircraft or from the crew prior to the ending of the CVR and FDR recordings at 13.20:03 hrs (UTC). The report also said that "damage observed on the forward fuselage and cockpit section of the aircraft appears to indicate that there were impacts from a large number of high-energy objects from outside the aircraft". According to the investigators, this damage probably led to a loss of structural integrity that caused an in-flight break-up first of the forward parts of the aircraft and then of the remainder with an expansive geographic spread of the aircraft's pieces.

Tjibbe Joustra, Chairman of the Dutch Safety Board, explained that the investigation thus far pointed "towards an external cause of the MH17 crash", but determining the exact cause required further investigation. They also said that they aimed to publish the final report within a year of the crash date.^[227]

Final report

The Dutch Safety Board (DSB) issued its final report on the crash on 13 October 2015. The report concluded that the crash was caused by a Buk 9M38-series surface-to-air missile with a 9N314M warhead. The warhead detonated outside and above the left-hand side of the cockpit. The impact killed the three people in the cockpit and caused structural damage to the airliner leading to an in-flight break-up resulting in a wreckage area of 50 square kilometres and loss of the lives of all 298 occupants.^[11] Based on evidence they were able to exclude meteor strikes, the aircraft having technical defects, a bomb, and an air-to-air attack as causes of the crash. The DSB calculated the trajectory of the missile and found it was fired within a 320-square-kilometre (120 sq mi) area southeast of Torez. Narrowing down a specific launch site was outside the DSB's mandate.^{[11]:147} The findings did not specify who launched the Buk missile but according to the final report, the area identified by the DSB was controlled by pro-Russian separatists at the time of the downing.^[228]

Narrated reconstruction of the missile impact, produced by the Dutch Safety Board.

In addition to the technical investigation, the selection of the flight route was also investigated by the DSB.^[229] Some airlines had avoided the Eastern Ukrainian airspace prior to the MH17 disaster. Many others, including 62 operators from 32 countries, continued to use this route.^{[11]:224[230]} The DSB judged that the Ukrainian authorities should have closed the airspace above eastern Ukraine prior to the incident due to the ongoing conflict and earlier military shoot-downs,^{[11]:10[231]} but noted that states involved in armed conflicts rarely did so.^{[11]:11} It recommended that states involved in such armed conflicts should exercise more caution when evaluating their airspace, and that operators should more thoroughly assess the risks when selecting routes over conflict areas.^{[232][231]}

Criminal investigation

The criminal investigation into the downing of MH17 is being led by the Public Prosecution Service of the Dutch Ministry of Justice, and is the largest in Dutch history, involving dozens of prosecutors and 200 investigators.^[233] Investigators interviewed witnesses and examined forensic samples, satellite data, intercepted communications, and information on the Web.^[234] Participating in the investigation along with the Netherlands, are the four other members of the joint investigation team (JIT),^[235] Belgium, Ukraine, Australia, and lastly, Malaysia,^[236] which joined in November 2014.^[235] Early in the investigation, the JIT eliminated accident, internal terrorist attack or air-to-air attack from another aircraft as the cause of the crash.^[1]

In December 2014, in a letter to the Security Council, the Netherlands UN representative wrote that "The Dutch government is deliberately refraining from any speculation or accusations regarding legal responsibility for the downing of MH17."^[237] Also in December, the assistant secretary of the United States Department of State's European and Eurasian Affairs said America had given all of its information, including classified information to the Dutch investigators and to the ICAO.^[238]

On 30 March 2015, the JIT released a Russian-language video calling for witnesses in the Donetsk and Luhansk regions who might have seen a Buk missile system.^[239] The video included some previously undisclosed recordings allegedly of tapped phone conversations between rebel fighters about the Buk. In one recording, of a conversation a few hours after the aircraft was shot down, a fighter says that a member of the Buk's accompanying crew had been left behind at a checkpoint. In another recording, dated the day after the shooting down, a rebel allegedly says the Buk system and its crew had been brought from Russia by "the Librarian." The video presents a "scenario" whereby a Buk missile was transported on a Volvo low loader truck from Sievernyi (Северный), a town located within a kilometre of the Russian border (near Krasnodon), to Donetsk during the night of 16/17 July.^[240] In the week following the public appeal, the JIT received more than 300 responses resulting in dozens of "serious witnesses".^{[241][242]} In 2016 the presence of the transloader of matching colour with a Buk missile was confirmed on a satellite photo of the area taken just a few hours before the downing of the airliner, which was described as "correlating with other evidence" by Stratfor who found the photo in DigitalGlobe archive.^{[225][243]}

On 9 April 2015 Dutch authorities made available 569 documents concerning the shoot-down. Personal information and official interviews had been redacted. A further 147 documents were not made public.^[244]

Findings of the joint investigation team (JIT)

On 28 September 2016, the JIT gave a press conference in which it concluded that the aircraft was shot down with a 9M38 Buk missile fired from a rebel-controlled field near Pervomaisky (Первомайський), a town 6 km (3.7 mi) south of Snizhne.^[131] It also found the Buk missile system used had been transported from Russia into Ukraine on the day of the crash, and then back into Russia after the crash, with one missile less than it arrived with.^{[1][2]} The JIT said they had identified 100 people, witnesses as well as suspects, who were involved in the movement of the Buk launcher, though they had not yet identified a clear chain of command to assess culpability, which was a matter for ongoing investigation. The Dutch chief prosecutor said "the evidence must stand before a court" which would render final judgement.^[1] During the investigation, the JIT recorded and assessed five billion internet pages, interviewed 200 witnesses, collected half a million photos and videos, and analysed 150,000 intercepted phone calls.^{[131][245]} According to JIT head prosecutor Fred Westerbeke the criminal investigation is based on "immense body of evidence," including testimonies of live witnesses who saw the Buk launcher, primary radar data, original photos and videos.^[246]

On 24 May 2018, after extensive comparative research, the JIT concluded that the Buk that shot down the flight came from the Russian 53rd Anti-Aircraft Missile Brigade in Kursk.^[247] The head of the National Investigation Service of the Dutch police asked the eyewitnesses and insiders to share information about the identities of the Buk crew members, the instruction the crew members followed and persons responsible for the operational deployment of the involved Buk on 17 July 2014.^[247] According to Dutch Public Prosecution Service, by 24 May 2018 "the authorities of the Russian Federation have ... not reported to the JIT that a Buk of the 53rd Brigade was deployed in Eastern Ukraine and that this Buk downed flight MH17."^[247] In response, Russian President Vladimir Putin stated that Russia will analyse the JIT conclusion, but will acknowledge it only if it becomes a party in the investigation.^{[248][249]} The Russian Ministry of Defence in turn stated that no Russian Buk crossed the border with Ukraine.^[249]

A Buk SAM of the type used by the 53rd Anti-Aircraft Missile Brigade

On 25 May 2018 the governments of the Netherlands and Australia issued a joint statement in which they laid responsibility on Russia "for its part" in the crash.^[18] The Netherlands and Australian foreign ministers stated that they would hold Russia legally responsible for shooting the airliner down. Netherlands Foreign Minister Stef Blok stated that "the government is now taking the next step by formally holding Russia accountable," and, "The Netherlands and Australia today asked Russia to enter into talks aimed at finding a solution that would do justice to the tremendous suffering and damage caused by the downing of MH17. A possible next step is to present the case to an international court or organization for their judgment."^[250]

Several other countries and international organisations expressed their support for the JIT's conclusions and the joint statement by the Netherlands and Australia.^{[251][252]} UK Foreign Secretary Boris Johnson said the United Kingdom "fully supports Australia and the Netherlands," calling on Russia to cooperate.^[253] High Representative Federica Mogherini of the EU stated that the European Union "calls on the Russian Federation to accept its responsibility" and to cooperate as well.^[254] The German government called on Russia to "fully explain the tragedy."^[255] The US Department of State issued a statement saying that the United States "strongly support the decisions by the Netherlands and Australia," requesting Russia to acknowledge its involvement and to "cease its callous disinformation campaign."^[256] NATO Secretary General Jens Stoltenberg called on Russia to "accept responsibility and fully cooperate ... in line with United Nations Security Council Resolution 2166."^[257]

In response to the JIT's conclusions, Russian President Vladimir Putin reiterated that the Russians are "not involved in it."^[258] Following release of the JIT report, Malaysian Prime Minister Mahathir said the JIT was making Russia a "scapegoat" and that he did not believe the Russians whom the JIT had charged were involved. Conversely the Malaysian prosecutor supported the investigation by saying the findings "are based on extensive investigations and also legal research".^[259]

Proposed international tribunal

In June 2015, the Netherlands, supported by the other JIT members, sought to create an international tribunal to prosecute those suspected of downing the Malaysian airliner, which would take up the case after the closing of the criminal investigation. The Dutch hoped that an international tribunal would induce Russian cooperation, which was considered critical.^[260] In late June 2015, the Russian government rejected a request by the five countries on the investigative committee to form a UN tribunal which would try those responsible for the shooting down of the aircraft, calling it "not timely and counterproductive."^[261] On 8 July 2015, Malaysia, a member of the UN Security Council, distributed a draft resolution to establish such a tribunal. This resolution was jointly proposed by the five JIT member countries. Russian UN Ambassador Vitaly Churkin responded, "I don't see any future for this resolution. Unfortunately, it seems that this is an attempt to organize a grandiose, political show, which only damages efforts to find the guilty parties."^[122] Russia later circulated a rival resolution which criticised the international investigation's lack of "due transparency" and demanded those responsible be brought to justice, but which did not call for a tribunal.^[262] In a vote, Malaysia's resolution gained majority support of the UNSC, but was vetoed by Russia.^[126]

Criminal prosecution

In a statement made on 5 July 2017 by the Dutch Minister of Foreign Affairs Bert Koenders, it was announced that the JIT countries would prosecute any suspects identified in the downing of flight MH17 in the Netherlands and under Dutch law.^[263] A treaty between the Netherlands and Ukraine made it possible for the Netherlands to prosecute in the cases of all 298 victims, regardless of their nationality.

This treaty was signed on 7 July 2017,^[264] and went into force on 28 August 2018.^[265] On 21 March 2018, the Dutch government sent legislation to the parliament, allowing the suspects involved to be prosecuted in the Netherlands under Dutch law.^{[266][267]}

On 19 June 2019, the Dutch Public Prosecution Service charged four people with murder in connection with the shooting down of the aircraft: three Russians, Igor Girkin, Sergey Dubinsky, and Oleg Pulatov, and one Ukrainian, Leonid Kharchenko. International arrest warrants were issued in respect of each of the accused.^[268] One of the suspects, Lieutenant Colonel Oleg Pulatov, expressed his intention to join the legal process by being represented in court. Hearings in the trial began at the District Court of The Hague on 9 March 2020, with none of the accused in attendance.^{[269][270][271]} Igor Girkin gave an interview to British journalist Graham Phillips in which Girkin said that he would not attend the trial because he did not recognise the court's jurisdiction over Russian citizens. He said that he was not involved in the shoot-down, and that he considered the government of Ukraine to be responsible for the loss of life, because "only a moron or a criminal would send an airliner into a zone of active hostilities".^[272]

In July 2019 SBU arrested Vladimir Tsemakh, head of air defence in DPR-controlled Snizhne during the attack on MH17. Bellingcat described him as an important eye-witness to the events surrounding the downing of flight MH17. Bellingcat analysed his possible role and said that a video showed Tsemakh making "what appears to be a damning admission to his personal involvement in hiding the Buk missile launcher in the aftermath of its use on 17 July 2014".^[273] In August 2019 Russia reportedly added Tsemakh to its list in a previously agreed exchange of prisoners of war with Ukraine. In an article, The Insider website commented on Russia's motives in requesting the exchange of a Ukrainian citizen.^[274] On 4 September 2019, an appeals court in Kyiv ruled to release Tsemakh.^[275] On 7 September 2019, Volodymyr Tsemakh was released during a Ukraine-Russia prisoner exchange.^[276] According to the Dutch Foreign Minister Stef Blok, the exchange had been delayed for a week so that Vladimir Tsemakh could be questioned by the Dutch Public Prosecution Service as a witness about the events surrounding the downing of flight MH17.^[276] The Dutch Prime Minister Mark Rutte, the Minister of Justice and Security Ferd Grapperhaus, the JIT, and Blok added that the Netherlands regretted Tsemakh, who is a 'person of interest', being included in the exchange due to pressure on Ukraine from Russia.^{[275][276][277][278][279]} Others including Chairman Piet Ploeg of Stichting Vliegcramp MH17 which is the organisation of the victims' relatives called the release of Tsemach "unacceptable".^[278] The Dutch Public Prosecution Service (OM) requested that Tsemach, who is not a Russian citizen, be extradited from Russia to the Netherlands.^[278] On 14 November 2019 the JIT published a new witnesses appeal and simultaneously released a number of recorded conversations of rebel leaders. JIT was particularly interested in "the command structure and the role that Russian government officials may have played."^{[280][281]}

A number of witness statements, especially from the DPR armed forces, were presented anonymously due to fear of reprisal from Russia.^[282] Although the Russian secret service attempted to hack into the Malaysian Attorney-General's office, investigation files of the Australian Federal Police and offices at The Hague, prosecutors say the identities of the witnesses still remain secure.^[283] The Dutch court, on considering defendant Oleg Pulatov's appeal against anonymous testimony, allowed twelve anonymous witness statements in the trial but barred the anonymous testimony of one witness.^[284]

On 10 July 2020, the Dutch government declared that it had decided to take Russia to the European Court of Human Rights for "its role in the downing" of Flight MH17. By doing so, it said, it was "offering maximum support" to the individual cases already brought to the Court by the victims' families.^{[285][286]}

On 7 June 2021, the trial moved on to the evidence phase, during which lawyers and judges will discuss their findings. Witnesses may also be called in to supply additional information.^{[287][288]}

British ISC report

On 20 December 2017, the Intelligence and Security Committee of the UK Parliament published its annual report. It contains a section entitled "Russian objectives and activity against UK and allied interests" which quotes MI6 as stating: "Russia conducts information warfare on a massive scale... An early example of this was a hugely intensive, multichannel propaganda effort to persuade the world that Russia bore no responsibility for the shooting down of [Malaysian Airlines flight] MH-17 (an outright falsehood: we know beyond any reasonable doubt that the Russian military supplied and subsequently recovered the missile launcher)".^{[289][290]}

Identification of command figures

In December 2017, the Russian investigative portal The Insider, the news agency McClatchyDC, and Bellingcat performed a joint investigation that confirmed the identity of a high-ranking military officer using a call-sign "Dolphin" to be Colonel General Nikolai Fedorovich Tkachev. Tkachev is heard supervising the operation of Buk delivery and set-up in wiretaps acquired by JIT.^{[291][292]} In April 2020 the same three teams identified another high-ranking figure in the chain of command referred to by many DPR and LPR operatives as "Vladimir Ivanovich" to be FSB Colonel General Andrey Ivanovich Burlaka, first deputy chief of the Russian border service.^{[293][294]}

Civil cases

In July 2015 a writ was filed in an American court by families of 18 victims accusing the separatist leader Igor Girkin of "orchestrating the shutdown" and the Russian government of being complicit in the act. The writ was brought under the Torture Victim Protection Act of 1991.^[295] In May 2016 families of 33 victims of the crash filed a claim against Russia and president Vladimir Putin in the European Court of Human Rights, arguing Russian actions violated the passengers' right to life.^{[296][297]} A group of 270 relatives of Dutch victims joined the claim in May 2018 after the JIT concluded that Russia was involved.^[298] The Dutch government supported this claim by taking Russia to the European Court of Human Rights in July 2020.^{[285][286]} In July 2016, Malaysia Airlines was sued in Malaysia by 15 passengers' families in two separate writs, each brought under the Montreal Convention, arguing that the airline should not have chosen that route.^[299] A month earlier, a separate lawsuit was brought by the families of six crew members who alleged negligence and breach of contract by the airline.^[300]

Reactions

Countries

Ukrainian President Petro Poroshenko called the crash the result of an act of terrorism, and also called for an international investigation into the crash.^[301]

Malaysian Deputy Foreign Minister Hamzah Zainuddin said that the foreign ministry would be working with the Russian and Ukrainian governments with regard to the incident.^[302] Prime Minister Najib Razak said that Malaysia was unable yet to verify the cause of the crash but that, if the airliner was shot down, the perpetrators should be swiftly punished.^[303] The Malaysian government flew the national flag at half-mast from 18 July until 21 July.^[304]

Dutch Prime Minister Mark Rutte and King Willem-Alexander voiced their shock at the crash,^{[305][306]} and Minister of Foreign Affairs Frans Timmermans joined the Dutch investigation team sent to Ukraine.^[307] Dutch government buildings flew the flag at half-mast on 18 July.^[308] Music was cancelled and festivities were toned down on the last day of the Nijmegen Marches.^[309] On 21 July the Netherlands opened a war crimes investigation on the downing of the aircraft and a Netherlands public prosecutor went to Ukraine as part of this investigation. Rutte threatened tough action against Russia if it did not help in the investigation.^[310] On the same day, Timmermans spoke at the UN Security Council Meeting, after the council had unanimously condemned the shooting down of MH17.^[311] An increase in negative emotions and somatic complaints was observed in the Dutch population during the first four days after the MH17 crash.^[312]

Flag at half mast in front of Hoorn city hall during the national day of mourning on 23 July

Australian Prime Minister Tony Abbott said in an address to parliament that the aircraft was downed by a missile which seemed to have been launched by Russian-backed rebels.^[313] Julie Bishop, the Australian Minister for Foreign Affairs, said in an interview on Australian television that it was "extraordinary" that her Russian counterparts had refused to discuss the downing of MH17 when the Russian ambassador was summoned to meet her.^[313] The Russian government was critical of Abbott's response; Abbott was one of the first world leaders to publicly connect the shoot-down to Russia.^[314] Abbott later criticised the recovery efforts as "shambolic", and "more like a garden clean-up than a forensic investigation"; Bishop publicly warned separatist forces against treating the victims' bodies as hostages.^[315] Abbott also said in an interview on 13 October 2014, in anticipation of Russia's President Vladimir Putin's attendance at the 2014 G20 summit, scheduled for mid-November 2014 in Brisbane, Australia: "Australians were murdered. They were murdered by Russian-backed rebels using Russian-supplied equipment. We are very unhappy about this."^[316]

Russian President Putin said that Ukraine bore responsibility for the incident which happened in its territory, which he said would not have happened if hostilities had not resumed in the south-east of Ukraine.^{[4][317][318]} At the end of July a Duma deputy Ilya Ponomarev said in an interview for Die Welt that the separatists had shot down the airliner by mistake and that Putin now realised he had supplied the weapon to the "wrong people".^[319] The Danish Institute for International Studies has pointed out to the similarities of Russian reaction to the downing of Korean Airlines flight KAL-007 in 1983 where the USSR initially denied any involvement.^[320]

United States President Barack Obama said the United States would help determine the cause.^[4] In a press statement, White House spokesman Josh Earnest called for an immediate ceasefire in Ukraine to allow for a full investigation.^[321] Vice-President Joe Biden said the aircraft appeared to have been deliberately shot down, and offered American assistance for the investigation into the crash.^[318] American Ambassador to the United Nations Samantha Power called on Russia to end the war.^[322] The British government requested an emergency meeting of the United Nations Security Council and called an emergency Cobra meeting after the incident.^{[323][324]} Chairman of the US Joint Chiefs of Staff Martin E. Dempsey said that instead of backing away from supporting the rebels following the shooting down, Putin had "taken a decision to escalate."^[325]

Organisations

On 17 July the European Union's representatives José Manuel Barroso and Herman Van Rompuy released a joint statement calling for an immediate and thorough investigation.^[326] The EU officials also said that Ukraine has first claim on the aircraft's black boxes.^[327]

The International Civil Aviation Organization announced, on 18 July, that it was sending its team of experts to assist the National Bureau of Air Accidents Investigation of Ukraine (NBAAI), under Article 26 of the Convention on International Civil Aviation.^[328] The United Nations Security Council adopted Resolution 2166 on 21 July, regarding an official crime investigation into the incident. On 24 July 2014 the ICAO issued a State Letter reminding signatory states of their responsibilities with respect to the safety and security of civil aircraft operating in airspace affected by conflict.^[329]

A makeshift memorial at Schiphol Airport for the victims of Flight MH17

Memorials

After the crash, memorial services were held in Australia^[330] and in the Netherlands, which declared 23 July, the day when the first victims arrived in the country, a national day of mourning, the first since 1962.^{[331][332]} The opening ceremony of the AIDS 2014 conference, on 20 July, of which several delegates had been on board Flight MH17, began with a tribute to the victims of the crash.^[333] In Malaysia, makeshift memorials were created in the capital city of Kuala Lumpur.^[334]

Memorial for the victims of Flight MH17 located in Vijfhuizen, the Netherlands

On 17 July 2017, exactly three years after the crash, a memorial in memory of the victims was unveiled in Vijfhuizen, the Netherlands. The opening of the memorial, which is located just outside Schiphol Airport, was attended by more than 2000 relatives of victims, King Willem-Alexander and his wife Queen Máxima, Dutch Prime Minister Mark Rutte, Minister of Security and Justice Stef Blok and the speakers of the Dutch Senate and House of Representatives. The memorial includes 298 trees, one tree for each victim.^[335]

On 17 July 2015, a year after the crash, sunflowers seeds taken from a field near the crash site were grown in tribute to the 15 residents of Hilversum, including three families, who were killed.^[336] Amid the ongoing war, Fairfax chief correspondent Paul McGeough and photographer Kate Geraghty collected a keepsake of sunflower seeds from the wreck site for family and friends of the 38 Australian victims, which happened to be viable and had therefore germinated.^[337]

Russian media coverage

Coverage by the Russian media has differed from coverage in most other countries^[23] and has changed significantly over time.^{[22][24]} According to Bellingcat, these changes have usually been in response to new evidence published by DSB and the investigation team.^[22] According to a poll conducted by the Levada Center between 18 and 24 July 2014, 80% of Russians surveyed believed that the crash of MH17 was caused by the Ukrainian military. Only 3% of respondents blamed the disaster on the pro-Russian separatists in eastern Ukraine.^{[338][339][340]} Researchers said views were influenced by the televisual infosphere.^[341] In the three days following the incident, the Russian Internet Research Agency "troll farm" posted 111,486 tweets from fake accounts.^[342] Mostly posted in Russian, the tweets initially said the rebels had shot down a Ukrainian airplane, but quickly switched to accusing Ukraine of carrying out the attack.^[343] This is both the largest number of tweets in any 24 hour period, and for any topic in the history of the Internet Research Agency (IRA).^[344]

Conversely, the liberal Russian opposition newspaper Novaya Gazeta shortly after the crash published a headline in Dutch that read "Vergeef ons, Nederland" ("Forgive Us, Netherlands").^{[293][345][346]}

In July 2014, Sara Firth, who had worked as a correspondent with RT for the previous five years, resigned in protest at the channel's coverage of the crash, which she described as "lies".^{[347][348]}

Initial reactions

On the evening of the crash, the LifeNews portal reported that at around 16:00 local time the separatists shot down "Ukrainian Air Force An-26 transport plane" with a missile, calling it "a new victory for the Donetsk militia".^{[173][349][350]} The news was immediately picked up and disseminated by many other news websites and the Russia-24 TV channel.^[173] Around the same time Leonid Kharchenko, who was responsible for the Buk launcher convoy through DPR, reported to his commander Sergei Dubinsky that the launcher is "on the spot and has already downed one" Ukrainian ground-attack airplane.^[282]

Shortly after it became evident that it was a civilian aircraft which had been shot down, the separatist media denied any responsibility and denied having anti-aircraft missiles capable of reaching the cruising altitude of commercial traffic.^{[8][9][10]}

Claims of shoot-down by the Ukrainian Air Force

For the first year following the crash, Russian state media claimed that a Ukrainian Air Force Su-25 jet had shot down Flight 17.^[22] Radar data, allegedly from Russian air traffic controllers, which was leaked to a Moscow newspaper, was claimed to be proof that there were Ukrainian military jets near MH17.^[351] A Ukrainian Air Force deserter later claimed that he had overheard pilots discuss flying close to MH17 when it crashed.^[352] On 15 November 2014, Russia's Channel One reported on a supposedly leaked spy satellite photo which showed the airliner being shot from behind by a Ukrainian Su-25 fighter jet.^[353] Many other Russian media reprinted the photo but its authenticity was immediately dismissed as the aircraft were out of scale which indicated poor copy-and-paste.^[354] Later it was disclosed, that the photo had been initially emailed to the Vice-President of the Russian Union of Engineers by a self-described aviation expert who had found it on a Russian online forum.^[355] The aviation expert later apologised, saying that he was unhappy with how the information had been used.^[355] In a later interview by magazine The New Yorker, Channel One CEO Konstantin Ernst admitted that reporting on the satellite photo was a "simple error", saying that it was a human mistake not made on purpose.^[356]

On 25 December 2014, Russia's state-operated domestic news agency RIA Novosti quoted the leader of the self-proclaimed Donetsk People's Republic, Alexander Zakharchenko, saying he saw MH17 shot out of the sky by two Ukrainian jets.^{[357][358]}

This narrative was later replaced by one in which MH17 was shot down by a Buk launcher operated by the Ukrainian military.^[22] A subsequent presentation of radar data in 2016 by the Russian military no longer showed military aircraft present in the area.^[22]

Claims of shoot-down by a Ukrainian Buk

In May 2015, Novaya Gazeta published a report credited to a group of Russian military engineers. Based on their analysis of debris and damage patterns on the hull of the aircraft, they concluded that the airliner was shot down by a Buk-M1 launcher with a 9M38M1 missile. They claimed that the missile could not have been fired from Snizhne, but was instead fired from Zaroshchenske and that a Ukrainian anti-air unit was located there at that time.^{[359][360]} In June 2015, the report was the subject of a press conference and was attributed to Mikhail Malisevskiy, chief engineer at Moscow-headquartered Almaz-Antey, the Buk missile manufacturer.^[361] The Security Service of Ukraine said that there were inaccuracies in this version, and called part of the report a fake.^[362] Russian military expert Vadim Lukashovich argued on TV Rain that the spatial orientation of the rocket at the moment of explosion did not exclude the possibility that it was launched from Snizhne, as the report claimed. Lukashovich also noted that the report admitted a Buk missile as the cause of the crash, discrediting the previous theories about the crash (Su-25 etc.) circulated in Russian media.^[363] Ukrainska Pravda questioned claims about the Ukrainian anti-aircraft unit and stated that Zaroshchenske was under control of pro-Russian forces on the day of the shoot-down.^[364] Novaya Gazeta published an analysis, also denying the Almaz-Antey version,^[365] which contained interviews with inhabitants of Zaroshchenske who denied claims that Ukrainian forces and Buk launchers were present in the village at that time.^{[366][367]} According to Bellingcat, Russia's satellite images were from June and showed signs of editing.^{[368][369]} Bild described the Russian satellite image as "fake".^[370]

On 17 September 2018, Russia's Ministry of Defence held a press conference at which Lt. Gen. Nikolai Parshin, chief of the Missile and Artillery Directorate, said that after Dutch investigators displayed parts of the missile and their serial numbers, they had studied and declassified archives at the research centre that produced the Buk missiles. Parshin said the Russian archives showed that the missile that was made from these parts was transported to a military unit in western Ukraine in 1986, and to Russia's knowledge never left Ukraine. Officials also claimed that video evidence presented by the Joint Investigation Team (JIT), in which the missile that allegedly shot down the airliner was shown being moved from Russia into Ukraine, was fabricated.^{[371][372]}

JIT responded that it had requested details about recovered missile parts from Russia in May 2018, but had received no answer. It said, information from the Russian Ministry of Defence would be carefully studied as soon as the documents were made available, as requested in May 2018 and required by UNSC in 2016. JIT stated it had always carefully analysed information provided by Russia, but information presented to the public was inaccurate on several points. Russia had given differing accounts over time of how MH17 was shot down; for example claiming to have evidence (radar images) that a Ukrainian fighter fired an air-to-air missile at MH17.^{[373][374]}

Oleksandr Turchynov, secretary of National Security and Defense Council of Ukraine, said in September 2018 that Russia's claim was "yet another failed fake report that the Kremlin made up in order to cover up their crime that has been proven by the official investigation as well as independent experts."^[375]

Conspiracy theories

On 18 July, Commander of the Donbass People's Militia Igor Girkin was quoted as stating that "a significant number of the bodies weren't fresh". He followed up by saying "Ukrainian authorities are capable of any baseness"; and also claimed that blood serum and medications were found in the wreckage in large quantities.^[376] Girkin also claimed that some of the passengers had died a few days before the crash.^[377]

The Russian government-funded^[378] TV network RT initially said that the airliner may have been shot down by Ukraine in a failed attempt to assassinate Vladimir Putin, in a plot which was organised by Ukraine's "Western backers". This was quickly dismissed as Putin's flight route was hundreds of kilometres north of Ukraine.^{[379][380]}

Other conspiracy theories propagated by Russian pro-government media included claims that the Ukrainians had shot down the airliner by mistake, drawing parallels to the downing of Siberia Airlines Flight 1812 in 2001 (reported in December 2014^[381]); that Ukrainian air traffic controllers had deliberately redirected the flight to fly over the war zone; and that the Ukrainian government had organised the attack to discredit the pro-Russian rebels.^[382] The number of alternative theories disseminated in Russian mass media started growing as the DSB and JIT investigations increasingly pointed towards the separatists.^[383]

In 2017 Dutch newspaper NRC Handelsblad described how false stories about the MH17 crash had been propagated with the support of Christian Democratic Appeal politician Pieter Omtzigt, who introduced a Russian-speaking Ukrainian man as an "eyewitness" to the crash on a public expert debate in May 2017. The man, who was an asylum-seeker from Ukraine, did not witness the crash and his speech, texted to him by Omtzigt prior to the interview, repeated the Russian-promoted version that Ukrainian jets downed the Boeing.^[384]

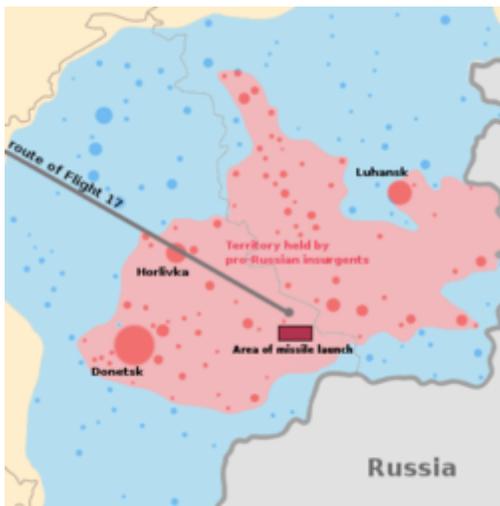

Maps

Location of departure, crash site and destination

Location of departure and crash site

Presumed route ending in an area controlled by pro-Russian rebels according to The New York Times^{[71][i]}

In popular culture

The shutdown of MH17 was also featured in the fourth episode of eighteenth season of Mayday, The episode was titled "Deadly Airspace".^[385]

See also

- List of aircraft accidents and incidents resulting in at least 50 fatalities
- List of airliner shutdown incidents

Notes

- MH is the IATA designator. The flight was also marketed as KLM Flight 4103 (KLM4103) through a codeshare, and has been commonly referred to as "MH17", "Flight 17" or "Flight MH17".
- The aircraft is a Boeing 777-200ER (for Extended Range) model; Boeing assigns a unique customer code for each company that buys one of its aircraft, which is applied as an infix in the model number at the time the aircraft is built. The code for Malaysia Airlines is "H6", hence "777-2H6ER".
- Including:
 - 1 dual Canadian-Romanian citizen
- Including:
 - 1 dual German-Dutch citizen
- 28 passengers and 15 crew
- Including:
 - 1 dual Dutch-Belgian citizen
 - 1 dual Dutch-Israeli citizen
 - 1 dual Dutch-Italian citizen
 - 1 dual Dutch-American citizen
 - 1 dual Dutch-Malaysian citizen^[30]

- 3 Dutch-Vietnamese citizen^[31]

g. Including:

- 1 dual British-South African citizen
- 1 dual British-New Zealand citizen

h. The family name is Choo, as the Chinese name is Choo Jin Leong (Chinese: 朱仁隆; pinyin: Zhū Rénlóng^[41]) - note that ethnic Malays do not have family names.^{[11][40]}

i. "A United States official said the missile that shot down the plane was launched from a region near the towns of Torez and Snizhne"^[322] See also several mentions of one or both of these towns in the Cause of crash section and elsewhere in this article

References

- Miller, Nick (29 September 2016). "Malaysia Airlines Flight MH17 was shot down from pro-Russian rebel controlled territory, investigation finds" (<https://www.smh.com.au/world/malaysia-airlines-flight-mh17-was-shot-down-from-prorussian-rebel-controlled-territory-investigation-finds-20160928-grqter.html>). The Sydney Morning Herald.
- "MH17 missile 'came from Russia', Dutch-led investigators say" (<https://www.bbc.co.uk/news/world-europe-37495067>). BBC News Online. 28 September 2016. Retrieved 2 October 2016.
- Mullen, Jethro (9 September 2014). "Report: MH17 hit by burst of 'high-energy objects' from outside" (http://edition.cnn.com/2014/09/09/world/europe/netherlands-ukraine-mh17-report/index.html?hpt=hp_t2). CNN. Retrieved 25 September 2014.
- Alexander, Harriet (17 July 2014). "Malaysia Airlines plane crashes on Ukraine-Russia border – live" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20140718001608/http://www.telegraph.co.uk/news/worldnews/europe/ukraine/10974050/Malaysia-Airlines-plane-crashes-on-Ukraine-Russia-border-live.html>). The Daily Telegraph. Archived from the original (<https://www.telegraph.co.uk/news/worldnews/europe/ukraine/10974050/Malaysia-Airlines-plane-crashes-on-Ukraine-Russia-border-live.html>) on 18 July 2014. Retrieved 17 July 2014.
- "Media Statement 7: MH17 Incident" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20140720023009/http://www.malaysiaairlines.com/my/en/site/mh17.html>). Malaysia Airlines. 19 July 2014. Archived from the original (<http://www.malaysiaairlines.com/my/en/site/mh17.html>) on 20 July 2014. Retrieved 19 July 2014.
- Higgins, Andrew; Clark, Nicola (9 September 2014). "Malaysian Jet Over Ukraine Was Downed by 'High-Energy Objects,' Dutch Investigators Say" (<https://www.nytimes.com/2014/09/10/world/europe/malaysian-airliner-ukraine.html>). The New York Times.
- "Сводки от Стрелкова Игоря Ивановича" (https://web.archive.org/web/20140717155720/https://vk.com/wall-57424472_7256) [Reports from Igor Ivanovich Strelkov]. VK (service). 17 July 2014. Archived from the original (https://vk.com/wall-57424472_7256) on 17 July 2014. Retrieved 22 October 2016.
- "Сводки от Стрелкова Игоря Ивановича" (https://web.archive.org/web/20140717152222/http://vk.com/strelkov_info) [Reports from Igor Ivanovich Strelkov]. VK (service). 17 July 2014. Archived from the original (http://vk.com/strelkov_info) on 17 July 2014. Retrieved 17 July 2014.
- Bright, Arthur (17 July 2014). "Web evidence points to pro-Russia rebels in downing of MH17 (+video)" (<http://www.csmonitor.com/World/Europe/2014/0717/Web-evidence-points-to-pro-Russia-rebels-in-downing-of-MH17-video>). The Christian Science Monitor.
- Luhn, Alec (20 July 2014). "Three pro-Russia rebel leaders at the centre of suspicions over downed MH17" (<https://www.theguardian.com/world/2014/jul/20/three-pro-russia-rebel-leaders-suspects-over-downed-mh17>). The Guardian. Retrieved 8 September 2014.

11. https://www.onderzoeksraad.nl/en/media/attachment/2018/7/10/debcd724fe7breport_mh17_crash.pdf (PDF) (Report). Dutch Safety Board. 13 October 2015. Archived (<https://www.webcitation.org/6cFSGNsRg?url=http://cdn.onderzoeksraad.nl/documents/report-mh17-crash-en.pdf>) (PDF) from the original on 13 October 2015.
12. Weaver, Matthew (13 October 2015). "MH17 crash report: Dutch investigators confirm Buk missile hit plane – live updates" (<https://www.theguardian.com/world/live/2015/oct/13/mh17-crash-report-ukraine-live-updates>). The Guardian. Retrieved 13 October 2015.
13. "MH17 missile owned by Russian brigade, investigators say" (<https://www.bbc.co.uk/news/world-europe-44235402>). BBC News. 24 May 2018.
14. Smith-Spark, Laura; Masters, James (24 May 2018). "Missile that downed MH17 'owned by Russian brigade'" (<https://edition.cnn.com/2018/05/24/europe/mh17-plane-netherlands-russia-intl/index.html>). CNN.
15. Bennett, Brian (22 July 2014). "U.S. officials believe attack against Malaysian plane was mistake" (<https://www.latimes.com/world/europe/la-fg-ukraine-intelligence-us-20140722-story.html>). Los Angeles Times.
16. Tharoor, Ishaan (20 July 2014). "The evidence that may prove pro-Russian separatists shot down MH17" (<https://www.washingtonpost.com/blogs/worldviews/wp/2014/07/20/the-evidence-that-may-prove-pro-russian-separatists-shot-down-mh17/>). The Washington Post. Retrieved 8 September 2014.
17. "Yatsenyuk: 'We need to survive first'" (<http://www.kyivpost.com/content/ukraine/yatsenyuk-russia-is-not-planning-to-conduct-any-humanitarian-mission-live-361699.html>). Kyiv Post. 22 August 2014.
18. "MH17: The Netherlands and Australia hold Russia responsible" (<https://www.government.nl/latest/news/2018/05/25/mh17-the-netherlands-and-australia-hold-russia-responsible>). Government of the Netherlands. 25 May 2018. Retrieved 25 May 2018.
19. Magnay, Jacquelin; Riordan, Primrose (25 May 2018). "MH17 evidence points to 'rogue state' Russia, Tony Abbott says" (<https://www.theaustralian.com.au/news/world/mh17-shot-down-by-missile-from-russia-by-its-military-report-finds/news-story/d3d1cafaa0033e7acc42d9b9fc38dbf4>). The Australian. Bunnik. Archived (<https://archive.today/20201206160059/https://www.theaustralian.com.au/news/world/mh17-shot-down-by-missile-from-russia-by-its-military-report-finds/news-story/d3d1cafaa0033e7acc42d9b9fc38dbf4>) from the original on 6 December 2020.
20. "Ukraine crisis: Poroshenko offers rebels more autonomy" (<https://www.bbc.com/news/world-europe-29140593>). BBC News. 10 September 2014. Retrieved 19 September 2014.
21. Sipalan, Joseph (21 June 2019). "Russians made a 'scapegoat' after MH17 report released, says Malaysia PM" (<https://www.smh.com.au/world/europe/putin-claims-no-proof-russians-downed-mh17-20190621-p51ztv.html>). The Sydney Morning Herald. Retrieved 23 June 2019.
22. Toler, Aric (5 January 2018). "The Kremlin's Shifting, Self-Contradicting Narratives on MH17" (<https://www.bellingcat.com/news/uk-and-europe/2018/01/05/kremlins-shifting-self-contradicting-narratives-mh17/>). Bellingcat. Retrieved 5 January 2018.
23. Adamczyk, Ed (22 July 2014). "Russia offers alternate scenarios for Malaysia Airlines crash" (http://www.upi.com/Top_News/World-News/2014/07/22/Russia-offers-alternate-scenarios-for-Malaysia-Airlines-crash/2701406045751/). United Press International. Retrieved 2 November 2014. "Russian media offers explanations conflicting with the information provided by the rest of the world."
24. Ioffe, Julia (20 July 2014). "The Russian Public Has a Totally Different Understanding of What Happened to Malaysia Airlines Flight 17: And it's more of a problem than you think" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20140721015346/http://www.newrepublic.com/node/118782>). New Republic. Archived from the original (<https://newrepublic.com/node/118782>) on 21 July 2014. Retrieved 21 July 2014. "The picture of the catastrophe that the Russian people are seeing on their television screens is very different from that on screens in much of the rest of the world, and the discrepancy does not bode well for a sane resolution to this stand-off."
25. "Putin Dismisses MH17 Murder Charges" (<https://www.rferl.org/a/russia-putin-mh17/30010707.html>). Radio Free Europe/Radio Liberty. 20 June 2019.

26. "Statement about Malaysia Airlines MH17" (<http://news.klm.com/en/incident-with-malaysia-airlines-flight-mh017-e/>). KLM. 17 July 2014. Retrieved 18 July 2014.
27. "Malaysia Airlines 9M-MRD (Boeing 777 – MSN 28411)" (<http://www.airfleets.net/ficheapp/plane-b777-28411.htm#>). Airfleets.net. Retrieved 17 July 2014.
28. Copeland, Larry (17 July 2014). "Boeing 777 has excellent track record, experts say" (<https://www.usatoday.com/story/money/business/2014/07/17/boeing-777-safe-track-record/12786181/>). USA Today. Retrieved 24 July 2014.
29. "777 Model Orders and Deliveries summary" (<https://www.webcitation.org/6J5PxuzDT?url=http://active.boeing.com/commercial/orders/displaystandardreport.cfm?cboCurrentModel=777&optReportType=AllModels&cboAllModel=777&ViewReportF=View+Report>). Boeing. June 2014. Archived from the original (<http://active.boeing.com/commercial/orders/displaystandardreport.cfm?cboCurrentModel=777&optReportType=AllModels&cboAllModel=777&ViewReportF=View+Report>) on 23 August 2013. Retrieved 18 July 2014.
30. "Remains of Shell worker and baby coming home" (<http://www.thestar.com.my/news/nation/2014/09/09/remains-of-shell-worker-and-baby-coming-home-so-far-35-victims-have-been-brought-back/>). The Star. 9 September 2014. Retrieved 25 September 2017. "The 35, he added, included restaurateur Jenny Loh Yan Hwa, a passenger with dual citizenship, along with Dutch citizens Fan Shun Po and Paul Goes." – The Dutch-Malaysian is counted as Dutch on the manifest (<https://www.malaysiaairlines.com/content/dam/malaysia-airlines/mas/PDF/MH17/MH17%20PAX%20AND%20CREW%20MANIFEST%20200714.pdf>)
31. Le Quan (13 November 2014). "Vietnamese family, friends mourn as remains of MH17 victims arrive home" (<http://www.thanhniennews.com/society/vietnamese-family-friends-mourn-as-remains-of-mh17-victims-arrive-home-33948.html>). Thanh Nien Daily.
32. "Malaysia Airlines Flight MH17: Top 5 deadliest airliner shootdowns" (<http://www.financialexpress.com/news/malaysia-airlines-mh17-shot-down-top-5-deadliest-attacks-on-airliners/1271130>). The Financial Express. Source: Flightglobal Ascend. Reuters. 18 July 2014. Retrieved 22 July 2014.
33. Lillebuen, Steve; Willingham, Richard; Jacks, Timna (18 July 2014). "Crash claims top AIDS researchers heading to Melbourne" (<https://www.smh.com.au/national/crash-claims-top-aids-researchers-heading-to-melbourne-20140718-zuaw3.html>). The Sydney Morning Herald. Retrieved 18 July 2014.
34. Robin, Myriam (23 July 2014). "100 AIDS researchers on MH17? Why and how the media got it wrong" (<http://www.crikey.com.au/2014/07/23/100-aids-researchers-on-mh17-why-and-how-the-media-got-it-wrong/>). Crikey. Retrieved 23 July 2014.
35. "PvdA: diep geschokt door overlijden senator Witteveen" (<http://www.volkskrant.nl/vk/nl/2686/Binnenland/article/detail/3691664/2014/07/18/Senator-Witteveen-PvdA-omgekomen-bij-crash.dhtml>) [PvdA: deeply shocked by the death of senator Witteveen]. de Volkskrant. 18 July 2014. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20180918091054/https://www.volkskrant.nl/nieuws-achtergrond/pvda-diep-geschokt-door-overlijden-senator-witteveen~b1e0662e/>) from the original on 18 September 2018. Retrieved 18 July 2014.
36. "Victorians among those killed in MH17 crash: Premier" (<http://www.bendigoadvertiser.com.au/story/2426085/victorians-among-those-killed-in-mh17-crash-premier/?cs=80>). Bendigo Advertiser. 18 July 2014. Retrieved 19 July 2014.
37. "Malaysian actress, Dutch hubby and baby die with MH17" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20140722064912/http://www.themalaysianinsider.com/malaysia/article/malaysian-actress-dutch-hubby-and-baby-die-with-mh17>). The Malaysian Insider. 19 July 2014. Archived from the original (<http://www.themalaysianinsider.com/malaysia/article/malaysian-actress-dutch-hubby-and-baby-die-with-mh17>) on 22 July 2014. Retrieved 19 July 2014.

38. "Malaysia Airlines MH17 crash: 20 families gone in one shot" (<https://www.webcitation.org/6RF430C7G?url=http://www.straitstimes.com/news/asia/south-east-asia/story/malaysia-airlines-mh17-crash-20-families-gone-one-shot-20140721>). The Straits Times. 21 July 2014. Archived from the original (<http://www.straitstimes.com/news/asia/south-east-asia/story/malaysia-airlines-mh17-crash-20-families-gone-one-shot-20140721>) on 21 July 2014.
39. Miranda, Charles; Wockner, Cindy; McPhedran, Ian; Magnay, Jacquelin (22 July 2014). "MH17 train in Kharkiv as Tony Abbott says MH17 aftermath is evidence tampering on industrial scale" (<http://www.news.com.au/world/mh17-train-in-kharkiv-as-tony-abbott-says-mh17-aftermath-is-evidence-tampering-on-industrial-scale/story-fndir2ev-1226996838429>). News Corp Australia. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20150724092335/http://www.news.com.au/world/mh17-train-in-kharkiv-as-tony-abbott-says-mh17-aftermath-is-evidence-tampering-on-industrial-scale/story-fndir2ev-1226996838429>) from the original on 24 July 2015. Retrieved 22 July 2014.
40. "The crew of MH17" (<http://www.thestar.com.my/News/Nation/2014/08/22/The-crew-of-MH17/>). The Star. 22 August 2014. Archived (<https://www.webcitation.org/6S0tSU9RB?url=http://www.thestar.com.my/News/Nation/2014/08/22/The-crew-of-MH17/>) from the original on 22 August 2014. Retrieved 22 August 2014.
41. MH17航班华裔机长父妻均曾就职马航 (<http://news.sina.com.cn/w/2014-07-18/170430543109.shtml>). Sina News (in Chinese). 18 July 2014. - The reference contains Choo's name in Chinese characters.
42. "MH17 crash: Airlines divert flights from eastern Ukraine" (<https://www.bbc.co.uk/news/business-28356745>). BBC News. 18 July 2014. Retrieved 18 July 2014.
43. Neate, Rupert; Glenza, Jessica (18 July 2014). "Many airlines have avoided Ukrainian airspace for months" (<https://www.theguardian.com/world/2014/jul/18/airlines-avoid-ukraine-airspace-mh17>). The Guardian. Retrieved 12 June 2018.
44. Ополченцы ДНР взяли под контроль воинскую часть ПВО с зенитно-ракетными комплексами "Бук" (<http://itar-tass.com/mezhdunarodnaya-panorama/1287030>) [DNR militias seized an air defence base with anti-aircraft missile systems "Buk"]. Information Telegraph Agency of Russia (in Russian). 29 June 2014. Retrieved 21 July 2014.
45. Донецкие ополченцы обзавелись зенитно-ракетными комплексами "Бук" (<http://www.ntv.ru/novosti/1085256/>) [Donetsk militias acquired anti-aircraft missile systems "Buk"]. NTV News (in Russian). 17 July 2014. Retrieved 17 July 2014.
46. Panda, Ankit (17 July 2014). "Malaysian Airlines Flight MH17 Shot Down Over Donetsk, Ukraine" (<https://thediplomat.com/2014/07/malaysian-airlines-flight-mh17-shot-down-over-donetsk-ukraine/>). The Diplomat. Retrieved 17 July 2014.
47. "Malaysia Airlines MH17 crash: Deleted posts suggest Ukraine rebels downed jet in error" (<https://www.straitstimes.com/asia/se-asia/malaysia-airlines-mh17-crash-deleted-posts-suggest-ukraine-rebels-downed-jet-in-error-0>). The Straits Times. 18 July 2014.
48. Majumdar, Dave (18 July 2014). "How Can a Civilian Plane Accidentally Be Shot Down?" (<https://www.technologyreview.com/2014/07/18/12951/how-can-a-civilian-plane-accidentally-be-shot-down/>). MIT Technology Review. Retrieved 22 April 2020.
49. Fung, Brian (18 July 2014). "Did the Ukrainian rebels even know they were shooting at a civilian aircraft?" (<https://www.washingtonpost.com/news/the-switch/wp/2014/07/18/did-the-ukrainian-rebels-even-know-they-were-shooting-at-a-civilian-aircraft/>). The Washington Post. Retrieved 22 April 2020.
50. "Ukraine's Security Service Counterintelligence Chief presents photo evidence of Russia's direct involvement in the downing of Malaysian Flight MH17 that resulted in the deaths of 298 passengers" (<https://uacrisis.org/en/6364-v-sbu-eh-dokazi-bezposerednoyi-priche>). Ukraine Crisis Media Center. 19 July 2014.
51. Ukraine Crisis Media Center (19 July 2014). "(English) Vitaly Nayda. UCMC, 19th of July 2014" (<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=PWtH8AA42Fc>). YouTube.

52. "Росія робить спроби приховати докази своєї причетності до теракту в небі над Україною" (https://web.archive.org/web/20140721205539/http://www.sbu.gov.ua/sbu/control/uk/publish/article?art_id=129099&cat_id=39574) [Russia is trying to hide evidence of its involvement in a terrorist attack in the skies over Ukraine]. Security Service of Ukraine. 21 July 2014. Archived from the original (http://www.sbu.gov.ua/sbu/control/uk/publish/article?art_id=129099&cat_id=39574) on 21 July 2014.
53. "Ополченцы сообщили, из чего сбили украинский Ан-26" (<http://www.vz.ru/news/2014/7/14/695525.html>). Vzglyad (in Russian). 14 July 2014. Retrieved 18 July 2014. "Today the self-defence destroyed An-26 airplane using SAM "9K37M1" (better known as 'Buk') ... said the militia, distributed in social networks"
54. Baker, Peter (18 July 2014). "U.S. Sees Evidence of Russian Links to Jet's Downing" (<https://www.nytimes.com/2014/07/19/world/europe/malaysia-airlines-plane-ukraine.html>). The New York Times.
55. "Ukrainian Defense Ministry confirms damage of Su-25 in country's east" (<https://en.interfax.com.ua/news/general/213924.html>). Interfax-Ukraine. 17 July 2014. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20140720115348/https://en.interfax.com.ua/news/general/213924.html>) from the original on 20 July 2014. Retrieved 4 December 2020.
56. "Ukrainian Defense Ministry confirms damage of Su-25 in country's east" (<https://www.kyivpost.com/article/content/war-against-ukraine/ukrainian-defense-ministry-confirms-damage-of-su-25-in-country-s-east-356347.html>). Kyiv Post. 16 July 2014. Retrieved 4 December 2020.
57. "Бойові літаки Повітряних Сил ЗС України в рамках відновлення бойових завдань нанесли декілька точкових авіаударів по визначених об'єктах противника" (<https://www.mil.gov.ua/news/2014/07/16/bojovi-litaki-povitryanih-sil-zs-ukraini-v-ramkah-vidnovlennya-bojovih-zavdan-nanesli-deki-lka-tochkovih-aviaudariv-po-viznachenih-obektah-protivnika/>) [Combat aircraft of the Air Force of the Armed Forces of Ukraine in the framework of the resumption of combat missions inflicted several point air strikes on certain enemy targets]. Ukraine Ministry of Defence (in Ukrainian). 16 July 2014.
58. "Російський військовий літак збив український Су-25 в небі Донбасу" (<https://www.unian.ua/army/940719-rosiyskiy-viyskoviy-litak-zbiv-ukrajinskiy-su-25-v-nebi-donbasu.html>) [A Russian military plane shot down a Ukrainian Su-25 in the skies of Donbass]. Ukrainian Independent Information Agency (in Ukrainian). 17 July 2014. Retrieved 5 December 2020.
59. "Російський військовий літак збив український Су-25 в небі Донбасу" (<https://www.mil.gov.ua/news/2014/07/17/rosijskij-vijskovij-litak-zbiv-ukrajinskij-su-25-v-nebi-donbasu/>) [A Russian military plane shot down a Ukrainian Su-25 in the skies of Donbass]. Ukraine Ministry of Defence (in Ukrainian). 17 July 2014.
60. Lysenko, Andriy (18 July 2014). "Лисенко розповів, як російський винищувач полював за українським Су 25" (<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=7ifB7TgAZYU>) [Lysenko told how a Russian fighter was hunting for a Ukrainian Su 25]. Espresso TV – via YouTube.
61. "Ukraine conflict: Russia accused of shooting down jet" (<https://www.bbc.com/news/world-europe-28345039>). BBC News. 17 July 2014. Retrieved 17 July 2014.
62. "Russia Rejects 'Absurd' Accusation Over Downed Ukrainian Jet" (<http://www.rferl.org/content/ukraine-russia-jet-shot-down-blame/25460575.html>). Radio Free Europe/Radio Liberty. 17 July 2014. Retrieved 17 July 2014.
63. Leonard, Peter (17 July 2014). "Ukraine: Air Force jet downed by Russian missile" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20160113123101/http://news.yahoo.com/ukraine-air-force-jet-downed-russian-missile-102817809.html>). ABC News. Associated Press. Archived from the original (<https://news.yahoo.com/ukraine-air-force-jet-downed-russian-missile-102817809.html>) on 13 January 2016. Retrieved 17 July 2014.
64. Karmanau, Yuras & Leonard, Peter (25 July 2014). "What happened? The day Flight 17 was downed" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20141009123439/http://bigstory.ap.org/article/what-happened-day-flight-17-was-downed>). Associated Press. Archived from the original (<http://bigstory.ap.org/article/what-happened-day-flight-17-was-downed>) on 9 October 2014. Retrieved 13 November 2014.

65. Oliphant, Roland (14 November 2014). "The haunting pilgrimage site of Saur Mogila" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20190323091907/https://www.telegraph.co.uk/news/worldnews/europe/ukraine/11231333/The-unlikely-pilgrimage-site-of-Saur-Mogila.html>). The Daily Telegraph. Archived from the original (<https://www.telegraph.co.uk/news/worldnews/europe/ukraine/11231333/The-unlikely-pilgrimage-site-of-Saur-Mogila.html>) on 23 March 2019.
66. Hosenball, Mark; Scott, Alwyn (17 July 2014). Storey, David; Reinhold, Toni (eds.). "U.S. air carriers to avoid Russia-Ukraine border airspace" (<https://www.reuters.com/article/us-ukraine-crisis-airplane-warnings-idUSKBN0FM2BV20140717>). Reuters. Retrieved 2 October 2014.
67. Whitehead, Tom (17 July 2014). "Air operators belatedly avoid Ukraine war zone" (<https://www.telegraph.co.uk/news/uknews/law-and-order/10974823/Air-operators-belatedly-avoid-Ukraine-war-zone.html>). The Daily Telegraph. Retrieved 19 July 2014.
68. "Absturz von Flug MH17: Lufthansa flog zuletzt 56-mal über Kriegsgebiet" (<http://www.spiegel.de/panorama/malaysia-airlines-mh17-lufthansa-ueberflog-ost-ukraine-56-mal-a-981813.html>) [Crash of Flight MH17: Lufthansa lately flew 56 times over crisis region]. Der Spiegel (in German). 18 July 2014. Retrieved 2 October 2014.
69. "Travel tips: What Is the Altitude of a Plane in Flight?" (<https://traveltips.usatoday.com/altitude-plane-flight-100359.html>). USA Today. Retrieved 24 June 2019.
70. "Crash of Malaysia Airlines flight MH17" (https://www.onderzoeksraad.nl/en/media/attachment/2018/7/10/debcd724fe7breport_mh17_crash.pdf) (PDF). Dutch Safety Board. October 2015. p. 180. Retrieved 16 July 2017.
71. "Maps of the Crash of Malaysia Airlines Flight 17" (<https://www.nytimes.com/interactive/2014/07/17/world/europe/maps-of-the-crash-of-malaysian-airlines-flight-mh17.html>). The New York Times. 21 July 2014. Retrieved 8 June 2015.
72. Racheva, Elena; Musafirova, Olga (10 June 2015). "17 июля в зону АТО должен был вылететь транспортный Ан-26 с украинскими десантниками" (<https://novayagazeta.ru/articles/2015/06/10/64473-171-17-iyulya-v-zonu-ato-dolzhen-byi-vyletet-transportnyy-an-26-s-ukrainskimi-desantnikami-187>) [On July 17, the transport An-26 with Ukrainian paratroopers was supposed to fly into the ATO zone]. Novaya Gazeta (in Russian). Retrieved 1 December 2020.
73. Herszenhorn, David M.; Tavernise, Sabrina (19 July 2014). "Ukraine Says It Can Prove Russia Supplied Arms System That Felled Jet" (<https://www.nytimes.com/2014/07/20/world/europe/malaysia-airlines-plane-ukraine.html>). The New York Times.
74. Freed, Jamie (20 July 2014). "Ukraine responsible for airspace safety: IATA" (<https://www.smh.com.au/business/aviation/ukraine-responsible-for-airspace-safety-iata-20140720-zuzmp.html>). The Sydney Morning Herald. Retrieved 21 July 2014.
75. Whitehead, Tom; Collins, Nick; Evans, Martin (18 July 2014). "MH17 disaster: Flights over war zones 'because it's cheaper'" (<https://www.smh.com.au/business/aviation/mh17-disaster-flights-over-war-zones-because-its-cheaper-20140718-zua0y.html>). The Sydney Morning Herald. Retrieved 18 July 2014.
76. Cawthorne, Nigel (2016). MH370 The Secret Files - At Last... The Truth Behind the Greatest Aviation Mystery of All Time (<https://www.worldcat.org/oclc/945031923>). John Blake Publishing. London. ISBN 978-1-78606-084-6. OCLC 945031923 (<https://www.worldcat.org/oclc/945031923>).
77. "MH17 Malaysia plane crash in Ukraine: What we know" (<https://www.bbc.com/news/world-europe-28357880>). BBC News. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20140718121104/http://www.bbc.com/news/world-europe-28357880>) from the original on 18 July 2014. Retrieved 21 July 2014.
78. "Malaysia Airlines crash: video believed to show moment of plane's impact" (<https://www.telegraph.co.uk/news/worldnews/europe/ukraine/10975094/Malaysia-Airlines-crash-video-believed-to-show-moment-of-planes-impact.html>). The Daily Telegraph. 17 July 2014. Retrieved 17 July 2014.
79. Nelson, Sara C. (17 July 2014). "Malaysia Airlines Flight MH17 'Shot Down in Ukraine Near Russian Border'" (http://www.huffingtonpost.co.uk/2014/07/17/malaysia-airlines-mh17-passenger-jet-crashes-ukraine-near-russian-border_n_5595450.html). The Huffington Post. United Kingdom. Retrieved 17 July 2014.

80. "Maleisisch passagiersvliegtuig in Oekraïne neergestort" (http://www.telegraaf.nl/buitenland/2286655/0/___Vliegtuig_crasht_in_Oekraïne___html) [Malaysian passenger aircraft shot down in Ukraine]. De Telegraaf (in Dutch). 17 July 2014. Retrieved 17 July 2014.
81. Milmo, Cahal (19 July 2014). "Malaysia Airlines MH17 crash: No forensic investigators, co-ordination or body bags as Ukraine locals are left to scour gruesome scene" (<https://www.independent.co.uk/news/world/europe/malaysia-airlines-mh17-crash-no-forensic-investigators-coordination-or-body-bags-as-locals-are-left-to-scour-the-gruesome-scene-9615895.html>). The Independent. Retrieved 19 July 2014.
82. "Official: 181 bodies found at MH17 crash site" (<http://www.thehindu.com/news/international/world/official-181-bodies-found-at-mh17-crash-site/article6225245.ece>). The Hindu. Associated Press. 18 July 2014. Retrieved 19 July 2014.
83. "Raw: Crews begin moving bodies at jet crash site" (<https://www.usatoday.com/videos/news/nation/2014/07/19/12883715/>). USA Today. Associated Press. 19 July 2014. Retrieved 19 July 2014.
84. Miller, Nick (19 July 2014). "MH17: 'Unknown groups' use body bags" (<https://www.smh.com.au/world/mh17-unknown-groups-use-body-bags-20140719-3c8dl.html>). The Sydney Morning Herald. Retrieved 19 July 2014.
85. Grytsenko, Oksana. "MH17: armed rebels fuel chaos as rotting corpses pile up on the roadside" (<http://www.theguardian.com/world/2014/jul/19/mh17-armed-rebels-chaos-corpses-ukraine>). The Guardian. Retrieved 19 July 2014.
86. "Rutte geschokt over 'respectloos gedrag' op rampplek" (<http://www.nu.nl/vliegramp-oekraïne/3832485/rutte-geschokt-respectloos-gedrag-rampplek.html>) [Rutte shocked about 'disrespectful behavior' at a disaster site]. Nu.nl (in Dutch). 19 July 2014. Retrieved 19 July 2014.
87. de Jong, Laura (21 July 2014). "Rutte: 'Zorgvuldiger met lichamen omgegaan dan werd gevreesd'" (<http://www.volkskrant.nl/vk/nl/31522/Vliegtuigcrash-in-Oekraïne/article/detail/3693688/2014/07/21/Rutte-Zorgvuldiger-met-lichamen-omgegaan-dan-werd-gevreesd.dhtml>). de Volkskrant (in Dutch).
88. Sterling, Toby (6 August 2014). "Dutch premier halts search for Ukraine victims" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20141118080619/http://bigstory.ap.org/article/dutch-premier-halts-search-ukraine-victims>). Associated Press. Archived from the original (<http://bigstory.ap.org/article/dutch-premier-halts-search-ukraine-victims>) on 18 November 2014. Retrieved 6 August 2014.
89. "Dutch Banks Respond to Reports of MH17 Victims' Looted Credit Cards" (<http://www.nbcnews.com/storyline/ukraine-plane-crash/dutch-banks-respond-reports-mh17-victims-looted-credit-cards-n160246>). NBC News. 19 July 2014. Retrieved 20 July 2014.
90. Mendick, Robert; Sawyer, Patrick; Ross, Time (19 July 2014). "MH17: Malaysia Airlines crash victims robbed of their dignity by rebels" (<https://www.telegraph.co.uk/news/worldnews/europe/ukraine/10978577/MH17-Malaysia-Airlines-crash-victims-robbed-of-their-dignity-by-rebels.html>). The Daily Telegraph. Retrieved 20 July 2014.
91. Wagner, Meg (18 July 2014). "Heartless looters raid Malaysia Airlines Flight MH17 crash site, swipe victims' luggage, personal items" (<http://www.nydailynews.com/news/world/heartless-looters-raid-malaysian-airlines-flight-mh17-crash-site-article-1.1872047>). Daily News. New York. Retrieved 20 July 2014.
92. Walker, Shaun; Salem, Harriet; Halliday, Josh (21 July 2014). "MH17: World's anger at Russia grows as bodies pile on to train at crash site" (<https://www.theguardian.com/world/2014/jul/20/mh17-victims-crash-site-anger-russia-grows>). The Guardian. Retrieved 6 August 2014.
93. Sonne, Paul; Kolyandr, Alexander; Coker, Margaret (20 July 2014). "Bodies Removed From MH17 Crash Site Human Remains Moved to Railcars at Torez Station" (<https://online.wsj.com/articles/some-bodies-removed-from-mh17-crash-site-1405849163>). The Wall Street Journal. Retrieved 20 July 2014.
94. "MH17 plane crash: Dutch experts examine bodies" (<https://www.bbc.com/news/world-europe-28399406>). BBC News. 21 July 2014. Retrieved 21 July 2014.

95. "MH17 plane crash: Train with bodies leaves Ukraine station" (<https://www.bbc.com/news/world-europe-28411225>). BBC News. 21 July 2014. Retrieved 21 July 2014.
96. Marlow, Iain (21 July 2014). "MH17: Malaysia reaches 'behind the scenes' deal to recover bodies" (<https://www.theglobeandmail.com/news/world/mh17-malaysia-reaches-deal-to-recover-bodies-in-race-for-muslim-burials/article19692413/>). The Globe and Mail. Retrieved 21 July 2014.
97. "Obama calls for Russia 'pivot' on Ukraine as MH17 investigation begins" (<http://america.aljazeera.com/articles/2014/7/21/obama-ukraine-russia.html>). Al Jazeera. 21 July 2014. Retrieved 21 July 2014.
98. Higgins, Andrew (22 July 2014). "Bodies of Crash Victims Safely Moved Out of Combat Area" (<http://www.nytimes.com/2014/07/23/world/europe/malaysia-airlines-jet-ukraine.html>). The New York Times. Retrieved 22 July 2014.
99. McGeough, Paul (23 July 2014). "MH17 crash: families' worst fears realised as bodies go missing" (<http://www.theage.com.au/world/mh17-crash-families-worst-fears-realised-as-bodies-go-missing-2014-0723-zvv9x.html>). The Age. Retrieved 23 July 2014.
00. "Malaysia Airlines Flight MH17: British Investigators Join Probe in Ukraine Amid Fears of Evidence Tampering" (http://www.huffingtonpost.co.uk/2014/07/19/malaysia-airlines-flight-mh17_n_5601582.html). The Huffington Post. 19 July 2014. Retrieved 19 July 2014.
01. "MH17 bodies leave Ukraine rebel area and reach Kharkiv" (<https://www.bbc.co.uk/news/world-europe-28416973>). BBC News. 22 July 2014. Retrieved 22 July 2014.
02. "Netherlands to coordinate MH17 victim identification efforts" (http://www.business-standard.com/article/news-ians/netherlands-to-coordinate-mh17-victim-identification-efforts-114072100077_1.html). Business Standard. 21 July 2014. Retrieved 22 July 2014.
03. "MH17: Tony Abbott announces Operation Bring Them Home to secure and identify victims of Malaysia Airlines disaster" (<http://www.abc.net.au/news/2014-07-22/operation-launched-to-recover-and-identify-mh17-victims/5615332>). ABC News (Australia). Retrieved 22 July 2014.
04. Saul, Heather (23 July 2014). "MH17 crash victims: First bodies arrive in Netherlands from Ukraine" (<https://www.independent.co.uk/news/world/europe/mh17-crash-social-media--blackout-tribute-continues-as-first-bodies-are-to-be-flown-to-netherlands-from-ukraine-9622288.html>). The Independent.
05. "Weer 74 kisten naar Hilversum" (<http://nos.nl/artikel/679047-weer-74-kisten-naar-hilversum.html>). NOS (in Dutch). 24 July 2014.
06. "Hilversum treft voorbereidingen voor lichamen MH17" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20140723204451/http://www.nieuws.nl/algemeen/20140722/Hilversum-treft-voorbereidingen-voor-lichamen-MH17>). Nieuws.nl (in Dutch). 22 July 2014. Archived from the original (<http://nieuws.nl/algemeen/20140722/hilversum-treft-voorbereidingen-voor-lichamen-mh17/>) on 23 July 2014. Retrieved 22 July 2014.
07. Parfitt, Tom (1 August 2014). "Dutch and Australian police to use drones, divers and sniffer dogs in perilous search for victims" (<https://www.telegraph.co.uk/news/worldnews/europe/ukraine/11005039/Dutch-and-Australian-police-to-use-drones-divers-and-sniffer-dogs-in-perilous-search-for-victims.html>). The Daily Telegraph. Retrieved 3 August 2014.
08. "MH17 investigators frustrated at limited access due to fighting" (<https://www.theguardian.com/world/2014/aug/05/mh17-investigators-frustrated-at-limited-access-due-to-fighting>). The Guardian. 5 August 2014. Retrieved 8 September 2014.
09. "Australia says all MH17 bodies should be retrieved from crash site within days" (<https://www.theguardian.com/world/2014/aug/01/australia-mh17-bodies-retrieved-from-crash-site-within-days>). The Guardian. Australian Associated Press. Retrieved 4 August 2014.
10. Davidson, Helen (6 August 2014). "MH17 crash: search for remains halted as Australia begins day of mourning" (<https://www.theguardian.com/world/2014/aug/07/mh17-crash-search-for-remains-halted>). The Guardian. Retrieved 10 August 2014.
11. "MH17 bodies arrive in Malaysia" (<https://www.theguardian.com/world/2014/aug/22/mh17-bodies-arrive-in-malaysia>). The Guardian. Agence France-Presse in Kuala Lumpur. 21 August 2014. Retrieved 22 August 2014.

12. "MH17 day of mourning: White hearses arrive at KLIA" (<http://www.thestar.com.my/News/Nation/2014/08/22/MH17-Day-of-mourning-white-hearses-at-KLIA/>). The Star (Malaysia). 22 August 2014.
13. Grindstad, Ingrid (5 December 2014). "Six MH17 victims remain unidentified" (<http://www.nltimes.nl/2014/12/05/six-mh17-victims-remain-unidentified/>). NL Times. Retrieved 6 December 2014.
14. Deutsch, Anthony (2 February 2015). Chopra, Toby (ed.). "Dutch search team recovers remains, MH17 wreckage in Ukraine" (<https://www.reuters.com/article/ukraine-crisis-mh17-idCNL6N0VC3GC20150202>). Reuters. Retrieved 16 April 2015.
15. "Dutch investigators recover human remains from MH17 crash site" (<https://news.yahoo.com/dutch-investigators-recover-human-remains-mh17-crash-110138676.html>). Yahoo! News. Agence France-Presse. 21 April 2015. Retrieved 23 April 2015.
16. "Air India flight with 126 on board was right behind MH 17" (<http://timesofindia.indiatimes.com/india/Air-India-flight-with-126-on-board-was-right-behind-MH-17/articleshow/38601142.cms>). The Times of India. 18 July 2014. Retrieved 12 November 2014.
17. Jansen, Bart (18 July 2014). "Malaysia will stop using No. 17 next week" (<https://www.usatoday.com/story/money/business/2014/07/18/malaysia-flight-17-retired-numbers/12827633/>). USA Today. Retrieved 18 July 2014.
18. "MH17: Malaysia Airlines retires flight number after Ukraine crash" (<http://www.abc.net.au/news/2014-07-21/mh17-malaysia-airlines-retires-flight-number-out-of-respect-/5610864>). ABC News (Australia). 21 July 2014. Retrieved 21 July 2014.
19. "Malaysia Airlines Cancels Amsterdam / Paris Routes from late-Jan 2016" (<http://airlineroute.net/2015/12/03/mh-amscdg-jan16cxld/>). Airlineroute.net. 3 December 2015. Retrieved 26 December 2015.
20. Wile, Rob (18 July 2014). "Malaysia Airlines Shares Tank" (<http://www.businessinsider.com/malaysia-airlines-shares-tank-2014-7>). Business Insider. Retrieved 19 July 2014.
21. "Ukraine: missiles that brought down jets may have been fired from Russia" (<http://www.trust.org/item/20140723154118-im9dy>). Reuters. 23 July 2014. Retrieved 19 September 2014.
22. "Malaysia Airlines MH17: Russia rebukes push for UN tribunal" (<http://www.cbc.ca/news/world/malaysia-airlines-mh17-russia-rebukes-push-for-un-tribunal-1.3146029>). CBC News. 10 July 2015. Retrieved 10 July 2015.
23. "Russia submits rival MH17 resolution draft" (<https://www.dw.com/en/russia-submits-rival-mh17-resolution-draft/a-18596856>). Deutsche Welle. 21 July 2015. Retrieved 28 April 2020.
24. "Russia makes rival UN move on MH17 probe" (<https://www.sbs.com.au/news/russia-makes-rival-un-move-on-mh17-probe>). SBS News. 21 July 2015.
25. "Russia vetoes MH17 tribunal at UN" (<https://www.bbc.com/news/world-europe-33710088>). BBC News. 29 July 2015. Retrieved 23 April 2020.
26. Nichols, Michelle (29 July 2015). Oatis, Jonathan (ed.). "Russia vetoes bid to set up tribunal for downed Flight MH17" (<https://www.reuters.com/article/us-ukraine-crisis-mh17-un-idUSKCN0Q32GS20150729>). Reuters.
27. "Russia Opposes UN MH17 Tribunal" (<https://www.rferl.org/a/russia-opposes-un-mh17-tribunal/27139710.html>). RadioFreeEurope/RadioLiberty. Retrieved 25 April 2020.
28. Loiko, Sergei; Coalson, Robert (1 June 2016). "The Unraveling of Moscow's 'Novorossia' Dream" (<http://www.rferl.mobi/a/unraveling-moscow-novorossia-dream/27772641.html>). Radio Free Europe/Radio Liberty.
29. Deutsch, Anthony; Escritt, Thomas (11 November 2014). Ledwith, Sara (ed.). "Where are the bodies, MH17 families ask" (<https://www.reuters.com/article/us-ukraine-mh17-bodies/where-are-the-bodies-mh17-families-ask-idUSKCN0IV1NJ20141111>). Reuters. Retrieved 11 November 2014.
30. Wall, Robert (27 August 2015). "Final Report on Downing of Malaysia Airlines Flight MH17 Due October" (<https://www.wsj.com/articles/final-report-on-downing-of-malaysia-airlines-flight-mh17-due-october-1440675525>). The Wall Street Journal.
31. "JIT: MH17 shot down with missile fired from pro-Russian rebel controlled field" (<https://nltimes.nl/2016/09/28/jit-mh17-shot-missile-fired-pro-russian-rebel-controlled-field>). NL Times. 28 September 2016.

32. Lévesque, Julie (3 December 2014). "MH17 investigation – why is Malaysia excluded?" (<http://www.eturbonews.com/53217/mh17-investigation-why-malaysia-excluded>). eTN Global Travel Industry News. Retrieved 21 December 2014.
33. Parker, Andrew; Olearchuk, Roman (21 July 2014). "Netherlands to lead MH17 investigation" (<https://www.ft.com/content/19c29f34-10e1-11e4-b116-00144feabdc0>). Financial Times. Retrieved 22 July 2014.
34. "Nederlandse leidersrol krijgt juridische basis – Vliegtuigcrash in Oekraïne" (<http://www.volkskrant.nl/vk/nl/31522/Vliegtuigcrash-in-Oekraïne/article/detail/3698000/2014/07/24/Nederlandse-leidersrol-krijgt-juridische-basis.dhtml>). De Volkskrant (in Dutch). 24 July 2014. Retrieved 24 July 2014.
35. "Dutch Safety Board heads investigation: investigation effort in full swing, black boxes currently being read out" (https://www.webcitation.org/6ShCuUTie?url=http://www.onderzoeksraad.nl/uploads/fm/2014_07_23_PB_OVV_neemt_leiding_over_ENG_DEF.pdf) (PDF). Dutch Safety Board. 23 July 2014. Archived from the original (http://www.onderzoeksraad.nl/uploads/fm/2014_07_23_PB_OVV_neemt_leiding_over_ENG_DEF.pdf) (PDF) on 19 September 2014. Retrieved 24 July 2014.
36. "Press statement by the Trilateral Contact Group" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20140908053442/http://www.osce.org/home/121390>). Organization for Security and Co-operation in Europe. 18 July 2014. Archived from the original (<http://www.osce.org/home/121390>) on 8 September 2014. Retrieved 18 July 2014.
37. Walker, Shaun (20 July 2014). "MH17: pro-Russia rebels will allow access to crash site if ceasefire agreed" (<https://www.theguardian.com/world/2014/jul/20/mh17-pro-russia-rebels-crash-site-kyiv-ceasefire>). The Guardian. Retrieved 8 September 2014.
38. "Malaysia Airlines MH17 black boxes reportedly recovered, Russia denies it will take them from rebels" (<http://news.nationalpost.com/2014/07/18/malaysia-airlines-mh17-black-boxes-reportedly-recovered-russia-denies-it-will-take-them-from-rebels/>). National Post. 22 May 2014. Retrieved 19 July 2014.
39. Walker, Shaun; Salem, Harriet (22 July 2014). "Ukraine rebels hand over MH17 black boxes and let train carrying bodies leave" (<https://www.theguardian.com/world/2014/jul/22/mh17-black-boxes-hand-over-pro-russia-rebels>). The Guardian. Retrieved 21 February 2019.
40. "Розслідування катастрофи літака Boeing 777" (<http://www.nbaai.gov.ua/news.html?id=6&lang=uk>) [Boeing 777 crash investigation]. NBAAI (in Ukrainian). 25 August 2014. Retrieved 2 October 2014.
41. "Questions and answers concerning the investigation into Flight MH17" (<http://onderzoeksraad.nl/en/onderzoek/2049/investigation-crash-mh17-17-july-2014/onderzoek/1559/questions-and-answers-concerning-the-investigation-into-flight-mh17#fasen>). Dutch Safety Board. 17 July 2014. Retrieved 22 August 2014. "Ukraine has transferred responsibility for investigating the cause of the crash to the Dutch Safety Board. The request came from Ukraine. This request was made because the flight departed from the Netherlands, and due to the large number of Dutch nationals who died in the crash"
42. "MH17 misbruikt voor opvoeren spanning met Rusland" (<http://nos.nl/nieuwsuur/artikel/2139769-mh17-misbruikt-voor-opvoeren-spanning-met-rusland.html>). NOS (in Dutch). 26 October 2016. Retrieved 17 July 2019.
43. "MH370 search coordinator to lead Australia's MH17 probe Panel" (<http://news.biharprabha.com/2014/07/mh370-search-coordinator-to-lead-australias-mh17-probe-panel/>). Biharprabha News. Indo-Asian News Service. Retrieved 21 July 2014.
44. Wroe, David (13 June 2017). "Tony Abbott's office floated sending Australian troops into Ukraine conflict, defence expert claims" (<https://www.smh.com.au/federal-politics/federal-election-2016/tony-abbotts-office-floated-sending-australian-troops-into-ukraine-conflict-defence-expert-claims-20160612-gphbab.html>). The Sydney Morning Herald. Retrieved 13 October 2017. "In the end, Australia quietly deployed about 200 special forces soldiers in a low-key role supporting police investigators."

45. Walker, Shaun (1 August 2014). "MH17 investigators reach crash site two weeks after plane brought down" (<https://www.theguardian.com/world/2014/aug/01/mh17-investigators-reach-crash-site-ukraine-search-bodies>). The Guardian. Retrieved 2 October 2014.
46. "Summary Report of a Briefing at Civil Service Level" (http://www.houseofrepresentatives.nl/sites/www.houseofrepresentatives.nl/files/news_items/140728ambtelijke_briefing_mh17_beknopt_engels_1.doc). House of Representatives. 28 July 2014. Retrieved 2 October 2014.
47. Kolyandr, Alexander; Steinhäuser, Gabriele (30 July 2014). "Still No Safe Passage to Malaysia Airlines Flight 17 Crash Site in Eastern Ukraine" (<https://online.wsj.com/articles/still-no-safe-passage-to-malaysia-airlines-crash-site-1406714025>). The Wall Street Journal. Retrieved 2 September 2014.
48. "21 More MH17 Crash Victims Identified, Experts Leave Site" (<http://www.outlookindia.com/news/article/21-More-MH17-Crash-Victims-Identified-Experts-Leave-Site/854102>). Outlook India. Press Trust of India. 8 August 2014. Retrieved 17 August 2014.
49. "Netherlands deploys more experts to probe MH17 crash" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20140914075300/http://ibnlive.in.com/news/netherlands-deploys-more-experts-to-probe-mh17-crash/498540-2.html>). CNN-IBNLive. Press Trust of India. 13 September 2014. Archived from the original (<http://ibnlive.in.com/news/netherlands-deploys-more-experts-to-probe-mh17-crash/498540-2.html>) on 14 September 2014. Retrieved 14 September 2014.
50. "Additional MH17 crash investigators return to Netherlands" (<http://news.oneindia.in/international/additional-mh17-crash-investigators-return-to-netherlands-1525660.html#infinite-scroll-1>). Oneindia.in. 20 September 2014. Retrieved 2 October 2014.
51. "Dutch Experts Help Recover MH17 Crash Items Despite Nearby Clashes" (<http://www.newsweek.com/dutch-experts-help-recover-mh17-crash-items-despite-nearby-clashes-277024>). Newsweek. 13 October 2014. Retrieved 13 October 2014.
52. "MH17 crash: Dutch salvage team 'unable to start' " (<https://www.bbc.com/news/world-europe-30000967>). BBC News. 11 November 2014. Retrieved 2 December 2014.
53. "Ukraine crisis: Timeline" (<https://www.bbc.com/news/world-middle-east-26248275>). BBC News. 13 November 2014. Retrieved 2 December 2014.
54. "MH17: Dutch complete recovery of Malaysia Airlines wreckage in eastern Ukraine" (<http://www.abc.net.au/news/2014-11-24/dutch-complete-mh17-wreckage-recovery-in-ukraine/5912572>). ABC News. Agence France-Presse. 24 November 2014. Retrieved 24 November 2014.
55. Dearden, Lizzie (11 August 2015). "MH17 crash: Investigators find possible parts of Buk missile used to shoot plane down" (<https://www.independent.co.uk/news/world/europe/mh17-crash-investigators-find-parts-of-buk-missile-possibly-used-to-shoot-plane-down-10450053.html>). The Independent. Retrieved 11 August 2015.
56. "Investigation into possible Buk-missile-parts" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20200123171458/https://www.om.nl/vaste-onderdelen/zoeken/@90384/investigation-into/>). Openbaar Ministerie (Dutch public prosecution service). 11 August 2015. Archived from the original (<https://www.om.nl/vaste-onderdelen/zoeken/@90384/investigation-into/>) on 23 January 2020. Retrieved 11 August 2015.
57. Landay, Jonathan S. (22 July 2014). "Washington: U.S. officials still don't know who shot down Malaysian airliner" (<http://www.bellinghamherald.com/2014/07/22/3762980/us-officials-we-still-dont-know.html>). The Bellingham Herald. Retrieved 24 July 2014.
58. "Mililitants admit to shooting down MH17 – reports" (<http://tvnz.co.nz/world-news/militants-admit-shooting-down-mh17-reports-6031634>). 1 News. 18 July 2014. Retrieved 10 August 2014.
59. Demirjian, Karoun (20 July 2014). "Watch: Ukraine's pro-Russian rebels discuss MH17's black box in secret recording" (<https://www.washingtonpost.com/blogs/worldviews/wp/2014/07/20/watch-ukraines-pro-russian-rebels-discuss-mh17s-black-box-in-secret-recording/>). The Washington Post. Retrieved 10 August 2014.

60. Ensor, Josie (19 July 2014). "MH17: what we know two days after Malaysia Airlines crash over Ukraine" (<https://www.telegraph.co.uk/news/worldnews/europe/ukraine/10977644/MH17-what-we-know-two-days-after-Malaysia-Airlines-crash-over-Ukraine.html>). The Daily Telegraph. Retrieved 19 July 2014.
61. Thijssen, Wil (19 July 2014). "De bewijsstukken: Wie schoot MH17 neer?" (<http://www.volkskrant.nl/vk/nl/31522/Vliegtuigcrash-in-Oekraïne/article/detail/3692229/2014/07/19/De-bewijsstukken-Wie-schoot-MH17-neer.dhtml>). de Volkskrant (in Dutch). Retrieved 19 July 2014.
62. Vartabedian, Ralph; Hennigan, W.J. (17 July 2014). "High-tech spycraft tracked missile's path to Malaysia Airlines jet" (<https://www.latimes.com/nation/nationnow/la-fg-satellites-ukraine-missile-2014-0717-story.html>). Los Angeles Times. Retrieved 21 July 2014.
63. Mendick, Robert (27 July 2014). "MH17: why the culprits may never be caught" (<https://www.telegraph.co.uk/news/worldnews/europe/ukraine/10993020/MH17-why-the-culprits-may-never-be-caught.html>). The Daily Telegraph.
64. "MH17 likely shot down by mistake by Russian separatists, US intelligence official says" (<http://www.abc.net.au/news/2014-07-23/mh17-likely-shot-down-by-accident-by-russian-separatists/5616748>). ABC News (Australia). 23 July 2014. Retrieved 23 July 2014.
65. "SBU releases more conversations implicating Russia in shooting down Malaysia Airlines flight (Video, Transcript)" (<http://www.kyivpost.com/content/ukraine/sbu-releases-more-conversations-implicating-russia-in-shooting-down-malaysia-airlines-flight-video-transcript-2-356778.html>). Kyiv Post. 14 July 2014. Retrieved 18 July 2014.
66. Majumdar, Dave (18 July 2014). "Design of Surface-to-Air Missile Systems Makes Accidents Far from Improbable" (<https://www.technologyreview.com/s/529156/how-can-a-civilian-plane-accidentally-be-shot-down/>). MIT Technology Review. Retrieved 12 March 2020.
67. Rosen, Armin (18 July 2014). "This Flaw In The Buk Missile System Makes It Really Easy To Accidentally Shoot Down A Passenger Jet" (<https://www.businessinsider.com/the-flaw-in-the-buk-missile-system-2014-7>). Business Insider. Retrieved 12 March 2020.
68. Fung, Brian (18 July 2014). "Did the Ukrainian rebels even know they were shooting at a civilian aircraft?" (<https://www.washingtonpost.com/news/the-switch/wp/2014/07/18/did-the-ukrainian-rebels-even-know-they-were-shooting-at-a-civilian-aircraft/>). The Washington Post. Retrieved 12 March 2020.
69. "Wreckage Offers Clues on Why Flight 17 Went Down" (<https://www.nytimes.com/interactive/2014/07/21/world/europe/wreckage-offers-clues-on-why-flight-17-went-down.html>). The New York Times. 21 July 2014. Retrieved 23 July 2014.
70. Powell, Rose (22 July 2014). "Photo of MH17 wreckage proves missile attack, claims report" (<https://www.smh.com.au/world/photo-of-mh17-wreckage-proves-missile-attack-claims-report-20140722-zvju.html>). The Sydney Morning Herald. Retrieved 23 July 2014.
71. Fitzpatrick, Catherine A. (27 July 2014). "Evidence of Separatists' Possession of Buk System Before Downing of MH17" (<http://www.interpretermag.com/evidence-of-separatists-possession-of-buk-system-before-downing-of-mh17/>). The Interpreter. Institute of Modern Russia. Retrieved 25 February 2015.
72. Fitzpatrick, Catherine A. (13 August 2014). "Novaya Gazeta Editor: Boroday Called Moscow Press About Downing of Civilian Airliner" (<http://www.interpretermag.com/novaya-gazeta-editor-boroday-called-moscow-press-about-downing-of-civilian-airliner/>). The Interpreter. Institute of Modern Russia. Retrieved 25 February 2015.
73. Bugorkova, Olga (28 September 2016). "Катастрофа MH17: как менялись версии российских СМИ" (<http://www.bbc.com/russian/features-37496581>) [Disaster of MH17: how the versions of the Russian media changed]. BBC Russian Service (in Russian). Retrieved 29 September 2016.
74. "Donetsk People's Republic militia downs another Ukraine's An-26 plane – eyewitnesses" (<https://www.webcitation.org/6RA3m6ZDd?url=http://en.itar-tass.com/world/741164>). Information Telegraph Agency of Russia. 17 July 2014. Archived from the original (<http://en.itar-tass.com/world/741164>) on 18 July 2014. Retrieved 18 July 2014.

75. Feneley, Rick (18 July 2014). "Attack on Flight MH17: After the tragedy, the accusations rain down" (<https://www.smh.com.au/national/attack-on-flight-mh17-after-the-tragedy-the-accusations-rain-down-20140718-zumq4.html>). The Sydney Morning Herald. Retrieved 10 August 2014.
76. "MH17: Ultimate responsibility lies with Putin" (<http://www.theage.com.au/comment/smh-editorial/mh-17-ultimate-responsibility-lies-with-putin-20140718-zuc0v.html>). The Age. 18 July 2014. Retrieved 10 August 2014.
77. "Web evidence points to pro-Russia rebels in downing of MH17 (+video)" (<http://www.csmonitor.com/World/Europe/2014/0717/Web-evidence-points-to-pro-Russia-rebels-in-downing-of-MH17-video>). The Christian Science Monitor. 17 July 2014. Retrieved 10 August 2014.
78. Walker, Shaun (22 July 2014). "Ukrainians report sightings of missile launcher on day of MH17 crash" (https://www.theguardian.com/world/2014/jul/22/ukraine-sightings-missile-launcher-mh17?CMP=tw_t_gu). The Guardian. Retrieved 23 July 2014.
79. Polityuk, Pavel; Piper, Elizabeth (19 July 2014). Ireland, Louise (ed.). "Ukraine says has 'compelling evidence' Russian crew shot down Malaysian plane" (<https://www.reuters.com/article/ukraine-crisis-in-telligence/ukraine-says-has-compelling-evidence-russian-crew-shot-down-malaysian-plane-idUSL6N0PU0FB20140719>). Reuters. Kiev. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20140719125225/https://www.reuters.com/article/2014/07/19/us-ukraine-crisis-intelligence-idUSKBN0FO0GD20140719>) from the original on 19 July 2014. Retrieved 19 July 2014.
80. "Ракетним комплексом "Бук", який збив Boeing-777 керували росіяни, – СБУ" (http://espreso.tv/news/2014/07/19/raketnym_kompleksom_buk_yakyy_zbyv_boeing_777_keruvaly_rosiyany___sbu) [The Buk missile system which shot down Boeing-777 was operated by Russians, - SBU]. Espresso.tv. RBK-Ukraine. 19 July 2014. Retrieved 19 July 2014.
81. Schofield, Matthew (19 July 2014). "Ukraine video claims proof of Russia-supplied anti-aircraft system" (<http://www.mcclatchydc.com/2014/07/19/233825/ukraine-video-claims-proof-of.html?sp=99/100/&ihp=1>). McClatchyDC. Retrieved 20 July 2014.
82. Gregory, Paul Roderick (18 July 2014). "Smoking Guns: Russian Separatists Shot Down Malaysian Flight MH17; Putin Must Be Held Responsible" (<https://www.forbes.com/sites/paulroderickgregory/2014/07/18/smoking-guns-russian-separatists-shot-down-malaysian-plane/>). Forbes.
83. Gregory, Paul Roderick (19 July 2014). "Here Are The Intercepted Transcripts Indicating Russian Rebels Shot Down Malaysian Flight MH17" (<https://www.forbes.com/sites/paulroderickgregory/2014/07/19/what-more-smoking-guns-are-needed-for-mh17-the-worlds-first-sam-terrorism/>). Forbes. Retrieved 22 July 2014.
84. Leonard, Peter; Chernov, Mstyslav (17 July 2014). "Both sides in Ukraine deny shooting down plane" (http://hosted2.ap.org/PASCRA/a5050f4ad4f44dafab85bb41a15281cf/Article_2014-07-17-EU--Ukraine-Plane/id-080a6229c3e249c3b05226215d0da426). Associated Press. Retrieved 21 July 2014.
85. "Malaysian plane was shot down by rebels, intercepted phone calls prove, Ukraine's president says" (<http://news.nationalpost.com/2014/07/17/malaysian-passenger-plane-was-shot-down-by-rebels-intercepted-phone-calls-prove-ukraines-president-says/>). National Post. Associated Press via Postmedia Network. 17 July 2014. Retrieved 17 July 2014.
86. Walker, Shaun (29 July 2014). "An audience with Ukraine rebel chief Igor Bezler, the Demon of Donetsk" (<https://www.theguardian.com/world/2014/jul/29/-sp-ukraine-rebel-igor-bezler-interview-demon>). The Guardian. Retrieved 8 September 2014.
87. "Separatists planned terrorist attacks against Aeroflot aircraft on day of MH17 crash as pretext for Russian invasion into Ukraine- SBU chief" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20141129041421/http://www.nrcu.gov.ua/en/148/573400/>). Radio Ukraine International. 7 August 2014. Archived from the original (<http://www.nrcu.gov.ua/en/148/573400/>) on 29 November 2014. Retrieved 21 November 2014.
88. Dolgov, Anna (8 August 2014). "Ukraine Says Rebels Mistook Doomed Flight MH17 for Aeroflot Plane" (<https://www.themoscowtimes.com/2014/08/08/ukraine-says-rebels-mistook-doomed-flight-mh-17-for-aeroflot-plane-a38140>). The Moscow Times. Retrieved 21 November 2014.

89. "Terrorists and militants planned cynical terrorist attack at Aeroflot civil aircraft" (https://web.archive.org/web/20150721074226/http://www.sbu.gov.ua/sbu/control/en/publish/article?art_id=129860). Security Service of Ukraine. 7 August 2014. Archived from the original (http://www.sbu.gov.ua/sbu/control/en/publish/article?art_id=129860) on 21 July 2015. Retrieved 7 June 2015.
90. Cremonesi, Lorenzo (22 July 2014). "Così è stato colpito l'aereo" (http://www.corriere.it/esteri/14_luglio_22/cosi-stato-colpito-l-aereo-0a7e5f9e-115f-11e4-affb-3320a03d21e8.shtml) [So the plane was struck]. Corriere della Sera (in Italian). Retrieved 22 July 2014.
91. Schuller, Konrad (22 July 2014). "Separatisten am Abschussort sollten Piloten festnehmen" (<https://www.faz.net/aktuell/politik/ausland/europa/separatisten-sollten-piloten-der-mh17-festnehmen-13059009.html>) [Separatists at the crash site should capture pilots]. Frankfurter Allgemeine Zeitung. Retrieved 2 October 2014.
92. Stewart, Phil; Hosenball, Mark (19 July 2014). "U.S scrambles to determine who fired Russian-made missile at jet" (<http://in.reuters.com/article/idINKBN0FN2QK20140718>). Reuters India. Retrieved 22 July 2014.
93. M.J.S. (18 July 2014). "Flight MH17: The Evidence" (<https://www.economist.com/blogs/easternapproaches/2014/07/flight-mh17>). The Economist. Retrieved 17 September 2014.
94. Tharoor, Ishaan (20 July 2014). "The evidence that may prove pro-Russian separatists shot down MH17" (<https://www.washingtonpost.com/blogs/worldviews/wp/2014/07/20/the-evidence-that-may-prove-pro-russian-separatists-shot-down-mh17/>). The Washington Post. Retrieved 3 August 2014.
95. McGeough, Paul (14 June 2012). "Ukraine war zone tempers Federal Police attempts to access MH17 crash site" (<https://www.smh.com.au/world/ukraine-war-zone-tempers-federal-police-attempts-to-access-mh17-crash-site-20140801-zzkxy.html>). The Sydney Morning Herald. Retrieved 4 August 2014.
96. Addison, Stephen (26 July 2014). MacSwan, Angus (ed.). "Britain says highly likely MH17 shot down by Russian-supplied missile" (<https://www.reuters.com/article/us-ukraine-crisis-britain/britain-says-highly-likely-mh17-shot-down-by-russian-supplied-missile-idUSKBN0FV0IB20140726>). Reuters. Retrieved 4 August 2014.
97. Hartmann, Margaret (22 July 2014). "Intelligencer: Russia's 'Conspiracy Theory': MH17 Shot Down by Ukrainian Fighter Jet or Missile" (<https://nymag.com/intelligencer/2014/07/russia-mh17-downed-by-ukrainian-jet-missile.html>). New York. Retrieved 6 December 2020.
98. Razumovskaya, Olga; Lauria, Joe; Barnes, Julian E.; Ostrower, Jon (21 July 2014). "Russia Presents Its Account of Malaysia Airlines Flight 17 Crash" (<https://www.wsj.com/articles/russia-presents-its-account-of-malaysia-airlines-flight-17-crash-1405952441>). The Wall Street Journal. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20150106084711/https://www.wsj.com/articles/russia-presents-its-account-of-malaysia-airlines-flight-17-crash-1405952441>) from the original on 6 January 2015. Retrieved 22 July 2014.
99. "MH17 - German investigative team's fact-check" (<https://www.dw.com/en/mh17-german-investigative-teams-fact-check/a-18406490>). Deutsche Welle. 27 April 2015. Retrieved 6 December 2020.
00. Leyendecker, Hans; von Osten, Demian (10 March 2015). "MH 17 wurde vom Boden aus abgeschossen" (<https://www.sueddeutsche.de/politik/krieg-in-der-ukraine-mh-17-wurde-vom-boden-aus-abgeschossen-1.2386385>) [MH 17 was shot down from the ground]. Süddeutsche Zeitung (in German). Retrieved 6 December 2020.
01. "General designer of Su-25 says aircraft couldn't have shot down MH17" (<https://www.unian.info/world/1054085-general-designer-of-su-25-says-aircraft-couldnt-have-shot-down-mh17.html>). Ukrainian Independent Information Agency. 11 March 2015. Retrieved 12 March 2015.
02. "MH17-Absturz kontert Kritik mit neuen Satellitenbildern" (<http://www.zeit.de/politik/ausland/2015-06/bellingcat-russland-mh17-satellitenfotos-manipulation>). De Zeit (in German). 12 June 2015. Retrieved 17 June 2015.

03. Zverev, Anton; Alexander, David; Graff, Peter; Zargham, Mohammad (23 July 2014). Elgood, Giles (ed.). "Exclusive: Ukraine rebel commander acknowledges fighters had BUK missile" (<https://www.reuters.com/article/us-ukraine-crisis-commander-exclusive/exclusive-ukraine-rebel-commander-acknowledges-fighters-had-buk-missile-idUSKBN0FS1V920140723?irpc=932>). Reuters.
04. Walker, Shaun (23 July 2014). "MH17: Ukraine separatist commander 'admits' rebels had Buk missile system" (<https://www.theguardian.com/world/2014/jul/23/mh17-ukraine-separatists-buk-missile-system>). The Guardian. Retrieved 24 July 2014.
05. Buckley, Neil; Chazan, Guy; Dyer, Geoff (24 July 2014). "Separatist leader admits Ukraine rebels held Buk missile system" (<https://www.ft.com/cms/s/0/26fe789c-126e-11e4-a581-00144feabdc0.html>). Financial Times. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20140725182440/http://www.ft.com/cms/s/0/26fe789c-126e-11e4-a581-00144feabdc0.html>) from the original on 25 July 2014. Retrieved 24 July 2014.
06. Lanting, Bert (4 November 2014). "Wij hadden raket, maar haalden MH17 niet neer" (<http://www.volkscrant.nl/dossier-rampvlucht-mh17/wij-hadden-raket-maar-haalden-mh17-niet-neer~a3782013>). de Volkskrant (in Dutch). Retrieved 4 November 2014.
07. Culzac, Natasha (28 July 2014). "MH17 crash: Black boxes show plane suffered 'massive explosive decompression' following shrapnel hit" (<https://www.independent.co.uk/news/world/europe/mh17-crash-black-boxes-show-plane-suffered-massive-explosive-decompression-following-shrapnel-hit-9632881.html>). The Independent. Retrieved 28 July 2014.
08. Sweeney, John (8 September 2014). "MH17 disaster: Russians 'controlled Buk missile system'" (<http://www.bbc.co.uk/news/world-europe-29109398>). BBC News. Retrieved 9 September 2014.
09. Gregory, Paul Roderick (2 April 2015). "Is The MH17 Joint Investigation Team Avoiding The Question of Kremlin Guilt?" (<https://www.forbes.com/sites/paulroderickgregory/2015/04/02/is-the-mh17-joint-investigation-team-avoiding-the-question-of-kremlin-guilt/>). Forbes. Retrieved 3 April 2015.
10. Ostanin, Iggy (8 September 2014). "Images Show the Buk that Downed Flight MH17, Inside Russia, Controlled by Russian Troops" (<https://bellingcat.com/news/uk-and-europe/2014/09/08/images-show-the-buk-that-downed-flight-mh17-inside-russia-controlled-by-russian-troops/>). Bellingcat. Retrieved 9 September 2014.
11. "Ostukraine: BND macht Separatisten für MH17-Absturz verantwortlich" (<http://www.spiegel.de/politik/ausland/mh17-laut-bnd-waren-separatisten-fuer-absturz-verantwortlich-a-997885.html>) [Eastern Ukraine: BND says separatists are responsible for MH17 crash]. Der Spiegel (in German). 19 October 2014. Retrieved 19 October 2014.
12. "Germany says Ukraine rebels downed MH17 with seized missiles: report" (<http://www.japantimes.co.jp/news/2014/10/20/world/germany-says-ukraine-rebels-downed-mh17-seized-missiles-report/>). The Japan Times. Agence France-Presse. 20 October 2014. Retrieved 20 October 2014. "He also said Ukrainian photos had been "manipulated", the magazine reported but did not elaborate on what the pictures showed, who had provided them or altered them."
13. "Deadly Ukraine Crash: German Intelligence Claims Pro-Russian Separatists Downed MH17" (<http://www.spiegel.de/international/europe/german-intelligence-blames-pro-russian-separatists-for-mh17-downing-a-997972.html>). Der Spiegel. 19 October 2014. Retrieved 19 October 2014.
14. Bellingcat MH17 Investigation Team (8 November 2014). "MH17: Source of the Separatists' Buk" (<https://www.bellingcat.com/wp-content/uploads/2014/11/Origin-of-the-Separatists-Buk-A-Bellingcat-Investigation1.pdf>) (PDF). Bellingcat. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20141109132619/https://www.bellingcat.com/wp-content/uploads/2014/11/Origin-of-the-Separatists-Buk-A-Bellingcat-Investigation1.pdf>) (PDF) from the original on 9 November 2014. Retrieved 16 May 2015.
15. Gorchinskaya, Katya (9 November 2014). "Journalists find 'solid' Russian ties to missile that hit MH17" (<http://www.kyivpost.com/content/ukraine/journalists-find-solid-russian-ties-to-missile-that-hit-mh17-371161.html>). Kyiv Post. Retrieved 18 June 2015.
16. Tucker, Maxim (22 June 2015). "Meet Eliot Higgins, Putin's MH17 Nemesis" (<http://www.newsweek.com/meet-eliot-higgins-putins-mh17-nemesis-345485>). Newsweek. Retrieved 24 June 2015.

17. Ilya, Koval (5 January 2016). "Bellingcat: New evidence against Russian soldiers on MH17" (<http://www.dw.com/en/bellingcat-new-evidence-against-russian-soldiers-on-mh17/a-18959585>). Deutsche Welle. Retrieved 4 May 2016.
18. "The Lost Digit: Buk 3x2" (https://www.bellingcat.com/news/uk-and-europe/2016/05/03/the_lost_digit/). Bellingcat. 3 May 2016. Retrieved 4 May 2016.
19. "Ooggetuige MH17: 'Mijn doel is rechtvaardigheid' " (<http://www.rtlnieuws.nl/nieuws/binnenland/ooggetuige-mh17-mijn-doel-rechtvaardigheid>) [Eyewitness of MH17: "My goal is justice"]. RTL News (in Dutch). 22 December 2014. Retrieved 23 December 2014.
20. Kates, Glenn (24 December 2014). "New Competing Claims on Downing of MH17" (<http://www.rferl.org/content/new-competing-claims-on-downing-of-mh17/26760591.html>). Radio Free Europe/Radio Liberty.
21. Tucker, Maxim (10 January 2015). "New report says it proves Russian forces downed flight MH17" (<http://www.kyivpost.com/content/kyiv-post-plus/new-report-says-it-proves-russian-forces-downed-flight-mh17-377063.html>). Kyiv Post. Retrieved 9 February 2015.
22. Coalson, Robert (13 May 2015). "Evidence mounts that Russia supplied the missiles that shot down MH17 in Ukraine" (<http://www.businessinsider.com/evidence-mounts-that-russia-supplied-the-missiles-that-shot-down-mh17-in-ukraine-2015-5?IR=T>). Business Insider. Retrieved 13 June 2015.
23. Zverev, Anton; Tsvetkova, Maria; Zinets, Natalia; Escritt, Thomas; Hosenball, Mark (12 March 2015). Trevelyan, Mark (ed.). "Exclusive: From 'Red October' village, new evidence on downing of Malaysian plane over Ukraine" (<https://www.reuters.com/article/us-ukraine-crisis-airliner-idUSKBN0M81XF20150312>). Reuters. Retrieved 12 March 2015.
24. "Full transcript: Russian-backed rebels ransack the wreckage of MH17 in shocking 17-minute video" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20150717004444/http://www.news.com.au/national/full-transcript-russian-backed-rebels-ransack-the-wreckage-of-mh17-in-shocking-17-minute-video/story-e6frfkp9-1227444629703>). news.com.au. 17 July 2015. Archived from the original (<http://www.news.com.au/national/full-transcript-russian-backed-rebels-ransack-the-wreckage-of-mh17-in-shocking-17-minute-video/story-e6frfkp9-1227444629703>) on 17 July 2015. Retrieved 17 July 2015.
25. "Examining the Evidence of Russia's Involvement in a Malaysia Airlines Crash" (<https://www.stratfor.com/analysis/examining-evidence-russias-involvement-malaysia-airlines-crash>). Stratfor. 13 May 2016. Retrieved 16 May 2016.
26. "Preliminary report – Crash involving Malaysia Airlines Boeing 777-200 Flight MH17" (https://www.onderzoeksraad.nl/nl/media/inline/2019/1/10/prem_rapport_mh_17_en_interactief2.pdf) (PDF). Dutch Safety Board. 17 July 2014. Retrieved 24 September 2014.
27. "Preliminary report points towards external cause of MH17 crash" (<http://www.onderzoeksraad.nl/en/onderzoek/2049/investigation-crash-mh17-17-july-2014/preliminary-report/1562/preliminary-report-points-towards-external-cause-of-mh17-crash>). Dutch Safety Board. Retrieved 14 October 2014.
28. "Dutch board says Russian-made missile downed MH17" (<http://www.aljazeera.com/news/2015/10/dutch-board-russian-missile-downed-mh17-151013112210934.html>). Al Jazeera English. 13 October 2015. Retrieved 21 January 2021.
29. "Investigation crash MH17, 17 July 2014" (<https://www.webcitation.org/6ShD1V2ae?url=http://www.onderzoeksraad.nl/en/onderzoek/2049/investigation-crash-mh17-17-july-2014/onderzoek/1543/dutch-safety-board-heads-investigation-investigation-effort-in-full-swing-black-boxes-currently-being-read-out>). Dutch Safety Board. Archived from the original (<http://www.onderzoeksraad.nl/en/onderzoek/2049/investigation-crash-mh17-17-july-2014/onderzoek/1543/dutch-safety-board-heads-investigation-investigation-effort-in-full-swing-black-boxes-currently-being-read-out>) on 19 September 2014. Retrieved 24 July 2014.
30. Abeyratne, Ruwantissa (1 December 2014). "Flight MH 17 and State Responsibility for Ensuring Safety and Security of Air Transport" (<https://link.springer.com/article/10.1007/s12198-014-0148-0>). Journal of Transportation Security. 7 (4): 347–348. doi:10.1007/s12198-014-0148-0 (<https://doi.org/10.1007/s12198-014-0148-0>). ISSN 1938-7741 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/1938-7741>). S2CID 167781561 (<https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:167781561>).

31. "Dutch Safety Board: MH17 brought down by missile in airspace that should have been closed" (<http://news.aviation-safety.net/2015/10/13/dutch-safety-board-mh17-brought-down-by-missile-in-airspace-that-should-have-been-closed/>). ASN News. 13 October 2015. Retrieved 4 October 2019.
32. "MH17 report: Five key findings from the Dutch Safety Board" (<https://www.bbc.com/news/world-asia-34518473>). BBC News. 13 October 2015. Retrieved 13 October 2015.
33. Mu Xuequan, ed. (15 August 2014). "MH17 criminal investigation largest ever in the Netherlands" (https://web.archive.org/web/20140826002055/http://news.xinhuanet.com/english/world/2014-08/15/c_126873336.htm). Xinhua News Agency. Archived from the original (http://news.xinhuanet.com/english/world/2014-08/15/c_126873336.htm) on 26 August 2014. Retrieved 27 October 2014.
34. "MH17 crash: Investigation focuses on '25 metal shards'" (<https://www.bbc.com/news/world-europe-29180887>). BBC News. 12 September 2014. Retrieved 27 October 2014.
35. "MH17: Malaysia accepted as full member of probe team" (<http://www.thestar.com.my/News/Nation/2014/12/01/mh17-malaysia-to-be-part-of-investigating-team/>). The Star. Petaling Jaya, Malaysia. 1 December 2014. Retrieved 2 December 2014.
36. "Speculation on MH17 is damaging to investigations" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20141129091900/http://www.freemalaysiatoday.com/category/nation/2014/11/22/speculation-on-mh17-is-damaging-to-investigations/>). Free Malaysia Today. Bernama. 22 November 2014. Archived from the original (<http://www.freemalaysiatoday.com/category/nation/2014/11/22/speculation-on-mh17-is-damaging-to-investigations/>) on 29 November 2014. Retrieved 22 November 2014.
37. van Oosterom, Karel J.G. (16 December 2014). "Letter to President of the UNSC" (<http://www.tweedekamer.nl/downloads/document?id=adbae747-b7f0-4713-ad97-1a7e1b75dcd2&title=Brief%20van%200Permanent%20Representative%20of%20the%20Kingdom%20of%20the%20Netherlands.pdf>) (PDF). House of Representatives of the States General. Retrieved 21 December 2014.
38. Lewis, Jack (2014). Worst Plane Crashes In History. Masterlab. ISBN 978-8-37991-211-7.
39. "Flight MH17" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20150401002153/http://jitmh17.com/>). Joint Investigation Team (in Ukrainian, English, and Dutch). Archived from the original (<http://jitmh17.com/>) on 1 April 2015. Retrieved 30 March 2015.
40. Politie International Joint Investigation Team (30 March 2015). "MH17" (<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=olQNpTxSnTo>). YouTube (in Russian).
41. van der Graaf, Jolande (9 April 2015). "Tientallen bruikbare tips over MH17" (http://www.telegraaf.nl/binnenland/23903198/_Bruikbare_tips_over_daders_MH17_.html) [Dozens of useful tips about MH17]. De Telegraaf (in Dutch). Retrieved 17 June 2015.
42. Van Jaarsveldt, Janene (9 April 2015). "Hundreds respond to call for MH17 witnesses" (<http://www.nltimes.nl/2015/04/09/hundreds-respond-to-call-for-mh17-witnesses-tips/>). NL Times. Retrieved 17 June 2015.
43. Killalea, Debra (17 May 2016). "The image Russia doesn't want the world to see" (<http://www.news.com.au/travel/travel-updates/incidents/mh17-the-satellite-images-russia-doesnt-want-us-to-see/news-story/8c03f8e87971d36f70b5402ffbda16ff>). News.com.au. Retrieved 16 May 2016.
44. "Wat we niet mogen zien: 147 documenten MH17 blijven geheim" (<https://www.rtlnieuws.nl/node/1249421>) [What we must not see: 147 MH17 documents remain secret]. RTL Nieuws (in Dutch). 8 April 2015. Retrieved 30 July 2015.
45. "Presentation preliminary results criminal investigation MH17 28-09-2016" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20200123133623/https://www.om.nl/onderwerpen/mh17-crash/@96066/presentation/>). Openbaar Ministerie. Archived from the original (<https://www.om.nl/onderwerpen/mh17-crash/@96066/presentation/>) on 23 January 2020.
46. Kanygin, Pavel (16 October 2017). "The purpose is to bring MH17 matter to court" (<https://www.novayagazeta.ru/articles/2017/10/16/74192-the-purpose-is-to-bring-this-matter-to-court>). Novaya Gazeta. Rotterdam. Retrieved 16 October 2017.

47. "Update in criminal investigation MH17 disaster" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20180524222602/http://www.om.nl/onderwerpen/mh17-crash/@103196/update-criminal-0/>). Openbaar Ministerie. 24 May 2018. Archived from the original (<https://www.om.nl/onderwerpen/mh17-crash/@103196/update-criminal-0/>) on 24 May 2018. Retrieved 24 May 2018.
48. "Russia will analyse Dutch findings about downing of flight MH17" (<https://www.smh.com.au/world/europe/russia-will-analyse-dutch-findings-about-downing-of-flight-mh17-20180525-p4zhe1.html>). The Sydney Morning Herald. 25 May 2018. Retrieved 6 December 2020.
49. "Владимир Путин пообещал изучить выводы следствия о катастрофе Boeing MH17" (<https://www.kommersant.ru/doc/3638260>) [Vladimir Putin promised to study the findings of the investigation on the Boeing MH17 crash]. Kommersant (in Russian). 24 May 2018. Retrieved 24 May 2018.
50. "Netherlands, Australia holding Russia 'accountable' for downing of MH17" (<http://www.cbc.ca/news/world/netherlands-australia-flight17-statement-russia-1.4677473>). CBC News. The Associated Press. 25 May 2018. Retrieved 25 May 2018.
51. "MH17: Netherlands, Australia hold Russia responsible for downing plane" (<https://www.dw.com/en/mh17-netherlands-australia-hold-russia-responsible-for-downing-plane/a-43927520>). Deutsche Welle. 25 May 2018. Retrieved 6 December 2020.
52. "Internationale reacties op MH17: Rusland moet verantwoordelijkheid nemen" (<https://nos.nl/artikel/2233506-internationale-reacties-op-mh17-rusland-moet-verantwoordelijkheid-nemen.html>). NOS (in Dutch). 25 May 2018. Retrieved 29 May 2018.
53. "Foreign Secretary statement on the MH17 investigation" (<https://www.gov.uk/government/news/foreign-secretary-statement-on-the-mh17-investigation>). Foreign & Commonwealth Office. 25 May 2018. Retrieved 29 May 2018.
54. "Declaration by the High Representative on behalf of the EU on the findings of the Joint Investigation Team on the downing of flight MH17" (<http://www.consilium.europa.eu/en/press/press-releases/2018/05/25/declaration-by-the-high-representative-on-behalf-of-the-eu-on-the-findings-of-the-joint-investigation-team-on-the-downing-of-flight-mh17/>). European Council. 25 May 2018. Retrieved 29 May 2018.
55. "Die Schuldigen ermitteln" (<https://www.bundesregierung.de/Content/DE/Artikel/2018/05/2018-05-25-ukraine-mh17-gutachten.html>) [Find the culprits]. Bundesregierung (in German). 25 May 2018. Retrieved 29 May 2018.
56. "Calling Russia To Account for Malaysia Airlines Flight MH-17" (<https://www.state.gov/r/pa/prs/ps/2018/05/282502.htm>). United States Department of State. 25 May 2018. Retrieved 29 May 2018.
57. "Statement by the NATO Secretary General on MH17 investigation" (https://www.nato.int/cps/en/nato/hq/news_154585.htm). NATO. 25 May 2018. Retrieved 29 May 2018.
58. "St Petersburg International Economic Forum plenary session" (<http://en.kremlin.ru/events/president/news/57556>). Kremlin. 25 May 2018. Retrieved 29 May 2018.
59. Sipalan, Joseph (20 June 2019). "Malaysian PM says Russia being made a scapegoat for downing of flight MH17" (<https://www.reuters.com/article/us-ukraine-crisis-mh17-malaysia/malaysian-pm-says-russia-being-made-a-scapegoat-for-downing-of-flight-mh17-idUSKCN1TL0OW>). Reuters. Retrieved 5 July 2019.
60. Deutsch, Anthony (23 June 2015). Liffey, Kevin; Chopra, Toby (eds.). "Exclusive: International tribunal looks like best chance for MH17 justice – Dutch sources" (<https://www.reuters.com/article/us-ukraine-crisis-mh17/exclusive-international-tribunal-looks-like-best-chance-for-mh17-justice-dutch-sources-idUSKBN0P326E20150624>). Reuters. Retrieved 25 June 2015.
61. "Russia rejects calls for UN tribunal to prosecute MH17 suspects" (<https://www.theguardian.com/world/2015/jun/26/russia-rejects-calls-for-un-tribunal-malaysia-airlines-flight-mh17>). The Guardian. Agence France-Presse. 26 June 2015. Retrieved 28 June 2015.

62. Lederer, Edith M. (20 July 2015). "Russia's UN Draft on MH17 Crash Doesn't Call for Tribunal" (<http://web.archive.org/web/20150722201823/http://abcnews.go.com/US/wireStory/russias-draft-mh17-crash-call-tribunal-32575088>). ABC News. Associated Press. Archived from the original (<http://abcnews.go.com/US/wireStory/russias-draft-mh17-crash-call-tribunal-32575088>) on 22 July 2015.
63. "Statement by the minister of Foreign Affairs on MH17, 5 July 2017" (<https://www.government.nl/latest/news/2017/07/05/statement-by-the-minister-of-foreign-affairs-on-mh17-5-july-2017>). Government of the Kingdom of the Netherlands. Ministry of Foreign Affairs. 7 July 2017.
64. "Minister of Security and Justice signs MH17 treaty with Ukraine" (<https://www.government.nl/topics/mh17-incident/news/2017/07/07/minister-of-security-and-justice-signs-mh17-treaty-with-ukraine>). Government of the Kingdom of the Netherlands. Ministry of Security and Justice. 7 July 2017.
65. "Verdrag tussen het Koninkrijk der Nederlanden en Oekraïne inzake internationale juridische samenwerking met betrekking tot misdrijven die verband houden met het neerhalen van vlucht MH17 van Malaysia Airlines op 17 juli 2014" (<https://zoek.officielebekendmakingen.nl/trb-2018-162.HTML>) [Convention between the Kingdom of the Netherlands and Ukraine on international legal cooperation with regard to crimes related to the downing of Malaysia Airlines flight MH17 on 17 July 2014]. Tractatenblad van het Koninkrijk der Nederlanden (in Dutch). 7 September 2018.
66. "Legislation Clears Way for MH17 Trials in the Netherlands" (<https://www.bloomberg.com/news/articles/2018-03-21/legislation-clears-way-for-mh17-trials-in-the-netherlands>). Bloomberg.com. Associated Press. 21 March 2018. Retrieved 22 March 2018.
67. "Dutch court may be allowed to prosecute those involved in MH17 crash by video link" (<https://www.unian.info/world/10052111-dutch-court-may-be-allowed-to-prosecute-those-involved-in-mh17-crash-by-video-link.html>). UNIAN. Retrieved 13 April 2018.
68. "Four charged with shooting down MH17 plane" (<https://www.bbc.co.uk/news/world-europe-48691488>). BBC News Online. 19 June 2019. Retrieved 19 June 2019.
69. "Netherlands Public Prosecution Service brings charges against four suspects in MH17 case" (<http://www.ukrinform.net/rubric-politics/2868589-netherlands-public-prosecution-service-brings-charges-against-four-suspects-in-mh17-case.html>). Ukrinform. 3 February 2020. Retrieved 4 February 2020.
70. "One of suspects in MH17 case wants to join legal proceedings" (<https://www.ukrinform.net/rubric-politics/2863987-one-of-suspects-in-mh17-case-wants-to-join-legal-proceedings.html>). Ukrinform. 4 February 2020. Retrieved 4 February 2020.
71. "MH17 trial starts with four accused facing murder charges" (<https://www.aljazeera.com/news/2020/03/mh17-trial-start-accused-facing-murder-charges-200309000652546.html>). Al Jazeera. 9 March 2020. Retrieved 9 March 2020.
72. Phillips, Graham (19 June 2019). "MH17: Igor Girkin / Strelkov Response to MH17 Accusations" (<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=5dArwTCTWfY>). YouTube.
73. "The Arrest of Vladimir Tsemakh and Its Implications for the MH17 Investigation" (<https://www.bellingcat.com/news/uk-and-europe/2019/07/09/the-arrest-of-vladimir-tsemakh-and-its-implications-for-the-mh17-investigation/>). Bellingcat. 9 July 2019. Retrieved 31 August 2019.
74. "Кремль признал "своим" водителя "Бука" Владимира Цемаха и требует обменять его на Сенцова" (<https://theins.ru/politika/173069>) [The Kremlin recognized the "Buk" driver Vladimir Tsemakh and demands to exchange him for Sentsov]. The Insider (in Russian). 30 August 2019. Retrieved 31 August 2019.
75. Gershkovich, Evan (7 September 2019). "Signaling Readiness for Thaw, Russia and Ukraine Swap Prisoners: The exchange brings peace talks between the neighboring countries closer, analysts say" (<https://www.themoscowtimes.com/2019/09/07/signaling-readiness-for-thaw-russia-and-ukraine-swap-prisoners-a67090>). The Moscow Times. Retrieved 7 September 2019.
76. Lapin, Denis; Pavlova, Olga; Britton, Bianca; Dean, Sarah (7 September 2019). "Film director Oleg Sentsov and MH17 suspect among those freed in Russia-Ukraine prisoner swap" (<https://www.cnn.com/2019/09/07/europe/ukraine-russia-prisoner-swap-intl/index.html>). CNN. Retrieved 7 September 2019.

77. Olearchyk, Roman; Foy, Henry (5 September 2019). "Ukraine court releases man of interest to MH17 probe on bail: Move raises speculation he could be part of imminent prisoner swap between Kiev and Moscow" (<https://www.ft.com/content/1cf7478e-cfbf-11e9-99a4-b5ded7a7fe3f>). Financial Times. Retrieved 13 September 2019.
78. "Nederland vraagt Rusland om MH17-verdachte: Het Openbaar Ministerie heeft Rusland gevraagd MH17-verdachte Vladimir Tsemach uit te leveren. Dat liet het OM de nabestaanden van de vliegramp vanmiddag weten. Nederland betreurt zeer dat Oekraïne de Oekraïense separatist überhaupt aan Rusland heeft overgedragen" (<https://www.ad.nl/buitenland/nederland-vraagt-rusland-om-mh17-verdachte~a953df4d/>) [The Netherlands asks Russia for MH17 suspect: The Public Prosecution Service has asked Russia to extradite MH17 suspect Vladimir Tsemach. The OM informed the relatives of the plane crash this afternoon. The Netherlands deeply regrets that Ukraine has handed over the Ukrainian separatist to Russia at all]. AD.nl (in Dutch). 7 September 2019. Retrieved 13 September 2019.
79. "Dutch did question MH17 witness before he was returned to Russia: minister" (<https://www.dutchnews.nl/news/2019/09/dutch-did-question-mh17-witness-before-he-was-returned-to-russia-minister/>). DutchNews.nl. 8 September 2019. Retrieved 9 September 2019.
80. "MH17 Witness Appeal November 2019" (<https://www.politie.nl/themas/flight-mh17/witness-appeal-crash-mh17.html>). politie.nl. Retrieved 14 November 2019.
81. "MH17 disaster: Phone-taps 'show Russia directed Ukraine rebels'" (<https://www.bbc.com/news/world-europe-50419669>). BBC News. 14 November 2019. Retrieved 15 November 2019.
82. "The MH17 Trial Part 1: New Material From The Four Defendants" (<https://www.bellingcat.com/news/uk-and-europe/2020/04/20/the-mh17-trial-part-1-new-materials-from-the-four-defendants/>). Bellingcat. 20 April 2020. Retrieved 21 April 2020.
83. Magnay, Jacquelin (10 March 2020). "Russians hacked our MH17 evidence, Dutch court hears" (<https://www.theaustralian.com.au/world/russians-hacked-our-mh17-evidence-dutch-court-hears/news-story/d61101fd4f37f261ba63dedf07627c3d>). The Australian.
84. "Judges in MH17 Trial Allowed to Consider Anonymous Testimony" (<https://abcnews.go.com/amp/International/wireStory/judges-mh17-trial-allowed-anonymous-testimony-70308879>). ABC News. The Associated Press. 23 April 2020.
85. "MH17 disaster: Dutch take Russia to European rights court" (<https://www.bbc.com/news/world-europe-53367425>). BBC News. 10 July 2020. Retrieved 10 July 2020.
86. "The Netherlands brings MH17 case against Russia before European Court of Human Rights" (<https://www.government.nl/ministries/ministry-of-foreign-affairs/news/2020/07/10/the-netherlands-brings-mh17-case-against-russia-before-european-court-of-human-rights>). Government of the Kingdom of the Netherlands. Ministry of Foreign Affairs. 10 July 2020. Retrieved 10 July 2020.
87. Van Den Berg, Stephanie (7 June 2021). "Bitter week for families as evidence to be read in MH17 airliner trial" (<https://www.reuters.com/business/aerospace-defense/mh17-plane-crash-families-prep-re-critical-trial-phase-2021-06-04/>). Reuters. Retrieved 10 June 2021.
88. Corder, Mike (7 June 2021). "MH17 trial moves to crucial merits phase, examining evidence" (<https://abcnews.go.com/International/wireStory/mh17-trial-moves-crucial-merits-phase-examining-evidence-78125868>). ABC News. Associated Press. Retrieved 10 June 2021.
89. Toler, Aric (20 December 2017). "British Intelligence Report Confirms Russian Military Origin of MH17 Murder Weapon" (<https://www.bellingcat.com/news/uk-and-europe/2017/12/20/british-intelligence-report-confirms-russian-military-origin-mh17-murder-weapon/>). Bellingcat. Retrieved 21 December 2017.

90. "ISCP Annual Report 2016-2017" (https://assets.publishing.service.gov.uk/government/uploads/system/uploads/attachment_data/file/727949/ISC-Annual-Report-2016-17.pdf) (PDF). Intelligence and Security Committee of Parliament. 20 December 2017. Archived (https://web.archive.org/web/20181017174035/https://assets.publishing.service.gov.uk/government/uploads/system/uploads/attachment_data/file/727949/ISC-Annual-Report-2016-17.pdf) (PDF) from the original on 17 October 2018. Alt URL (https://b1cba9b3-a-5e6631fd-s-sites.googlegroups.com/a/independent.gov.uk/isc/files/2016-2017_ISC_AR.pdf?attachauth=ANoY7cqS8WVJqzXucCjkPcD1PkT4M4RJspBV9tHBYEJAZLobTFw2rG67hpLh55zoZsZ9_9Xrmtqiq4CzbwmhAUpzCTh3AW-IBjOdmWFYJds1-EYzBgJGRmPWubVpg_Yl0SrMUrYTcKGn-8HtPvf5AARiu60msxtT2SpjJfdv78EEeqkINZBUythVem1KHfKbbziZLQNdiOymaCin v1pUa1FlpSVaHOkjNwmyfFteiMvnTRX00Qz_0%3D&attredirects=0)
91. "Russian Colonel General Identified as Key MH17 Figure" (<https://www.bellingcat.com/news/uk-and-europe/2017/12/08/russian-colonel-general-delfin/>). Bellingcat. 8 December 2017. Retrieved 8 December 2017.
92. Hall, Kevin G. (8 December 2017). "Russian general ID'd in activity around shutdown of Malaysian passenger jet" (<https://www.mcclatchydc.com/news/nation-world/world/article188720184.html>). McClatchyDC. Retrieved 30 December 2018.
93. "Key MH17 Figure Identified As Senior FSB Official: Colonel General Andrey Burlaka" (<https://www.bellingcat.com/news/2020/04/28/burlaka/>). Bellingcat. 28 April 2020. Retrieved 28 April 2020.
94. "Investigative journalists link senior FSB official to MH17 case" (<https://meduza.io/en/feature/2020/04/28/investigative-journalists-link-senior-fsb-official-to-mh17-case>). Meduza. 28 April 2020. Retrieved 4 December 2020.
95. Millward, David (16 July 2015). "MH-17 Russian separatist leader sued for 900 million by crash victims" (<https://www.telegraph.co.uk/news/worldnews/europe/ukraine/11742865/MH-17-Russian-separatist-leader-sued-for-900-million-by-crash-victims.html>). The Daily Telegraph.
96. "MH17 crash: Victims' families sue Putin and Russia" (<https://www.bbc.co.uk/news/world-europe-36350520>). BBC News. 21 May 2016. Retrieved 22 May 2016.
97. Blakkarly, Jarni (22 May 2016). "Australian firm names Russia, Putin in MH17 compensation claim - report" (<http://in.reuters.com/article/australia-mh-idINL3N18J00O>). Reuters. Retrieved 22 May 2016.
98. "Nabestaanden MH17 naar Europees Hof voor schadeclaim tegen Rusland" (<https://nos.nl/artikel/2233480-nabestaanden-mh17-naar-europees-hof-voor-schadeclaim-tegen-rusland.html>). NOS (in Dutch). 25 May 2018. Retrieved 30 May 2018.
99. Yap Tzu Ging (15 July 2016). "MH17 kin sue Malaysia Airlines, seek damages ahead of lawsuit deadline" (<http://www.themalaymailonline.com/malaysia/article/mh17-kin-sue-malaysia-airlines-seek-damages-ahead-of-lawsuit-deadline>). Malay Mail Online.
00. "Malaysia Airlines sued by relatives of MH17 crew shot down over Ukraine" (<http://www.cbc.ca/news/world/missing-malaysia-plane-crew-lawsuit-1.3612177>). CBC.ca. Associated Press. 2 June 2016.
01. "Ukrainian president says was terrorist act not accident" (<https://www.bbc.com/news/av/world-europe-28353791>). BBC News. 17 July 2014. Retrieved 6 December 2020.
02. "Malaysia to Work with Russia, Ukrainian Governments on MH17" (<http://english.cri.cn/12394/2014/07/18/2941s836537.htm>). China Radio International. Retrieved 17 July 2014.
03. "Malaysian PM Demands Swift Justice if Plane Was Shot Down" (<https://www.voanews.com/east-asia/malaysian-pm-demands-swift-justice-if-plane-was-shot-down>). Voice of America. 17 July 2014. Retrieved 30 August 2019.
04. Yong Yen Nie (18 July 2014). "Asia Report - Malaysia Airlines MH17 crash: Flags to fly at half-mast over next three days, says Najib" (<http://www.stasiareport.com/news/asia/south-east-asia/story/malaysia-airlines-mh17-crash-flags-fly-half-mast-over-next-three-day>). The Straits Times. Retrieved 19 July 2014.
05. "Verklaring premier Rutte over crash MH17" (<https://www.telegraaf.nl/nieuws/937463/verklaring-premier-rutte-over-crash-mh17>). De Telegraaf (in Dutch). 17 July 2014. Retrieved 17 July 2014.

06. "Statement of His Majesty King Willem-Alexander on Malaysian Flight MH17" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20140718002846/http://dc.the-netherlands.org/news/2014/07/statement-king-willem-alexander.html>). The Netherlands Embassy in Washington, D.C., United States. 17 July 2014. Archived from the original (<http://dc.the-netherlands.org/news/2014/07/statement-king-willem-alexander.html>) on 18 July 2014. Retrieved 17 July 2014.
07. "Timmermans mee met onderzoekers naar Oekraïne" (<http://www.volkskrant.nl/vk/nl/2668/Buitenland/article/detail/3691806/2014/07/18/Timmermans-mee-met-onderzoekers-naar-Oekraïne.dhtml>). de Volkskrant (in Dutch). ANP. 18 July 2014. Retrieved 18 July 2014.
08. Novum (17 July 2014). "Vlaggen overheidsgebouwen halfstok na vliegcramp" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20140726214011/http://www.nieuws.nl/algemeen/20140717/Vlaggen-overheidsgebouwen-halfstok-na-vliegcramp>). Nieuws.nl (in Dutch). Archived from the original (<http://nieuws.nl/algemeen/20140717/vlaggen-overheidsgebouwen-halfstok-na-vliegcramp/>) on 26 July 2014. Retrieved 17 July 2014.
09. Novum (18 July 2014). "Vierdaagse Nijmegen: muziek geschrapt wegens vliegcramp" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20150402114956/http://nieuws.nl/algemeen/20140718/vierdaagse-nijmegen-muziek-geschrapt-wegens-vliegcramp/>). nieuws.nl (in Dutch). Archived from the original (<http://nieuws.nl/algemeen/20140718/vierdaagse-nijmegen-muziek-geschrapt-wegens-vliegcramp/>) on 2 April 2015. Retrieved 18 July 2014.
10. Escritt, Thomas; MacSwan, Angus (21 July 2014). "Netherlands opens war crimes investigation into airliner downing" (<https://news.yahoo.com/netherlands-opens-investigation-airliner-shoot-down-131650202.html>). Yahoo! News.
11. Willems, Marije (22 July 2014). "Terugluisteren en -lezen: de indrukwekkende speech van Timmermans" (<https://www.nrc.nl/nieuws/2014/07/22/terugluisteren-en-lezen-de-bewogen-speech-van-timmermans-a1423587>). NRC.
12. Jeronimus, Bertus F.; et al. (2018). "Acute stress responses after indirect exposure to the MH17 airplane crash" (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC6900050>). British Journal of Psychology. 110 (4): 790–813. doi:10.1111/bjop.12358 (<https://doi.org/10.1111%2Fbjop.12358>). PMC 6900050 (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC6900050>). PMID 30450537 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/30450537>).
13. Maiden, Samantha (19 July 2014). "MH17: Russia says Tony Abbott 'operating only on speculation' in his tough stance over separatist involvement in plane tragedy" (<http://www.dailytelegraph.com.au/news/nsw/mh17-russia-says-tony-abbott-operating-only-on-speculation-in-his-tough-stance-over-separatist-involvement-in-plane-tragedy/story-fni0cx12-1226994356506>). The Daily Telegraph. Australia. Retrieved 19 July 2014.
14. "Malaysia Airlines MH17: Russia says Tony Abbott's comments blaming separatists are 'unacceptable', Julie Bishop criticises Moscow for lack of talks" (<http://www.abc.net.au/news/2014-07-19/russia-says-abbott-comments-mh17-downing-unacceptable/5608852?pfm=ms>). ABC News (Australia). 19 July 2014. Retrieved 19 July 2014.
15. "MH17: Prime Minister Tony Abbott hits out at 'shambolic' recovery effort; Government considers listing outrage as terrorist act; rebels move bodies to refrigerated train" (<http://www.abc.net.au/news/2014-07-21/government-considers-declaring-mh17-disaster-a-terrorist-act/5610908?pfm=ms>). ABC News (Australia). 21 July 2014. Retrieved 21 July 2014.
16. Lane, Sabra (13 October 2014). "Tony Abbott promises to 'shirtfront' Putin at G20 Summit" (<http://www.abc.net.au/7.30/content/2014/s4106143.htm>). The 7.30 Report. Australian Broadcasting Corporation. Retrieved 14 October 2014.
17. Путин: за авиакатастрофу несеет ответственность Украина (<http://ria.ru/society/20140718/1016472533.html>) [Putin: Ukraine responsible for the crash] (in Russian). RIA Novosti. 18 July 2014. Retrieved 18 July 2014. ""Безусловно, государство, над территорией которого это произошло, несет ответственность за эту страшную трагедию", – сказал глава РФ"
18. "Joe Biden: Malaysia Airlines flight 'apparently' shot down" (<https://www.msnbc.com/msnbc/biden-malaysia-airlines-crash>). MSNBC. 17 July 2014. Retrieved 17 July 2014.

19. Mülherr, Silke; Pylypchuk, Inga (26 July 2014). "Putin realisiert, dass er die Falschen bewaffnete" (<https://www.welt.de/politik/ausland/article130579514/Putin-realisiert-dass-er-die-Falschen-bewaffnete.html>) [Putin realized that he armed the wrong people]. Die Welt (in German). Retrieved 1 August 2014.
20. "Russian Hybrid Warfare" (https://web.archive.org/web/20170824221700/http://pure.diis.dk/ws/files/950041/DIIS_RP_2017_6_web.pdf) (PDF). Danish Institute for International Studies. Archived from the original (http://pure.diis.dk/ws/files/950041/DIIS_RP_2017_6_web.pdf) (PDF) on 24 August 2017.
21. Mason, Jeff; Holland, Steve; Zengerle, Patricia (18 July 2014). Tait, Paul (ed.). "White House urges Ukraine ceasefire for plane probe, Obama talks to Putin" (<https://www.reuters.com/article/us-ukraine-crisis-obama/white-house-urges-ukraine-ceasefire-for-plane-probe-obama-talks-to-putin-idUSKBN0FN0D420140718>). Reuters. Retrieved 18 July 2014.
22. Shear, Michael D.; Sengupta, Somini; Tavernise, Sabrina (18 July 2014). "Obama Points to Pro-Russia Separatists in Downing of Malaysia Airlines Plane" (<https://www.nytimes.com/2014/07/19/world/europe/malaysia-airlines-plane-ukraine.html>). The New York Times. Retrieved 18 July 2014.
23. Leonard, Peter. "Ukraine: 295 on Malaysia plane shot down over east" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20140717190514/http://bigstory.ap.org/article/official-malaysian-plane-shot-down-over-ukraine>). Associated Press. Archived from the original (<http://bigstory.ap.org/article/official-malaysian-plane-shot-down-over-ukraine>) on 17 July 2014. Retrieved 17 July 2014.
24. "MH17 plane crash: David Cameron urges those responsible for downing jet to be 'held to account'" (<https://www.telegraph.co.uk/news/worldnews/europe/ukraine/10975874/MH17-plane-crash-David-Cameron-urges-those-responsible-for-downing-jet-to-be-held-to-account.html>). The Daily Telegraph. 18 July 2014. Retrieved 18 July 2014.
25. Herszenhorn, David M. (25 July 2014). "Russia Steps Up Help for Rebels in Ukraine War" (<https://www.nytimes.com/2014/07/26/world/europe/russian-artillery-fires-into-ukraine-kiev-says.html>). The New York Times.
26. "Joint statement by the President of the European Commission, José Manuel Barroso, and the President of the European Council, Herman Van Rompuy, on the crash of the Malaysian airliner in Ukraine" (http://europa.eu/rapid/press-release_STATEMENT-14-231_en.htm?locale=en). Europa. 17 July 2014. Retrieved 19 July 2014.
27. "Malaysian plane MH17 crash investigators face struggle" (<http://indiatoday.intoday.in/story/malaysian-plane-mh17-crash-investigators-face-struggle/1/373127.html>). India Today. 18 July 2014. Retrieved 19 July 2014.
28. "Ukraine Requests ICAO Assistance in MH17 Accident Investigation" (<http://www.icao.int/Newsroom/Pages/Ukraine-requests-ICAO-assistance-in-MH17-accident-investigation.aspx>). ICAO. 18 July 2014. Retrieved 20 July 2014.
29. "ICAO Clarifies State Responsibilities Arising from Conflict Zones" (<http://www.icao.int/Newsroom/Pages/ICAO-clarifies-State-responsibilities-arising-from-conflict-zones.aspx>). ICAO. 24 July 2014. Retrieved 10 October 2014.
30. "Australia mourns MH17 victims at memorial service" (<http://www.itv.com/news/update/2014-07-20/memorial-service-held-for-mh17-victims-in-australia/>). ITV News. 20 July 2014. Retrieved 21 July 2014.
31. "Woensdag 23 juli dag van nationale rouw" (<http://www.nu.nl/binnenland/3834822/woensdag-23-juli-dag-van-nationale-rouw.html>). Nu.nl. 22 July 2014. Retrieved 22 July 2014.
32. "Malaysian Airlines Flight MH17: Netherlands Declares National Day of Mourning For MH17 Victims" (<http://www.ibtimes.co.uk/netherlands-declares-national-day-mourning-mh17-victims-1457454>). International Business Times. 20 July 2014. Retrieved 21 July 2014.
33. Jahshan, Elias (20 July 2014). "AIDS 2014 opening ceremony tinged with sombre mood" (<http://www.starobserver.com.au/news/local-news/aids-2014-opening-ceremony-tinged-with-sombre-mood/125442>). Star Observer. Retrieved 21 July 2014.
34. Leyl, Sharanjit (21 July 2014). "MH17 crash: Malaysians mourn at makeshift memorials" (<https://www.bbc.co.uk/news/world-asia-28397889>). BBC News. Retrieved 21 July 2014.

35. "Onthulling Nationaal Monument MH17: 'Deze dag sloeg een gat in ons leven'" (<https://nos.nl/artikel/2183659-onthulling-nationaal-monument-mh17-deze-dag-sloeg-een-gat-in-ons-leven.html>). NOS (in Dutch). 17 July 2017. Retrieved 17 July 2019.
36. "Dutch town hard hit by MH17 disaster remembers victims with sunflowers" (<https://www.theguardian.com/world/2015/jul/17/mh17-dutch-victims-hilversum-sunflowers>). The Guardian. 17 July 2015. Retrieved 30 May 2021.
37. "Planting hope" (<https://www.smh.com.au/interactive/2015/planting-hope/>). The Sydney Morning Herald. 2015. Retrieved 30 May 2021.
38. "Катастрофа "Боинга" под Донецком" (<http://www.levada.ru/30-07-2014/katastrofa-boinga-pod-donetskom>) [Boeing crash near Donetsk]. Levada.ru (in Russian). 30 July 2014. Retrieved 10 August 2014.
39. Luhn, Alec (30 July 2014). "MH17: vast majority of Russians believe Ukraine downed plane, poll finds" (<https://www.theguardian.com/world/2014/jul/30/mh17-vast-majority-russians-believe-ukraine-downed-plane-poll>). The Guardian. Retrieved 2 August 2014.
40. "More Than 80% of Russians Blame Ukrainian Army for MH17 Crash" (<https://www.themoscowtimes.com/2014/07/30/more-than-80-of-russians-blame-ukrainian-army-for-mh17-crash-a37844>). The Moscow Times. 30 July 2014. Retrieved 8 September 2014.
41. Toal, Gerard; O'Loughlin, John (September 2017). " 'Why Did MH17 Crash?': Blame Attribution, Television News and Public Opinion in Southeastern Ukraine, Crimea and the De Facto States of Abkhazia, South Ossetia and Transnistria". Geopolitics. 23 (4): 882–916. doi:10.1080/14650045.2017.1364238 (<https://doi.org/10.1080%2F14650045.2017.1364238>). S2CID 149126936 (<https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:149126936>).
42. Sear, Tom (2018). "#MH17: Initial observations of Russian influence operations relating to Australia" (<https://research.unsw.edu.au/people/mr-tom-sear/publications?type=reports>). Joint Standing Committee on Electoral Matters, Australian Parliament. Retrieved 27 December 2020.
43. Knight, Amy (31 May 2019). "Russia Deployed Its Trolls to Cover Up the Murder of 298 People on MH17" (<https://www.thedailybeast.com/mh17-russia-deployed-its-trolls-to-cover-up-the-murder-of-298-people>). The Daily Beast.
44. Sear, Tom (2018). "#MH17: Initial observations of Russian influence operations relating to Australia" (<https://www.researchgate.net/publication/333917200>). Researchgate.net. doi:10.13140/RG.2.2.36564.86404 (<https://doi.org/10.13140%2FRG.2.2.36564.86404>). Retrieved 27 December 2020.
45. Groll, Elias (25 July 2014). "Russian Paper Issues Front Page Apology to Netherlands for MH17" (https://web.archive.org/web/20140726135949/http://blog.foreignpolicy.com/posts/2014/07/25/russian_paper_issues_front_page_apology_to_netherlands_for_mh17). Foreign Policy. Archived from the original (http://blog.foreignpolicy.com/posts/2014/07/25/russian_paper_issues_front_page_apology_to_netherlands_for_mh17) on 26 July 2014. Retrieved 25 July 2014.
46. "Russian newspaper Novaya Gazeta prints front-page apology for MH17 disaster in Dutch" (<http://www.news.com.au/world/russian-newspaper-novaya-gazeta-prints-frontpage-apology-for-mh17-disaster-in-dutch/story-fndir2ev-1227001958997>). News.com.au. 25 July 2014. Retrieved 25 July 2014.
47. Plunkett, John (18 July 2014). "Russia Today reporter resigns in protest at MH17 coverage" (<https://www.theguardian.com/media/2014/jul/18/mh17-russia-today-reporter-resigns-sara-firth-kremlin-malaysia>). The Guardian. Retrieved 18 July 2014.
48. "MH17 fallout: Russian reporter Sara Firth quits over Ukraine 'lies' " (<http://www.news.com.au/travel/travel-updates/mh17-fallout-russian-reporter-sara-firth-quits-over-ukraine-lies/story-fnizu68q-1226994372531>). News.com.au. 19 July 2014. Retrieved 21 July 2014.
49. Schreck, Carl (15 July 2019). "'Birdie' Down: The First, Damning Hours After MH17 Was Shot Out Of The Sky" (<https://www.rferl.org/a/when-russia-backed-forces-boasted-they-shot-down-a-ukrainian-military-plane-that-was-actually-mh17/30056279.html>). Radio Free Europe/Radio Liberty. Retrieved 6 December 2020.

50. Ополченцы сообщили о сбитом Ан-26 на востоке Украины (<http://lifenews.ru/news/136801>). LifeNews (in Russian). 17 July 2014. Retrieved 17 July 2014. "On July 17 near the village of Rassypnoye over the Torez city in Donetsk region an An-26 transport plane of Ukrainian Air Force was taken down, said the militia. According to them, the plane crashed somewhere near the "Progress" mine, away from residential areas. According to one of the militias, at about 17:30 local time an An-26 flew over the city. It was hit by a rocket, there was an explosion and the plane went to the ground, leaving a black smoke. Debris fell from the sky"
51. "Ukrainian jet was flying close to MH17, says Russian officer" (<http://www.independent.co.uk/news/world/europe/malaysia-airlines-mh17-crash-ukrainian-military-jet-was-flying-close-to-passenger-plane-before-it-9619143.html>). The Independent. 21 July 2014. Retrieved 29 April 2020.
52. Young, Matt (5 June 2015). "Russia reveals 'key witness' in MH17 crash" (<https://www.news.com.au/travel/travel-updates/incidents/russia-reveals-key-witness-in-mh17-crash/news-story/8a0b018518d9ea9e014e2f467e098c50>). News.com.au. Retrieved 28 April 2020.
53. Miller, Nick; Powell, Rose; Bourke, Latika (15 November 2014). "MH17 photo of fighter jet released in Russia slammed" (<https://www.smh.com.au/world/mh17-photo-of-fighter-jet-released-in-russia-slammed-20141116-11nl7w.html>). The Sydney Morning Herald.
54. Miller, Nick (15 November 2014). "'Sensational' Russian photo of MH17 being shot debunked by citizen journalist group" (<http://www.theage.com.au/world/sensational-russian-photo-of-mh17-being-shot-debunked-by-citizen-journalist-group-20141115-11nbqs.html>). The Age. Retrieved 15 November 2014.
55. Seddon, Max (15 November 2014). "Russian TV Airs Clearly Fake Image To Claim Ukraine Shot Down MH17" (<https://www.buzzfeed.com/maxseddon/russian-tv-air-clearly-fake-image-to-claim-ukraine-shot-dow>). BuzzFeed. Retrieved 15 October 2014.
56. Yaffa, Joshua (9 December 2019). "The Kremlin's Creative Director" (<https://www.newyorker.com/magazine/2019/12/16/the-kremlins-creative-director>). The New Yorker. Retrieved 11 December 2019.
57. "Глава ДНР о крушении МН17: "Я видел, как это происходило" " (<http://ria.ru/mh17/20141225/1040130183.html>) [Head of the DPR about the crash of MH17: "I saw how it happened"]. RIA News (in Russian). 25 December 2014. Retrieved 26 December 2014.
58. "Kremlin-backed insurgent leader claims personally witnessing Ukrainian aircraft shooting down MH17" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20141226215051/http://uatoday.tv/news/kremlin-backed-insurgent-leader-claims-personally-witnessing-ukrainian-aircraft-shooting-down-mh17-399664.html>). Ukraine Today. 25 December 2014. Archived from the original (<http://uatoday.tv/news/kremlin-backed-insurgent-leader-claims-personally-witnessing-ukrainian-aircraft-shooting-down-mh17-399664.html>) on 26 December 2014.
59. "'Новая газета': новый отчет о причинах крушения МН17" (https://www.bbc.com/russian/rolling-news/2015/05/150505_rn_novaya_gazeta_mh17_document) [Novaya Gazeta: new report on the causes of the crash of MH17]. BBC Russian Service (in Russian). 5 May 2015. Retrieved 5 December 2020.
60. "Это был "Бук-М1" " (<https://novayagazeta.ru/articles/2015/05/05/64063-eto-by-171-buk-m1-187>) [It was "Buk-M1"]. Novaya Gazeta (in Russian). 5 May 2015. Retrieved 5 May 2015.
61. Miller, Nick (2 June 2015). "MH17 plane was shot down by a Buk missile, Russian weapons manufacturer says" (<http://www.theage.com.au/world/mh17-plane-was-shot-down-by-a-buk-missile-russian-weapons-manufacturer-says-20150602-ghfdco.html>). The Age.
62. "СБУ: Новые "доказательства" крушения Boeing на Донбассе основаны на фейковых снимках" (<http://www.stopfake.org/sbu-novye-dokazatelstva-krusheniya-boeing-na-donbasse-osnovany-na-fejkovyh-snimkah/>) [SBU: New "evidence" of the Boeing crash in Donbas are based on fake images]. StopFake. 6 May 2015. Retrieved 6 May 2015.

63. Lukashevich, Vadim (6 May 2015). "Я не увидел в этом докладе экспертов ВПК". Авиационный эксперт Лукашевич о том, кто и зачем готовил документ, раздобытый "Новой газетой" (http://m.tvrain.ru/teleshov/here_and_now/ja_ne_uvidel_v_etom_doklade_ekspertov_vpk_aviatsio-386961/) ["I haven't seen military experts in that report", aviation expert Lukashevich who and why published the report leaked by Novaya Gazeta]. TV Rain. Retrieved 6 May 2015.
64. "ЗМІ: Російські експерти в секретній доповіді підтвердили, що Боїнг збили з "Бука" " (<http://www.pravda.com.ua/news/2015/05/6/7066943/>) [Media: Russian experts confirmed in secret report, that Boeing was shot by "Buk"]. Ukrainska Pravda. 6 May 2015. Retrieved 6 May 2015.
65. Solonin, Mark (12 May 2015). "Сверим траектории" (<https://novayagazeta.ru/articles/2015/05/12/64102-sverim-traektorii>) [Let's check the trajectories]. Novaya Gazeta.
66. Fitzpatrick, Catherine A. (10 June 2015). "There Was No Buk in Our Field" (<http://www.interpretermag.com/there-was-no-buk-in-our-field/>). The Interpreter. Institute of Modern Russia. Retrieved 11 June 2015.
67. Kanygin, Pavel (7 June 2015). "На нашем поле "Бука" не было. Ни следа – ни от гусениц, ни от велосипеда" (<https://novayagazeta.ru/articles/2015/06/07/64439-171-na-nashem-pole-171-buka-187-ne-bylo-ni-sleda-8212-ni-ot-gusenits-ni-ot-velosipeda-187>) [There was no "Buk" on our field. Not a trace – not from the tracks, not from the bicycle]. Novaya Gazeta. Retrieved 8 June 2015.
68. "MH17 – Forensic Analysis of Satellite Images Released by the Russian Ministry of Defence" (<https://www.bellingcat.com/news/uk-and-europe/2015/05/31/mh17-forensic-analysis-of-satellite-images-released-by-the-russian-ministry-of-defence/>). Bellingcat. 31 May 2015.
69. Dillon, Conor (1 June 2015). "Forensic report: Russia faked MH17 satellite photos" (<http://www.dw.de/forensic-report-russia-faked-mh17-satellite-photos/a-18490259>). Deutsche Welle.
70. Röpcke, Julian (8 May 2015). "BILD entlarvt falsche Satellitenaufnahme" (<http://www.bild.de/politik/aufland/flug-mh-17/russische-beweise-gefaelscht-40861842.bild.html>) [BILD exposes false satellite image]. Bild (in German).
71. Vasilyeva, Nataliya; Karmanau, Yuras; Corder, Mike (17 September 2018). "Russia: Missile that shot down flight MH17 was Ukrainian" (<https://apnews.com/article/f53b42ce3aab44308730eb2d89c9e545>). Associated Press. Retrieved 5 December 2020.
72. Karmanau, Yuras; Corder, Mike (17 September 2018). "Russia: Missile That Shot Down Flight MH17 Was Ukrainian" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20180918054525/https://www.nytimes.com/aponline/2018/09/17/world/europe/ap-eu-russia-mh17.html>). The New York Times. Associated Press. Archived from the original (<https://www.nytimes.com/aponline/2018/09/17/world/europe/ap-eu-russia-mh17.html>) on 18 September 2018.
73. "MH17 crash: Dutch ask Russia to submit new claims" (<https://www.bbc.com/news/world-europe-45546611>). BBC News. 17 September 2018. Retrieved 18 September 2018.
74. "Reaction JIT to press conference of Russian Ministry of Defense" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20181105223122/https://www.om.nl/actueel/nieuwsberichten/@104053/reaction-jit-to/>). Openbaar Ministerie (in Dutch). 17 September 2018. Archived from the original (<https://www.om.nl/actueel/nieuwsberichten/@104053/reaction-jit-to/>) on 5 November 2018. Retrieved 18 September 2018.
75. "Hoe twijfel rond MH17 in de hand wordt gewerkt" (<https://www.nrc.nl/nieuws/2017/11/10/ho-twijfel-rond-mh17-in-de-hand-wordt-gewerkt-13959091-a1580806>) [How doubts about MH17 are encouraged]. NRC Handelsblad (in Dutch). 10 November 2017. Retrieved 13 November 2017.
76. "Rebel leader gives bizarre account of plane crash" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20140721032149/http://bigstory.ap.org/article/rebel-suggests-malaysia-plane-victims-long-dead>). Yahoo! News. Associated Press. 18 July 2014. Archived from the original (<https://news.yahoo.com/rebel-leader-gives-bizarre-account-plane-crash-182256709.html>) on 21 July 2014. Retrieved 18 July 2014.
77. Strelkov, Igor (18 July 2014). Игорь Стрелков: часть людей из Боинга умерли за несколько суток до катастрофы (<http://rusvesna.su/news/1405676334>) [Some of the Boeing's passengers died a few days before the crash]. RusVesna (in Russian). Archived (<https://www.webcitation.org/6RBL0zt4P?url=http://rusvesna.su/news/1405676334>) from the original on 19 July 2014. Retrieved 19 July 2014.

78. Squires, Nick (18 July 2014). "British journalist working for Russian TV resigns over bias in Ukraine MH17 coverage" (<https://www.telegraph.co.uk/news/worldnews/europe/ukraine/10976920/British-journalist-working-for-Russian-TV-resigns-over-bias-in-Ukraine-MH17-coverage.html>). The Daily Telegraph. Retrieved 19 July 2014.
79. Radziwinowicz, Waław (18 July 2014). "'Zamach na Putina', 'Ile odszkodowań zapłacą Ukraińcy' i zmiany w Wikipedii. Ofensywa propagandowa Moskwy" (http://wyborcza.pl/1,75477,16347795,Moskwa_obwinia_Ukraine.html?piano_t=1) ["The attempt on Putin", "How much compensation will pay Ukrainians" and changes in Wikipedia. Moscow's propaganda offensive]. Gazeta Wyborcza (in Polish). Retrieved 19 July 2014.
80. Szoldra, Paul (18 July 2014). "Here's The Ridiculous Way Russia's Propaganda Channel Is Covering The Malaysia Airlines Crash" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20140720054152/http://www.businessinsider.co.id/rt-malaysia-airlines-ukraine-2014-7/>). Business Insider. Archived from the original (<http://www.businessinsider.co.id/rt-malaysia-airlines-ukraine-2014-7/>) on 20 July 2014.
81. "MH17: Russia reveals 'witness' who blames Ukraine pilot" (<https://www.bbc.co.uk/news/world-europe-30597555>). BBC News. 24 December 2014. Retrieved 27 December 2014.
82. Mills, Laura (22 July 2014). "Russians Fed Conspiracy Theories on Ukraine Crash" (<https://news.yahoo.com/russians-fed-conspiracy-theories-ukraine-crash-064400429.html>). Yahoo! News. Associated Press. Retrieved 22 July 2014.
83. "Как и почему погиб рейс МН17 над Донбассом? Брифинг Министерства обороны России" (<http://buran.ru/hm/mh17.htm>) [How and why did flight MH17 die over Donbass? Russian Defense Ministry briefing]. Buran.ru (in Russian). Retrieved 6 August 2016.
84. Maza, Cristina (17 September 2018). "Russian propaganda? Moscow releases audio blaming Ukraine downing MH17 flight that killed almost 300" (<https://www.newsweek.com/russian-propaganda-moscow-releases-audio-blaming-ukraine-downing-mh17-flight-1124371>). Newsweek.
85. Malaysia Airlines Flight 17 (<https://www.imdb.com/title/tt8020608/>) at IMDb

External links

- "MH17 Witness Appeal November 2019 with the release of further recorded conversations" (<https://www.politie.nl/themas/flight-mh17/witness-appeal-crash-mh17.html>). Politie.nl.
- "MH17 Crash – final report" (https://www.onderzoeksraad.nl/en/media/attachment/2018/7/10/debcd724fe7breport_mh17_crash.pdf) (PDF). Dutch Safety Board. 13 October 2015.
- "Investigation crash MH17, 17 July 2014 Donetsk" (<https://www.webcitation.org/6RWKfBUgD?url=http://www.onderzoeksraad.nl/en/onderzoek/2049/investigation-crash-mh17-17-july-2014>). Dutch Safety Board. Archived from the original (<http://www.onderzoeksraad.nl/en/onderzoek/2049/investigation-crash-mh17-17-july-2014>) on 2 August 2014.
- "MH17 crash – the Joint Investigation Team (JIT) updates" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20180201093425/https://www.om.nl/onderwerpen/mh17-crash/>). Dutch Public Prosecution Service. Archived from the original (<https://www.om.nl/onderwerpen/mh17-crash/>) on 1 February 2018.
- "MH17 criminal trial" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20190517040803/https://www.rechtspraak.nl/Bekende-rechtszaken/strafzaak-mh17/Paginas/criminal-case-MH17-EN.aspx>). de Rechtspraak. Archived from the original (<https://www.rechtspraak.nl/Uitspraken-en-nieuws/Bekende-rechtszaken/strafzaak-mh17/Paginas/criminal-case-MH17-EN.aspx>) on 17 May 2019.
- "Media Statement & Information on Flight MH17" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20140718001909/http://www.malaysiaairlines.com/my/en/site/mh17.html>). Malaysia Airlines. Archived from the original (<http://www.malaysiaairlines.com/my/en/site/mh17.html>) on 18 July 2014.
- "Malaysia Airlines Flight 17 (Archive)" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20141215071812/http://www.mot.gov.my/en/Newsroom/Pages/MH17.aspx>). Malaysia Ministry of Transport. Archived from the original (<http://www.mot.gov.my/en/Newsroom/Pages/MH17.aspx>) on 15 December 2014.

- "Official MH17 Passenger Manifest" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20140722183421/http://www.malaysiaairlines.com/content/dam/malaysia-airlines/mas/PDF/MH17/MH17%20PAX%20AND%20CREW%20MANIFEST%20200714.pdf>) (PDF). Malaysia Airlines. Archived from the original (<http://www.malaysiaairlines.com/content/dam/malaysia-airlines/mas/PDF/MH17/MH17%20PAX%20AND%20CREW%20MANIFEST%20200714.pdf>) (PDF) on 22 July 2014.
- "Full flight history for Malaysia Airlines Flight MH17" (<https://www.flightradar24.com/data/pinned/mh17-3d6095b#3d6095b>). Flightradar24.
- Davidson, Helen; Yuhas, Alan (18 July 2014). "Malaysia Airlines plane MH17 'shot down' in Ukraine – as it happened" (<https://www.theguardian.com/world/2014/jul/17/malaysia-airlines-plane-crashes-ukraine-live>). The Guardian.
- Ostrower, Jon. "Map of a Tragedy: How MH17 Came Apart Over Ukraine" (<http://graphics.wsj.com/mh17-crash-map/>). The Wall Street Journal.
- "Google map, that tells the story of every Dutch victim" (https://www.google.com/fusiontables/embedviz?q=select+col6+from+1vwwP22j0vhVmC7FmJRFlo9AVTTafY7ElwqRpCzJI&viz=MAP&h=false&lat=53.430059233929505&lng=5.924133995312445&t=1&z=8&l=col6&y=2&tmpl=2&hml=ONE_COL_LAT_LNG). Algemeen Dagblad (in Dutch).

Retrieved from "https://en.wikipedia.org/w/index.php?title=Malaysia_Airlines_Flight_17&oldid=1028033820"

This page was last edited on 11 June 2021, at 12:55 (UTC).

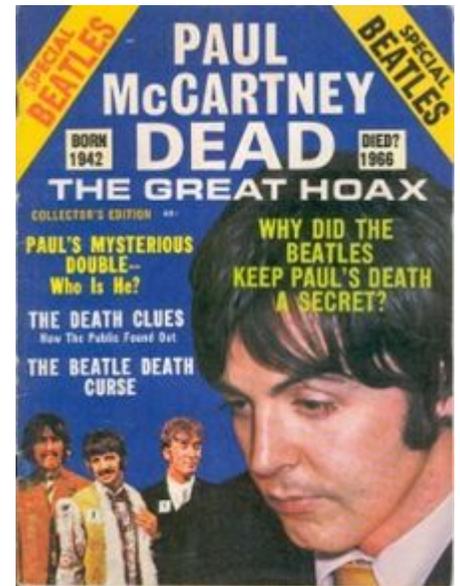

Text is available under the Creative Commons Attribution-ShareAlike License; additional terms may apply. By using this site, you agree to the Terms of Use and Privacy Policy. Wikipedia® is a registered trademark of the Wikimedia Foundation, Inc., a non-profit organization.

Paul is dead

"Paul is dead" is an urban legend and conspiracy theory alleging that English musician Paul McCartney, of the Beatles, died on 9 November 1966 and was secretly replaced by a look-alike. The rumour began circulating around 1967, but grew in popularity after being reported on American college campuses in late 1969. Proponents based the theory on perceived clues found in Beatles songs and album covers. Clue-hunting proved infectious, and within a few weeks had become an international phenomenon.

According to the theory, McCartney died in a car crash and, to spare the public from grief, the surviving Beatles replaced him with the winner of a McCartney look-alike contest, sometimes identified as "William Campbell" or "Billy Shears". Afterwards, the band left messages in their music and album artwork to communicate the truth to their fans. These include the 1968 song "Glass Onion", in which Lennon sings "here's another clue for you all / the walrus was Paul", and the cover photo of their album Abbey Road, in which McCartney is shown barefoot and walking out of step with his bandmates.

Rumours declined after an interview with McCartney, who had been secluded with his family in Scotland, was published in Life magazine in November 1969. During the 1970s, the phenomenon was the subject of analysis in the fields of sociology, psychology and communications. McCartney parodied the hoax with the title and cover art of his 1993 live album, Paul Is Live. In 2009, Time magazine included "Paul is dead" in its feature on ten of "the world's most enduring conspiracy theories".

A magazine discussing the rumour

Contents

Beginnings

Growth

Premise

Rebuttal

Aftermath

Analysis and legacy

In popular culture

Notes

References

Sources

External links

Beginnings

In early 1967, a rumour circulated in London that Paul McCartney had been killed in a traffic accident while driving along the M1 motorway on 7 January.^[1] The rumour was acknowledged and rebutted in the February issue of The Beatles Book, a fanzine.^[1] McCartney then alluded to the rumour during a press conference held around the release of Sgt. Pepper's Lonely Hearts Club Band in May.^[2] By 1967, the Beatles were known for sometimes including backmasking in their music.^[3] Analysing their lyrics for hidden meaning had also become a popular trend in the US.^[4] In November 1968, their self-titled double LP (also known as the "White Album") was released containing the track "Glass Onion". John Lennon wrote the song in response to "gobbledygook" said about Sgt. Pepper. In a later interview, he said that he was purposely confusing listeners with lines such as "the Walrus was Paul" – a reference to his song "I Am the Walrus" from the 1967 EP and album Magical Mystery Tour.^[5]

On 17 September 1969, Tim Harper, an editor of the Drake Times-Delphic, the student newspaper of Drake University in Des Moines, Iowa, published an article titled "Is Beatle Paul McCartney Dead?" The article addressed a rumour being circulated on campus that cited clues from recent Beatles albums, including a message interpreted as "Turn me on, dead man", heard when the White Album track "Revolution 9" is played backwards. Also referenced was the back cover of Sgt. Pepper, where every Beatle except McCartney is photographed facing the viewer, and the front cover of Magical Mystery Tour, which depicts one unidentified band member in a differently coloured suit from the other three.^[6] According to music journalist Merrell Noden, Harper's Drake Times-Delphic was the first to publish an article on the "Paul is dead" theory.^{[7][nb 1]} Harper later said that it had become the subject of discussion among students at the start of the new academic year, and he added: "A lot of us, because of Vietnam and the so-called Establishment, were ready, willing and able to believe just about any sort of conspiracy."^[7]

In late September 1969, the Beatles released the album Abbey Road as they were in the process of disbanding.^[9] On 10 October, the Beatles' press officer, Derek Taylor, responded to the rumour stating: "Recently we've been getting a flood of inquiries asking about reports that Paul is dead. We've been getting questions like that for years, of course, but in the past few weeks we've been getting them at the office and home night and day. I'm even getting telephone calls from disc jockeys and others in the United States."^{[10][11]} Throughout this period, McCartney felt isolated from his bandmates in his opposition to their choice of business manager, Allen Klein, and distraught at Lennon's private announcement that he was leaving the group.^{[12][13]} With the birth of his daughter Mary in late August, McCartney had withdrawn to focus on his family life.^[14] On 22 October, the day that the "Paul is dead" rumour became an international news story,^[15] McCartney, his wife Linda and their two daughters travelled to Scotland to spend time at his farm near Campbeltown.^[16]

Growth

On 12 October 1969, a caller to Detroit radio station WKNR-FM told disc jockey Russ Gibb about the rumour and its clues.^[7] Gibb and other callers then discussed the rumour on air for the next hour,^[17] during which Gibb offered further potential clues.^[18] Two days later, The Michigan Daily published a satirical review of Abbey Road by University of Michigan student Fred LaBour, who had listened to the exchange on Gibb's show,^[7] under the headline "McCartney Dead; New Evidence Brought to Light".^{[19][20]} It identified various clues to McCartney's death on Beatles album covers, particularly on the Abbey Road sleeve. LaBour later said he had invented many of the clues and was astonished when the story was picked up by newspapers across the United States.^[21] Noden writes that "Very soon, every college campus, every radio station, had a resident expert."^[7] WKNR fuelled the rumour further with its two-hour programme The Beatle Plot, which first aired on 19 October.

The story was soon taken up by more mainstream radio stations in the New York area, WMCA and WABC.^[22] In the early hours of 21 October, WABC disc jockey Roby Yonge discussed the rumour on-air for over an hour before being pulled off the air for breaking format. At that time of night, WABC's signal covered a wide listening area and could be heard in 38 US states and, at times, in other countries.^[23] Although the Beatles' press office denied the rumour, McCartney's atypical withdrawal from public life contributed to its escalation.^[24] Vin Scelsa, a student broadcaster in 1969, later said that the escalation was indicative of the countercultural influence of Bob Dylan, the Beatles and the Rolling Stones, since: "Every song from them – starting about late 1966 – became a personal message, worthy of endless scrutiny ... they were guidelines on how to live your life."^[7]

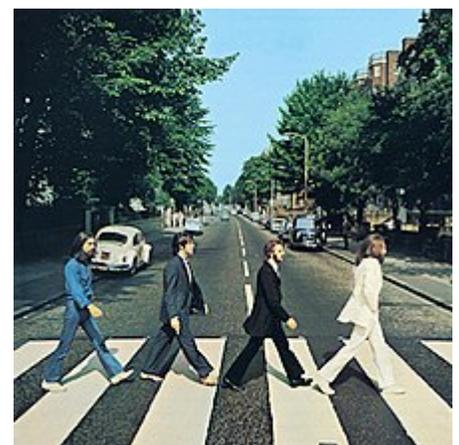

WMCA dispatched Alex Bennett to the Beatles' Apple Corps headquarters in London on 23 October,^[25] to further his extended coverage of the "Paul is dead" theory.^{[22][26]} There, Ringo Starr told Bennett: "If people are gonna believe it, they're gonna believe it. I can only say it's not true."^[25] In a radio interview with John Small of WKNR, Lennon said that the rumour was "insane" but good publicity for Abbey Road.^{[27][nb 2]} On Halloween night 1969, WKBW in Buffalo, New York broadcast a program titled Paul McCartney Is Alive and Well – Maybe, which analysed Beatles lyrics and other clues. The WKBW DJs concluded that the "Paul is dead" hoax was fabricated by Lennon.^[29]

Before the end of October 1969, several record releases had exploited the phenomenon of McCartney's alleged demise.^[22] These included "The Ballad of Paul" by the Mystery Tour;^[30] "Brother Paul" by Billy Shears and the All Americans; "So Long Paul" by Werbley Finster, a pseudonym for José Feliciano;^[31] and Zacharias and His Tree People's "We're All Paul Bearers (Parts One and Two)".^[32] Another song was Terry Knight's "Saint Paul",^[22] which had been a minor hit in June that year and was subsequently adopted by radio stations as a tribute to "the late Paul McCartney".^{[33][nb 3]} According to a report in Billboard magazine in early November, Shelby Singleton Productions planned to issue a documentary LP of radio segments discussing the phenomenon.^[35] In Canada, Polydor Records exploited the rumour in their artwork for Very Together, a repackaging of the Beatles' pre-fame recordings with Tony Sheridan, using a cover that showed four candles, one of which had just been snuffed out.^[36]

Premise

Proponents of the theory maintained that, on 9 November 1966, McCartney had an argument with his bandmates during a Beatles recording session and drove off angrily in his car, crashed, and was decapitated.^{[22][37]} To spare the public from grief, or simply as a joke, the surviving Beatles replaced him with the winner of a McCartney look-alike contest.^[22] This scenario was facilitated by the Beatles' recent retirement from live performance and by their choosing to present themselves with a new image for their next album, Sgt. Pepper's Lonely Hearts Club Band.^[38]

In LaBour's telling, the stand-in was an "orphan from Edinburgh named William Campbell" whom the Beatles then trained to impersonate McCartney.^[7] Others contended that the man's name was William Shears Campbell, later abbreviated to Billy Shears,^[39] and the replacement was instigated by Britain's MI5 out of concern for the severe distress McCartney's death would cause the Beatles' audience.^[40] In this latter telling, the surviving Beatles were said to be wracked by guilt at their duplicity, and therefore left messages in their music and album artwork to communicate the truth to their fans.^{[40][41]}

The "funeral procession" on the cover of Abbey Road

A DJ put all those signs together: Paul with no shoes [on the cover of Abbey Road] ... and the Volkswagen Beetle. Then there was Magical Mystery Tour, where we three had red roses and he had a black one. It was just madness ... There was no way we could prove he was alive.^[28]

– Ringo Starr

Dozens of supposed clues to McCartney's death have been identified by fans and followers of the legend. These include messages perceived when listening to songs being played backwards and symbolic interpretations of both lyrics and album cover imagery.^{[42][43]} One frequently cited example is the suggestion that the words "I buried Paul" are spoken by Lennon in the final section of the song "Strawberry Fields Forever", which the Beatles recorded in November and December 1966. Lennon later said that the words were actually "Cranberry sauce".^{[44][45]}

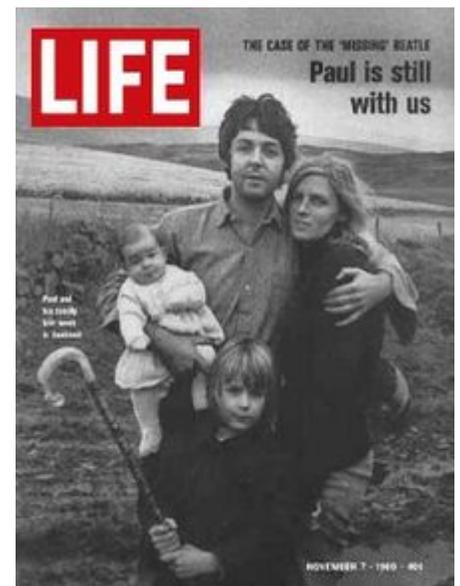

Another example is the interpretation of the Abbey Road album cover as depicting a funeral procession. Lennon, dressed in white, is said to symbolise the heavenly figure; Starr, dressed in black, symbolises the undertaker; George Harrison, in denim, represents the gravedigger; and McCartney, barefoot and out of step with the others, symbolises the corpse.^[19] The number plate of the white Volkswagen Beetle in the photo – containing the characters LMW 28IF – was identified as further

"evidence".^{[7][46]} "28IF" represented McCartney's age "if" he had still been alive (although McCartney was 27 when the album was recorded and released)^[24] while "LMW" stood for "Linda McCartney weeps" or "Linda McCartney, widow".^{[47][nb 4]} That the left-handed McCartney held a cigarette in his right hand was also said to support the idea that he was an impostor.^[22]

Rebuttal

On 21 October 1969, the Beatles' press office again issued statements denying the rumour, deeming it "a load of old rubbish"^[48] and saying that "the story has been circulating for about two years – we get letters from all sorts of nuts but Paul is still very much with us".^[49] On 24 October, BBC Radio reporter Chris Drake was granted an interview with McCartney at his farm.^[16] McCartney said that the speculation was understandable, given that he normally did "an interview a week" to ensure he remained in the news.^[50] Part of the interview was first broadcast on Radio 4, on 26 October,^[51] and subsequently on WMCA in the US.^[50] According to author John Winn, McCartney had conceded to the interview "in hopes that people hearing his voice would see the light", but the ploy failed.^{[50][nb 5]}

McCartney was secretly filmed by a CBS News crew as he worked on his farm. As in his and Linda's segment in the Beatles' promotional clip for "Something", which the couple filmed privately around this time, McCartney was unshaven and unusually scruffy-looking in his appearance.^[52] His next visitors were a reporter and photographer from Life magazine. Irate at the intrusion, he swore at the pair, threw a bucket of water over them and was captured on film attempting to hit the photographer. Fearing that the photos would damage his image, McCartney then approached the pair and agreed to pose for a photo with his family and answer the reporter's questions, in exchange for the roll of film containing the offending pictures.^[53] In Winn's description, the family portrait used for Life's cover shows McCartney no longer "shabbily attired", but "clean-shaven and casually but smartly dressed".^[52]

The magazine report that rebutted the rumour

Following the publication of the article and the photo, in the issue dated 7 November,^[52] the rumour started to decline.^[7] In the interview, McCartney was quoted as saying:

Perhaps the rumour started because I haven't been much in the press lately. I have done enough press for a lifetime, and I don't have anything to say these days. I am happy to be with my family and I will work when I work. I was switched on for ten years and I never switched off. Now I am switching off whenever I can. I would rather be a little less famous these days.^[54]

Aftermath

In November 1969, Capitol Records sales managers reported a significant increase in sales of Beatles catalogue albums, attributed to the rumour.^[55] Rocco Catena, Capitol's vice-president of national merchandising, estimated that "this is going to be the biggest month in history in terms of Beatles sales".^{[22][55]} The rumour benefited the commercial performance of Abbey Road in the US, where it comfortably outsold all of the band's previous albums.^[56] Sgt. Pepper and Magical Mystery Tour, both of which had been off the charts since February, re-entered the Billboard Top LPs chart,^[22] peaking at number 101 and number 109, respectively.^[57]

A television special dedicated to "Paul is dead" was broadcast on WOR in New York on 30 November.^[21] Titled Paul McCartney: The Complete Story, Told for the First and Last Time, it was set in a courtroom and hosted by celebrity lawyer F. Lee Bailey,^[31] who cross-examined LaBour,^[21] Gibb and other proponents of the theory, and heard opposing views from "witnesses" such as McCartney's friend Peter Asher and Allen Klein.^[22] Bailey left it to the viewer to determine a conclusion.^[22] Before the recording, LaBour told Bailey that his article had been intended as a joke, to which Bailey sighed and replied, "Well, we have an hour of television to do; you're going to have to go along with this."^[21]

McCartney returned to London in December. Bolstered by Linda's support, he began recording his debut solo album at his home in St John's Wood.^[58] Titled McCartney, and recorded without his bandmates' knowledge,^{[59][60]} it was "one of the best-kept secrets in rock history" until shortly before its release in April 1970, according to author Nicholas Schaffner, and led to the announcement of the Beatles' break-up.^[61] In his 1971 song "How Do You Sleep?", in which he attacked McCartney's character,^[62] Lennon described the theorists as "freaks" who "were right when they said you was dead".^[63] The rumour was also cited in the hoax surrounding the Canadian band Klaatu,^[64] after a January 1977 review of their debut album 3:47 EST sparked rumours that the group were in fact the Beatles.^[65] In one telling, this theory contended that the album had been recorded in late 1966 but then mislaid until 1975, at which point Lennon, Harrison and Starr elected to issue it in McCartney's memory.^[64]

It was a bit weird meeting people shortly after that, because they'd be looking at the back of my ears, looking a bit through me. And it was weird doing the "I really am him" stuff.^[28]

– Paul McCartney

LaBour later became notable as the bassist for the western swing group Riders in the Sky, which he co-founded in 1977. In 2008, he joked that his success as a musician had extended his fifteen minutes of fame for his part in the rumour to "seventeen minutes".^[66] In 2015, he told The Detroit News that he is still periodically contacted by conspiracy theorists who have attempted to present him with supposed new developments on the McCartney rumours.^[67]

Analysis and legacy

Author Peter Doggett writes that, while the theory behind "Paul is dead" defied logic, its popularity was understandable in a climate where citizens were faced with conspiracy theories insisting that the assassination of President John F. Kennedy in 1963 was in fact a coup d'état.^[68] Schaffner said that, given its origins as an item of gossip and intrigue generated by a select group in the "Beatles cult", "Paul is dead" serves as "a genuine folk tale of the mass communications era".^[8] He also described it as "the most monumental hoax since Orson Welles' War of the Worlds broadcast persuaded thousands of panicky New Jerseyites that Martian invaders were in the vicinity".^[8] In his book Revolution in the Head, Ian MacDonald says that the Beatles were partly responsible for the phenomenon due to their incorporation of "random lyrics and effects", particularly in the White Album track "Glass Onion" in which Lennon invited clue-hunting by including references to other Beatles songs.^[3] MacDonald groups it with the "psychic epidemics" that were encouraged by the rock audience's use of hallucinogenic drugs and which escalated with Charles Manson's homicidal interpretation of the White Album and Mark David Chapman's religion-motivated murder of Lennon in 1980.^[69]

During the 1970s, the phenomenon became a subject of academic study in America in the fields of sociology, psychology and communications.^[70] Among sociological studies, Barbara Suczek recognised it as, in Schaffner's description, a contemporary reading of the "archetypal myth wherein the beautiful youth dies and is resurrected as a god".^[8] Psychologists Ralph Rosnow and Gary Fine attributed its popularity partly to the shared, vicarious experience of searching for clues without consequence for the participants. They also said that for a generation distrustful of the media following the Warren Commission's report, it was able to thrive amid a climate informed by "The credibility gap of Lyndon Johnson's presidency, the widely circulated rumors after the Martin Luther King Jr. and Robert F. Kennedy assassinations, as well as attacks on the leading media sources by the yuppies and Spiro Agnew".^[8] American social critic Camille Paglia locates the "Paul is dead" phenomenon to the Ancient Greek tradition symbolised by Adonis and Antinous, as represented in the cult of rock music's "pretty, long-haired boys who mesmerize both sexes", and she adds: "It's no coincidence that it was Paul McCartney, the 'cutest' and most girlish of the Beatles, who inspired a false rumor that swept the world in 1969 that he was dead."^[71]

"Paul is dead" has continued to inspire analysis into the 21st century, with published studies by Andru J. Reeve, Nick Kollerstrom and Brian Moriarty, among others, and exploitative works in the mediums of mockumentary and documentary film.^[40] Writing in 2016, Beatles biographer Steve Turner said, "the theory still has the power to flare back into life."^[39] He cited a 2009 Wired Italia magazine article that featured an analysis by two forensic research consultants who compared selected photographs of McCartney taken before and after his alleged death by measuring features of the skull.^[39] According to the scientists' findings, the man shown in the post-November 1966 images was not the same.^{[39][72][nb 6]}

Similar rumours concerning other celebrities have been circulated, including the unsubstantiated allegation that Canadian singer Avril Lavigne died in 2003 and was replaced by a person named Melissa Vandella.^{[73][74]} In an article on the latter phenomenon, The Guardian described the 1969 McCartney hoax as "Possibly the best known example" of a celebrity being the focus of "a (completely unverified) cloning conspiracy theory".^[73] In 2009, Time magazine included "Paul is dead" in its feature on ten of "the world's most enduring conspiracy theories".^[41]

In popular culture

There have been many references to the legend in popular culture, including the following examples.

- In the Rutles' 1978 television film satirising the Beatles' history, All You Need Is Cash, the identity of the alleged dead band member was transferred to the George Harrison character, Stig O'Hara, who was supposed to have died "in a flash fire at a water bed shop" and been replaced by a Madame Tussauds wax model. Building on Harrison's reputation as the "Quiet Beatle", the "Stig is dead" theory was supported by his lack of dialogue in the film^[75] and clues such as his trouser-less appearance on the cover of the Rutles' Shabby Road album.^[76]
- McCartney titled his 1993 live album Paul Is Live in reference to the hoax.^[77] He also presented it in a sleeve that parodied the Abbey Road cover and its clues.^[78]
- The 1995 video for "Free as a Bird" – a song recorded by Lennon in the late 1970s and completed by McCartney, Harrison and Starr for the band's Anthology project – references "Paul is dead", among other myths relating to the Beatles' impact during the 1960s. According to author Gary Burns, the video indulges in the same "semiological excess" as the 1969 hoax and thereby "spoof[s]" obsessive clue-hunting.^[79]
- In 2010, American author Alan Goldsher published the mashup novel Paul Is Undead: The British Zombie Invasion, which depicts all of the Beatles as zombies except Ringo Starr.^[80]
- In 2015, the indie rock band EL VY released a song called "Paul Is Alive", which contains lyrics referencing Beatlemania^[81] and partly addresses the 1969 rumour.^[82]
- A 2018 comedy short film, Paul Is Dead, depicts a version of events where McCartney dies during a musical retreat and is replaced by a look-alike named Billy Shears.^[83]
- In 2020, German techno band Scoter collaborated with Timmy Trumpet and released the song "Paul is Dead".

Notes

1. Writing in 1977, author Nicholas Schaffner said the theory has been traced to a student thesis at Ohio Wesleyan University and to a prank article published in the student newspaper for Illinois University.^[8]
2. Estranged from McCartney, Lennon said: "Paul McCartney couldn't die without the world knowing it. The same as he couldn't get married ... [or] go on holiday without the world knowing it. It's just insanity – but it's a great plug for Abbey Road."^[28]
3. A Capitol Records recording artist, Knight had been present during the White Album session when Starr temporarily left the band,^[33] in August 1968.^[34] In the song, the singer conveys his fears that the Beatles were about to disband.^[33]
4. The fact that he would have been 27 in late 1969, rather than 28, was dismissed with the rationale that, in the Hindu tradition, infants were one year old at birth.^[7]
5. In the 2000 book The Beatles Anthology, McCartney says that his reaction to the rumour's growth had been: "Well, we'd better play it for all it's worth. It's publicity, isn't it?"^[28]
6. In his article on the legacy of "Paul is dead", for Dawn in January 2017, Anis Shivani wrote that the narrative has grown, in the manner of JFK's assassination, to incorporate related conspiracy theories. In this expanded narrative, Lennon's murder in 1980, Harrison's near-fatal stabbing in 1999, and the death of Beatles associate Mal Evans in 1976 are all credited to forces protecting the "truth" behind "Paul is dead".^[40]

References

1. Yoakum, Jim (May–June 2000). "The Man Who Killed Paul McCartney" (<http://www.gadflyonline.com/archive/MayJune00/archive-mccartney.html>). Gadfly Online. Retrieved 27 September 2018.

2. Moriarty, Brian (1999). "Who Buried Paul?" (<http://ludix.com/moriarty/paul.html>). ludix.com. Retrieved 27 September 2018.
3. MacDonald 1998, pp. 16, 273–75.
4. Schaffner 1978, p. 115.
5. The Beatles 2000, p. 306.
6. Schmidt, Bart (18 September 2009). "It Was 40 Years Ago, Yesterday ..." (<http://blogs.library.drake.edu/2009/09/18/it-was-40-years-ago-yesterday/>) Drake University: Cowles Library blog. Retrieved 19 September 2010.
7. Noden, Merrell (2003). "Dead Man Walking". Mojo Special Limited Edition: 1000 Days of Revolution (The Beatles' Final Years – Jan 1, 1968 to Sept 27, 1970). London: Emap. p. 114.
8. Schaffner 1978, p. 128.
9. Miles 2001, pp. 353, 354.
10. "Paul McCartney Asserts He's 'Alive and Well' ". Courier-Post. Camden, New Jersey. 10 October 1969.
11. "Beatle Paul McCartney Is Really Alive" (<https://news.google.com/newspapers?id=aHwzAAAAIBAJ&pg=5871,970425&dq=mccartney&hl=en>). Lodi News-Sentinel. UPI. 11 October 1969. p. 5.
12. Sounes 2010, pp. 261, 263–64.
13. Rodriguez 2010, pp. 1, 396, 398.
14. Miles 1997, p. 559.
15. Winn 2009, p. 332.
16. Miles 2001, p. 358.
17. Morris, Julie (23 October 1969). "The Beatle Paul Mystery – As Big as Rock Music Itself". Detroit Free Press. p. 6.
18. Winn 2009, p. 241.
19. LaBour, Fred (14 October 1969). "McCartney Dead; New Evidence Brought to Light" (<https://digital.bentley.umich.edu/midaily/mdp.39015071754159/374>). The Michigan Daily. p. 2.
20. Gould 2007, pp. 593–94.
21. Glenn, Allen (11 November 2009). "Paul Is Dead (Said Fred)" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20101228202339/http://michigantoday.umich.edu/2009/11/story.php?id=7565&tr=y&auid=5578331>). Michigan Today. Archived from the original (<http://michigantoday.umich.edu/2009/11/story.php?id=7565&tr=y&auid=5578331>) on 28 December 2010.
22. Schaffner 1978, p. 127.
23. "Why Did WABC Have Such a Great Signal?" (<http://www.musicradio77.com/transm.html>). Musicradio 77 WABC. Retrieved 5 August 2007.
24. Sounes 2010, p. 262.
25. Winn 2009, p. 333.
26. McKinney 2003, p. 291.
27. Winn 2009, pp. 332–33.
28. The Beatles 2000, p. 342.
29. Bisci, John. "WKBW: Paul McCartney Is Alive And Well – Maybe, 1969" (<http://www.reelradio.com/gifts/pmwkbw69.html>). ReelRadio. Retrieved 15 May 2019.
30. Castleman & Podrazik 1976, p. 281.
31. McKinney 2003, p. 292.
32. Clayson 2003, p. 118.
33. "Terry Knight Speaks" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20111025171758/http://blogcritics.org/music/article/terry-knight-speaks/>). Blogcritics. 2 March 2004. Archived from the original (<http://blogcritics.org/music/article/terry-knight-speaks>) on 25 October 2011.

34. MacDonald 1998, p. 271.
35. Billboard staff (8 November 1969). "McCartney 'Death' Gets 'Disk Coverage' Dearth". Billboard. p. 3.
36. Schaffner 1978, p. 130.
37. Hoffmann & Bailey 1990, pp. 165–66.
38. Gould 2007, p. 593.
39. Turner 2016, p. 368.
40. Shivani, Anis (15 January 2017). "Paul is Dead: The Conspiracy Theory That Won't Go Away" (<http://www.dawn.com/news/1307942>). Dawn. Retrieved 28 September 2018.
41. Time staff (July 2009). "Separating Fact from Fiction: Paul Is Dead" (http://content.time.com/time/specials/packages/article/0,28804,1860871_1860876_1860997,00.html). Time. Retrieved 28 September 2018.
42. Patterson 1998, pp. 193–97.
43. Clayson 2003, pp. 117–18.
44. MacDonald 1998, p. 273fn.
45. Yorke, Ritchie (7 February 1970). "A Private Talk With John". Rolling Stone. p. 22.
46. The Beatles 2000, pp. 341, 342.
47. Draper 2008, p. 76.
48. "Beatle Spokesman Calls Rumor of McCartney's Death 'Rubbish'". The New York Times. 22 October 1969. p. 8.
49. Phillips, B.J. (22 October 1969). "McCartney 'Death' Rumors". The Washington Post. p. B1.
50. Winn 2009, p. 334.
51. Miles 2001, p. 359.
52. Winn 2009, p. 335.
53. Sounes 2010, pp. 262–63.
54. Neary, John (7 November 1969). "The Magical McCartney Mystery". Life. pp. 103–06.
55. Burks, John (29 November 1969). "A Pile of Money on Paul's 'Death'". Rolling Stone. pp. 6, 10.
56. Schaffner 1978, pp. 126–27.
57. Castleman & Podrazik 1976, p. 361.
58. Sounes 2010, p. 264.
59. Doggett 2011, pp. 111, 121.
60. Rodriguez 2010, p. 2.
61. Schaffner 1978, p. 135.
62. Rodriguez 2010, p. 399.
63. Sounes 2010, p. 290.
64. Raymond, Adam K. (23 October 2016). "The 70 Greatest Conspiracy Theories in Pop-Culture History" (<https://www.vulture.com/2016/10/pop-culture-conspiracy-theories-c-v-r.html>). Vulture. Retrieved 16 November 2019.
65. Schaffner 1978, pp. 189–90.
66. LaBour, Fred (1 August 2008). "True Westerners: Fred Labour – Too Slim of Riders in the Sky" (<http://www.truewestmagazine.com/fred-labour-too-slim-of-riders-in-the-sky/>). True West Magazine. Retrieved 28 June 2016.
67. Rubin, Neal (10 September 2015). "Paul McCartney still isn't dead. Neither is the story" (<http://www.detroitnews.com/story/opinion/columnists/neal-rubin/2015/09/09/neal-rubin-column-riders-sky/71974774/>). The Detroit News. Retrieved 27 June 2016.
68. Doggett 2011, p. 107.
69. MacDonald 1998, pp. 273–75.

70. Schaffner 1978, pp. 128–29.
71. Paglia, Camille (Winter 2003). "Cults and Cosmic Consciousness: Religious Vision in the American 1960s". Arion: A Journal of Humanities and the Classics. 3rd. 10 (3): 61–62.
72. Carlesi, Gabriella et al. (2009) "Chiedi chi era quel «Beatle»" (<http://mag.wired.it/rivista/storie/chiedi-chi-era-quel-beatle.html>), Wired Italia
73. Cresci, Elena (16 May 2017). "Why fans think Avril Lavigne died and was replaced by a clone named Melissa" (<https://www.theguardian.com/lifeandstyle/shortcuts/2017/may/15/avril-lavigne-melissa-cloning-conspiracy-theories>). guardian.co.uk. Retrieved 1 October 2018.
74. Estatie, Lamia (15 May 2017). "The Avril Lavigne conspiracy theory returns" (<https://www.bbc.co.uk/news/blogs-trending-39921209>). bbc.co.uk. Retrieved 1 October 2018.
75. Rodriguez 2010, p. 308.
76. Idle, Eric (1978). "The Rutles Story". The Rutles (LP booklet). Warner Bros. Records. p. 16.
77. Clayson 2003, p. 228.
78. Doggett 2011, p. 339.
79. Burns 2000, pp. 180–81.
80. Flood, Alison (31 July 2009). "The Beatles flesh out zombie mash-up craze" (<https://www.theguardian.com/books/2009/jul/31/beatles-zombie-mashup>). The Guardian. Retrieved 10 January 2016.
81. Van Nguyen, Dean (7 October 2015). "EL VY post lyric video for new single 'Paul Is Alive'" (<https://www.nme.com/news/music/the-national-19-1215123>). NME. Retrieved 24 July 2017.
82. WCYT staff (16 November 2015). "EL VY – 'Return to the Moon'" (<http://www.wcyt.org/el-vy-return-to-the-moon/>). wcyt.org. Retrieved 30 September 2018.
83. "Paul Is Dead ... A Comedy Short Film Inspired by the Classic Bizarre Rock & Roll Conspiracy Theory" (<https://urbanistamagazine.uk/paul-is-dead-a-comedy-short-film-inspired-by-the-classic-bizarre-rock-roll-conspiracy-theory/>). urbanistamagazine.uk. 30 September 2018. Retrieved 5 February 2019.

Sources

- The Beatles (2000). The Beatles Anthology (<https://archive.org/details/beatlesanthology0000unse>). San Francisco, CA: Chronicle Books. ISBN 0-8118-2684-8.
- Burns, Gary (2000). "Refab Four: Beatles for Sale in the Age of Music Video". In Inglis, Ian (ed.). The Beatles, Popular Music and Society: A Thousand Voices (<https://archive.org/details/beatlespopularmu0000unse>). New York, NY: St. Martin's Press. ISBN 978-0-312-22236-9.
- Castleman, Harry; Podrazik, Walter J. (1976). All Together Now: The First Complete Beatles Discography 1961–1975 (<https://archive.org/details/alltogethernowfi0000cast>). New York, NY: Ballantine Books. ISBN 0-345-25680-8.
- Clayson, Alan (2003). Paul McCartney. London: Sanctuary. ISBN 1-86074-482-6.
- Doggett, Peter (2011). You Never Give Me Your Money: The Beatles After the Breakup. New York, NY: It Books. ISBN 978-0-06-177418-8.
- Draper, Jason (2008). A Brief History of Album Covers. London: Flame Tree Publishing. ISBN 978-1-84786-211-2.
- Gould, Jonathan (2007). Can't Buy Me Love: The Beatles, Britain and America. London: Piatkus. ISBN 978-0-7499-2988-6.
- Hoffmann, Frank W.; Bailey, William G. (1990). Arts & Entertainment Fads. Binghamton, NY: The Haworth Press. ISBN 0-86656-881-6.
- MacDonald, Ian (1998). Revolution in the Head: The Beatles' Records and the Sixties. London: Pimlico. ISBN 978-0-7126-6697-8.

- McKinney, Devin (2003). Magic Circles: The Beatles in Dream and History. Cambridge, MA: Harvard University Press. ISBN 0-674-01202-X.
- Miles, Barry (1997). Paul McCartney: Many Years from Now (https://archive.org/details/paulmccartneyman00mile_0). New York, NY: Henry Holt & Company. ISBN 978-0-8050-5248-0.
- Miles, Barry (2001). The Beatles Diary Volume 1: The Beatles Years. London: Omnibus Press. ISBN 0-7119-8308-9.
- Patterson, R. Gary (1998). The Walrus Was Paul: The Great Beatle Death Clues. New York, NY: Fireside. ISBN 0-684-85062-1.
- Reeve, Andru J. (1994). Turn Me On, Dead Man: The Beatles and the "Paul-Is-Dead" Hoax. Ann Arbor, MI: Popular Culture, Ink. ISBN 978-1418482947.
- Rodriguez, Robert (2010). Fab Four FAQ 2.0: The Beatles' Solo Years, 1970–1980 (<https://archive.org/details/missodellmyhardd00odel>). Milwaukee, WI: Backbeat Books. ISBN 978-1-4165-9093-4.
- Schaffner, Nicholas (1978). The Beatles Forever (<https://archive.org/details/beatlesforever00scha>). New York, NY: McGraw-Hill. ISBN 0-07-055087-5.
- Sounes, Howard (2010). Fab: An Intimate Life of Paul McCartney. London: HarperCollins. ISBN 978-0-00-723705-0.
- Turner, Steve (2016). Beatles '66: The Revolutionary Year. New York, NY: Ecco. ISBN 978-0-06-247558-9.
- Winn, John C. (2009). That Magic Feeling: The Beatles' Recorded Legacy, Volume Two, 1966–1970. New York, NY: Three Rivers Press. ISBN 978-0-307-45239-9.

External links

- National Post's guide to "Paul is dead" clues, May 2017 (<https://nationalpost.com/news/world/i-buried-paul-your-guide-to-the-convoluted-conspiracy-that-paul-mccartney-died-in-1966>)
 - "The 70 Greatest Conspiracy Theories in Pop-Culture History", Vulture, October 2016 (<https://www.vulture.com/2016/10/pop-culture-conspiracy-theories-c-v-r.html>)
-

Retrieved from "https://en.wikipedia.org/w/index.php?title=Paul_is_dead&oldid=1028475465"

This page was last edited on 14 June 2021, at 06:15 (UTC).

Text is available under the Creative Commons Attribution-ShareAlike License; additional terms may apply. By using this site, you agree to the Terms of Use and Privacy Policy. Wikipedia® is a registered trademark of the Wikimedia Foundation, Inc., a non-profit organization.

New Coke

In April 1985, the Coca-Cola Company introduced a new formula for its Coca-Cola soda, known informally as New Coke. It was renamed Coke II in 1992,^[1] and was discontinued in July 2002.

By 1985, Coca-Cola had been losing market share to diet soft drinks and non-cola beverages for several years. Blind taste tests indicated that consumers seemed to prefer the sweeter taste of rival Pepsi-Cola, and so the Coca-Cola recipe was reformulated. The American public reacted negatively, and New Coke was considered a major failure.

The company reintroduced the original Coke formula within three months, rebranded "Coca-Cola Classic", resulting in a significant sales boost; this led to speculation that the New Coke formula had been a marketing ploy to stimulate sales of the original Coca-Cola, which the company has denied.^[2] The story of New Coke remains influential as a cautionary tale against tampering with a well-established and successful brand.

Contents

Background

Development

Launch

Initial success

Backlash

Response by Pepsi

Company dissatisfaction

Reversal

Aftermath and legacy

After Coca-Cola Classic

Coke II

Commercial legacy

Conspiracy theories

Taste test problems

2019 comeback

See also

References

Further reading

New Coke

Type	Cola
Manufacturer	The Coca-Cola Company
Distributor	Coca-Cola Enterprises
Country of origin	U.S.
Introduced	April 23, 1985 May 23, 2019 (limited re-release)
Discontinued	July 10, 2002 (original run)
Color	Caramel
Variants	Coke II

External links

Background

After World War II, Coca-Cola held 60 percent of the market share. By 1983, it had declined to under 24 percent, largely because of competition from Pepsi-Cola. Pepsi had begun to outsell Coke in supermarkets; Coke maintained its lead only through venues such as soda vending machines and fast food restaurants.^[2]

Market analysts believed baby boomers were more likely to purchase diet drinks as they aged and remained health- and weight-conscious. Growth in the full-calorie segment would come from younger drinkers, who at that time favored Pepsi by increasing margins.^[3] Meanwhile, the overall market for colas steadily declined in the early 1980s, as consumers increasingly purchased diet and non-cola soft drinks, many of which sold by Coca-Cola; this further eroded Coca-Cola's market share.^{[4][5]} When Roberto Goizueta became Coca-Cola CEO in 1980, he told employees there would be no "sacred cows" in how the company did business, including how it formulated its drinks.^[6]

Development

Coca-Cola's senior executives commissioned a secret project headed by marketing vice president Sergio Zyman and Coca-Cola USA president Brian Dyson to create a new flavor for Coke. This project was named "Project Kansas", from a photo of Kansas journalist William Allen White drinking a Coke; the image had been used extensively in Coca-Cola advertising and hung on several executives' walls.^{[7]:114}

The sweeter cola overwhelmingly beat both regular Coke and Pepsi in taste tests, surveys, and focus groups. In the South, one of Coca Cola's strongest and most reliable markets, narrowly preferred the new flavor; this preference widened once the testers revealed the new taste was also a Coca-Cola product. One bottling company threatened to sue the company if it did not put the drink on the market.^[8]

Asked if they would buy and drink the product if it were Coca-Cola, most testers said they would, although said it would take some getting used to. About 10–12 percent of testers felt angry and alienated at the thought, and said they might stop drinking Coke. Their presence in focus groups tended to negatively skew results as they exerted indirect peer pressure on other participants.^{[9]:355}

The surveys, which were given more significance by standard marketing procedures of the era, were less negative than the taste tests and were key in convincing management to change the formula in 1985, to coincide with the drink's centenary. However, the groups had provided a clue as to how the change would play out in the public, a finding the company downplayed.^[10]

Management rejected an idea to make and sell the new flavor as a separate variety of Coca-Cola. The company's bottlers were already complaining about absorbing other recent additions into the product line since 1982, after the introduction of Diet Coke; Cherry Coke was launched nationally nearly concurrently with New Coke during 1985. Many bottling companies had sued over the company's syrup pricing policies. A new variety of Coke in competition with the main variety could also have cannibalized Coke's sales and increased the proportion of Pepsi drinkers relative to Coke drinkers.

Early in his career with Coca-Cola, Goizueta had been in charge of the Bahamas subsidiary. He had improved sales by tweaking the drink's flavor slightly, and so was receptive to the idea that changing the flavor of Coke could boost profits. He believed it would be "New Coke or no Coke",^{[7]:106} and that the change must take place openly. He insisted that the containers carry the "New!" label, which gave the drink its popular name.^{[9]:358}

Goizueta also made a visit to his mentor and predecessor as the company's chief executive, the ailing Robert W. Woodruff, who had built Coke into an international brand following World War II. Goizueta claimed he had secured Woodruff's blessing for the reformulation, but many of Goizueta's closest friends within the company doubted that Woodruff understood Goizueta's intentions. Woodruff died in March 1985, a month before New Coke was launched.^{[9]:356}^{[7]:115}

Launch

New Coke was introduced on April 23, 1985. Production of the original formulation ended later that week. In many areas, New Coke was initially introduced in "old" Coke packaging; bottlers used up remaining cans, cartons and labels before new packaging was widely available. Old cans containing New Coke were identified by their gold colored tops, while glass and plastic bottles had red caps instead of silver and white, respectively. Bright yellow stickers indicating the change were placed on the cartons of multi-packs.

The press conference at New York City's Lincoln Center to introduce the new formula did not go well. Reporters had already been fed questions by Pepsi,^[11] which was worried that New Coke would erase its gains. Goizueta, Coca-Cola's CEO, described the new flavor as "bolder", "rounder", and "more harmonious",^{[9]:352} and defended the change by saying that the drink's secret formula was not sacrosanct and inviolable. As far back as 1935, Coca-Cola sought kosher certification from Atlanta rabbi Tobias Geffen, and made two changes to the formula so the drink could be considered kosher (as well as halal and vegetarian).^[12] Goizueta also refused to admit that taste tests had led the change, calling it "one of the easiest decisions we've ever made".^{[7]:117} A reporter asked whether Diet Coke would also be reformulated "assuming [New Coke] is a success," to which Goizueta curtly replied, "No. And I didn't assume that this is a success. This is a success."^{[9]:352}

The emphasis on the new formula's sweeter taste also ran contrary to previous Coke advertising, in which spokesman Bill Cosby had touted the original Coke's less-sweet taste as a reason to prefer it over the sweeter taste of Pepsi.^{[11]:136} The company's stock went up after the announcement, and market research showed 80 percent of the American public was aware of the change within days.^{[7]:119}^[13]

Initial success

Coca-Cola introduced the new formula with marketing pushes in New York, where workers renovating the Statue of Liberty for its 1986 centenary were given cans,^[13] and Washington, D.C., where thousands of cans were given away in Lafayette Park. As soon as New Coke was introduced, the new formula was available at McDonald's and other drink fountains in the United States.^[6] Sales figures from those cities, and other areas where it had been introduced such as Miami and Detroit,^[8] showed a reaction that went as the market research had predicted. In fact, Coke's sales were up 8 percent over the same period as the year before.^[6]

Most Coke drinkers resumed buying the new Coke at much the same level as they had the old one. Surveys indicated that the majority of regular Coke drinkers liked the new flavoring.^{[11]:153} Three quarters of the respondents said they would buy New Coke again.^[6] The big test, however, remained in the South, where Coke had first been tasted and bottled.

Backlash

Though New Coke was accepted by many Coca-Cola drinkers, many more resented the change, as had happened in the focus groups. Many critics were from the southern US states, some of whom considered Coca-Cola part of their regional identity; some viewed the change through the prism of the Civil War as a surrender to the "Yankees"^{[11]:149–151} as Pepsi, the company's archrival, is based in Purchase, New York.^[8]

In a Chicago Tribune story about reaction in the South, a professor at the University of Mississippi observed that "changing Coca-Cola is an intrusion on tradition" and thus would not be well-received in that region. An Alabama resident wondered why the company had introduced the new flavor in New York; elsewhere in the state an Anniston Star columnist, noting Goizueta's Cuban origins, insinuated that the flavor change was a Communist plot. The Atlanta Journal-Constitution found a majority of patrons at The Varsity, a popular local restaurant in that city, favored the old formula. "Why didn't they test anybody here?" the co-owner asked.^[8]

The company received over 40,000 calls and letters expressing anger or disappointment,^{[7]:119} including one letter, delivered to Goizueta, addressed to "Chief Dodo, The Coca-Cola Company". Another letter asked for his autograph, as the signature of "one of the dumbest executives in American business history" would likely become valuable in the future. The company hotline, 1-800-GET-COKE, received over 1,500 calls a day compared to around 400 before the change.^[5] A psychiatrist whom Coke had hired to listen in on calls told executives that some people sounded as if they were discussing the death of a family member.^{[11]:163}

There were critics from outside the region. Tribune columnist Bob Greene wrote some widely reprinted pieces ridiculing the new flavor and expressing anger at Coke's executives for having changed it. Comedians and talk show hosts, including Johnny Carson and David Letterman, made regular jokes mocking the switch. Ads for New Coke were booed heavily when they appeared on the scoreboard at the Houston Astrodome.^[13] Even Fidel Castro, a longtime Coca-Cola drinker, contributed to the backlash, calling New Coke a sign of American capitalist decadence.^{[9]:362} Goizueta's father expressed similar misgivings to his son, who later recalled that it was the only time his father had agreed with Castro, whose rule he had fled Cuba to avoid.^{[7]:118}

Gay Mullins, a Seattle retiree looking to start a public relations firm with $120,000 of borrowed money, formed the Old Cola Drinkers of America on May 28 to lobby Coca-Cola to either reintroduce the old formula or sell it to someone else. His organization eventually received over 60,000 phone calls. He also filed a class action lawsuit against the company (which was quickly dismissed by a judge who said he preferred the taste of Pepsi),^[14] while nevertheless expressing interest in securing The Coca-Cola Company as a client of his new firm should it reintroduce the old formula.^{[11]:160} In two informal blind taste tests, Mullins either failed to distinguish New Coke from old or expressed a preference for New Coke.^{[11]:162}

Despite ongoing resistance in the South, New Coke continued to do well in the rest of the country.^{[11]:149–151} But executives were uncertain of how international markets would react. Executives met with international Coke bottlers in Monaco; to their surprise, the bottlers were not interested in selling New Coke.^[15] Zyman also heard doubts and skepticism from his relatives in Mexico, where New Coke was scheduled to be introduced later that summer, when he went there on vacation.

To hear some tell it, April 23, 1985, was a day that will live in marketing infamy ... spawning consumer angst the likes of which no business has ever seen.

— The Coca-Cola Company, on the New Coke announcement^[5]

Goizueta stated that Coca-Cola employees who liked New Coke felt unable to speak up due to peer pressure, as had happened in the focus groups. Donald Keough, the Coca-Cola president and chief operating officer at the time, reported overhearing someone say at his country club that they liked New Coke, but they would be "damned if I'll let Coca-Cola know that".^{[11]:154}

Response by Pepsi

Pepsi-Cola took advantage of the situation, running ads in which a first-time Pepsi drinker exclaimed, "Now I know why Coke did it!"^{[11]:148–9} Even amidst consumer anger and several Pepsi ads mocking Coca-Cola's debacle, Pepsi actually gained very few long-term converts over Coke's switch, despite a 14 percent sales increase over the same month the previous year, the largest sales growth in the company's history.^[6] Coca-Cola's director of corporate communications, Carlton Curtis, realized over time that consumers were more upset about the withdrawal of the old formula than the taste of the new one.^{[11]:175}

Roger Enrico, then director of Pepsi's North American operations, declared a company-wide holiday and took out a full-page ad in The New York Times proclaiming that Pepsi had won the long-running "Cola Wars".^{[7]:115} ^{[9]:359} Since Coke officials were preoccupied over the weekend with preparations for the announcement, their Pepsi counterparts had time to cultivate skepticism among reporters, sounding themes that would later come into play in the public discourse over the changed drink.^{[11]:125} After the announcement on April 23, PepsiCo gave its employees the day off saying, "By today's action, Coke has admitted that it's not the real thing."

Company dissatisfaction

Some Coca-Cola executives had quietly been arguing for a reintroduction of the old formula as early as May.^{[11]:157} By mid-June, when soft drink sales usually start to rise, the numbers showed that new Coke was leveling among consumers. Executives feared social peer pressure was now affecting their bottom line. Some consumers even began trying to obtain "old" Coke from overseas, where the new formula had not yet been introduced, as domestic stocks of the old drink were exhausted.^{[11]:158} Over the course of the month, Coca-Cola's chemists also quietly reduced the acidity level of the new formula, hoping to assuage complaints about the flavor and allow its sweetness to be better perceived (advertisements pointing to this change were prepared, but never used).^{[9]:364}

In addition to the noisier public protests, boycotts, and bottles being emptied into the streets of several cities, the company had more serious reasons to be concerned. Its bottlers, and not just the ones still suing the company over syrup pricing policies, were expressing concern. While they had given Goizueta a standing ovation when he announced the change at an April 22 bottlers' meeting at Atlanta's Woodruff Arts Center, glad the company had finally taken some initiative in the face of Pepsi's advances,^[13] they were less enthusiastic about the taste.^{[9]:364} ^{[7]:106,116} Most of them saw great difficulty having to promote and sell a drink that had long been marketed as "The Real Thing", constant and unchanging, now that it had been changed.

The 20 bottlers still suing Coca-Cola made much of the change in their legal arguments. Coca-Cola had argued in its defense when the suit was originally filed that the formula's uniqueness and difference from Diet Coke justified different pricing policies from the latter – but if the new formula was simply an HFCS-sweetened Diet Coke, Coca-Cola could not argue the formula was unique. Bottlers, particularly in the South, were also tired of facing personal opprobrium over the change. Many reported that some acquaintances and even friends and relatives had ostracized them, or had expressed displeasure in other emotionally hurtful ways. On June 23, several of the bottlers took these complaints to Coca-Cola executives in a private meeting.^{[7]:121} With the company now fearing boycotts not only from its consumers but its bottlers, talks about reintroducing the old formula moved from "if" to "when".

Finally, the Coca-Cola board decided that enough was enough, and plans were set in motion to bring back the old Coke. Company president Donald Keough revealed years later, in the documentary The People vs. Coke (2002), that they realized this was the only right thing to do when they visited a small restaurant in Monaco and the owner proudly said they served "the real thing, it's a real Coke", offering them a chilled 6½ oz. glass bottle of original Coca-Cola.^[15]

Reversal

On the afternoon of July 11, 1985, Coca-Cola executives announced the return of the original formula, 79 days after New Coke's introduction. ABC News' Peter Jennings interrupted General Hospital with a special bulletin to share the news with viewers.^[16] On the floor of the U.S. Senate, David Pryor called the reintroduction "a meaningful moment in U.S. history".^[9] The company hotline received 31,600 calls in the two days after the announcement.^[5]

The new product continued to be marketed and sold as Coke (until 1992, when it was renamed Coke II) while the original formula was named Coca-Cola Classic, and for a short time it was referred to by the public as Old Coke. Some who tasted the reintroduced formula were not convinced that the first batches really were the same formula that had supposedly been retired that spring. This was true for a few regions, because Coca-Cola Classic differed from the original formula in that all bottlers who had not already done so were using high fructose corn syrup (HFCS) instead of cane sugar to sweeten the drink, though most had by this time.^{[11]:183}

"There is a twist to this story which will please every humanist and will probably keep Harvard professors puzzled for years," said Keough at a press conference. "The simple fact is that all the time and money and skill poured into consumer research on the new Coca-Cola could not measure or reveal the deep and abiding emotional attachment to original Coca-Cola felt by so many people."

Gay Mullins, founder of the organization Old Cola Drinkers of America (which had lobbied Coca-Cola to either reintroduce the old formula or sell it to someone else), was given the first case of Coca-Cola Classic.^[13] Later he complained that the drink now made him sick, which he blamed on the drink's use of HFCS; he also claimed that had dulled his taste buds, accounting for him picking New Coke in taste tests.^[8]

Aftermath and legacy

By the end of 1985, Coca-Cola Classic was substantially outselling both New Coke and Pepsi. Six months after the rollout, Coke's sales had increased at more than twice the rate of Pepsi's.^[17]

New Coke's sales dwindled to a three percent share of the market, although it was selling quite well in Los Angeles and some other key markets.^[17] Later research, however, suggested that it was not the return of Coca-Cola Classic, but instead the nearly unnoticed introduction of Cherry Coke, which appeared almost simultaneously with New Coke, that can be credited with the company's success in 1985.^{[11]:187}

The Coca-Cola Company spent a considerable amount of time trying to figure out where it had made a mistake, ultimately concluding that it had underestimated the public reaction of the portion of the customer base that would be alienated by the switch. This would not emerge for several years afterward, however, and in the meantime the public simply concluded that the company had, as Keough suggested, failed to consider the public's attachment to the idea of what Coke's old formula represented. While that has become conventional wisdom in the ensuing years, some analyses have suggested otherwise.

This populist version of the story served Coke's interests, however, as the episode did more to position and define Coca-Cola as a brand embodying values distinct from Pepsi. Allowing itself to be portrayed as a somewhat clueless large corporation forced to withdraw from a big change by overwhelming public pressure flattered customers, as Keough put it, "We love any retreat which has us rushing toward our best customers with the product they love the most."^{[9]:360} Bottles and cans continued to bear the "Coca-Cola Classic" title until January 2009, when the company announced it would stop printing the word "Classic" on the labels of 16-US-fluid-ounce (470 ml) bottles sold in parts of the southeastern United States.^[18] The change was part of a larger strategy to rejuvenate the product's image.^[18]

Bill Cosby ended his long-time advertising for Coca-Cola, claiming that his commercials praising the superiority of the new formula had hurt his credibility. No one at Coca-Cola was fired for the change. When Goizueta died in 1997, the company's share price was well above what it was when he had taken over 16 years earlier and its position as market leader even more firmly established. At the time, Roger Enrico, then head of Pepsi's American operations, likened New Coke to the Edsel.^{[19][20]} Later, when he became PepsiCo's CEO, he modified his assessment of the situation, saying that had people been fired or demoted over New Coke, it would have sent a message that risk-taking was strongly discouraged at the company.^[21]

In the late 1990s, Zyman summed up the New Coke experience thus:

Yes, it infuriated the public, cost us a ton of money and lasted for only 77 days before we reintroduced Coca-Cola Classic. Still, New Coke was a success because it revitalized the brand and reattached the public to Coke.^[22]

New Coke continued to do what it had originally been designed to do: win taste tests. In 1987, The Wall Street Journal surveyed 100 randomly selected cola drinkers, the majority of whom indicated a preference for Pepsi, with Classic Coke accounting for the remainder save two New Coke loyalists. When this group was given a chance to try all three in a blind test, New Coke slightly edged out Pepsi, but many drinkers reacted angrily to finding they had chosen a brand other than their favorite.^[23]

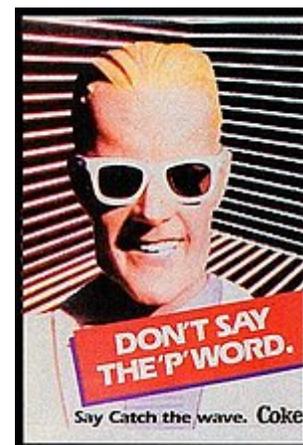

Goizueta claimed that he never once regretted the decision to change Coca-Cola. He even threw a tenth anniversary party for New Coke in 1995 and continued to drink it until his death in 1997.^[13]

After Coca-Cola Classic

In the short run, the reintroduction of original Coca-Cola saved Coke's sales figures and brought it back in the good graces of many customers and bottlers. Phone calls and letters to the company were as joyful and thankful as they had been angry and depressed. "You would have thought we'd cured cancer," said one executive.^{[11]:181}

But confusion reigned at the company's marketing department, which had to design a plan to market two Coca-Colas where such plans were inconceivable just a few months before. Coca-Cola Classic did not need much help, with a "Red, White and You" campaign showcasing the American virtues many of those who had clamored for its reintroduction had pointedly reminded the company that it embodied. But the company was at a loss to sell what was now just "Coke". Obviously, "The Best Just Got Better" could no longer be used. Marketers fumbled for a strategy for the rest of the year.^{[9]:366} Matters were not helped when McDonald's announced shortly after the reintroduction of Coca-Cola Classic, that it was immediately switching from New Coke back to original Coca-Cola at all of its restaurants.^{[9]:369}

At the beginning of 1986, however, Coke's marketing team found a strategy by returning to one of their original motives for changing the formula: the youth market that preferred Pepsi. Max Headroom, the purportedly computer-generated media personality played by Matt Frewer, was chosen to replace Cosby as the spokesman for Coke's new "Catch the wave" campaign. With his slicked-back hair and sunglasses, he was already known to much of the U.S. youth audience through appearances on MTV and Cinemax. The campaign was launched with a television commercial produced by McCann Erickson New York, with Max saying in his trademark stutter, "C-c-c-catch the wave!" and referring to his fellow "Cokeologists".^[24] In a riposte to Pepsi's televisual teasings, one showed Headroom asking a Pepsi can he was "interviewing" how it felt about more drinkers preferring Coke to it and then cut to the condensation forming on, and running down, the can. "S-s-s-sweating?" he asked.

Max Headroom print ad from the "Catch the wave" campaign

The campaign was a huge success, and surveys likewise showed that more than three-quarters of the target market were aware of the ads within two days. Coke's consumer hotline received more calls about Max than any previous spokesperson, some even asking if he had a girlfriend.^[25] The ads and campaign continued through 1987, and were chosen as best of 1986 by Video Storyboard of New York.^[25]

Coke II

In 1985, New Coke was sold only in the United States, United States territories, and Canada while the original formula continued to be sold in the rest of the world. New Coke was eventually returned to the company's product portfolio; it was test-marketed in certain U.S. cities under the name Coke II in 1990,^[1] which was taken national in late 1992, despite the company's original intention not to create a second brand. Filmmaker Miranda July suggested the name of Coke II while working as a tastemaker for an ad agency.^[26]

A can of Coke II

The Coca-Cola Company did practically nothing to promote or otherwise distinguish it. In a market already offering several choices of drinks calling themselves "Coke" in some fashion or another, the public saw little reason to embrace a product they had firmly rejected seven years earlier, and within about a year, Coke II was largely off the American shelves again. By 1998, it could only be found in a few scattered markets in the northwest, midwest and some overseas territories. In July 2002, Coca-Cola announced that Coke II would be discontinued entirely.^[27]

On August 16, 2002, The Coca-Cola Company announced a change of the label of Coke Classic in which the word "Classic" was no longer so prominent, leading to speculation that it would eventually be removed and the last traces of New Coke eliminated.^[27] In 2009, Coca-Cola permanently removed

"Classic" from its North American packaging.^[28]

Commercial legacy

"For a product so widely despised," noted AdWeek blogger Tim Nudd in 2006, "New Coke (a.k.a. Coke II) still gets an admirable amount of ink." He noted Blink: The Power of Thinking Without Thinking (2005) by Malcolm Gladwell, and Why Most Things Fail: Evolution, Extinction and Economics (2005) by Paul Ormerod, that dealt with it at some length, as well as two recent mentions in Forbes and Sports Illustrated.^[29]

Within Coca-Cola, the role the company's bottlers had played in forcing its hand led executives to create a new subsidiary, Coca-Cola Enterprises, which bought out several of the larger bottlers and placed distribution and marketing efforts more tightly under Coca-Cola's control.

Conspiracy theories

The Coca-Cola Company's apparently sudden reversal on New Coke led to conspiracy theories, including:

- The company intentionally changed the formula, hoping consumers would be upset with the company, and demand the original formula to return, which in turn would cause sales to spike.^[2] Keough answered this speculation by saying "We're not that dumb, and we're not that smart."^{[2][15]}
- The putative switch was planned all along to cover the change from sugar-sweetened Coke to much less expensive HFCS, a theory that was supposedly given credence by the apparently different taste of Coke Classic when it first hit the market (the U.S. sugar trade association took out a full-page ad lambasting Coke for using HFCS in all bottling of the old formula when it was reintroduced).^[11] In fact, Coca-Cola began allowing bottlers to remove up to half of the product's cane sugar as early as 1980, five years before the introduction of New Coke. By the time the new formula was introduced, most bottlers had already sweetened Coca-Cola entirely with HFCS.^[2]
- It provided cover for the final removal of all coca derivatives from the product to placate the Drug Enforcement Administration, which was trying to eradicate the plant worldwide to combat an increase in cocaine trafficking and consumption. While Coke's executives were indeed relieved the new formula contained no coca and concerned about the long-term future of the Peruvian government-owned coca fields that supplied it in the face of increasing DEA pressure to end cultivation of the crop, according to author Mark Pendergrast there was no direct pressure from the DEA on Coca-Cola to do so.^[9] This theory was endorsed in a Time article, as well as by historian Bartow Elmore, who claims the reformulation was made in response to the escalating War on Drugs by the Reagan Administration.^[30]

Taste test problems

In his book Blink: The Power of Thinking Without Thinking (2005), Malcolm Gladwell relates his conversations with market researchers in the food industry who put most of the blame for the failure of New Coke on the flawed nature of taste tests. They claim most are subject to systematic biases. Tests such as the Pepsi Challenge were "sip tests", meaning that drinkers were given small samples (less than a can or bottle's worth) to try. Gladwell contends that what people say they like in these tests may not reflect what they actually buy to drink at home over several days.^[31] Carol Dollard, who once worked in product development for Pepsi, told Gladwell: "I've seen many times where the sip test will give you one result and the home-use test will give you the exact opposite."^{[31]:159} For example, although many consumers react positively to the sweeter taste of Pepsi in small volumes, it may become unattractively sweet when drunk in quantity. A more comprehensive testing regimen could possibly have revealed this, Gladwell's sources believe.^[31]

Gladwell reports that other market researchers have criticized Coke for not realizing that much of its success as a brand came from what they call sensation transference, a phenomenon first described by marketer Louis Cheskin in the late 1940s: tasters unconsciously add their reactions to the drink's packaging into their assessment of the taste.^[32] For example, one of the researchers told Gladwell that his firm's research found 7-Up drinkers believed a sample from a bottle with a more yellow label was more "lemony", although the flavor was identical.^{[31]:163} In Coke's case, it is alleged that buyers, subject to sensation transference, were also "tasting" the red color of the container and distinctive Coca-Cola script. It was therefore, in their opinion, a mistake to focus solely on the product and its taste. "The mistake Coke made was in attributing their loss in share entirely to the product." said Darrel Rhea, an executive with the firm Cheskin founded. He points to Pepsi's work in establishing a youth-oriented brand identity from the 1960s as having more bearing on its success.^[33]

Coke considered but rejected gradually changing the drink's flavor incrementally, without announcing they were doing so. Executives feared the public would notice and exaggerate slight differences in taste. In 1998, Joel Dubow, a professor of food marketing at St. Joseph's University, tested this "flavor balance hypothesis" and argued that it was not true. He and fellow researcher Nancy Childs tested mixtures of Coca-Cola Classic and Coke II and found that the gradual changes of taste were not noticed by a significant number of tasters. Coke, he said, would have succeeded had it chosen this strategy.^[34]

2019 comeback

On May 21, 2019, Coca-Cola announced that the 1985 reformulation (once again bearing the name "New Coke") would be reintroduced in limited quantities to promote the third season of the Netflix series Stranger Things.^[35] The show, set in 1985, included cans of New Coke in three of the season's episodes.^[36]

About 500,000 cans of New Coke were produced for the promotion,^[37] to be sold mostly online.^[38] So many people were eager to buy it, however, that the volume of orders crashed the Coca-Cola website. Many fans complained because they wanted to order some, and the company apologized for the delays on social media platforms. It was also available in select vending machines in cities such as New York and Los Angeles.^[38]

The reintroduced drink got friendlier reviews than it had in 1985. A writer at BuzzFeed said it was "nice and refreshing", lacking the lingering aftertaste of Classic Coke. "I would take this over other colas," said a colleague.^[39] Food & Wine staffers also had favorable impressions: "sweeter and smoother than regular Coke", "almost syrupy in a pleasant way", although an older one who recalled the original rollout said it had not improved for them.^[40]

Tim Murphy, a reporter for the progressive magazine Mother Jones, suggested that, in ultimately overcoming an initial resistance that he saw as reactionary, New Coke had won the war after losing the battle. "Soft-drink trends have also proven Coke right about a willingness to adapt to new tastes: A majority of Coke sales today are non-Classic products, such as Diet and Coke Zero," he wrote. This explained the favorable response from tasters. "It tasted weird then; it tastes like what's normal now."^[8]

See also

- List of defunct consumer brands
- List of Coca-Cola brands

Other soft drink failures

- Crystal Pepsi, early 1990s failure for that company that is occasionally reintroduced for limited periods
- Dasani, bottled water brand produced by Coca-Cola that failed in the United Kingdom despite huge marketing push; seen as UK equivalent of New Coke
- MagiCan, failed Coca-Cola promotion in 1986
- OK Soda, Coca-Cola brand intended to appeal to Generation X drinkers in early 1990s known for its counterintuitive marketing, managed by Sergio Zyman

Also

- Disco Demolition Night, 1979 baseball promotion that led to riot, also linked to reaction against social change

References

- Jamieson, Sean (April 5, 1990). "Coke II makes its Spokane debut" (<https://news.google.com/newspapers?id=u2tXAAAIBAJ&pg=5394%2C3867962>). Spokesman-Review. (Spokane, Washington). p. A8.
- Mikkelson, Barbara (March 13, 2007). "Knew Coke / New Coke Origin" (<http://www.snopes.com/cokelore/newcoke.asp>). Snopes.com. Retrieved March 16, 2010.
- Koten, John; Kilman, Scott (July 12, 1985). "Coca-Cola Faces Tough Marketing Task in Attempting to Sell Old and New Coke". The Wall Street Journal.
- Stevenson, Richard W. (August 20, 1985). "New Coke vs. Classic: The Verdict Is Still Out" (<https://www.nytimes.com/1985/08/20/business/new-coke-vs-classic-the-verdict-is-still-out.html>). The New York Times. Retrieved April 8, 2017.
- "The Real Story of New Coke" (<http://www.coca-colacompany.com/stories/coke-lore-new-coke>). Coke Lore. The Coca-Cola Company. Retrieved October 10, 2011.
- Demott, John S. (June 24, 1985). "All Afizz Over the New Coke" (<http://content.time.com/time/magazine/article/0,9171,959449,00.html>). Time. Retrieved April 8, 2017.
- Hays, Constance L. (2005). The Real Thing: Truth and Power at the Coca-Cola Company (<https://books.google.com/books?isbn=081297364X>) (Random House Trade pbk. ed.). New York: Random House. ISBN 978-0-8129-7364-8.
- Murphy, Tim (July 9, 2019). "New Coke Didn't Fail. It Was Murdered" (<https://www.motherjones.com/food/2019/07/what-if-weve-all-been-wrong-about-what-killed-new-coke/>). Mother Jones. Retrieved February 23, 2021.
- Pendergrast, Mark (2004). For God, Country and Coca-Cola : The Definitive History of the Great American Soft Drink and the Company that Makes It (2. ed., rev. and expanded, [Nachdr.] ed.). New York: Basic Books. ISBN 978-0-465-05468-8.
- Schindler, Robert M. (1992). "The Real Lesson of New Coke: The Value of Focus Groups for Predicting the Effects of Social Influence" (<https://archive.ama.org/archive/ResourceLibrary/MarketingResearch/Pages/1992/4/4/9602193014.aspx>). Marketing Research. 4 (4): 22 [p. 27]. ISSN 1040-8460 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/1040-8460>).
- Oliver, Thomas (1987). The Real Coke, The Real Story (<https://books.google.com/books?id=yZTAAAAQBAJ>) (Repr ed.). New York: Penguin Books. ISBN 978-0140104080.

12. Horowitz, Roger (January 8, 2013) "The Real Thing: How Coke Became Kosher" (<https://www.sciencehistory.org/distillations/magazine/the-real-thing-how-coke-became-kosher>), Science History Institute. Retrieved July 4, 2019
13. Matthews, Blair (Spring 2005). "Coca Cola's Big Mistake: New Coke 20 Years Later ..." (https://web.archive.org/web/20080705232713/http://www.sodaspectrum.com/36_newcoke.htm) Soda Pop Dreams. Archived from the original (http://www.sodapopdreamsmagazine.com/36_newcoke.htm) on July 5, 2008. Retrieved June 16, 2006. Alt URL (<http://newyork10.cityspur.com/2009/12/coca-colas-big-mistake-new-coke-20-years-later/>)
14. "Coke Flavor-Suit Rejected" (<https://query.nytimes.com/gst/fullpage.html?res=9F03E2D81039F932A15755C0A963948260>). UPI. June 21, 1985.
15. Barry, Daniel (2003). "The People v. Coke". Trouble at the Top. BBC2.
16. "Top Ten Bad Beverage Ideas" (http://content.time.com/time/specials/packages/article/0,28804,1913612_1913610_1913608,00.html). Time. Retrieved October 23, 2020.
17. "Topics; Cars and Cola Jokes" (<https://www.nytimes.com/1985/10/23/opinion/topics-cars-and-colas-coke-jokes.html>). The New York Times. October 23, 1985. Retrieved July 17, 2019.
18. McKay, Betsy (January 30, 2009). "Coke to Omit 'Classic'" (<https://www.wsj.com/articles/SB123332768434033495>). The Wall Street Journal.
19. TIME; July 22, 1985; 48
20. "Roger Enrico, the president of Pepsi-Cola U.S.A., was quick to proclaim the 10-week-old new Coke "the Edsel of the 80's" "IDEAS & TRENDS - Coca-Cola Swallows Its Words" (<https://www.nytimes.com/1985/07/14/weekinreview/ideas-trends-coca-cola-swallows-its-words.html>). The New York Times. July 14, 1985.
21. Enrico, Roger; Kornbluth, Jesse (1988). The Other Guy Blinked: How Pepsi Won the Cola Wars. New York, NY: Bantam Books. p. 240. ISBN 978-0-553-26632-0.
22. Bigford, Andrew. "Last Run: Sergio Zyman" (http://www.skimag.com/skimag/fall_line/article/0,12795,327802,00.html). SKI Magazine. Retrieved June 14, 2006.
23. Smith, Gary (October 15, 2006) [1998]. Introduction to Statistical Reasoning (<http://www.lhs.logan.k12.ut.us/~jsmart/cokedoc.htm>). McGraw Hill. pp. 186–87.
24. "Max & N-N-New Coke" (http://www.maxheadroom.com/mh_c_newcoke.html). The Max Headroom Chronicles. 2005. Retrieved December 14, 2006.
25. "Highlights in the History of Coca-Cola Television Advertising" (<http://rs6.loc.gov/ammem/ccmphtml/colahist.html>). Library of Congress. Retrieved June 22, 2006.
26. Onstad, Katrina (July 14, 2011). "Miranda July, The Make-Believer" (<https://www.nytimes.com/2011/07/17/magazine/the-make-believer.html?pagewanted=5&r=2&ref=movies>). The New York Times.
27. John H. McConnell; How to Design, Implement and Interpret an Employee Survey, AMACOM Division of the American Management Association, ISBN 0-8144-0709-9, 2003, 3.
28. Clifford, Stephen (January 31, 2009). "Coca-Cola Deleting 'Classic' From Coke Label" (<https://www.nytimes.com/2009/01/31/business/media/31coke.html>). The New York Times. Retrieved October 3, 2011.
29. Nudd, Tim (February 24, 2006). "Where are the last few cans of New Coke?" (http://adweek.blogs.com/adfreak/2006/02/where_are_the_l.html). AdWeek. Retrieved June 26, 2006.
30. "New Coke History America" (<http://time.com/3950205/new-coke-history-america/>). TIME.
31. Gladwell, Malcolm (2005). Blink: The Power of Thinking Without Thinking (<https://archive.org/details/blinkpowerofthin00glad>) (1. ed.). New York (etc.): Back Bay. ISBN 978-0-316-17232-5.
32. Cheskin, Louis; Ward, L.B. (September 1948). "Indirect Approach to Market Reactions". Harvard Business Review.

33. Gordon, Ian; Frank, Thomas (December 1999). "The Conquest of Cool: Business Culture, Counterculture, and the Rise of Hip Consumerism". The Journal of American History. 86 (3): 1396. doi:10.2307/2568708 (<https://doi.org/10.2307%2F2568708>). JSTOR 2568708 (<https://www.jstor.org/stable/2568708>).
34. Dubow, Joel S; Childs, Nancy M (November 1998). "New Coke, Mixture Perception, and the Flavor Balance Hypothesis". Journal of Business Research. 43 (3): 147–155. doi:10.1016/s0148-2963\(97\)00220-800220-8) (<https://doi.org/10.1016%2Fs0148-2963%2897%2900220-8>).
35. New Coke is coming back and it's all because of Netflix's hit show "Stranger Things" (<https://www.cbsnews.com/news/new-coke-failed-coca-cola-soft-drink-released-netflix-stranger-things-season-3-july-4/>) CBS News, May 21, 2019
36. Haasch, Palmer (July 6, 2019). "New Coke is the weirdest pop culture throwback in Stranger Things 3" (<https://www.polygon.com/2019/7/6/20683542/stranger-things-3-new-coke-1985-coca-cola-where-to-buy>). polygon.com. Vox Media. Retrieved September 5, 2020.
37. "New Coke and Netflix Take Viewers Back to 1985 for Stranger Things Season 3 in First-of-its-Kind Partnership" (<https://www.coca-colacompany.com/stories/new-coke-and-netflix-take-viewers-back-to-1985-for-stranger-things>). The Coca-Cola Company. Retrieved May 21, 2019.
38. Fredette, Meagan. "'Stranger Things' Brought Back New Coke & Broke The Internet" (<https://www.refinery29.com/en-us/2019/05/233769/stranger-things-3-new-coke>). www.refinery29.com. Retrieved March 27, 2020.
39. Suknanan, Jasmin (May 25, 2019). "'New Coke' Is Back After 34 Years—Here's What It Tastes Like" (<https://www.buzzfeed.com/jasminuknanan/new-coke-1980s-taste-test>). BuzzFeed. Retrieved February 24, 2021.
40. Campbell-Schmitt, Adam (May 29, 2019). "We Compared New Coke to Coca-Cola—Here Are Our Thoughts" (<https://www.foodandwine.com/news/new-coke-vs-coca-cola-taste-test>). Food & Wine. Retrieved February 24, 2021.

Further reading

- Civille, Gail Vance; Lyon, Brenda G. (1996). Aroma and Flavor Lexicon for Sensory Evaluation. West Conshohocken, PA: American Society for Testing and Materials.
- Hine, Thomas (1997). The Total Package: The Secret History and Hidden Meanings of Boxes, Bottles, Cans, and Other Persuasive Containers (<https://archive.org/details/totalpackage00thom>). Back Bay Books. ISBN 978-0-316-36546-8.
- Imram, Nazlin (1999). "The role of visual cues in customer perception and acceptance of a food product". Nutrition & Food Science. 99 (5): 224–230. doi:10.1108/00346659910277650 (<https://doi.org/10.1108%2F00346659910277650>).
- Leven, S.; Levine, D. (1996). "Multiattribute Decision Making in Context: A Dynamic Neural Network Methodology" (http://mypage.uniserve.ca/~j_montie/Coke.html). Cognitive Science. 20 (2): 271–299. doi:10.1207/s15516709cog2002_4 (https://doi.org/10.1207%2Fs15516709cog2002_4).
- Meilgaard, Morten; Civille, Gail Vance; Carr, B. Thomas (1999). Sensory Evaluation Techniques (Third ed.). Boca Raton, FL: CRC Press.
- Wilson, Timothy; Schooler, Jonathan (1999). "Thinking Too Much: Introspection Can Reduce the Quality of Preferences and Decisions". Journal of Personality and Social Psychology. 60 (2): 181–192. doi:10.1037/0022-3514.60.2.181 (<https://doi.org/10.1037%2F0022-3514.60.2.181>). PMID 2016668 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/2016668>).

External links

- Bastedo, Michael; Davis, Angela. "God, What a Blunder: The New Coke Story" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20060515214006/http://members.lycos.co.uk/thomassheils/newcoke.htm>). lycos.co.uk.

Archived from the original on May 15, 2006. With a good talk on the problems of their research methodologies (focus groups v. surveys).

- "Coke Lore \(Knew Coke\) — Snopes' take on New Coke" (<http://www.snopes.com/cokelore/newcoke.asp>). Snopes.
 - "Coke Lore: New Coke" (<http://www.coca-colacompany.com/stories/coke-lore-new-coke>). Coca-Cola.
 - "New Coke - a market research disaster?" (<http://stjohnscollegeblog.weebly.com/1/post/2012/2/new-coke-a-market-research-disaster.html>). St John's College Blog. 2012.
 - "QuickTime news clip on New Coke introduction" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20080228192304/http://edition.cnn.com/resources/video.almanac/1985/coke/new.coke.50sec.lg.mov>). KTLA. Los Angeles: CNN. Archived from the original on February 28, 2008.
-

Retrieved from "https://en.wikipedia.org/w/index.php?title=New_Coke&oldid=1025890144"

This page was last edited on 30 May 2021, at 05:24 (UTC).

Text is available under the Creative Commons Attribution-ShareAlike License; additional terms may apply. By using this site, you agree to the Terms of Use and Privacy Policy. Wikipedia® is a registered trademark of the Wikimedia Foundation, Inc., a non-profit organization.

George Soros

George Soros^[a] HonFBA (born György Schwartz, August 12, 1930)^{[1][2]} is a Hungarian-born American^[b] billionaire investor and philanthropist.^{[10][11]} As of March 2021, he had a net worth of US$8.6 billion,^{[6][12]} having donated more than $32 billion to the Open Society Foundations,^[13] of which $15 billion have already been distributed, representing 64% of his original fortune, making him the "most generous giver" (in terms of percentage of net worth) according to Forbes.^[14]

Born in Budapest, Soros survived the German occupation of Hungary and moved to the United Kingdom in 1947. He studied at the London School of Economics and was awarded a bachelor's, then obtaining a master's, and eventually a Doctor of Philosophy (Ph.D.) from University of London.^{[4][5]} Soros began his business career by taking various jobs at merchant banks in the United Kingdom and then the United States, before starting his first hedge fund, Double Eagle, in 1969. Profits from his first fund furnished the seed money to start Soros Fund Management, his second hedge fund, in 1970. Double Eagle was renamed to Quantum Fund and was the principal firm Soros advised. At its founding, Quantum Fund had $12 million in assets under management, and as of 2011 it had $25 billion, the majority of Soros's overall net worth.^[15]

Soros is known as "The Man Who Broke the Bank of England" because of his short sale of US$10 billion worth of pounds sterling, which made him a profit of $1 billion during the 1992 Black Wednesday UK currency crisis.^[16] Based on his early studies of philosophy, Soros formulated the General Theory of Reflexivity for capital markets, which he says renders a clear picture of asset bubbles and fundamental/market value of securities, as well as value discrepancies used for shorting and swapping stocks.^[17]

Soros is a supporter of progressive and liberal political causes, to which he dispenses donations through his foundation, the Open Society Foundations.^[18] Between 1979 and 2011, he donated more than $11 billion to various philanthropic causes;^{[19][20]} by 2017, his donations "on civil initiatives to reduce poverty and increase transparency, and on scholarships and universities around the world" totaled $12 billion.^[21] He influenced the collapse of communism in Eastern Europe in the late 1980s and early 1990s,^[22] and provided one of Europe's largest higher education endowments to the Central European University in his Hungarian hometown.^[23]

George Soros

HonFBA

Soros at the 2011 Munich Security Conference

Conference

Born	György Schwartz ^{[1][2]} August 12, 1930 Budapest, Kingdom of Hungary
Citizenship	Hungary United States ^[3]
Education	London School of Economics (BA, MA, DPhil) ^{[4][5]}
Occupation	Investor, hedge fund manager, author, and philanthropist
Known for	Philanthropy Managing Soros Fund Management Founding the Open Society Foundations Advising the Quantum Fund
Net worth	US$8.6 billion (March 2021) ^[6]

His extensive funding of political causes has made him a "bugaboo of European nationalists".^[24] The New York Times reported in October 2018 that "conspiracy theories about him have gone mainstream, to nearly every corner of the Republican Party".^[25] Numerous American conservatives have promoted false claims that characterize Soros as a singularly dangerous "puppet master" behind many alleged global plots.^{[25][26][27][28]} Conspiracy theories targeting Soros, who is of Jewish descent, have often been described as antisemitic.^{[29][30][31]}

Spouse(s)	Annaliese Witschak (m. 1960; div. 1983) Susan Weber (m. 1983; div. 2005) Tamiko Bolton (m. 2013)
Children	5, including Jonathan and Alexander
Relatives	Paul Soros (brother)
Website	Official website (http://georgesoros.com)

Contents

Early life and education

Investment career

Early business experience

Singer and Friedlander

F. M. Mayer

Wertheim and Co.

Arnhold and S. Bleichroeder

Soros Fund Management

Economic crisis in the 1990s and 2000s

Société Générale insider trade

Personal life

Political involvement

Central and Eastern Europe

Africa

Support of separatist movements

Drug policy reform

Death and dying

Conspiracy theories and threats

Attempted assassination

Political and economic views

Reflexivity, financial markets, and economic theory

Reflexivity in politics

View of problems in the free market system

Market predictions

Views on antisemitism and Israel

Views on the U.S.

Views on Europe

Views on relations between Europe and Africa

Views on China

Views on Russia and Ukraine

Wealth and philanthropy

Honors and awardsPublications and scholarshipBooks authored or co-authoredJournalismSee also*Notes*References*Further readingBiographiesJournalismScholarly perspectivesExternal links

Early life and education

Soros was born in Budapest in the Kingdom of Hungary to a prosperous non-observant Jewish family, who, like many upper-middle class Hungarian Jews at the time, were uncomfortable with their roots. Soros has wryly described his home as a Jewish antisemitic home.^[32] His mother Erzsébet (also known as Elizabeth) came from a family that owned a thriving silk shop. His father Tivadar (also known as Teodoro Švarc) was a lawyer^[33] and a well-known Esperanto-speaker who edited the Esperanto literary magazine Literatura Mondo and raised his son to speak the language.^[34] Tivadar had also been a prisoner of war during and after World War I until he escaped from Russia and rejoined his family in Budapest.^{[35][36]} The two married in 1924. In 1936, Soros's family changed their name from the German-Jewish Schwartz to Soros, as protective camouflage in increasingly antisemitic Hungary.^{[37][38]} Tivadar liked the new name because it is a palindrome and because of its meaning. In Hungarian, soros means "next in line," or "designated successor"; in Esperanto it means "will soar."^{[39][40][41]}

Soros was 13 years old in March 1944 when Nazi Germany occupied Hungary.^[42] The Nazis barred Jewish children from attending school, and Soros and the other schoolchildren were made to report to the Judenrat ("Jewish Council"), which had been established during the occupation. Soros later described this time to writer Michael Lewis: "The Jewish Council asked the little kids to hand out the deportation notices. I was told to go to the Jewish Council. And there I was given these small slips of paper ... I took this piece of paper to my father. He instantly recognized it. This was a list of Hungarian Jewish lawyers. He said, 'You deliver the slips of paper and tell the people that if they report they will be deported.'^{[43][44]}

Soros did not return to that job; his family survived the war by purchasing documents to say that they were Christians. Later that year at age 14, Soros posed as the Christian godson of an official of the collaborationist Hungarian government's Ministry of Agriculture, who himself had a Jewish wife in hiding. On one occasion, rather than leave the 14-year-old alone, the official took Soros with him while completing an inventory of a Jewish family's confiscated estate. Tivadar saved not only his immediate family but also many other Hungarian Jews, and Soros later wrote that 1944 had been "the happiest [year] of his life," for it had given him the opportunity to witness his father's heroism.^{[45][46]} In 1945, Soros survived the Siege of Budapest, in which Soviet and German forces fought house-to-house through the city.

In 1947, Soros moved to England and became a student at the London School of Economics.^[47] While a student of the philosopher Karl Popper, Soros worked as a railway porter and as a waiter, and once received £40 from a Quaker charity.^[48] Soros would sometimes stand at Speakers' Corner lecturing about the virtues of internationalism in Esperanto, which he had learned from his father.^[49]

From the London School of Economics, Soros graduated as a Bachelor of Science in philosophy in 1951, and a Master of Science in philosophy in 1954.^{[4][5][50]} He later received the degree of Doctor of Philosophy from the University of London.

Investment career

Early business experience

In a discussion at the Los Angeles World Affairs Council in 2006, Alvin Shuster, former foreign editor of the Los Angeles Times, asked Soros, "How does one go from an immigrant to a financier? ... When did you realize that you knew how to make money?" Soros replied, "Well, I had a variety of jobs and I ended up selling fancy goods on the seaside, souvenir shops, and I thought, that's really not what I was cut out to do. So, I wrote to every managing director in every merchant bank in London, got just one or two replies, and eventually that's how I got a job in a merchant bank."^[51]

Singer and Friedlander

In 1954, Soros began his financial career at the merchant bank Singer & Friedlander of London. He worked as a clerk and later moved to the arbitrage department. A fellow employee, Robert Mayer, suggested he apply at his father's brokerage house, F.M. Mayer of New York.^[52]

F. M. Mayer

In 1956, Soros moved to New York City, where he worked as an arbitrage trader for F. M. Mayer (1956–59). He specialized in European stocks, which were becoming popular with U.S. institutional investors following the formation of the Coal and Steel Community, which later became the Common Market.^[53]

Wertheim and Co.

In 1959, after three years at F. M. Mayer, Soros moved to Wertheim & Co.. He planned to stay for five years, enough time to save $500,000, after which he intended to return to England to study philosophy.^[54] He worked as an analyst of European securities until 1963.

During this period, Soros developed the theory of reflexivity to extend the ideas of his tutor at the London School of Economics, Karl Popper. Reflexivity posits that market values are often driven by the fallible ideas of participants, not only by the economic fundamentals of the situation. Ideas and events influence each other in reflexive feedback loops. Soros argued that this process leads to markets having procyclical "virtuous" or "vicious" cycles of boom and bust, in contrast to the equilibrium predictions of more standard neoclassical economics.^{[55][56]}

Arnhold and S. Bleichroeder

From 1963 to 1973, Soros's experience as a vice president at Arnhold and S. Bleichroeder resulted in little enthusiasm for the job; business was slack following the introduction of the Interest Equalization Tax, which undermined the viability of Soros's European trading. He spent the years from 1963 to 1966 with his main focus on the revision of his philosophy dissertation. In 1966 he started a fund with $100,000 of the firm's money to experiment with his trading strategies.

In 1969, Soros set up the Double Eagle hedge fund with $4m of investors' capital including $250,000 of his own money.^[57] It was based in Curaçao, Dutch Antilles.^[58] Double Eagle itself was an offshoot of Arnhold and S. Bleichroeder's First Eagle fund established by Soros and that firm's chairman Henry H. Arnhold in 1967.^[59] ^[60]

In 1973, the Double Eagle Fund had $12 million and formed the basis of the Soros Fund. George Soros and Jim Rogers received returns on their share of capital and 20 percent of the profits each year.^[53]

Soros Fund Management

In 1970, Soros founded Soros Fund Management and became its chairman. Among those who held senior positions there at various times were Jim Rogers, Stanley Druckenmiller, Mark Schwartz, Keith Anderson, and Soros's two sons.^[61]^[62]^[63]

In 1973, due to perceived conflicts of interest limiting his ability to run the two funds, Soros resigned from the management of the Double Eagle Fund. He then established the Soros Fund and gave investors in the Double Eagle Fund the option of transferring to that or staying with Arnhold and S. Bleichroeder.

It was later renamed the Quantum Fund, after the physical theory of quantum mechanics. By that time the value of the fund had grown to $12m, only a small proportion of which was Soros's own money. He and Jim Rogers reinvested their returns from the fund, and also a large part of their 20% performance fees, thereby expanding their stake.^[52]

By 1981, the fund had grown to $400m, and then a 22% loss in that year and substantial redemptions by some of the investors reduced it to $200m.^[64]

In July 2011, Soros announced that he had returned funds from outside investors' money (valued at $1 billion) and instead invested funds from his $24.5 billion family fortune, due to changes in U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission disclosure rules, which he felt would compromise his duties of confidentiality to his investors. The fund had at that time averaged over 20% per year compound returns.^[65]

In 2013, the Quantum Fund made $5.5 billion, making it again the most successful hedge fund in history. Since its inception in 1973, the fund has generated $40 billion.^[66]

The fund announced in 2015 that it would inject $300 million to help finance the expansion of Fen Hotels, an Argentine hotel company. The funds will develop 5,000 rooms over the next three years throughout various Latin American countries.^[67]

Economic crisis in the 1990s and 2000s

Soros had been building a huge short position in pounds sterling for months leading up to September 1992. Soros had recognized the unfavorable position of the United Kingdom in the European Exchange Rate Mechanism. For Soros, the rate at which the United Kingdom was brought into the European

Exchange Rate Mechanism was too high, their inflation was also much too high (triple the German rate), and British interest rates were hurting their asset prices.^[68]

By September 16, 1992, the day of Black Wednesday, Soros's fund had sold short more than $10 billion in pounds,^[61] profiting from the UK government's reluctance to either raise its interest rates to levels comparable to those of other European Exchange Rate Mechanism countries or float its currency.

Finally, the UK withdrew from the European Exchange Rate Mechanism, devaluing the pound. Soros's profit on the bet was estimated at over $1 billion.^[69] He was dubbed "the man who broke the Bank of England".^[70] The estimated cost of Black Wednesday to the UK Treasury was £3.4 billion.^[71] Stanley Druckenmiller, who traded under Soros, originally saw the weakness in the pound and stated: "[Soros's] contribution was pushing him to take a gigantic position."^{[72][73]}

On October 26, 1992, The New York Times quoted Soros as saying: "Our total position by Black Wednesday had to be worth almost $10 billion. We planned to sell more than that. In fact, when Norman Lamont said just before the devaluation that he would borrow nearly $15 billion to defend sterling, we were amused because that was about how much we wanted to sell."

Soros was believed to have traded billions of Finnish markkas on February 5, 1996, in anticipation of selling them short. The markka had been put floating as a result of the early 1990s depression. The Bank of Finland and the Finnish Government commented at the time they believed that a "conspiracy" was impossible.^[74]

In 1997, during the Asian financial crisis, the prime minister of Malaysia, Mahathir Mohamad, accused Soros of using the wealth under his control to punish the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN) for welcoming Myanmar as a member. With a history of antisemitic remarks, Mahathir made specific reference to Soros's Jewish background ("It is a Jew who triggered the currency plunge")^[75] and implied Soros was orchestrating the crash as part of a larger Jewish conspiracy. Nine years later, in 2006, Mahathir met with Soros and afterward stated that he accepted that Soros had not been responsible for the crisis.^[76] In 1998's The Crisis of Global Capitalism: Open Society Endangered, Soros explained his role in the crisis as follows:

The financial crisis that originated in Thailand in 1997 was particularly unnerving because of its scope and severity ... By the beginning of 1997, it was clear to Soros Fund Management that the discrepancy between the trade account and the capital account was becoming untenable. We sold short the Thai baht and the Malaysian ringgit early in 1997 with maturities ranging from six months to a year. (That is, we entered into contracts to deliver at future dates Thai baht and Malaysian ringgit that we did not currently hold.) Subsequently, Prime Minister Mahathir of Malaysia accused me of causing the crisis, a wholly unfounded accusation. We were not sellers of the currency during or several months before the crisis; on the contrary, we were buyers when the currencies began to decline—we were purchasing ringgits to realize the profits on our earlier speculation. (Much too soon, as it turned out. We left most of the potential gain on the table because we were afraid that Mahathir would impose capital controls. He did so, but much later.)^[77]

In 1999, economist Paul Krugman was critical of Soros's effect on financial markets.

[N]obody who has read a business magazine in the last few years can be unaware that these days there really are investors who not only move money in anticipation of a currency crisis, but actually do their best to trigger that crisis for fun and profit. These new actors on the scene do not yet have a standard name; my proposed term is 'Soroi'.^[78]

In an interview concerning the late-2000s recession, Soros referred to it as the most serious crisis since the 1930s. According to Soros, market fundamentalism with its assumption that markets will correct themselves with no need for government intervention in financial affairs has been "some kind of an ideological excess." In Soros's view, the markets' moods—a "mood" of the markets being a prevailing bias or optimism/pessimism with which the markets look at reality—"actually can reinforce themselves so that there are these initially self-reinforcing but eventually unsustainable and self-defeating boom/bust sequences or bubbles."^[79]

In reaction to the late-2000s recession, he founded the Institute for New Economic Thinking in October 2009. This is a think tank composed of international economic, business, and financial experts, who are mandated to investigate radical new approaches to organizing the international economic and financial system.

Société Générale insider trade

In 1988, Soros was contacted by a French financier named Georges Pébereau, who asked him to participate in an effort to assemble a group of investors to purchase a large number of shares in Société Générale, a leading French bank that was part of a privatization program (something instituted by the new government under Jacques Chirac).^[80] Soros eventually decided against participating in the group effort, opting to personally move forward with his strategy of accumulating shares in four French companies: Société Générale, as well as Suez, Paribas, and the Compagnie Générale d'Électricité.

In 1989, the Commission des Opérations de Bourse (COB, the French stock exchange regulatory authority) conducted an investigation of whether Soros's transaction in Société Générale should be considered insider trading. Soros had received no information from the Société Générale and had no insider knowledge of the business, but he did possess knowledge that a group of investors was planning a takeover attempt. Initial investigations found Soros innocent, and no charges were brought forward.^[81] However, the case was reopened a few years later, and the French Supreme Court confirmed the conviction on June 14, 2006,^[82] although it reduced the penalty to €940,000.^[82]

Soros denied any wrongdoing, saying news of the takeover was public knowledge^[83] and it was documented that his intent to acquire shares of the company predated his own awareness of the takeover.^[82] In December 2006, he appealed to the European Court of Human Rights on various grounds, including that the 14-year delay in bringing the case to trial precluded a fair hearing.^[84] On the basis of Article 7 of the European Convention on Human Rights, stating that no person may be punished for an act that was not a criminal offense at the time that it was committed, the court agreed to hear the appeal.^[80] In October 2011, the court rejected his appeal in a 4–3 decision, saying that Soros had been aware of the risk of breaking insider trading laws.^[85]

Personal life

Soros has been married three times and divorced twice. In 1960, he married Annaliese Witschak (born January 3, 1934). Annaliese was an ethnic German immigrant, who had been orphaned during the war. Although she was not Jewish, she was well-liked by Soros's parents as she had also experienced the privation and displacement brought about by World War II.^[86] They divorced in 1983. They had three children:

- Robert Daniel Soros (born 1963): The founder of the Central European University in Budapest, as well as a network of foundations in Eastern Europe. In 1992, he married Melissa Robin Schiff at the Temple Emanu-El in New York City. The Rabbi Dr. David Posner officiated the ceremony.^[87]
- Andrea Soros Colombel (born June 11, 1965): The founder and president of Trace Foundation, established in 1993 to promote the cultural continuity and sustainable development of Tibetan communities within China. She is also a founding partner and member of the board of directors of the Acumen Fund, a global venture fund that employs an entrepreneurial approach in addressing the problems of global poverty.^[88] She is married to Eric Colombel (born October 26, 1963).
- Jonathan Tivadar Soros (born September 10, 1970): A hedge fund manager and political donor. In 2012, he co-founded Friends of Democracy, a super PAC dedicated to reducing the influence of money in politics. In 1997, he married Jennifer Ann Allan (born November 26, 1969).^[89]

In 1983, George Soros married Susan Weber. They divorced in 2005. They have two children:

- Alexander Soros (born 1985): Alexander has gained prominence for his donations to social and political causes, focusing his philanthropic efforts on "progressive causes that might not have widespread support."^[90] Alexander led the list of student political donors in the 2010 election cycle.^[91]
- Gregory James Soros (born 1988), artist.

In 2008, Soros met Tamiko Bolton;^[92] they married September 21, 2013.^[93] Bolton is the daughter of a Japanese-American nurse and a retired naval commander, Robert Bolton. She was raised in California, earned an MBA from the University of Miami, and runs an Internet-based dietary supplement and vitamin-sales company.^[94]

Soros's older brother Paul Soros, a private investor and philanthropist, died on June 15, 2013.^[95] Also an engineer, Paul headed Soros Associates and established the Paul and Daisy Soros Fellowships for Young Americans.^{[96][97]} He was married to Daisy Soros (née Schlenger), who, like her husband, was a Hungarian Jewish immigrant,^[98] and with whom he had two sons, Peter and Jeffrey.^[99] Peter Soros was married to the former Flora Fraser, a daughter of Lady Antonia Fraser and the late Sir Hugh Fraser and a stepdaughter of the late 2005 Nobel Laureate Harold Pinter. Fraser and Soros separated in 2009.^[100]

In 2005, Soros was a minority partner in a group that tried to buy the Washington Nationals, a Major League baseball team. Some Republican lawmakers suggested that they might move to revoke Major League Baseball's antitrust exemption if Soros bought the team.^[101] In 2008, Soros's name was associated with AS Roma, an Italian association football team, but the club was not sold. Soros was a financial backer of Washington Soccer L.P., the group that owned the operating rights to Major League Soccer club D.C. United when the league was founded in 1995, but the group lost these rights in 2000.^[102] On August 21, 2012, BBC reported SEC filings showing Soros acquired roughly a 1.9 percent stake in English football club Manchester United through the purchase of 3.1 million of the club's Class-A shares.^[103]

Political involvement

Until the 2004 presidential election, Soros had not been a large donor to U.S. political campaigns. According to the Center for Responsive Politics, during the 2003–2004 election cycle, Soros donated $23,581,000 to various 527 Groups (tax-exempt groups under the United States tax code, 26 U.S.C. §

527). The groups aimed to defeat President George W. Bush. After Bush's reelection, Soros and other donors backed a new political fundraising group called Democracy Alliance, which supports progressive causes and the formation of a stronger progressive infrastructure in America.^[104]

In August 2009, Soros donated $35 million to the state of New York to be earmarked for underprivileged children and given to parents who had benefit cards at the rate of $200 per child aged 3 through 17, with no limit as to the number of children that qualified. An additional $140 million was put into the fund by the state of New York from money they had received from the 2009 federal recovery act.^[48]

Soros was an initial donor to the Center for American Progress, and he continues to support the organization through the Open Society Foundations.

In October 2011, a Reuters story, "Soros: Not a funder of Wall Street Protests," was published after several commentators pointed out errors in an earlier Reuters story headlined "Who's Behind the Wall St. Protests?" with a lead stating that the Occupy Wall Street movement "may have benefited indirectly from the largesse of one of the world's richest men [Soros]." Reuters's follow-up article also reported a Soros spokesman and Adbusters' co-founder Kalle Lasn both saying that Adbusters—the reputed catalyst for the first Occupy Wall Street protests—had never received any contributions from Soros, contrary to Reuters's earlier story that reported that "indirect financial links" existed between the two as late as 2010.^{[105][106]}

On September 27, 2012, Soros announced that he was donating $1 million to the super PAC backing President Barack Obama's reelection Priorities USA Action.^[107] In October 2013, Soros donated $25,000 to Ready for Hillary, becoming a co-chairman of the super PAC's national finance committee.^[108] In June 2015, he donated $1 million to the Super PAC Priorities USA Action, which supported Hillary Clinton in the 2016 presidential race. He donated $6 million to the PAC in December 2015 and $2.5 million in August 2016.^[109] Soros launched a new super PAC called Democracy PAC for the 2020 election cycle. By July 2019, he had donated $5.1 million to it.^[110]

Since 2016, Soros has been donating sums exceeding $1 million to the campaigns of progressive criminal justice reform proponents through the Safety and Justice PAC in local district attorney elections. In many districts, such large contributions were unprecedented and the campaigning strategy was "turned on its head" with a focus on incarceration, police misconduct and bail system, according to the Los Angeles Times.^{[111][112]} Larry Krasner was elected as the District Attorney of Philadelphia with the help of a $1.5 million ad campaign funded by Soros in 2017.^[113]

In the second quarter of 2020, Soros gave at least $500,000 to presumptive Democratic presidential nominee Joe Biden, becoming one of the campaign's largest donors.^[114]

Central and Eastern Europe

According to Waldemar A. Nielsen, an authority on American philanthropy,^[115] "[Soros] has undertaken ... nothing less than to open up the once-closed communist societies of Eastern Europe to a free flow of ideas and scientific knowledge from the outside world."^[116] From 1979, as an advocate of 'open societies', Soros financially supported dissidents including Poland's Solidarity movement, Charter 77 in Czechoslovakia and Andrei Sakharov in the Soviet Union.^[117] In 1984, he founded his first Open Society Institute in Hungary with a budget of $3 million.^[118]

Since the fall of the Soviet Union, Soros' funding has played an important role in the newly independent countries. A 2017 study found that a grant program by George Soros which awarded funding to over 28,000 scientists in the former Soviet republics shortly after the end of the Soviet Union "more than doubled publications on the margin, significantly induced scientists to remain in the science sector, and had long-lasting [beneficial] impacts."^[119] His funding of pro-democratic programs in Georgia was considered by Georgian nationalists to be crucial to the success of the Rose Revolution, although Soros has said that his role has been "greatly exaggerated."^[120] Alexander Lomaia, Secretary of the Georgian Security Council and former Minister of Education and Science, is a former Executive Director of the Open Society Georgia Foundation (Soros Foundation), overseeing a staff of 50 and a budget of $2.5 million.^[121]

Former Georgian foreign minister Salomé Zourabichvili wrote that institutions like the Soros Foundation were the cradle of democratization and that all the NGOs that gravitated around the Soros Foundation undeniably carried the revolution. She opines that after the revolution the Soros Foundation and the NGOs were integrated into power.^[122]

Some Soros-backed pro-democracy initiatives have been banned in Kazakhstan and Turkmenistan.^[123] Ercis Kurtulus, head of the Social Transparency Movement Association (TSHD) in Turkey, said in an interview 2006 that "Soros carried out his will in Ukraine and Georgia by using these NGOs ... Last year Russia passed a special law prohibiting NGOs from taking money from foreigners. I think this should be banned in Turkey as well."^[124] In 1997, Soros closed his foundation in Belarus after it was fined $3 million by the government for "tax and currency violations." According to The New York Times 1997, the Belarusian president Alexander Lukashenko has been widely criticized in the West and in Russia for his efforts to control the Belarus Soros Foundation and other independent NGOs and to suppress civil and human rights. Soros called the fines part of a campaign to "destroy independent society."^[125]

In June 2009, Soros donated $100 million to Central Europe and Eastern Europe to counter the impact of the economic crisis on the poor, voluntary groups and non-government organisations.^[126]

Since 2012, the Hungarian Fidesz government has labelled George Soros as an enemy of the state, due to his humanitarian and political involvement in the European refugee crisis. The government has attacked OSF, the international civil support foundation created by George Soros, and tried to revoke the licence of Central European University (Budapest) (which failed mostly due to significant public outrage).^[127] In response, Soros called the government "a mafia state".^[128]

As the 2018 election period started, the government introduced public posters with a photo of Soros^[129] to create hostility in the general public towards him, using statements such as "Soros wants millions of migrants to live in Hungary", and "Soros wants to dismantle the border fence". The government also prepared a three-part law plan called the "Stop Soros package" (which followed other various law changes^[130] in the same year, hindering the workings of several international NGOs in Hungary), which would include various steps against NGOs doing volunteer work related to the refugee crisis.

In March 2017, six US senators sent a letter to then Secretary of State Rex Tillerson^[131] asking that he look into several grants the State Department and the US Agency for International Development (USAID) have given to groups funded by "left-wing" Soros. According to the Heritage Foundation, the letter expressed specific concern about Soros' influence on Macedonian politics, a concern which has also been expressed by members of the conservative Macedonian government.^[132] In the same context, the conservative group Judicial Watch has filed a Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) lawsuit against the U.S. Department of State and USAID compelling them to release records regarding $5 million transferred from USAID to Soros' Open Society branch in Macedonia. The suit alleges that the money was deliberately used to destabilize the Macedonian government.^[133] The Open Society Foundation has said its activities in Macedonia were aimed at ethnic reconciliation with the Albanian minority and other forms of assistance since the collapse of Yugoslavia.^[134]

Protesters in Tbilisi with flag of the Democratic Republic of Georgia blocking the way from the Open Society Institute office, 2005

In January 2017, the "Stop Operation Soros" (SOS) initiative was launched in Macedonia. SOS seeks to present "questions and answers about the way Soros operates worldwide" and invites citizens to contribute to the research. In a press conference held during the same month, Nenad Mircevski, one of the founders of the initiative, stated that SOS would work towards the "de-Soros-ization" of Macedonia.^[135]

Anti George Soros sentiment graffiti in Resen, Macedonia (2018). It reads: #Stop Soros #I will profit

On May 16, 2018, Soros' Open Society Foundations announced they would move its office from Budapest to Berlin, blaming the move on an "increasingly repressive" environment in Hungary.^{[136][137][138]}

Africa

The Open Society Initiative for Southern Africa is a Soros-affiliated organization.^[139]

Support of separatist movements

In November 2005, Soros said: "My personal opinion is there's no alternative but to give Kosovo independence."^[140] Soros has helped fund the non-profit group called Independent Diplomat.^[141] It represented Kosovo, the Turkish Republic of Northern Cyprus (under military occupation by Turkey since 1974),^[142] Somaliland and the Polisario Front of Western Sahara.^[141]

Drug policy reform

Soros has funded worldwide efforts to promote drug policy reform. In 2008, Soros donated $400,000 to help fund a successful ballot measure in Massachusetts known as the Massachusetts Sensible Marijuana Policy Initiative which decriminalized possession of less than 1 oz (28g) of marijuana in the state. Soros has also funded similar measures in California, Alaska, Oregon, Washington, Colorado, Nevada and Maine.^[143] Among the drug decriminalization groups that have received funding from Soros are the Lindesmith Center and Drug Policy Foundation.^[144] Soros donated $1.4 million to publicity efforts to support California's Proposition 5 in 2008, a failed ballot measure that would have expanded drug rehabilitation programs as alternatives to prison for persons convicted of non-violent drug-related offenses.^[145]

In October 2010, Soros donated $1 million to support California's Proposition 19.^[146]

According to remarks in an interview in October 2009, it is Soros' opinion that marijuana is less addictive but not appropriate for use by children and students. He himself has not used marijuana for years.^[147] Soros has been a major financier of the Drug Policy Alliance – an organization that promotes cannabis legalization – with roughly $5 million in annual contributions from one of his foundations.^[148]

Death and dying

The Project on Death in America, active from 1994 to 2003,^[149] was one of the Open Society Institute's projects, which sought to "understand and transform the culture and experience of dying and bereavement."^[150] In 1994, Soros delivered a speech in which he reported that he had offered to help his mother, a member of the right-to-die advocacy organization Hemlock Society, commit suicide.^[151] In the same speech, he also endorsed the Oregon Death with Dignity Act,^[152] proceeding to help fund its advertising campaign.^[153]

Conspiracy theories and threats

Soros' philanthropy and support for progressive causes has made him the object of many conspiracy theories, most of them originating from the political right.^{[154][155]} Veronika Bondarenko, writing for Business Insider said that "For two decades, some have seen Soros as a kind of puppet master secretly controlling the global economy and politics."^[156] The New York Times describes the allegations as moving "from the dark corners of the internet and talk radio" to "the very center of the political debate" by 2018.^[25]

Soros has become a magnet for such theories, with opponents claiming that he is behind such diverse events as the 2017 Women's March, the fact-checking website Snopes, the gun-control activism engaged in by the survivors of the Stoneman Douglas High School shooting,^{[157][158][159]} the October 2018 immigrant caravans, and the protests against then– Supreme Court nominee Brett Kavanaugh.^{[25][160]} President Donald Trump in a tweet also claimed Soros was backing the protests against Kavanaugh's nomination.^[161]

Conservatives picked up on the thread in the late 2000s, spearheaded by Fox News. Bill O'Reilly gave an almost ten-minute monologue on Soros in 2007, calling him an "extremist" and claiming he was "off-the-charts dangerous".^[158] Breitbart News, according to the London Times journalist David Aaronovitch, has regularly published articles blaming Soros for anything of which it disapproves.^[162]

Soros' opposition to Brexit (in the United Kingdom) led to a front page on the British Conservative supporting newspaper, The Daily Telegraph, in February 2018, which was accused of antisemitism for claiming he was involved in a supposed "secret plot" for the country's voters to reverse their decision to leave the European Union.^[29] While The Daily Telegraph did not mention Soros is Jewish, his opposition to Britain leaving the European Union had been reported elsewhere in less conspiratorial terms.^[30] Stephen Pollard, editor of The Jewish Chronicle, said on Twitter: "The point is that language matters so much and this is exactly the language being used by antisemites here and abroad".^{[31][163]} In October 2019, Leader of the House of Commons Jacob Rees-Mogg accused Soros of being the "funder-in-chief" of the Remain campaign, and was subsequently accused of anti-semitism by opposition MPs.^[164]

After being ousted from office in the wake of the Panama Papers scandal of 2016, Icelandic Prime Minister Sigmundur Davíð Gunnlaugsson accused Soros of having bankrolled a conspiracy to remove him from power.^{[165][166]} It was later pointed out that Soros himself had also been implicated in the Panama Papers, casting doubt on the prime minister's theory.^[167]

Following a December 20, 1998 60 Minutes interview^[168] in which Soros related his experiences when at the age of 13, the Nazis occupied his native Hungary,^[169] right-wing figures such as Alex Jones, Dinesh D'Souza, Glenn Beck, Roseanne Barr,^[170] James Woods, Ann Coulter,^[169] Louie Gohmert,^[168] Marjorie Taylor Greene,^[171] and Donald Trump Jr.,^[172] promulgated the false conspiracy theory, which has been described as anti-Semitic, that Soros was a Nazi collaborator who turned in other Jews and stole their property during the occupation.^{[173][174][175][176][177][178][179][180]}

In October 2018, Soros was accused of funding a Central American migrant caravan heading toward America.^{[181][182][183]} The theory that Soros was somehow causing Central American migration at the southern US border apparently dates back to late March 2018, however.^[184] The October 2018 strain of the theory has been described to combine anti-semitism, anti-immigrant sentiment and "the specter of powerful foreign agents controlling major world events in pursuit of a hidden agenda", connecting Soros and other wealthy individuals of Jewish faith or background to the October caravan.^[184] Donald Trump was among those promoting the conspiracy theory.^[185] Both Cesar Sayoc, the perpetrator of the October 2018 attempted bombings of prominent Democrats, and Robert Bowers, the perpetrator of the Pittsburgh synagogue shooting, referred to this conspiracy theory on social media before their crimes.^{[186][187]}

In November 2018, Turkish President Recep Tayyip Erdoğan denounced Soros while speaking about Turkey's political purges, saying: "The person who financed terrorists during the Gezi incidents is already in prison. And who is behind him? The famous Hungarian Jew Soros. This is a man who assigns people to divide nations and shatter them."^[188]

In November 2019, attorney Joseph diGenova, who is known for promoting conspiracy theories about the Department of Justice and the FBI,^[197] asserted on Fox News without evidence that Soros "controls a very large part of the career foreign service of the United States State Department" and "also controls the activities of FBI agents overseas who work for NGOs – work with NGOs. That was very evident in Ukraine."^[198] Soros's Open Society Foundation described diGenova's claims as "beyond rhetorical ugliness, beyond fiction, beyond ludicrous" and requested that Fox News provide an on-air retraction of diGenova's claims, and stop providing diGenova with a platform.^[199] Although the network never publicly announced it had banned him, diGenova has not appeared on Fox following the incident.^[200] In September 2020, diGenova suggested that Fox News is also controlled by Soros.^[200]

A study by Zignal Labs found that unsubstantiated claims of involvement by Soros were one of three dominant themes in misinformation and conspiracy theories around the 2020 George Floyd protests, alongside claims that Floyd's death had been faked and claims of involvement by antifa groups.^[201] The Anti-Defamation League estimated that over four days after Floyd's death, negative Twitter messages about Soros increased from about 20,000 per day to about 500,000 per day.^[202]

In July 2020, the President of Azerbaijan, Ilham Aliyev, after the border clashes with Armenia, stated that the 2018 Armenian revolution was "another provocation by Soros and his entourage", and called the government of the Armenian prime minister Nikol Pashinyan the "agents of the Soros Foundation",^[203] pointing out the COVID-19 pandemic related aid to Armenia by the Soros Foundation.^[204] Aliyev added that there were "no traces of the Soros Foundation in Azerbaijan", because it had had "cut off their legs" as they were "poisoning the minds of youth", turning them "against their state."^{[205][206]} In October 2020, during the height of the Second Nagorno-Karabakh war, Aliyev labelled Soros's activities a "destructive, movement, and a colonial movement." He also added that Soros "came to power in Armenia today, but failed."^[207]

Attempted assassination

A pipe bomb was placed in the mailbox at Soros's Katonah, New York, home on October 22, 2018, as part of the October 2018 United States mail bombing attempts. The package was discovered by a caretaker,^[208] who removed it and notified authorities. It was photographed and exploded by the FBI, which launched an investigation.^{[209][210]} For several days afterward, similar bombs were mailed to Hillary Clinton, Barack Obama, and other Democrats and liberals.^[211]

On October 26, 2018, Cesar Sayoc was arrested in Aventura, Florida, on suspicion of mailing the bombs.^[212] In August 2019, Sayoc was sentenced to 20 years in prison for mailing 16 pipe bombs to 13 victims. None of the devices had exploded.^[213]

Political and economic views

Reflexivity, financial markets, and economic theory

Soros's writings focus heavily on the concept of reflexivity, where the biases of individuals enter into market transactions, potentially changing the fundamentals of the economy. Soros argues that different principles apply in markets depending on whether they are in a "near to equilibrium" or a "far from equilibrium" state. He argues that, when markets are rising or falling rapidly, they are typically marked by disequilibrium rather than equilibrium, and that the conventional economic theory of the market (the "efficient market hypothesis") does not apply in these situations. Soros has popularized the concepts of dynamic disequilibrium, static disequilibrium, and near-equilibrium conditions.^[56] He has stated that his own financial success has been attributable to the edge accorded by his understanding of the action of the reflexive effect. Reflexivity is based on three main ideas:^[56]

1. Reflexivity is best observed under special conditions where investor bias grows and spreads throughout the investment arena. Examples of factors that may give rise to this bias include (a) equity leveraging or (b) the trend-following habits of speculators.
2. Reflexivity appears intermittently since it is most likely to be revealed under certain conditions; i.e., the character of the equilibrium process is best considered in terms of probabilities.
3. Investors' observation of and participation in the capital markets may at times influence valuations and fundamental conditions or outcomes.

A recent example of reflexivity in modern financial markets is that of the debt and equity of housing markets.^[56] Lenders began to make more money available to more people in the 1990s to buy houses. More people bought houses with this larger amount of money, thus increasing the prices of these houses. Lenders looked at their balance sheets which not only showed that they had made more loans, but that the collaterals backing the loans – the value of the houses – had gone up (because more money was chasing the same amount of housing, relatively). Thus they lent out more money because their balance sheets looked good, and prices rose higher still.

This was further amplified by public policy. In the US, home loans were guaranteed by the Federal government. Many national governments saw home ownership as a positive outcome and so introduced grants for first-time home buyers and other financial subsidies, such as the exemption of a primary residence from capital gains taxation. These further encouraged house purchases, leading to further price rises and further relaxation of lending standards.

External video

George Soros

 The Lecture Series: Introduction (https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=f-XT1hnkXZY), 2:56

 General Theory of Reflexivity (https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=oCaCrWzFPYY), 52:00

 Financial Markets (https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=RHSEEJDKJho), 43:59

 Open Society (https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=DFyfYBcbbac), 43:39

 Capitalism vs. Open Society (https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=bDrTkvFB6Zk), 47:38 all by the Open Society Foundations

The concept of reflexivity attempts to explain why markets moving from one equilibrium state to another tend to overshoot or undershoot. Soros's theories were originally dismissed by economists,^[214] but have received more attention after the 2008 crash including becoming the focus of an issue of the Journal of Economic Methodology.^[215]

The notion of reflexivity provides an explanation of the theories of complexity economics, as developed at the Santa Fe Institute, although Soros had not publicized his views at the time the discipline was originally developed there in the 1980s.^{[216][217][218][219]}

Reflexivity in politics

Although the primary manifestation of the reflexive process that Soros discusses is its effects in the financial markets, he has also explored its effects in politics. He has stated that whereas the greatest threats to the "open society" in the past were from communism and fascism (as discussed in The Open Society and Its Enemies by his mentor Karl Popper), the largest current threat is from market fundamentalism.

He has suggested that the contemporary domination of world politics and world trade by the United States is a reflexive phenomenon, insofar as the success of military and financial coercion feeds back to encourage increasingly intense applications of the same policies to the point where they will eventually become unsustainable.^[220]

View of problems in the free market system

Soros argues that the current system of financial speculation undermines healthy economic development in many underdeveloped countries. He blames many of the world's problems on the failures inherent in what he characterizes as market fundamentalism.^[221]

Market predictions

Soros's book The New Paradigm for Financial Markets (May 2008), described a "superbubble" that had built up over the past 25 years and was ready to collapse. This was the third in a series of books he has written that have predicted disaster. As he states:

I have a record of crying wolf ... I did it first in The Alchemy of Finance (in 1987), then in The Crisis of Global Capitalism (in 1998), and now in this book. So it's three books predicting disaster. [After] the boy cried wolf three times ... the wolf really came.^[222]

He ascribes his own success to being able to recognize when his predictions are wrong.

I'm only rich because I know when I'm wrong ... I basically have survived by recognizing my mistakes. I very often used to get backaches due to the fact that I was wrong. Whenever you are wrong you have to fight or [take] flight. When [I] make the decision, the backache goes away.^[222]

In February 2009, Soros said the world financial system had in effect disintegrated, adding that there was no prospect of a near-term resolution to the crisis.^[223] "We witnessed the collapse of the financial system ... It was placed on life support, and it's still on life support. There's no sign that we are anywhere near a bottom."

In January 2016, at an economic forum in Sri Lanka, Soros predicted a financial crisis akin to 2008 based on the state of the global currency, stock and commodity markets as well as the sinking Chinese yuan.^{[224][225]}

Views on antisemitism and Israel

When asked about what he thought about Israel, in The New Yorker, Soros replied: "I don't deny the Jews to a right to a national existence – but I don't want anything to do with it."^[226] According to hacked emails released in 2016, Soros's Open Society Foundation has a self-described objective of "challenging Israel's racist and anti-democratic policies" in international forums, in part by questioning Israel's reputation as a democracy.^[227] He has funded NGOs which have been actively critical of Israeli policies^{[228][229][230]} including groups that campaign for the Boycott, Divestment and Sanctions movement against Israel.^[228]

Speaking before a 2003 conference of the Jewish Funders Network, Soros said that the administrations of George W. Bush in the U.S. and Ariel Sharon in Israel, and even the unintended consequences of some of his own actions, were partially contributing to a new European antisemitism. Soros, citing accusations that he was one of the "Jewish financiers" who, in antisemitic terms, "ruled the world by proxy", suggested that if we change the direction of those policies, then anti-Semitism also will diminish. Abraham Foxman, national director of the Anti-Defamation League later said that Soros's comments held a simplistic view, were counterproductive, biased and a bigoted perception of what's out there, and "blamed the victim" when holding Jews responsible for antisemitism. Jewish philanthropist Michael Steinhardt, who arranged for Soros's appearance at the conference, clarified, "George Soros does not think Jews should be hated any more than they deserve to be."^[231] Soros has also said that Jews can overcome antisemitism by "giv[ing] up on the tribalness".^[232]

In a subsequent article for The New York Review of Books, Soros emphasized that

I do not subscribe to the myths propagated by enemies of Israel and I am not blaming Jews for anti-Semitism. Anti-Semitism predates the birth of Israel. Neither Israel's policies nor the critics of those policies should be held responsible for anti-Semitism. At the same time, I do believe that attitudes toward Israel are influenced by Israel's policies, and attitudes toward the Jewish community are influenced by the pro-Israel lobby's success in suppressing divergent views.^[233]

In 2017, Israeli businessman Beny Steinmetz filed a $10-million lawsuit against Soros, alleging that Soros had influenced the government of Guinea to freeze Steinmetz's company BSG Resources out of iron ore mining contracts in the African country due to "long-standing animus toward the state of Israel".^{[234][235][236]} Steinmetz claims that Soros engaged in a "smear" campaign against him and his companies and blames Soros for scrutiny of him by American, Israeli, Swiss, and Guinean authorities.^[237] Soros called Steinmetz's suit "frivolous and entirely false" and said that it was "a desperate PR stunt meant to deflect attention from BSGR's mounting legal problems across multiple jurisdictions".^[238]

During an award ceremony for Imre Kertész, Soros said that the victims of violence and abuse were becoming "perpetrators of violence", suggesting that this model explained Israel's behavior towards the Palestinians, which led to walkouts and Soros being booed.^[239]

In July 2017, a Hungarian billboard campaign backed by Prime Minister Viktor Orbán, which was considered to be anti-semitic by the country's Jewish groups, vilified Soros as an enemy of the state, using the slogan "Let's not allow Soros to have the last laugh".^[240] The campaign was estimated to have cost 5.7bn forints (then US$21 million).^[241] According to the Israeli ambassador the campaign "evokes sad memories but also sows hatred and fear", a reference to Hungary's role in the deportation of 500,000 Jews during the Holocaust.^[242] Lydia Gall of Human Rights Watch asserted that it was reminiscent of Nazi posters during the Second World War featuring "'the laughing Jew'".^[243] Orbán and his government's representative said they had a "zero tolerance" of antisemitism, explaining the posters were aiming to persuade voters Soros was a "national security risk".^[240]

Hours later, in an apparent attempt to ally Israel with Hungary, Israel's Ministry of Foreign Affairs issued a "clarification", denouncing Soros, stating that he "continuously undermines Israel's democratically elected governments by funding organizations that defame the Jewish state and seek to deny it the right to defend itself".^[244]

Soros' son Alexander said in an interview that his father cares about Israel, and that he "would like to see Israel in Yitzhak Rabin's image. His views are more or less the common views in Meretz and in the Labor Party." According to Alexander, Soros supports a two-state solution. The younger Soros recounts that after his bar mitzvah in 1998, his father told him: "If you're serious about being Jewish, you might want to consider immigrating to Israel."^[245]

In a 2018 interview with The New York Times, Alex Soros, the son of George Soros, when asked about why his father fights for an open society, Soros replied that in a non-Jewish state, a Jew can only feel safe when other minorities are protected, which is one of most important driving forces why his father has been active in his philanthropy:

But he had always “identified firstly as a Jew,” and his philanthropy was ultimately an expression of his Jewish identity, in that he felt a solidarity with other minority groups and also because he recognized that a Jew could only truly be safe in a world in which all minorities were protected. Explaining his father’s motives, he said, “The reason you fight for an open society is because that’s the only society that you can live in, as a Jew — unless you become a nationalist and only fight for your own rights in your own state.”^[246]

Views on the U.S.

On November 11, 2003, in an interview with The Washington Post, Soros said that removing President George W. Bush from office was the "central focus of my life" and "a matter of life and death". He said he would sacrifice his entire fortune to defeat Bush "if someone guaranteed it".^{[247][248]} Soros gave $3 million to the Center for American Progress, $2.5 million to MoveOn.org, and $20 million^[249] to America Coming Together. These groups worked to support Democrats in the 2004 election. On September 28, 2004, he dedicated more money to the campaign and kicked off his own multistate tour with a speech, "Why We Must Not Re-elect President Bush",^[250] delivered at the National Press Club in Washington, D.C. The online transcript of this speech received many views after Dick Cheney accidentally referred to FactCheck.org as "factcheck.com" in the vice presidential debate, causing the owner of that domain to redirect all traffic to Soros's site.^[251]

His 2003 book, The Bubble of American Supremacy^[252], was a forthright critique of the Bush administration's "War on Terror" as misconceived and counterproductive, and a polemic against the re-election of Bush. He explains the title in the closing chapter by pointing out the parallels in this political context with the self-reinforcing reflexive processes that generate bubbles in stock prices.

When Soros was asked in 2006 about his statement in The Age of Fallibility that "the main obstacle to a stable and just world order is the United States", he responded that "it happens to coincide with the prevailing opinion in the world. And I think that's rather shocking for Americans to hear. The United States sets the agenda for the world. And the rest of the world has to respond to that agenda. By declaring a 'war on terror' after September 11, we set the wrong agenda for the world ... When you wage war, you inevitably create innocent victims."^[253]

In 2017, Soros described Donald Trump as a con man, and predicted Trump would fail because he believed Trump's ideas were self-contradictory.^[254] Soros also said he believed Trump was preparing for a trade war and expected financial markets to do poorly.^[255]

External video
 Booknotes interview with Soros on The Bubble of American Supremacy, February 29, 2004 (https://www.c-span.org/video/?180744-1/the-bubble-american-supremacy) , C-SPAN

Views on Europe

In October 2011, Soros drafted an open letter entitled "As concerned Europeans we urge Eurozone leaders to unite",^[256] in which he calls for a stronger economic government for Europe using federal means (Common EU treasury, common fiscal supervision, etc.) and warns against the danger of nationalistic solutions to the economic crisis. The letter was co-signed by Javier Solana, Daniel Cohn-Bendit, Andrew Duff, Emma Bonino, Massimo D'Alema, and Vaira Vīķe-Freiberga.

Soros criticized Hungarian Prime Minister Viktor Orbán and his handling of the European migrant crisis in 2015: "His plan treats the protection of national borders as the objective and the refugees as an obstacle. Our plan treats the protection of refugees as the objective and national borders as the obstacle."^[257]

Soros expected that Brexit would fail and the Premiership of Theresa May would last only a short time.^[255] Soros is opposed to Brexit and donated £400,000 to the anti-Brexit 'Best for Britain' group.^[258] Soros also hosted a dinner for Conservative donors at his London home to encourage them to follow his lead. Soros's Open Society Foundations also donated a total of £303,000 to two pro-EU organizations, the European Movement UK and Scientists for EU, and a center-right think-tank, Bright Blue.^[259]

In 2018, Soros highlighted that Europe faces major challenges related to immigration, austerity, and nations leaving the EU.^[260] He holds that Europe is facing an existential crisis, in view of the rise of populism, the refugee crisis and a growing rift between Europe and the United States.^[261] Soros has also stated that "the euro has many unresolved problems" which "must not be allowed to destroy the European Union". He advocated replacing the notion of a multi-speed Europe by the aim of a "multi-track Europe" that would allow member states a wider variety of choices.^[262]

Views on relations between Europe and Africa

In view of the possibility of a further increase of the number of refugees from Africa to Europe, Soros proposes that the European Union devise a "Marshall Plan for Africa" (see Marshall Plan), fostering education and employment in Africa in order to reduce emigration.^{[260][262]}

Views on China

Soros has expressed concern about the growth of Chinese economic and political power, saying, "China has risen very rapidly by looking out for its own interests ... They have now got to accept responsibility for world order and the interests of other people as well." Regarding the political gridlock in America, he said, "Today, China has not only a more vigorous economy but actually a better functioning government than the United States."^[263] In July 2015, Soros stated that a "strategic partnership between the US and China could prevent the evolution of two power blocks that may be drawn into military conflict".^[264] In January 2016, during an interview at the World Economic Forum (WEF) in Davos, Soros stated that "[a] hard landing is practically unavoidable". Chinese state media responded by stating "Soros' challenge to the RMB and Hong Kong dollar are doomed to fail, without any doubt."^[265]

In January 2019, Soros used his annual speech at the World Economic Forum, in Davos, to label Xi Jinping, General Secretary of the Communist Party of China and President of China, as the "most dangerous opponent of open societies", saying: "China is not the only authoritarian regime in the world but it is the wealthiest, strongest and technologically most advanced". He also urged the United States not to allow the Chinese technology companies Huawei and ZTE to dominate the 5G telecommunications market as this would present an "unacceptable security risk for the rest of the world".^{[266][267]} Soros also criticized the newest form of China's Big Brother-like system of mass surveillance called the Social Credit System, saying it would give Xi, "total control" over the people of China."^[268]

Views on Russia and Ukraine

In May 2014, Soros told CNN's Fareed Zakaria: "I set up a foundation in Ukraine before Ukraine became independent from Russia. And the foundation has been functioning ever since and played an important part in events now."^[269]

In January 2015, Soros said that "Europe needs to wake up and recognize that it is under attack from Russia." He also urged Western countries to expand economic sanctions against Russia for its support of separatists in eastern Ukraine.^[270]

In January 2015, Soros called on the European Union to give $50 billion of bailout money to Ukraine.^[271]

In July 2015, Soros stated that Putin's annexation of Crimea was a challenge to the "prevailing world order," specifically the European Union. He hypothesized that Putin wants to "destabilize all of Ukraine by precipitating a financial and political collapse for which he can disclaim responsibility, while avoiding occupation of a part of eastern Ukraine, which would then depend on Russia for economic support."^[264] In November 2015, Russia banned the Open Society Foundations (OSF) and the Open Society Institute (OSI)-- two pro-democracy charities founded by Soros—stating they posed a "threat to the foundations of the constitutional system of the Russian Federation and the security of the state."^{[272][273]} In January 2016, 53 books related to Soros's "Renewal of Humanitarian Education" program were withdrawn at the Vorkuta Mining and Economic College in the Komi Republic, with 427 additional books seized for shredding. A Russian intergovernmental letter released in December 2015 stated that Soros's charities were "forming a perverted perception of history and making ideological directives, alien to Russian ideology, popular". Most of these books were published with funds donated by Soros's charities.^{[274][275]}

Wealth and philanthropy

As of March 2020, Forbes magazine listed Soros as the 162nd richest person in the world, with a net worth of $8.3 billion.^[276] He has also donated 64% of his original fortune, making him the most generous giver (when measured as a percentage of net worth), and distributed more than $15 billion through his Open Society Foundations (an international grantmaking network that supports advancing justice, education, public health and independent media).^[14]

Soros has been active as a philanthropist since the 1970s, when he began providing funds to help black students attend the University of Cape Town in apartheid South Africa,^[117] and began funding dissident movements behind the Iron Curtain.

George Soros speaks to the LSE alumni society in Malaysia.

Soros's philanthropic funding includes efforts to promote non-violent democratization in the post-Soviet states. These efforts, mostly in Central and Eastern Europe, occur primarily through the Open Society Foundations (originally Open Society Institute or OSI) and national Soros Foundations, which sometimes go under other names (such as the Stefan Batory Foundation in Poland). As of 2003, PBS estimated that he had given away a total of $4 billion.^[83] The OSI says it has spent about $500 million annually in recent years.

In 2003, former Federal Reserve chairman Paul Volcker wrote in the foreword of Soros's book The Alchemy of Finance:

George Soros has made his mark as an enormously successful speculator, wise enough to largely withdraw when still way ahead of the game. The bulk of his enormous winnings is now devoted to encouraging transitional and emerging nations to become "open societies", open not only in the sense of freedom of commerce but—more important—tolerant of new ideas and different modes of thinking and behavior.^[277]

Time magazine in 2007 cited two specific projects—$100 million toward Internet infrastructure for regional Russian universities, and $50 million for the Millennium Promise to eradicate extreme poverty in Africa—noting that Soros had given $742 million to projects in the U.S., and given away a total of more than $7 billion.^[278]

Other notable projects have included aid to scientists and universities throughout central and eastern Europe, help to civilians during the siege of Sarajevo, and Transparency International. Soros also pledged an endowment of €420 million to the Central European University (CEU).

According to National Review Online^[279] the Open Society Institute gave \$20,000 in September 2002 to the Defense Committee of Lynne Stewart, the lawyer who has defended controversial, poor, and often unpopular defendants in court and was sentenced to 2 $\frac{1}{3}$ years in prison for "providing material support for a terrorist conspiracy" via a press conference for a client. An OSI spokeswoman said "it appeared to us at that time that there was a right-to-counsel issue worthy of our support" but claimed later requests for support were declined.

In September 2006, Soros pledged $50 million to the Millennium Promise, led by economist Jeffrey Sachs to provide educational, agricultural, and medical aid to help villages in Africa enduring poverty. The New York Times termed this endeavor a "departure" for Soros whose philanthropic focus had been on fostering democracy and good government, but Soros noted that most poverty resulted from bad governance.^[280]

Soros played a role in the peaceful transition from communism to democracy in Hungary (1984–89)^[22] and provided a substantial endowment to Central European University in Budapest.^[281] The Open Society Foundations has active programs in more than 60 countries around the world with total expenditures currently averaging approximately $600 million a year.^{[3][282]}

On October 17, 2017, it was announced that Soros had transferred $18 billion to the Open Society Foundations.^[283]

In October 2018, Soros donated $2 million to the Wikimedia Foundation via the Wikimedia Endowment program.^[284]

In July 2020, Soros's Foundations announced plans to give $220 million in grants for racial justice groups, criminal justice reform and civic engagement.^[285]

Honors and awards

Soros received honorary doctoral degrees from the New School for Social Research (New York), the University of Oxford in 1980, the Corvinus University of Budapest, and Yale University in 1991. He received an honorary degree in economics from the University of Bologna in 1995.^[286]

In 2008, he was inducted into Institutional Investors Alpha's Hedge Fund Manager Hall of Fame along with Alfred Jones, Bruce Kovner, David Swensen, Jack Nash, James Simons, Julian Roberston, Kenneth Griffin, Leon Levy, Louis Bacon, Michael Steinhardt, Paul Tudor Jones, Seth Klarman and Steven A. Cohen.^[287]

In January 2014, Soros was ranked number 1 in LCH Investments list of top 20 managers having posting gains of almost $42 billion since the launch of his Quantum Endowment Fund in 1973.^[288]

In July 2017, Soros was elected an Honorary Fellow of the British Academy (HonFBA), the United Kingdom's national academy for the humanities and social sciences.^[289]

Soros was the Financial Times Person of the Year for 2018, with the FT describing him as "a standard bearer for liberal democracy, an idea under siege from populists".^[290]

In April 2019, Soros was awarded the Ridenhour Prize for Courage.^[291] In his acceptance address Soros said: "In my native Hungary, the government of [Prime Minister] Viktor Orbán has turned me into the super villain of an alleged plot to destroy the supposed Christian identity of the Hungarian nation... [I] donate the prize money associated with this award to the Hungarian Spectrum, an online English-language publication that provides daily updates on Hungarian politics. It renders an important service by exposing to the world [in English] what Prime Minister Viktor Orbán is telling his own people [in Hungarian]. It [Hungarian Spectrum] deserves to be better known and supported."^[292]

Publications and scholarship

George Soros has written many books, articles, and papers on economics, finance, stock trading, and geopolitics.

Books authored or co-authored

- The Tragedy of the European Union: Disintegration or Revival? (PublicAffairs, 2014). ISBN 978-1-61039-421-5.
- Financial Turmoil in Europe and the United States: Essays (PublicAffairs, 2012). ISBN 978-1-61039-161-0.
- The Soros Lectures at the Central European University (PublicAffairs, 2010) ISBN 978-1-58648-885-7.
- The New Paradigm for Financial Markets: The Credit Crisis of 2008 and What it Means (PublicAffairs, 2008). ISBN 978-1-58648-683-9.
- The Age of Fallibility: Consequences of the War on Terror (PublicAffairs, 2006) ISBN 978-1-58648-359-3.
- Underwriting Democracy: Encouraging Free Enterprise and Democratic Reform Among the Soviets and in Eastern Europe (Free Press, 1991) ISBN 978-0-02-930285-9 (paperback; PublicAffairs, 2004; ISBN 978-1-58648-227-5)
- George Soros on Globalization (PublicAffairs, 2002) ISBN 978-1-58648-125-4 (paperback; PublicAffairs, 2005; ISBN 978-1-58648-278-7)
- The Bubble of American Supremacy: Correcting the Misuse of American Power (PublicAffairs, 2003) ISBN 978-1-58648-217-6 (paperback; PublicAffairs, 2004; ISBN 978-1-58648-292-3)
- Open Society: Reforming Global Capitalism (PublicAffairs, 2001) ISBN 978-1-58648-019-6.
- With Mark Amadeus Notturmo, Science and the Open Society: The Future of Karl Popper's Philosophy (Central European University Press, 2000) ISBN 978-963-9116-69-6 (paperback: Central European University Press, 2000; ISBN 978-963-9116-70-2)
- The Crisis of Global Capitalism: Open Society Endangered (PublicAffairs, 1998) ISBN 978-1-891620-27-0.
- Soros on Soros: Staying Ahead of the Curve (John Wiley, 1995) ISBN 978-0-471-12014-8 (paperback; Wiley, 1995; ISBN 978-0-471-11977-7)
- Opening the Soviet System (Weidenfeld & Nicolson, 1990) ISBN 978-0-297-82055-0 (paperback: Perseus Books, 1996; ISBN 978-0-8133-1205-7)
- The Alchemy of Finance (Simon & Schuster, 1988) ISBN 978-0-671-66238-7 (paperback: Wiley, 2003; ISBN 978-0-471-44549-4)

Journalism

- George Soros, "Why I support legal marijuana (<https://www.wsj.com/articles/SB10001424052702303467004575574450703567656>)", The Wall Street Journal, October 26, 2010.
- George Soros, "The Crisis and the Euro", The New York Review of Books, August 19, 2010.
- George Soros, "Paulson Cannot be Allowed a Blank Cheque" (https://web.archive.org/web/20080926204125/http://www.ft.com/cms/s/0/9973c5b0-8a6d-11dd-a76a-0000779fd18c,dwp_uuid=11f94e6e-7e94-11dd-b1af-000077b07658.html). Archived from the original on September 26, 2008. Retrieved May 3, 2012., Financial Times, September 24, 2008
- George Soros, "On Israel, America and AIPAC", The New York Review of Books, April 12, 2007.
- George Soros, "The Bubble of American Supremacy", The Atlantic, December 2003, also audio recording of this article via Assistive Media, read by Grover Gardner, 18 minutes.
- George Soros, "Soros on Brazil", Financial Times, August 13, 2002.

9. Weiss, Gary; Schares, Gail E.; Smith, Geri; Dwyer, Paul; Sandler, Neal; Pennar, Karen (August 22, 1993). "The Man Who Moves Markets" (<https://www.bloomberg.com/bw/stories/1993-08-22/the-man-who-moves-markets>). Bloomberg Businessweek. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20151222133546/http://www.bloomberg.com/bw/stories/1993-08-22/the-man-who-moves-markets>) from the original on December 22, 2015. Retrieved December 15, 2015.
10. "The incredible life of billionaire investing legend George Soros" (<http://www.businessinsider.com/george-soros-billionaire-investor-profile-2017-1>). Business Insider. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170203080534/http://www.businessinsider.com/george-soros-billionaire-investor-profile-2017-1>) from the original on February 3, 2017. Retrieved February 2, 2017.
11. Zuckerman, Gregory (June 9, 2016). "A Bearish George Soros Is Trading Again" (<https://www.wsj.com/articles/a-bearish-george-soros-is-trading-again-1465429163>). The Wall Street Journal. ISSN 0099-9660 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/0099-9660>). Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170202035446/https://www.wsj.com/articles/a-bearish-george-soros-is-trading-again-1465429163>) from the original on February 2, 2017. Retrieved February 2, 2017.
12. "Bloomberg Billionaires" (<https://www.bloomberg.com/billionaires>). Bloomberg.com. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20160416035010/http://www.bloomberg.com/billionaires/>) from the original on April 16, 2016. Retrieved February 6, 2015. Note that this site is updated daily.
13. "George Soros" (<https://www.opensocietyfoundations.org/people/george-soros>). Open Society Foundations. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20121016233900/https://www.opensocietyfoundations.org/people/george-soros>) from the original on October 16, 2012. Retrieved December 13, 2018.
14. Wang, Jennifer. "The New Forbes Philanthropy Score: How We Ranked Each Forbes 400 Billionaire Based On Their Giving" (<https://www.forbes.com/sites/jenniferwang/2020/09/08/the-new-forbes-philanthropy-score-how-we-ranked-each-forbes-400-billionaire-based-on-their-giving>). Forbes.
15. Ungeheuer, Frederick (May 4, 1987). "George Soros: World's Champion Bull Rider" (<http://content.time.com/time/magazine/article/0,9171,964280,00.html>). Time. ISSN 0040-781X (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/0040-781X>). Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170129014750/http://content.time.com/time/magazine/article/0,9171,964280,00.html>) from the original on January 29, 2017. Retrieved February 2, 2017.
16. Ferguson, Niall; Schlefer, Jonathan (September 9, 2009). "Who Broke the Bank of England?". Harvard Business School BGIE Unit Case No. 709-026. SSRN 1485674 (<https://ssrn.com/abstract=1485674>).
17. Open Society Foundations (October 11, 2010), George Soros Lecture Series: Financial Markets (<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=RHSEEJDKJho>), archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170119173715/https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=RHSEEJDKJho>) from the original on January 19, 2017, retrieved February 2, 2017
18. Shawcross, William (September 1, 1997). "Turning Dollars into Change" (<http://www.time.com/time/magazine/article/0,9171,986919-1,00.html>) Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20100508052348/http://www.time.com/time/magazine/article/0,9171,986919-1,00.html>) May 8, 2010, at the Wayback Machine. Time.
19. "Philanthropy vs. Tyranny: Inside the Open Society Foundations' Biggest Battle Yet" (<https://www.insidephilanthropy.com/home/2015/9/14/philanthropy-vs-tyranny-inside-the-open-society-foundations.html>). Inside Philanthropy. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20191213130440/https://www.insidephilanthropy.com/home/2015/9/14/philanthropy-vs-tyranny-inside-the-open-society-foundations.html>) from the original on December 13, 2019. Retrieved November 14, 2019.
20. Gershowitz, Martin (October 4, 2013). "George Soros Gets Hitched for Third Time" (http://www.jewishvoiceny.com/index.php?option=com_content&view=article&id=5415:george-soros-gets-hitched-for-third-time&catid=108:jewcy-news&Itemid=291). Jewish Voice. Archived (https://web.archive.org/web/20170728123110/http://www.jewishvoiceny.com/index.php?option=com_content&view=article&id=5415:george-soros-gets-hitched-for-third-time&catid=108:jewcy-news&Itemid=291) from the original on July 28, 2017. Retrieved November 10, 2020.

21. "George Soros: Hungarian government posters 'anti-Semitic'" (<https://www.bbc.com/news/world-europe-40576224>). BBC.com. July 11, 2017. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170712042959/http://www.bbc.com/news/world-europe-40576224>) from the original on July 12, 2017. Retrieved July 11, 2017.
22. Murphy, Brendan (July 1993). "Finance: The Unifying Theme" (<https://www.theatlantic.com/magazine/archive/1993/07/finance-the-unifying-theme/5148/>). The Atlantic. ISSN 1072-7825 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/1072-7825>). Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20120715001729/http://www.theatlantic.com/magazine/archive/1993/07/finance-the-unifying-theme/5148/>) from the original on July 15, 2012. Retrieved March 7, 2017.
23. "Hungary: Soros Donates $250 Million to University in Budapest" (<http://www.encyclopedia.com/doc/1G1-79165556.html>). IPR Strategic Business Information Database. Info Prod Research. October 16, 2001.
24. "A veto gives the rule of law in Poland a reprieve" (<https://www.economist.com/news/europe/21725575-governing-law-and-justice-party-still-aims-nobble-judiciary-veto-gives-rule>). The Economist. July 28, 2017. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170728124233/http://www.economist.com/news/europe/21725575-governing-law-and-justice-party-still-aims-nobble-judiciary-veto-gives-rule>) from the original on July 28, 2017. Retrieved July 28, 2017.
25. Shane, Scott; Vogel, Kenneth P.; Kingsley, Patrick (October 31, 2018). "How Vilification of George Soros Moved From the Fringes to the Mainstream" (<https://www.nytimes.com/2018/10/31/us/politics/george-soros-bombs-trump.html>). The New York Times. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20181101000652/https://www.nytimes.com/2018/10/31/us/politics/george-soros-bombs-trump.html>) from the original on November 1, 2018. Retrieved November 1, 2018.
26. Baram, Marcus (October 5, 2018). "Buckle up! Here's a timeline of George Soros conspiracy theories" (<https://www.fastcompany.com/90247335/a-timeline-of-george-soros-conspiracy-theories>). Fast Company. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20181005235056/https://www.fastcompany.com/90247335/a-timeline-of-george-soros-conspiracy-theories>) from the original on October 5, 2018. Retrieved October 6, 2018.
27. Bondarenko, Veronika (May 20, 2017). "George Soros is a favorite target of the right — here's how that happened" (<https://www.businessinsider.com/how-did-george-soros-become-the-favorite-boogey-man-of-the-right-2017-5>). Business Insider. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20181006084544/https://www.businessinsider.com/how-did-george-soros-become-the-favorite-boogeyman-of-the-right-2017-5>) from the original on October 6, 2018. Retrieved October 6, 2018.
28. Wolraich, Michael (November 14, 2010). "Beck's bizarre, dangerous hit at Soros" (<https://edition.cnn.com/2010/OPINION/11/13/wolraich.beck.soros/index.html>). CNN. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20201101213118/https://edition.cnn.com/2010/OPINION/11/13/wolraich.beck.soros/index.html>) from the original on November 1, 2020. Retrieved September 17, 2020.
29. Finkelstein, Daniel (February 14, 2018). "George Soros and the roots of antisemitism" (<https://www.thetimes.co.uk/article/george-soros-and-the-roots-of-antisemitism-z63fhp6z6>). The Times. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20180502222641/https://www.thetimes.co.uk/article/george-soros-and-the-roots-of-antisemitism-z63fhp6z6>) from the original on May 2, 2018. Retrieved May 3, 2018. (subscription required)
30. Behr, Rafael (February 8, 2018). "A secret plot to stop Brexit, or an antisemitic dog whistle?" (<https://www.theguardian.com/commentisfree/2018/feb/08/brexit-antisemitic-dog-whistle-daily-telegraph-george-soros>). The Guardian. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20180504011051/https://www.theguardian.com/commentisfree/2018/feb/08/brexit-antisemitic-dog-whistle-daily-telegraph-george-soros>) from the original on May 4, 2018. Retrieved May 3, 2018.
31. Fisher, Lucy (February 8, 2018). "Brexiters and alt-right unite against 'globalist' billionaire George Soros" (<https://www.thetimes.co.uk/article/brexiters-and-alt-right-unite-against-globalist-billionaire-george-soros-mrkwspwlz>). The Guardian. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20180504011918/https://www.thetimes.co.uk/article/brexiters-and-alt-right-unite-against-globalist-billionaire-george-soros-mrkwspwlz>) from the original on May 4, 2018. Retrieved May 3, 2018.

32. Slater, Robert (January 18, 2009). Soros: The Life, Ideas, and Impact of the World's Most Influential Investor (<https://books.google.com/books?id=J7I26pZK8TUC&pg=PA22>). McGraw Hill Professional. p. 30. ISBN 9780071608459. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20200126141310/https://books.google.com/books?id=J7I26pZK8TUC&pg=PA22>) from the original on January 26, 2020. Retrieved November 16, 2016.
33. Mayer, Jane (October 18, 2004). "The Money Man: Can George Soros's millions insure the defeat of President Bush?" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20120712065522/http://www.uni-muenster.de/PeaCon/global-texte/r-m/soros-TheNewYorker.htm>). The New Yorker. Archived from the original (<http://www.uni-muenster.de/PeaCon/global-texte/r-m/soros-TheNewYorker.htm>) on July 12, 2012. Retrieved May 27, 2012.
34. Cowan, Alison Leigh (December 16, 2010). "How Do You Say 'Billionaire' in Esperanto?" (<http://cityroom.blogs.nytimes.com/2010/12/16/how-do-you-say-billionaire-in-esperanto/>). The New York Times. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20101222045726/http://cityroom.blogs.nytimes.com/2010/12/16/how-do-you-say-billionaire-in-esperanto/>) from the original on December 22, 2010. Retrieved October 27, 2011.
35. Kaufman, Michael T. (2002). Soros: The Life and Times of a Messianic Billionaire. Alfred A. Knopf. p. 11.
36. Soros, George (2008). The New Paradigm for Financial Markets: The Credit Crisis of 2008 and What It Means (https://archive.org/details/newparadigmforfi00soro_0). PublicAffairs. p. 13 (https://archive.org/details/newparadigmforfi00soro_0/page/13). ISBN 978-1-58648-683-9. "Tivadar."
37. Soros, Tivadar; Tonkin, Humphrey (2001). Masquerade: Dancing Around Death in Nazi-occupied Hungary (<https://archive.org/details/masquerade00tiva>). Arcade Publishing. pp. 220 (<https://archive.org/details/masquerade00tiva/page/220>), Afterword by Humphrey Tonkin. ISBN 9781559705813. Retrieved November 16, 2016.
38. Zepetnek, Steven Tötösy de (2009). Comparative Central European Holocaust Studies (<https://books.google.com/books?id=yCg8S0d6-vMC&pg=PA9>). Purdue University Press. p. 9. ISBN 9781557535269. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170127184247/https://books.google.com/books?id=yCg8S0d6-vMC&pg=PA9>) from the original on January 27, 2017. Retrieved November 16, 2016.
39. Kaufman, Michael T. (2002). Soros: The Life and Times of a Messianic Billionaire (<https://books.google.com/books?id=W1Jn4zYBom8C&pg=PA24>). Knopf. p. 24. ISBN 9780375405853. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170127195056/https://books.google.com/books?id=W1Jn4zYBom8C&pg=PA24>) from the original on January 27, 2017. Retrieved November 7, 2016.
40. Bessner, Daniel (July 6, 2018). "The George Soros philosophy – and its fatal flaw" (<https://www.theguardian.com/news/2018/jul/06/the-george-soros-philosophy-and-its-fatal-flaw>). The Guardian. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20180706165042/https://www.theguardian.com/news/2018/jul/06/the-george-soros-philosophy-and-its-fatal-flaw>) from the original on July 6, 2018. Retrieved July 7, 2018.
41. Soros, George (July 13, 2018). "George Soros: I'm a passionate critic of market fundamentalism - Response to Bessner" (<https://www.theguardian.com/business/2018/jul/13/george-soros-im-a-passionate-critic-of-market-fundamentalism>). The Guardian. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20180730100707/https://www.theguardian.com/business/2018/jul/13/george-soros-im-a-passionate-critic-of-market-fundamentalism>) from the original on July 30, 2018. Retrieved July 30, 2018.
42. "Holocaust Encyclopedia" (<http://www.ushmm.org/wlc/article.php?lang=en&ModuleId=10005458>). Ushmm.org. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20100213195413/http://www.ushmm.org/wlc/article.php?lang=en&ModuleId=10005458>) from the original on February 13, 2010. Retrieved October 16, 2009.
43. Lewis, Michael (January 10, 1994). "The Speculator" (<https://newrepublic.com/article/74330/the-speculator>). The New Republic. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20180601195113/https://newrepublic.com/article/74330/the-speculator>) from the original on June 1, 2018. Retrieved May 29, 2018.

44. Kaufman, Michael T. (2002). Soros: The Life and Times of a Messianic Billionaire (https://archive.org/details/soros00mich_0/page/32). Knopf. pp. 32–33 (https://archive.org/details/soros00mich_0/page/32). ISBN 9780375405853.
45. Kaufman, Michael T. (2002). Soros: The Life and Times of a Messianic Billionaire (<https://books.google.com/books?id=W1Jn4zYBom8C&pg=PA5>). Knopf. p. 5. ISBN 9780375405853. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170127052744/https://books.google.com/books?id=W1Jn4zYBom8C&pg=PA5>) from the original on January 27, 2017. Retrieved November 16, 2016.
46. Kaufman, Michael T. (2002). Soros: The Life and Times of a Messianic Billionaire (<https://books.google.com/books?id=W1Jn4zYBom8C&pg=PA37>). Knopf. p. 37. ISBN 9780375405853. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170127091624/https://books.google.com/books?id=W1Jn4zYBom8C&pg=PA37>) from the original on January 27, 2017. Retrieved November 16, 2016.
47. Official Biography (<http://www.georgesoros.com/faqs/entry/georgesorosofficialbiography/>) Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20101122214827/http://www.georgesoros.com/faqs/entry/georgesorosofficialbiography/>) November 22, 2010, at the Wayback Machine, retrieved March 2, 2011.
48. All Things Considered (August 11, 2009). "Soros Uses Leverage To Aid New York Children" (<https://www.npr.org/templates/story/story.php?storyId=111786652>). NPR. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20090917111735/http://www.npr.org/templates/story/story.php?storyId=111786652>) from the original on September 17, 2009. Retrieved October 16, 2009.
49. Philip Delves Broughton, The billionaire taking on the Brexiteers (<https://www.belfasttelegraph.co.uk/life/features/the-billionaire-taking-on-the-brexiteers-36587647.html>) Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20180323030438/https://www.belfasttelegraph.co.uk/life/features/the-billionaire-taking-on-the-brexiteers-36587647.html>) March 23, 2018, at the Wayback Machine, Belfast Telegraph, February 10, 2018
50. "North American Advisory Board" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170126130530/http://www.lse.ac.uk/supportingLSE/NorthAmericanAdvisoryBoard.aspx>). lse.ac.uk. Archived from the original on January 26, 2017. Retrieved July 20, 2015. "Mr George Soros (BSc Philosophy 1951, MSc Philosophy 1954) Chairman, Soros Fund Management"
51. Consequences of the War on Terror (http://www.lawac.org/speech-archive/pdf/2006/Soros_612.pdf) Archived (https://web.archive.org/web/20120129063644/http://www.lawac.org/speech-archive/pdf/2006/Soros_612.pdf) January 29, 2012, at the Wayback Machine September 20, 2006, Los Angeles World Affairs Council. Retrieved December 7, 2011.
52. Arnold, Glen (2012). The Great Investors: Lessons on Investing from Master Traders. United Kingdom: Pearson. p. 416. ISBN 9780273743385.
53. Soros, George; Koenen, Krisztina; Wien, Byron (1995). Soros on Soros: Staying Ahead of the Curve (https://archive.org/details/sorosonosorosstay00soro_0/page/326). New York: J. Wiley. p. 326 (https://archive.org/details/sorosonosorosstay00soro_0/page/326). ISBN 9780471119777.
54. Kaufman, Michael T., Soros: The Life and Times of a Messianic Billionaire, Chapter 8
55. Soros, George (2013). "Fallibility, reflexivity, and the human uncertainty principle". Journal of Economic Methodology. 20 (4): 309–329. doi:10.1080/1350178x.2013.859415 (<https://doi.org/10.1080/1350178x.2013.859415>). hdl:10.1080/1350178X.2013.859415 (<https://hdl.handle.net/10.1080/1350178X.2013.859415>). S2CID 144650771 (<https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:144650771>).
56. Soros, George (2008). The New Paradigm for Financial Markets (https://archive.org/details/newparadigmforfi00soro_0). New York: Public Affairs. ISBN 978-1-58648-683-9.
57. Soros on Soros, p47
58. Koven, Steven G.; Götzke, Frank (2010). American immigration policy confronting the nation's challenges (1 ed.). New York: Springer Science & Business Media. p. 89. ISBN 978-0-387-95940-5.

59. Flitter, Emily (August 29, 2018). "Henry Arnhold, Patriarch of a Storied Banking Family, Dies at 96" (<https://www.nytimes.com/2018/08/29/business/henry-arnhold-dead.html>). The New York Times. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20180909222109/https://www.nytimes.com/2018/08/29/business/henry-arnhold-dead.html>) from the original on September 9, 2018. Retrieved September 9, 2018.
60. "George Soros Part One: Early Career" (<https://nexchange.com/article/11185>). NexChange. Originally published in ValueWalk.com in August 2016. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20180910014514/https://nexchange.com/article/11185>) from the original on September 10, 2018. Retrieved September 9, 2018.
61. "George Soros" (<http://www.georgesoros.com/faqs/archive/category/finance/>) Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20110711084948/http://www.georgesoros.com/faqs/archive/category/finance/>) July 11, 2011, at the Wayback Machine. George Soros. Retrieved November 25, 2011.
62. Soros Buys 20% of BNK Petroleum (<http://www.gurufocus.com/news.php?id=109858>) Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20201110083012/https://www.gurufocus.com/news/109858>) November 10, 2020, at the Wayback Machine. Gurufocus.com (October 19, 2010). Retrieved November 25, 2011.
63. Anderson, Jenny (April 16, 2008). "Wall Street Winners Get Billion-Dollar Paydays" (<https://www.nytimes.com/2008/04/16/business/16wall.html>). The New York Times. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20090310104250/http://www.nytimes.com/2008/04/16/business/16wall.html>) from the original on March 10, 2009. Retrieved July 28, 2008.
64. Soros on Soros, p56
65. Dominic, Rushe (July 26, 2011). "George Soros to close hedge fund management group to outside investors" (<https://www.theguardian.com/business/2011/jul/26/george-soros-to-close-hedge-fund>). The Guardian. London. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20130930122357/http://www.theguardian.com/business/2011/jul/26/george-soros-to-close-hedge-fund>) from the original on September 30, 2013. Retrieved July 27, 2011.
66. "Institutional Investor" (<https://www.institutionalinvestor.com/>). Institutional Investor. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20200102183622/https://www.institutionalinvestor.com/>) from the original on January 2, 2020. Retrieved June 16, 2019.
67. Karmin, Craig. "George Soros Puts Money on Latin America Hotels" (<https://www.wsj.com/articles/soros-puts-money-on-latin-america-hotels-1447785866>). The Wall Street Journal. ISSN 0099-9660 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/0099-9660>). Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20151122031241/http://www.wsj.com/articles/soros-puts-money-on-latin-america-hotels-1447785866>) from the original on November 22, 2015. Retrieved November 22, 2015.
68. Sebastian Mallaby (June 10, 2010). More Money Than God: Hedge Funds and the Making of a New Elite. Penguin Press HC. ISBN 9781594202551.
69. Mallaby, Sebastian, More Money Than God, Penguin, 2010, p. 167. ISBN 978-1-59420-255-1.
70. Litterick, David (September 13, 2002), "Billionaire who Broke the Bank of England" (<https://www.telegraph.co.uk/finance/2773265/Billionaire-who-broke-the-Bank-of-England.html>) Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20180406155925/https://www.telegraph.co.uk/finance/2773265/Billionaire-who-broke-the-Bank-of-England.html>) April 6, 2018, at the Wayback Machine, The Telegraph.
71. Johnston, Philip (September 10, 2012). "Black Wednesday: The day that Britain went over the edge" (<https://www.telegraph.co.uk/finance/currency/9533474/Black-Wednesday-The-day-that-Britain-went-over-the-edge.html>). The Telegraph. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20150228182924/http://www.telegraph.co.uk/finance/currency/9533474/Black-Wednesday-The-day-that-Britain-went-over-the-edge.html>) from the original on February 28, 2015. Retrieved April 13, 2015.
72. Steven Drobny, Inside the House of Money, John Wiley & Sons: Hoboken, NJ, 2006.
73. Soros on Soros: Staying Ahead of the Curve (John Wiley, 1995), ISBN 978-0-471-12014-8

74. "Amerikkalainen suursijoittaja keinotteli Suomen markalla Miljardien markkojen kauppojen takana tiettävästi George Soros Suomen Pankki ja hallitus pitävät salaliittoa mahdollisena" (<https://www.hs.fi/talous/art-2000003507500.html>) (in Finnish). Helsingin Sanomat. February 10, 1996. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20191020120052/https://www.hs.fi/talous/art-2000003507500.html>) from the original on October 20, 2019. Retrieved October 20, 2019. "An American financier speculated with the Finnish mark - The man behind the trade of billions worth of markkas presumably was George Soros - The Finnish Bank and Government think that a conspiracy is impossible"
75. "Mahathir's dark side" (<https://www.telegraph.co.uk/comment/telegraph-view/3597972/Mahathirs-dark-side.html>). The Daily Telegraph. London. October 24, 2003. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20180421180307/https://www.telegraph.co.uk/comment/telegraph-view/3597972/Mahathirs-dark-side.html>) from the original on April 21, 2018. Retrieved April 5, 2018.
76. "Malaysian ex-premier Mahathir and billionaire Soros end feud" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20070111172941/http://www.abc.net.au/news/newsitems/200612/s1812946.htm>). ABC News. Agence France-Presse. December 15, 2006.
77. Soros, George (1999). The Crisis of Global Capitalism: Open Society Endangered, 2nd ed., PublicAffairs, ISBN 978-1-891620-27-0, pp. 208–209.
78. Krugman, Paul (1999). The accidental theorist: and other dispatches from the dismal science. New York: W.W. Norton & Company. p. 160.
79. "George Soros on the financial crisis I Odeo: Search, Discover and Share Digital Media from Millions of Audio and Video Clips" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20090206215514/http://odeo.com/episodes/23475214-George-Soros-on-the-financial-crisis>). February 6, 2009. Archived from the original (<http://odeo.com/episodes/23475214-George-Soros-on-the-financial-crisis>) on February 6, 2009. Retrieved December 3, 2019.
80. Saltmarsh, Matthew (September 15, 2010). "Soros to Get a Day in Court Over Insider Trading Case" (<https://www.nytimes.com/2010/09/16/business/global/16court.html>). The New York Times. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20150927194621/http://www.nytimes.com/2010/09/16/business/global/16court.html>) from the original on September 27, 2015. Retrieved September 18, 2011.
81. Smith, Heather (October 4, 2011). "Soros Insider-Trading Conviction Reviewed by Human Rights Court" (<http://www.businessweek.com/news/2011-10-04/soros-insider-trading-conviction-reviewed-by-human-rights-court.html>). Bloomberg Businessweek. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20111007211428/http://www.businessweek.com/news/2011-10-04/soros-insider-trading-conviction-reviewed-by-human-rights-court.html>) from the original on October 7, 2011. Retrieved October 12, 2011.
82. "Insider trading conviction of Soros is upheld" (<https://www.nytimes.com/2006/06/14/business/worldbusiness/14iht-soros.1974397.html>) Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170207061449/http://www.nytimes.com/2006/06/14/business/worldbusiness/14iht-soros.1974397.html>) February 7, 2017, at the Wayback Machine. International Herald Tribune. June 14, 2006.
83. "David Brancaccio interviews George Soros" (https://www.pbs.org/now/transcript/transcript_soros.html) Archived (https://web.archive.org/web/20170816005000/http://www.pbs.org/now/transcript/transcript_soros.html) August 16, 2017, at the Wayback Machine. Now. PBS. September 12, 2003. Retrieved February 8, 2007.
84. Lichfield, John (December 22, 2002). "Financier Soros fined £1.4m for insider trading" (<https://www.independent.co.uk/news/business/news/financier-soros-fined-aps1-4m-for-insider-trading-136907.html>). The Independent. London. Retrieved October 12, 2011.
85. Smith, Heather (October 6, 2011). "Soros Loses Case Against French Insider-Trading Conviction" (<https://www.bloomberg.com/news/2011-10-06/soros-loses-human-rights-appeal-against-insider-trading-case.html>). Bloomberg L.P. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20111008215906/http://www.bloomberg.com/news/2011-10-06/soros-loses-human-rights-appeal-against-insider-trading-case.html>) from the original on October 8, 2011. Retrieved October 9, 2011.

86. Kaufman, Michael T., Soros: The Life and Times of a Messianic Billionaire. (https://books.google.com/books?id=UUnnapj_hlC&pg=PT134&lpg=PT134&dq=annaliese+witschak+soros#v=onepage&q=annaliese) Archived (https://web.archive.org/web/20200801225539/https://books.google.com/books?id=UUnnapj_hlC&pg=PT134&lpg=PT134&dq=annaliese+witschak+soros#v=onepage&q=annaliese) August 1, 2020, at the Wayback Machine
87. The New York Times: "WEDDINGS; Melissa Schiff, Robert D. Soros" (<https://www.nytimes.com/1992/05/24/style/weddings-melissa-schiff-robert-d-soros.html>) Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170126105032/http://www.nytimes.com/1992/05/24/style/weddings-melissa-schiff-robert-d-soros.html>) January 26, 2017, at the Wayback Machine May 24, 1992.
88. Acumen Fund Board of Directors biographies: Andrea Soros Colombel (<http://www.acumenfund.org/about-us/board-of-directors.html>) Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20120527161032/http://www.acumenfund.org/about-us/board-of-directors.html>) May 27, 2012, at the Wayback Machine retrieved May 26, 2012.
89. The New York Times: "Jonathan Soros and Jennifer Allan" (<https://www.nytimes.com/1997/08/17/style/jonathan-soros-and-jennifer-allan.html>) Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170211155203/http://www.nytimes.com/1997/08/17/style/jonathan-soros-and-jennifer-allan.html>) February 11, 2017, at the Wayback Machine, August 17, 1997.
90. West, Melanie Grayce (September 16, 2011). "Younger Soros Tries to Learn From Father's Giving" (<https://www.wsj.com/articles/SB10001424053111904060604576573191027617806>). The Wall Street Journal. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20150306124733/http://www.wsj.com/articles/SB10001424053111904060604576573191027617806>) from the original on March 6, 2015. Retrieved September 16, 2011.
91. Hepler, Lauren (October 20, 2010). "Led By George Soros' Son, Student Contributions Buoy Democrats in 2010 Midterms" (<http://www.opensecrets.org/news/2010/10/college-life-conjures-vision-s-of.html>) Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20101120230940/http://www.opensecrets.org/news/2010/10/college-life-conjures-vision-s-of.html>) November 20, 2010, at the Wayback Machine. OpenSecretsBlog. Center for Responsive Politics.
92. "George Soros, 82, engaged to yoga website boss Tamiko Bolton, 40" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20130131002233859/http://www.telegraph.co.uk/finance/personalfinance/investing/9471568/George-Soros-82-engaged-to-yoga-website-boss-Tamiko-Bolton-40.html>). Telegraph.co.uk. August 13, 2012. Archived from the original (<https://www.telegraph.co.uk/finance/personalfinance/investing/9471568/George-Soros-82-engaged-to-yoga-website-boss-Tamiko-Bolton-40.html>) on October 2, 2013. Retrieved July 20, 2015.
93. "George Soros ties the knot" (<http://pagesix.com/2013/09/22/george-soros-ties-the-knot/>). NY Post. September 22, 2013. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20130924092718/http://pagesix.com/2013/09/22/george-soros-ties-the-knot/>) from the original on September 24, 2013. Retrieved September 22, 2013.
94. New York Post: "Soros to marry again at 82" (<http://pagesix.com/2012/08/12/soros-to-marry-again-at-82/>) Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20201102125514/https://pagesix.com/2012/08/12/soros-to-marry-again-at-82/>) November 2, 2020, at the Wayback Machine August 12, 2012
95. Hershey, Jr., Robert D. (June 15, 2013). "Paul Soros, Shipping Innovator, Dies at 87" (<https://www.nytimes.com/2013/06/16/business/paul-soros-shipping-innovator-dies-at-87.html>). The New York Times. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20130616040745/http://www.nytimes.com/2013/06/16/business/paul-soros-shipping-innovator-dies-at-87.html>) from the original on June 16, 2013. Retrieved June 15, 2013.
96. "Fellowship Background & History" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20090327060847/http://www.pdsoros.org/overview/>). Paul and Dora Soros Fellowships for Young Americans. Archived from the original (<http://www.pdsoros.org/overview/>) on March 27, 2009. Retrieved March 22, 2009.

97. Bumiller, Elisabeth (June 17, 1998). "Public Lives: An Overshadowed Altruist Sees the Light" (<https://www.nytimes.com/1998/06/17/nyregion/public-lives-an-overshadowed-altruist-sees-the-light.html>). The New York Times. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20130526183405/http://www.nytimes.com/1998/06/17/nyregion/public-lives-an-overshadowed-altruist-sees-the-light.html>) from the original on May 26, 2013. Retrieved March 22, 2009.
98. Burgenland: "Daisy Soros: Rückkehr nach 76 Jahren" (<http://burgenland.orf.at/tv/stories/2509288/>) Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20160117140038/http://burgenland.orf.at/tv/stories/2509288/>) January 17, 2016, at the Wayback Machine, retrieved May 26, 2012.
99. "Visionary Engineer Master Pom Builder Philanthropist: Paul Soros" (http://archive.poly.edu/alumni/_docs/Giants-soros.pdf) Archived (https://web.archive.org/web/20160208022255/http://archive.poly.edu/alumni/_docs/Giants-soros.pdf) February 8, 2016, at the Wayback Machine retrieved May 26, 2012.
00. "Peter Soros and Flora Fraser" (<https://www.nytimes.com/1997/02/02/style/peter-soros-and-flora-fraser.html>). The New York Times. February 2, 1997. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20090409143929/http://www.nytimes.com/1997/02/02/style/peter-soros-and-flora-fraser.html>) from the original on April 9, 2009. Retrieved March 22, 2009.
01. "Soros's Nats Bid Irks Republicans" (<https://www.washingtonpost.com/wp-dyn/content/article/2005/06/27/AR2005062701447.html>). The Washington Post. June 28, 2005. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20110629023237/http://www.washingtonpost.com/wp-dyn/content/article/2005/06/27/AR2005062701447.html>) from the original on June 29, 2011. Retrieved May 19, 2010.
02. Goff, Steven (October 12, 2000). "United's Ownership Uncertain; After Sale Fell Through, MLS Might Take Over Operation" (<https://pqasb.pqarchiver.com/washingtonpost/access/62439758.html?dids=62439758:62439758&FMT=ABS&FMTS=ABS:FT&fmac=&date=Oct+12%2C+2000&author=Steven+Goff&desc=United%27s+Ownership+Uncertain%3B+After+Sale+Fell+Through%2C+MLS+Might+Take+Over+Operation>). Pqasb.pqarchiver.com. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20090210214040/http://pqasb.pqarchiver.com/washingtonpost/access/62439758.html?dids=62439758:62439758&FMT=ABS&FMTS=ABS:FT&fmac=&date=Oct+12%2C+2000&author=Steven+Goff&desc=United%27s+Ownership+Uncertain%3B+After+Sale+Fell+Through%2C+MLS+Might+Take+Over+Operation>) from the original on February 10, 2009. Retrieved October 16, 2009.
03. "Manchester United: George Soros invests in football club" (<https://www.bbc.co.uk/news/business-19328750>). BBC. August 21, 2012. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20120821095608/http://www.bbc.co.uk/news/business-19328750>) from the original on August 21, 2012. Retrieved August 21, 2012.
04. "New Alliance of Democrats Spreads Funding" (https://www.washingtonpost.com/wp-dyn/content/article/2006/07/16/AR2006071600882_pf.html). The Washington Post. Archived (https://web.archive.org/web/20061001075131/http://www.washingtonpost.com/wp-dyn/content/article/2006/07/16/AR2006071600882_pf.html) from the original on October 1, 2006. Retrieved July 17, 2006.
05. Egan, Mark; Nichols, Michelle (October 13, 2011). "Soros: not a funder of Wall Street protests" (<http://www.reuters.com/article/2011/10/14/us-wallstreet-protests-funding-idUSTRE79D01Q20111014>) Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20150924155950/http://www.reuters.com/article/2011/10/14/us-wallstreet-protests-funding-idUSTRE79D01Q20111014>) September 24, 2015, at the Wayback Machine. Reuters; retrieved October 14, 2011.
06. Egan, Mark; Nichols, Michelle (October 13, 2011). "Who's behind the Wall St. protests?" (<https://www.reuters.com/article/2011/10/14/us-wallstreet-protests-origins-idUSTRE79C1YN20111014>) Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20151005040134/http://www.reuters.com/article/2011/10/14/us-wallstreet-protests-origins-idUSTRE79C1YN20111014>) October 5, 2015, at the Wayback Machine. Reuters; retrieved October 13, 2011.
07. Confessore, Nicholas (September 27, 2012). "Soros Gives $1 Million to Democratic 'Super PAC'" (<http://thecaucus.blogs.nytimes.com/2012/09/27/soros-gives-1-million-to-democratic-super-pac/?smid=tw-nytimes>). The New York Times. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20130510173519/http://thecaucus.blogs.nytimes.com/2012/09/27/soros-gives-1-million-to-democratic-super-pac/?smid=tw-nytimes>) from the original on May 10, 2013. Retrieved September 27, 2012.

08. Haberman, Maggie (October 24, 2013). "George Soros going to bat for Hillary Clinton" (<http://www.politico.com/story/2013/10/george-soros-hillary-clinton-98796.html>). Politico. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20131101174931/http://www.politico.com/story/2013/10/george-soros-hillary-clinton-98796.html>) from the original on November 1, 2013. Retrieved November 2, 2013.
09. "Priorities USA Action Contributors, 2016 cycle | OpenSecrets" (<https://www.opensecrets.org/pacs/pacgave2.php?cmte=C00495861&cycle=2016>). www.opensecrets.org. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20201030191645/https://www.opensecrets.org/pacs/pacgave2.php?cmte=C00495861&cycle=2016>) from the original on October 30, 2020. Retrieved November 10, 2020.
10. Severns, Maggie (July 31, 2019). "Soros launches super PAC for 2020" (<https://www.politico.com/story/2019/07/31/soros-launches-super-pac-2020-1442748>). Politico. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20200604172813/https://www.politico.com/story/2019/07/31/soros-launches-super-pac-2020-1442748>) from the original on June 4, 2020. Retrieved June 4, 2020.
11. Bland, Scott (August 30, 2016). "George Soros' quiet overhaul of the U.S. justice system" (<https://www.politico.com/story/2016/08/george-soros-criminal-justice-reform-227519>). Politico. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20200530173808/https://www.politico.com/story/2016/08/george-soros-criminal-justice-reform-227519>) from the original on May 30, 2020. Retrieved June 4, 2020.
12. St. John, Paige; Vansickle, Abbie (May 23, 2018). "Here's why George Soros, liberal groups are spending big to help decide who's your next D.A." (<https://www.latimes.com/local/california/la-me-prosecutor-campaign-20180523-story.html>) Los Angeles Times. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20200608071606/https://www.latimes.com/local/california/la-me-prosecutor-campaign-20180523-story.html>) from the original on June 8, 2020. Retrieved June 6, 2020.
13. Calvert, Scott (June 1, 2017). "Black Lives Matters Defender May Become Philadelphia's Next District Attorney" (<https://www.wsj.com/articles/a-civil-rights-attorney-may-become-philadelphias-next-prosecutor-1496322001>). The Wall Street Journal. Retrieved June 6, 2020.
14. Goldmacher, Shane (July 16, 2020). "Biden Banks $242 Million as Big-Name Donors Write Huge Checks" (<https://www.nytimes.com/2020/07/16/us/politics/joe-biden-fund-raising.html>). The New York Times. ISSN 0362-4331 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/0362-4331>). Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20200722001144/https://www.nytimes.com/2020/07/16/us/politics/joe-biden-fund-raising.html>) from the original on July 22, 2020. Retrieved July 21, 2020.
15. Saxon, Wolfgang (November 4, 2005). "Waldemar Nielsen, Expert on Philanthropy, Dies at 88" (<http://www.nytimes.com/2005/11/04/nyregion/04nielsen.html>). The New York Times. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20201110083016/https://www.nytimes.com/2005/11/04/nyregion/waldemar-nielsen-expert-on-philanthropy-dies-at-88.html>) from the original on November 10, 2020. Retrieved February 8, 2017.
16. Nielsen, Waldemar A. (1996). Inside American Philanthropy: The Dramas of Donorship. University of Oklahoma Press. p. 77.
17. George Soros, Founder/Chairman (<https://www.opensocietyfoundations.org/people/george-soros>) Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20121016233900/https://www.opensocietyfoundations.org/people/george-soros>) October 16, 2012, at the Wayback Machine, Open Society Foundation
18. Soros, George (November 4, 2009). "Soros: In revolutionary times the impossible becomes possible" (<http://edition.cnn.com/2009/WORLD/europe/07/27/aoc.soros.opensociety/index.html>). CNN.com. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20120107162204/http://edition.cnn.com/2009/WORLD/europe/07/27/aoc.soros.opensociety/index.html>) from the original on January 7, 2012. Retrieved January 7, 2012.
19. Ganguli, Ina (2017). "Saving Soviet Science: The Impact of Grants When Government R&D Funding Disappears" (https://www.aeaweb.org/articles/attachments?retrieve=emk8qC_LAUrIPcDBR1BB5AkFY5d0MRdE). American Economic Journal: Applied Economics. 9 (2): 165–201. doi:10.1257/app.20160180 (<https://doi.org/10.1257%2Fapp.20160180>). ISSN 1945-7782 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/1945-7782>). Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20201110083014/https://www.aeaweb.org/content/file?id=3970>) from the original on November 10, 2020. Retrieved August 29, 2020.

20. "World: Soros Says Revolutions Don't Build Democracies" (<https://www.rferl.org/a/1076135.html>). Radio Free Europe/Radio Liberty. April 26, 2007. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20171019111652/https://www.rferl.org/a/1076135.html>) from the original on October 19, 2017. Retrieved May 4, 2021.
21. "Alexander Lomaia – Minister of Education and Science (Georgia)" (https://web.archive.org/web/20090211061157/http://www.oecd.org/document/49/0%2C2340%2Cen_21571361_36507471_37001521_1_1_1_1%2C00.html). Oecd.org. Archived from the original (http://www.oecd.org/document/49/0,2340,en_21571361_36507471_37001521_1_1_1_1,00.html) on February 11, 2009. Retrieved October 16, 2009.
22. Zourabichvili, Salomé (April 2008). "Article". Herodote. French Institute for Geopolitics.
23. Weir, Fred (February 10, 2005). "Democracy rising in ex-Soviet states" (<http://www.csmonitor.com/2005/0210/p01s03-wosc.html>). The Christian Science Monitor. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20100416164204/http://www.csmonitor.com/2005/0210/p01s03-wosc.html>) from the original on April 16, 2010. Retrieved March 31, 2009.
24. "Does Foreign Funding Make NGOs into Puppets?" (<http://www.globalpolicy.org/ngos/fund/2006/1011puppets.htm>). Globalpolicy.org. October 11, 2006. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20090501063044/http://www.globalpolicy.org/ngos/fund/2006/1011puppets.htm>) from the original on May 1, 2009. Retrieved October 16, 2009.
25. Miller, Judith (September 4, 1997). "Soros Closes Foundation in Belarus" (<https://query.nytimes.com/gst/fullpage.html?res=9400E0D91530F937A3575AC0A961958260>). The New York Times. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20081206074119/http://query.nytimes.com/gst/fullpage.html?res=9400E0D91530F937A3575AC0A961958260>) from the original on December 6, 2008. Retrieved October 16, 2009.
26. Soros donates $100 million to Europe (<http://www.unian.net/eng/news/news-321844.html>) Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20090622032011/http://www.unian.net/eng/news/news-321844.html>) June 22, 2009, at the Wayback Machine, Ukrainian Independent Information Agency (UNIAN), June 19, 2009.
27. "#IStartWithCeu" (<https://www.ceu.edu/category/istandwithceu>). CEU. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20180215074820/http://www.ceu.edu/category/istandwithceu>) from the original on February 15, 2018. Retrieved April 18, 2018.
28. Jennifer Rankin (June 1, 2017). "George Soros attacks Hungarian prime minister for building a 'mafia state'" (<https://www.theguardian.com/world/2017/jun/01/george-soros-attacks-hungarian-president-building-mafia-state>). The Guardian. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20180331150853/https://www.theguardian.com/world/2017/jun/01/george-soros-attacks-hungarian-president-building-mafia-state>) from the original on March 31, 2018. Retrieved April 18, 2018.
29. Hungarian government. "Soros large poster" (<http://img3.hvg.hu/image.aspx?id=4099562d-ee70-4221-bb53-c4952af5c15a&view=da658e97-86c0-40f3-acd3-b0a850f32c30>). HVG. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20181118215218/http://img3.hvg.hu/image.aspx?id=4099562d-ee70-4221-bb53-c4952af5c15a&view=da658e97-86c0-40f3-acd3-b0a850f32c30>) from the original on November 18, 2018. Retrieved April 18, 2018.
30. 2017. évi LXXVI. törvény (LXXVI. law of 2017)
31. "Macedonia to George Soros and USAID: Go Away" (<https://spectator.org/macedonia-to-george-soros-and-usaid-go-away/>). The American Spectator. March 24, 2017. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170729031200/https://spectator.org/macedonia-to-george-soros-and-usaid-go-away/>) from the original on July 29, 2017. Retrieved July 25, 2017.
32. "Rex Tillerson Should Investigate Soros Activity in Macedonia" (<http://dailysignal.com/2017/03/28/george-soros-co-opted-millions-in-us-taxpayer-dollars-why-rex-tillerson-is-the-man-to-fix-it/>). The Daily Signal. March 28, 2017. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170817034314/http://dailysignal.com/2017/03/28/george-soros-co-opted-millions-in-us-taxpayer-dollars-why-rex-tillerson-is-the-man-to-fix-it/>) from the original on August 17, 2017. Retrieved July 25, 2017.

33. Takala, Rudy (April 28, 2017). "Why is the State Department refusing to disclose Soros' involvement in Macedonia?" (<http://thehill.com/blogs/pundits-blog/international/331026-why-is-the-state-department-refusing-to-disclose-soros>). TheHill. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170714124810/http://thehill.com/blogs/pundits-blog/international/331026-why-is-the-state-department-refusing-to-disclose-soros>) from the original on July 14, 2017. Retrieved July 25, 2017.
34. "The Open Society Foundations in North Macedonia" (<https://www.opensocietyfoundations.org/newsroom/the-open-society-foundations-in-north-macedonia>). Open Society Foundation. May 1, 2017. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20200215154527/https://www.opensocietyfoundations.org/newsroom/the-open-society-foundations-in-north-macedonia>) from the original on February 15, 2020. Retrieved February 28, 2020.
35. Lyman, Rick (March 1, 2017). "After Trump Win, Anti-Soros Forces Are Emboldened in Eastern Europe" (<https://www.nytimes.com/2017/03/01/world/europe/after-trump-win-anti-soros-forces-are-emboldened-in-eastern-europe.html>). The New York Times. ISSN 0362-4331 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/0362-4331>). Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170719203948/https://www.nytimes.com/2017/03/01/world/europe/after-trump-win-anti-soros-forces-are-emboldened-in-eastern-europe.html>) from the original on July 19, 2017. Retrieved July 25, 2017.
36. "George Soros foundation to close office in 'repressive' Hungary" (<https://www.aljazeera.com/news/2018/05/george-soros-foundation-close-office-repressive-hungary-180515160314017.html>). aljazeera.com. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20180606162837/https://www.aljazeera.com/news/2018/05/george-soros-foundation-close-office-repressive-hungary-180515160314017.html>) from the original on June 6, 2018. Retrieved June 6, 2018.
37. "Soros foundation to leave Hungary" (<https://www.bbc.com/news/world-europe-44082976>). May 15, 2018. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20180618161844/https://www.bbc.com/news/world-europe-44082976>) from the original on June 18, 2018. Retrieved June 6, 2018 – via www.bbc.com.
38. "Soros foundation to close office in Budapest over Hungarian government's 'repressive' policies" (<https://www.telegraph.co.uk/news/2018/05/15/soros-foundation-close-office-budapest-hungarian-governments/>). The Daily Telegraph. London. May 15, 2018. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20180618131909/https://www.telegraph.co.uk/news/2018/05/15/soros-foundation-close-office-budapest-hungarian-governments/>) from the original on June 18, 2018. Retrieved June 6, 2018.
39. "Open Society Initiative for Southern Africa" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20161015180006/https://www.opensocietyfoundations.org/about/offices-foundations/open-society-initiative-southern-africa>). opensocietyfoundations.org. Archived from the original (<https://www.opensocietyfoundations.org/about/offices-foundations/open-society-initiative-southern-africa>) on October 15, 2016. Retrieved October 11, 2016.
40. "George Soros: Kosovo Should Be Independent (<http://www.balkanupdate.com/2005/11/george-soros-kosovo-should-be.html>)". Balkan Update. November 20, 2005. Archived (<https://archive.today/20150118223636/http://www.balkanupdate.com/2005/11/george-soros-kosovo-should-be.html>) January 18, 2015, at archive.today
41. "Rebellious Diplomat Finds Work as Envoy of the Voiceless (<https://www.nytimes.com/2007/03/03/world/europe/03ross.html>) Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170202071022/http://www.nytimes.com/2007/03/03/world/europe/03ross.html>) February 2, 2017, at the Wayback Machine". The New York Times. March 3, 2007.
42. "Diplomats for hire (<http://www.globalpost.com/dispatch/diplomacy/100407/independent-diplomat>) Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20160305010341/http://www.globalpost.com/dispatch/diplomacy/100407/independent-diplomat>) March 5, 2016, at the Wayback Machine". GlobalPost. April 12, 2010.
43. LeBlanc, Steve, Soros behind Mass. effort to decriminalize pot (<http://ap.google.com/article/ALeqM5hQsksgZ-IN6nYS3jJ2NcqpufBILgD92QQPS00>), Associated Press, August 27, 2008 Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20080831060134/http://ap.google.com/article/ALeqM5hQsksgZ-IN6nYS3jJ2NcqpufBILgD92QQPS00>) August 31, 2008, at the Wayback Machine

44. Norml.org (http://norml.org/index.cfm?Group_ID=4416) Archived (https://web.archive.org/web/20081023203541/http://www.norml.org/index.cfm?Group_ID=4416) October 23, 2008, at the Wayback Machine, National Organization for the Reform of Marijuana Laws
45. Halper, Evan (November 1, 2008). "Wealthy Californians put their agendas to a vote" (https://www.latimes.com/news/la-me-billionaires1-2008nov01_0,3904554.story). Los Angeles Times. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20201110083014/https://www.latimes.com/archives/la-xpm-2008-nov-01-me-billionaires1-story.html>) from the original on November 10, 2020. Retrieved October 16, 2009.
46. Fagan, Kevin (October 26, 2010). "George Soros gives $1 million to Prop. 19 campaign" (http://www.sfgate.com/cgi-bin/blogs/nov05election/detail?entry_id=75546). San Francisco Chronicle. Archived (https://web.archive.org/web/20101101065430/http://www.sfgate.com/cgi-bin/blogs/nov05election/detail?entry_id=75546) from the original on November 1, 2010. Retrieved October 30, 2010.
47. Gorge Soros. Ekots lördagsintervju (<http://www.sr.se/webbradio/webbradio.asp?type=db&ld=1992351&BroadcastDate=&lsBlock=>), Swedish Radio, October 10, 2009.
48. Sorvino, Chloe (October 2, 2014). "An Inside Look At The Biggest Drug Reformer In The Country: George Soros" (<https://www.forbes.com/sites/chloesorvino/2014/10/02/an-inside-look-at-the-biggest-drug-reformer-in-the-country-george-soros/#738a854b1e29>). Forbes. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20200709093108/https://www.forbes.com/sites/chloesorvino/2014/10/02/an-inside-look-at-the-biggest-drug-reformer-in-the-country-george-soros/#738a854b1e29>) from the original on July 9, 2020. Retrieved July 9, 2020.
49. "The Project on Death in America: twenty years on – by David Clark – End of life studies" (<http://endoflifestudies.academicblogs.co.uk/the-project-on-death-in-america-twenty-years-on/>). End of life studies. September 11, 2014. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20150723113146/http://endoflifestudies.academicblogs.co.uk/the-project-on-death-in-america-twenty-years-on/>) from the original on July 23, 2015. Retrieved July 20, 2015.
50. "Project on Death in America" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20031009064441/http://www.soros.org/death/>). Archived from the original (<http://www.soros.org/death/>) on October 9, 2003.
51. "George Soros: Reflections on Death in America" (https://web.archive.org/web/20070210230320/http://www2.soros.org/death/george_soros.htm). Archived from the original (http://www.soros.org/death/george_soros.htm) on February 10, 2007.
52. "George Soros: Reflections on Death in America contd. 2 | Project on Death in America" (https://web.archive.org/web/20020325032428/http://www.soros.org/death/george_soros3.htm). March 25, 2002. Archived from the original (http://www.soros.org/death/george_soros3.htm) on March 25, 2002. Retrieved October 16, 2009.
53. "Fatal prescription – re-enactment of the Oregon Death With Dignity Act on physician-assisted suicide" (https://web.archive.org/web/20090211054834/http://findarticles.com/p/articles/mi_m1252/is_n20_v124/ai_20520550). Findarticles.com. 1997. Archived from the original (http://findarticles.com/p/articles/mi_m1252/is_n20_v124/ai_20520550) on February 11, 2009. Retrieved October 16, 2009.
54. Soskis, Benjamin (December 5, 2017). "George Soros and the Demonization of Philanthropy" (<https://www.theatlantic.com/business/archive/2017/12/soros-philanthropy/547247/>). The Atlantic. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20180220111317/https://www.theatlantic.com/business/archive/2017/12/soros-philanthropy/547247/>) from the original on February 20, 2018. Retrieved February 26, 2018.
55. Rachman, Gideon (September 18, 2017). "Soros hatred is a global sickness" (<https://www.ft.com/content/7f93856e-9c55-11e7-9a86-4d5a475ba4c5>). Financial Times. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20180227161015/https://www.ft.com/content/7f93856e-9c55-11e7-9a86-4d5a475ba4c5>) from the original on February 27, 2018. Retrieved March 4, 2018.
56. Bondarenko, Veronika (May 20, 2017). "George Soros is a favorite target of the right — here's how that happened" (<http://www.businessinsider.com/how-did-george-soros-become-the-favorite-boogey-man-of-the-right-2017-5>). Business Insider. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20180227075424/http://www.businessinsider.com/how-did-george-soros-become-the-favorite-boogeyman-of-the-right-2017-5>) from the original on February 27, 2018. Retrieved March 3, 2018.

57. Rynbaum, Michael M. (February 20, 2018). "Right-Wing Media Uses Parkland Shooting as Conspiracy Fodder" (<https://mobile.nytimes.com/2018/02/20/business/media/parkland-shooting-media-conspiracy.html>). The New York Times. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20180303100955/https://mobile.nytimes.com/2018/02/20/business/media/parkland-shooting-media-conspiracy.html>) from the original on March 3, 2018. Retrieved March 3, 2018.
58. Brown, Jennings; Steinblatt, Jacob (March 30, 2017). "How George Soros Became The Right's Biggest Boogeyman" (<http://www.vocativ.com/412237/george-soros-right-boogeyman/>). www.vocativ.com. Vocativ. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20180223001736/http://www.vocativ.com/412237/george-soros-right-boogeyman/>) from the original on February 23, 2018. Retrieved March 3, 2018.
59. Streitfeld, David (December 25, 2016). "For Fact Checking Website Snopes, a Bigger Role Brings More Attacks" (<https://www.nytimes.com/2016/12/25/technology/for-fact-checking-website-snopes-a-bigger-role-brings-more-attacks.html>). The New York Times. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20161227075308/http://www.nytimes.com/2016/12/25/technology/for-fact-checking-website-snopes-a-bigger-role-brings-more-attacks.html>) from the original on December 27, 2016. Retrieved December 27, 2016.
60. Rizzo, Salvador (October 5, 2018). "No, George Soros isn't paying Kavanaugh protesters" (<https://www.washingtonpost.com/politics/2018/10/05/no-george-soros-isnt-paying-kavanaugh-protesters/>). The Washington Post. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20181006001842/https://www.washingtonpost.com/politics/2018/10/05/no-george-soros-isnt-paying-kavanaugh-protesters/>) from the original on October 6, 2018. Retrieved October 6, 2018.
61. Jamieson, Amber (October 6, 2018). "Trump's Lawyer Retweeted That 'Anti-Christ' George Soros Is Funding Anti-Kavanaugh Protests" (<https://www.buzzfeednews.com/article/amberjamieson/giuliani-twitter-soros>). Buzzfeed News. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20181006182600/https://www.buzzfeednews.com/article/amberjamieson/giuliani-twitter-soros>) from the original on October 6, 2018. Retrieved October 6, 2018.
62. Aaronovitch, David (March 2, 2017). "Extremists find their time has come at last" (<https://www.thetimes.co.uk/article/extremists-find-their-time-has-come-atlast-c8mj0t7t5>). The Times. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20180504012534/https://www.thetimes.co.uk/article/extremists-find-their-time-has-come-atlast-c8mj0t7t5>) from the original on May 4, 2018. Retrieved May 3, 2018.
63. Lusher, Adam (February 8, 2018). "George Soros: The billionaire investor who became the favourite target of conspiracy theories and antisemitic hatred" (<https://www.independent.co.uk/news/uk/politics/george-soros-brexiteer-antisemitism-jew-conspiracy-theories-telegraph-story-plot-hungary-broke-bank-of-a8201651.html>). The Independent. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20180504090440/https://www.independent.co.uk/news/uk/politics/george-soros-brexiteer-antisemitism-jew-conspiracy-theories-telegraph-story-plot-hungary-broke-bank-of-a8201651.html>) from the original on May 4, 2018. Retrieved May 3, 2018.
64. "Jacob Rees-Mogg accused of antisemitism after George Soros comments" (<https://www.indy100.com/article/jacob-rees-mogg-antisemitism-george-soros-house-commons-speaker-tory-9142691>). The Independent. October 4, 2019. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20191009200419/https://www.indy100.com/article/jacob-rees-mogg-antisemitism-george-soros-house-commons-speaker-tory-9142691>) from the original on October 9, 2019. Retrieved October 9, 2019.
65. "Segir Panama-skjölin runnin undan rifjum Soros" (<http://www.ruv.is/frett/segir-panama-skjolin-runnin-undan-rifjum-soros>). RÚV. July 27, 2016. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20180921231422/http://www.ruv.is/frett/segir-panama-skjolin-runnin-undan-rifjum-soros>) from the original on September 21, 2018. Retrieved September 11, 2018.
66. "Sigmundur Davíð segir Panamaskjölin hafa verið sérstakt "hit-job" " (<https://kjarninn.is/frettir/2017-02-27-sigmundur-david-segir-panamaskjolin-hafa-verid-serstakt-hit-job/>). Kjarninn. February 27, 2017. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20180921191152/https://kjarninn.is/frettir/2017-02-27-sigmundur-david-segir-panamaskjolin-hafa-verid-serstakt-hit-job/>) from the original on September 21, 2018. Retrieved September 11, 2018.

67. "Kom Soros upp um sjálfan sig?" (<https://kjarninn.is/skodun/2016-07-28-kom-soros-upp-um-sjalfan-sig/>). Kjarninn. July 26, 2016. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20180921191025/https://kjarninn.is/skodun/2016-07-28-kom-soros-upp-um-sjalfan-sig/>) from the original on September 21, 2018. Retrieved September 11, 2018.
68. Sonmez, Felicia (December 6, 2018). "Rep. Louie Gohmert falsely says George Soros helped take property from fellow Jews" (https://www.washingtonpost.com/politics/rep-louie-gohmert-falsely-says-george-soros-helped-take-property-from-fellow-jews/2018/12/06/05beded2-f979-11e8-863c-9e2f864d47e7_story.html). The Washington Post. Archived (https://web.archive.org/web/20190111175842/http://www.washingtonpost.com/politics/rep-louie-gohmert-falsely-says-george-soros-helped-take-property-from-fellow-jews/2018/12/06/05beded2-f979-11e8-863c-9e2f864d47e7_story.html) from the original on January 11, 2019. Retrieved January 11, 2019.
69. Emery, David (February 4, 2018) [2016]. "Was George Soros an SS Officer or Nazi Collaborator During World War II?" (<https://www.snopes.com/fact-check/george-soros-ss-nazi-germany/>). Snopes. Retrieved February 2, 2021.
70. Niraj Chokshi (May 29, 2018), "George Soros Smears Find New Life in Roseanne's Twitter Tantrum" (<https://www.nytimes.com/2018/05/29/us/roseanne-george-soros-twitter.html>) Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20190222130406/https://www.nytimes.com/2018/05/29/us/roseanne-george-soros-twitter.html>) February 22, 2019, at the Wayback Machine, The New York Times
71. Nadler, Ben (August 12, 2020). "Marjorie Taylor Greene wins GOP primary in Georgia, despite racist videos" (<https://www.timesofisrael.com/greene-who-made-anti-semitic-racist-videos-wins-republican-primary-in-georgia/>). The Times of Israel. Retrieved February 1, 2021.
72. Manchester, Julia (May 29, 2018). "Trump Jr. retweets Roseanne's conspiracy theory about George Soros" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20180601075306/https://thehill.com/blogs/blog-briefing-room/news/389766-donald-trump-jr-retweets-roseannes-conspiracy-theory-about>). The Hill. Archived from the original (<https://thehill.com/blogs/blog-briefing-room/news/389766-donald-trump-jr-retweets-roseannes-conspiracy-theory-about>) on July 1, 2018. Retrieved February 2, 2021.
73. Mark E. Souder (September 29, 2006), "THE GUILT-FREE RECORD OF GEORGE SOROS" (Extensions of Remarks) (<https://www.congress.gov/congressional-record/2006/9/29/extensions-of-remarks-section/article/E1917-1>) Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20190219183427/https://www.congress.gov/congressional-record/2006/9/29/extensions-of-remarks-section/article/E1917-1>) February 19, 2019, at the Wayback Machine, Congressional Record via Congress.gov
74. Mark E. Souder (September 29, 2006), "THE GUILT-FREE RECORD OF GEORGE SOROS" (Extensions of Remarks) (https://books.google.com/books?id=iwW_dE91hF4C&q=%22helped+in+the+confiscation+of+property+from+the+Jews.+Mr.+SOROS:+Yes.+That's+right.+Yes.%22) Archived (https://web.archive.org/web/20200801220047/https://books.google.com/books?id=iwW_dE91hF4C&q=%22helped+in+the+confiscation+of+property+from+the+Jews.+Mr.+SOROS:+Yes.+That's+right.+Yes.%22) August 1, 2020, at the Wayback Machine, Congressional Record via Google Books
75. Avi Selk (May 30, 2018), "George Soros wasn't a Nazi, Roseanne Barr. He was a 14-year-old Jew who hid from them." (<https://www.washingtonpost.com/news/the-intersect/wp/2018/05/30/unpacking-the-george-soros-was-a-jew-killing-nazi-conspiracy-theory-that-roseanne-barr-spreads>) Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20180726214806/https://www.washingtonpost.com/news/the-intersect/wp/2018/05/30/unpacking-the-george-soros-was-a-jew-killing-nazi-conspiracy-theory-that-roseanne-barr-spreads/>) July 26, 2018, at the Wayback Machine The Washington Post [1] (<https://twitter.com/LarryEKIayman/status/1202267679765225474>) Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20191204225944/https://twitter.com/LarryEKIayman/status/1202267679765225474>) December 4, 2019, at the Wayback Machine
76. Sommer, Allison Kaplan (October 14, 2018). "From 'Satanic' to 'Anti-Christ': Pro-Trump Attacks on George Soros Intensify as Midterms Approach" (<https://www.haaretz.com/us-news/.premium-pro-trump-attacks-on-satanic-george-soros-intensify-as-midterms-near-1.6554295>). Haaretz. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20200531091948/https://www.haaretz.com/us-news/.premium-pro-trump-attacks-on-satanic-george-soros-intensify-as-midterms-near-1.6554295>) from the original on May 31, 2020. Retrieved June 2, 2020.

77. Steve Kroft (December 20, 1998), George Soros 1998 interview MP4 video \("confiscation" comment at 8:35\) (https://archive.org/download/George_Soros_1998_60_Minutes_Interview/George_Soros_1998_60_Minutes_Interview.mp4), 60 Minutes via Archive.org
78. Smith, Allan (December 6, 2018). "Gohmert makes false claim in TV interview about Soros and Jews. Fox Business distances itself" (<https://www.nbcnews.com/politics/politics-news/gohmert-makes-false-claim-tv-interview-about-soros-jews-fox-n944831>). NBC News. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20181211214756/https://www.nbcnews.com/politics/politics-news/gohmert-makes-false-claim-tv-interview-about-soros-jews-fox-n944831>) from the original on December 11, 2018. Retrieved January 11, 2019.
79. Lybrand, Holmes (May 30, 2018). "Fact Check: George Soros, the Thieving Nazi Sympathizer?" (<http://www.weeklystandard.com/holmes-lybrand/fact-check-george-soros-the-thieving-nazi-sympathizer>). The Weekly Standard. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20190112044257/https://www.weeklystandard.com/holmes-lybrand/fact-check-george-soros-the-thieving-nazi-sympathizer>) from the original on January 12, 2019. Retrieved January 11, 2019.
80. Coaston, Jane (June 11, 2018). "George Soros is not a Nazi, explained" (<https://www.vox.com/2018/6/11/17405784/george-soros-not-a-nazi-trump>). Vox. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20190111050650/https://www.vox.com/2018/6/11/17405784/george-soros-not-a-nazi-trump>) from the original on January 11, 2019. Retrieved January 11, 2019.
81. Qiu, Linda (October 20, 2018). "Did Democrats, or George Soros, Fund Migrant Caravan? Despite Republican Claims, No" (<https://www.nytimes.com/2018/10/20/world/americas/migrant-caravan-video-trump.html>). The New York Times. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20181024012458/https://www.nytimes.com/2018/10/20/world/americas/migrant-caravan-video-trump.html>) from the original on October 24, 2018. Retrieved October 24, 2018.
82. "Five myths about the Honduran caravan debunked" (<https://www.nbcnews.com/news/latino/five-myths-about-honduran-caravan-debunked-n922806>). Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20181024051231/https://www.nbcnews.com/news/latino/five-myths-about-honduran-caravan-debunked-n922806>) from the original on October 24, 2018. Retrieved October 24, 2018.
83. Danielle Wiener-Bronner. "Campbell Soup disavows Soros conspiracy theory tweeted by VP" (<https://www.cnn.com/2018/10/23/business/kelly-johnston-soros-campbell/index.html>). CNN. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20181024012224/https://www.cnn.com/2018/10/23/business/kelly-johnston-soros-campbell/index.html>) from the original on October 24, 2018. Retrieved October 24, 2018.
84. Joel Achenbach (October 28, 2018). "A conspiracy theory about George Soros and a migrant caravan inspired horror" (https://www.washingtonpost.com/national/a-conspiracy-theory-about-george-soros-and-a-migrant-caravan-inspired-horror/2018/10/28/52df587e-dae6-11e8-b732-3c72cbf131f2_story.html). The Washington Post. Archived (https://web.archive.org/web/20181029031727/https://www.washingtonpost.com/national/a-conspiracy-theory-about-george-soros-and-a-migrant-caravan-inspired-horror/2018/10/28/52df587e-dae6-11e8-b732-3c72cbf131f2_story.html) from the original on October 29, 2018. Retrieved October 29, 2018.
85. "Trump: "A Lot of People Say" George Soros Is Funding the Migrant Caravan" (<https://www.vanityfair.com/news/2018/10/donald-trump-george-soros-caravan>). Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20200914224218/https://www.vanityfair.com/news/2018/10/donald-trump-george-soros-caravan>) from the original on September 14, 2020. Retrieved September 15, 2020.
86. Jason Wilson (October 27, 2018). "Pittsburgh shooting extends wave of conspiracy-minded rightwing violence" (<https://www.theguardian.com/world/2018/oct/27/pittsburgh-synagogue-shooting-antisemitism-conspiracy-theories>). The Guardian. London. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20181028165735/https://www.theguardian.com/world/2018/oct/27/pittsburgh-synagogue-shooting-antisemitism-conspiracy-theories>) from the original on October 28, 2018. Retrieved October 29, 2018.

87. Kelly Weill (October 27, 2018). "Pittsburgh Synagogue Suspect Robert Bowers Hated Trump—for Not Hating Jews" (<https://www.thedailybeast.com/robert-bowers-is-neo-nazi-who-posted-about-killing-jews-on-gab?via=desktop&social=Linkedin>). Daily Beast. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20181110190712/https://www.thedailybeast.com/robert-bowers-is-neo-nazi-who-posted-about-killing-jews-on-gab?via=desktop&social=Linkedin>) from the original on November 10, 2018. Retrieved October 29, 2018.
88. "Soros foundation to close in Turkey after attack by Erdogan" (<https://www.reuters.com/article/us-turkey-security-soros/soros-foundation-to-close-in-turkey-after-attack-by-erdogan-idUSKCN1NV1KL>). Reuters. November 26, 2018. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20190502110654/https://www.reuters.com/article/us-turkey-security-soros/soros-foundation-to-close-in-turkey-after-attack-by-erdogan-idUSKCN1NV1KL>) from the original on May 2, 2019. Retrieved May 2, 2019.
89. Sheth, Sonam (April 11, 2018). "Former federal prosecutor Joseph DiGenova calls for Rosenstein's firing on Fox News after Trump tells people to tune in to the 'big show'" (<http://uk.businessinsider.com/joseph-digenova-trump-fox-news-sessions-should-fire-rosenstein-2018-4?r=US&IR=T>). Business Insider. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20180412212145/http://uk.businessinsider.com/joseph-digenova-trump-fox-news-sessions-should-fire-rosenstein-2018-4?r=US&IR=T>) from the original on April 12, 2018. Retrieved April 12, 2018. "DiGenova and his wife, Victoria Toensing, both used to work within the US Justice Department, but later made their reputations peddling conspiracy theories on TV about the DOJ and FBI."
90. Haberman, Maggie; Schmidt, Michael S. (March 19, 2018). "Trump Hires Lawyer Who Has Pushed Theory That Justice Dept. Framed the President" (<https://www.nytimes.com/2018/03/19/us/politics/joseph-digenova-trump-lawyer.html>). The New York Times. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20180322022412/https://www.nytimes.com/2018/03/19/us/politics/joseph-digenova-trump-lawyer.html>) from the original on March 22, 2018. Retrieved March 22, 2018.
91. Blake, Aaron (March 19, 2018). "Analysis | Trump just hired a deep-state conspiracy theorist as his lawyer. Here's what Joe DiGenova has said" (<https://www.washingtonpost.com/news/the-fix/wp/2018/03/19/trump-is-reportedly-hiring-a-conspiracy-theorist-for-his-legal-team-heres-what-joe-digenova-has-said/>). The Washington Post. ISSN 0190-8286 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/0190-8286>). Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20180510110448/https://www.washingtonpost.com/news/the-fix/wp/2018/03/19/trump-is-reportedly-hiring-a-conspiracy-theorist-for-his-legal-team-heres-what-joe-digenova-has-said/>) from the original on May 10, 2018. Retrieved May 11, 2018.
92. Sheth, Sonam (March 19, 2018). "Trump is reportedly set to hire a new lawyer who called Comey 'a dirty cop' and accused the FBI of trying to 'frame' Trump" (<http://uk.businessinsider.com/trump-hiring-joseph-digenova-controversial-doj-veteran-2018-3?r=US&IR=T>). Business Insider. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20180511150348/http://uk.businessinsider.com/trump-hiring-joseph-digenova-controversial-doj-veteran-2018-3?r=US&IR=T>) from the original on May 11, 2018. Retrieved May 11, 2018.
93. "The bizarre conspiracy theories peddled by Donald Trump's new lawyer" (<https://www.independent.co.uk/news/world/americas/us-politics/joseph-digenova-trump-lawyer-deep-state-conspiracy-theories-legal-a8265861.html>). The Independent. March 20, 2018. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20180524215825/https://www.independent.co.uk/news/world/americas/us-politics/joseph-digenova-trump-lawyer-deep-state-conspiracy-theories-legal-a8265861.html>) from the original on May 24, 2018. Retrieved May 31, 2018.
94. Hart, Benjamin. "Trump's Conspiracy Theory Lawyer Dropped From Team Before Starting" (<https://nymag.com/daily/intelligencer/2018/03/trumps-conspiracy-theory-lawyer-dropped-from-team.html>). Daily Intelligencer. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20180818084152/http://nymag.com/daily/intelligencer/2018/03/trumps-conspiracy-theory-lawyer-dropped-from-team.html>) from the original on August 18, 2018. Retrieved August 18, 2018. "DiGenova is known as a fierce defender of Trump who has used frequent guest appearances on Fox News to advance far-out conspiracy theories that the FBI is trying to frame the president."

95. Tibon, Amir (March 20, 2018). "Trump's New Lawyer: The Man Who Sent Jonathan Pollard to Jail" (<https://www.haaretz.com/us-news/.premium-trump-s-new-lawyer-the-man-who-sent-jonathan-pollard-to-jail-1.5931543>). Haaretz. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20180818084034/https://www.haaretz.com/us-news/.premium-trump-s-new-lawyer-the-man-who-sent-jonathan-pollard-to-jail-1.5931543>) from the original on August 18, 2018. Retrieved August 18, 2018. "Joseph diGenova has promoted conspiracy theories about a 'deep state' attempt to 'frame' Trump and his campaign for criminal activities"
96. Breuninger, Kevin (March 27, 2018). "Here are the lawyers who quit or declined to represent Trump in the Mueller probe" (<https://www.cnbc.com/2018/03/27/all-the-lawyers-declining-to-represent-trump-in-mueller-probe.html>). CNBC. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20180818083814/https://www.cnbc.com/2018/03/27/all-the-lawyers-declining-to-represent-trump-in-mueller-probe.html>) from the original on August 18, 2018. Retrieved August 18, 2018. "DiGenova, a regular Fox News guest, had spouted conspiracy theories about the Mueller probe's motives against Trump."
97. [\[189\]\[190\]\[191\]\[192\]\[193\]\[194\]\[195\]\[196\]](#)
98. "Lou Dobbs guest Joe diGenova says George Soros controls a large part of the State Department and activities of FBI agents" (<https://www.mediamatters.org/lou-dobbs/lou-dobbs-guest-joe-digenova-says-george-soros-controls-large-part-state-department-and>). Media Matters for America. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20191114194805/https://www.mediamatters.org/lou-dobbs/lou-dobbs-guest-joe-digenova-says-george-soros-controls-large-part-state-department-and>) from the original on November 14, 2019. Retrieved November 14, 2019.
99. Wemple, Eric (November 14, 2019). "Soros foundation requests banning of Joe diGenova from Fox News/Fox Business after anti-Semitic rant" (<https://www.washingtonpost.com/opinions/2019/11/14/soros-foundation-requests-banning-joe-digenova-fox-newsfox-business-after-anti-semitic-rant/>). The Washington Post. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20191114234729/https://www.washingtonpost.com/opinions/2019/11/14/soros-foundation-requests-banning-joe-digenova-fox-newsfox-business-after-anti-semitic-rant/>) from the original on November 14, 2019. Retrieved November 16, 2019.
00. Baragona, Justin (September 23, 2020). "Former Fox News Regular Joe diGenova Claims Network Is Beholden to George Soros" (<https://www.thedailybeast.com/former-fox-news-regular-joe-digenova-tells-seb-gorka-the-network-is-beholden-to-george-soros>). The Daily Beast. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20201106203604/https://www.thedailybeast.com/former-fox-news-regular-joe-digenova-tells-seb-gorka-the-network-is-beholden-to-george-soros>) from the original on November 6, 2020. Retrieved December 1, 2020.
01. Alba, Davey (June 1, 2020). "Misinformation About George Floyd Protests Surges on Social Media" (<https://www.nytimes.com/2020/06/01/technology/george-floyd-misinformation-online.html>). The New York Times. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20200612150326/https://www.nytimes.com/2020/06/01/technology/george-floyd-misinformation-online.html>) from the original on June 12, 2020. Retrieved June 4, 2020.
02. "Archived copy" (<https://borneobulletin.com.bn/2020/06/soros-conspiracy-theories-surge-as-protests-sweep-us/>). Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20200625235602/https://borneobulletin.com.bn/2020/06/soros-conspiracy-theories-surge-as-protests-sweep-us/>) from the original on June 25, 2020. Retrieved June 22, 2020.
03. "Ilham Aliyev: 'Current government in Armenia are agents of Soros'" (<https://archive.is/CWYce>). Azeri Daily. July 31, 2020. Archived from the original (<http://azeridaily.com/politics/57595>) on January 2, 2020. Retrieved January 2, 2020.
04. "Open Society Foundations-Armenia provides over US $600,000 for the response to COVID-19" (<https://archive.is/brNh2>). Open Society Foundations Armenia. July 20, 2020. Archived from the original (<https://www.osf.am/2020/07/%d5%b0%d5%a1%d5%b5%d5%a5%d6%80%d5%a5%d5%b6-%d5%a2%d5%a1%d6%81-%d5%b0%d5%a1%d5%bd%d5%a1%d6%80%d5%a1%d5%af%d5%b8%d6%82%d5%a9%d5%b5%d5%a1%d5%b6-%d5%b0%d5%ab%d5%b4%d5%b6%d5%a1%d5%a4%d6%80%d5%a1%d5%b4/>) on January 2, 2020. Retrieved January 2, 2020.

05. Mammadov, Sabuhi (August 6, 2020). "Biz heç vaxt işğal ilə barışmayacağıq" (<https://archive.is/cCV6m>) [We will never reconcile with the occupation]. Khalq Gazeti (in Azerbaijani). p. 3. Archived from the original (http://www.anl.az/down/meqale/xalqqazeti/2020/avqust/712888\(meqale\).pdf.pdf)) (PDF) on January 2, 2020. Retrieved January 2, 2020 – via National Library of Azerbaijan.
06. " "Ermenistanın indiki rəhbərliyi Soros fondunun agentləridir" - İlham Əliyev" (<https://archive.is/guQ4M>) ["The current leadership of Armenia is an agent of the Soros Foundation," said İlham Aliyev]. Ordu.az (in Azerbaijani). July 31, 2020. Archived from the original (<https://ordu.az/ru/news/169140/ermenistanin-indiki-rehberliyi-soros-fondunun-agentleridir-ilham-eliyev>) on January 2, 2020. Retrieved January 2, 2020.
07. Ozturk, Alparслан (October 16, 2020). "İlham Əliyev: "Soros Ermənistanda hakimiyyətə gəldi, amma iflasa uğradı" " (<https://archive.is/xjU3v>) [İlham Aliyev: "Soros came to power in Armenia, but failed"]. Report Information Agency (in Azerbaijani). Archived from the original (<https://report.az/qarabag/ilham-eliyev-soros-ermenistanda-hakimiyyete-geldi-amma-iflasa-ugradi/>) on January 2, 2020. Retrieved January 2, 2020.
08. Lach, Eric (October 24, 2018). "The Bombs Addressed to Obama, Clinton, and Soros, and the History of Anti-Soros Hate-Mongering" (<https://www.newyorker.com/news/current/the-bombs-addressed-to-obama-clinton-and-soros-and-the-history-of-soros-mongering>). The New Yorker. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20181026212611/https://www.newyorker.com/news/current/the-bombs-addressed-to-obama-clinton-and-soros-and-the-history-of-soros-mongering>) from the original on October 26, 2018. Retrieved October 27, 2018.
09. Hutchinson, Bill; Katersky, Aaron; Margolin, Josh; Crudele, Mark (October 23, 2018). "Would-be attacker hand-delivered pipe bomb to George Soros' home mailbox: Source" (<https://abcnews.go.com/US/billionaire-philanthropist-george-soros-home-explosive-device-found/story?id=58683450>). ABC News. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20181023230808/https://abcnews.go.com/US/billionaire-philanthropist-george-soros-home-explosive-device-found/story?id=58683450>) from the original on October 23, 2018. Retrieved October 24, 2018.
10. Rashbaum, William K.; Mervosh, Sarah; Chow, Andrew R. (October 22, 2018). "At George Soros's Home in N.Y. Suburb, Explosive Device Is Found in Mailbox" (<https://www.nytimes.com/2018/10/22/nyregion/george-soros-explosive-device.html>). The New York Times. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20181023025632/https://www.nytimes.com/2018/10/22/nyregion/george-soros-explosive-device.html>) from the original on October 23, 2018. Retrieved October 23, 2018.
11. "Explosive Devices Found in Mail Sent to Hillary Clinton and Obama" (<https://www.nytimes.com/2018/10/24/nyregion/clinton-obama-explosive-device.html>). The New York Times. October 24, 2018. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20181024134109/https://www.nytimes.com/2018/10/24/nyregion/clinton-obama-explosive-device.html>) from the original on October 24, 2018. Retrieved October 24, 2018.
12. Hanna, Jason; Perez, Evan; Glover, Scott; Almasy, Steve; Sanchez, Ray (October 27, 2018). "Bomb suspect arrest: What we know about Cesar Sayoc" (<https://www.cnn.com/2018/10/26/politics/suspicious-packages-arrest/index.html>). CNN Politics. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20181026165125/https://www.cnn.com/2018/10/26/politics/suspicious-packages-arrest/index.html>) from the original on October 26, 2018. Retrieved February 28, 2020.
13. Bekiempis, Victoria (August 5, 2019). "Cesar Sayoc, who sent pipe bombs to Trump critics, gets 20 years in prison" (<https://www.theguardian.com/us-news/2019/aug/05/cesar-sayoc-sentencing-pipe-bombs-targets-trump-critics>). The Guardian. London. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20200228205221/https://www.theguardian.com/us-news/2019/aug/05/cesar-sayoc-sentencing-pipe-bombs-targets-trump-critics>) from the original on February 28, 2020. Retrieved February 28, 2020.
14. Solow, Robert (February 8, 1999). "The Amateur". The New Republic.
15. Hands, D. Wade, ed. (2013). "Reflexivity and Economics: George Soros's Theory of Reflexivity and the Methodology of Economic Science". Journal of Economic Methodology. 2013. 20 (4): 309–329. doi:10.1080/1350178X.2013.859415 (<https://doi.org/10.1080%2F1350178X.2013.859415>). hdl:10.1080/1350178X.2013.859415 (<https://hdl.handle.net/10.1080%2F1350178X.2013.859415>). S2CID 144650771 (<https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:144650771>).

16. Arthur, W. Brian (2014). "Complexity economics: a different framework for economic thought" (<http://complexity.stanford.edu/wp-content/uploads/2015/12/Econ-Frame.A4.pdf>) (PDF). Complexity and the Economy. Science. 284. Oxford: Oxford University Press. pp. 107–9. doi:10.1126/science.284.5411.107 (<https://doi.org/10.1126%2Fscience.284.5411.107>). ISBN 978-0-19-933429-2. PMID 10103172 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/10103172>). Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170403015245/http://complexity.stanford.edu/wp-content/uploads/2015/12/Econ-Frame.A4.pdf>) (PDF) from the original on April 3, 2017. Retrieved April 2, 2017.
17. Davis, John (December 2013). "Soros's Reflexivity Concept in a Complex World: Cauchy Distributions" (http://epublications.marquette.edu/econ_fac/385/). Marquette.edu. Archived (https://web.archive.org/web/20160502050145/http://epublications.marquette.edu/econ_fac/385/) from the original on May 2, 2016. Retrieved November 10, 2020.
18. "Why do we need an Institute for New Economic Thinking at Oxford? – Videos" (<http://www.oxfordmartin.ox.ac.uk/videos/view/172>). Oxford Martin School. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20120826121303/http://www.oxfordmartin.ox.ac.uk/videos/view/172>) from the original on August 26, 2012. Retrieved November 10, 2020.
19. Beinhooker, Eric D. (2013). "Reflexivity, complexity, and the nature of social science". Journal of Economic Methodology. 20 (4): 330–342. doi:10.1080/1350178X.2013.859403 (<https://doi.org/10.1080%2F1350178X.2013.859403>). S2CID 1007420 (<https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:1007420>).
20. The Bubble of American Supremacy: Correcting the Misuse of American Power (<https://archive.org/details/bubbleofamerican00soro>). PublicAffairs. 2003. ISBN 978-1-58648-217-6.
21. Soros, George (2003). The Alchemy of Finance. John Wiley & Sons. p. 13. ISBN 978-0-471-44549-4.
22. "Soros, the Man Who Cries Wolf (<https://www.wsj.com/articles/SB121400427331093457>) Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170803132236/https://www.wsj.com/articles/SB121400427331093457>) August 3, 2017, at the Wayback Machine, Now Is Warning of a 'Superbubble'" by Greg Ip, B1, June 21–22, 2008 The Wall Street Journal.
23. Soros sees no bottom for world financial "collapse" (<https://www.reuters.com/article/newsOne/idUSTRE51K0A920090221>) Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20201103000810/https://www.reuters.com/article/newsOne/idUSTRE51K0A920090221>) November 3, 2020, at the Wayback Machine, Reuters, February 21, 2009, Retrieved August 17, 2009.
24. Haigh, Adam; Ondaatjie, Anusha (January 6, 2016). "George Soros Sees Crisis in Global Markets That Echoes 2008" (<https://www.bloomberg.com/news/articles/2016-01-07/global-markets-at-the-beginning-of-a-crisis-george-soros-says>). bloomberg.com. Bloomberg LP. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170210101242/https://www.bloomberg.com/news/articles/2016-01-07/global-markets-at-the-beginning-of-a-crisis-george-soros-says>) from the original on February 10, 2017. Retrieved January 15, 2016.
25. Clinch, Matt (January 7, 2016). "Soros: It's the 2008 crisis all over again" (<https://www.cnn.com/2016/01/07/soros-its-the-2008-crisis-all-over-again.html>). cnn.com. CNN LLC. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20160116060225/http://www.cnn.com/2016/01/07/soros-its-the-2008-crisis-all-over-again.html>) from the original on January 16, 2016. Retrieved January 15, 2016.
26. Porter, Anna (2015). Buying a Better World: George Soros and Billionaire Philanthropy (<https://books.google.com/books?id=8FusBAAQBAJ&pg=PA32>). Dundurn Press. p. 32. ISBN 978-1-45973-103-5. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170403031523/https://books.google.com/books?id=8FusBAAQBAJ&pg=PA32>) from the original on April 3, 2017. Retrieved April 2, 2017.
27. "Hacked Soros e-mails reveal plans to fight Israel's 'racist' policies" (<http://www.jpost.com/Israel-News/Politics-And-Diplomacy/Hacked-Soros-e-mails-reveal-plans-to-fight-Israelis-racist-policies-464149>). Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20161114092640/http://www.jpost.com/Israel-News/Politics-And-Diplomacy/Hacked-Soros-e-mails-reveal-plans-to-fight-Israelis-racist-policies-464149>) from the original on November 14, 2016. Retrieved November 7, 2016., The Jerusalem Post, from Jewish Telegraphic Agency

28. Leibovitz, Liel (August 14, 2016). "Soros Hack Reveals Evidence of Systemic Anti-Israel Bias" (<http://www.tabletmag.com/scroll/210826/soros-hack-reveals-evidence-of-systemic-anti-israel-bias>). Tablet. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20160815160302/http://www.tabletmag.com/scroll/210826/soros-hack-reveals-evidence-of-systemic-anti-israel-bias>) from the original on August 15, 2016. Retrieved August 15, 2016.
29. Israel, David (August 14, 2016). "DC Leaks Publishes George Soros' Files Showing Millions Contributed to Anti-Israel Causes" (<http://www.jewishpress.com/news/breaking-news/dc-leaks-publishes-george-soros-files-showing-millions-contributed-to-anti-israel-causes/2016/08/14/>). Jewish Press. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20160816102600/http://www.jewishpress.com/news/breaking-news/dc-leaks-publishes-george-soros-files-showing-millions-contributed-to-anti-israel-causes/2016/08/14/>) from the original on August 16, 2016. Retrieved August 15, 2016.
30. A Soros Plan, a Marginalized Israel (<https://www.bloomberg.com/view/articles/2016-08-16/how-george-soros-threatens-to-make-israel-a-pariah>) Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170509020629/https://www.bloomberg.com/view/articles/2016-08-16/how-george-soros-threatens-to-make-israel-a-pariah>) May 9, 2017, at the Wayback Machine By Eli Lake, August 16, 2016, Bloomberg
31. Heilman, Uriel (November 8, 2003). "Soros Says Jews And Israel Cause Anti-Semitism" (https://web.archive.org/web/20031119203952/http://www.jta.org/page_view_story.asp?intarticleid=13428&intcategoryid=4). Jewish Telegraphic Agency. Archived from the original (http://www.jta.org/page_view_story.asp?intarticleid=13428&intcategoryid=4) on November 19, 2003.
32. Beattie, Kirk (2016). Congress and the Shaping of the Middle East. New York: Seven Stories Press. ISBN 978-1-60980-562-3.
33. Soros, George. "On Israel, America and AIPAC" (<http://www.nybooks.com/articles/20030>) Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20081221104958/http://www.nybooks.com/articles/20030>) December 21, 2008, at the Wayback Machine. The New York Review of Books. April 12, 2007.
34. George Soros battles $10B lawsuit, familiar charges of wielding political influence (<http://www.foxnews.com/world/2017/05/05/george-soros-battles-10b-lawsuit-familiar-charges-wielding-political-influence.html>) Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170506110907/http://www.foxnews.com/world/2017/05/05/george-soros-battles-10b-lawsuit-familiar-charges-wielding-political-influence.html>) May 6, 2017, at the Wayback Machine Fox News
35. Mining Company Sues George Soros for $10 Billion (<https://www.courthousenews.com/mining-company-sues-george-soros-10-billion>) Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170424091639/http://www.courthousenews.com/mining-company-sues-george-soros-10-billion/>) April 24, 2017, at the Wayback Machine JOSH RUSSELL, April 20, 2017, Courthouse News Service
36. Soros Sued by Fellow Billionaire in $10 Billion Mine Brawl (<https://www.bloomberg.com/news/articles/2017-04-14/george-soros-sued-by-fellow-billionaire-in-10-billion-mine-row>) Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170517231831/https://www.bloomberg.com/news/articles/2017-04-14/george-soros-sued-by-fellow-billionaire-in-10-billion-mine-row>) May 17, 2017, at the Wayback Machine by Franz Wild, April 14, 2017, Bloomberg
37. Jesse Drucker & Isabel Kershner, Israeli Billionaire Beny Steinmetz Detained in Investigation (<https://www.nytimes.com/2017/08/14/business/dealbook/beny-steinmetz-israeli-billionaire-detained.html>) Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20180105235320/https://www.nytimes.com/2017/08/14/business/dealbook/beny-steinmetz-israeli-billionaire-detained.html>) January 5, 2018, at the Wayback Machine, The New York Times (August 14, 2017).
38. Jesse Riseborough & Franz Wild, Soros Calls $10 Billion Steinmetz Mine Suit a 'Frivolous' Stunt (<https://www.bloomberg.com/news/articles/2017-04-18/soros-calls-10-billion-steinmetz-mine-suit-a-frivolous-stunt>) Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20180106063859/https://www.bloomberg.com/news/articles/2017-04-18/soros-calls-10-billion-steinmetz-mine-suit-a-frivolous-stunt>) January 6, 2018, at the Wayback Machine, Bloomberg (April 18, 2017).

39. The Night George Soros Stood In For Nobel Holocaust Survivor Imre Kertesz (<https://forward.com/the-assimilator/338433/the-night-george-soros-stood-in-for-nobel-holocaust-survivor-imre-kertes>) Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20161024023847/http://forward.com/the-assimilator/338433/the-night-george-soros-stood-in-for-nobel-holocaust-survivor-imre-kertes/>) October 24, 2016, at the Wayback Machine April 12, 2016, The Forward, By Masha Leon
40. "George Soros upset by 'antisemitic' campaign against him in Hungary" (<https://www.theguardian.com/world/2017/jul/12/george-soros-upset-by-anti-semitic-campaign-against-him-in-hungary>). The Guardian. Agence France-Presse. July 12, 2017. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20190502124407/https://www.theguardian.com/world/2017/jul/12/george-soros-upset-by-anti-semitic-campaign-against-him-in-hungary>) from the original on May 2, 2019. Retrieved May 2, 2019.
41. Thorpe, Nick (July 10, 2017). "Hungary vilifies financier Soros with crude poster campaign" (<https://www.bbc.co.uk/news/world-europe-40554844>). BBC News. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20190403202837/https://www.bbc.co.uk/news/world-europe-40554844>) from the original on April 3, 2019. Retrieved May 2, 2019.
42. Baker, Luke (July 10, 2017). "Israel backs Hungary, says financier Soros is a threat" (<https://www.reuters.com/article/us-israel-hungary-soros-idUSKBN19V1J4>). Reuters. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20190418110435/https://www.reuters.com/article/us-israel-hungary-soros-idUSKBN19V1J4>) from the original on April 18, 2019. Retrieved May 2, 2019.
43. Dunai, Marton (July 6, 2017). "Hungarian Jews ask PM Orban to end 'bad dream' of anti-Semitism" (<https://uk.reuters.com/article/uk-hungary-soros-orban-jews/hungarian-jews-ask-pm-orban-to-end-bad-dream-of-anti-semitism-idUKKBN19R24X>). Reuters. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20190502131109/https://uk.reuters.com/article/uk-hungary-soros-orban-jews/hungarian-jews-ask-pm-orban-to-end-bad-dream-of-anti-semitism-idUKKBN19R24X>) from the original on May 2, 2019. Retrieved May 2, 2019.
44. Ravid, Barak (July 10, 2018). "On Netanyahu's Orders: Israel's Foreign Ministry Retracts Criticism of anti-Semitism in Hungary and Slams George Soros" (<https://www.haaretz.com/israel-news/israel-retracts-criticism-of-hungary-s-anti-soros-campaign-1.5492668>). Haaretz. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20190502105115/https://www.haaretz.com/israel-news/israel-retracts-criticism-of-hungary-s-anti-soros-campaign-1.5492668>) from the original on May 2, 2019. Retrieved May 2, 2019.
45. Barnea, Nahum (April 25, 2018). "Why they hate George Soros" (<https://www.ynetnews.com/articles/0,7340,L-5241290,00.html>). Ynetnews. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20180426002921/https://www.ynetnews.com/articles/0,7340,L-5241290,00.html>) from the original on April 26, 2018. Retrieved April 26, 2018.
46. Steinberger, Michael (July 17, 2018). "George Soros Bet Big on Liberal Democracy. Now He Fears He Is Losing. (Published 2018)" (<https://www.nytimes.com/2018/07/17/magazine/george-soros-democrat-open-society.html>). The New York Times. ISSN 0362-4331 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/0362-4331>). Retrieved February 20, 2021.
47. Laura Blumenfeld, Deep Pockets vs. Bush, Financier Contributes $5 Million More in Effort to Oust President (http://articles.orlandosentinel.com/2003-11-23/news/0311220187_1_george-soros-oust-bush-democratic-party) Archived (https://web.archive.org/web/20110726215128/http://articles.orlandosentinel.com/2003-11-23/news/0311220187_1_george-soros-oust-bush-democratic-party) July 26, 2011, at the Wayback Machine, The Washington Post, November 11, 2003; p. A03.
48. The Money Man (https://www.newyorker.com/archive/2004/10/18/041018fa_fact3?currentPage=1) Archived (https://web.archive.org/web/20140718152705/http://www.newyorker.com/archive/2004/10/18/041018fa_fact3?currentPage=1) July 18, 2014, at the Wayback Machine, The New Yorker, Jane Mayer, October 18, 2004
49. Byron York, National Review (<http://old.nationalreview.com/york/york200508030928.asp>) Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20101026043318/http://old.nationalreview.com/york/york200508030928.asp>) October 26, 2010, at the Wayback Machine, August 3, 2005: "Soros, who would eventually give ACT $20 million of his own money ..."

50. "Why We Must Not Re-elect President Bush" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20091003210338/http://www.commondreams.org/views04/0928-16.htm>). Commondreams.org. September 28, 2004. Archived from the original (<http://www.commondreams.org/views04/0928-16.htm>) on October 3, 2009. Retrieved October 16, 2009.
51. Suellentrop, Chris (October 6, 2004). "Cheney Drops the Ball" (<http://www.slate.com/id/2107809/>). Slate.com. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20100616054605/http://www.slate.com/id/2107809/>) from the original on June 16, 2010. Retrieved October 16, 2009.
52. Soros, George (2004). The Bubble of American Supremacy (<https://archive.org/details/bubbleofamerican00soro>). New York: Crows Nest M.S.W. Allen & Unwin. ISBN 9781586482176.
53. "America the Dangerous?" (<http://www.newsweek.com/2006/06/27/america-the-dangerous.html>) Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/2010111122422/http://www.newsweek.com/2006/06/27/america-the-dangerous.html>) November 11, 2010, at the Wayback Machine, Newsweek, June 27, 2006.
54. "Soros Says Markets to Slump With Trump, EU Faces Disintegration" (<https://www.bloomberg.com/news/articles/2017-01-19/george-soros-says-markets-will-falter-as-uncertainty-takes-over>). January 19, 2017. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170120142725/https://www.bloomberg.com/news/articles/2017-01-19/george-soros-says-markets-will-falter-as-uncertainty-takes-over>) from the original on January 20, 2017. Retrieved January 20, 2017 – via www.bloomberg.com.
55. George Soros: Theresa May won't last and Donald Trump is 'would-be dictator' (<https://www.theguardian.com/business/2017/jan/20/george-soros-theresa-may-wont-last-and-donald-trump-is-would-be-dictator>) Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170120123507/https://www.theguardian.com/business/2017/jan/20/george-soros-theresa-may-wont-last-and-donald-trump-is-would-be-dictator>) January 20, 2017, at the Wayback Machine The Guardian
56. George Soros (October 12, 2011). "As concerned Europeans we urge Eurozone leaders to unite" (<https://www.ft.com/intl/cms/s/0/7d85abd2-f353-11e0-b11b-00144feab49a.html#axzz1aYVAViDt>). Financial Times. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20191210152622/https://www.ft.com/content/7d85abd2-f353-11e0-b11b-00144feab49a#axzz1aYVAViDt>) from the original on December 10, 2019. Retrieved January 9, 2012.
57. "Orban Accuses Soros of Stoking Refugee Wave to Weaken Europe" (<https://www.bloomberg.com/news/articles/2015-10-30/orban-accuses-soros-of-stoking-refugee-wave-to-weaken-europe>) Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170308074752/https://www.bloomberg.com/news/articles/2015-10-30/orban-accuses-soros-of-stoking-refugee-wave-to-weaken-europe>) March 8, 2017, at the Wayback Machine". Bloomberg. October 30, 2015.
58. "Pro-EU campaign secures £400,000 from George Soros" (<https://www.bbc.co.uk/news/uk-politics-42984594>). BBC News. February 8, 2018. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20180208213355/http://www.bbc.co.uk/news/uk-politics-42984594>) from the original on February 8, 2018. Retrieved February 9, 2018.
59. "Subscribe to read" (<https://www.ft.com/content/df9ed626-0c61-11e8-839d-41ca06376bf2>). Financial Times. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20181118215317/https://www.ft.com/content/df9ed626-0c61-11e8-839d-41ca06376bf2>) from the original on November 18, 2018. Retrieved October 6, 2018. Cite uses generic title (help)
60. "George Soros's Plan to Fix Europe: DealBook Briefing" (<https://www.nytimes.com/2018/05/29/business/dealbook/starbucks-bias-race.html>). The New York Times. May 29, 2018. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20180529133409/https://www.nytimes.com/2018/05/29/business/dealbook/starbucks-bias-race.html>) from the original on May 29, 2018. Retrieved May 29, 2018.
61. "Soros has warned that the US-Europe alliance 'destruction' may cause major crisis" (<https://www.reuters.com/article/us-europe-usa-economy/soros-warns-us-europe-alliance-destruction-may-cause-major-crisis-idUSKCN1IU1PX>). Reuters. May 29, 2018. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20180529165656/https://www.reuters.com/article/us-europe-usa-economy/soros-warns-us-europe-alliance-destruction-may-cause-major-crisis-idUSKCN1IU1PX>) from the original on May 29, 2018. Retrieved May 29, 2018.

62. "How to save Europe. Keynote speech at ECFR's Annual Council Meeting in Paris" (http://www.ecfr.eu/article/commentary_how_to_save_europe). European Council on Foreign Relations. May 29, 2018. Archived (https://web.archive.org/web/20180529132629/http://www.ecfr.eu/article/commentary_how_to_save_europe) from the original on May 29, 2018. Retrieved May 29, 2018.
63. "Soros: China has better functioning government than U.S." (http://blog.foreignpolicy.com/posts/2010/11/16/soros_china_has_better_functioning_government_than_us) Foreign Policy. Archived (https://web.archive.org/web/20141009092816/http://blog.foreignpolicy.com/posts/2010/11/16/soros_china_has_better_functioning_government_than_us) from the original on October 9, 2014. Retrieved July 20, 2015.
64. Soros, George (July 9, 2015). "A Partnership with China to Avoid World War" (<http://www.nybooks.com/articles/2015/07/09/partnership-china-avoid-world-war/>). The New York Review of Books. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20160117140038/http://www.nybooks.com/articles/2015/07/09/partnership-china-avoid-world-war/>) from the original on January 17, 2016. Retrieved January 15, 2016.
65. "Debate over future of RMB exchange rate" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20160203155830/http://www.webjd.cn/2016/01/debate-future-rmb-exchange-rate/>). WebJD. Archived from the original (<http://www.webjd.cn/2016/01/debate-future-rmb-exchange-rate/>) on February 3, 2016. Retrieved January 27, 2016.
66. Miller, Joe (January 24, 2019). "China's Xi Jinping 'most dangerous' to free societies, says George Soros" (<https://www.bbc.co.uk/news/business-46996116>). BBC News. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20190526102645/https://www.bbc.co.uk/news/business-46996116>) from the original on May 26, 2019. Retrieved May 26, 2019.
67. "Remarks delivered at the World Economic Forum" (<https://www.georgesoros.com/2019/01/24/remarks-delivered-at-the-world-economic-forum-2/>). George Soros. January 24, 2019. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20190128222408/https://www.georgesoros.com/2019/01/24/remarks-delivered-at-the-world-economic-forum-2/>) from the original on January 28, 2019. Retrieved January 28, 2019.
68. "The 'Mortal Danger' of China's Push Into AI" (<https://www.wired.com/story/mortal-danger-chinas-push-into-ai/>). Wired. January 24, 2019. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20190507174841/https://www.wired.com/story/mortal-danger-chinas-push-into-ai/>) from the original on May 7, 2019. Retrieved May 2, 2019.
69. "Interview with George Soros (<http://transcripts.cnn.com/TRANSCRIPTS/1405/25/fzgps.01.html>) Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20201108095432/http://transcripts.cnn.com/TRANSCRIPTS/1405/25/fzgps.01.html>) November 8, 2020, at the Wayback Machine". CNN. May 25, 2014,
70. "A New Policy to Rescue Ukraine (<http://www.nybooks.com/articles/archives/2015/feb/05/new-policy-rescue-ukraine/?insrc=hpss>) Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20151122125352/http://www.nybooks.com/articles/archives/2015/feb/05/new-policy-rescue-ukraine/?insrc=hpss>) November 22, 2015, at the Wayback Machine". The New York Review of Books. February 5, 2014.
71. "George Soros warns Europe under Russian 'attack', urges Ukraine bailout (<http://business.financialpost.com/2015/01/08/george-soros-warns-europe-under-russian-attack-urges-ukraine-bailout/>) Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20150319215825/http://business.financialpost.com/2015/01/08/george-soros-warns-europe-under-russian-attack-urges-ukraine-bailout/>) March 19, 2015, at the Wayback Machine". Financial Post. January 8, 2015.
72. Makortoff, Kalyeena (November 20, 2015). "Russia bans George Soros charity as 'security threat'" (<https://www.cnbc.com/2015/11/30/russia-bans-george-soros-charity-as-security-threat.html>). cnbc.com. CNBC LLC. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20160116065138/http://www.cnbc.com/2015/11/30/russia-bans-george-soros-charity-as-security-threat.html>) from the original on January 16, 2016. Retrieved January 15, 2016.
73. "Russia Bans George Soros Foundation as State Security 'Threat'" (<http://fortune.com/2015/11/30/russia-bans-george-soros-foundation-as-state-security-threat/>). fortune.com. Fortune. November 30, 2015. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20160116084501/http://fortune.com/2015/11/30/russia-bans-george-soros-foundation-as-state-security-threat/>) from the original on January 16, 2016. Retrieved January 15, 2016.

74. Makortoff, Kayleena (January 14, 2016). "Soros charity targeted in Russia book-burning" (<https://www.cnn.com/2016/01/14/soros-charity-targeted-in-russia-book-burning.html>). cnn.com. CNN LLC. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20160117140038/http://www.cnn.com/2016/01/14/soros-charity-targeted-in-russia-book-burning.html>) from the original on January 17, 2016. Retrieved January 15, 2016.
75. Cain, Sian (May 6, 2016). "Russian culture ministry denies reports of book burning" (<https://www.theguardian.com/books/2016/may/06/russian-culture-ministry-denies-reports-of-book-burning>). The Guardian. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20180224052823/https://www.theguardian.com/books/2016/may/06/russian-culture-ministry-denies-reports-of-book-burning>) from the original on February 24, 2018. Retrieved February 23, 2018.
76. "Archived copy" (<https://www.forbes.com/billionaires/>). Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20141129074957/http://www.forbes.com/billionaires/>) from the original on November 29, 2014. Retrieved September 4, 2020.
77. Soros, George (2003). The Alchemy of Finance (<https://books.google.com/books?id=qxkiYul2wgoC&pg=PR12>). John Wiley & Sons. p. xii. ISBN 978-0-471-44549-4. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20201110083021/https://books.google.com/books?id=qxkiYul2wgoC&pg=PR12>) from the original on November 10, 2020. Retrieved October 17, 2020.
78. Philanthropy (<http://georgesoros.com/faqs/entry/georgesorosphilanthropyisunprecedented/>) Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20100921163744/http://georgesoros.com/faqs/entry/georgesorosphilanthropyisunprecedented/>) September 21, 2010, at the Wayback Machine. George Soros. Retrieved November 25, 2011.
79. York, Byron, Soros Funded Stewart Defense (<http://www.nationalreview.com/articles/213708/soros-funded-stewart-defense/byron-york>) Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20141028041717/http://www.nationalreview.com/articles/213708/soros-funded-stewart-defense/byron-york>) October 28, 2014, at the Wayback Machine, National Review Online; retrieved February 7, 2007.
80. Dugger, Celia W. (September 13, 2006). "Philanthropist Gives $50 Million to Help Aid the Poor in Africa" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20090409170818/http://travel2.nytimes.com/2006/09/13/us/13soros.html>). The New York Times. Africa. Archived from the original (<http://travel2.nytimes.com/2006/09/13/us/13soros.html>) on April 9, 2009. Retrieved October 16, 2009.
81. "Hungary: Soros Donates $250 Million to University in Budapest" (<http://www.encyclopedia.com/doc/1G1-79165556.html>). IPR Strategic Business Information Database. Info Prod Research. November 25, 2009
82. Active Programs (<http://www.georgesoros.com/faqs/entry/georgesorosphilanthropyisunprecedented/>) Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20100921163744/http://www.georgesoros.com/faqs/entry/georgesorosphilanthropyisunprecedented/>) September 21, 2010, at the Wayback Machine
83. David Gelles (October 17, 2017). "George Soros Transfers Billions to Open Society Foundations" (<https://www.nytimes.com/2017/10/17/business/george-soros-open-society-foundations.html>). The New York Times. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20171227224029/https://www.nytimes.com/2017/10/17/business/george-soros-open-society-foundations.html>) from the original on December 27, 2017. Retrieved December 27, 2017.
84. "George Soros, founder of Open Society Foundations, invests in the future of free and open knowledge" (<https://wikimediafoundation.org/2018/10/15/george-soros-invests-future-free-open-knowledge/>). Wikimedia Foundation. October 15, 2018. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/2018102011626/https://wikimediafoundation.org/2018/10/15/george-soros-invests-future-free-open-knowledge/>) from the original on October 20, 2018. Retrieved October 19, 2018.
85. Herndon, Astead W. (July 13, 2020). "George Soros's Foundation Pours $220 Million Into Racial Equality Push" (<https://www.nytimes.com/2020/07/13/us/politics/george-soros-racial-justice-organizations.html>). The New York Times. ISSN 0362-4331 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/0362-4331>). Archived (<https://archive.today/20200720170608/https://www.nytimes.com/2020/07/13/us/politics/george-soros-racial-justice-organizations.html>) from the original on July 20, 2020. Retrieved July 21, 2020.

86. "Lauree Honoris Causa: George Soros - Lauree Honoris Causa - Archivio Storico - Università di Bologna" (<http://www.archivistorico.unibo.it/it/struttura-organizzativa/sezione-archivio-storico/lauree-honoris-causa/george-soros.asp?IDFolder=333&ID Oggetto=18186&LN=IT>). www.archivistorico.unibo.it. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170207113545/http://www.archivistorico.unibo.it/it/struttura-organizzativa/sezione-archivio-storico/lauree-honoris-causa/george-soros.asp?IDFolder=333&ID Oggetto=18186&LN=IT>) from the original on February 7, 2017. Retrieved February 7, 2017.
87. "Cohen, Simons, 12 Others Enter Hedge Fund Hall" (<https://www.institutionalinvestor.com/article/b18bl36h7n2yzt/cohen-simons-12-others-enter-hedge-fund-hall>). Institutional Investor. Institutional Investor LLC. September 23, 2008. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20190616211911/https://www.institutionalinvestor.com/article/b18bl36h7n2yzt/cohen-simons-12-others-enter-hedge-fund-hall>) from the original on June 16, 2019. Retrieved June 16, 2019.
88. Cosgrave, Jenny (January 26, 2015). "Ackman's returns make him a top 20 fund manager" (<https://www.cnbc.com/2015/01/26/ackmans-returns-make-him-a-top-20-fund-manager.html>). CNBC. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170816111447/https://www.cnbc.com/2015/01/26/ackmans-returns-make-him-a-top-20-fund-manager.html>) from the original on August 16, 2017. Retrieved March 21, 2017.
89. "Elections to the British Academy celebrate the diversity of UK research" (<https://www.britac.ac.uk/news/elections-british-academy-celebrate-diversity-uk-research>). July 21, 2017. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170730015354/https://www.britac.ac.uk/news/elections-british-academy-celebrate-diversity-uk-research>) from the original on July 30, 2017.
90. "FT Person of the Year: George Soros" (<https://www.ft.com/content/2bd12012-01e4-11e9-9d01-cd4d49afb3>). Financial Times. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20181219075743/https://www.ft.com/content/2bd12012-01e4-11e9-9d01-cd4d49afb3>) from the original on December 19, 2018. Retrieved December 19, 2018.
91. "George Soros" (<http://www.ridenhour.org>). Ridenhour Prizes. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20190910031633/http://www.ridenhour.org/>) from the original on September 10, 2019. Retrieved April 19, 2019.
92. "Soros accepts Ridenhour Prize for Courage in an age of lies" (<https://thelensnola.org/2019/04/17/soros-accepts-ridenhour-prize-for-courage-in-an-age-of-lies/>). The Lens. April 17, 2019. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20190508053642/https://thelensnola.org/2019/04/17/soros-accepts-ridenhour-prize-for-courage-in-an-age-of-lies/>) from the original on May 8, 2019. Retrieved December 3, 2019.
93. The Times, August 2, 1993

Further reading

Biographies

- Soros: The Life and Times of a Messianic Billionaire by Michael T. Kaufman (Alfred A. Knopf, 2002) ISBN 978-0-375-40585-3
- Soros: The World's Most Influential Investor by Robert Slater (McGraw-Hill Professional, 2009) ISBN 978-0-07-160844-2

Journalism

- John Authors, "A successful prophet of the markets" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20080602062326/http://www.ft.com/cms/s/0/304f1e6e-253b-11dd-a14a-000077b07658.html>). Archived from the original on June 2, 2008. Retrieved May 3, 2012., Financial Times, May 19, 2008.

- Laura Blumenfeld, "Billionaire Soros Takes on Bush" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20051127200608/http://www.msnbc.com/news/991865.asp?vts=111120030842&cp1=1>). Archived from the original (<http://www.msnbc.com/news/991865.asp?vts=111120030842&cp1=1>) on November 27, 2005. Retrieved April 7, 2004., The Washington Post, November 11, 2003
- Connie Bruck, Abstract of The New Yorker profile of Soros "The World According to Soros", The New Yorker, January 23, 1995.
- Malcolm Gladwell, gladwell.com "Blowing Up", The New Yorker, April 22 & 29, 2002.
- Matt Welch, Open Season on 'Open Society': Why an anti-communist "Holocaust survivor is being demonized as a Socialist, Self-hating Jew". Reason, December 8, 2003
- "Time's 25 Most Influential Americans" (<http://www.time.com/time/magazine/article/0,9171,986206-7,00.html>), Time, April 21, 1997. Retrieved May 21, 2007.
- "The Time 100: The Power Givers: George Soros" (http://www.time.com/time/specials/2007/time100powergivers/article/0,28804,1616375_1615711_1615683,00.html), Time, May 14, 2007, Retrieved May 21, 2007.
- Nahum Barnea, Why they hate George Soros (<https://www.ynetnews.com/articles/0,7340,L-5241290,00.html>), Ynetnews, April 25, 2018.

Scholarly perspectives

- Bryant, C.G.A. (2002). "George Soros's theory of reflexivity: a comparison with the theories of Giddens and Beck and a consideration of its practical value". Economy and Society. 31 (1): 112–131. doi:10.1080/03085140120109277 (<https://doi.org/10.1080%2F03085140120109277>). S2CID 143594005 (<https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:143594005>).
- Cross, R.; Strachan, D. (1997). "On George Soros and economic analysis". Kyklos. 50 (4): 561–574. doi:10.1111/1467-6435.00030 (<https://doi.org/10.1111%2F1467-6435.00030>).
- Kwong, C.P. (2008). "Mathematical analysis of Soros's theory of reflexivity". arXiv:0901.4447 (<https://arxiv.org/abs/0901.4447>) [q-fin.GN (<https://arxiv.org/archive/q-fin.GN>)].
- Nielsen, Waldemar A. (1996). Inside American Philanthropy: The Dramas of Donorship. Norman, Oklahoma: University of Oklahoma Press. pp. 77–82. ISBN 978-0-8061-2802-3.
- Pettis, Michael (2001). The Volatility Machine: Emerging Economies and the Threat of Financial Collapse. Oxford: Oxford University Press. ISBN 978-0-19-514330-0.
- Stone, Diane (2007). "Market Principles, Philanthropic Ideals and Public Service Values: The Public Policy Program at the Central European University" (http://wrap.warwick.ac.uk/647/1/WRAP_Stone_Market_Principles.pdf) (PDF). PS: Political Science and Politics. 40 (3): 545–551. doi:10.1017/S1049096507070795 (<https://doi.org/10.1017%2FS1049096507070795>).
- Stone, Diane (2010). "Transnational Philanthropy or Policy Transfer? The Transnational Norms of the Open Society Institute" (http://wrap.warwick.ac.uk/1741/1/WRAP_Stone_OSI_Policy_Transfer_FINAL.pdf) (PDF). Policy and Politics. 38 (2): 269–87. doi:10.1332/030557309x458416 (<https://doi.org/10.1332%2F030557309x458416>).

External links

- Official website (<https://www.georgesoros.com>)
- Open Society Foundations (<http://www.soros.org/>)
- Institute for New Economic Thinking (<http://ineteconomics.org>)
- Column archives (<https://web.archive.org/web/20110511141012/http://www.project-syndicate.org/contributor/27>) at Project Syndicate
- Column archives (<http://www.nybooks.com/authors/157>) at The New York Review of Books

- Appearances \(https://www.c-span.org/person/?georgesoros\) on C-SPAN
 - George Soros \(https://charlierose.com/videos/242\) on Charlie Rose
 - George Soros collected news and commentary \(https://www.theguardian.com/business/george-soros\) at The Guardian
 - "George Soros collected news and commentary" \(http://topics.nytimes.com/top/reference/timestopics/people/s/george_soros/index.html\). The New York Times.
 - Forbes.com: George Soros \(https://www.forbes.com/profile/george-soros/\)
 - NYTimes: George Soros \(https://www.nytimes.com/topic/person/george-soros\)
 - Membership \(https://www.cfr.org/sites/default/files/report_pdf/FY17%20Membership%20Roster.pdf\) at the Council on Foreign Relations
-

Retrieved from "https://en.wikipedia.org/w/index.php?title=George_Soros&oldid=1027699418"

This page was last edited on 9 June 2021, at 13:19 (UTC).

Text is available under the Creative Commons Attribution-ShareAlike License; additional terms may apply. By using this site, you agree to the Terms of Use and Privacy Policy. Wikipedia® is a registered trademark of the Wikimedia Foundation, Inc., a non-profit organization.

Murder of Seth Rich

The murder of Seth Rich occurred on Sunday, July 10, 2016, at 4:20 a.m. in the Bloomingdale neighborhood of Washington, D.C.^[2] Rich died about an hour and a half after being shot twice in the back. He was murdered by unknown perpetrators for unknown reasons, but police suspected he had been the victim of an attempted robbery.^{[1][3]}

The 27-year-old Rich was an employee of the Democratic National Committee (DNC), and his murder spawned several right-wing conspiracy theories,^{[1][4]} including the false claim, contradicted by the law enforcement branches that investigated the murder, that Rich had been involved with the leaked DNC emails in 2016.^{[5][6]} It was also contradicted by the July 2018 indictment of 12 Russian military intelligence agents for hacking the e-mail accounts and networks of Democratic Party officials^[7] and by the U.S. intelligence community's conclusion the leaked DNC emails were part of Russian interference in the 2016 United States elections.^{[5][6][8]} Fact-checking websites like PolitiFact,^{[6][9]} Snopes,^[10] and FactCheck.org stated that the theories were false and unfounded.^[5] The New York Times, the Los Angeles Times and The Washington Post wrote that the promotion of these conspiracy theories was an example of fake news.^{[11][12][13]}

Rich's family denounced the conspiracy theorists and said that those individuals were exploiting their son's death for political gain, and their spokesperson called the conspiracy theorists "disgusting sociopaths".^{[14][15][16]} They requested a retraction and apology from Fox News after the network promoted the conspiracy theory,^[17] and sent a cease and desist letter to the investigator Fox News used.^{[6][16][17]} The investigator stated that he had no evidence to back up the claims which Fox News attributed to him.^{[5][6][18]} Fox News issued a retraction, but did not apologize or publicly explain what went wrong.^[19] In response, the Rich family sued Fox News in March 2018 for having engaged in "extreme and outrageous conduct" by fabricating the story defaming their son and thereby intentionally inflicting emotional distress on them.^{[20][21]} The judge initially dismissed the suit but the United States Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit allowed the case to proceed in September 2019.^[22] Fox News reached a seven-figure settlement with the Rich family in October 2020.^{[23][24]}

Murder of Seth Rich

Date	July 10, 2016
Time	4:20 a.m. EST (approximate)
Location	Bloomingdale neighborhood (Ward 5, Washington, D.C.)
Cause	Shooting
Inquiries	Metropolitan Police Department of the District of Columbia
Coroner	Office of the Chief Medical Examiner, Washington D.C.
Suspects	Unknown ^[1]

Contents

Seth Rich

Early life and career

Shooting and death

Aftermath

RewardsConspiracy theoriesOriginsBeginnings on social mediaWikiLeaks statementsPropagation by right-wing media and venuesDebunkingFox News retracted reportingUncorroborated storyCease and desist letter and retractionWheeler lawsuitFamily's reactionsLawsuit against Fox NewsDocumentary*See also*References*Further reading*External links

Seth Rich

Early life and career

Rich grew up in a Jewish family in Omaha, Nebraska.^{[25][26][27]} He volunteered for the Nebraska Democratic Party, interned for Senator Ben Nelson, was active in Jewish outreach,^[28] and worked with the United States Census Bureau.^{[29][30]} In 2011, he graduated from Creighton University with a degree in political science.^{[30][31]} He moved to Washington, D.C., to work for pollster Greenberg Quinlan Rosner.^[30] In 2014, he began working for the Democratic National Committee (DNC) as the voter expansion data director. One of his tasks at the DNC was the development of a computer application to help voters locate polling stations.^{[32][33][34]}

Shooting and death

On Sunday, July 10, 2016, at 4:20 a.m., Rich was shot about a block from his apartment at the southwest corner of Flagler Place and W Street Northwest^[35] in the Bloomingdale neighborhood of Washington, D.C.^{[36][37]}

Earlier that night he had been at Lou's City Bar, a sports pub 1.8 miles (2.9 km) from his apartment, in Columbia Heights, where he was a regular customer. He left when the bar was closing, at about 1:30 or 1:45 a.m.^[38] Police were alerted to gunfire at 4:20 a.m. by an automated gunfire locator.^[39] Within about one minute after the gun shots, police officers found Rich conscious with multiple gunshot wounds.^[40] He was transported to a nearby hospital, where he died^{[41][42][43]} over 1½ hours after being shot.^[3] That he was not shot in the head is seen as evidence against the shooting having been an "assassination".^[3] According to police, he died from two shots to the back^{[36][37]} and may have been killed in an attempted robbery. Residents noted the neighborhood had been plagued by robberies.^[36]

Rich's mother told NBC's Washington affiliate WRC-TV: "There had been a struggle. His hands were bruised, his knees are bruised, his face is bruised, and yet he had two shots to his back, and yet they never took anything ... They didn't finish robbing him, they just took his life."^[44] The police told the family they had found a surveillance recording showing a glimpse of the legs of two people who could be the killers.^[45]

Aftermath

On the day after the shooting, DNC chair Debbie Wasserman Schultz issued a statement mourning his loss and praising Rich's work to support voter rights.^{[39][46]} Two days after the shooting, Hillary Clinton spoke of his death during a speech advocating limiting the availability of guns.^{[26][32]}

In September 2016, Rich's parents and girlfriend appeared on the syndicated television show Crime Watch Daily to speak about the murder case.^{[47][48]} In October 2016, a plaque and bike rack outside the DNC headquarters were dedicated to Rich's memory.^[46] In February 2017, the Beth El Synagogue in Omaha named after Rich an existing scholarship that helps Jewish children attend summer camps.^[49]

The Rich family accepted the pro bono public relations services of Republican lobbyist Jack Burkman in September 2016.^[12] The Rich family and Burkman held a joint press conference on the murder in November 2016.^{[12][50]} In January 2017, Burkman launched an advertising campaign in Northwest D.C. searching for information regarding Seth's death. This included billboard advertisements and canvassing with flyers.^{[51][52]} In late February, Burkman told media outlets he had a lead that the Russian government was involved in Rich's death,^[53] and the Rich family then distanced itself from Burkman.^[54] On March 19, 2017, Rich's brother, Aaron, started a GoFundMe campaign to try to raise $200,000 for private investigation, public outreach activities, and a reward fund.^[55]

Bike rack and plaque outside the DNC headquarters

The Rich family was approached by Ed Butowsky (a friend of Trump advisor Steve Bannon and a frequent Fox News contributor), who recommended having Fox News contributor and former homicide detective Rod Wheeler investigate Seth's murder. Butowsky said Wheeler had been recommended to him. The family gave Wheeler permission to investigate, though they did not hire him.^{[16][56]} When questioned by CNN, Butowsky denied involvement in the case, but later admitted he was involved and had offered to pay Wheeler's fees.^{[57][58]} After Wheeler asserted links between Rich and Wikileaks in a Fox affiliate interview on May 15, 2017—an assertion he later backpedaled from^[59]—the family spokesman said that the family regretted working with Wheeler.^[4] Wheeler then sued Fox News on August 1, 2017, for mental anguish and emotional distress, alleging that he had been misquoted in a story that was then published on the urging of Trump.^[60]

Rewards

The Metropolitan Police Department of the District of Columbia (MPDC) posted its customary reward of $25,000 for information about the death.^{[32][40]}

On August 9, 2016, WikiLeaks announced a $20,000 reward for information about Rich's murder leading to a conviction, which was subsequently increased to $125,000.^{[61][62][63][64]} Rich's family said they were unable to verify this reward offer.^[61] WikiLeaks stated that this offer should not be taken as implying Rich had been involved in leaking information to it.^[32]

In November 2016, Republican lobbyist Jack Burkman said he was personally offering a $100,000 reward in addition to those announced by the police department and WikiLeaks, and he added another $5,000 to his offer in December and another $25,000 in January.^{[45][61][65]} Burkman said he hoped the money would help "get to the truth of what happened here and will either debunk the conspiracy theories or validate them."^[66]

In total, these 3 rewards add up to $280,000.

Conspiracy theories

Origins

Beginnings on social media

Political conspiracy theories and racially charged comments started to appear on social media the day after Rich's death.^{[67][68]} Within days, right-wing conspiracy theories began circulating,^{[69][70][71]} including false claims that his murder was connected to the DNC email leak of 2016,^[4] or the FBI's investigation of the Clinton Foundation.^{[71][72]}

A post on Twitter before Rich's memorial service spread the idea that his killing was a political assassination.^[69] Subsequently, the conspiracy theory was spread on the subreddit /r/The Donald, and on July 29, 2016, the website Heat Street reported on these Reddit posts.^{[72][73]} Reddit users attempted to tie the homicide to prior "Clinton Body Count" conspiracy theories.^[70] The conspiracy theory was later popularized by Donald Trump political adviser Roger Stone via his Twitter account.^[69]

According to British journalist Duncan Campbell, the Russian intelligence agency, GRU, tried to implicate Rich as the source of the stolen DNC emails, in order to draw attention away from themselves as the real perpetrators of the theft.^[74] Datestamps on the DNC files were altered to show the data had been obtained on July 5, 2016, five days before Rich's death, and the time zone was changed to Eastern Time, within which Washington, D.C., falls. Guccifer 2.0, the alleged GRU front that provided the emails to Wikileaks, then reported that Rich had been their source. Based partly on their acceptance of the false dates, some experts then concluded that the emails had been copied in the DNC offices, and had not been hacked from outside.^[75]

WikiLeaks statements

Julian Assange, the founder of WikiLeaks, fueled the speculation in an interview with Nieuwsuur published on August 9, 2016, which touched on the topic of risks faced by WikiLeaks' sources.^[76] Unbidden, Assange brought up the case of Seth Rich. When asked directly whether Rich was a source, Assange said "we don't comment on who our sources are".^[77] Subsequent statements by WikiLeaks emphasized that the organization was not naming Rich as a source, as they do with other leaks.^[32] It subsequently came to light that WikiLeaks communicated with the Trump campaign over other issues.^[78]

According to the Mueller Report, WikiLeaks had received an email containing an encrypted file named "wk dnc link I .txt.gpg" from the Guccifer 2.0 GRU persona on July 14, which was four days after Seth Rich died.^{[79][80][81]} In April 2018, Twitter direct messages revealed that even as Assange was suggesting publicly that WikiLeaks had obtained emails from Seth Rich, Assange was trying to obtain more emails from Guccifer 2.0, who was at the time already suspected of being linked to Russian intelligence.^[82] BuzzFeed described the messages as "the starkest proof yet that Assange knew a likely Russian government hacker had the Democrat leaks he wanted. And they reveal the deliberate bad faith with which Assange fed the groundless claims that Rich was his source, even as he knew the documents' origin."^[82] Mike Gottlieb, a lawyer for Rich's brother, noted that WikiLeaks received the file of stolen documents from the Russian hackers on July 14, four days after Rich was shot. Gottlieb described the chronology as "damning".^[83]

Propagation by right-wing media and venues

The conspiracy theories were promoted by Mike Cernovich, Sean Hannity, Geraldo Rivera, Kim Dotcom, Paul Joseph Watson, Newt Gingrich, Jack Posobiec, and others.^{[84][85][86]}

The same venues that fomented the false Pizzagate conspiracy theory helped to promulgate the Seth Rich murder conspiracy theories,^{[12][87][88]} and each shared similar features.^{[89][90][91]} Both were promoted by individuals subscribing to far-right politics,^[92] and by campaign officials and individuals appointed to senior-level national security roles by Donald Trump.^{[93][94][95]} After prior coordination on Facebook, each theory was spread on Twitter by automated bots using a branded hashtag, with the goal of becoming a trending topic.^[87] Both the Pizzagate conspiracy theory and the Seth Rich murder conspiracy theory were spread in the subreddit forum /r/The_Donald.^[96] In both conspiracy theories, the promoters attempted to shift the burden of proof — asking others to attempt to disprove their claims, without citing substantiated evidence.^[97] Slate's Elliot Hannon called the claims about Seth Rich a "PizzaGate-like conspiracy theory surrounding Rich's death",^[98] The Huffington Post described it as "the 'alt-right' idiocy of Pizzagate all over again",^[91] NPR's David Folkenflik said Fox News coverage of it "evokes the pizza-gate terrible allegations utterly unfounded",^[99] and Margaret Sullivan wrote for The Washington Post: "The Seth Rich lie has become the new Comet Ping Pong ... Crazy, baseless and dangerous."^[100]

On July 9, 2019, a Yahoo! News article stated that an alleged Russian Foreign Intelligence Service bulletin dated July 13, 2016, was the original source of the conspiracy theory.^[101] An analysis by the Washington Post disputed the conclusion while crediting the report for highlighting the roles played by InfoWars, FoxNews, and Hannity in promoting the misinformation.^[68]

Debunking

Law enforcement stated that the conspiracy theories were unfounded,^{[5][6]} while fact-checking websites like PolitiFact.com,^{[6][9]} Snopes.com,^[10] and FactCheck.org^[5] came to the conclusion that the theories were false and baseless.

The Metropolitan Police Department of the District of Columbia described the murder as related to a bungled attempted robbery,^[5] and said "the assertions put forward by Mr. Wheeler are unfounded."^[5] The FBI told PolitiFact.com that the MPD was investigating the homicide.^[9]

Assistant Police Chief Peter Newsham said the police had no information suggesting a connection between Rich's death and data obtained by WikiLeaks.^[32]

People who worked with Rich said he was not an expert computer hacker helping to leak information to foreigners. Andrew Therriault, a data scientist who had mentored Rich, said although he had recently been working as a programmer, this "wasn't his background", and another co-worker said Rich was very upset when he heard hackers associated with Russian intelligence services had broken into the DNC computers and could be interfering with the election.^[45]

Rich family representative, Brad Bauman, responding to the conspiracy theorists' claim that the FBI was investigating the case said, "The FBI is not now and has never been a party to this investigation."^[5]

FactCheck.org analyzed statements by Newt Gingrich related to the conspiracy theory, where Gingrich said Rich "apparently was assassinated" subsequent to "having given WikiLeaks something like ... 53,000 [DNC] emails and 17,000 attachments".^[5] FactCheck.org determined this claim was "unsupported" and determined "there's no evidence for his claim."^[5]

PolitiFact.com said the assertion that Rich gave emails to WikiLeaks is a "baseless claim", concluding "Gingrich and others are talking about an unfounded conspiracy theory as if it's a matter of fact. It is far from it. We rate his claim Pants on Fire."^[6] In a separate analysis, PolitiFact.com concluded: "There's no evidence there's any link between Rich and WikiLeaks. The FBI has indirectly denied investigating the case, which Washington police consider a robbery gone wrong."^[9]

Snopes.com looked into the matter and stated: "We were able to confirm the FBI is not investigating Rich's murder – it is an MPD investigation." Snopes contacted a spokesman for the Washington, D.C., mayor's office, who said, "All claims made by Mr. Wheeler are false and take fake news to a whole new level. The family deserves better and everyday MPD continues to work diligently to solve this case."^[10] Snopes rated the claim "DNC staffer Seth Rich sent 'thousands of leaked e-mails' to WikiLeaks before he was murdered" as "False".^[10]

The fabrications were described as fake news and falsehoods by The New York Times.^[11] The New York Times cited the conspiracy theories as an example of the persistence of false claims, concluding: "fake news dies hard".^[11] The Los Angeles Times called the conspiracy theories "unsubstantiated rumors".^[12]

The Washington Post cited the conspiracy theories as an example of the power of fake news to spread virally online.^[13] The paper used the example as a case study of the persistence of fake news, and found that television news media can be a soft target for such false stories.^[13] The Washington Post further found that the proliferation of fake news via Facebook had decreased, but remained powerful on Twitter due to spread via online bots.^[13] They found that the conspiracy theories with the largest potential to spread on the Internet were those that held attraction for both the alt-right movements and the political left wing.^[13] The Washington Post concluded that even if a particular false story had been sufficiently debunked, such fact-checking was unable to stop the spread of the falsehoods online.^[13]

Fox News retracted reporting

Uncorroborated story

On May 15, 2017, Fox 5 DC (WTTG) reported the uncorroborated and later largely retracted^[102] claims by Rod Wheeler, a Fox News contributor and former homicide detective, that there was evidence Seth Rich had contacted WikiLeaks and that law enforcement were covering this up,^{[102][103]} claims that were never independently verified by Fox.^[104] The next day, Fox News published a lead story on its website and provided extensive coverage on its cable news channel about what it later said were Wheeler's uncorroborated claims about the murder of Seth Rich,^{[105][106][107]} in the lead story Fox News removed from their website a few days later, they stated that Wheeler's claims had been "corroborated by a federal investigator who spoke to Fox News."^{[108][109][110]} In reporting these claims, the Fox News report reignited conspiracy theories about the killing.^{[89][111][112]} According to NPR, within a day of the original Fox report, "Google searches for Rich had overtaken searches for James Comey, even amid continuous news about the former FBI director's conversations with Trump."^[97] The Washington Post's Callum Borchers noted Fox News chose to lead with this story at a time when most other media outlets were covering Donald Trump's disclosure of classified information to Russia.^[106]

Other news organizations revealed Wheeler was a Donald Trump supporter, a paid Fox News contributor, and according to NBC News had "developed a reputation for making outlandish claims, such as one appearance on Fox News in 2007 in which he warned that underground networks of pink pistol-toting lesbian gangs were raping young women".^{[4][111][113]} The Washington Post noted it is "rare for a news organization to have such a close relationship with the people it is covering", as Wheeler was "playing three roles at once: as a Fox source, as a paid contributor to the network and as a supposedly independent investigator of the murder".^[89] When Wheeler appeared on Sean Hannity's Fox News shows, these multiple roles were not disclosed to viewers.^[89] After Wheeler's Fox News interview on May 15, 2017, Brad Bauman, a communications professional and spokesman for the Rich family, said the family was asking Fox News and the Fox affiliate to retract their reports and apologize for damaging their son's legacy.^[4]

The family spokesperson, the Washington, D.C., police department, the Washington, D.C., mayor's office, the FBI, and law enforcement sources familiar with the case all disputed Wheeler's claims.^{[111][114]} The family said, "We are a family who is committed to facts, not fake evidence that surfaces every few months to fill the void and distract law enforcement and the general public from finding Seth's murderers."^[111] Bauman criticized Fox News for its reporting, saying he believed that the outlet was motivated by a desire to deflect attention from the Trump-Russia story: "I think there's a very special place in hell for people that would use the memory of a murder victim in order to pursue a political agenda."^[10]

Later that day, Wheeler told CNN he had no evidence that Rich had contacted Wikileaks.^[102] Wheeler claimed that Fox had presented his quotes misleadingly and that he only learned about the possible existence of the evidence from a Fox News reporter.^{[97][102]} Despite this, Sean Hannity's show and Fox & Friends continued to promote the conspiracy theory for the remainder of the week.^{[115][116]} On May 18, 2016, Hannity's guest on the show was Jay Sekulow who said that Rich's killing "... undercuts this whole Russia argument;" neither one mentioned that Sekulow had just been hired as one of Trump's lead lawyers in the Mueller investigation into Russian interference in the 2016 United States elections.^[101] Former House Speaker Newt Gingrich and Geraldo Rivera took part in spreading the conspiracy.^{[116][117][118]} Hannity had on his program Tom Fitton of Judicial Watch, who said the organization filed Freedom of Information Act requests for documents from Washington, D.C., mayor Muriel E. Bowser, and from the Metropolitan Police.^[119] Sean Hannity furthermore promoted the uncorroborated claims of Kim Dotcom, a New Zealand resident sought by the United States on fraud charges who claimed without evidence that Rich had been in contact with him before his death.^[120] Fox News host Julie Roginsky was critical of the conspiracy theory peddlers, stating on Twitter and on her television show: "The exploitation of a dead man whose family has begged conspiracy theorists to stop is really egregious. Please stop."^[121] Fox News was also criticized by conservative outlets, such as the Weekly Standard,^[122] National Review,^{[123][124]} and Red State,^{[125][126][127]} and conservative columnists, such as Jennifer Rubin,^[128] Michael Gerson,^[129] and John Podhoretz.^[130] In September

2017, NPR noted that Fox News had yet to apologize for its false story or explain what went wrong; "When a story of this scale crumbles, most news organizations feel obligated to explain what happened and why. Not so far at Fox."^[19]

By August 2020, Malia Zimmermann, the reporter behind the retracted Fox News story, was still working at Fox News, although no stories had appeared under her byline since August 2017.^[131]

Cease and desist letter and retraction

On May 19, 2017, an attorney for the Rich family sent a cease and desist letter to Wheeler.^[17]

Fox News issued a retraction of the story on May 23, 2017 and removed the original article and did not apologize or specify what went wrong or how it did so.^{[18][132][133]} Despite this, Hannity, who pushed the theory, remained unapologetic, saying "I retracted nothing" and "I am not going to stop trying to find the truth."^{[120][133][134]} In their May 23 statement, Fox News said, "The article was not initially subjected to the high degree of editorial scrutiny we require for all our reporting. Upon appropriate review, the article was found not to meet those standards and has since been removed."^[134] Media ethics writer Kelly McBride criticized the retraction as "woefully inadequate", writing that it did not specify exactly what was inaccurate or provide correct information in place of the retracted story.^[135]

The same day, Hannity stated on his show that he would cease discussing the issue.^[136] Hannity said his decision to cease commenting on the matter was related to the family of the murder victim: "Out of respect for the family's wishes, for now, I am not discussing the matter at this time."^[136] In the same statement wherein he promised to cease discussion of the topic, he vowed to pursue facts in the future: "I promise you I am not going to stop trying to find the truth."^[136] Several advertisers including Crowne Plaza Hotels, Cars.com, Leesa Mattress, USAA, Peloton and Casper Sleep pulled their marketing from his program on Fox News.^{[137][138][139]} Crowne Plaza Hotels later said that it was not their policy to advertise on political commentary shows and that they had not been aware of their sponsorship of the show.^[140] USAA soon returned to advertising on Fox News after receiving customer input.^[141]

Wheeler lawsuit

On August 1, 2017, Rod Wheeler, the private investigator hired by Butowsky who was the first to claim links between Seth Rich's murder and the DNC hack on Fox, but who later appeared to retract his claims, filed a lawsuit (Case 1:17-cv-05807 Southern District of New York) in which 21st Century Fox, the Fox News Channel, Fox News reporter Malia Zimmerman and Ed Butowsky were named as defendants, stating that quotes attributed to him in the original Fox News piece were fabricated. The lawsuit also alleged that the fabricated quotes were included in the Fox News story at the urging of the Trump White House.^{[142][143]}

Text messages and audio apparently supporting this assertion were included in the filing of the lawsuit. About a month before the story was aired on Fox News, Wheeler and Butowsky met at the White House with the White House press secretary, Sean Spicer, to review the planned story on Seth Rich's murder. After talking to Wheeler and Butowsky, Zimmerman sent Wheeler a draft of a story without any quotes from Wheeler on May 11. On May 14, Butowsky texted Wheeler saying "Not to add any more pressure but the president just read the article. He wants the article out immediately. It's now all up to you. But don't feel the pressure." Butowsky also left a voicemail for Wheeler which said "We have the full, uh, attention of the White House on this. And tomorrow, let's close this deal, whatever we've got to do."^[143] Butowsky said Seymour Hersh confirmed a link between Rich and the FBI. Hersh confirmed the conversation with Butowsky but told NPR the link was "gossip" and that Butowsky exaggerated its significance.^[142]

In an email to Fox News, Butowsky also wrote about the purpose behind the Seth Rich story: "One of the big conclusions we need to draw from this is that the Russians did not hack our computer systems and steal emails and there was no collusion (between) Trump and the Russians." He also instructed Wheeler that "[T]he narrative in the interviews you might use is that you and [Zimmerman's] work prove that the Russians didn't hack into the DNC and steal the emails and impact our elections ... If you can, try to highlight this puts the Russian hacking story to rest."^[143]

When the story aired on Fox News, it included supposed quotes from Wheeler and was written as if the accusations against the DNC came from him. Wheeler alleges that the quotes were fabricated and should not have been attributed to him.^[142]

In later recordings Butowsky told Wheeler that the claims being attributed to him were false but says that "One day you're going to win an award for having said those things you didn't say." He also says "I know that's not true, if I'm under oath, I would say I never heard him say that."^[143]

The lawsuit was dismissed in August 2018, alongside Rich's family lawsuit against Fox, with the presiding judge ruling that there was no evidence that Fox has manipulated claims he had made on recordings, while other statements that Wheeler claimed were defamatory were considered opinion.^[144] However, information learned from the discovery phase of the lawsuit on how Fox News was handling the story were subsequently used by Rich's family in its lawsuit against the network after they successfully appealed the dismissal.^[145]

Family's reactions

In May 2017, Seth Rich's brother Aaron Rich issued a statement saying, "We simply want to find his killers and grieve. Instead, we are stuck having to constantly fight against non-facts, baseless allegations, and general stupidity to defend my brother's name and legacy."^[4] The family spokesperson said "At this point, only people with transparent political agendas or sociopaths are still perpetuating Seth Rich conspiracies."^[146]

His parents authored a piece in The Washington Post on May 23, 2017 titled: "We're Seth Rich's parents. Stop politicizing our son's murder," in which they wrote:

We are asking you to please consider our feelings and words. There are people who are using our beloved Seth's memory and legacy for their own political goals, and they are using your outrage to perpetuate our nightmare. We ask those purveying falsehoods to give us peace, and to give law enforcement the time and space to do the investigation they need to solve our son's murder.^[14]

In March 2018, Aaron Rich filed a lawsuit against Butowsky, Couch, America First Media, and The Washington Times for suggesting he had played a role in the purported theft of emails from the DNC.^[147] On October 1, 2018, as part of a settlement they had reached with Aaron Rich, The Washington Times retracted the relevant articles and issued an apology to Rich and his family.^[148]

Lawsuit against Fox News

In March 2018, Rich's family filed a lawsuit against Fox News, Fox reporter Malia Zimmerman, and Fox contributor Ed Butowsky, for publishing a news report about Seth Rich. The suit alleges that the report fueled conspiracy theories about Rich's death and caused the family emotional distress.^[149] Judge George B. Daniels dismissed the lawsuit in August 2018 alongside the case against Fox News from Wheeler. Judge Daniels ruled that, although it was reasonable for plaintiffs to believe their son's death was being used for political purposes, the plaintiffs failed to allege "intentional infliction" of emotional distress on the part of defendants, as that standard is determined under New York state law: "defamatory statements to news outlets 'fall well short of meeting the high standards for extreme and outrageous conduct.' They would have had to prove more extreme and persistent distress under the law."^[150]

The United States Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit overturned the dismissal in September 2019 saying, "the Riches plausibly alleged what amounted to a campaign of emotional torture."^[22] In subsequent proceedings, the Rich family used information from the failed Wheeler lawsuit to support further allegations towards Fox News. Among that information included the level of involvement that Butowsky had in preparing and coaching the Fox News hosts in the days before they broke their version of the Seth Rich story, his hiring of Wheeler, and his meeting with Spicer.^[145] On October 12, 2020, Fox News reached a settlement with the Rich family.^[24] The terms of the settlement were not disclosed, but were reported to be in the seven figures.^{[151][152]} The settlement did also dismissed the actions against Zimmerman and Butowsky, which eliminated the need for Fox News hosts like Hannity and Dobbs to give testimony.^[145] The settlement contained the provision that it had to be kept secret for a month.^[24]

Documentary

In April 2018, the BBC broadcast the documentary Conspiracy Files: Murder in Washington examining the death of Rich and subsequent theories about the death.^[153]

See also

- Crime in the District of Columbia
- Fake news in the United States
- Fringe theory
- Furtive fallacy
- List of conspiracy theories
- List of unsolved deaths

References

1. Guo, Jeff (May 24, 2017). "The bonkers Seth Rich conspiracy theory, explained" (<https://www.vox.com/policy-and-politics/2017/5/24/15685560/seth-rich-conspiracy-theory-explained-fox-news-hannity>). Vox. Retrieved May 29, 2017.
2. Morton, Joseph (August 4, 2016). "D.C. police, family of slain DNC staffer Seth Rich urge anyone with information about murder to come forward" (http://www.omaha.com/news/crime/d-c-police-family-of-slain-dnc-staffer-seth-rich/article_dc98d83c-c674-5136-b681-b20d930fcb0c.html). Omaha World-Herald. Archived (https://web.archive.org/web/20180710145354/https://www.omaha.com/news/crime/d-c-police-family-of-slain-dnc-staffer-seth-rich/article_dc98d83c-c674-5136-b681-b20d930fcb0c.html) from the original on July 10, 2018. Retrieved February 11, 2018.
3. Isikoff, Michael. "How a 'slick talker' lobbyist boosted the false Seth Rich murder conspiracy - before getting shot himself" (<https://news.yahoo.com/conspiracyland-jack-burkmans-role-in-the-seth-rich-conspiracy-100000544.html>). Yahoo News. Retrieved July 20, 2019.

4. Bromwich, Jonah Engel (May 17, 2017). "How the Murder of a D.N.C. Staffer Fueled Conspiracy Theories" (<https://www.nytimes.com/2017/05/17/us/seth-rich-dnc-wikileaks.html>). The New York Times. Retrieved May 17, 2017.
5. Kiely, Eugene (May 22, 2017). "Gingrich Spreads Conspiracy Theory" (<http://www.factcheck.org/2017/05/gingrich-spreads-conspiracy-theory/>). FactCheck.org. Retrieved May 23, 2017.
6. Carroll, Lauren (May 23, 2017). "The baseless claim that slain DNC staffer Seth Rich gave emails to WikiLeaks" (<http://www.politifact.com/punditfact/statements/2017/may/23/newt-gingrich/claim-slain-dnc-staffer-seth-rich-gave-emails-wiki/>). PolitiFact.com. Retrieved August 11, 2019.
7. Polantz, Katelyn; Collinson, Stephen (July 14, 2018). "12 Russians indicted in Mueller investigation" (<https://www.cnn.com/2018/07/13/politics/russia-investigation-indictments/index.html>). CNN.com. Retrieved August 11, 2019.
8. "Cyber-spying: Bear on bear" (<https://www.economist.com/news/united-states/21707574-whats-worse-being-attacked-russian-hacker-being-attacked-two-bear-bear>). The Economist. September 22, 2016. Retrieved May 21, 2017.
9. Gillin, Joshua (May 26, 2017). "Conspiracy theory that Comey hid Seth Rich's ties to WikiLeaks based on retracted story" (<http://www.politifact.com/punditfact/statements/2017/may/26/patriotcriercom/conspiracy-theory-comey-hid-seth-richs-ties-wikile/>). PolitiFact.com. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20180616231320/http://www.politifact.com/punditfact/statements/2017/may/26/patriotcriercom/conspiracy-theory-comey-hid-seth-richs-ties-wikile/>) from the original on June 16, 2018. Retrieved May 27, 2017.
10. Palma, Bethania (May 16, 2017). "Fact Check: Did DNC Staffer Seth Rich Send 'Thousands of E-Mails' to WikiLeaks Before He Was Murdered?" (<http://www.snopes.com/seth-rich-dnc-wikileaks-murder/>). Snopes.com. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20210125112757/https://www.snopes.com/fact-check/seth-rich-dnc-wikileaks-murder/>) from the original on January 25, 2021. Retrieved May 16, 2017. "We were able to confirm the FBI is not investigating Rich's murder — it is an MPD investigation ... All claims made by Mr. Wheeler are false and take fake news to a whole new level. The family deserves better and everyday MPD continues to work diligently to solve this case."
11. Rutenberg, Jim (May 24, 2017). "Sean Hannity, a Murder and Why Fake News Endures" (<https://www.nytimes.com/2017/05/24/business/media/seth-rich-fox-news-sean-hannity.html>). The New York Times. Retrieved August 11, 2019.
12. Shalby, Colleen (May 24, 2017). "How Seth Rich's death became an Internet conspiracy theory" (<http://www.latimes.com/business/hollywood/la-fi-ct-seth-rich-conspiracy-20170523-htmlstory.html>). Los Angeles Times. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170529184553/http://www.latimes.com/business/hollywood/la-fi-ct-seth-rich-conspiracy-20170523-htmlstory.html>) from the original on May 29, 2017. Retrieved May 24, 2017. "Despite police statements and Rich's family concluding that his death was the result of an attempted robbery, the rumor spread within the same circles that churned out the bogus 'PizzaGate' story"
13. Weigel, David (May 20, 2017). "The Seth Rich conspiracy shows how fake news still works" (<https://www.washingtonpost.com/news/the-fix/wp/2017/05/20/the-seth-rich-conspiracy-shows-how-fake-news-still-works/>). The Washington Post. Retrieved May 21, 2017.
14. Rich, Mary; Rich, Joel (May 23, 2017). "We're Seth Rich's parents. Stop politicizing our son's murder" (https://www.washingtonpost.com/opinions/were-seth-richs-parents-stop-politicizing-our-sons-murder/2017/05/23/164cf4dc-3fee-11e7-9869-bac8b446820a_story.html). The Washington Post. Retrieved May 23, 2017.
15. Guttman, Nathan (May 17, 2017). "Seth Rich Parents Refute New Claims On Wikileaks Contact" (<https://forward.com/fast-forward/372070/seth-rich-parents-refute-new-claims-on-wikileaks-contact/>). The Forward. Retrieved May 17, 2017.
16. Stein, Perry (May 20, 2017). "Family of slain DNC staffer Seth Rich sends 'cease and desist' letter to Fox News contributor" (https://www.washingtonpost.com/local/public-safety/family-of-slain-dnc-staffer-fights-back-against-conspiracy-theories-with-cease-and-desist-letter/2017/05/20/6da279c2-3d6f-11e7-8854-21f359183e8c_story.html). The Washington Post. Retrieved May 21, 2017.

17. Seitz-Wald, Alex (May 19, 2017). "Slain DNC Staffer's Family Orders Blabbing Detective to 'Cease and Desist'" (<http://www.nbcnews.com/politics/justice-department/slain-dnc-staffer-s-family-orders-blabbing-detective-cease-desist-n762211>). NBC News. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170522104952/http://www.nbcnews.com/politics/justice-department/slain-dnc-staffer-s-family-orders-blabbing-detective-cease-desist-n762211>) from the original on May 22, 2017. Retrieved May 22, 2017.
18. "Statement on coverage of Seth Rich murder investigation" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170523182512/http://www.foxnews.com/politics/2017/05/23/statement-on-coverage-seth-rich-murder-investigation.html>). Fox News. May 23, 2017. Archived from the original (<http://www.foxnews.com/politics/2017/05/23/statement-on-coverage-seth-rich-murder-investigation.html>) on May 23, 2017. "On May 16, a story was posted on the Fox News website on the investigation into the 2016 murder of DNC Staffer Seth Rich. The article was not initially subjected to the high degree of editorial scrutiny we require for all our reporting. Upon appropriate review, the article was found not to meet those standards and has since been removed. We will continue to investigate this story and will provide updates as warranted."
19. Folkenflik, David (September 15, 2017). "No Apology, No Explanation: Fox News And The Seth Rich Story" (<https://www.npr.org/2017/09/15/551163406/fox-news-has-yet-to-explain-what-what-wrong-in-seth-rich-story>). Morning Edition. NPR. Retrieved September 15, 2017.
20. Grynbaum, Michael M. (March 13, 2018). "Family of Seth Rich Sues Fox News Over Retracted Article" (<https://www.nytimes.com/2018/03/13/business/fox-news-seth-rich-lawsuit.html>). The New York Times. Retrieved June 10, 2018.
21. Maddaus, Gene (August 2, 2018). "Seth Rich Family's Lawsuit Against Fox News Dismissed" (<https://variety.com/2018/tv/news/seth-rich-fox-news-lawsuit-dismissed-1202893525/>). Variety (magazine). Retrieved January 18, 2019.
22. Gerstein, Josh (September 13, 2019). "Court reinstates suit against Fox News over Seth Rich murder saga" (<https://www.politico.com/story/2019/09/13/fox-news-seth-rich-1494617>). Politico. Retrieved September 14, 2019.
23. Isikoff, Michael (November 24, 2020). "Fox paid seven figures to settle lawsuit over bogus Seth Rich conspiracy story" (<https://www.yahoo.com/entertainment/fox-paid-seven-figures-to-settle-lawsuit-over-bogus-seth-rich-conspiracy-story-003236858.html>). Yahoo! News. Retrieved January 18, 2021.
24. Smith, Ben (January 18, 2021). "Fox Settled a Lawsuit Over Its Lies. But It Insisted on One Unusual Condition" (<https://www.nytimes.com/2021/01/17/business/media/fox-news-seth-rich-settlement.html>). The New York Times. Archived (<https://archive.today/20210118152753/https://www.nytimes.com/2021/01/17/business/media/fox-news-seth-rich-settlement.html>) from the original on January 18, 2021. Retrieved January 18, 2021.
25. "Rich, Seth C." (http://www.omaha.com/obits/rich-seth-c/article_957ece9b-67c3-53d6-b88b-0c78d813b299.html) Omaha World-Herald. July 13, 2016. Archived (https://web.archive.org/web/20170312160250/http://www.omaha.com/obits/rich-seth-c/article_957ece9b-67c3-53d6-b88b-0c78d813b299.html) from the original on March 12, 2017. Retrieved August 11, 2016.
26. Hermann, Peter (July 12, 2016). "Hillary Clinton invokes name of slain DNC aide Seth Rich in calling for gun control" (<https://www.washingtonpost.com/news/true-crime/wp/2016/07/12/hillary-clinton-invokes-name-of-slain-dnc-aide-seth-rich-in-calling-for-gun-control>). The Washington Post. Retrieved August 11, 2016.
27. "Parents of slain DNC staffer Seth Rich decry politicization of their son's murder" (<https://www.jta.org/2017/05/24/united-states/parents-of-slain-dnc-staffer-seth-rich-decry-politicization-of-their-sons-murder>). Jewish Telegraphic Agency. May 24, 2017. Retrieved July 19, 2020.
28. "Seth Rich's family calls on Fox to retract WikiLeaks allegations" (<https://www.timesofisrael.com/seth-richs-family-calls-on-fox-to-retract-wikileaks-allegations/>). Jewish Telegraphic Agency. May 19, 2017. Retrieved July 19, 2020 – via The Times of Israel.

29. Morton, Joseph (July 13, 2016). "27-year-old Creighton grad, DNC staffer shot dead in D.C. wanted 'to try to save the world'" (http://www.omaha.com/news/crime/year-old-creighton-grad-dnc-staffer-shot-dead-in-d/article_023644eb-87b4-5c36-be7b-3edf96d02ebe.html). Omaha World-Herald. Archived (https://web.archive.org/web/20170701155540/http://www.omaha.com/news/crime/year-old-creighton-grad-dnc-staffer-shot-dead-in-d/article_023644eb-87b4-5c36-be7b-3edf96d02ebe.html) from the original on July 1, 2017. Retrieved May 29, 2017.
30. Abraham, Steven (July 22, 2016). "In Memoriam: Seth Conrad Rich" (<http://www.jewishomaha.org/jewish-press/2016/seth-conrad-rich/>). The Jewish Press. Omaha. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20160826102819/http://www.jewishomaha.org/jewish-press/2016/seth-conrad-rich/>) from the original on August 26, 2016. Retrieved August 12, 2016. Eulogy given by Rabbi Steven Abraham of Beth El Synagogue at the service on July 13, 2016.
31. Orti, Camila (July 12, 2016). "Creighton grad living in D.C. killed in weekend shooting" (<http://www.ketv.com/article/creighton-grad-living-in-d-c-killed-in-weekend-shooting/7661364>). KETV. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170530231427/http://www.ketv.com/article/creighton-grad-living-in-d-c-killed-in-weekend-shooting/7661364>) from the original on May 30, 2017. Retrieved May 29, 2017.
32. Morton, Joseph (August 10, 2016). "WikiLeaks offers $20,000 reward for help finding Omaha native Seth Rich's killer" (http://www.omaha.com/news/crime/wikileaks-offers-reward-for-help-finding-omaha-native-seth-rich/article_cfb287bc-5e98-11e6-ae0c-8b471b8cbfbb.html). Omaha World-Herald. Archived (https://web.archive.org/web/20170822023506/http://www.omaha.com/news/crime/wikileaks-offers-reward-for-help-finding-omaha-native-seth-rich/article_cfb287bc-5e98-11e6-ae0c-8b471b8cbfbb.html) from the original on August 22, 2017. Retrieved February 11, 2018.
33. Mallory Hughes (August 11, 2016). "DNC Employee Fatally Shot in DC" (<http://www.wusa9.com/news/local/dc/dc-man-fatally-shot-investigation-underway/269559837>). WUSA. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20160915211144/http://www.wusa9.com/news/local/dc/dc-man-fatally-shot-investigation-underway/269559837>) from the original on September 15, 2016. Retrieved September 2, 2016.
34. Rojas, Warren (July 11, 2016). "DNC Staffer Killed in DC" (<http://www.rollcall.com/news/politics/dnc-staffer-seth-conrad-rich-murder-dc>). Roll Call. Retrieved September 2, 2016.
35. "Bloomingdale residents question police after killing, robberies in neighborhood" (https://www.washingtonpost.com/local/public-safety/bloomingdale-residents-question-police-after-killing-robberies-in-neighborhood/2016/07/19/99ce212c-4dab-11e6-a7d8-13d06b37f256_story.html). The Washington Post. Retrieved October 6, 2018.
36. Stein, Jeff (August 20, 2016). "Seth Rich: Inside the Killing of the DNC Staffer" (<http://www.newsweek.com/seth-rich-murder-dnc-hack-julian-assange-hillary-clinton-donald-trump-492084>). Newsweek. Retrieved August 20, 2016.
37. >"Mother, Police Seeking Tips on Killing of DNC Staffer Seth Rich" (<http://www.nbcwashington.com/news/local/Seth-Rich-Murder-Investigation-389218672.html>). NBC. August 5, 2016. Retrieved May 31, 2021.
38. Mindock, Clark (May 16, 2017). "Who is Seth Rich – and was his death really connected to Hillary Clinton?" (<https://www.independent.co.uk/news/world/americas/us-politics/seth-rich-who-is-he-wikileaks-murder-hillary-clinton-conspiracy-explained-a7739606.html>). The Independent. Retrieved May 22, 2017.
39. Hermann, Peter; Williams, Clarence (July 11, 2016). "Slain Democratic National Committee staffer 'wanted to make a difference'" (https://www.washingtonpost.com/local/public-safety/police-identify-man-fatally-shot-in-bloomingdale/2016/07/11/4236fd1a-4754-11e6-90a8-fb84201e0645_story.html). The Washington Post. Retrieved August 13, 2016.
40. Harris, Chris (July 13, 2016). "Friends of Slain DNC Staffer Seth Rich Remember Him as 'Honest' and 'Self-Sacrificing'" (<http://www.people.com/article/friends-remember-dnc-staffer-seth-rich>). People. Retrieved August 12, 2016.

41. "Homicide: 2100 Block of Flagler Place, Northwest | mpdc" (<https://mpdc.dc.gov/release/homicide-2100-block-flagler-place-northwest>). Metropolitan Police Department of the District of Columbia. July 11, 2016. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170528033009/https://mpdc.dc.gov/release/homicide-2100-block-flagler-place-northwest>) from the original on May 28, 2017. Retrieved May 25, 2017.
42. Roig-Franzia, Manuel (January 19, 2017). "The DC murder victim who became a political meme" (<https://www.independent.co.uk/news/world/seth-rich-washington-dc-murder-victim-political-meme-weird-est-presidential-election-a7535856.html>). The Independent. Retrieved May 25, 2017.
43. Khan, Mariam (June 11, 2020). "DNC Employee Shot Dead in DC Over the Weekend" (<https://abcnews.go.com/Politics/dnc-employee-shot-dead-dc-weekend/story?id=40498551>). ABC News. Retrieved May 31, 2021.
44. Collins, Pat; Swalec, Andrea (July 11, 2016). "27-Year-Old DNC Staffer Seth Rich Shot, Killed in Northwest DC" (<http://www.nbcwashington.com/news/local/Man-Shot-Killed-in-Northwest-DC-386316391.html>). NBC. Retrieved January 5, 2017.
45. Roig-Franzia, Manuel (January 18, 2017). "Seth Rich wasn't just another D.C. murder victim. He was a meme in the weirdest presidential election of our times" (https://www.washingtonpost.com/lifestyle/style/seth-rich-wasnt-just-another-dc-murder-victim-he-was-a-meme-in-the-weirdest-presidential-election-of-our-times/2017/01/18/ee8e27f8-dcc0-11e6-918c-99ede3c8cafa_story.html). The Washington Post. Archived (https://web.archive.org/web/20170119075134/https://www.washingtonpost.com/lifestyle/style/seth-rich-wasnt-just-another-dc-murder-victim-he-was-a-meme-in-the-weirdest-presidential-election-of-our-times/2017/01/18/ee8e27f8-dcc0-11e6-918c-99ede3c8cafa_story.html) from the original on January 19, 2017. Retrieved January 20, 2017.
46. Burdine, Nikki (October 17, 2016). "DNC honors murdered staffer Seth Rich" (<http://www.wusa9.com/news/local/dnc-honors-murdered-staffer-seth-rich/337062646>). WUSA. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20161019144311/http://www.wusa9.com/news/local/dnc-honors-murdered-staffer-seth-rich/337062646>) from the original on October 19, 2016. Retrieved October 19, 2016.
47. "Family of murdered DNC employee Seth Rich speaks out on 'Crime Watch'" (<http://komonews.com/news/nation-world/family-of-murdered-dnc-employee-seth-rich-speaks-out-on-crime-watch>). KOMO-TV. September 30, 2016. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20161004160517/http://komonews.com/news/nation-world/family-of-murdered-dnc-employee-seth-rich-speaks-out-on-crime-watch>) from the original on October 4, 2016. Retrieved October 4, 2016.
48. Kurzius, Rachel (October 3, 2016). "Murdered DNC Staffer's Mom: 'Seth Would Be So Offended' By Conspiracy Theories" (<https://dcist.com/story/16/10/03/seth-rich-family-interview/>). DCist. Archived (https://web.archive.org/web/20161003165726/http://dcist.com/2016/10/seth_rich_family_interview.php) from the original on October 3, 2016. Retrieved May 31, 2021.
49. Kelly, Michael (February 25, 2017). "Kelly: Camp scholarship memorializes Omahan Seth Rich, who was killed in D.C. in July" (http://www.omaha.com/columnists/kelly/kelly-camp-scholarship-memorializes-omahan-seth-rich-who-was-killed/article_e3bdbbe5d-ca21-5903-9ec0-9239ae56773c.html). Omaha World-Herald. Archived (https://web.archive.org/web/20170225202156/http://www.omaha.com/columnists/kelly/kelly-camp-scholarship-memorializes-omahan-seth-rich-who-was-killed/article_e3bdbbe5d-ca21-5903-9ec0-9239ae56773c.html) from the original on February 25, 2017. Retrieved February 26, 2017.
50. Guttman, Nathan. "Seth Rich's Family Furious At Attorney For Claiming Russia Behind The Murder" (<https://forward.com/fast-forward/364918/fury-at-conspiracy-theory-attorney-from-family-of-murdered-dnc-staffer/>). The Forward. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170516005342/http://forward.com/fast-forward/364918/fury-at-conspiracy-theory-attorney-from-family-of-murdered-dnc-staffer/>) from the original on May 16, 2017. Retrieved May 27, 2017.
51. " 'Who Murdered Seth Rich?': Billboards to be Posted in DC" (<http://www.nbcwashington.com/news/local/Who-Murdered-Seth-Rich-Billboards-Ads-to-be-Posted-in-Search-of-Killer-411119145.html>). WRC-TV. January 18, 2017. Retrieved May 27, 2017.
52. Searching for clues in the Seth Rich murder (<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=UX8cLnlifOI>). The Washington Post. May 11, 2017. Retrieved May 27, 2017 – via YouTube.

53. Guttman, Nathan (March 1, 2017). "Was Russia Behind Mystery Murder Of DNC Worker Seth Rich?" (<https://forward.com/fast-forward/364499/was-russia-behind-mystery-murder-of-dnc-worker-seth-rich/>). Forward. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170601051128/http://forward.com/fast-forward/364499/was-russia-behind-mystery-murder-of-dnc-worker-seth-rich/>) from the original on June 1, 2017. Retrieved May 27, 2017.
54. Kurzius, Rachel (March 2, 2017). "'It's Hurtful': Seth Rich's Family Responds To Latest Conspiracy Theory About His Murder" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170714232639/http://dcist.com/2017/03/seth-rich-russian-conspiracy-burkman.php>). DCist. Archived from the original (<http://dcist.com/2017/03/seth-rich-russian-conspiracy-burkman.php>) on July 14, 2017. Retrieved June 1, 2017.
55. "Family Seeks Funds for Answers, Leads in Seth Rich Death" (<http://www.nbcwashington.com/news/local/Seth-Rich-Family-Seeks-Funds-to-Hire-Help-in-Mans-Death-416770403.html>). WRC-TV. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170323143933/http://www.nbcwashington.com/news/local/Seth-Rich-Family-Seeks-Funds-to-Hire-Help-in-Mans-Death-416770403.html>) from the original on March 23, 2017. Retrieved March 22, 2017.
56. Collins, Ben (May 16, 2017). "The Big-Money PR War Over Seth Rich's Death" (<http://www.thedailybeast.com/articles/2017/05/16/the-big-money-pr-war-over-seth-richs-death>). The Daily Beast. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170524075722/http://www.thedailybeast.com/articles/2017/05/16/the-big-money-pr-war-over-seth-richs-death>) from the original on May 24, 2017. Retrieved May 27, 2017.
57. Chiquillo, Julieta (May 19, 2017). "How a Dallas financier got tangled up in conspiracy theories about slaying of DNC staffer Seth Rich" (<https://www.dallasnews.com/news/dallas/2017/05/19/dallas-financier-got-tangled-conspiracy-theories-slaying-dnc-staffer-seth-rich>). Dallas News. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170519173751/https://www.dallasnews.com/news/dallas/2017/05/19/dallas-financier-got-tangled-conspiracy-theories-slaying-dnc-staffer-seth-rich>) from the original on May 19, 2017. Retrieved May 31, 2017.
58. Rutenberg, Jim (May 24, 2017). "Sean Hannity, a Murder and Why Fake News Endures" (<https://www.nytimes.com/2017/05/24/business/media/seth-rich-fox-news-sean-hannity.html>). The New York Times. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20180328160625/https://www.nytimes.com/2017/05/24/business/media/seth-rich-fox-news-sean-hannity.html>) from the original on March 28, 2018. Retrieved May 31, 2017.
59. Marraco, Marina (May 15, 2017). "Family's private investigator: There is evidence Seth Rich had contact with WikiLeaks prior to death" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170613004646/http://www.fox5dc.com/news/local-news/254852337-story>). Archived from the original (<http://www.fox5dc.com/news/local-news/254852337-story>) on June 13, 2017. Retrieved June 13, 2017.
60. Swanson, Ian (August 1, 2017). "Lawsuit claims Trump involvement in retracted Fox story on Seth Rich" (<http://thehill.com/homenews/media/344745-lawsuit-claims-trump-involvement-in-retracted-fox-story-on-seth-rich>). The Hill. Retrieved August 2, 2017.
61. Morton, Joseph (November 23, 2016). "Parents of DNC staffer Seth Rich vow to find his killer; reward now $125,000" (http://www.omaha.com/news/metro/parents-of-dnc-staffer-seth-rich-vow-to-find-his/article_b55fc7c9-e5d7-5e25-9e80-c7d2a264441b.html). Omaha World Herald. Archived (https://web.archive.org/web/20171113164242/http://www.omaha.com/news/metro/parents-of-dnc-staffer-seth-rich-vow-to-find-his/article_b55fc7c9-e5d7-5e25-9e80-c7d2a264441b.html) from the original on November 13, 2017. Retrieved January 23, 2017.
62. Tschida, Stephen (August 9, 2016). "WikiLeaks offering $20,000 reward for information regarding D.C. murder of DNC's Seth Rich" (<http://wjla.com/news/local/wikileaks-offering-20000-reward-for-information-regarding-dc-murder-of-dncs-seth-rich>). WJLA-TV. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170521035309/http://wjla.com/news/local/wikileaks-offering-20000-reward-for-information-regarding-dc-murder-of-dncs-seth-rich>) from the original on May 21, 2017. Retrieved May 23, 2017.

63. Hermann, Peter; Williams, Clarence (August 9, 2016). "WikiLeaks offers reward for help finding DNC staffer's killer" (https://www.washingtonpost.com/local/public-safety/wikileaks-offers-reward-in-killing-of-dnc-staffer-in-washington/2016/08/09/f84fcfb4-5e5b-11e6-8e45-477372e89d78_story.html). The Washington Post. Archived (https://web.archive.org/web/20170520231824/https://www.washingtonpost.com/local/public-safety/wikileaks-offers-reward-in-killing-of-dnc-staffer-in-washington/2016/08/09/f84fcfb4-5e5b-11e6-8e45-477372e89d78_story.html) from the original on May 20, 2017. Retrieved May 21, 2017.
64. "Assange implies murdered DNC staffer was WikiLeaks' source" (<http://www.foxnews.com/politics/2016/08/10/assange-implies-murdered-dnc-staffer-was-wikileaks-source.html>). Fox News. August 10, 2016. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170521124352/http://www.foxnews.com/politics/2016/08/10/assange-implies-murdered-dnc-staffer-was-wikileaks-source.html>) from the original on May 21, 2017. Retrieved May 21, 2017.
65. "GOP lobbyist adds $5K to reward for info on murder of former DNC staffer Seth Rich" (<http://wjla.com/news/local/gop-lobbyist-adds-5k-to-reward-for-info-on-murder-of-former-dnc-staffer-seth-rich>). WJLA-TV. December 5, 2016. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170515054126/http://wjla.com/news/local/gop-lobbyist-adds-5k-to-reward-for-info-on-murder-of-former-dnc-staffer-seth-rich>) from the original on May 15, 2017. Retrieved May 28, 2017.
66. Kutner, Max (September 16, 2016). "A GOP lobbyist will pay $100,000 to learn who killed DNC staffer Seth Rich" (<http://www.newsweek.com/gop-lobbyist-reward-seth-rich-dnc-499653>). Newsweek. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170525014348/http://www.newsweek.com/gop-lobbyist-reward-seth-rich-dnc-499653>) from the original on May 25, 2017. Retrieved May 26, 2017.
67. Heat Street Staff. "Beloved DNC Staffer Seth Rich Shot Dead in the Back in DC, Just Hours After Calling For Dallas Unity; Conspiracy Theories Abound" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20160712192454/https://heatst.com/politics/dnc-staffer-seth-rich-shot-dead-conspiracy-theories/>). Heat Street. Archived from the original (<https://heatst.com/politics/dnc-staffer-seth-rich-shot-dead-conspiracy-theories/>) on July 12, 2016. Retrieved July 13, 2019.
68. Bump, Philip (July 9, 2019). "Don't blame the Seth Rich conspiracy on Russians. Blame Americans" (<https://www.washingtonpost.com/politics/2019/07/09/dont-blame-seth-rich-conspiracy-russians-blame-americans/>). The Washington Post. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20190710212554/https://www.washingtonpost.com/politics/2019/07/09/dont-blame-seth-rich-conspiracy-russians-blame-americans/>) from the original on July 10, 2019. Retrieved July 13, 2019.
69. Nuzzi, Olivia (May 28, 2017). "Is This Even About Seth Rich at All?" (<http://nymag.com/daily/intelligencer/2017/05/is-this-even-about-seth-rich-at-all.html>). New York. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170601002736/http://nymag.com/daily/intelligencer/2017/05/is-this-even-about-seth-rich-at-all.html>) from the original on June 1, 2017. Retrieved May 29, 2017.
70. Guo, Jeff (May 24, 2017). "The bonkers Seth Rich conspiracy theory, explained" (<https://www.vox.com/policy-and-politics/2017/5/24/15685560/seth-rich-conspiracy-theory-explained-fox-news-hannity>). Vox.com. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170612231945/https://www.vox.com/policy-and-politics/2017/5/24/15685560/seth-rich-conspiracy-theory-explained-fox-news-hannity>) from the original on June 12, 2017. Retrieved May 29, 2017.
71. LaCapria, Kim (July 14, 2016). "Seth Rich Homicide" (<http://www.snopes.com/seth-conrad-rich/>). Snopes.com. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20210125112743/https://www.snopes.com/fact-check/seth-conrad-rich/>) from the original on January 25, 2021. Retrieved May 29, 2017.
72. Whitehouse, John (May 27, 2017). "How the murder of a DNC staffer turned into a right-wing conspiracy" (https://www.salon.com/2017/05/27/how-the-murder-of-a-dnc-staffer-turned-into-a-right-wing-conspiracy_partner/). Salon. Archived (https://web.archive.org/web/20180314104649/https://www.salon.com/2017/05/27/how-the-murder-of-a-dnc-staffer-turned-into-a-right-wing-conspiracy_partner/) from the original on March 14, 2018. Retrieved March 14, 2018.

73. Zanotti, Emily (July 29, 2016). "Dem Aide Seth Rich's Death Still Inspiring Conspiracy Theories" (<http://web.archive.org/web/20160930120844/http://heatst.com/politics/still-no-clues-in-murder-of-dncs-seth-rich-as-conspiracy-theories-thicken/>). Heat Street. Archived from the original (<http://heatst.com:80/politics/still-no-clues-in-murder-of-dncs-seth-rich-as-conspiracy-theories-thicken/>) on September 30, 2016. Retrieved March 14, 2018.
74. Campbell, Duncan (July 31, 2018). "Briton ran pro-Kremlin disinformation campaign that helped Trump deny Russian links" (<https://www.computerweekly.com/news/252445769/Briton-ran-pro-Kremlin-disinformation-campaign-that-helped-Trump-deny-Russian-links>). Computer Weekly. Archived (<http://web.archive.org/web/20181031105221/https://www.computerweekly.com/news/252445769/Briton-ran-pro-Kremlin-disinformation-campaign-that-helped-Trump-deny-Russian-links>) from the original on October 31, 2018. Retrieved October 31, 2018.
75. Tucker, Patrick (August 2, 2018). "A new report claims that Russian hackers altered dates in stolen documents to frame the DNC staffer for the theft." (<https://www.defenseone.com/technology/2018/08/how-russian-hackers-amplified-seth-rich-conspiracy-until-it-reached-donald-trump-and-cia/150263/>) Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20180825224852/https://www.defenseone.com/technology/2018/08/how-russian-hackers-amplified-seth-rich-conspiracy-until-it-reached-donald-trump-and-cia/150263/>) August 25, 2018, at the Wayback Machine Defense One. Retrieved August 25, 2018.
76. Nieuwsuur (August 9, 2016). "Assange belooft nieuwe onthullingen over Clinton" (<https://nos.nl/nieuwsuur/artikel/2124316-assange-belooft-nieuwe-onthullingen-over-clinton.html>) (in Dutch). Nieuwsuur. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20180319084947/https://nos.nl/nieuwsuur/artikel/2124316-assange-belooft-nieuwe-onthullingen-over-clinton.html>) from the original on March 19, 2018. Retrieved March 18, 2018 – via YouTube.
77. Nieuwsuur (August 9, 2016). "Julian Assange on Seth Rich" (<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=Kp7FkLBRpKg>). Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170802061038/https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=Kp7FkLBRpKg>) from the original on August 2, 2017. Retrieved August 2, 2017 – via YouTube.
78. Mackey, Robert (November 17, 2016). "Julian Assange's Hatred of Hillary Clinton Was No Secret. His Advice to Donald Trump Was" (<https://theintercept.com/2017/11/15/wikileaks-julian-assange-donald-trump-jr-hillary-clinton/>). The Intercept. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20180318181956/https://theintercept.com/2017/11/15/wikileaks-julian-assange-donald-trump-jr-hillary-clinton/>) from the original on March 18, 2018. Retrieved March 18, 2018.
79. Mueller Report (<https://www.justice.gov/storage/report.pdf>) Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20190419072437/https://www.justice.gov/storage/report.pdf>) April 19, 2019, at the Wayback Machine, vol. I, p. 46: On July 14, 2016, GRU officers used a Guccifer 2.0 email account to send WikiLeaks an email bearing the subject "big archive" and the message "a new attempt."¹⁶³ The email contained an encrypted attachment with the name "wk dnc link I .txt.gpg."
80. Mueller, Robert S. "Report On The Investigation Into Russian Interference In The 2016 Presidential Election" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20190419142638/https://assets.documentcloud.org/documents/5955240/Full-Mueller-Report.pdf>) (PDF). Archived from the original (<https://assets.documentcloud.org/documents/5955240/Full-Mueller-Report.pdf>) (PDF) on April 19, 2019. Retrieved April 19, 2019.
81. Poulsen, Kevin (April 18, 2019). "Mueller Report: Assange Smearred Seth Rich to Cover for Russians" (<https://www.thedailybeast.com/mueller-report-julian-assange-smearred-seth-rich-to-cover-for-russians>). The Daily Beast. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20190419141652/https://www.thedailybeast.com/mueller-report-julian-assange-smearred-seth-rich-to-cover-for-russians>) from the original on April 19, 2019. Retrieved April 19, 2019.
82. Collier, Kevin (April 5, 2018). "These Messages Show Julian Assange Talked About Seeking Hacked Files From Guccifer 2.0" (<https://www.buzzfeed.com/kevincollier/assange-seth-rich-lies-guccifer-wikileaks-hannity>). BuzzFeed News. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20180407183359/https://www.buzzfeed.com/kevincollier/assange-seth-rich-lies-guccifer-wikileaks-hannity>) from the original on April 7, 2018. Retrieved April 7, 2018.

83. Mervosh, Sarah (April 20, 2019). "Seth Rich Was Not Source of Leaked D.N.C. Emails, Mueller Report Confirms" (<https://www.nytimes.com/2019/04/20/us/mueller-report-seth-rich-assange.html>). The New York Times. ISSN 0362-4331 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/0362-4331>). Archived (<https://archive.today/20190420203507/https://www.nytimes.com/2019/04/20/us/mueller-report-seth-rich-assange.html>) from the original on April 20, 2019. Retrieved April 24, 2019.
84. "In Pro-Trump media land, the last week's been irrelevant or just 'fake news'" (<http://www.stuff.co.nz/world/americas/donald-trumps-america/92735833/in-protrump-media-land-the-last-weeks-been-irrelevant-or-just-fake-news>). Stuff. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20171001164052/http://www.stuff.co.nz/world/americas/donald-trumps-america/92735833/in-protrump-media-land-the-last-weeks-been-irrelevant-or-just-fake-news>) from the original on October 1, 2017. Retrieved May 26, 2017.
85. "The FBI is not investigating DNC staffer Seth Rich's murder, despite WikiLeaks claim" (<http://www.newsweek.com/seth-rich-dnc-staffer-wikileaks-leaked-emails-fbi-610383>). Newsweek. May 17, 2017. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170525181611/http://www.newsweek.com/seth-rich-dnc-staffer-wikileaks-leaked-emails-fbi-610383>) from the original on May 25, 2017. Retrieved May 26, 2017.
86. Lytvynenko, Jane (May 29, 2017). "Pro-Trump Media Figure And Conspiracy Theory Peddler Jack Posobiec Is Out At The Rebel" (<https://www.buzzfeed.com/janelytvynenko/jack-posobiec-out-at-the-rebel>). BuzzFeed. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170610172033/https://www.buzzfeed.com/janelytvynenko/jack-posobiec-out-at-the-rebel>) from the original on June 10, 2017. Retrieved June 23, 2017.
87. Manjoo, Farhad (May 31, 2017), "How Twitter Is Being Gamed to Feed Misinformation" (<https://www.nytimes.com/2017/05/31/technology/how-twitter-is-being-gamed-to-feed-misinformation.html>), The New York Times, archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170601134942/https://www.nytimes.com/2017/05/31/technology/how-twitter-is-being-gamed-to-feed-misinformation.html>) from the original on June 1, 2017, retrieved June 1, 2017, "Bots flood the network, tweeting and retweeting thousands or hundreds of thousands of messages in support of the story, often accompanied by a branding hashtag — #pizzagate, or, a few weeks ago, #sethrich."
88. Stetzer, Ed (May 31, 2017), "Christians, Repent (Yes, Repent) of Spreading Conspiracy Theories and Fake News—It's Bearing False Witness" (<http://www.christianitytoday.com/edstetzer/2017/may/christians-repent-conspiracy-theory-fake-news.html>), Christianity Today, archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170603032411/http://www.christianitytoday.com/edstetzer/2017/may/christians-repent-conspiracy-theory-fake-news.html>) from the original on June 3, 2017, retrieved June 1, 2017, "And now I noticed that many of the same conservative Christians who shared about #pizzagate have been spreading the #SethRich conspiracy theory."
89. Farhi, Paul (May 17, 2017). "A conspiratorial tale of murder, with Fox News at the center" (https://www.washingtonpost.com/lifestyle/style/a-conspiratorial-tale-of-murder-with-fox-news-at-the-center/2017/05/17/6a4d1f5a-3b14-11e7-a058-dbb23c75d82_story.html). The Washington Post. Archived (https://web.archive.org/web/20170518001825/https://www.washingtonpost.com/lifestyle/style/a-conspiratorial-tale-of-murder-with-fox-news-at-the-center/2017/05/17/6a4d1f5a-3b14-11e7-a058-dbb23c75d82_story.html) from the original on May 18, 2017. Retrieved May 18, 2017. "The Rich story has taken on elements of the Comet Ping Pong conspiracy, a false and preposterous tale involving Hillary Clinton and her supposed operation of a child-abuse ring at a District pizza restaurant."
90. Scheck, Frank (May 31, 2017), "Critic's Notebook: Sean Hannity Returns to Talk About Not Talking About the Seth Rich Conspiracy Theory" (<https://www.yahoo.com/news/critics-notebook-sean-hannity-returns-talk-not-talking-044105050.html>), The Hollywood Reporter, archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170802090315/https://www.yahoo.com/news/critics-notebook-sean-hannity-returns-talk-not-talking-044105050.html>) from the original on August 2, 2017, retrieved June 1, 2017, "So it's only a matter of time before another lunatic, like the one who showed up with a loaded weapon after Pizzagate, becomes inspired to deliver vigilante-style justice."

91. Boehlert, Eric (May 19, 2017), "Fox's Vulgar Coverage Of A Murdered DNC Staffer Is Nothing New" (http://www.huffingtonpost.com/entry/fox-vulgar-coverage-of-murdered-dnc-staffer-is-nothing_us_591f02f5e4b0e8f558bb25b6), The Huffington Post, archived (https://web.archive.org/web/20170601152322/http://www.huffingtonpost.com/entry/fox-vulgar-coverage-of-murdered-dnc-staffer-is-nothing_us_591f02f5e4b0e8f558bb25b6) from the original on June 1, 2017, retrieved June 1, 2017, "Basically, it was the 'alt-right' idiocy of Pizzagate all over again."
92. Marwick, Alice (May 18, 2017), "The Online Radicalization We're Not Talking About" (<http://nymag.com/selectall/2017/05/the-online-radicalization-were-not-talking-about.html>), New York Magazine, archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170605001126/http://nymag.com/selectall/2017/05/the-online-radicalization-were-not-talking-about.html>) from the original on June 5, 2017, retrieved June 1, 2017, "If you've read this week's conspiracy-mongering stories about the supposedly suspicious death of DNC employee Seth Rich — or if you've read in the past about the rise of White Student Unions on college campuses, or 'Pizzagate' — you've seen the fruits of their efforts."
93. Viebeck, Elise (December 22, 2016), "Schooled on Benghazi and Pizzagate, Trump team is heavy on conspiracy theorists" (https://www.washingtonpost.com/powerpost/schooled-on-benghazi-and-pizzagate-trump-team-is-heavy-on-conspiracy-theorists/2016/12/21/53bdb6d6-c7b1-11e6-8bee-54e800ef2a63_story.html), The New York Times, archived (https://web.archive.org/web/20170731043123/https://www.washingtonpost.com/powerpost/schooled-on-benghazi-and-pizzagate-trump-team-is-heavy-on-conspiracy-theorists/2016/12/21/53bdb6d6-c7b1-11e6-8bee-54e800ef2a63_story.html) from the original on July 31, 2017, retrieved June 1, 2017, "Many of Trump's highest-level appointees have a history of publicly promoting conspiratorial, outlandish and fringe beliefs, particularly about Muslims, the Clinton family and the environment — unproven narratives that remain stubbornly alive on the Internet despite being debunked by the mainstream media."
94. Lanard, Noah (May 17, 2017), "Fox 5's Nonsensical Seth Rich Story Managed to Disintegrate in a Way That Made No Sense" (<https://www.washingtonian.com/2017/05/17/fox-5-seth-rich-story-disintegrated-made-no-sense/>), Washingtonian, archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170517171201/https://www.washingtonian.com/2017/05/17/fox-5-seth-rich-story-disintegrated-made-no-sense/>) from the original on May 17, 2017, retrieved June 1, 2017, "After being forced out of the Trump administration for promoting the Comet Ping Pong conspiracy theory, Michael Flynn Jr., the son of the former National Security Adviser, tweeted, 'So many stories to take away from the #SethRich bombshell.'"
95. Parton, Heather Digby (May 24, 2017), "Donald Trump must be getting desperate: Does he really think thuggish Corey Lewandowski can save him?" (<http://www.salon.com/2017/05/24/donald-trump-must-be-getting-desperate-does-he-really-think-thuggish-corey-lewandowski-can-save-him/>), Salon, archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170529052358/http://www.salon.com/2017/05/24/donald-trump-must-be-getting-desperate-does-he-really-think-thuggish-corey-lewandowski-can-save-him/>) from the original on May 29, 2017, retrieved June 1, 2017, "Seth Rich saga, which has the right-wing media in a full-blown frenzy. ... It has all the hallmarks of a Bossie-style hit although the inane Pizzagate conspiracy spread by the likes of former national security adviser Michael Flynn proves that dirty tricks can be done just as well by amateurs."
96. Asarch, Steven (May 20, 2017). "Reddit News: The Donald Sub Set To Private, Maybe Done For Good [UPDATE: It's Back]" (<http://www.ibtimes.com/reddit-news-donald-sub-set-private-maybe-done-good-update-its-back-2541584>). International Business Times. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170520201807/http://www.ibtimes.com/reddit-news-donald-sub-set-private-maybe-done-good-update-its-back-2541584>) from the original on May 20, 2017. Retrieved May 29, 2017. "The_donald is arguably the most polarizing sub on reddit ... has become the main political subreddit for continued conspiracy theories, like Pizzagate or that the DNC murdered Seth Rich."

97. Kurtzleben, Danielle (May 17, 2017). "Unproved Claims Re-Emerge Around DNC Staffer's Death: Here's What You Should Know" (<https://www.npr.org/2017/05/17/528804792/unproved-claims-reemerge-around-dnc-staffer-s-death-here-s-what-you-should-know>). National Public Radio. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170526231348/http://www.npr.org/2017/05/17/528804792/unproved-claims-reemerge-around-dnc-staffer-s-death-here-s-what-you-should-know>) from the original on May 26, 2017. Retrieved May 28, 2017. "As with many other conspiracy theories ... this kind of assertion in part functions by trying to shift the burden of proof. Rather than proving with hard evidence that there was a conspiracy surrounding Rich's murder (or that the owners of Comet Ping Pong, the pizza restaurant, were harming children), the people making the unproved claims end up pushing the other side to try to disprove it."
98. Hannon, Elliot (May 24, 2017), "Hannity Says He Will Stop—But Also Never Stop—Pushing the Seth Rich Conspiracy" (http://www.slate.com/blogs/the_slatest/2017/05/24/hannity_says_he_will_stop_but_not_really_pushing_the_seth_rich_conspiracy.html), Slate, archived (https://web.archive.org/web/20170603000614/http://www.slate.com/blogs/the_slatest/2017/05/24/hannity_says_he_will_stop_but_not_really_pushing_the_seth_rich_conspiracy.html) from the original on June 3, 2017, retrieved June 1, 2017, "the PizzaGate-like conspiracy theory surrounding Rich's death"
99. Cramer, Meg (May 19, 2017), "Can Fox News Survive Without Roger Ailes?" (<https://www.buzzfeed.com/megcramer/can-fox-news-survive-without-roger-ailles>), BuzzFeed News, archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170601042337/https://www.buzzfeed.com/megcramer/can-fox-news-survive-without-roger-ailles>) from the original on June 1, 2017, retrieved June 1, 2017, "Yesterday there was this ludicrous story that I think Seth Rich was trying to imply that this poor DNC staffer who'd been killed had been like, set up by the Clintons. ... You know, it evokes the pizza-gate terrible allegations utterly unfounded and unfair"
00. Sullivan, Margaret (May 23, 2017), "Margaret Sullivan: The Seth Rich lie, and how the corrosion of reality should worry every American" (<http://www.sltrib.com/opinion/5322540-155/margaret-sullivan-the-seth-rich-lie>), The Salt Lake Tribune, The Washington Post, archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170603032405/http://www.sltrib.com/opinion/5322540-155/margaret-sullivan-the-seth-rich-lie>) from the original on June 3, 2017, retrieved June 1, 2017, "The Seth Rich lie has become the new Comet Ping Pong — another Washington-based conspiracy theory that ended in January with a gunman walking into a family-friendly pizza joint and firing shots as he 'self-investigated' a supposed child-molestation plot involving Hillary Clinton. Crazy, baseless and dangerous."
01. Michael Isikoff (July 9, 2019). "Exclusive: The true origins of the Seth Rich conspiracy theory. A Yahoo News investigation" (<https://news.yahoo.com/exclusive-the-true-origins-of-the-seth-rich-conspiracy-a-yahoo-news-investigation-100000831.html>). Yahoo! News. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20190709104230/https://news.yahoo.com/exclusive-the-true-origins-of-the-seth-rich-conspiracy-a-yahoo-news-investigation-100000831.html>) from the original on July 9, 2019. Retrieved July 9, 2019.
02. Darcy, Oliver (May 16, 2017). "Story on DNC staffer's murder dominated conservative media – hours later it fell apart" (<https://money.cnn.com/2017/05/16/media/seth-rich-family-response-claims-of-wikileaks-contact/index.html>). CNNMoney. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170517013527/http://money.cnn.com/2017/05/16/media/seth-rich-family-response-claims-of-wikileaks-contact/index.html>) from the original on May 17, 2017. Retrieved May 17, 2017.
03. Savransky, Rebecca (May 16, 2017). "Slain DNC staffer's family quashes report he had contact with WikiLeaks" (<http://thehill.com/homenews/news/333555-family-of-slain-dnc-staffer-slams-report-he-had-contact-with-wikileaks>). The Hill. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170521025224/http://thehill.com/homenews/news/333555-family-of-slain-dnc-staffer-slams-report-he-had-contact-with-wikileaks>) from the original on May 21, 2017. Retrieved May 17, 2017.
04. Waldron, Travis (May 16, 2017). "Fox Pushes WikiLeaks Murder Conspiracy From Man Who Warned Of Armed Lesbian Pedophiles" (http://www.huffingtonpost.com/entry/fox-news-conspiracy-theory-wikileaks-seth-rich_us_591b493ee4b07d5f6ba6d027). HuffPost. Archived (https://web.archive.org/web/20170517054751/http://www.huffingtonpost.com/entry/fox-news-conspiracy-theory-wikileaks-seth-rich_us_591b493ee4b07d5f6ba6d027) from the original on May 17, 2017. Retrieved May 16, 2017.

05. Sommer, Allison Kaplan (May 17, 2017). "Explained: 'Alt-right' Using Cruel Seth Rich Conspiracy Theory to Deflect From Trump's Russia Scandal" (<http://www.haaretz.com/us-news/.premium-1.789915>). Haaretz. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170517173820/http://www.haaretz.com/us-news/.premium-1.789915>) from the original on May 17, 2017. Retrieved May 21, 2017.
06. Borchers, Callum (May 16, 2017). "Conservative media coverage of Trump's classified disclosure will make your head spin" (<https://www.washingtonpost.com/news/the-fix/wp/2017/05/16/conservative-media-coverage-of-trumps-classified-disclosure-will-make-your-head-spin/>). The Washington Post. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/2017052222747/https://www.washingtonpost.com/news/the-fix/wp/2017/05/16/conservative-media-coverage-of-trumps-classified-disclosure-will-make-your-head-spin/>) from the original on May 22, 2017. Retrieved May 17, 2017.
07. Alvin Chang (May 18, 2017). "We tracked the Trump scandals on right-wing news sites. Here's how they covered it" (<https://www.vox.com/policy-and-politics/2017/5/18/15646098/right-wing-media-collective-memories>). Vox. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170518184953/https://www.vox.com/policy-and-politics/2017/5/18/15646098/right-wing-media-collective-memories>) from the original on May 18, 2017. Retrieved May 18, 2017.
08. "The FBI is not investigating DNC staffer Seth Rich's murder, despite WikiLeaks claim" (<http://www.newsweek.com/seth-rich-dnc-staffer-wikileaks-leaked-emails-fbi-610383>). May 17, 2017. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170526130542/http://www.newsweek.com/seth-rich-dnc-staffer-wikileaks-leaked-emails-fbi-610383>) from the original on May 26, 2017. Retrieved May 26, 2017.
09. Zimmerman, Malia (May 16, 2017). "Family of slain DNC staffer Seth Rich blasts detective over report of WikiLeaks link" (https://web.archive.org/web/20170516232112/http://www.foxnews.com/politics/2017/05/16/slain-dnc-staffer-had-contact-with-wikileaks-investigator-says.html#&_intcmp=latestnews). Fox News. Archived from the original on May 16, 2017. Retrieved August 5, 2017.
10. Choi, David; Bondarenko, Veronika (August 2, 2017). "A 27-year-old DNC staffer was shot and killed in DC — and his mysterious death led to a lawsuit against Fox News" (<http://www.businessinsider.com/what-is-seth-rich-story-about-fox-news-lawsuit-rod-wheeler-dnc-wikileaks-emails-2017-8>). Business Insider. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170807193041/http://www.businessinsider.com/what-is-seth-rich-story-about-fox-news-lawsuit-rod-wheeler-dnc-wikileaks-emails-2017-8>) from the original on August 7, 2017. Retrieved August 7, 2017.
11. "DNC staffer's murder draws fresh conspiracy theories" (<http://www.nbcnews.com/politics/white-house/dnc-staffer-s-murder-draws-fresh-conspiracy-theories-n760186>). NBC News. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170516173421/http://www.nbcnews.com/politics/white-house/dnc-staffer-s-murder-draws-fresh-conspiracy-theories-n760186>) from the original on May 16, 2017. Retrieved May 16, 2017.
12. "FBI is not involved in Seth Rich case despite 'conspiracy theories', officials say" (<https://abcnews.go.com/Blotter/fbi-involved-seth-rich-case-officials/story?id=47565705>). ABC News. May 22, 2017. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170522205128/http://abcnews.go.com/Blotter/fbi-involved-seth-rich-case-officials/story?id=47565705>) from the original on May 22, 2017. Retrieved May 22, 2017.
13. "Meet The Private Detective Who Ignited A Clinton Conspiracy Theory" (<https://www.buzzfeed.com/josephbernstein/rod-wheeler>). BuzzFeed. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170517051356/http://www.buzzfeed.com/josephbernstein/rod-wheeler>) from the original on May 17, 2017. Retrieved May 17, 2017.
14. "Family of slain Seth Rich says reports that he fed DNC info to WikiLeaks are untrue" (https://www.washingtonpost.com/local/public-safety/family-of-slain-seth-rich-says-reports-he-fed-wikileaks-dnc-info-are-untrue/2017/05/16/9b32ef9c-3a46-11e7-8854-21f359183e8c_story.html). The Washington Post. Archived (https://web.archive.org/web/20170516181342/https://www.washingtonpost.com/local/public-safety/family-of-slain-seth-rich-says-reports-he-fed-wikileaks-dnc-info-are-untrue/2017/05/16/9b32ef9c-3a46-11e7-8854-21f359183e8c_story.html) from the original on May 16, 2017. Retrieved May 16, 2017.

15. "The Seth Rich conspiracy's biggest myths, explained" (<https://www.washingtonpost.com/news/the-fix/wp/2017/05/22/the-seth-rich-conspiracys-biggest-myths-explained/>). The Washington Post The Fix blog. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170523013951/https://www.washingtonpost.com/news/the-fix/wp/2017/05/22/the-seth-rich-conspiracys-biggest-myths-explained/>) from the original on May 23, 2017. Retrieved May 23, 2017.
16. Darcy, Oliver (May 19, 2017). "Russian embassy promotes conspiracy theory on DNC staffer's death after false Fox News story" (<https://money.cnn.com/2017/05/19/media/russian-embassy-seth-rich-inaccurate-fox-news-story/index.html>). CNNMoney. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170519220045/http://money.cnn.com/2017/05/19/media/russian-embassy-seth-rich-inaccurate-fox-news-story/index.html>) from the original on May 19, 2017. Retrieved May 19, 2017.
17. Darcy, Oliver (May 22, 2017). "Fox News staffers 'disgusted' at network's promotion of Seth Rich conspiracy theory" (<https://money.cnn.com/2017/05/22/media/fox-news-staffers-seth-rich-dnc-sean-hannity/index.html>). CNNMoney. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170523035221/http://money.cnn.com/2017/05/22/media/fox-news-staffers-seth-rich-dnc-sean-hannity/index.html>) from the original on May 23, 2017. Retrieved May 23, 2017.
18. Darcy, Oliver (May 23, 2017). "Seth Rich's brother pleads with Hannity to stop spreading conspiracy theory" (<https://money.cnn.com/2017/05/23/media/seth-rich-family-letter-hannity-fox-news/index.html>). CNNMoney. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170523171159/http://money.cnn.com/2017/05/23/media/seth-rich-family-letter-hannity-fox-news/index.html>) from the original on May 23, 2017. Retrieved May 23, 2017.
19. Philips, Kristine (May 24, 2017), "Sean Hannity done talking about Seth Rich and WikiLeaks 'for now' as Fox News retracts story" (<https://www.washingtonpost.com/news/arts-and-entertainment/wp/2017/05/23/fox-news-retracts-controversial-story-on-seth-richs-death-and-alleged-wikileaks-contact>), The Washington Post, archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170528193419/https://www.washingtonpost.com/news/arts-and-entertainment/wp/2017/05/23/fox-news-retracts-controversial-story-on-seth-richs-death-and-alleged-wikileaks-contact>) from the original on May 28, 2017, retrieved May 30, 2017
20. "The life and death of the Seth Rich conspiracy theory" (https://www.washingtonpost.com/powerpost/the-life-and-death-of-the-seth-rich-conspiracy-theory/2017/05/23/aba640c4-3ff3-11e7-adba-394ee67a7582_story.html). The Washington Post. Archived (https://web.archive.org/web/20170524181556/https://www.washingtonpost.com/powerpost/the-life-and-death-of-the-seth-rich-conspiracy-theory/2017/05/23/aba640c4-3ff3-11e7-adba-394ee67a7582_story.html) from the original on May 24, 2017. Retrieved May 24, 2017.
21. Roginsky, Julie (May 22, 2017), "Julie Roginsky claps back at Seth Rich conspiracy theorists" (<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=M5jJr6CoLns>), Fox News, archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170529034457/https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=M5jJr6CoLns>) from the original on May 29, 2017, retrieved May 28, 2017
22. "Prime-Time Conspiracy Theory" (<http://www.weeklystandard.com/prime-time-conspiracy-theory/article/2008229#.WSmJI4heE7o.twitter>). Weekly Standard. May 26, 2017. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170526083000/http://www.weeklystandard.com/prime-time-conspiracy-theory/article/2008229#.WSmJI4heE7o.twitter>) from the original on May 26, 2017. Retrieved May 27, 2017.
23. "The Facts of the Seth Rich Murder That Don't Support Conspiracy Theories" (<http://www.nationalreview.com/morning-jolt/447911/seth-rich-murder-conspiracy-katy-perry-manchester-attack-comments>). National Review. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20210125112732/https://www.nationalreview.com/the-morning-jolt/seth-rich-murder-conspiracy-katy-perry-manchester-attack-comments/>) from the original on January 25, 2021. Retrieved May 27, 2017.
24. "The Seth Rich Conspiracy Theory Is Shameful Nonsense" (<http://www.nationalreview.com/article/447903/sean-hannity-seth-rich-conspiracy-theory-disgrace>). National Review. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170528094135/http://www.nationalreview.com/article/447903/sean-hannity-seth-rich-conspiracy-theory-disgrace>) from the original on May 28, 2017. Retrieved May 27, 2017.

25. Caruso, Jay (May 23, 2017). "Fox News Staff Say They're 'Embarrassed' by Sean Hannity Pushing Seth Rich Conspiracy" (<http://www.redstate.com/jaycaruso/2017/05/23/fox-news-staff-embarrassed-sean-hannity-pushing-seth-rich-conspiracy/>). RedState. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170524043152/http://www.redstate.com/jaycaruso/2017/05/23/fox-news-staff-embarrassed-sean-hannity-pushing-seth-rich-conspiracy/>) from the original on May 24, 2017. Retrieved May 27, 2017.
26. Caruso, Jay (May 21, 2017). "Why Is Any Republican Spreading the Conspiracy Theory About Slain DNC Staffer Seth Rich?" (<http://www.redstate.com/jaycaruso/2017/05/21/republican-spreading-conspiracy-theory-slain-dnc-staffer-seth-rich/>). RedState. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/2017052423922/http://www.redstate.com/jaycaruso/2017/05/21/republican-spreading-conspiracy-theory-slain-dnc-staffer-seth-rich/>) from the original on May 24, 2017. Retrieved May 27, 2017.
27. Caruso, Jay (May 24, 2017). "The Sad State of Some on the Right: Seth Rich Edition" (<http://www.redstate.com/jaycaruso/2017/05/24/sad-state-right-seth-rich-edition/>). RedState. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170529033952/http://www.redstate.com/jaycaruso/2017/05/24/sad-state-right-seth-rich-edition/>) from the original on May 29, 2017. Retrieved May 27, 2017.
28. Rubin, Jennifer (May 24, 2017). "Questions Fox and the right need to answer" (<https://www.washingtonpost.com/blogs/right-turn/wp/2017/05/24/questions-fox-and-the-right-need-to-answer/>). The Washington Post. ISSN 0190-8286 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/0190-8286>). Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170526195031/https://www.washingtonpost.com/blogs/right-turn/wp/2017/05/24/questions-fox-and-the-right-need-to-answer/>) from the original on May 26, 2017. Retrieved May 27, 2017.
29. Gerson, Michael (May 25, 2017). "The conservative mind has become diseased" (https://www.washingtonpost.com/opinions/the-conservative-mind-has-become-diseased/2017/05/25/523f0964-4159-11e7-9869-bac8b446820a_story.html?tid=ss_tw-bottom). The Washington Post. ISSN 0190-8286 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/0190-8286>). Archived (https://web.archive.org/web/20170805104819/https://www.washingtonpost.com/opinions/the-conservative-mind-has-become-diseased/2017/05/25/523f0964-4159-11e7-9869-bac8b446820a_story.html?tid=ss_tw-bottom) from the original on August 5, 2017. Retrieved May 29, 2017.
30. "The Shameless Conspiracy Theorizing Involving Seth Rich Must Stop" (<https://www.commentarymagazine.com/politics-ideas/the-shame-of-defaming-seth-rich/>). Commentary Magazine. May 23, 2017. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170525021948/https://www.commentarymagazine.com/politics-ideas/the-shame-of-defaming-seth-rich/>) from the original on May 25, 2017. Retrieved May 28, 2017.
31. Kroll, Andy (August 16, 2020). "A Murder, a Conspiracy Theory, and the Lies of Fox News" (<https://www.rollingstone.com/politics/politics-features/seth-rich-fox-news-sean-hannity-wikileaks-donald-trump-1040830/>). Rolling Stone. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20200906182022/https://www.rollingstone.com/politics/politics-features/seth-rich-fox-news-sean-hannity-wikileaks-donald-trump-1040830/>) from the original on September 6, 2020. Retrieved September 7, 2020.
32. "Fox retracts Seth Rich murder conspiracy" (<https://www.bbc.com/news/world-us-canada-40021373>). BBC News. May 23, 2017. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170524080403/http://www.bbc.com/news/world-us-canada-40021373>) from the original on May 24, 2017. Retrieved May 23, 2017.
33. "Fox News Retracts DNC Staffer Conspiracy Story, But Hannity Keeps It Alive" (<https://www.npr.org/2017/05/24/529809256/fox-news-retracts-dnc-staffer-conspiracy-story-but-hannity-keeps-it-alive>). NPR. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170524160109/http://www.npr.org/2017/05/24/529809256/fox-news-retracts-dnc-staffer-conspiracy-story-but-hannity-keeps-it-alive>) from the original on May 24, 2017. Retrieved May 24, 2017.
34. Victor, Daniel (May 23, 2017). "Fox News Retracts Seth Rich Story That Stirred Controversy" (<https://www.nytimes.com/2017/05/23/business/media/fox-news-seth-rich.html>). The New York Times. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170524004219/https://www.nytimes.com/2017/05/23/business/media/fox-news-seth-rich.html>) from the original on May 24, 2017. Retrieved May 23, 2017.

35. "Fox News's retraction is a woefully inadequate response to its colossal mistake" (<http://www.poynter.org/2017/fox-news-retraction-is-a-woefully-inadequate-response-to-its-colossal-mistake/461002/>). Poynter Institute. May 23, 2017. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170524002422/http://www.poynter.org/2017/fox-news-retraction-is-a-woefully-inadequate-response-to-its-colossal-mistake/461002/>) from the original on May 24, 2017. Retrieved May 24, 2017.
36. Steinberg, Brian (May 23, 2017). "Sean Hannity Says He Will 'Cease' Discussing Seth Rich Case" (<https://variety.com/2017/tv/news/sean-hannity-seth-rich-fox-news-2-1202442552/>). Variety. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20171220154845/http://variety.com/2017/tv/news/sean-hannity-seth-rich-fox-news-2-1202442552/>) from the original on December 20, 2017. Retrieved December 14, 2017.
37. Bond, Paul (May 25, 2017). "Several advertisers have pulled TV spots over the 'Hannity' host's reporting on Seth Rich, while conservatives are mounting a counter-boycott" (<http://www.hollywoodreporter.com/news/more-advertisers-pressuring-fox-news-sean-hannity-1007805>). The Hollywood Reporter. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20180613183900/https://www.hollywoodreporter.com/news/more-advertisers-pressuring-fox-news-sean-hannity-1007805>) from the original on June 13, 2018. Retrieved May 25, 2017.
38. Hawkins, Derek (May 25, 2017). "Sean Hannity loses advertisers amid uproar over slain DNC staffer conspiracy theories" (<http://www.sfgate.com/news/article/Sean-Hannity-loses-advertisers-amid-uproar-over-11172410.php>). San Francisco Chronicle. The Washington Post. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170525233134/http://www.sfgate.com/news/article/Sean-Hannity-loses-advertisers-amid-uproar-over-11172410.php>) from the original on May 25, 2017. Retrieved May 26, 2017.
39. Flint, Joe (May 26, 2017). "Sean Hannity Loses Some Advertisers After Advancing Conspiracy Theory" (<https://www.wsj.com/articles/sean-hannity-loses-some-advertisers-after-advancing-conspiracy-theory-1495757644>). Wall Street Journal. ISSN 0099-9660 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/0099-9660>). Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170526014145/https://www.wsj.com/articles/sean-hannity-loses-some-advertisers-after-advancing-conspiracy-theory-1495757644>) from the original on May 26, 2017. Retrieved May 26, 2017.
40. Gabbatt, Adam (May 26, 2017). "Sean Hannity hit by advertiser exodus in wake of bogus Seth Rich story" (<https://www.theguardian.com/media/2017/may/26/sean-hannity-advertiser-boycott-fox-news-seth-rich>). The Guardian. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170527033950/https://www.theguardian.com/media/2017/may/26/sean-hannity-advertiser-boycott-fox-news-seth-rich>) from the original on May 27, 2017. Retrieved May 27, 2017.
41. Morona, Joey. "Sean Hannity, still talking about Seth Rich, gets an advertiser back" (http://www.cleveland.com/entertainment/index.ssf/2017/05/sean_hannity_still_talking_abo.html). cleveland.com. Archived (https://web.archive.org/web/20170601064515/http://www.cleveland.com/entertainment/index.ssf/2017/05/sean_hannity_still_talking_abo.html) from the original on June 1, 2017. Retrieved May 31, 2017.
42. Bump, Philip (August 1, 2017). "A timeline of the explosive lawsuit alleging a White House link in the Seth Rich conspiracy" (<https://www.washingtonpost.com/news/politics/wp/2017/08/01/a-timeline-of-the-explosive-lawsuit-alleging-a-white-house-link-in-the-seth-rich-conspiracy/>). The Washington Post. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20210125112719/https://www.washingtonpost.com/news/politics/wp/2017/08/01/a-timeline-of-the-explosive-lawsuit-alleging-a-white-house-link-in-the-seth-rich-conspiracy/>) from the original on January 25, 2021. Retrieved August 1, 2017.
43. "Behind Fox News' Baseless Seth Rich Story: The Untold Tale" (<https://www.npr.org/2017/08/01/540783715/lawsuit-alleges-fox-news-and-trump-supporter-created-fake-news-story>). NPR. August 1, 2017. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170803002740/http://www.npr.org/2017/08/01/540783715/lawsuit-alleges-fox-news-and-trump-supporter-created-fake-news-story>) from the original on August 3, 2017. Retrieved April 5, 2018.
44. Folkenflik, David (August 3, 2018). "Judge Dismisses Suits Against Fox News Over Seth Rich Story" (<https://www.npr.org/2018/08/03/635272922/judge-dismisses-suits-against-fox-news-over-seth-rich-story>). NPR. Retrieved February 8, 2021.

45. Folkenflik, David (November 24, 2020). "Fox News Settles With Seth Rich's Parents For False Story Claiming Clinton Leaks" (<https://www.npr.org/2020/11/24/938545344/fox-news-settles-with-seth-richs-parents-for-false-story-claiming-clinton-leaks>). NPR. Retrieved February 8, 2021.
46. David Weigel (May 21, 2017). "Gingrich spreads conspiracy theory about slain DNC staffer" (<https://www.washingtonpost.com/news/powerpost/wp/2017/05/21/gingrich-spreads-conspiracy-theory-about-slain-dnc-staffer/>). The Washington Post PowerPost blog. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170521155708/https://www.washingtonpost.com/news/powerpost/wp/2017/05/21/gingrich-spreads-conspiracy-theory-about-slain-dnc-staffer/>) from the original on May 21, 2017. Retrieved May 21, 2017.
47. Darcy, Oliver. "Seth Rich's brother sues right-wing activists, Washington Times over conspiracy theories" (<https://money.cnn.com/2018/03/27/media/seth-rich-brother-sues-washington-times/index.html?iid=EL>). CNNMoney. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20181001220503/https://money.cnn.com/2018/03/27/media/seth-rich-brother-sues-washington-times/index.html?iid=EL>) from the original on October 1, 2018. Retrieved October 1, 2018.
48. Darcy, Oliver. "The Washington Times settles lawsuit with Seth Rich's brother, issues retraction and apology for its coverage" (<https://money.cnn.com/2018/10/01/media/washington-times-aaron-rich/index.html>). CNNMoney. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20190221115632/https://www.cnn.com/2018/10/01/media/washington-times-aaron-rich/index.html>) from the original on February 21, 2019. Retrieved October 1, 2018.
49. Del Moro, Michael (March 13, 2018). "Family of slain DNC staffer sues Fox News over retracted story" (<https://abcnews.go.com/Politics/family-slain-dnc-staffer-sues-fox-news-retracted/story?id=53725795>). ABC News. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20180314014751/http://abcnews.go.com/Politics/family-slain-dnc-staffer-sues-fox-news-retracted/story?id=53725795>) from the original on March 14, 2018. Retrieved March 14, 2018.
50. Segers, Grace (August 2, 2018). "Seth Rich case against Fox News dismissed by federal judge" (<https://www.cbsnews.com/news/seth-rich-case-dismissed-by-federal-judge/>). CBS. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20180802222744/https://www.cbsnews.com/news/seth-rich-case-dismissed-by-federal-judge/>) from the original on August 2, 2018. Retrieved August 3, 2018.
51. Isikoff, Michael (November 25, 2020). "Fox paid seven figures to settle lawsuit over bogus Seth Rich conspiracy story" (<https://news.yahoo.com/fox-paid-seven-figures-to-settle-lawsuit-over-bogus-seth-rich-conspiracy-story-003236858.html>). news.yahoo.com. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20201213162844/https://news.yahoo.com/fox-paid-seven-figures-to-settle-lawsuit-over-bogus-seth-rich-conspiracy-story-003236858.html>) from the original on December 13, 2020. Retrieved December 14, 2020.
52. Isadi, Elahe; Farhi, Paul (November 24, 2020). "Fox News reaches settlement with parents of slain DNC staffer Seth Rich" (<https://www.washingtonpost.com/media/2020/11/24/fox-news-seth-rich-settlement/>). The Washington Post. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20201213204634/https://www.washingtonpost.com/media/2020/11/24/fox-news-seth-rich-settlement/>) from the original on December 13, 2020. Retrieved December 14, 2020.
53. "Conspiracy Files: Murder in Washington" (<https://www.bbc.co.uk/programmes/b09yj7rm>). BBC Two. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20190405064447/https://www.bbc.co.uk/programmes/b09yj7rm>) from the original on April 5, 2019. Retrieved April 25, 2019.

Further reading

- Abraham, Rabbi Steven (July 22, 2016). "In Memoriam: Seth Conrad Rich" (<http://www.jewishomaha.org/jewish-press/2016/seth-conrad-rich/>). The Jewish Press. Omaha. Eulogy given by Rabbi Steven Abraham of Beth El Synagogue at the service on July 13, 2016.
- Harris, Chris (July 13, 2016). "Friends of Slain DNC Staffer Seth Rich Remember Him as 'Honest' and 'Self-Sacrificing'" (<http://www.people.com/article/friends-remember-dnc-staffer-seth-rich>). People.

External links

- Seth Conrad Rich \(https://www.findagrave.com/memorial/166909163\) at Find a Grave—Beth El Cemetery, Ralston, Nebraska
 - "The Seth Rich Conspiracy Theory" (<http://www.snopes.com/2017/05/25/seth-rich-conspiracy-theory/>), Snopes.com
 - Wheeler v. Twenty-First Century Fox, Inc. et al. (<https://www.mediaite.com/wp-content/uploads/2017/08/Wheeler-Filed-Complaint.pdf>)
-

Retrieved from "https://en.wikipedia.org/w/index.php?title=Murder_of_Seth_Rich&oldid=1026437590"

This page was last edited on 2 June 2021, at 08:13 (UTC).

Text is available under the Creative Commons Attribution-ShareAlike License; additional terms may apply. By using this site, you agree to the Terms of Use and Privacy Policy. Wikipedia® is a registered trademark of the Wikimedia Foundation, Inc., a non-profit organization.

QAnon

QAnon^[a] (/ˌkjuːəˈnɒn/), or simply Q, is a discredited far-right conspiracy theory alleging that a cabal of Satanic,^[1] cannibalistic pedophiles run a global child sex trafficking ring and conspired against former President Donald Trump during his term in office.^{[2][3][4][5]} QAnon is commonly described as a cult.^{[6][7][8]}

QAnon commonly asserts that Trump has been planning a day of reckoning known as the "Storm", when thousands of members of the cabal will be arrested.^{[9][10]} QAnon supporters have accused many liberal Hollywood actors, Democratic politicians, and high-ranking government officials of being members of the cabal.^[11] They have also claimed that Trump feigned conspiracy with Russians to enlist Robert Mueller to join him in exposing the sex trafficking ring and preventing a coup d'état by Barack Obama, Hillary Clinton, and George Soros.^{[12][13]} The QAnon conspiracy theories have been amplified by Russian state-backed troll accounts on social media,^[20] as well as Russian state-backed traditional media^{[14][21]} and networks associated with Falun Gong.^[22]

QAnon flag at a Second Amendment rally in Richmond, Virginia, in 2020

Although preceded by similar viral conspiracy theories such as Pizzagate,^{[23][24]} which has since become part of QAnon, the conspiracy theory began with an October 2017 post on the anonymous imageboard website 4chan, by "Q" (or "QAnon"), who was presumably an American individual;^[25] it is now more likely that "Q" has become a group of people acting under the same name.^{[26][27]} A stylometric analysis of Q posts claims to have uncovered that at least two people wrote as "Q" in different periods.^{[28][29]} Q claimed to be a high-level government official with Q clearance, who has access to classified information involving the Trump administration and its opponents in the United States.^[30] NBC News reported that three people took the original Q post and shortly thereafter spread it across multiple media platforms to build an Internet following for profit. QAnon was preceded by several similar anonymous 4chan posters, such as FBIAnon, HLIAnon (High-Level Insider), CIAAnon, and WH Insider Anon.^[31] Although American in origin, there is now a considerable QAnon movement outside of the United States, including in the United Kingdom and France since 2020,^[32] with a "particularly strong and growing" movement in Germany and Japan.^[33] Japanese QAnon adherents are also known as "JAnon" (Japanese: ジアノン).^[34]

QAnon adherents began appearing at Trump reelection campaign rallies in August 2018.^[35] Bill Mitchell, a broadcaster who has promoted QAnon, attended a White House "social media summit" in July 2019.^{[36][37]} QAnon believers commonly tag their social media posts with the hashtag #WWG1WGA, signifying the motto "Where We Go One, We Go All".^[38] At an August 2019 Trump rally, a man warming up the crowd used the QAnon motto, later denying that it was a QAnon reference. This occurred hours after the FBI published a report calling QAnon a potential source of domestic terrorism, the first time the agency had so rated a fringe conspiracy theory.^{[39][40]} According to analysis by Media Matters for America, as of October 2020, Trump had amplified QAnon messaging at least 265 times by retweeting or mentioning 152 Twitter accounts affiliated with QAnon, sometimes multiple times a day.^{[41][42]} QAnon followers came to refer to Trump as "Q+".^[43]

The number of QAnon adherents is unclear,^[44] but the group maintains a large online following. The imageboard website 8chan, rebranded to 8kun in 2019, is QAnon's online home, as it is the only place Q posts messages.^{[5][45][46][47]} In June 2020, Q exhorted followers in a post on 8chan to take a "digital soldiers oath"; many did, using the Twitter hashtag #TakeTheOath.^[48] In July 2020, Twitter banned thousands of QAnon-affiliated accounts and changed its algorithms to reduce the conspiracy theory's spread.^[49] A Facebook internal analysis reported in August 2020 found millions of followers across thousands of groups and pages; Facebook acted later that month to remove and restrict QAnon activity,^{[50][51]} and in October it said it would ban the conspiracy theory from its platform altogether.^[52] Followers had also migrated to dedicated message boards including EndChan, where they organized to wage information warfare in an attempt to influence the 2020 United States presidential election.^[53]

After Trump lost the election to Joe Biden, updates from Q declined dramatically. QAnon beliefs became a part of attempts to overturn the election results, culminating in the storming of the United States Capitol, leading to a further crackdown on QAnon-related content on social media.^{[54][55][56][57]} On the day of Biden's inauguration, Ron Watkins, a former site administrator for 8chan and a de facto leader among QAnon adherents, suggested it was time to "go back to our lives as best we are able".^{[58][59]} Other QAnon adherents believed that Biden's inauguration was "part of the plan".^[59]

Contents

Background

Origin and spread

Conspiracy claims

Identity of Q

Analysis

Appeal

Terrorism threat

Role in U.S. elections and government

Comments by Trump and connected individuals

Reactions

Incidents

See also

Explanatory notes

References

External links

Background

Pizzagate

David Goldberg
@DavidGoldbergNY

Twitter

On October 30, 2016, a Twitter account posting antisemitic and white supremacist material^[61] which said it was run by a Jewish New York lawyer falsely claimed that the New York City Police Department (NYPD) had discovered a pedophilia ring linked to members of the Democratic Party while searching through Anthony Weiner's emails.^{[62][63]} Throughout October and November 2016, WikiLeaks had published John Podesta's emails. Proponents of the conspiracy theory read the emails and alleged they contained code words for pedophilia and human trafficking.^{[64][65]} Proponents also claimed that Comet Ping Pong, a pizzeria in Washington, D.C., was a meeting ground for Satanic ritual abuse.^[66]

Rumors stirring in the NYPD that Huma's emails point to a pedophilia ring and @HillaryClinton is at the center. #GoHillary #PodestaEmails23

October 30, 2016^[60]

The story was later posted on fake news websites, starting with Your News Wire, which cited a 4chan post from earlier that year. The Your News Wire article was subsequently spread by pro-Trump websites, including SubjectPolitics.com, which added the claim that the NYPD had raided Hillary Clinton's property.^[62] The Conservative Daily Post ran a headline claiming the Federal Bureau of Investigation had confirmed the conspiracy theory.^[67]

Anons

In its most basic sense, an "anon" is an anonymous or pseudonymous Internet poster.^[68] The concept of anons "doing research" and claiming to disclose otherwise classified information, while a key component of the QAnon conspiracy theory, is by no means exclusive to it. Before Q, a number of so-called anons also claimed to have special government access. On July 2, 2016, the anonymous poster "FBIAnon", a self-described "high-level analyst and strategist" who claimed to have "intimate knowledge of the inner workings of the Clinton case", began posting false information about the 2016 investigation into the Clinton Foundation and claimed that Hillary Clinton would be imprisoned if Trump became president. Around that time, "HLIAnon", standing for "High Level Insider Anon", hosted long question-and-answer sessions, dispensing various conspiracy theories, including that Princess Diana was murdered after trying to stop the September 11 attacks. Soon after the 2016 United States elections, two anonymous posters, "CIAAnon" and "CIAIntern", falsely claimed to be high-ranking Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) officers, and in late August 2017, "WHInsiderAnon" offered a supposed preview that something that was "going to go down" regarding leaks that would affect the Democratic Party.^[31]

Influence of 4chan culture

/htg/ or "Human Trafficking General" threads on the /pol/ board of 4chan have been called "the missing link" between Pizzagate and QAnon. Instead of focusing on a limited supply of email material to comb through, the /htg/ culture allowed users to actively participate in the imagined storylines. A key /htg/ poster was Anonymous 5 (also known as "Frank"), who claimed to be a child prostitution investigator. But the lack of a coherent narrative was a constraint on the /htg/ trend, and it never achieved Pizzagate's popularity.^[69]

The main tenets of the QAnon ideology were already present at 4chan before Q's appearance, including claims that Hillary Clinton was directly involved in a pedophile ring, that Robert Mueller was secretly working with Trump, and that large-scale military tribunals were imminent. His posts specifically targeted individuals who were highly hated in the community beforehand, namely Clinton, Barack

Obama and George Soros. The idea of the "Storm", central to the QAnon canon, was claimed to have been copied from another poster named Victory of the Light, who predicted the "Event", in which mass, televised arrests of the "Cabal" were forthcoming.^[69]

Origin and spread

A user named "Q Clearance Patriot" first appeared on the /pol/ board of 4chan on October 28, 2017, posting in a thread titled "Calm Before the Storm",^[25] a reference to Trump's cryptic description of a gathering of United States military leaders he attended as "the calm before the storm".^{[25][70]} The "Storm" became QAnon parlance for an imminent event in which thousands of alleged suspects will be arrested, imprisoned, and executed for being child-eating pedophiles.^[9] The poster's username implied that they hold Q clearance,^{[71][72]} a United States Department of Energy security clearance required to access Top Secret information on nuclear weapons and materials.^[73] An Internet community soon developed around interpreting and analyzing posts attributed to Q, and among these conspiracy theorists, several individuals became minor celebrities within the community.^{[74][75]}

A common logo used by QAnon followers.

According to a Reuters report, Russian-backed Twitter accounts played a role in propagating QAnon claims as early as November 2017.^{[15][17]}

In November 2017, Paul Furber, Coleman Rogers, and Tracy Diaz, two 4chan moderators and a YouTuber respectively, worked together to propagate QAnon to a wider audience.^{[76][77]} Some QAnon followers have accused the trio of profiting off of the movement.^[31] The three then created a Reddit community that was influential in spreading the conspiracy theory until they were banned and the subreddit was closed in March 2018, which Reddit explained was due to incitement of violence and posting private information.^[31] QAnon spread to other social media, including Twitter and YouTube.^[74] Rogers and his wife, Christina Urso, launched Patriots' Soapbox, a YouTube livestream dedicated to QAnon, which they used to solicit donations. Its guests have included Congress member Lauren Boebert and a Trump campaign publicist.^[76] Posts by Q later moved to 8chan, with Q citing concerns that the 4chan board had been "infiltrated".^[31] 8chan was shut down in August 2019 after it was connected with the 2019 El Paso shooting and other violent incidents, leading adherents of QAnon to move to Endchan and later a revived 8chan, now known as 8kun.^{[43][53]}

QAnon first received attention from mainstream press in December 2017, and in the early months of 2018 the conspiracy theory received traction from the mainstream right. Television host Sean Hannity and entertainer Roseanne Barr spread news about QAnon to their social media followers. InfoWars host and far-right conspiracy theorist Alex Jones claimed to be in personal contact with Q. The presence en masse of QAnon adherents at a July 2018 Trump rally for the midterm elections in Tampa, Florida, marked the conspiracy theory's entry into the mainstream.^{[23][74]}

Sites dedicated to aggregating these Q posts, also called Qdrops, became essential for their dissemination and spread. QMap was the most popular and famous aggregator, run by a pseudonymous developer and overall key QAnon figure known as "QAPPANON".^{[78][79]} But QMap shut down shortly after a September 2020 report was published by the fact-checking website Logically, which theorized that QAPPANON was a New Jersey-based security analyst named Jason Gelinas.^{[79][80]}

Between March and June 2020, during the COVID-19 pandemic, QAnon activity nearly tripled on Facebook and nearly doubled on Instagram and Twitter.^[81] By that time, QAnon had spread to Europe, from the Netherlands to the Balkan Peninsula. It maintains an especially strong following in Germany. Far-right activists and influencers have created a German audience for QAnon on YouTube, Facebook, and Telegram estimated at 200,000. One German Reichsbürger group adopted QAnon to promote its belief that modern Germany is not a sovereign republic, but rather a corporation created by Allied nations after World War II, and expressed its hope that Trump would lead an army to restore the Reich.^[82] In Russia, a similar conspiracy theory, the "Union of Slavic Forces of Russia" or "Soviet Citizens"—which claims the Russian Federation is a Delaware-based LLC that occupies the legal territory of the Soviet Union—also became susceptible to QAnon beliefs.^[83] Many Canadians have also propagated QAnon,^{[84][85][86]} and one in four Britons are said to believe in QAnon-related theories, though only six percent support QAnon.^[87] Charlie Ward and Martin Geddes are listed by Hope not Hate as influential British promoters of QAnon, with Geddes "[running] one of the most popular QAnon Twitter accounts in the world".^[88]

The movement has also spread to Spain and Latin America,^[89] with countries like Costa Rica, Colombia, Argentina, Mexico, Paraguay and Brazil having an online presence.^[90] According to an investigation by Costa Rica's largest newspaper, La Nación, its Facebook page spreads misinformation and fake news, calls to depose President Carlos Alvarado and extols right-wing figures like far right presidential candidate Juan Diego Castro Fernández and controversial deputies Dragos Dolanescu Valenciano and Erick Rodríguez Steller.^[91] In Spain, the far-right Vox party was accused of endorsing anti-Biden conspiracy theories linked to QAnon in its Twitter account by claiming that Biden was the candidate "preferred by pedophiles".^[92] An RTVE news report found that most Spanish QAnon supporters identified Vox as their preferred political party.^[93]

University of Southern California professor and data scientist Emilio Ferrara found that about 25% of accounts that use QAnon hashtags and retweet InfoWars and One America News Network are bots.^[94]

In February 2021, a poll by the American Enterprise Institute found that 29% of Republicans believe the central claim of QAnon, that "Donald Trump has been secretly fighting a group of child sex traffickers that include prominent Democrats and Hollywood elites".^[95] A March 2021 survey by the Public Religion Research Institute and Interfaith Youth Core found similar results: Republicans (28%) were twice as likely as Democrats (14%) to agree that the "elites" would soon be swept from power by a coming "storm"; Republicans (23%) were three times as likely as Democrats (8%) to agree that "Satan-worshipping pedophiles" control the government and media; and Republicans (28%) were four times as likely as Democrats (7%) to agree that "true American patriots may have to resort to violence" to resolve the situation.^[96]

Pastel QAnon is a collection of techniques aimed predominantly at indoctrinating women into the conspiracy theory, mainly on social media sites like Instagram, Facebook, WhatsApp, Telegram and TikTok.^{[97][98]} It uses feminine-coded aesthetics (including a pastel color palette, from which it gets its name), language, activities and communities, and uses gateway messaging to frame the conspiracies as reasonable concerns.^{[99][97]} Concordia University, Canada, researcher Marc-André Argentino identified the trend.^[100]

Conspiracy claims

The conspiracy theory has been widely characterized as "baseless"^{[35][101]} and "evidence-free".^[102] Its proponents have been called "a deranged conspiracy cult"^[13] and "some of the Internet's most outré [unconventional] Trump fans".^[103] It is disseminated mainly by Trump supporters, who refer to the Storm and the Great Awakening. QAnon's precepts and vocabulary are closely related to the religious concepts of millenarianism and apocalypticism,^[9] leading it to be sometimes construed as an emerging religious movement.^{[43][104][105]} QAnon's adherents, while seeing Trump as a flawed Christian, also view him as a messiah sent by God.^{[42][21][106]}

According to Travis View, a host of the QAnon Anonymous podcast who has studied the theory and written about it extensively for The Washington Post, the essence of the conspiracy theory is that:

... there is a worldwide cabal of Satan-worshiping pedophiles who rule the world, essentially, and they control everything. They control politicians, and they control the media. They control Hollywood, and they cover up their existence, essentially. And they would have continued ruling the world, were it not for the election of President Donald Trump. Now, Donald Trump in this conspiracy theory knows all about this evil cabal's wrongdoing. But one of the reasons that Donald Trump was elected was to put an end to them, basically. And now we would be ignorant of this behind-the-scenes battle of Donald Trump and the U.S. military – that everyone backs him and the evil cabal – were it not for "Q". And what "Q" is is basically a poster on 4chan, who later moved to 8chan, who reveals details about this secret behind-the-scenes battle, and also secrets about what the cabal is doing and also the mass sort of upcoming arrest events through these posts.^[9]

Followers of QAnon also believe that there is an imminent event known as the "Storm", when thousands of members of the cabal will be arrested and possibly sent to Guantanamo Bay prison or to face military tribunals, and the U.S. military will brutally take over the country.^[9] The result will be salvation and utopia on earth.^[107]

Failed predictions

QAnon's first prediction was that Hillary Clinton was about to be arrested and would attempt to flee the country. This prediction failed. Other failed predictions include:^[109]

1. The "Storm" would take place on November 3, 2017. There were no notable events in US politics on that day.
2. The "Storm" would take place on January 20, 2021, the day of Biden's inauguration. No coup took place and Biden was peacefully inaugurated.^[110]
3. A major event involving the Department of Defense would take place on February 1, 2018.
4. People targeted by the president would commit suicide en masse on February 10, 2018. No prominent people committed suicide that day.
5. There would be a car bombing in London around February 16, 2018. There was no bombing.
6. The Trump military parade would "never be forgotten". The parade was canceled.
7. The Five Eyes "won't be around much longer".
8. Something major would happen in Chongqing on April 10, 2018. Nothing notable happened in Chongqing that day.

HRC extradition already in motion effective yesterday with several countries in case of cross border run. Passport approved to be flagged effective 10/30 @ 12:01 am. Expect massive riots organized in defiance and others fleeing the US to occur. U.S.M's will conduct the operation while NG activated. Proof check: Locate a NG member and ask if activated for duty 10/30 across most major cities.

—QAnon's first post on the /pol/ message board of 4chan, on October 28, 2017^[108]

9. There would be a "bombshell" revelation about North Korea in May 2018. There were no notable developments.
10. A "smoking gun" video of Hillary Clinton would emerge in March 2018. No video appeared.
11. Multiple failed predictions that John McCain would resign from the US Senate. McCain remained in the Senate until his death in August 2018.
12. Multiple failed predictions that Mark Zuckerberg would leave Facebook and flee the United States. Zuckerberg remains CEO of Facebook as of June 2021.
13. Multiple failed predictions that Twitter CEO Jack Dorsey would be forced to resign. Dorsey remains CEO of Twitter as of June 2021.
14. Multiple failed predictions that Pope Francis would be arrested on felony charges.
15. Multiple failed predictions that "something big" would happen or the truth would emerge "next week".
16. Multiple failed predictions that Donald Trump would be re-inaugurated on January 20, 2021 despite losing the election. Joe Biden was inaugurated as planned on January 20.^[111]
17. Donald Trump would be inaugurated on March 4, 2021, as the 19th president. This claim stems from a conspiracy theory stating that the District of Columbia Organic Act of 1871 made the United States into a corporation (a theory developed by the sovereign citizen movement).^[112] Therefore, Trump would have been inaugurated as the 19th president (after Ulysses S. Grant) and the country would cease to be a corporation and once again become the country started by the Founding Fathers.^{[113][114]} March 4 is the inauguration date because the 20th Amendment changed the date to January 20, and no amendments to the U.S. Constitution since 1869 are recognized.^[115] Joe Biden remains the incumbent and 46th president of the United States.
18. Donald Trump would be inaugurated again on March 20, 2021. After the failed prediction that Trump would be inaugurated on March 4, 2021, QAnon "delayed" the inauguration date to March 20, 2021.^[116] Joe Biden remains the President of the United States.

False claims

As well as the failed predictions, Q has posted numerous false, baseless, and unsubstantiated claims, such as:

1. That the CIA installed North Korean leader Kim Jong-un as a puppet ruler.^[117]
2. A February 16, 2018, false claim that U.S. representative and former Democratic National Committee chairwoman Debbie Wasserman Schultz hired Salvadoran gang MS-13 to murder DNC staffer Seth Rich.^{[70][118]}
3. A March 1, 2018, apparent suggestion that German chancellor Angela Merkel is Adolf Hitler's granddaughter.^[119]
4. A July 7, 2018, Daily Beast article noted that Q falsely claimed that "each mass shooting is a false-flag attack organized by the cabal."^[11]
5. That Obama, Hillary Clinton, George Soros, and others are planning a coup against Trump and are involved in an international child sex-trafficking ring.^{[120][121]}
6. That the Mueller investigation is actually a counter-coup led by Trump, who pretended to conspire with Russia in order to hire Mueller to secretly investigate the Democrats.^[13]
7. That the Rothschild family leads a satanic cult.^[12] Similar political allegations and rumors have circulated since the 1970s. Typically the allegations revolved around investigators using existing Satanic cults to lure and blackmail left-wing activists, or in the case of the Franklin child prostitution ring allegations, Satanic sexual abuse perpetrated by elite Republicans. A significant difference between the older narratives and the QAnon of today is that now elite Democrats are considered the villains instead of Republicans.^[122]

Evolution of Q's claims

Q's posts have become more cryptic and vague, allowing followers to map their own beliefs onto them.^[123] Some posts include strings of characters that are allegedly coded messages.

On multiple occasions, Q has dismissed their false claims and incorrect predictions as deliberate, claiming that "disinformation is necessary".^{[124][125][126]} This has led Australian psychologist Stephan Lewandowsky to emphasize the "self-sealing" quality of the conspiracy theory, highlighting its anonymous purveyor's use of plausible deniability and noting that evidence against it "can become evidence of [its] validity in the minds of believers".^[108] Author Walter Kirn has described Q as an innovator among conspiracy theorists by enthralling readers with "clues" rather than presenting claims directly: "The audience for internet narratives doesn't want to read, it wants to write. It doesn't want answers provided, it wants to search for them."^[127]

Link to Miracle Mineral Solution

QAnon theorists have touted drinking an industrial bleach (known as MMS, or Miracle Mineral Solution) as a "miracle cure" for COVID-19.^{[128][129][130]}

Usage of #SaveTheChildren and Freedom for the Children

As in Pizzagate, QAnon followers believe that children are being abducted in large numbers to supply a child trafficking ring. By 2020, some followers began using the Twitter hashtag #SaveTheChildren (#SaveOurChildren was also used),^[131] coopting a trademarked name for the child welfare organization Save the Children, leading to an August 7 statement by Save the Children on the unauthorized use of its name in campaigns.^[132] Data from the National Center for Missing & Exploited Children indicates that the overwhelming majority of missing children are runaways; the second-largest cause is abduction by family members. Less than 1% are abductions by non-family members.^{[133][134]} In September, Facebook and Instagram tried to prevent #SaveTheChildren being associated with QAnon by redirecting users who searched for the hashtag towards the child welfare group;^[135] in October, Facebook announced that it would try to limit the hashtag's reach.^[136] In the same timeframe, QAnon followers also created a conspiracy theory claiming that furniture company Wayfair had secret arrangements to sell and ship victims of child trafficking.^{[137][138]}

"#SAVEOURCHILDREN" graffiti on a bridge in Lufkin, Texas

Similarly, "Freedom for the Children" groups both in the US and in the UK helped organize street protests that they say are raising awareness of child sexual abuse and human trafficking.^{[139][140]} These protests tend to attract a more diverse and younger crowd than typical QAnon groups, including many people who do not fully believe all aspects of the QAnon conspiracy theory,^[141] and have often been able to avoid social media restrictions.^[142]

Identity of Q

Some researchers believe the pseudonymous identity known as Q has been controlled by multiple people in cooperation.^[76] A stylometric analysis has suggested that two people likely wrote Q's posts during different periods.^{[28][29]}

By design, anonymous imageboards such as 4chan and 8chan obscure their posters' identities.^{[76][144]} Those who wish to prove a consistent identity between posts while remaining anonymous can use a tripcode, which associates a post with a unique digital signature for any poster who knows the password.^{[43][5]} There have been thousands of posts associated with a Q tripcode, known as "Q drops".^[43] The tripcode associated with Q has changed several times, creating uncertainty about the poster's continuous identity.^[43] Passwords on 8chan are also easy to crack, and the Q tripcode has been repeatedly compromised and used by people pretending to be Q.^[145] When 8chan returned as 8kun in November 2019 after several months of downtime, the Q posting on 8kun posted photos of a pen and notebook that had been pictured in earlier 8chan posts to show the continuation of the Q identity, and continued to use Q's 8chan tripcode.^[43]

There has been much speculation about Q's motives and identity. A range of theories, held by both QAnon believers and critics, credit Q's posts to sources including a military intelligence officer, a Trump administration insider, an alternate reality game created by the puzzle organization Cicada 3301, or Trump himself.^{[26][75]}

Since the Q tripcode was uniquely verified by 8chan's server and not reproducible on other imageboards, and Q did not have another means of communication, Q was not able to post when the website went down after the 2019 El Paso shooting.^[146] This apparent conflict of interest, combined with statements by 8chan's founder Fredrick Brennan, the use of a "Q" collar pin by 8chan owner Jim Watkins, and Watkins's financial interest in a QAnon super PAC that advertises on 8chan, have led numerous journalists and conspiracy theory researchers to believe that Watkins^[147] or his son, 8chan's former administrator Ron Watkins, work with Q, know Q's identity, or are Q.^{[43][47][80][148][149]} Both Watkinses deny knowing Q's identity.^{[43][150]} Documentary filmmaker Cullen Hoback spent three years with the Watkinses and Brennan, investigating the origins of QAnon and its connection to 8chan. In the last episode of Q: Into the Storm, the 2021 HBO docuseries he produced from this research, Hoback showed his final conversation with Ron Watkins, who stated on camera, "I've spent the past ... almost ten years, every day, doing this kind of research anonymously. Now I'm doing it publicly, that's the only difference. ... It was basically ... three years of intelligence training teaching normies how to do intelligence work. It was basically what I was doing anonymously before but never as Q". Watkins then corrected himself, saying, "Never as Q. I promise. Because I am not Q, and I never was."^{[151][152][153]} Hoback viewed this as an inadvertent admission from Watkins, and concluded from this interview and his other research that Ron Watkins is Q.^[153] Ron Watkins again denied being Q shortly before the series premiered.^[154]

A QAnon flag based on the flag of the United States.^[143]

Outside the US. Capitol during the January 6, 2021 riot, a Trump supporter carries a placard depicting Jesus in a MAGA hat with the QAnon hashtag "#WWG1WGA" visible in the lower right.

Analysis

QAnon may best be understood as an example of what historian Richard Hofstadter called "The Paranoid Style in American Politics", the title of his 1964 essay on religious millenarianism and apocalypticism.^[9] QAnon's vocabulary echoes Christian tropes, such as the "Storm" (the Genesis flood narrative or Judgement Day) and the "Great Awakening" (evoking the reputed historical religious Great Awakenings of the early 18th century to the late 20th century). According to one QAnon video, the battle between Trump and "the cabal" is of "biblical proportions", a "fight for earth, of good versus evil". Some QAnon supporters say the forthcoming reckoning will be a "reverse rapture": not only the end of the world as we know it, but a new beginning, with salvation and utopia on earth for the survivors.^[107]

Some Christian pastors have introduced their congregations to QAnon ideas, with at least one ministry combining QAnon and Christianity in its services.^[155]

In less than a year of existence, QAnon became significantly recognized by the general population. According to an August 2018 Qualtrics poll for The Washington Post, 58% of Floridians were familiar enough with QAnon to have an opinion about it. Of those who had an opinion, most were unfavorable. The average score on the feeling thermometer was just above 20, a very negative rating, and about half of what other political figures enjoy.^{[103][156]} Positive feelings toward QAnon were found to be strongly correlated with being susceptible to conspiracy thinking.^[156]

According to a March 2020 Pew survey, 76% of Americans said they had never heard of QAnon, 20% had heard "a little about it", and 3% said they had heard "a lot".^{[157][158]} A September 2020 Pew survey of the 47% of respondents who said they had heard of QAnon found that 41% of Republicans and those who lean Republican believed QAnon is good for the country, while 7% of Democrats and those who lean Democratic believed that.^[159]

An October 2020 Yahoo-YouGov poll found that even if they had not heard of QAnon, a majority of Republicans and Trump supporters believed top Democrats were engaged in sex-trafficking rings and more than half of Trump supporters believed he was working to dismantle the rings.^[160]

Role of antisemitism

The Washington Post and The Forward magazine have called QAnon's targeting of Jewish figures like George Soros and the Rothschilds "striking anti-Semitic elements" and "garden-variety nonsense with racist and anti-Semitic undertones".^{[13][161]} A Jewish Telegraphic Agency article in August 2018 asserted: "Some of QAnon's archetypical elements – including secret elites and kidnapped children, among others – are reflective of historical and ongoing anti-Semitic conspiracy theories."^[162]

The Anti-Defamation League (ADL) reported that while "the vast majority of QAnon-inspired conspiracy theories have nothing to do with anti-Semitism", "an impressionistic review" of QAnon tweets about Israel, Jews, Zionists, the Rothschilds, and Soros "revealed some troubling examples" of antisemitism.^[163]

An antisemitic canard published in 1903 called The Protocols of the Elders of Zion has intersected with QAnon conspiracy theories, with Republican QAnon fan Mary Ann Mendoza retweeting a Twitter thread about the Rothschild family, Satanic High Priestesses, and American presidents saying, "The Protocols Of The Elders Of Zion is not a fabrication. And, it certainly is not anti-Semitic to point out this fact."^{[164][165]} Mendoza sits on the advisory board of Women for Trump and was scheduled to speak at the 2020 Republican convention until news of her Twitter activity came out;^[166] she later denied knowing the content of the thread, although anti-Semitic references appeared in the first few tweets.^[167] Similarly, Trump has denied knowledge of QAnon except that QAnon fans like him and "love our country".^[168]

By 2020, QAnon followers were advancing the notion that Hollywood elites were engaging in "adrenochrome harvesting", in which adrenalin is extracted from children's blood to produce the psychoactive drug adrenochrome. Adrenochrome harvesting is rooted in antisemitic myths of blood libel.^{[169][170][171]} QAnon believers have also promoted a centuries-old antisemitic trope about an international banking conspiracy orchestrated by the Rothschild family.^[172]

Genocide scholar Gregory Stanton described QAnon as a "Nazi group rebranded", and its theories as a rebranded version of the Protocols of the Elders of Zion.^{[8][173]}

Appeal

Experts have classified QAnon's appeal as comparable to those of religious cults. According to an expert in online conspiracy, Renee DiResta, QAnon's pattern of enticement is similar to that of cults in the pre-Internet era where, as the targeted person was led deeper and deeper into the group's secrets, they become increasingly isolated from friends and family outside the cult.^[174] Online support groups developed for those whose loved ones were drawn into QAnon, notably the subreddit r/QAnonCasualties, which grew from 3,500 participants in June 2020 to 28,000 by October.^[175] In the Internet age, QAnon virtual communities have little "real world" connection with each other, but online they can number in the tens of thousands.^[174] Rachel Bernstein, an expert on cults who specializes in recovery therapy, said, "What a movement such as QAnon has going for it, and why it will catch on like wildfire, is that it makes people feel connected to something important that other people don't yet know about. ... All cults will provide this feeling of being special." There is no self-correction process within the group, since the self-reinforcing true believers are immune to correction, fact-checking, or counter-speech, which is drowned out by the cult's groupthink.^[174] QAnon's cultish quality has led to its characterization as a possible emerging religious movement.^{[43][104][105]} Part of its appeal is its gamelike quality, in which followers attempt to solve riddles presented in Qdrops by connecting them to Trump speeches and tweets and other sources.^[31] Some followers use a "Q clock" consisting of a wheel of concentric dials to decode clues based on the timing of Qdrops and Trump's tweets.^[43]

Travis View, a researcher who studies QAnon, says that it is as addictive as a video game, and offers the "player" the appealing possibility of being involved in something of world-historical importance. According to View, "You can sit at your computer and search for information and then post about what you find, and Q basically promises that through this process, you are going to radically change the country, institute this incredible, almost bloodless revolution, and then be part of this historical movement that will be written about for generations." View compares this to mundane political involvement in which one's efforts might help to get a state legislator elected. QAnon, says View, competes not in the marketplace of ideas, but in the marketplace of realities.^[176]

Conspiracy theories have tended to make headway in times of societal uncertainty, and help people to feel more in control in the face of disturbing information.^[177] Survey data showed in late 2020 that a quarter of those who knew about QAnon think there's some truth to it.^[177] In a conspiracy theory environment, primary institutions of society that once served as trusted impartial authorities are easily rejected if they contradict the conspiracy's beliefs, making it very difficult to counter a believer's thinking.^[177]

Disillusionment

Some QAnon believers realize that they have been isolated from loved ones, and suffer loneliness. This leads some to abandon the beliefs, but for others reinforces the benefits of belonging to the cult. View says:

People in the QAnon community often talk about alienation from family and friends. ... Though they typically talk about how Q frayed their relationships on private Facebook groups. But they think these issues are temporary and primarily the fault of others. They often comfort themselves by imagining that there will be a moment of vindication sometime in the near future which will prove their beliefs right. They imagine that after this happens, not only will their relationships be restored, but people will turn to them as leaders who understand what's going on better than the rest of us.^[178]

Jake Angeli, a prominent proponent of QAnon, carrying a "Q Sent Me" placard

Some followers break away when they recognize the theories are inconsistent, or see that some elements are aimed at driving donations from sources such as evangelical or conservative Christians. Some watch Q-debunking videos; one former believer said that the videos "saved" her.^[178]

Disillusionment can also come from the failure of the theories' predictions. Q predicted Republican success in the 2018 US midterm elections and claimed that Attorney General Jeff Sessions was involved in secret work for Trump, with apparent tensions between them a cover. When Democrats made significant gains and Trump fired Sessions, there was disillusionment among many in the Q community.^{[179][180]} Further disillusionment came when a predicted December 5 mass arrest and imprisonment in Guantanamo Bay detention camp of Trump's enemies did not occur, nor did the dismissal of charges against Trump's former national security advisor Michael Flynn. For some, these failures began the process of separation from the QAnon cult, while others urged direct action in the form of an insurrection against the government. Such a response to a failed prophecy is not unusual: apocalyptic cults such as Heaven's Gate, the People's Temple, the Manson Family, and Aum Shinrikyo resorted to mass suicide or mass murder when their expectations for revelations or the fulfillment of their prophecies did not materialize. Psychologist Robert Lifton calls it "forcing the end". This phenomenon is being seen among some QAnon believers.^[178] View echoes the concern that disillusioned QAnon believers might take matters into their own hands^[107] as Pizzagate believer Edgar Maddison Welch did in 2016, Matthew Phillip Wright did at Hoover Dam in 2018, and Anthony Comello did in 2019, when he murdered Mafia boss Frank Cali, believing himself to be under Trump's protection.

QAnon follower Liz Crokin, who in 2018 asserted that John F. Kennedy Jr. faked his death and is now Q,^[181] said in February 2019 that she was losing patience in Trump to arrest the supposed members of the child sex ring, suggesting that the time was approaching for "vigilante justice".^[182] Other followers have adopted the Kennedy conspiracy theory, asserting that a Pittsburgh man named Vincent Fusca is Kennedy in disguise and would be Trump's 2020 running mate. Some attended 2019 Independence Day celebrations in Washington expecting Kennedy to appear.^{[183][184]}

The Sabmyk Network is a network of Telegram channels promoting QAnon that primarily targets QAnon believers who have been disillusioned by Q's predictions' failure to happen.^[185] Set up by controversial German artist Sebastian Bieniek, the network (described as a new religion or cult) shares mainline QAnon beliefs^[186] but also believes in an idiosyncratic mythology surrounding a leader-prophet, Sabmyk, who will lead humanity's "awakening".^[185] The network has tried to link Trump to Sabmyk.^[186]

Terrorism threat

FBI domestic terrorism assessment

A May 30, 2019, FBI "Intelligence Bulletin" memo from the Phoenix Field Office identified QAnon-driven extremists as a domestic terrorism threat. The document cited a number of arrests related to QAnon, some of which had not been publicized before.^[187] According to the memo, "This is the first FBI product examining the threat from conspiracy theory-driven domestic extremists and provides a baseline for future intelligence products. ... The FBI assesses these conspiracy theories very likely will emerge, spread, and evolve in the modern information marketplace, occasionally driving both groups and individual extremists to carry out criminal or violent acts."^{[187][188]}

According to FBI's counterterrorism director Michael G. McGarrity's testimony before Congress in May, the FBI divides domestic terrorism threats into four primary categories, "racially motivated violent extremism, anti-government/anti-authority extremism, animal rights/environmental extremism, and abortion extremism", which includes both pro-choice and anti-abortion extremists. The fringe conspiracy theory threat is closely related to the anti-government/anti-authority subject area.^{[187][188]}

An under-reported QAnon-related incident was mentioned in the memo: the December 19, 2018, arrest of a California man whose car contained bomb-making materials he intended to use to "blow up a satanic temple monument" in the Springfield, Illinois, Capitol rotunda to "make Americans aware of Pizzagate and the New World Order, who were dismantling society". According to the same source, the FBI said another factor driving the intensity of this threat is "the uncovering of real conspiracies or cover-ups involving illegal, harmful, or unconstitutional activities by government officials or leading political figures".^[187]

QAnon followers' reactions included the suggestion the memo was fake, calling for the firing of FBI director Christopher A. Wray for working against Trump, and the idea that the memo was actually a "wink-and-a-nod" way of attracting attention to QAnon and tricking the media into asking Trump about it.^[189] At a Trump reelection rally several hours after the memo's existence became known, WalkAway campaign founder Brandon Straka, a gay man who claims to have been a liberal Democrat but is now a Trump supporter, addressed the crowd using one of QAnon's primary rallying cries, "Where we go one, we go all." A videographer found numerous QAnon supporters in the crowd, identified by their QAnon shirts showing large "Q"'s or "WWG1WGA".^[39]

Role in U.S. elections and government

2019 congressional candidates

Two people who declared themselves as Republican congressional candidates in 2019 expressed interest in QAnon theories. Matthew Lusk, a Florida candidate, told The Daily Beast he was not a "brainwashed cult member", saying QAnon theories are a "legitimate something" and constitute a "very articulate screening of past events, a very articulate screening of present conditions, and a somewhat prophetic divination of where the political and geopolitical ball will be bouncing next".^[190] Danielle Stella, running as a Republican to unseat Ilhan Omar in Minnesota, wore a "Q" necklace in a photo she tweeted^[191] and twice used the hashtag #WWG1WGA, a reference to the QAnon motto "where we go one, we go all". Her Twitter account "liked" responses from QAnon believers who acknowledged the necklace, and the account follows some prominent QAnon believers. A former campaign aide asserted that Stella was merely posing as a QAnon believer to attract voter support.^{[192][193]}

Incidents related to Trump's 2020 campaign

QAnon supporters claim that they were asked to cover up their "Q" identifiers and other QAnon-related symbols at a Trump campaign rally in Manchester, New Hampshire, on August 15, 2019. Although one person who was asked to turn his "Q" shirt inside out when he entered the rally identified the person who asked him to do so as a Secret Service agent, the agency denied this, saying in an email to The Washington Post, "The U.S. Secret Service did not request, or require, attendees to change their clothing at an event in New Hampshire." QAnon supporters also claim that their visibility at Trump rallies has been suppressed for months.^[194]

Man wearing "We Are Q" shirt at Trump rally in New Hampshire

In August 2019, a video posted online by "Women for Trump" late in July was reported to include "Q"s on two campaign signs. The first sign, which said "Make America Great Again", had a "Q" taped to it in the corner. The other side, "Women for Trump" had the "O"s in "Women" and "for" pasted over with "Q"s. The images which included the altered signs were clearly taken at a Trump campaign rally, which have increasingly attracted adherents of the QAnon conspiracy theory, so it is unknown if those particular signs were selected for inclusion deliberately or not.^[195] The video has since been taken down.^[196]

In July 2020, Business Insider reported that according to Media Matters for America, a left-leaning media monitoring group, Trump's reelection campaign relied on a network of QAnon-related accounts to spread disinformation and propaganda on social media, especially Twitter. An analysis of 380,000 tweets sent between early April and the end of May 2020, and another of the most popular words used by 1,000 accounts, showed that the QAnon network "is playing a key role in generating and spreading Trump's propaganda".^[197]

The Washington Post reported at the beginning of August 2020 that adverts for Trump's campaign had shown images of supporters with prominent QAnon merchandise. Thousands of comments on YouTube saw these details as signs of victory.^[106]

The New York Times wrote that QAnon adherents had been shaken by Trump's defeat in the 2020 presidential elections, following years of reassurance that Trump would win by a landslide. Some followers repeated baseless claims that there had been widespread voter fraud and that Trump had actually been reelected, while others began to accept Biden's victory.^[147] On the day of Biden's inauguration, participants on 8kun differed in their views on the future of their cause. Ron Watkins, a former 8kun administrator and major figure in spreading QAnon,^[198] suggested it was time to "go back to our lives as best we are able" and "as we enter into the next administration please remember all the friends and happy memories we made together over the past few years." A board moderator deleted the

Q message history and was threatened with death after the content was restored by others. Some suggested that Biden was "part of the plan".^[59] Many became disillusioned; the alt-right, white nationalists and neo-Nazis thereafter aimed to recruit such people.^{[110][199][200]}

In February 2021, Media Matters published analysis finding that QAnon adherents were praising the recent 2021 Myanmar coup d'état, in which the military overthrew the democratically elected government, and advocating a similar coup in the United States.^[201] In May 2021, Michael Flynn addressed a Dallas QAnon conference when an audience member said, "I want to know why what happened in Myanmar can't happen here." Flynn responded, "No reason. I mean, it should happen here. No reason. That's right." After his words were reported, Flynn asserted he had "not at any time called for any action of that sort" and accused the press of "boldface fabrication based on twisted reporting".^{[202][203]} He had suggested in December 2020 that Trump should suspend the Constitution, silence the press, and hold a new election under military authority.^[204]

Sidney Powell appeared at the same conference, falsely asserting that Trump "can simply be reinstated, that a new Inauguration Day is set", eliciting cheers from the crowd.^[205] Two days after Powell's remarks, Maggie Haberman of The New York Times tweeted that Trump "has been telling a number of people he's in contact with that he expects he will get reinstated by August."^{[206][207]}

Other 2020 electoral candidates and members of Congress

Marjorie Taylor Greene, a businesswoman, won an August 2020 runoff to become the GOP nominee in the heavily Republican 14th Congressional District in Georgia. Months into the Trump presidency, she had stated in a video: "There's a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity to take this global cabal of Satan-worshipping pedophiles out, and I think we have the president to do it."^[208] She has made racist and antisemitic statements, which led Republican leaders such as Kevin McCarthy and Steve Scalise to condemn her remarks.^{[209][210]} Trump endorsed her candidacy the day after her nomination, characterizing her as a "future Republican Star" and "a real WINNER!"^{[211][212]}

After Greene won a primary runoff election in Georgia in August, Illinois Republican Representative Adam Kinzinger denounced QAnon, calling it a "fabrication".^[213] Trump campaign staffer Matt Volking responded aggressively to Kinzinger, saying, "he should condemn the Steele Dossier and conspiracy theories promoted by Democrats."^[214] Kinzinger went on to create a political action committee, "Country First," launched just weeks after the January 2021 storming of the Capitol, dedicated to fighting the influence of conspiracy theories within the GOP.^[215]

Jo Rae Perkins, the 2020 Republican Senate candidate in Oregon, tweeted a video on the night of her May primary victory showing her holding a WWG1WGA sticker and stating, "I stand with President Trump. I stand with Q and the team. Thank you Anons, and thank you patriots. And together, we can save our republic." She expressed regret at having later deleted the video on the advice of a political consultant.^{[216][217][218]} The next month she tweeted a video of her taking the "digital soldiers oath" that Q had requested followers to do three days earlier.^{[219][48]}

On June 30, 2020, incumbent Republican U.S. representative Scott Tipton lost a primary for Colorado's 3rd congressional district to Lauren Boebert in an upset. Boebert expressed tentative support for QAnon in an interview, but after winning the primary, attempted to distance herself from those statements, saying "I'm not a follower."^{[220][221]} In July 2020, Business Insider reported, "At least 10 GOP Congressional candidates have signaled their support for the QAnon movement."^[197] Boebert was elected to Congress the following November.^[222]

In September 2020, political newcomer Lauren Witzke defeated a party-endorsed candidate to become the Republican nominee for U.S. Senate in Delaware. Witzke has promoted QAnon on Twitter and been photographed wearing a Q t-shirt, although during the campaign she distanced herself from the movement. She has also called herself a "flat-earther" and in September called her Democratic opponent Chris Coons a "Christian-hating baby-killer", adding "I'm coming for your seat, Satanist."^{[223][224]} In the November general election, Coons defeated Witzke, 59–38%.^[225]

Angela Stanton-King, a Trump-backed candidate running for the Georgia House seat of the late congressman John Lewis, posted on Twitter that Black Lives Matter is "a major cover up for PEDOPHILIA and HUMAN TRAFFICKING" and "THE STORM IS HERE". Stanton-King told a reporter that her posts did not relate to QAnon, asserting, "It was raining that day." Weather records did not show precipitation in her area on the day of the post.^[226]

Texas Republican Party slogan

In August 2020, The New York Times suggested that the Texas Republican Party had chosen a new slogan taken directly from QAnon. Texas Republican Party officials denied this and claimed that the slogan ("We Are the Storm") was inspired by a biblical passage and has no connection to QAnon.^{[227][228]}

Congressional resolution

On August 25, 2020, two members of the U.S. House of Representatives, Democrat Tom Malinowski and Republican Denver Riggleman, introduced a bipartisan simple resolution (H. Res. 1154) condemning QAnon and rejecting its conspiracy theories.^{[229][230]} Malinowski said the resolution's aim was to formally repudiate "this dangerous, anti-Semitic, conspiracy-mongering cult that the FBI says is radicalizing Americans to violence".^[229] The resolution also urged the FBI and other law enforcement and homeland security agencies "to continue to strengthen their focus on preventing violence, threats, harassment, and other criminal activity by extremists motivated by fringe political conspiracy theories" and encouraged the U.S. Intelligence Community "to uncover any foreign support, assistance, or online amplification QAnon receives, as well as any QAnon affiliations, coordination, and contacts with foreign extremist organizations or groups espousing violence".^[230]

In September 2020, Malinowski received death threats from QAnon followers after he was falsely accused of wanting to protect sexual predators. The threats were prompted by a National Republican Congressional Committee (NRCC) campaign advertisement that falsely claimed that Malinowski worked against plans to increase registration for sex offenders in a 2006 crime bill while he was working as a lobbyist for Human Rights Watch.^{[231][232][233]}

The resolution passed on October 2, 2020, in a 371–18 vote.^{[230][231]} Seventeen Republicans (including Steve King, Paul A. Gosar, and Daniel Webster) and one independent (Justin Amash) voted no; Republican Andy Harris voted "present".^{[230][231][234]} The resolution does not have the force of law.^[234] Before the vote, Malinowski told Slate magazine, referencing the NRCC ad: "I don't want to see any Republicans voting against fire on the House floor this week and then continuing to play with fire next week by running these kinds of ads against Democratic candidates."^[235]

Comments by Trump and connected individuals

Donald Trump

According to analysis by Media Matters, as of August 20, 2020, Trump had amplified QAnon messaging at least 216 times by retweeting or mentioning 129 QAnon-affiliated Twitter accounts, sometimes multiple times a day.^{[41][42]} On November 26, 2017, Trump retweeted a post by Twitter account @MAGAPILL, a self-styled "official President Donald Trump accomplishment list" and major QAnon proponent, less than a month after QAnon first started posting.^[103] On September 9, 2019, Trump retweeted a video from the QAnon-promoting Twitter account "The Dirty Truth". The video featured future director of national intelligence John Ratcliffe criticizing former FBI director James Comey.^[236] On August 24, 2018, Trump hosted William "Lionel" Lebron, a leading QAnon promoter, in the Oval Office for a photo op.^{[237][238][239]} Shortly after Christmas 2019, Trump retweeted over a dozen QAnon followers.^[240]

On August 19, 2020, Trump was asked about QAnon during a press conference; he replied: "I don't know much about the movement, other than I understand they like me very much, which I appreciate. But I don't know much about the movement."^[241] An FBI Field Office in Phoenix has called QAnon a potential domestic terror threat, but Trump called QAnon adherents "people who love our country".^{[242][241]} When a reporter asked Trump if he could support a notion that suggests he "is secretly saving the world from this satanic cult of pedophiles and cannibals", he responded: "Well, I haven't heard that, but is that supposed to be a bad thing or a good thing?" Presidential candidate Joe Biden responded that Trump was aiming to "legitimize a conspiracy theory that the FBI has identified as a domestic terrorism threat".^{[243][2]}

On October 15, 2020, when given the opportunity to denounce QAnon at a "town hall"-style campaign event, Trump refused to do so and instead pointed out that QAnon opposes pedophilia.^[244] He said he knew nothing else about QAnon and told his questioner, Savannah Guthrie of NBC News, that no one can know whether the premise of QAnon's conspiracy theory is true. "They believe it is a satanic cult run by the deep state," Guthrie informed him. When Guthrie asserted that the conspiracy was not true, Trump responded, "No, I don't know that. And neither do you know that."^[245]

Mike Pence

On August 21, 2020, Vice President Mike Pence said that he "doesn't know anything about" QAnon except that it is a conspiracy theory that he dismisses "out of hand".^[247] When asked whether he would acknowledge the administration's role in "giving oxygen" to the belief, Pence shook his head and said, "Give me a break."^[247] In August 2020, Pence said that the problem with the press asking about QAnon and about anyone's apparent efforts to encourage it is that the press is asking the wrong questions ("chasing shiny objects").^[248]

Michael Flynn

In August 2019, a "Digital Soldiers Conference" was announced for the following month in Atlanta. The stated purpose was to prepare "patriotic social media warriors" for a coming "digital civil war". The announcement for the event prominently displayed a Q spelled in stars on the blue field of an American flag. Scheduled speakers for the event included former Trump aides Michael Flynn and George Papadopoulos, as well as Gina Loudon, a Trump friend and member of his campaign media advisory board, singer Joy Villa, and Bill Mitchell, a radio host and ardent Trump supporter.^{[143][249]} The host of the event, Rich Granville, is CEO of Yippy, Inc., a firm that markets the Yippy search engine, which it claims is free of censorship of conservative views, characterizing it as an "intelligence enterprise" with high-level White House connections. He told a reporter, "you don't know who you're fucking with" and denied the Q flag was a reference to QAnon, though he had had numerous references to QAnon on his Twitter account.^[250]

On July 4, 2020, Michael Flynn (the former lieutenant general, head of the Defense Intelligence Agency, and National Security Advisor to Trump) posted to his Twitter account a video of himself leading a small group in an oath with the QAnon motto, "Where we go one, we go all."^[251] Analysts say the oath is part of QAnon's attempt to organize "digital soldiers" for the political and social apocalypse they see coming. Flynn's apparent declaration of allegiance to QAnon makes him the most prominent former government official to endorse the conspiracy theory, although Trump has retweeted or mentioned at least 152 QAnon-affiliated Twitter accounts at least 265 times, according to analysis conducted by Media Matters.^{[252][41]}

Flynn's attorney Sidney Powell denied the oath related to QAnon, saying it was merely a statement engraved on a bell on John F. Kennedy's sailboat. But during preceding days numerous QAnon followers had taken the same so-called "digital soldier oath" on Twitter, using the same #TakeTheOath hashtag Flynn did.^{[253][254]}

In March 2021, Flynn's brother, retired Lieutenant General Jack Flynn, and his wife filed a $75 million defamation suit against CNN, alleging the network had falsely accused them of being QAnon followers. They asserted that the video Flynn had posted in July 2020, and which CNN had broadcast, depicted their pledging an oath to the Constitution, rather than to QAnon. The suit claimed Flynn alone had recited the QAnon motto, "where we go one, we go all", though the video showed all the other participants had done so. The plaintiffs also said they "are not followers or supporters of any extremist or terrorist groups, including QAnon".^{[255][256][252]}

Other Trump associates

On three occasions during 2019 and 2020, Trump's deputy chief of staff and social media director Dan Scavino tweeted ticking-clock memes QAnon believers use to signify the countdown until the "Storm".^[227] Trump's personal attorney, Rudy Giuliani, has also occasionally retweeted posts with the #QAnon hashtag and of the limited number of accounts he follows (224 as of October 2019) many are QAnon advocates.^{[42][257]} Eric Trump, in a summer 2020 tweet (later deleted), promoted his father's rally in Tulsa with an image of a large "Q" and the text "Where we go one, we go all."^[106]

Reactions

U.S. vice president Mike Pence with members of the SWAT team of Broward County, Florida, on November 30, 2018; the man on the left of the image is displaying a red and black "Q" patch used by believers of the QAnon conspiracy theory. The photo was tweeted, removed, and then replaced in Pence's feed.

Detail from the photo showing the QAnon patch. The black-and-white patch to the left has been reported to be that of the SWAT team. Regulations forbid wearing either patch, and the deputy was reprimanded and removed from the SWAT team as a result.^[246]

On December 28, 2017, the Russian television network RT aired a segment discussing "QAnon revelations", calling the anonymous poster a "secret intelligence operative inside the Trump administration known by QAnon".^[72] Although Russia was not involved in QAnon's origins, Russian-backed social media accounts propagated early QAnon claims as early as November or December 2017.^[17] Russian government-funded Russian state media such as RT and Sputnik have been amplifying the conspiracy theory since 2019, citing QAnon as evidence that the United States is riven by internal strife and division.^{[14][21]} In 2021, a report from the Soufan Center, a research group focused on national security, found that one-fifth of 166,820 QAnon posts in the US between January 2020 and February 2021 originated in foreign countries, primarily Russia and China.^{[258][259]}

On March 13, 2018, Cheryl Sullenger, the vice president of the anti-abortion group Operation Rescue, called QAnon a "small group of insiders close to President Donald J. Trump" and called their posts the "highest level of intelligence to ever be dropped publicly in our known history".^{[260][261]} On March 15, Kyiv-based Rabochaya Gazeta, the official newspaper of the Communist Party of Ukraine, published an article calling QAnon a "military intelligence group".^[262] On March 31, U.S. actress Roseanne Barr appeared to promote QAnon, which was subsequently covered by CNN, The Washington Post, and The New York Times.^{[263][264][265][266]}

On June 28, 2018, a Time magazine article listed Q among the 25 Most Influential People on the Internet in 2018. Counting more than 130,000 related discussion videos on YouTube, Time cited the wide range of the conspiracy theory and its more prominent followers and news coverage.^[267] On July 4, the Hillsborough County Republican Party shared on its official Facebook and Twitter accounts a YouTube video on QAnon, calling them a "mysterious anonymous inside leaker of deep state activities and counter activities by President Trump". The posts were soon deleted.^{[103][268]}

On August 1, 2018, following the previous day's large presence of QAnon supporters at President Trump's Tampa, Florida rally for the mid-term elections,^{[13][269]} MSNBC news anchors Hallie Jackson, Brian Williams, and Chris Hayes dedicated a portion of their respective television programs to the conspiracy theory.^{[270][271][272]} PBS NewsHour also ran a segment on QAnon the next day.^[273] On August 2, Washington Post editorial writer Molly Roberts wrote, "'The storm' QAnon truthers predict will never strike because the conspiracy that obsesses them doesn't exist. But while they wait for it, they'll try to whip up the winds, and the rest of us will struggle to find shelter."^[274] On August 4, former White House Press Secretary Sean Spicer was asked to comment on QAnon in his "ask me anything" session on the /r/The Donald subreddit. In response to the question "Is Q legit?" Spicer answered "No."^[275]

Reaction of online platforms

Publishing of personal information

On March 14, 2018, Reddit banned one of its communities discussing QAnon, /r/CBTS_Stream, for "encouraging or inciting violence and posting personal and confidential information".^[276] After that, some followers moved to Discord.^[277] Several other communities were formed for discussion of QAnon, leading to further bans on September 12, 2018, in response to these communities "inciting violence, harassment, and the dissemination of personal information", which led to thousands of adherents regrouping on Voat,^[278] a Switzerland-based Reddit clone that has been described as a hub for the alt-right.^{[279][280]}

QDrops app

QDrops, an app that promoted the conspiracy theory, was published on the Apple App Store and Google Play.^[281] It became the most popular paid app in Apple's online store's the "entertainment" section in April 2018, and the tenth-most popular paid app overall. It was published by Tiger Team Inc., a North Carolina couple, Richard and Adalita Brown.^{[282][283][284]} On July 15, 2018, Apple pulled the app after an inquiry from NBC News.^[285]

In mid-May 2020, Google removed three other apps – QMAP, Q Alerts! and Q Alerts LITE – from the Android app store for violating terms.^{[286][287]}

Removal of related content

In early 2019, Twitter removed accounts suspected of being connected to the Russian Internet Research Agency that had disseminated a high volume of tweets related to #QAnon that also used the #WWG1WGA slogan.^{[14][16]}

On May 5, 2020, Facebook announced its removal of five pages, twenty accounts, and six groups linked to "individuals associated with the QAnon network" as part of an investigation into "suspected coordinated inauthentic behavior" ahead of the 2020 United States election.^{[288][289]} On August 19, Facebook expanded its Dangerous Individuals and Organizations policy to address "growing movements that, while not directly organizing violence, have celebrated violent acts, shown that they have weapons and suggest they will use them, or have individual followers with patterns of violent behavior". As a result of this increased vigilance, Facebook reported having already "removed over 790 groups, 100 Pages and 1,500 ads tied to QAnon from Facebook, blocked over 300 hashtags across Facebook and Instagram, and additionally imposed restrictions on over 1,950 Groups and 440 Pages on Facebook and over 10,000 accounts on Instagram".^{[14][290][291][292]} In the first month after its August announcement, Facebook said it deleted 1,500 QAnon groups; such groups by then had four million followers. On October 6, 2020, Facebook said it would immediately begin removing "any Facebook Pages, Groups and Instagram accounts representing QAnon, even if they contain no violent content". The company said it would immediately ban any group representing QAnon.^{[293][294][295]}

On July 21, 2020, Twitter announced it was banning more than seven thousand accounts in connection with QAnon for coordinated amplification of fake news and conspiracy theories. In a press release, Twitter said, "We've been clear that we will take strong enforcement action on behavior that has the potential to lead to offline harm. In line with this approach, this week we are taking further action on so-called 'QAnon' activity across the service." It also said that the actions may apply to over 150,000 accounts.^{[296][297]}

Facebook banned all QAnon groups and pages on October 6, 2020. That day, QAnon followers speculated that the action was part of a complex Trump administration strategy to begin arresting its enemies, or that Facebook was attempting to silence news of this occurring; neither is true. Some followers speculated that a Justice Department "national security" news conference scheduled for the next day would relate to charges against Democrats, including Hillary Clinton. The Justice Department actually announced the investigation and arrest of Islamic State members.^[298]

On October 7, 2020, it was announced that Etsy would remove all QAnon-related merchandise from its online marketplace.^[299]

In an October 12, 2020 interview with CNN, YouTube CEO Susan Wojcicki said much QAnon material was "borderline content" that did not explicitly break its rules, but that changes in the site's methodology for recommendations had reduced views of QAnon-related content by 80%.^[300] Three days later, YouTube announced that it had modified its hate and harassment policies to bar "content that targets an individual or group with conspiracy theories that have been used to justify real-world violence", such as QAnon and Pizzagate.^{[301][302]} It would still allow content discussing QAnon if it did not target individuals.^[303]

The hashtags associated with QAnon have since been banned by numerous social networks including Facebook, Twitter, TikTok, and Instagram.

Efforts to defuse QAnon

Suggestions for making progress responding to QAnon and reducing its impact on society have included actions for individuals on social media and the social media platform companies;^[304] some social media forums, such as the subreddits r/QAnonCasualties and r/ReQovery, aim to assist either former believers and supporters of QAnon conspiracies or those whose family members engaged in the conspiracy.^[177] An online game has been developed that helps players understand how misinformation spreads, in part due to research showing that people who understand those mechanisms are less likely to be hooked themselves, although Go Viral! was developed specifically for COVID-19 misinformation.^{[177][305]}

Accusations of being a psyop

In January 2021, after the storming of the Capitol, many prominent conservatives, such as Steve Bannon and Bill Still, began to denounce QAnon, accusing it of being a "psyop" created by U.S. Intelligence or the FBI.^{[306][307]}

Incidents

Tucson cement plant incident

In May 2018, Michael Lewis Arthur Meyer livestreamed a Facebook video from the site of a Tucson cement plant, asserting, "This is a child sex trafficking camp that no one wants to talk about, that no one wants to do nothing about." The video was viewed 650,000 times over the ensuing week. Tucson police inspected the plant without finding evidence of criminal activity. Meyer then occupied a tower on the property for nine days, until reaching agreement with police to leave. He later returned to the tower in July, whereupon he was arrested for trespassing. Meyer referenced QAnon and the #WWG1WGA hashtag on his Facebook page.^{[308][309][310]}

Hoover Dam incident

On June 15, 2018, Matthew Phillip Wright of Henderson, Nevada, was arrested on terrorism and other charges for driving an armored truck,^[311] containing an AR-15 and handgun, to the Hoover Dam and blocking traffic for 90 minutes.^[312] He said he was on a mission involving QAnon: to demand that the Justice Department "release the OIG report" on the conduct of FBI agents during the investigation into Hillary Clinton's use of a private email server.^{[27][35][313]} Since a copy of the Office of the Inspector General report had been released the day before, the man had been motivated by a Q "drop" which claimed the released version of the report had been heavily modified and that Trump possessed a more damning version but had declined to release it. In video recorded inside his armored truck, Wright expressed disappointment that Trump had not honored a "duty" to "lock certain people up", asking him to "uphold your oath".^{[35][314]}

Wright was found guilty and, on December 17, 2020, sentenced to seven years on a terrorism charge and nine months consecutively for unlawful flight.^[315]

Targeting of Michael Avenatti

On July 29, 2018, Q posted a link to Stormy Daniels's attorney Michael Avenatti's website and photos of his Newport Beach, California, office building, along with the message, "Buckle up!" The anonymous poster then shared the picture of a still unidentified man, appearing to be holding a cellphone in one hand and a long, thin object in the other, standing in the street near Avenatti's office, adding that a message "had been sent". This sparked an investigation by the Newport Beach Police Department. On July 30, Avenatti asked his Twitter followers to contact the Newport Beach Police Department if they "have any details or observed" the man in the picture.^{[316][317][318]}

Matthew Wright's armored vehicle used to block a bridge over the Hoover Dam on the Nevada-Arizona border

Harassment of Jim Acosta

At a Trump rally in Tampa, Florida, on July 31, 2018, Trump supporters exhibited hostile behavior toward CNN chief White House correspondent Jim Acosta. Exponents of QAnon-related theories were at the rally.^[319]

The next day, David Martosko of the Daily Mail asked White House press secretary Sarah Huckabee Sanders whether the White House encouraged the support of "QAnon fringe groups". Sanders denounced "any group that would incite violence against another individual", without specifically responding to the QAnon mention.^[320] Sanders added that Trump "certainly doesn't support groups that would support that type of behavior".^{[321][322]}

Grass Valley Charter School fundraiser

The Blue Marble Jubilee fundraising event at Grass Valley Charter School in Grass Valley, California scheduled for May 11, 2019, was canceled as a precaution after a tweet by former FBI head James Comey on April 27 using the hashtag #FiveJobsIveHad, in which the first letters of the jobs were GVCSF, was interpreted by QAnon followers as a veiled reference to the Grass Valley Charter School Foundation, suggesting that Comey planned to stage a "false flag" terror attack at the event; the hashtag was also interpreted by QAnon adherents as an anagram of "five jihads", and the time stamp on the post was related to the 9/11 attacks. The police and the FBI received warnings, in addition to the school, which decided not to take the risk of Internet vigilantes attending "to guard the place", as a police sergeant put it.^{[323][324]}

Murder of Frank Cali

Anthony Comello of Staten Island, New York, was charged with the March 2019 murder of Gambino crime family underboss Frank Cali. According to his defense attorney, Comello had become obsessed with QAnon theories, believing Cali was a member of a "deep state" and was convinced he "was enjoying the protection of President Trump himself" to place Cali under citizen's arrest. Confronting Cali outside his Staten Island home, Comello allegedly shot Cali ten times. At his first court appearance, Comello displayed QAnon symbols and phrases and "MAGA forever" scrawled on his hand in pen.^{[325][326]} Comello had also posted material on Instagram praising Fox News personalities such as Sean Hannity, Tucker Carlson and Jeanine Pirro.^[327]

Kidnapping incidents

In December 2019, Cynthia Abcug was arrested and charged in Colorado with conspiracy to commit second-degree kidnapping of one of her children who had been removed from her custody. Her other daughter reported to police that Abcug had been collaborating with an armed male who was "definitely part of this group QAnon", that her mother had gone to QAnon meetings and believed that the child had been taken by "evil Satan worshippers" and "pedophiles".^[328] Abcug pleaded not guilty to the charge in September 2020 and was tried in February 2021.^[329]

On March 20, 2020, Neely Blanchard was arrested and charged with kidnapping and custodial interference after taking her two daughters who had been in the sole legal custody of their grandmother. Blanchard had made multiple social media posts promoting QAnon including memes and pictures of her wearing QAnon shirts at Trump rallies. She also has taken actions connected with the sovereign citizen movement.^[330]

Tintagel flag

In January 2020, John Mappin (also affiliated with Turning Point UK) began to fly a Q flag at the Camelot Castle hotel near to Tintagel Castle in England.^[331] Advocacy group Hope not Hate said, "Mappin is an eccentric figure, considered outlandish even by his fringe rightwing peers. This childish ploy is a weak attempt at getting attention for himself and his marginal Turning Point UK organisation, and is better off being ignored."^[332]

QAnon flag flown at the Camelot Castle hotel near to Tintagel Castle

Jessica Prim arrest

In April 2020, Jessica Prim was arrested carrying several knives after live-streaming her attempt to "take out" presidential nominee Joe Biden. Prim was arrested in New York City on a pier where she appeared to have been trying to get to the U.S. Navy Hospital Ship Comfort. QAnon claimed the ship was used by a cabal of pedophiles. During her arrest, Prim was reportedly shown crying and asking police, "Have you guys heard about the kids?"^[333]

Before her arrest, Prim posted on Facebook that Hillary Clinton and Biden "need to be taken out" and that "Hillary Clinton and her assistant, Joe Biden and Tony Podesta need to be taken out in the name of Babylon! ... I can't be set free without them gone. Wake me up!!!!!"^[333]

Prim's Facebook page was filled with references to QAnon. She encouraged her Facebook followers to check out QAnon "clues". In a video posted just hours before her arrest, Prim ranted about a video that she believed depicted Hillary Clinton and an aide murdering a child.^{[333][334]}

Misinformation on the 2020 Western United States wildfire season

As wildfires spread across large parts of the Western U.S. in September 2020, false rumors spread on social media that antifa activists were setting fires and preparing to loot property that was being evacuated. Some residents refused to evacuate based on the rumors, choosing to defend their homes from the supposed invasion. Authorities pleaded with residents to ignore the false rumors.^[335] A firefighters' union in Washington state described Facebook as "an absolute cesspool of misinformation" on the topic. QAnon followers participated in the misinformation, with one false claim that six antifa activists had been arrested for setting fires amplified by Q specifically.^{[336][337]} Days earlier, Trump and Attorney General Bill Barr had amplified false social media rumors that planes and buses full of antifa activists were preparing to invade communities, allegedly funded by George Soros.^{[338][339][340][341][342][343]}

2020 presidential election

Near Philadelphia's Convention Center, where mail-in ballots were being counted, two men from Virginia were taken into custody based on a tip of a threat of an attack with AR-15s. Bumper stickers on their truck referenced QAnon.^{[344][345]}

As baseless allegations of voting fraud spread following Trump's defeat in the election, QAnon followers advanced a hoax that voting machines made by Dominion Voting Systems had deleted millions of Trump votes. The hoax was repeated on the far-right cable news outlet One America News Network, and Trump tweeted about it.^{[346][347]} The Cybersecurity and Infrastructure Security Agency announced that the election was the most secure in American history, with "no evidence that any voting system deleted or lost votes, changed votes or was in any way compromised".^[348]

Based on a false interpretation of the District of Columbia Organic Act of 1871, according to which it transformed the federal government into a corporation and rendered illegitimate every president elected thereafter, some QAnon adherents believed that the 18th president (Ulysses S. Grant, who was in office 1869–1877) was the last legitimate president. They believed that Trump would be sworn in as the 19th president on March 4, 2021, the original inauguration date until the Twentieth Amendment changed it to January 20 in 1933, and that he would restore the federal government.^[349] Based on intelligence that an identified but undisclosed militia group might attempt an attack on the Capitol on that date, the U.S. Capitol Police issued an alert on March 3. House leadership subsequently rescheduled a March 4 vote to the previous night to allow lawmakers to leave town.^[350] However, Newsweek reported a recent skepticism towards the March 4 idea developing among QAnon adherents, who rescheduled the purported date of Trump's re-inauguration to March 20, the 167th anniversary of the founding of the Republican Party.^[351]

Storming of the U.S. Capitol

Ashli Babbitt, a U.S. veteran who was shot by police while storming the United States Capitol building, was described as an adherent of QAnon and had retweeted conspiracy theory attorney L. Lin Wood in the final days of her life.^{[352][353]} Other QAnon-affiliated protesters either wore clothing with Q-related emblems or were identified as QAnon followers from video footage.^{[353][354]} Jake Angeli (QAnon Shaman), the man seen in photos wearing fur, is a QAnon supporter and was arrested on January 9, 2021.^[355] On January 12, Facebook and Twitter announced that they were removing "Stop the Steal" content and suspending 70,000 QAnon-focused accounts, respectively.^[356] On April 19, 2021, the Soufan Center reported that Russia and China had amplified and "weaponized" QAnon stories around the time of the storming of the Capitol "to sow societal discord and even compromise legitimate political processes."^{[357][358]}

Interruption of Ghislaine Maxwell court hearing

On January 19, 2021, a hearing on the unsealing of documents related to a settled Ghislaine Maxwell civil defamation suit with Virginia Roberts Giuffre was interrupted after it was discovered that someone present was unlawfully streaming the proceedings on YouTube. The unauthorized stream reached approximately 14,000 viewers, including a contingent of QAnon supporters, before it was shut off after the judge warned the room.^{[359][360][361]}

A QAnon emblem (upper left) is raised during the 2021 storming of the United States Capitol.

See also

- Apophenia – tendency to mistakenly perceive connections and meaning between unrelated things
- Cult of personality
- List of conspiracy theories
- Moral panic – feeling of fear spread among many people that some evil threatens the well-being of society
- Nostradamus – 16th-century French reputed seer who published cryptic poetic quatrains in Les Prophéties, allowing for subjective interpretations
- Ong's Hat – Internet conspiracy alternate reality game
- Operation Mockingbird – alleged CIA operation to manipulate the media which is occasionally referenced in the QAnon conspiracy theory
- QAnon Anonymous – anti-QAnon investigative podcast
- Satanic Panic – a moral panic in the United States involving allegations of a global Satanic cult that abused children
- Secret decoder ring – promotional items by radio and television programs that tap into a common fascination with secret codes
- John Titor – anonymous Internet personage active 2000–2001 who made several failed predictions
- Trumpism

Explanatory notes

- a. The term originally referred to the anonymous poster "Q", but some media outlets have started to use the compound "QAnon" as a collective term for either the conspiracy theory or the community driving and discussing it.

References

1.
 - Guglielmi, Giorgia (October 28, 2020). "The next-generation bots interfering with the US election" (<https://www.nature.com/articles/d41586-020-03034-5>). Nature. 587 (7832): 21. Bibcode:2020Natur.587...21G (<https://ui.adsabs.harvard.edu/abs/2020Natur.587...21G>). doi:10.1038/d41586-020-03034-5 (<https://doi.org/10.1038%2Fd41586-020-03034-5>). PMID 33116324 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/33116324>). Retrieved October 29, 2020.
 - Neiwert, David (January 17, 2018). "Conspiracy meta-theory 'The Storm' pushes the 'alternative' envelope yet again" (<https://www.splcenter.org/hatewatch/2018/01/17/conspiracy-meta-theory-storm-pushes-alternative-envelope-yet-again>). Southern Poverty Law Center. Retrieved October 14, 2018.

- Collins, Ben; Zadrozny, Brandy (August 10, 2018). "The far right is struggling to contain Qanon after giving it life" (<https://www.nbcnews.com/tech/tech-news/far-right-struggling-contain-qanon-after-giving-it-life-n899741>). NBC News. Retrieved April 19, 2021.
 - Rosenberg, Eli (November 30, 2018). "Pence shares picture of himself meeting a SWAT officer with a QAnon conspiracy patch" (<https://www.washingtonpost.com/nation/2018/12/01/pence-shares-picture-him-meeting-swat-officer-wearing-qanon-conspiracy-patch/>). The Washington Post. Retrieved April 19, 2021.
 - Iannelli, Jerry (November 30, 2018). "South Florida Cop Wore "QAnon" Conspiracy Patch With Mike Pence" (<https://www.miaminewtimes.com/news/broward-south-florida-cop-wore-qanon-patch-with-mike-pence-10938571>). Miami New Times. Retrieved April 19, 2021.
 - Moore, McKenna (August 1, 2018). "What You Need to Know About Far-Right Conspiracy QAnon" (<https://fortune.com/2018/08/01/qanon-conspiracy-trump-tampa-rally/>). Fortune. Retrieved April 19, 2021.
 - Roose, Kevin (July 10, 2019). "Trump Rolls Out the Red Carpet for Right-Wing Social Media Trolls" (<https://www.nytimes.com/2019/07/10/business/trump-social-media-summit.html>). The New York Times. ISSN 0362-4331 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/0362-4331>). Retrieved July 17, 2019.
2. Itkowitz, Colby; Stanley-Becker, Isaac; Rozsa, Lori; Bade, Rachael (August 20, 2020). "Trump praises baseless QAnon conspiracy theory, says he appreciates support of its followers" (https://www.washingtonpost.com/politics/trump-praises-baseless-qanon-conspiracy-theory-says-he-appreciates-support-of-its-followers/2020/08/19/e50f8d46-e25e-11ea-8181-606e603bb1c4_story.html). The Washington Post. Retrieved August 20, 2020.
 3. Kunzelman, Michael; Slevin, Colleen (February 9, 2020). "'QAnon' conspiracy theory creeps into mainstream politics" (<https://apnews.com/article/e230131513bf3df60c76bb1151bc6b7c>). Associated Press. Retrieved April 19, 2021.
 4. "QAnon: The conspiracy theory embraced by Trump, several politicians, and some American moms" (<https://www.vox.com/2020/10/9/21504910/qanon-conspiracy-theory-facebook-ban-trump>). Vox. October 9, 2020. Retrieved April 16, 2021.
 5. Roose, Kevin (August 28, 2020). "What Is QAnon, the Viral Pro-Trump Conspiracy Theory?" (<https://www.nytimes.com/article/what-is-qanon.html>). The New York Times. Retrieved October 4, 2020.
 6. Polantz, Katelyn (January 15, 2021). "US takes back its assertion that Capitol rioters wanted to 'capture and assassinate' officials" (<https://www.cnn.com/2021/01/15/politics/capitol-capture-assassinate-elected-officials/index.html>). CNN. Retrieved January 16, 2021. "Prosecutors accuse Chansley of being a flight risk who can quickly raise money through non-traditional means as 'one of the leaders and mascots of QAnon, a group commonly referred to as a cult (which preaches debunked and fictitious anti-government conspiracy theory)'."
 7. Davies, Dave (January 28, 2021). "Without Their 'Messiah,' QAnon Believers Confront A Post-Trump World" (<https://www.npr.org/2021/01/28/961507953/without-their-messiah-qanon-believers-confront-a-post-trump-world>). Fresh Air. NPR. Retrieved April 19, 2021. "Washington Post national technology reporter Craig Timberg ... tells Fresh Air[,] 'Some researchers think it's a cult ...'"
 8. Stanton, Gregory (September 9, 2020). "QAnon is a Nazi Cult, Rebranded" (<https://www.justsecurity.org/72339/qanon-is-a-nazi-cult-rebranded/>). Just Security. Retrieved April 19, 2021.
 9. Rozsa, Matthew (August 18, 2019). "QAnon is the conspiracy theory that won't die" (<https://www.salon.com/2019/08/18/qanon-is-the-conspiracy-theory-that-wont-die-heres-what-they-believe-and-why-theyre-wrong/>). Salon. Retrieved April 17, 2020.
 10. Spring, Marianna; Wendling, Mike (September 3, 2020). "The link between Covid-19 myths and QAnon" (<https://www.bbc.com/news/blogs-trending-53997203>). BBC News. Retrieved September 3, 2020.
 11. Sommer, Will (July 7, 2018). "What Is QAnon? The Craziest Theory of the Trump Era, Explained" (<https://www.thedailybeast.com/what-is-qanon-the-craziest-theory-of-the-trump-era-explained>). The Daily Beast. Retrieved October 2, 2020.

12. Laviola, Erin (August 1, 2018). "QAnon Conspiracy: 5 Fast Facts You Need to Know" (<https://heavy.com/news/2018/08/qanon-conspiracy-trump/>). Heavy. Retrieved April 19, 2021.
13. Stanley-Becker, Isaac (August 1, 2018). "We are Q!: A deranged conspiracy cult leaps from the Internet to the crowd at Trump's 'MAGA' tour" (<https://www.washingtonpost.com/news/morning-mix/wp/2018/08/01/we-are-q-a-deranged-conspiracy-cult-leaps-from-the-internet-to-the-crowd-at-trumps-maga-tour/>). The Washington Post. Retrieved September 19, 2018.
14. Menn, Joseph (August 24, 2020). "Russian-backed organizations amplifying QAnon conspiracy theories, researchers say" (<https://www.reuters.com/article/uk-usa-election-qanon-russia/russian-backed-organizations-amplifying-qanon-conspiracy-theories-researchers-say-idUKKBN25K137>). Reuters. Retrieved October 4, 2020.
15. Ross, Jamie (November 2, 2020). "Russia-Backed Twitter Accounts Pushed QAnon Theory Right From Its Start, Says Report" (<https://www.thedailybeast.com/russia-backed-twitter-accounts-pushed-qanon-theory-right-from-its-start-says-report>). The Daily Beast. Retrieved January 7, 2021.
16. Collins, Ben; Murphy, Joe (February 2, 2019). "Russian troll accounts purged by Twitter pushed Qanon and other conspiracy theories" (<https://www.nbcnews.com/tech/social-media/russian-troll-accounts-purged-twitter-pushed-qanon-other-conspiracy-theories-n966091>). NBC News. Retrieved October 4, 2020.
17. Menn, Joseph (November 2, 2020). "QAnon received earlier boost from Russian accounts on Twitter, archives show" (<https://www.reuters.com/article/us-usa-election-qanon-cyber-idUSKBN27I18I>). Reuters. Retrieved January 7, 2021.
18. "Congressman Krishnamoorthi Requests Information From DNI Ratcliffe On Russian Use QAnon In Disinformation Efforts" (<https://krishnamoorthi.house.gov/media/press-releases/congressman-krishnamoorthi-requests-information-dni-ratcliffe-russian-use-qanon>). Congressman Raja Krishnamoorthi (Press release). October 19, 2020. Retrieved January 7, 2021.
19. Hernandez, Salvador (August 15, 2018). "Russian Trolls Spread Baseless Conspiracy Theories Like Pizzagate And QAnon After The Election" (<https://www.buzzfeednews.com/article/salvadorhernandez/russian-trolls-spread-baseless-conspiracy-theories-like>). BuzzFeed News. Retrieved January 7, 2021.
20. Multiple sources:^{[14][15][16][17][18][19]}
21. Davis, Julia (September 2, 2020). "Russian Media Turns to QAnon Conspiracies to Help Re-Elect Trump" (<https://www.thedailybeast.com/russian-media-turns-to-qanon-conspiracies-to-help-re-elect-trump>). The Daily Beast. Retrieved October 4, 2020.
22. "This massive YouTube channel is normalizing QAnon" (<https://www.dailydot.com/layer8/edge-wonder-qanon-youtube/>). The Daily Dot. August 27, 2019. Retrieved September 10, 2019.
23. Sullivan, Margaret (August 1, 2018). "As the bizarre QAnon group emerges, Trump rallies go from nasty to dangerous" (https://www.washingtonpost.com/lifestyle/style/as-the-bizarre-qanon-group-emerges-trump-rallies-go-from-nasty-to-dangerous/2018/08/01/063ed6f8-9585-11e8-a679-b09212fb69c2_story.html). The Washington Post. ISSN 0190-8286 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/0190-8286>). Retrieved October 4, 2020.
24. Greenspan, Rachel E. (September 29, 2020). "QAnon conspiracy theorists have been linked to a killing and multiple armed stand-offs. Here are the criminal allegations connected to the movement and its followers" (<https://www.insider.com/qanon-violence-crime-conspiracy-theory-us-allegation-arrest-killing-gun-2020-8>). Insider. Retrieved October 4, 2020.
25. Martineau, Paris (December 19, 2017). "The Storm Is the New Pizzagate – Only Worse" (<https://nymag.com/selectall/2017/12/qanon-4chan-the-storm-conspiracy-explained.html>). New York. ISSN 0028-7369 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/0028-7369>). Retrieved March 26, 2018.
26. Rothschild, Mike (May 29, 2018). "Who is Q Anon, the internet's most mysterious poster?" (<https://www.dailydot.com/layer8/who-is-q-anon/>). The Daily Dot. Retrieved July 5, 2018.

27. Brean, Henry (July 13, 2018). "Suspect in Hoover Dam standoff writes Trump, cites conspiracy in letters" (<https://www.reviewjournal.com/crime/courts/suspect-in-hoover-dam-standoff-writes-trump-cites-conspiracy-in-letters/>). Las Vegas Review-Journal. ISSN 1097-1645 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/1097-1645>). Retrieved July 14, 2018.
28. Gilbert, David (December 16, 2020). "QAnon's Mysterious Leader 'Q' Is Actually Multiple People" (<https://www.vice.com/en/article/jgqj7x/qanons-mysterious-leader-q-is-actually-multiple-people>). Retrieved December 16, 2020.
29. "Style analysis by machine learning reveals that two authors likely shared the writing of QAnon's messages at two different periods in time" (<https://www.orphanalytics.com/en/news/whitepaper202012>). OrphAnalytics. December 15, 2020. Retrieved December 16, 2020.
30. Griffin, Andrew (August 24, 2020). "What is Qanon? The Origins of the Bizarre Conspiracy Theory Spreading Online" (<https://www.independent.co.uk/life-style/gadgets-and-tech/news/qanon-explained-what-trump-russia-investigation-pizzagate-a8845226.html>). The Independent. London. Retrieved October 2, 2020.
31. Zadrozny, Brandy; Collins, Ben (August 8, 2018). "How three conspiracy theorists took 'Q' and sparked Qanon" (<https://www.nbcnews.com/tech/tech-news/how-three-conspiracy-theorists-took-q-sparked-qanon-n900531>). NBC News. Retrieved November 11, 2019.
32. Scott, Mark (November 6, 2020). "Europe's QAnon followers embrace US election conspiracy theories" (<https://www.politico.eu/article/europe-qanon-us-election/>). Politico. Retrieved April 16, 2021.
33. Harwell, Drew; Timberg, Craig (January 20, 2021). "QAnon believers grapple with doubt, spin new theories as Trump era ends" (<https://www.chron.com/news/article/QAnon-believers-grapple-with-doubt-spin-new-15884779.php>). Chron.com. The Washington Post. Retrieved January 21, 2021. "He and other researchers have also chronicled an increasingly global QAnon movement that could outlast its potential weakening in the United States as events and an aggressive crackdown by social media platforms limit the ideology's reach among Americans. The QAnon followings in Germany and Japan are particularly strong and growing, said Finkelstein, whose research group tracked a surge in QAnon terms the morning of the January 6 Capitol attack, including one that said "qarmyjapanflynn"."
34. 藤倉善郎 (Yoshirō Fujikura) (December 30, 2020). "日本で繰り返されるトランプ応援デモの主催者・参加者はどんな人々なのか" (<https://hbol.jp/235650>) [What kind of people are the organizers and participants of the repeated pro-Trump demonstrations in Japan?]. Harbour Business Online (in Japanese). Retrieved April 19, 2021.
35. Bank, Justin; Stack, Liam; Victor, Daniel (August 1, 2018). "What Is QAnon: Explaining the Internet Conspiracy Theory That Showed Up at a Trump Rally" (<https://www.nytimes.com/2018/08/01/us/politics/what-is-qanon.html>). The New York Times. ISSN 0362-4331 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/0362-4331>). Retrieved August 1, 2018.
36. Roose, Kevin (July 10, 2019). "Trump Rolls Out the Red Carpet for Right-Wing Social Media Trolls" (<https://www.nytimes.com/2019/07/10/business/trump-social-media-summit.html>). The New York Times. ISSN 0362-4331 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/0362-4331>). Retrieved July 17, 2019.
37. Durkee, Alison (July 8, 2019). "Trump's "Social Media Summit" Is a Far-Right Troll Convention" (<https://www.vanityfair.com/news/2019/07/trump-social-media-summit-far-right>). Vanity Fair. Retrieved April 17, 2020.
38. Rahn, Will; Patterson, Dan (September 29, 2020). "What is the QAnon conspiracy theory?" (<https://www.cbsnews.com/news/what-is-the-qanon-conspiracy-theory/>). CBS News. Retrieved October 2, 2020.
39. Bump, Philip (August 2, 2019). "Hours after an FBI warning about QAnon is published, a QAnon slogan turns up at Trump's rally" (<https://www.washingtonpost.com/politics/2019/08/02/hours-after-an-fbi-warning-about-qanon-is-published-qanon-slogan-turns-up-trumps-rally/>). The Washington Post. Retrieved April 17, 2020.

40. Kovensky, Josh (August 2, 2019). "Ex-Dem Who Spouted QAnon Slogan At Trump Rally Disavows QAnon" (<https://talkingpointsmemo.com/muckraker/brandon-straka-disavows-qanon-trump-rally>). Talking Points Memo. Retrieved April 17, 2020.
41. Kaplan, Alex (August 1, 2019). "Trump has repeatedly amplified QAnon Twitter accounts. The FBI has linked the conspiracy theory to domestic terror" (<https://www.mediamatters.org/twitter/fbi-calls-qa-non-domestic-terror-threat-trump-has-amplified-qanon-supporters-twitter-more-20>). Media Matters for America. Retrieved October 18, 2020.
42. Nguyen, Tina (July 12, 2020). "Trump isn't secretly winking at QAnon. He's retweeting its followers" (<https://www.politico.com/news/2020/07/12/trump-tweeting-qanon-followers-357238>). Politico. Retrieved April 16, 2021.
43. LaFrance, Adrienne (June 2020). "The Prophecies of Q" (<https://www.theatlantic.com/magazine/archive/2020/06/qanon-nothing-can-stop-what-is-coming/610567/>). The Atlantic. ISSN 1072-7825 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/1072-7825>). Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20200829011612/https://www.theatlantic.com/magazine/archive/2020/06/qanon-nothing-can-stop-what-is-coming/610567/>) from the original on August 29, 2020. Retrieved October 4, 2020.
44. Shanahan, James (March 5, 2021). "Support for QAnon is hard to measure – and polls may overestimate it" (<https://theconversation.com/support-for-qanon-is-hard-to-measure-and-polls-may-overestimate-it-156020>). The Conversation. Retrieved April 19, 2021.
45. Weill, Kelly (November 12, 2020). "QAnon's Home 8kun Is Imploding – and Q Has Gone Silent" (<https://www.thedailybeast.com/qanons-home-8kun-is-implodingand-q-has-gone-silent>). The Daily Beast. Retrieved January 21, 2021.
46. Thomas, Elise (February 17, 2020). "Qanon Deploys 'Information Warfare' to Influence the 2020 Election" (<https://www.wired.com/story/qanon-deploys-information-warfare-influence-2020-election/>). Wired. ISSN 1059-1028 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/1059-1028>). Retrieved January 21, 2021.
47. Gilbert, David (March 2, 2020). "QAnon Now Has Its Very Own Super PAC" (https://www.vice.com/en_us/article/k7eppz/qanon-now-has-its-very-own-super-pac). Vice. Archived (https://web.archive.org/web/20200815194156/https://www.vice.com/en_us/article/k7eppz/qanon-now-has-its-very-own-super-pac) from the original on August 15, 2020. Retrieved August 29, 2020.
48. Rosenberg, Matthew; Steinhauer, Jennifer (July 14, 2020). "The QAnon Candidates Are Here. Trump Has Paved Their Way" (<https://www.nytimes.com/2020/07/14/us/politics/qanon-politicians-candidates.html>). The New York Times. Retrieved April 19, 2021.
49. Conger, Kate (July 21, 2020). "Twitter Takedown Targets QAnon Accounts" (<https://www.nytimes.com/2020/07/21/technology/twitter-bans-qanon-accounts.html>). The New York Times. Retrieved April 19, 2021.
50. Sen, Ari; Zadrozny, Brandy (August 10, 2020). "QAnon groups have millions of members on Facebook, documents show" (<https://www.nbcnews.com/tech/tech-news/qanon-groups-have-millions-members-facebook-documents-show-n1236317>). NBC News. Retrieved April 19, 2021.
51. Seetharaman, Deepa (August 19, 2020). "Facebook Removes QAnon Groups as It Expands Anti-Violence Policy" (<https://www.wsj.com/articles/facebook-removes-qanon-groups-as-it-expands-anti-violence-policy-11597869178>). The Wall Street Journal. Retrieved April 19, 2021.
52. O'Sullivan, Donie (October 6, 2020). "Three years later, Facebook says it will ban QAnon" (<https://www.cnn.com/2020/10/06/tech/facebook-qanon/index.html>). CNN. Retrieved October 6, 2020.
53. Thomas, Elise (February 17, 2020). "Qanon Deploys 'Information Warfare' to Influence the 2020 Election" (<https://www.wired.com/story/qanon-deploys-information-warfare-influence-2020-election/>). Wired. Retrieved October 4, 2020.
54. Kuznia, Rob; Devine, Curt; Griffin, Drew (December 16, 2020). "How QAnon's lies are hijacking the national conversation" (<https://www.cnn.com/2020/12/15/us/qanon-trump-twitter-invs/index.html>). CNN. Retrieved January 13, 2021.

55. Zadrozny, Brandy; Gains, Mosheh (January 7, 2021). "Woman killed in Capitol was Trump supporter who embraced conspiracy theories" (<https://www.nbcnews.com/news/us-news/woman-killed-capitol-was-trump-supporter-who-embraced-conspiracy-theories-n1253285>). NBC News. Retrieved January 8, 2021.
56. "Twitter blocks 70,000 QAnon accounts after US Capitol riot" (<https://apnews.com/article/twitter-blocks-70k-qanon-accounts-171a5c9062be1c293169d764d3d0d9c8>). AP News. January 12, 2021. Retrieved January 13, 2021.
57. Roose, Kevin (January 17, 2021). "A QAnon 'Digital Soldier' Marches On, Undeterred by Theory's Unraveling" (<https://www.nytimes.com/2021/01/17/technology/qanon-meme-queen.html>). The New York Times. Retrieved April 19, 2021.
58. Amore, Samson (January 20, 2021). "QAnon in Meltdown After Biden Inauguration: 'We Need to Go Back to Our Lives' " (<https://www.thewrap.com/qanon-in-meltdown-after-biden-inauguration-we-need-to-get-to-go-back-to-our-lives/>). TheWrap. Retrieved January 23, 2021.
59. Harwell, Drew (January 20, 2021). "QAnon believers grapple with doubt, spin new theories as Trump era ends" (<https://www.washingtonpost.com/technology/2021/01/20/qanon-trump-era-ends/>). The Washington Post. Retrieved April 19, 2021.
60. David Goldberg [@DavidGoldbergNY] (October 30, 2016). "Rumors stirring in the NYPD that Huma's emails point to a pedophila ring and @HillaryClinton is at the center. #GoHillary #PodestaEmails23" (<https://archive.today/20161031014010/https://twitter.com/DavidGoldbergNY/status/792766614827470848>) (Tweet). Archived from the original (<https://twitter.com/DavidGoldbergNY/status/792766614827470848>) on October 31, 2016. Retrieved October 14, 2018 – via Twitter.
61. Robb, Amanda (November 16, 2017). "Pizzagate: Anatomy of a Fake News Scandal" (<https://www.rollingstone.com/feature/anatomy-of-a-fake-news-scandal-125877/>). Rolling Stone. Retrieved January 19, 2021. "The account's profile picture – a man with a nose Photoshopped to look very large and hooked – has been used online for more than a decade. Based on the limited threads that have been archived, Woolley says, @DavidGoldbergNY appears to have been, like Eagle Wings, "highly automated" and part of "an organized effort" – possibly a bot network – to spread disinformation. One of @DavidGoldbergNY's tweets about the Katz Facebook post was retweeted 6,369 times."
62. Silverman, Craig (November 4, 2016). "How A Completely False Claim About Hillary Clinton Went From A Conspiracy Message Board To Big Right Wing Blogs" (<https://www.buzzfeed.com/craigsilverman/fever-swamp-election>). BuzzFeed. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20161205124843/http://www.buzzfeed.com/craigsilverman/fever-swamp-election>) from the original on December 5, 2016. Retrieved November 29, 2016.
63. Gillin, Joshua (December 6, 2016). "How Pizzagate went from fake news to a real problem" (<http://www.politifact.com/truth-o-meter/article/2016/dec/05/how-pizzagate-went-fake-news-real-problem-dc-busin/>). PolitiFact. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20161206173112/http://www.politifact.com/truth-o-meter/article/2016/dec/05/how-pizzagate-went-fake-news-real-problem-dc-busin/>) from the original on December 6, 2016. Retrieved December 6, 2016.
64. Huang, Gregor Aisch, Jon; Kang, Cecilia (December 10, 2016). "Dissecting the #PizzaGate Conspiracy Theories" (<https://www.nytimes.com/interactive/2016/12/10/business/media/pizzagate.html>). The New York Times. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20161210112745/http://www.nytimes.com/interactive/2016/12/10/business/media/pizzagate.html>) from the original on December 10, 2016. Retrieved December 10, 2016.
65. Samuelson, Kate (December 5, 2016). "What to Know About Pizzagate, the Fake News Story With Real Consequences" (<http://time.com/4590255/pizzagate-fake-news-what-to-know/>). Time. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20161207204808/http://time.com/4590255/pizzagate-fake-news-what-to-know/>) from the original on December 7, 2016. Retrieved December 8, 2016.

66. Hayes, Laura (November 15, 2016). "The Consequences of 'Pizza Gate' are Real at Comet Ping Pong" (<http://www.washingtoncitypaper.com/news/article/20842321/the-consequences-of-pizza-gate-are-real-at-comet-ping-pong>). Washington City Paper. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20161129131252/http://www.washingtoncitypaper.com/news/article/20842321/the-consequences-of-pizza-gate-are-real-at-comet-ping-pong>) from the original on November 29, 2016. Retrieved December 8, 2016.
67. Emery, C. Eugene Jr. (November 4, 2016). "Evidence ridiculously thin for sensational claim of huge underground Clinton sex network" (<http://www.politifact.com/truth-o-meter/statements/2016/nov/04/conservative-daily-post/evidence-ridiculously-thin-sensational-claim-huge-/>). PolitiFact. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20161201012633/http://www.politifact.com/truth-o-meter/statements/2016/nov/04/conservative-daily-post/evidence-ridiculously-thin-sensational-claim-huge-/>) from the original on December 1, 2016. Retrieved November 29, 2016.
68. Rothschild, Mike (September 15, 2019). "What Are Anons? How the Term Has Gone Mainstream" (<https://www.dailydot.com/debug/what-are-anons/>). The Daily Dot. Retrieved May 4, 2020.
69. "The Making of QAnon: A Crowdsourced Conspiracy" (<https://www.bellingcat.com/news/americas/2021/01/07/the-making-of-qanon-a-crowdsourced-conspiracy/>). Bellingcat. January 7, 2021. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20210207183747/https://www.bellingcat.com/news/americas/2021/01/07/the-making-of-qanon-a-crowdsourced-conspiracy/>) from the original on February 7, 2021. Retrieved February 7, 2021.
70. Hayden, Michael Edison (February 1, 2018). "How 'the Storm' Became the Biggest Fake News Story of 2018" (<https://www.newsweek.com/how-storm-biggest-fake-news-story-796725>). Newsweek. ISSN 0028-9604 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/0028-9604>). Retrieved April 5, 2018.
71. Colburn, Randall (December 19, 2017). "There's a new, insane conspiracy theory tearing up 4chan" (<https://www.avclub.com/theres-a-new-insane-conspiracy-theory-tearing-up-4chan-1821432397>). AV Club. Retrieved April 16, 2021.
72. Gander, Kashmira (January 15, 2018). "What is The Storm? Conspiracy theory that mysterious White House official leaks secrets" (<https://www.ibtimes.co.uk/what-storm-conspiracy-theory-that-mysterious-white-house-official-qanon-leaking-secrets-1655194>). International Business Times. Retrieved October 4, 2020.
73. "Departmental Personnel Security FAQs" (<https://www.energy.gov/ehss/security-policy-guidance-reports/departmental-personnel-security-faqs>). U.S. Department of Energy. Retrieved August 2, 2018.
74. Rothschild, Mike (October 29, 2018). "One year later, had the QAnon movement finally passed?" (<https://www.dailydot.com/debug/qanon-anniversary-movement/>). The Daily Dot. Retrieved September 20, 2020.
75. Bump, Philip (August 1, 2018). "Why the QAnon conspiracy is the natural culmination of the Trump era" (<https://www.washingtonpost.com/news/politics/wp/2018/08/01/why-the-qanon-conspiracy-is-the-natural-culmination-of-the-trump-era/>). The Washington Post. ISSN 0190-8286 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/0190-8286>). Retrieved October 4, 2020.
76. Stuart, Gwynedd (August 17, 2020). "Inside QAnon, the Conspiracy Cult that's Devouring America" (<https://www.lamag.com/citythinkblog/qanon-gop/>). Los Angeles. Retrieved September 20, 2020.
77. Evon, Dan (August 21, 2020). "Curious About QAnon? Get the Facts About This Dangerous Conspiracy Theory" (<https://www.snopes.com/news/2020/08/21/qanon-2020-election/>). Snopes. Retrieved September 20, 2020.
78. Ondrak, Joe; Backovic, Nick (September 10, 2020). "QAnon Key Figure Revealed as Financial Information Security Analyst from New Jersey" (<https://www.logically.ai/articles/qanon-key-figure-man-from-new-jersey>). Retrieved April 19, 2021.
79. Turton, William (September 11, 2020). "QAnon Website Shuts Down After N.J. Man Identified as Operator" (<https://www.bloomberg.com/news/articles/2020-09-11/qanon-website-shuts-down-after-n-j-man-identified-as-operator?sref=yIv224K8>). Bloomberg. Retrieved April 19, 2021.

80. Rothschild, Mike (August 28, 2020). "Did an IP address accidentally reveal QAnon's identity?" (<http://www.dailydot.com/debug/who-is-qanon-jim-watkins-rumors/>). The Daily Dot. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20200829003100/https://www.dailydot.com/debug/who-is-qanon-jim-watkins-rumors/>) from the original on August 29, 2020. Retrieved August 29, 2020.
81. "QAnon conspiracies go global in pandemic 'perfect storm'" (<https://www.france24.com/en/20201006-qanon-conspiracies-go-global-in-pandemic-perfect-storm>). France 24. AFP. October 6, 2020. Retrieved October 15, 2020.
82. Bennhold, Katrin (October 11, 2020). "QAnon Is Thriving in Germany. The Extreme Right Is Delighted" (<https://www.nytimes.com/2020/10/11/world/europe/qanon-is-thriving-in-germany-the-extreme-right-is-delighted.html>). The New York Times. ISSN 0362-4331 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/0362-4331>). Retrieved April 19, 2021.
83. Light, Felix (November 30, 2020). "QAnon Gains Traction in Russia" (<https://www.themoscowtimes.com/2020/11/30/qanon-gains-traction-in-russia-a72180>). The Moscow Times. Retrieved June 6, 2021.
84. Dryden, Joel (October 25, 2020). "How conspiracies like QAnon are slowly creeping into some Canadian churches" (<https://www.cbc.ca/news/canada/calgary/marc-andre-argentino-qanon-john-van-sloten-ambrose-1.5766756>). CBC News. Retrieved November 11, 2020.
85. McIntosh, Emma (October 15, 2020). "America's QAnon problem is infecting Canada. What should we do about it?" (<https://www.nationalobserver.com/2020/10/15/news/americas-qanon-problem-infecting-canada-what-should-we-do-about-it>). National Observer. Retrieved November 11, 2020.
86. Kovac, Adam (November 3, 2020). "How Canada became one of the world's biggest hubs for QAnon conspiracy theories" (<https://montreal.ctvnews.ca/how-canada-became-one-of-the-world-s-biggest-hubs-for-qanon-conspiracy-theories-1.5172097>). CTV News. Montreal. Retrieved November 11, 2020.
87. Quinn, Ben (October 21, 2020). "One in four Britons believe in QAnon-linked theories – survey" (<https://www.theguardian.com/us-news/2020/oct/22/one-in-four-britons-believe-in-qanon-linked-theories-survey>). The Guardian. Retrieved November 11, 2020.
88. Lawrence, David; Davis, Gregory (October 2020). "QAnon in the UK: The Growth of a Movement" (<https://www.hopenothate.org.uk/wp-content/uploads/2020/10/qanon-report-2020-10-FINAL.pdf>) (PDF). Hope not Hate: 24–26. Retrieved April 19, 2021.
89. Wallace, Arturo (August 28, 2020). "QAnon en América Latina: cómo y por qué grupos asociados a esta polémica teoría conspirativa se han multiplicado en la región" (<https://www.bbc.com/mundo/noticias-america-latina-53936695>) [QAnon in Latin America: how and why groups associated with this controversial conspiracy theory have multiplied in the region]. BBC (in Spanish). Retrieved December 14, 2020.
90. Zimbrón, Andrés (August 31, 2020). "Por qué se ha propagado más el movimiento QAnon en Latinoamérica" (<https://notipress.mx/internacional/por-que-se-ha-propagado-mas-el-movimiento-qanon-en-latinoamerica-4915>) [Why the QAnon movement has spread more in Latin America]. Notipress (in Spanish). Retrieved December 14, 2020.
91. Chinchilla, Sofía (August 24, 2020). "QAnon, la teoría conspirativa, recluta seguidores en Costa Rica" (https://www.nacion.com/no-coma-cuento/qanon-la-teoria-conspirativa-recluta-seguidores/QU_M7F7EBABETBAUWSPVQYUR5GA/story/) [QAnon, the conspiracy theory, recruits followers in Costa Rica]. La Nación (in Spanish). Retrieved December 14, 2020.
92. Labrados, Fernando (November 23, 2020). "¿Qué es QAnon?" (<https://www.efe.com/efe/espana/efeverifica/que-es-qanon/50001435-4405484>) [What is QAnon?]. EFE (in Spanish). Retrieved December 14, 2020. "Biden es el ... preferido de los pederastas."
93. Verifica RTVE (September 23, 2019). "Qanon: este movimiento conspirativo también te desinforma sobre la pandemia" (<https://www.rtve.es/noticias/20200923/qanon-espana-desinformacion-sobre-politica-salud/2042822.shtml>) [Qanon: This conspiratorial movement also misinforms you about the pandemic]. RTVE (in Spanish). Retrieved December 14, 2020. "No están aparentemente ligados, al menos de modo formal, a ningún partido político español, aunque cuando manifiestan preferencia abierta por uno, es por Vox."

94. Guglielmi, Giorgia (October 28, 2020). "The next-generation bots interfering with the US election" (<https://www.nature.com/articles/d41586-020-03034-5>). Nature. 587 (7832): 21. Bibcode:2020Natur.587...21G (<https://ui.adsabs.harvard.edu/abs/2020Natur.587...21G>). doi:10.1038/d41586-020-03034-5 (<https://doi.org/10.1038%2Fd41586-020-03034-5>). PMID 33116324 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/33116324>). Retrieved October 29, 2020.
95. Sales, Ben (February 15, 2021). "Survey finds 3 in 10 Republicans believe QAnon child sex-trafficking theory" (<https://www.timesofisrael.com/survey-finds-3-in-10-republicans-believe-qanon-child-sex-trafficking-theory/>). www.timesofisrael.com. Retrieved February 18, 2021.
96. PRRI Staff (May 27, 2021). "Understanding QAnon's Connection to American Politics, Religion, and Media Consumption" (<https://www.prii.org/research/qanon-conspiracy-american-politics-report/>). PRRI. Retrieved May 28, 2021.
97. Dickson, E. J. (December 14, 2020). "'Pastel QAnon' Is Infiltrating the Natural Parenting Community" (<https://www.rollingstone.com/culture/culture-news/qanon-pastel-antivax-natural-parenting-community-freebirth-1098518/>). Rolling Stone. Retrieved March 14, 2021.
98. McGowan, Michael (February 24, 2021). "How the wellness and influencer crowd serve conspiracies to the masses" (<https://www.theguardian.com/australia-news/2021/feb/25/how-the-wellness-and-influencer-crowd-served-conspiracies-to-the-masses>). The Guardian. Retrieved March 14, 2021.
99. Bee, Samantha (March 10, 2021). "Meet The White Women Empowering QAnon" (<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=a9YRQaIUNHY>). Full Frontal with Samantha Bee. Season 6. Episode 7. Retrieved March 14, 2021.
00. Haubursin, Christophe (October 28, 2020). "The Instagram aesthetic that made QAnon mainstream" (<https://www.vox.com/videos/2020/10/28/21538763/save-the-children-qanon-instagram>). Vox. Retrieved March 14, 2021.
01. Zadrozny, Brandy; Collins, Ben (July 18, 2018). "Like the fringe conspiracy theory Qanon? There's plenty of merch for sale on Amazon" (<https://www.nbcnews.com/business/business-news/fringe-conspiracy-theory-qanon-there-s-plenty-merch-sale-amazon-n892561>). NBC News. Retrieved July 30, 2018.
02. Hall, Ellie (August 2, 2018). "What Is QAnon? Here's What You Need To Know About The Baseless Mega-Conspiracy Theory: For the most part, the nonsensical conspiracy theory's adherents were largely confined to fever-swamp corners of the internet. That is changing, and things are getting dangerous" (<https://www.buzzfeednews.com/article/ellievhall/qanon-trump-rally-conspiracy-theory>). BuzzFeed News. Retrieved August 2, 2018.
03. View, Travis (September 18, 2018). "How conspiracy theories spread from the Internet's darkest corners" (<https://www.washingtonpost.com/outlook/2018/09/18/how-conspiracy-theories-spread-internets-darkest-corners/>). The Washington Post. Retrieved September 18, 2018.
04. Nyce, Caroline Mimbs (May 14, 2020). "The Atlantic Daily: QAnon Is a New American Religion" (<https://www.theatlantic.com/newsletters/archive/2020/05/qanon-q-pro-trump-conspiracy/611722/>). The Atlantic. Retrieved May 18, 2020.
05. Argentino, Marc-André (May 18, 2020). "The Church of QAnon: Will conspiracy theories form the basis of a new religious movement?" (<https://theconversation.com/the-church-of-qanon-will-conspiracy-theories-form-the-basis-of-a-new-religious-movement-137859>). The Conversation. Retrieved May 18, 2020.
06. Stanley-Becker, Isaac (August 2, 2020). "How the Trump campaign came to court QAnon, the online conspiracy movement identified by the FBI as a violent threat" (https://www.washingtonpost.com/politics/how-the-trump-campaign-came-to-court-qanon-the-online-conspiracy-movement-identified-by-the-fbi-as-a-violent-threat/2020/08/01/dd0ea9b4-d1d4-11ea-9038-af089b63ac21_story.html). The Washington Post. Retrieved October 4, 2020.
07. Ross, Alexander Reid (January 8, 2019). "Apocalypse in America: The Smell of Fascism in the pro-Trump QAnon Conspiracy" (<https://www.haaretz.com/opinion/.premium-apocalypse-in-america-the-smell-of-fascism-in-the-pro-trump-qanon-conspiracy-1.6809655>). Ha'aretz. Retrieved April 17, 2020.

08. Coaston, Jane (August 2, 2018). "#QAnon, the scarily popular pro-Trump conspiracy theory, explained" (<https://www.vox.com/policy-and-politics/2018/8/1/17253444/qanon-trump-conspiracy-theory-4chan-explainer>). Vox. Retrieved September 19, 2018.
09. Reed, Jason (April 21, 2020). "Here is every QAnon prediction that's failed to come true" (<https://www.dailydot.com/debug/qanon-failed-predictions/>). The Daily Dot. Retrieved October 17, 2020.
10. Griffin, Andrew (January 21, 2021). "'What happened?': QAnon followers left upset and angry as conspiracy theory's 'storm' fails to materialise" (<https://www.independent.co.uk/news/world/americas/us-politics/qanon-trump-biden-inauguration-storm-b1790243.html>). The Independent. Retrieved January 21, 2021.
11. Epstein, Adam (January 21, 2021). "How Fox News and Newsmax reacted to Biden's inauguration" (<https://qz.com/1960146/how-fox-news-and-newsmax-reacted-to-bidens-inauguration/>). Quartz. Retrieved January 21, 2021.
12. Himmelman, Kaya (January 28, 2021). "Did Legislation Passed in 1871 Make Washington, D.C., a Foreign Entity?" (<https://factcheck.thedispatch.com/p/did-legislation-passed-in-1871-make>). The Dispatch. Retrieved February 2, 2021.
13. Spocchia, Gino (January 26, 2021). "QAnon merges with white extremists and spreads new conspiracy Trump will be president again on March 4" (<https://www.independent.co.uk/news/world/americas/us-election-2020/qanon-trump-march-sovereign-citizen-fbi-b1792830.html>). The Independent. Retrieved April 16, 2021.
14. Dickson, E.J. (January 25, 2021). "QAnon Believers Are Pushing New Trump Conspiracy Theories on TikTok" (<https://www.rollingstone.com/culture/culture-news/qanon-conspiracy-theories-trump-tiktok-1118668/>). Rolling Stone. Retrieved April 19, 2021.
15. Watson, Phil (February 10, 2021). "Trump To Return As President? Conspiracy Theorist QAnon Has Wild Belief In A March 4 Inauguration" (<https://www.ibtimes.com/trump-return-president-conspiracy-theorist-qanon-has-wild-belief-march-4-inauguration-3142574>). International Business Times. Retrieved February 15, 2021.
16. Sommerlad, Joe (March 19, 2021). "What next for QAnon?" (<https://www.independent.co.uk/news/world/americas/us-politics/qanon-20-march-trump-conspiracy-theory-b1819634.html>). The Independent. Retrieved March 20, 2021.
17. Caffier, Justin (June 12, 2018). "A Guide to QAnon, the New King of Right-Wing Conspiracy Theories" (https://www.vice.com/en_us/article/ywex8v/what-is-qanon-conspiracy-theory). Vice. ISSN 1077-6788 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/1077-6788>). Retrieved July 15, 2018.
18. Rothschild, Mike (March 19, 2018). "The QAnon Conspiracy Is the Oldest Scam Out There" (<https://www.dailydot.com/layer8/qanon-the-storm/>). The Daily Dot. Retrieved July 14, 2018.
19. Király, Attila (August 7, 2018). "Trump támogatói között elkezdett terjedni, hogy az elnök az Egyesült Államokat irányító sátánista pedofilok ellen harcol" (<https://444.hu/2018/08/07/trump-tamogatoi-kozott-elkezdett-terjedni-hogy-az-elnok-az-egyesult-allamokat-iranyito-satanista-pedofilok-ellen-harcol>) [Trump supporters have started to spread their belief that the President fights against Satanist pedophiles who govern the United States]. 444 (in Hungarian). Retrieved September 19, 2018.
20. Muncaster, Phil (May 7, 2020). "Facebook Removes Far-Right Conspiracy Theory Content" (<https://www.infosecurity-magazine.com/news/facebook-takes-down-far-right/>). Infosecurity Magazine. Infosecurity Group. Retrieved January 25, 2021.
21. Goldberg, Michelle (September 21, 2018). "Conspiracy theory claims Trump is a 'secret genius who pretended to collude with Russia to defeat child sex traffickers'" (<https://www.independent.co.uk/news/world/americas/us-politics/conspiracy-theory-donald-trump-genius-hilary-clinton-roseanne-barr-barack-obama-george-soros-america-politics-latest-a8293806.html>). Independent. Retrieved January 25, 2021.
22. Guffey, Robert (August 30, 2020). "Making sense of QAnon: What lies behind the conspiracy theory that's eating America?" (<https://www.salon.com/2020/08/30/making-sense-of-qanon-what-lies-behind-the-conspiracy-theory-thats-eating-america/>). Salon. Retrieved October 5, 2020.

23. Selk, Avi; Ohlheiser, Abby. "How QAnon, the conspiracy theory spawned by a Trump quip, got so big and scary" (<https://www.washingtonpost.com/news/the-intersect/wp/2018/08/01/how-qanon-the-conspiracy-theory-spawned-by-a-trump-quip-got-so-big-and-scary/>). The Washington Post. Retrieved August 7, 2018.
24. "QAnon, once a fringe conspiracy theory, edges into the mainstream: 'Things could get much, much worse'" (<https://abcnews.go.com/Politics/qanon-fringe-conspiracy-theory-edges-mainstream-things-worse/story?id=72751829>). ABC News. Retrieved May 17, 2021.
25. "US Capitol police warn of possible militia plot to breach Congress" (<https://www.bbc.com/news/world-us-canada-56275335>). BBC News. March 4, 2021. Retrieved May 17, 2021.
26. Holt, Jared (July 9, 2018). "A New Wave Of 'QAnon' Activists Emerge From The Cult Of MAGA" (<https://www.rightwingwatch.org/post/a-new-wave-of-qanon-activists-emerge-from-the-cult-of-maga/>). Right Wing Watch. People for the American Way. Retrieved September 21, 2018.
27. Kirn, Walter (June 2018). "The Wizard of Q" (<https://harpers.org/archive/2018/06/the-wizard-of-q/>). Harper's Magazine. Retrieved December 27, 2018.
28. Putterman, Samantha (January 30, 2020). "No, drinking bleach will not ward off coronavirus" (<https://www.politifact.com/factchecks/2020/jan/30/tweets/no-drinking-bleach-will-not-ward-coronavirus/>). PolitiFact. Retrieved April 19, 2021.
29. Porter, Tom (January 29, 2020). "QAnon conspiracy theorists are telling people to drink bleach as a cure against the deadly Wuhan coronavirus" (<https://www.businessinsider.com/china-coronavirus-wuhan-cure-qanon-mms-bleach-conspiracy-2020-1>). Business Insider. Retrieved April 19, 2021.
30. Stieb, Matt (January 28, 2020). "QAnon Influencers Are Encouraging Followers to Drink Bleach to Avoid Coronavirus" (<https://nymag.com/intelligencer/2020/01/qanon-supporters-are-drinking-bleach-to-avoid-coronavirus.html>). Intelligencer. New York. Retrieved April 19, 2021.
31. Iyengar, Rishi (November 1, 2020). "Facebook cracks down on QAnon hashtag #SaveOurChildren" (https://www.cnn.com/tech/live-news/social-media-misinformation-october/h_1d30dc1859947caeb2797638918ffb26). CNN. Archived (https://web.archive.org/web/20201126160006/https://www.cnn.com/tech/live-news/social-media-misinformation-october/h_1d30dc1859947caeb2797638918ffb26) from the original on November 26, 2020. Retrieved February 6, 2021.
32. Dickson, E. J. (August 12, 2020). "What Is #SaveTheChildren and Why Did Facebook Block It?" (<https://www.rollingstone.com/culture/culture-features/savethechildren-qanon-pizzagate-facebook-block-hashtag-1041812/>). Rolling Stone. Retrieved August 28, 2020.
33. Funke, Daniel (August 12, 2020). "QAnon, Pizzagate conspiracy theories co-opt #SaveTheChildren" (<https://www.politifact.com/article/2020/aug/12/qanon-pizzagate-conspiracy-theories-co-opt-savethe/>). PolitiFact. Retrieved April 19, 2021.
34. "Missing Children Statistics" (<https://www.missingkids.org/footer/media/keyfacts#missingchildrenstatistics>). National Center for Missing & Exploited Children. Retrieved August 14, 2020.
35. Seitz, Amanda (October 28, 2020). "QAnon's 'Save the Children' morphs into popular slogan" (<https://apnews.com/article/election-2020-donald-trump-child-trafficking-illinois-morris-aab978bb7e9b89cd2cea151ca13421a0>). AP News. Retrieved November 11, 2020.
36. Heater, Brian; Hatmaker, Taylor (October 30, 2020). "Facebook is limiting distribution of 'save our children' hashtag over QAnon ties" (<https://techcrunch.com/2020/10/30/facebook-is-limiting-distribution-of-save-our-children-hashtag-over-qanon-ties/>). TechCrunch. Retrieved November 11, 2020.
37. Spring, Marianna (July 15, 2020). "Wayfair: The false conspiracy about a furniture firm and child trafficking" (<https://www.bbc.com/news/world-53416247>). BBC. Retrieved January 8, 2021.
38. Brown, Matthew (July 22, 2020). "Fact check: Home goods retailer Wayfair is not involved in child sex trafficking" (<https://www.usatoday.com/story/news/factcheck/2020/07/22/fact-check-wayfair-not-involved-child-sex-trafficking/5460739002/>). USA Today. Retrieved January 8, 2021.
39. Zadrozny, Brandy; Collins, Ben (August 21, 2020). "A new phenomenon as QAnon conspiracy spreads: Nationwide #SavetheChildren rallies" (<https://www.nbcnews.com/tech/tech-news/qanon-looks-behind-nationwide-rallies-viral-hashtags-n1237722>). NBC News. Retrieved November 11, 2020.

40. Dias, Shanti (September 20, 2020). "Far-right US cult QAnon finds a ready ear in Britain" (<https://archive.today/20200920112331/https://www.thetimes.co.uk/article/far-right-us-cult-qanon-finds-a-ready-ear-in-britain-n7kjr3xrv>). The Sunday Times. Archived from the original (<https://www.thetimes.co.uk/article/far-right-us-cult-qanon-finds-a-ready-ear-in-britain-n7kjr3xrv>) on September 20, 2020. Retrieved November 11, 2020.
41. Hitt, Tarpley (August 28, 2020). "Inside QAnon's Bizarre Hollywood Invasion – and the Civil War Brewing Within Conspiracy-Land" (<https://www.thedailybeast.com/inside-qanons-bizarre-hollywood-invasion-and-the-civil-war-brewing-within-conspiracy-land>). The Daily Beast. Retrieved November 11, 2020.
42. Hern, Alex (November 11, 2020). "Facebook, QAnon and the world's slackening grip on reality" (<https://www.theguardian.com/technology/2020/nov/11/how-2020-transformed-big-tech-the-story-of-facebook-qanon-and-the-worlds-slackening-grip-on-reality>). The Guardian. Retrieved November 11, 2020.
43. Friedman, Dan; Breland, Ali (August 13, 2019). "Michael Flynn and George Papadopoulos are scheduled to speak at a conference organized by a QAnon supporter" (<https://www.motherjones.com/politics/2019/08/michael-flynn-and-george-papadopoulos-are-scheduled-to-speak-at-a-conference-organized-by-a-qanon-supporter/>). Mother Jones. Retrieved April 19, 2021.
44. "A parent's guide to the secret language of internet extremists" (<https://www.cbsnews.com/news/incels-radicalization-glossary-parents-cbsn-originals-extremists-next-door/>). CBS News. March 16, 2020. Retrieved September 20, 2020.
45. Vogt, PJ (September 18, 2020). "Country of Liars" (<https://gimletmedia.com/shows/reply-all/llhe5nm>). Reply All (Podcast). Gimlet Media. Event occurs at 24:20. Retrieved October 4, 2020.
46. Glaser, April (November 11, 2019). "Where 8channers Went After 8chan" (<https://slate.com/technology/2019/11/8chan-8kun-white-supremacists-telegram-discord-facebook.html>). Slate. Retrieved June 1, 2020.
47. Roose, Kevin (November 10, 2020). "Shocked by Trump's Loss, QAnon Struggles to Keep the Faith" (<https://www.nytimes.com/2020/11/10/technology/qanon-election-trump.html>). The New York Times. Retrieved April 19, 2021.
48. Farley, Donovan (Spring 2020). "Free Speech, Hate Speech and the King of the Trolls" (<https://www.playboy.com/read/8chan-hate-speech>). Playboy. Retrieved September 7, 2020.
49. Fancescani, Chris (September 22, 2020). "The men behind QAnon" (<https://abcnews.go.com/Politics/men-qanon/story?id=73046374>). ABC News. Retrieved September 22, 2020.
50. Farley, Donovan (May 17, 2020). "The True Threat" (<https://www.playboy.com/read/8chan-hate-speech>). Playboy. Retrieved June 1, 2020.
51. Hoback, Cullen (April 6, 2021). "Filmmaker says he potentially uncovered man behind QAnon" (<https://edition.cnn.com/videos/media/2021/04/06/qanon-identity-hbo-filmmaker-ac360-vpx.cnn>). CNN (Video). Interviewed by Anderson Cooper. Retrieved April 19, 2021.
52. Gonzalez, Oscar (April 5, 2021). "QAnon docuseries Q: Into the Storm has an answer on who is Q" (<https://www.cnet.com/news/qanon-docuseries-q-into-the-storm-has-an-answer-on-who-is-q/>). CNET. Retrieved April 5, 2021.
53. Harwell, Drew; Timberg, Craig (April 5, 2021). "A QAnon revelation suggests the truth of Q's identity was right there all along" (<https://www.washingtonpost.com/technology/2021/04/05/ron-watkins-qanon-hbo/>). The Washington Post. ISSN 0190-8286 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/0190-8286>). Retrieved April 6, 2021.
54. Palmer, Ewan (March 19, 2021). "Ron Watkins denies he is QAnon leader ahead of "Into the Storm" HBO show" (<https://www.newsweek.com/qanon-ron-watkins-q-hbo-storm-1577318>). Newsweek. Retrieved April 5, 2021.
55. Burke, Daniel; Editor, CNN Religion (October 15, 2020). "How QAnon uses religion to lure unsuspecting Christians" (<https://www.cnn.com/2020/10/15/us/qanon-religion-churches/index.html>). CNN. Retrieved February 15, 2021.

56. Uscinski, Joseph; Klofstad, Casey (August 30, 2018). "New poll: the QAnon conspiracy movement is very unpopular" (<https://www.washingtonpost.com/news/monkey-cage/wp/2018/08/30/the-qanon-conspiracy-movement-is-very-unpopular-our-new-poll-finds/>). The Washington Post. Retrieved September 18, 2018.
57. Cillizza, Chris (April 1, 2020). "76% of Americans have never heard of QAnon" (<https://www.cnn.com/2020/04/01/politics/qanon-pew-poll/index.html>). CNN. Retrieved April 19, 2021.
58. "QAnon's conspiracy theories have seeped into U.S. politics, but most don't know what it is" (<https://www.pewresearch.org/fact-tank/2020/03/30/qanons-conspiracy-theories-have-seeped-into-u-s-politics-but-most-dont-know-what-it-is/>). Pew Research Center. March 30, 2020. Retrieved May 9, 2020.
59. Mitchell, Amy; Jurkowitz, Mark; Oliphant, J. Baxter; Shearer, Elisa (September 16, 2020). "Political Divides, Conspiracy Theories and Divergent News Sources Heading Into 2020 Election" (<https://www.journalism.org/2020/09/16/political-divides-conspiracy-theories-and-divergent-news-sources-heading-into-2020-election/>). Retrieved April 19, 2021.
60. Bump, Philip (October 20, 2020). "Even if they haven't heard of QAnon, most Trump voters believe its wild allegations" (<https://www.washingtonpost.com/politics/2020/10/20/even-if-they-havent-heard-qanon-most-trump-voters-believe-its-wild-allegations/>). The Washington Post. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20201213202903/https://www.washingtonpost.com/politics/2020/10/20/even-if-they-havent-heard-qanon-most-trump-voters-believe-its-wild-allegations/>) from the original on December 13, 2020. Retrieved December 13, 2020.
61. Pink, Aiden (August 1, 2018). "Explained: What's Anti-Semitic About QAnon, The Trump Base's Latest Pet Theory?" (<https://forward.com/news/national/407121/explained-what-s-anti-semitic-about-qanon-the-trump-base-s-latest-pet-theory/>). The Forward. Retrieved September 21, 2018.
62. Dunst, Charles (August 3, 2018). "Is QAnon, the Latest pro-Trump Conspiracy Theory, anti-Semitic?" (<https://www.haaretz.com/us-news/is-qanon-the-latest-pro-trump-conspiracy-theory-anti-semitic-1.6340841>). Haaretz. Jewish Telegraphic Agency. Retrieved September 21, 2018.
63. "Quantifying Hate: A Year of Anti-Semitism on Twitter" (<https://www.adl.org/resources/reports/quantifying-hate-a-year-of-anti-semitism-on-twitter>). Anti-Defamation League. Retrieved September 9, 2018.
64. Sommer, Will (August 25, 2020). "RNC Speaker Cancelled After Boosting QAnon Conspiracy Theory About Jewish Plot to Enslave the World" (<https://www.thedailybeast.com/rnc-speaker-boosts-qanon-conspiracy-theory-about-jewish-plot-to-enslave-the-world-1>). The Daily Beast. Retrieved August 26, 2020.
65. Millhiser, Ian (August 25, 2020). "The RNC yanked a speaker who promoted an anti-Semitic conspiracy theory. Trump often highlights Mary Ann Mendoza as an advocate for harsh immigration policies. She has some other strange beliefs" (<https://www.vox.com/2020/8/25/21401858/rnc-cancelled-mary-ann-mendoza-anti-semitic-conspiracy-theory-protocols-elders-zion>). Vox. Retrieved August 26, 2020.
66. Deliso, Meredith; Steakin, Will (August 26, 2020). "Mary Ann Mendoza pulled from RNC lineup after retweeting anti-Semitic QAnon conspiracy" (<https://abcnews.go.com/Politics/mary-ann-mendoza-pulled-rnc-lineup-retweeting-anti/story?id=72607904>). ABC News. Retrieved April 19, 2021.
67. Matthew Choi (August 25, 2020). "Republican convention speaker out of lineup after retweeting anti-Semitic rant. Mary Ann Mendoza shared a thread that includes nearly every anti-Semitic trope of the last century" (<https://www.politico.com/news/2020/08/25/rnc-speaker-retweets-anti-semitic-rant-401851>). Politico. Retrieved August 26, 2020.
68. Kevin Breuninger (August 19, 2020). "Trump says he appreciates support from followers of unfounded QAnon conspiracy" (<https://www.cnbc.com/2020/08/19/trump-says-he-appreciates-qanon-support.html>). CNBC News. Retrieved August 26, 2020.
69. Ohlheiser, Abby (August 26, 2020). "Evangelicals are looking for answers online. They're finding QAnon instead" (<https://www.technologyreview.com/2020/08/26/1007611/how-qanon-is-targeting-evangelicals/>). MIT Technology Review. Retrieved April 19, 2021.

70. Friedberg, Brian (July 31, 2020). "The Dark Virality of a Hollywood Blood-Harvesting Conspiracy" (<https://www.wired.com/story/opinion-the-dark-virality-of-a-hollywood-blood-harvesting-conspiracy/>). Wired. Retrieved October 2, 2020.
71. Hitt, Tarpley (August 14, 2020). "'Adrenochrome': QAnon's Imaginary Drug Hollywood Is 'Harvesting' From Kids" (<https://www.thedailybeast.com/how-qanon-became-obsessed-with-adrenochrome-an-imaginary-drug-hollywood-is-harvesting-from-kids>). The Daily Beast. Retrieved April 19, 2021.
72. Trickey, Erick (August 4, 2018). "Fact-checking QAnon conspiracy theories: Did J.P. Morgan sink the Titanic?" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20201205002246/https://www.washingtonpost.com/news/retropolis/wp/2018/08/04/how-j-p-morgan-didnt-sink-the-titanic-and-other-qanon-conspiracy-theories-debunked/>). The Washington Post. Archived from the original (<https://www.washingtonpost.com/news/retropolis/wp/2018/08/04/how-j-p-morgan-didnt-sink-the-titanic-and-other-qanon-conspiracy-theories-debunked/>) on December 5, 2020. Retrieved December 13, 2020.
73. Sales, Ben (September 18, 2020). "QAnon is an old form of anti-Semitism in a new package, experts say" (<https://www.jta.org/2020/09/18/politics/qanon-is-an-old-form-of-anti-semitism-in-a-new-package-experts-say>). Jewish Telegraphic Agency. Retrieved September 19, 2020.
74. Diresta, Renee (November 13, 2018). "Online Conspiracy Groups Are a Lot Like Cults" (<https://www.wired.com/story/online-conspiracy-groups-qanon-cults/>). Wired. Retrieved April 17, 2020.
75. Andrews, Travis (October 12, 2020). "QAnon is tearing families apart" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20201211233337/https://www.washingtonpost.com/technology/2020/09/14/qanon-families-support-group/>). The Washington Post. Archived from the original (<https://www.washingtonpost.com/technology/2020/09/14/qanon-families-support-group/>) on December 11, 2020. Retrieved December 13, 2020.
76. Rosenberg, Alyssa (April 17, 2020). "I understand the temptation to dismiss QAnon. Here's why we can't" (<https://www.washingtonpost.com/opinions/2019/08/07/qanon-isnt-just-conspiracy-theory-its-highly-effective-game/>). The Washington Post. Retrieved April 17, 2020.
77. Romano, Aja (November 18, 2020). "Conspiracy theories, explained" (<https://www.vox.com/21558524/conspiracy-theories-2020-qanon-covid-conspiracies-why>). Vox. Retrieved January 18, 2021.
78. Weill, Kelly (December 23, 2018). "Christmas Is the Loneliest Time for Qanon Fans" (<https://www.thedailybeast.com/christmas-is-the-loneliest-time-for-qanon-fans>). The Daily Beast. Retrieved April 17, 2020.
79. Chapman, Matthew (November 15, 2018). "QAnon's true believers are devastated as the conspiracy theory goes down in flames" (<https://www.salon.com/2018/11/15/qanons-true-believers-are-devastated-as-the-conspiracy-theory-goes-down-in-flames/>). Salon. Retrieved April 19, 2021.
80. Rothschild, Mike (November 9, 2018). "Jeff Sessions, the 2018 midterms, and the continued grift of QAnon" (<https://www.dailydot.com/debug/qanon-jeff-sessions-2018-midterms/>). The Daily Dot. Retrieved April 19, 2021.
81. Mantyla, Kyle (August 1, 2018). "Liz Crokin: John F. Kennedy Jr. Faked His Death And Is Now QAnon" (<https://www.rightwingwatch.org/post/liz-crokin-john-f-kennedy-jr-faked-his-death-and-is-now-qanon/>). Right Wing Watch. Retrieved April 17, 2020.
82. Mantyla, Kyle (February 4, 2019). "Liz Crokin Warns of 'Vigilante Justice' if QAnon's Promised Mass Arrests Don't Happen Soon" (<https://www.rightwingwatch.org/post/liz-crokin-warns-of-vigilante-justice-if-qanons-promised-mass-arrests-dont-happen-soon/>). Right Wing Watch. Retrieved April 17, 2020.
83. Sommer, Will; Suebsaeng, Asawin; Markay, Lachlan (July 4, 2019). "This July 4th Has Everything: Tanks, Trump – and Scandal" (<https://www.thedailybeast.com/this-july-4th-has-everything-tanks-trump-pand-scandal>). The Daily Beast. Retrieved April 19, 2021.
84. Dickson, E. J. (July 3, 2019). "QAnon Followers Think JFK Jr. Is Coming Back on the 4th of July" (<https://www.rollingstone.com/culture/culture-features/qanon-jfk-jr-conspiracy-theory-854938/>). Rolling Stone. Retrieved October 2, 2020.
85. "Founder of bizarre new religion targeting QAnon believers 'unmasked'" (<https://www.independent.co.uk/news/world/europe/sabmyk-network-qanon-conspiracy-theories-b1820639.html>). The Independent. March 23, 2021.

86. "Unmasked: man behind cult set to replace QAnon" (<https://www.theguardian.com/us-news/2021/mar/20/revealed-man-behind-fast-growing-cult-becoming-the-new-qanon-sabmyk-network>). The Guardian. March 20, 2021.
87. Winter, Jana (August 1, 2019). "Exclusive: FBI document warns conspiracy theories are a new domestic terrorism threat" (<https://news.yahoo.com/fbi-documents-conspiracy-theories-terrorism-160000507.html>). Yahoo! News. Retrieved August 7, 2019.
88. Budryk, Zack (August 1, 2019). "FBI memo warns QAnon poses potential terror threat: report" (<https://thehill.com/policy/national-security/fbi/455770-fbi-memo-warns-qanon-poses-a-potential-terror-threat-report>). The Hill. Retrieved April 17, 2020.
89. Weill, Kelly (August 2, 2019). "QAnon Says FBI Labeling Them a Terror Threat Just Proves There's a Deep-State Conspiracy Against Them" (<https://www.thedailybeast.com/qanon-says-fbi-labeling-them-a-terror-threat-just-proves-theres-a-deep-state-conspiracy-against-them>). The Daily Beast. Retrieved April 17, 2020.
90. Sommer, Will (April 10, 2019). "A QAnon Believer Is Running for Congress and Is Currently Unopposed in His Republican Primary" (<https://www.thedailybeast.com/matthew-lusk-meet-the-first-qanon-believer-running-for-congress>). The Daily Beast. Retrieved April 19, 2021.
91. Stella, Danielle [@2020MNCongress] (July 22, 2019). "Minnesota District 5, I'm challenging @IlhanMN for this seat, to serve the great men, women and children. I will fight for everyone's voice to be heard. stella2020.com #Stella2020 #StandUnited #IlhanMustGo" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20190723225953/https://twitter.com/2020MNCongress/status/1153501779163779072>) (Tweet). Archived from the original (<https://twitter.com/2020MNCongress/status/1153501779163779072>) on July 23, 2019. Retrieved April 19, 2021 – via Twitter.
92. Sommer, Will (July 23, 2019). "Rep. Ilhan Omar's Republican Challenger Appears to be a QAnon Conspiracy Theorist" (<https://www.thedailybeast.com/rep-ilhan-omars-republican-challenger-appears-to-be-a-qanon-conspiracy-theorist>). The Daily Beast. Retrieved April 19, 2021.
93. Swaine, Jon (July 25, 2019). "Pro-Trump Republican aiming to unseat Ilhan Omar charged with felony theft" (<https://www.theguardian.com/us-news/2019/jul/25/danielle-stella-republican-ilhan-omar-charged-felony-qanon-trump>). The Guardian. Retrieved April 19, 2021.
94. Bump, Philip (August 16, 2019). "QAnon supporters claim they were censored at Trump's New Hampshire rally" (<https://www.washingtonpost.com/politics/2019/08/16/qanon-supporters-claim-they-were-censored-trumps-new-hampshire-rally/>). The Washington Post. Retrieved April 17, 2020.
95. Sommer, Will (August 6, 2019). "Trump Campaign Ad Features QAnon Signs" (<https://www.thedailybeast.com/trump-campaign-ad-features-qanon-signs>). The Daily Beast. Retrieved August 7, 2019.
96. Sheth, Sonam (August 7, 2019). "A Trump campaign ad featured QAnon signs weeks after the FBI warned conspiracy theories are a domestic terrorism threat" (<https://www.businessinsider.com/trump-campaign-ad-qanon-fbi-conspiracy-theories-domestic-terrorism-2019-8>). Business Insider. Retrieved April 17, 2020.
97. Porter, Tom (July 11, 2020). "The Trump campaign relies on a huge network of QAnon accounts to spread conspiracy theories and disinformation, data shows" (<https://www.businessinsider.com/trump-campaign-sources-propaganda-from-qanon-network-2020-6>). Business Insider. Retrieved April 19, 2021.
98. McKay, Tom (November 19, 2020). "Great, We're at the '8kun's Admin Is an Election Security Expert' Stage of This Bullshit" (<https://gizmodo.com/great-were-at-the-8kuns-admin-is-an-election-security-1845719735>). Gizmodo. Retrieved January 20, 2021.
99. Wong, Julia Carrie (January 21, 2020). "QAnon's 'Great Awakening' failed to materialize. What's next could be worse" (<https://www.theguardian.com/us-news/2021/jan/20/qanon-biden-inauguration-trump-antisemitism-white-nationalism>). The Independent. Retrieved January 21, 2020.
00. Menn, Joseph; Culliford, Elizabeth; Paul, Katie; Monahan, Carrie (January 20, 2021). "'No plan, no Q, nothing': QAnon followers reel as Biden inaugurated" (<https://www.reuters.com/article/us-usa-biden-qanon-idUSKBN29P2VO>). Reuters. Retrieved January 21, 2021.

01. "QAnon supporters and far-right message boards hail Myanmar coup and say the same thing should happen in America" (<https://www.mediamatters.org/qanon-conspiracy-theory/qanon-supporters-and-far-right-message-boards-hail-myanmar-coup-and-say>). Media Matters for America.
02. Murphy, Mike. "Ex-Trump adviser Michael Flynn says Myanmar-like coup 'should happen' in U.S." (<https://www.marketwatch.com/story/ex-trump-adviser-michael-flynn-says-myanmar-like-coup-should-happen-in-u-s-11622426143>) MarketWatch.
03. Perrett, Connor. "Michael Flynn denies suggesting a Myanmar-style military coup should happen in the US" (<https://www.businessinsider.com/michael-flynn-backtracks-no-reason-coup-in-us-qanon-convention-2021-5>). Business Insider.
04. Multiple sources:
 - "Michael Flynn calls for Trump to suspend the constitution and declare martial law to re-run election" (<https://www.independent.co.uk/news/world/americas/us-election-2020/michael-flynn-suspend-constitution-martial-law-trump-reelection-b1765467.html>). The Independent. December 3, 2020. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20201208201019/https://www.independent.co.uk/news/world/americas/us-election-2020/michael-flynn-suspend-constitution-martial-law-trump-reelection-b1765467.html>) from the original on December 8, 2020. Retrieved December 4, 2020.
 - "Freshly pardoned Michael Flynn shares message telling Trump to 'suspend the Constitution' to hold a new presidential election" (<https://theweek.com/speedreads/952902/freshly-pardoned-michael-flynn-shares-message-telling-trump-suspend-constitution-hold-new-presidential-election>). The Week. December 2, 2020. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20201208201112/https://theweek.com/speedreads/952902/freshly-pardoned-michael-flynn-shares-message-telling-trump-suspend-constitution-hold-new-presidential-election>) from the original on December 8, 2020. Retrieved December 3, 2020.
 - "Michael Flynn Calls for Trump to 'Suspend the Constitution,' Impose Martial Law" (<https://www.mediaite.com/politics/michael-flynn-newly-pardoned-calls-for-trump-to-temporarily-suspend-the-constitution-and-impose-martial-law-edited/>). December 2, 2020. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20201208200941/https://www.mediaite.com/politics/michael-flynn-newly-pardoned-calls-for-trump-to-temporarily-suspend-the-constitution-and-impose-martial-law-edited/>) from the original on December 8, 2020. Retrieved December 3, 2020.
05. Relman, Eliza. "Ex-Trump lawyer Sidney Powell showed up to a QAnon conference in a biker vest and falsely claimed Trump could be 'reinstated' as president" (<https://www.businessinsider.com/ex-trump-lawyer-sidney-powell-tells-qanon-crowd-trump-can-be-reinstated-as-president-2021-5>). Business Insider.
06. "Trump has reportedly been telling people he'll be 'reinstated' by August" (<https://theweek.com/news/1001028/trump-has-reportedly-been-telling-people-hell-be-reinstated-by-august>). The Week.
07. Lahut, Jake. "Trump is telling people he thinks he'll be 'reinstated' as president in August, according to a report" (<https://www.businessinsider.com/trump-expects-to-be-reinstated-as-president-august-2021-6>). Business Insider.
08. Domonoske, Camila (August 12, 2020). "QAnon Supporter Who Made Bigoted Videos Wins Ga. Primary, Likely Heading To Congress" (<https://www.npr.org/2020/08/12/901628541/qanon-supporter-who-made-bigoted-videos-wins-ga-primary-likely-heading-to-congre>). NPR.org. Retrieved April 19, 2021.
09. Mutnick, Ally; Zanova, Melanie (June 17, 2020). "House Republican leaders condemn GOP candidate who made racist videos" (<https://www.politico.com/news/2020/06/17/house-republicans-condemn-gop-candidate-racist-videos-325579>). Politico. Retrieved April 19, 2021.
10. Reimann, Nicholas (June 10, 2020). "A QAnon Follower May Win This U.S. Congressional Seat" (<https://www.forbes.com/sites/nicholasreimann/2020/06/10/a-qanon-follower-may-win-this-us-congressional-seat/>). Forbes. Retrieved June 18, 2020.

11. Maclean, Dave (August 12, 2020). "Trump endorses QAnon conspiracy theorist after Republican primary win" (<https://www.independent.co.uk/news/world/americas/us-election/trump-twitter-qanon-marjorie-taylor-greene-georgia-primary-2020-election-a9666831.html>). The Independent. Retrieved April 19, 2021.
12. Trump, Donald J. [@realDonaldTrump] (August 12, 2020). "Congratulations to future Republican Star Marjorie Taylor Greene" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20200812122934/http://twitter.com/realDonaldTrump/status/1293525010523578375>) (Tweet). Archived from the original (<https://twitter.com/realDonaldTrump/status/1293525010523578375>) on August 12, 2020. Retrieved April 19, 2021 – via Twitter.
13. Lalljee, Jason (August 13, 2020). "Republican lawmaker slams far-right conspiracy theory QAnon. Trump's team fires back" (<https://www.usatoday.com/story/news/politics/2020/08/12/gop-lawmaker-calls-out-qanon-trump-team-fires-back/3358628001/>). USA Today. Retrieved April 19, 2021.
14. Solender, Andrew (August 12, 2020). "Top Trump Campaign Staffer Slams GOP Congressman After He Calls QAnon A 'Fabrication'" (<https://www.forbes.com/sites/andrewsolender/2020/08/12/top-trump-campaign-staffer-slams-gop-congressman-for-calling-qanon-a-fabrication/>). Forbes. Retrieved April 19, 2021.
15. LeBlanc, Paul (January 31, 2021). "GOP lawmaker launches new PAC to reclaim Republican Party after Trump" (<https://www.cnn.com/2021/01/31/politics/adam-kinzinger-country-first-trump/index.html>). CNN. Retrieved April 10, 2021.
16. Perkins, Jo Rae [@PerkinsForUSSen] (May 19, 2020). "#WWG1WGA #PerkinsForUSSenate #Oregon" (<https://archive.today/20200520054346/https://twitter.com/PerkinsForUSSen/status/1262895832069783553>) (Tweet). Archived from the original (<https://twitter.com/PerkinsForUSSen/status/1262895832069783553>) on May 20, 2020. Retrieved May 20, 2020 – via Twitter.
17. Greve, Joan E. (May 21, 2020). "Republican QAnon conspiracy promoter picked to run for US Senate" (<https://www.theguardian.com/us-news/2020/may/21/republican-qanon-conspiracy-theory-jo-rae-perkins>). The Guardian. Retrieved April 19, 2021.
18. Mapes, Jeff (May 22, 2020). "Oregon Republican US Senate Nominee Defends Her Interest In QAnon" (<https://www.opb.org/news/article/jo-rae-perkins-qanon-oregon-republican-senate-nominee/>). Oregon Public Broadcasting. Retrieved April 19, 2021.
19. Sidner, Sara (August 22, 2020). "The US Senate candidate who took a QAnon pledge" (<https://www.cnn.com/2020/08/22/politics/jo-rae-perkins-qanon-oregon-senate-race/index.html>). CNN. Retrieved April 19, 2021.
20. Panetta, Grace (July 1, 2020). "GOP Congressman Scott Tipton was defeated by right-wing primary challenger Lauren Boebert in Colorado's 3rd congressional district" (<https://www.businessinsider.com/lauren-boebert-defeats-scott-tipton-colorado-third-district-primary-live-results-2020-6>). Business Insider. Retrieved July 1, 2020.
21. Walters, Joanna (July 1, 2020). "Who is Lauren Boebert, the QAnon sympathizer who won a Republican primary?" (<https://www.theguardian.com/us-news/2020/jul/01/who-is-lauren-boebert-republican-primary-qanon-trump>). The Guardian. Retrieved July 22, 2020.
22. Knutson, Jacob (November 4, 2020). "Republican and QAnon supporter Lauren Boebert wins House race in Colorado" (<https://www.axios.com/lauren-boebert-house-election-colorado-qanon-9fde24b3-805b-4137-a557-2f0d55724b0f.html>). Axios. Retrieved April 19, 2021.
23. Chase, Randall (September 17, 2020). "Republican nominee for US Senate in Delaware has repeatedly promoted QAnon conspiracy theory, once called self 'flat earther'" (<https://www.chicagotribune.com/election-2020/ct-lauren-witzke-delaware-qanon-flat-earth-20200917-w6xepftn65bqjrj4tzv75oygnoa-story.html>). Chicago Tribune. Retrieved April 19, 2021.
24. Williamson, Elizabeth (October 4, 2020). "In Biden's Home State, Republican Centrist Gives Way to the Fringe" (<https://www.nytimes.com/2020/10/04/us/politics/biden-republicans-delaware.html>). The New York Times. Retrieved April 19, 2021.
25. Hall, Madison; Bendix, Aria (November 4, 2020). "Incumbent Democratic Sen. Chris Coons defeats Republican Lauren Witzke in Delaware Senate race" (<https://www.businessinsider.com/delaware-senate-election-2020-live-vote-counts-results-2020>). Business Insider. Retrieved April 19, 2021.

26. Laughland, Oliver; Silverstone, Tom (October 15, 2020). "Trump ally running for Congress believes in baseless QAnon sex-trafficking conspiracy" (<https://www.theguardian.com/us-news/2020/oct/15/ange-la-stanton-king-qanon-conspiracy-theory>). The Guardian. Retrieved April 19, 2021.
27. Rosenberg, Matthew; Haberman, Maggie (August 20, 2020). "The Republican Embrace of QAnon Goes Far Beyond Trump" (<https://www.nytimes.com/2020/08/20/us/politics/qanon-trump-republicans.html>). The New York Times. ISSN 0362-4331 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/0362-4331>). Retrieved August 25, 2020.
28. Svitek, Patrick (August 21, 2020). "The Texas GOP's new slogan echoes a conspiracy group. Its chair says there's no connection" (<https://www.texastribune.org/2020/08/21/texas-gop-slogan-storm/>). The Texas Tribune. Retrieved August 25, 2020.
29. Beer, Tommy (August 25, 2020). "Bipartisan Lawmakers Introduce House Resolution Condemning QAnon 'Cult'" (<https://www.forbes.com/sites/tommybeer/2020/08/25/bipartisan-lawmakers-introduce-house-resolution-condemning-qanon-cult/>). Forbes. Retrieved September 4, 2020.
30. "H.Res.1154 – Condemning QAnon and rejecting the conspiracy theories it promotes, 116th Congress (2019–2020)" (<https://www.congress.gov/bill/116th-congress/house-resolution/1154/text>). Congress.gov. October 2, 2020. Retrieved April 19, 2021.
31. Cassata, Donna (October 2, 2020). "House votes to condemn baseless QAnon conspiracy theory" (https://www.washingtonpost.com/powerpost/election-qanon-house-democrats/2020/10/02/272fc09e-04bd-11eb-b7ed-141dd88560ea_story.html). The Washington Post. Retrieved October 2, 2020.
32. Edmondson, Catie (September 30, 2020). "False G.O.P. Ad Prompts QAnon Death Threats Against a Democratic Congressman" (<https://www.nytimes.com/2020/09/30/technology/false-gop-ad-prompts-qanon-death-threats-against-a-democratic-congressman.html>). The New York Times. Retrieved October 2, 2020.
33. Mimms, Sarah (September 30, 2020). "A Member Of Congress Is Facing Death Threats After QAnon Went After Him" (<https://www.buzzfeednews.com/article/sarahmimms/malinowski-qanon-republican-ad-false-sexual-predator-claims>). Buzzfeed News. Retrieved October 2, 2020.
34. Sommer, Will (October 2, 2020). "17 Republican Members of Congress Vote Against Condemning QAnon" (<https://www.thedailybeast.com/17-republicans-members-of-congress-vote-against-condemning-qanon>). The Daily Beast. Retrieved October 2, 2020.
35. Mak, Aaron; Malinowski, Tom (October 1, 2020). "QAnon Is Going After Members of Congress Now" (<https://slate.com/technology/2020/10/qanon-malinowski-congress-threats.html>). Slate. Retrieved April 16, 2021.
36. Embury-Dennis, Tom (September 9, 2019). "Trump launches furious yet confused attack on rival's affair with 'flaming dancer' after promoting QAnon conspiracy theorist" (<https://www.independent.co.uk/news/world/americas/us-politics/trump-tweet-qanon-mark-sanford-affair-republican-president-2020-election-a9097461.html>). The Independent. Retrieved April 17, 2020.
37. Suebsaeng, Asawin; Sommer, Will (August 24, 2018). "Trump Meets QAnon Kook Who Believes Dems Run Pedophile Cult" (<https://www.thedailybeast.com/trump-in-oval-office-meets-promoter-of-qanon-conspiracy-theory-that-says-democrats-run-pedophile-cult>). The Daily Beast. Retrieved April 16, 2021.
38. Politi, Daniel (August 25, 2018). "Trump Snaps Photo With Top Promoter of QAnon Conspiracy Theory in Oval Office" (<https://slate.com/news-and-politics/2018/08/lionel-lebron-trump-snaps-photo-with-top-promoter-of-qanon-conspiracy-theory-in-oval-office.html>). Slate. Retrieved April 19, 2021.
39. Feldscher, Kyle (August 25, 2018). "QAnon-believing 'conspiracy analyst' meets Trump in the White House" (<https://www.cnn.com/2018/08/25/politics/donald-trump-qanon-white-house/index.html>). CNN. Retrieved August 25, 2018.
40. Itkowitz, Colby (December 28, 2019). "Trump retweets a post naming the alleged whistleblower" (https://www.washingtonpost.com/politics/trump-retweets--then-deletes--a-post-naming-the-alleged-whistleblower/2019/12/28/aa518350-2989-11ea-9c21-2c2a4d2c2166_story.html). The Washington Post. Retrieved April 16, 2021.

41. Miller, Zeke; Colvin, Jill; Seitz, Amanda (August 20, 2020). "Trump praises QAnon conspiracists, who 'like me very much'" (<https://apnews.com/article/535e145ee67dd757660157be39d05d3f>). Associated Press. Retrieved April 16, 2021.
42. Lytvynenko, Jane (August 19, 2020). "Donald Trump Just Praised QAnon, Which The FBI Has Called A Domestic Terror Threat" (<https://www.buzzfeednews.com/article/janelytvynenko/trump-praises-qanon>). BuzzFeed News. Retrieved April 16, 2021.
43. Liptak, Kevin (August 20, 2020). "Trump embraces QAnon conspiracy because 'they like me'" (<https://www.cnn.com/2020/08/19/politics/donald-trump-qanon/index.html>). CNN. Retrieved August 20, 2020.
44. Vazquez, Maegan (October 15, 2020). "Trump again refuses to denounce QAnon" (<https://www.cnn.com/2020/10/15/politics/donald-trump-qanon-town-hall/index.html>). CNN. Retrieved October 16, 2020.
45. Bump, Philip (October 15, 2020). "Rather than condemn the QAnon conspiracy theory, Trump elevates its dangerous central assertion" (<https://www.washingtonpost.com/politics/2020/10/15/rather-than-condemn-qanon-conspiracy-theory-trump-elevates-its-dangerous-central-assertion/>). The Washington Post. Retrieved October 16, 2020.
46. Altman, Howard (December 5, 2018). "Double trouble for Broward deputy: One patch for QAnon conspiracy, another for his SWAT team" (<https://tampabay.com/news/military/double-trouble-for-broward-deputy-one-patch-for-qanon-conspiracy-another-for-his-swat-team-20181204/>). Tampa Bay Times. Retrieved April 17, 2020.
47. Jack Brewster (August 21, 2020). "Pence Dismisses QAnon – But Avoids Criticizing Trump Or His Role In Pushing Theory" (<https://www.forbes.com/sites/jackbrewster/2020/08/21/pence-dismisses-qanon-but-avoids-criticizing-trump-or-his-role-pushing-theory/>). Forbes. Retrieved August 26, 2020.
48. Matthew Choi (August 21, 2020). "Pence denies hearing Trump embrace QAnon" (<https://www.politico.com/news/2020/08/21/mike-pence-trump-qanon-embrace-399917>). Politico. Retrieved August 26, 2020.
49. Gardner, Amy; Crites, Alice (July 21, 2019). "Secret donors and Trump allies: Inside the operation to push noncitizen voting laws in Florida and other states" (https://www.washingtonpost.com/politics/secret-donors-and-trump-allies-inside-the-operation-to-push-noncitizen-voting-laws-in-florida-and-other-states/2019/07/21/e0604e2e-a359-11e9-b8c8-75dae2607e60_story.html). The Washington Post. Retrieved April 19, 2021.
50. Friedman, Dan (August 16, 2019). "Michael Flynn wants a judge to allow him to travel to a conference held by a QAnon fan" (<https://www.motherjones.com/politics/2019/08/michael-flynn-wants-a-judge-to-allow-him-to-travel-to-a-conference-held-by-a-qanon-fan/>). Mother Jones. Retrieved April 19, 2021.
51. Connolly, Griffin (July 5, 2020). "Former Trump aide Flynn appears to make pledge to QAnon in July 4 video" (<https://www.independent.co.uk/news/world/americas/us-politics/trump-flynn-qanon-conspiracy-theory-independence-day-speech-slogan-a9602596.html>). The Independent. Retrieved April 19, 2021.
52. Cohen, Marshall (July 7, 2020). "Michael Flynn posts video featuring QAnon slogans" (<https://edition.cnn.com/2020/07/07/politics/michael-flynn-qanon-video/index.html>). CNN. Retrieved April 19, 2021.
53. Jarvis, Jacob (July 6, 2020). "Michael Flynn's Lawyer Denies Ex-Trump Aide Intentionally Used QAnon Slogan" (<https://www.newsweek.com/michael-flynn-lawyer-denies-qanon-slogan-1515574>). Newsweek. Retrieved April 19, 2021.
54. Chapman, Matthew (June 27, 2020). "GOP Senate candidate films herself taking QAnon 'digital soldier oath'" (<https://www.rawstory.com/2020/06/gop-senate-candidate-films-herself-taking-qanon-digital-soldier-oath/>). Raw Story. Retrieved April 19, 2021.
55. Moore, Thomas (March 27, 2021). "Michael Flynn's brother sues CNN for $75M over QAnon reports" (<https://thehill.com/homenews/media/545225-michael-flynns-brother-sues-cnn-for-75m>). The Hill. Retrieved April 19, 2021.

56. Takala, Rudy (March 26, 2021). "Michael Flynn's Family Files $75 Million Defamation Suit Against CNN Over Segment Claiming They Support QAnon" (<https://www.mediaite.com/news/michael-flynn-family-files-75-million-defamation-suit-against-cnn-over-segment-claiming-they-support-qanon/>). Mediaite. Retrieved April 19, 2021.
57. Sommer, Will (October 17, 2019). "Rudy Giuliani's Twitter Feed Is a Boomer Conspiracy-Theory Sh*tshow" (<https://www.thedailybeast.com/rudy-giulianis-twitter-feed-is-a-boomer-conspiracy-theory-shtshow>). The Daily Beast. Retrieved October 4, 2020.
58. EDT, Jon Jackson On 4/19/21 at 1:55 PM (April 19, 2021). "One-fifth of QAnon posts in US originated in foreign countries like China, Russia, analysis shows" (<https://www.newsweek.com/qanon-foreign-online-1584765>). Newsweek. Retrieved April 28, 2021.
59. Zachary Cohen. "China and Russia 'weaponized' QAnon conspiracy around time of US Capitol attack, report says" (<https://www.cnn.com/2021/04/19/politics/qanon-russia-china-amplification/index.html>). CNN. Retrieved April 28, 2021.
60. Blue, Miranda (March 15, 2018). "Operation Rescue Hypes QAnon 'Blockbuster Intel Drop' About Planned Parenthood" (<https://www.rightwingwatch.org/post/operation-rescue-hypes-qanon-blockbuster-intel-drop-about-planned-parenthood/>). Right Wing Watch. Retrieved April 5, 2018.
61. Sullenger, Cheryl (March 13, 2018). "Blockbuster Intel Drop Reveals Trump is Trying to 'End' Planned Parenthood – Twitter Attempts Censorship" (<https://www.operationrescue.org/archives/blockbuster-intel-drop-reveals-trump-is-trying-to-end-planned-parenthood-twitter-attempts-censorship/>). Operation Rescue. Retrieved April 5, 2018.
62. Gamma, Viktor (May 25, 2018). "Доживают ли Гавайи свои последние дни?" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20180705233130/http://rg.kiev.ua/page5/article41143>) [Are we witnessing the final days of Hawaii?]. Rabochaya Gazeta (in Russian). Archived from the original (<http://rg.kiev.ua/page5/article41143>) on July 5, 2018. Retrieved July 5, 2018.
63. Cole, Devan (December 19, 2017). "Roseanne tweets support of Trump conspiracy theory, confuses Twitter" (<https://edition.cnn.com/2018/03/31/politics/roseanne-barr-conspiracy-tweets/index.html>). CNN. Retrieved April 1, 2018.
64. Weigel, David (March 31, 2018). "The conspiracy theory behind a curious Roseanne Barr tweet, explained" (<https://www.washingtonpost.com/news/the-fix/wp/2018/03/31/the-conspiracy-theory-behind-a-curious-roseanne-barr-tweet-explained/>). The Washington Post. ISSN 0190-8286 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/0190-8286>). Retrieved April 1, 2018.
65. Bowden, Tohn (March 31, 2018). "Roseanne Barr faces backlash over Trump conspiracy theory tweet" (<https://thehill.com/homenews/media/381123-roseanne-barr-faces-social-media-backlash-over-trump-conspiracy-theory-tweet>). The Hill. Retrieved March 31, 2018.
66. Goldberg, Michelle (April 6, 2018). "The Conspiracy Theory That Says Trump Is a Genius" (<https://www.nytimes.com/2018/04/06/opinion/qanon-trump-conspiracy-theory.html>). The New York Times. ISSN 0362-4331 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/0362-4331>). Retrieved April 6, 2018.
67. Chan, Melissa (June 28, 2018). "25 Most Influential People on the Internet" (<https://time.com/5324130/most-influential-internet/>). TIME. ISSN 0040-781X (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/0040-781X>). Retrieved June 28, 2018.
68. March, William (July 16, 2018). "Conspiracy theorist QAnon promoted, then deleted, by Hillsborough County GOP" (<https://www.tampabay.com/florida-politics/buzz/2018/07/16/conspiracy-theorist-qanon-promoted-then-deleted-by-hillsborough-county-gop/>). Tampa Bay Times. ISSN 2327-9052 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/2327-9052>). Retrieved July 16, 2018.
69. Porter, Tom (August 1, 2018). "QAnon: Conspiracy theorists determined to expose a 'deep state' child abuse ring show up to support Trump in Tampa" (<https://www.newsweek.com/what-qanon-conspiracy-theorists-showed-support-trump-tampa-rally-1051708>). Newsweek. Retrieved August 1, 2018.
70. Jackson, Hallie (August 1, 2018). "Who is 'QAnon'? Bizarre conspiracy cult leaps from web to Trump rally" (<https://www.msnbc.com/hallie-jackson/watch/-we-are-q-conspiracy-cult-leaps-from-the-internet-to-trump-rally-1289927747781>). MSNBC Live. Retrieved August 1, 2018.

71. Williams, Brian (August 2, 2018). "What does the conspiracy group QAnon have to do with Trump?" (<https://www.msnbc.com/brian-williams/watch/what-does-the-conspiracy-group-qanon-have-to-do-wit-h-trump-1290472515536>). The 11th Hour with Brian Williams. Retrieved August 2, 2018.
72. Hayes, Chris (August 1, 2018). "What is QAnon?" (<https://www.msnbc.com/all-in/watch/what-is-qanon-1290356291810>). All In with Chris Hayes. Retrieved August 2, 2018.
73. Woodruff, Judy (August 2, 2018). "How the false, fringe 'QAnon' conspiracy theory aims to protect Trump" (<https://www.pbs.org/newshour/show/how-the-false-fringe-qanon-conspiracy-theory-aims-to-protect-trump>). PBS NewsHour. Retrieved August 2, 2018.
74. Roberts, Molly (August 2, 2018). "Opinion: QAnon is terrifying. This is why" (<https://www.washingtonpost.com/blogs/post-partisan/wp/2018/08/02/what-makes-qanon-so-scary/>). The Washington Post. Retrieved October 31, 2018.
75. Francis, Nathan (August 4, 2018). "Sean Spicer Just Sparked A Civil War Among Reddit's Trump-Loving Corners By Saying That QAnon Is Fake" (<https://www.inquisitr.com/5014935/sean-spicer-just-sparked-a-civil-war-among-reddits-trump-loving-corners-by-saying-that-qanon-is-fake/>). The Inquisitr. Retrieved August 4, 2018.
76. Wyrich, Andrew (March 15, 2018). "Reddit bans popular deep state conspiracy forum for 'inciting violence'" (https://www.dailydot.com/layer8/reddit-bans-r-cbts_stream/). The Daily Dot. Retrieved April 5, 2018.
77. Alexander, Julia (March 15, 2018). "How closely do Discord and Reddit work together?" (<https://www.polygon.com/2018/3/15/17123964/reddit-discord-server-bans-cbts-uncensored-news>). Polygon. Retrieved April 5, 2018.
78. Stephen, Bijan (September 12, 2018). "Reddit's QAnon ban points to how it's tracking toxic communities" (<https://www.theverge.com/2018/9/12/17847186/reddit-qanon-milliondollarextreme-ban-sam-hyde>). The Verge. Retrieved September 12, 2018.
79. Sinderson, Caroline (September 27, 2017). "There's an alt-right version of everything" (<https://qz.com/1086797/theres-an-alt-right-version-of-everything/>). Quartz. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20180116193347/https://qz.com/1086797/theres-an-alt-right-version-of-everything/>) from the original on January 16, 2018. Retrieved September 19, 2018.
80. Roose, Kevin (December 11, 2018). "The 'alt-right' created a parallel internet. It's a holy mess" (<https://www.cnbc.com/2017/12/11/the-alt-right-created-a-parallel-internet-its-a-holy-mess.html>). CNBC. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20180116193357/https://www.cnbc.com/2017/12/11/the-alt-right-created-a-parallel-internet-its-a-holy-mess.html>) from the original on January 16, 2018. Retrieved September 19, 2018.
81. "QDrops App | Redpill with ease! #QAnon" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20180610000327/https://qdropsapp.com/>). June 10, 2018. Archived from the original (<https://qdropsapp.com/>) on June 10, 2018. Retrieved February 15, 2021.
82. McKay, Tom (July 17, 2018). "Apple Yanks QAnon-Themed App From App Store After Reporters Notice, Still on Play Store Though" (<https://gizmodo.com/apple-yanks-qanon-themed-app-from-app-store-after-repor-1827646947>). Gizmodo. Retrieved February 15, 2021.
83. Orr, Andrew (July 17, 2018). "Apple Pulls Right-Wing Conspiracy QDrops App From App Store" (<https://www.macobserver.com/news/right-wing-conspiracy-app/>). The Mac Observer. Retrieved February 15, 2021.
84. Silver, Stephen (July 17, 2018). "Apple pulls 'QDrops' from App Store, for-pay app pushed wild conspiracy theory" (<https://appleinsider.com/articles/18/07/17/apple-pulls-qdrops-from-app-store-for-pay-app-pushed-wild-pro-trump-conspiracy-theory>). AppleInsider. Retrieved February 15, 2021.
85. Collins, Ben; Zadrozny, Brandy (July 16, 2018). "Apple, Google cashed in on Pizzagate-offshoot conspiracy app" (<https://www.nbcnews.com/tech/tech-news/exclusive-apple-google-cashed-pizzagate-offshoot-conspiracy-app-n891726>). NBC News. Retrieved July 19, 2018.

86. Kaplan, Alex (May 21, 2020). "After months of inaction, Google has finally removed QAnon apps that violated terms of service from its store" (<https://www.mediamatters.org/qanon-conspiracy-theory/after-months-inaction-google-has-finally-removed-qanon-apps-violated-terms>). Media Matters for America. Retrieved February 15, 2021.
87. Nieva, Richard (May 21, 2020). "Google removes QAnon apps from Play Store for violating terms" (<https://www.cnet.com/news/google-removes-qanon-apps-from-play-store-for-violating-terms/>). CNET. Retrieved February 15, 2021.
88. "April 2020 Coordinated Inauthentic Behavior Report" (<https://about.fb.com/news/2020/05/april-cib-report/>). About Facebook. May 5, 2020. Retrieved May 11, 2020.
89. Ortutay, Barbara (May 5, 2020). "Facebook removes accounts linked to QAnon conspiracy theory" (<https://apnews.com/article/0fdb9ae690c64c0e3e9d26f9d93aab0>). Associated Press. Retrieved May 11, 2020.
90. "An Update to How We Address Movements and Organizations Tied to Violence" (<https://about.fb.com/news/2020/08/addressing-movements-and-organizations-tied-to-violence/>). Facebook. August 19, 2020. Retrieved August 20, 2020.
91. Robinson, Olga; Coleman, Alistair; Carmichael, Flora (August 20, 2020). "QAnon: Facebook takes action on conspiracy groups" (<https://www.bbc.com/news/technology-53849295>). BBC News. Retrieved August 20, 2020.
92. Ortutay, Barbara (August 20, 2020). "Facebook bans some, but not all, QAnon groups and accounts" (<https://abcnews.go.com/Politics/wireStory/facebook-bans-qanon-groups-accounts-72474326>). ABC News. Retrieved August 22, 2020.
93. Murphy, Hannah; Venkataramakrishnan, Siddharth (October 6, 2020). "Facebook to remove all QAnon pages ahead of US election" (<https://www.ft.com/content/53c9311b-8590-49a7-8904-de6adb4ca931>). Financial Times. Retrieved October 7, 2020.
94. Wong, Julia Carrie (October 7, 2020). "Facebook to ban QAnon-themed groups, pages and accounts in crackdown" (<https://www.theguardian.com/technology/2020/oct/06/qanon-facebook-ban-conspiracy-theory-groups>). The Guardian. Retrieved October 7, 2020.
95. "An Update to How We Address Movements and Organizations Tied to Violence (Update on October 6, 2020)" (<https://about.fb.com/news/2020/08/addressing-movements-and-organizations-tied-to-violence/>). About Facebook. August 19, 2020. Retrieved October 6, 2020.
96. Iyengar, Rishi (July 21, 2020). "Twitter takes down 7,000 accounts linked to QAnon" (<https://www.cnn.com/2020/07/21/tech/twitter-qanon-crackdown/index.html>). CNN. Retrieved July 22, 2020.
97. Collins, Ben; Zadrozny, Brandy (July 22, 2020). "Twitter bans 7,000 QAnon accounts, limits 150,000 others as part of broad crackdown" (<https://www.nbcnews.com/tech/tech-news/twitter-bans-7-000-qanon-accounts-limits-150-000-others-n1234541>). NBC News. Retrieved July 22, 2020.
98. Frenkel, Sheera (October 7, 2020). "Tracking Viral Misinformation Ahead of the 2020 Election" (<https://www.nytimes.com/live/2020/2020-election-misinformation-distortions>). The New York Times. Retrieved April 19, 2021.
99. Kan, Michael (October 7, 2020). "Etsy to Remove All QAnon Merchandise" (<https://www.pcmag.com/news/etsy-to-remove-all-qanon-merchandise>). PC Magazine. Retrieved October 7, 2020.
00. Yurieff, Kaya (October 12, 2020). "YouTube CEO won't say if company will ban QAnon" (<https://www.cnn.com/2020/10/12/tech/youtube-susan-wojicki-boss-files/index.html>). CNN. Retrieved October 15, 2020.
01. Roose, Kevin (October 15, 2020). "YouTube Cracks Down on QAnon Conspiracy Theory, Citing Offline Violence" (<https://www.nytimes.com/2020/10/15/technology/youtube-bans-qanon-violence.html>). The New York Times. Retrieved October 15, 2020.
02. "Managing harmful conspiracy theories on YouTube" (<https://blog.youtube/news-and-events/harmful-conspiracy-theories-youtube>). YouTube Official Blog. October 15, 2020. Retrieved October 15, 2020.

03. Dwoskin, Elizabeth; Stanley-Becker, Isaac (October 15, 2020). "YouTube joins Silicon Valley peers in preelection QAnon clampdown" (<https://www.washingtonpost.com/technology/2020/10/15/youtube-qanon-crackdown/>). The Washington Post. Retrieved October 15, 2020.
04. Ovide, Shira (August 20, 2020). "A playbook for combating QAnon" (<https://www.nytimes.com/2020/08/13/technology/qanon-internet-companies.html>). The New York Times. Retrieved January 18, 2021.
05. University of Cambridge (October 9, 2020). "Game 'pre-bunks' COVID-19 conspiracies as part of UK's fight against fake news" (https://www.eurekalert.org/pub_releases/2020-10/uoc-gc100920.php). EurekaAlert!. Retrieved January 18, 2021.
06. Goforth, Claire (January 28, 2021). "Here's why prominent conservatives now are calling QAnon a 'psyop'" (<https://www.dailydot.com/debug/conservatives-claim-qanon-psyop/>). The Daily Dot. Retrieved March 26, 2021.
07. Horowitz, Justin (January 26, 2021). "After embracing QAnon, Steve Bannon now presents the conspiracy theory as an "FBI psyop" " (<https://www.mediamatters.org/steve-bannon/after-embracing-qanon-steve-bannon-now-presents-conspiracy-theory-fbi-psyop>). Media Matters for America. Retrieved March 26, 2021.
08. Ruelas, Richard (August 7, 2018). "Two Arizona arrests have ties to QAnon conspiracy theory movement" (<https://www.azcentral.com/story/news/politics/arizona/2018/08/07/qanon-ties-two-arizona-arrests-conspiracy-theory-trump/920336002/>). The Arizona Republic. Retrieved August 15, 2019.
09. Prendergast, Curt (June 4, 2018). "No evidence to support child sex-trafficking claims at Tucson homeless camp, police say" (https://tucson.com/news/local/no-evidence-to-support-child-sex-trafficking-claims-at-tucson/article_d464a498-6937-58ad-9fdf-2253ce4e2e2c.html). Arizona Daily Star. Archived (https://web.archive.org/web/20180605144700/http://tucson.com/news/local/no-evidence-to-support-child-sex-trafficking-claims-at-tucson/article_d464a498-6937-58ad-9fdf-2253ce4e2e2c.html) from the original on June 5, 2018. Retrieved April 19, 2021.
10. Hernandez, Salvador (July 23, 2018). "A Man Pushing A "Child Sex Camp" Conspiracy Theory Has Been Arrested For Trespassing" (<https://www.buzzfeednews.com/article/salvadorhernandez/a-man-pushing-a-child-sex-camp-conspiracy-theory-has-been>). BuzzFeed News. Retrieved April 19, 2021.
11. Mills, Mark A. [@MarkAMills1] (June 15, 2018). "@KTNV I was there, he let my truck go by ... This is the [sign] he was holding up" (<https://twitter.com/MarkAMills1/status/1007721528631353344>) (Tweet). Retrieved April 19, 2021 – via Twitter.
12. Hawkins, Dave (June 22, 2018). "Henderson man who parked armored vehicle near Hoover Dam indicted" (<https://www.reviewjournal.com/crime/henderson-man-who-parked-armored-vehicle-near-hoover-dam-indicted/>). Las Vegas Review-Journal. Retrieved August 6, 2018.
13. Morlin, Bill (July 20, 2018). "Terrorism suspect makes reference to extremist conspiracies" (<https://www.splcenter.org/hatewatch/2018/07/20/terrorism-suspect-makes-reference-extremist-conspiracies>). Southern Poverty Law Center. Retrieved August 2, 2018.
14. Sommer, Will (June 19, 2018). "QAnon, the Crazy Pro-Trump Conspiracy, Melts Down Over OIG Report" (<https://www.thedailybeast.com/qanon-the-crazy-pro-trump-conspiracy-melts-down-over-oig-report>). The Daily Beast. Retrieved April 19, 2021.
15. Ruelas, Richard (January 4, 2021). "QAnon follower sentenced to nearly 8 years in prison for standoff near Hoover Dam" (<https://www.azcentral.com/story/news/local/arizona/2021/01/04/qanon-follower-matthew-wright-sentenced-hoover-dam-bridge-standoff/4134612001/>). The Arizona Republic. Retrieved April 19, 2021.
16. Mezzofiore, Gianluca; Lear, Justin (August 3, 2018). "How a right-wing conspiracy theory is going mainstream" (<https://edition.cnn.com/2018/08/01/us/youtube-qanon-8chan-conspiracy-theory-trnd/index.html>). CNN. Retrieved September 19, 2018.
17. Sommer, Will (July 30, 2018). "Michael Avenatti Targeted in Person by QAnon, the Crazy Pro-Trump Conspiracy Theory" (<https://www.thedailybeast.com/avenatti-targeted-in-person-by-qanon-the-crazy-pro-trump-conspiracy-theory>). The Daily Beast. Retrieved September 19, 2018.

18. Barnes, Luke (July 31, 2018). "Stormy Daniels' lawyer targeted by supporters of pro-Trump conspiracy theory" (<https://thinkprogress.org/stormy-daniels-lawyer-targeted-by-qanon-conspiracy-theory-d2b1f07d0e1f/>). ThinkProgress. Retrieved September 19, 2018.
19. Embury-Dennis, Tom (August 1, 2018). "Trump supporters filmed hurling sustained abuse at journalists following 'Make America Great Again' rally" (<https://www.independent.co.uk/news/world/americas/trump-florida-rally-supporters-cnn-jim-acosta-tampa-maga-a8472436.html>). The Independent. ISSN 0951-9467 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/0951-9467>). Retrieved August 1, 2018.
20. Fredericks, Bob (July 1, 2018). "Sanders denounces media hecklers at Trump rally – then slams the media" (<https://nypost.com/2018/08/01/sanders-denounces-media-hecklers-at-trump-rally-then-slams-the-media/>). New York Post. ISSN 1090-3321 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/1090-3321>). Retrieved July 1, 2018.
21. Cillizza, Chris (August 1, 2018). "QAnon is the one conspiracy theory to rule them all" (<https://edition.cnn.com/2018/08/01/politics/qanon-trump/>). CNN. Retrieved August 1, 2018.
22. Huckabee Sanders, Sarah (August 1, 2018). "Press Briefing by Press Secretary Sarah Sanders" (<https://trumpwhitehouse.archives.gov/briefings-statements/press-briefing-press-secretary-sarah-sanders-080118/>). whitehouse.gov (Press release). James S. Brady Press Briefing Room. Retrieved August 2, 2018 – via National Archives.
23. "QAnon conspiracy theory on James Comey shuts school festival" (<https://www.bbc.com/news/world-us-canada-48231708>). BBC News. May 10, 2019. Retrieved May 10, 2019.
24. Veklerov, Kimberly (May 9, 2019). "Conspiracy theory on James Comey tweet cancels NorCal charter school festival" (<https://www.sfchronicle.com/bayarea/article/Conspiracy-theory-on-James-Comey-tweet-cancels-13832691.php>). San Francisco Chronicle. Retrieved May 10, 2019.
25. Watkins, Ali (July 21, 2019). "He Wasn't Seeking to Kill a Mob Boss. He Was Trying to Help Trump, His Lawyer Says" (<https://www.nytimes.com/2019/07/21/nyregion/gambino-shooting-anthony-comello-frank-cali.html>). The New York Times. Retrieved April 19, 2021.
26. Reinstein, Julia (March 18, 2019). "The Suspected Gambino Mob Boss Killer Had Apparent QAnon Messages Scrawled On His Hands In Court" (<https://www.buzzfeednews.com/article/juliareinstein/anthony-comello-francesco-cali-frankie-boy-shooting-maga>). BuzzFeed News. Retrieved April 19, 2021.
27. Johnson, Timothy (July 22, 2019). "Alleged QAnon-inspired murderer was obsessed with Fox News" (<https://www.mediamatters.org/blog/2019/07/22/alleged-qanon-inspired-murderer-was-obsessed-fox-news/224296>). Media Matters for America. Retrieved October 5, 2020.
28. Fieldstadt, Elisha (January 7, 2020). "Colorado woman, inspired by QAnon conspiracy, sought to kidnap her own child, police say" (<https://www.nbcnews.com/news/crime-courts/colorado-mom-inspired-qanon-conspiracy-sought-kidnap-her-own-child-n1111711>). NBC News. Retrieved September 11, 2020.
29. Slevin, Colleen. "Woman accused in QAnon kidnapping plot pleads not guilty" (<https://apnews.com/article/technology-kidnapping-archive-denver-colorado-4f4969c0870a33ce771504c3f1f4586e>). Associated Press. Retrieved April 19, 2021.
30. Sommer, Will (March 28, 2020). "QAnon Mom Charged With Kidnapping Her Kids" (<https://www.thedailybeast.com/qanon-mom-charged-with-kidnapping-her-kids>). The Daily Beast. Retrieved September 11, 2020.
31. Townsend, Mark (January 11, 2020). "Fan of Trump and Farage raises far-right 'Q' flag at his Cornish castle" (<https://www.theguardian.com/politics/2020/jan/11/trump-and-farage-supporter-flies-flag-for-qanon-rar-right-conspiracy>). The Guardian. Retrieved April 19, 2021.
32. "Far-right 'QAnon' conspiracy theory flag flown over Cornish castle" (<https://inews.co.uk/news/uk/john-mapping-camelot-castle-tintagel-donald-trump-qanon-flag-theory-1362499>). i. January 11, 2020. Retrieved April 19, 2021.
33. Sommer, Will (April 30, 2020). "A QAnon Devotee Live-Streamed Her Trip to N.Y. to 'Take Out' Joe Biden" (<https://www.thedailybeast.com/a-qanon-devotee-live-streamed-her-trip-to-ny-to-take-out-joe-biden>). The Daily Beast. Retrieved May 8, 2020.

34. Harris, Margot (May 1, 2020). "A woman inspired by QAnon conspiracy videos was arrested after live-streaming her trip to 'take out' Joe Biden" (<https://www.insider.com/biden-qanon-supporter-arrested-attempt-live-streaming-trip-to-take-2020-5>). Insider.com. Retrieved July 4, 2020.
35. Healy, Jack; Baker, Mike (September 11, 2020). "In Oregon, a Year of Political Tumult Extends to Devastating Wildfires" (<https://www.nytimes.com/2020/09/11/us/fires-oregon-antifa-rumors.html>). The New York Times. Retrieved April 19, 2021.
36. Zadrozny, Brandy; Collins, Ben. "West Coast officials are already fighting wildfires. Now they're fighting misinformation, too" (<https://www.nbcnews.com/tech/security/wildfires-rage-false-antifa-rumor-s-spur-pleas-police-n1239881>). NBC News. Retrieved April 19, 2021.
37. O'Sullivan, Donie; Toropin, Konstantin (September 11, 2020). "QAnon fans spread fake claims about real fires in Oregon" (<https://www.cnn.com/2020/09/11/tech/qanon-oregon-fire-conspiracy-theory/index.html>). CNN. Retrieved April 19, 2021.
38. Collins, Ben (September 1, 2020). "Trump's 'plane loaded with thugs' conspiracy theory matches months-old rumor" (<https://www.nbcnews.com/politics/politics-news/trump-s-plane-loaded-thugs-rumor-matches-months-old-facebook-n1238962>). NBC News. Retrieved April 19, 2021.
39. Feldman, Josh (September 1, 2020). "Trump: 'Weak' Joe Biden Won't Calm Things Down" (<https://www.mediaite.com/tv/trump-weak-biden-wont-calm-things-down-people-that-are-in-the-dark-shadows-are-pulling-his-strings/>). Mediaite. Retrieved April 16, 2021.
40. Zadrozny, Brandy; Collins, Ben (June 2, 2020). "False antifa rumors about a suburban invasion take over neighborhood social media apps" (<https://www.nbcnews.com/tech/tech-news/antifa-rumors-spread-local-social-media-no-evidence-n1222486>). NBC News. Retrieved April 19, 2021.
41. Anglen, Robert; Ruelas, Richard; Longhi, Lorraine (June 5, 2020). "Fake social media posts incite fear of suburban marauders, rape and murder across the U.S." (<https://www.azcentral.com/story/news/local/arizona-investigations/2020/06/05/fake-social-media-posts-incite-arizona-fear-marauders-rape-and-murder/3125894001/>) The Arizona Republic. Retrieved April 16, 2021.
42. Zadrozny, Brandy; Collins, Ben (June 6, 2020). "In Klamath Falls, Oregon, victory declared over antifa, which never showed up" (<https://www.nbcnews.com/tech/social-media/klamath-falls-oregon-victory-declared-over-antifa-which-never-showed-n1226681>). NBC News. Retrieved April 19, 2021.
43. Wolfe, Jan (September 3, 2020). "U.S. Attorney General Barr says antifa 'flying around' U.S. to incite violence" (<https://www.reuters.com/article/us-global-race-barr-police-idUSKBN25T3AI>). Reuters. Retrieved April 19, 2021.
44. "Two Arrested After Police Get Tip of Convention Center Threat" (<https://www.nbcphiladelphia.com/news/local/two-arrested-after-police-get-tip-of-convention-center-threat/2587411/>). NBC10 Philadelphia. November 6, 2020. Retrieved January 8, 2021.
45. "2 Heavily Armed Men Found Outside Pennsylvania Convention Center Taken Into Custody As Police Investigate Threat Of Attack" (<https://philadelphia.cbslocal.com/2020/11/06/2-heavily-armed-men-found-outside-pennsylvania-convention-center-taken-into-custody-as-police-investigate-threat-of-attack/>). November 6, 2020. Retrieved November 6, 2020.
46. "QAnon's Dominion voter fraud conspiracy theory reaches the president" (<https://www.nbcnews.com/tech/tech-news/q-fades-qanon-s-dominion-voter-fraud-conspiracy-theory-reaches-n1247780>). NBC News. Retrieved April 19, 2021.
47. Nicas, Jack (November 11, 2020). "No, Dominion voting machines did not delete Trump votes" (<https://www.nytimes.com/2020/11/11/technology/no-dominion-voting-machines-did-not-delete-trump-votes.html>). The New York Times. Retrieved April 19, 2021.
48. Tucker, Eric; Bajak, Frank (November 13, 2020). "Repudiating Trump, officials say election 'most secure'" (<https://apnews.com/article/top-officials-elections-most-secure-66f9361084ccbc461e3bbf42861057a5>). AP News. Retrieved April 19, 2021.

49. Multiple sources:

- Gilbert, David (January 25, 2021). "QAnon Thinks Trump Will Become President Again on March 4" (<https://www.vice.com/en/article/88akpx/qanon-thinks-trump-will-become-president-again-on-march-4>). Vice. Retrieved April 16, 2021.
 - "Former WA Attorney General on QAnon theory claiming Trump will be president on March 4" (<https://mynorthwest.com/2521073/mckenna-qanon-1871-act-constitution/>). MyNorthwest.com. January 29, 2021. Retrieved April 16, 2021.
 - Zidan, Karim (February 10, 2021). "'Hold the Line': QAnon Adherents Claim Trump Will Become President Again on March 4" (<https://www.rightwingwatch.org/post/hold-the-line-qanon-adherents-claim-trump-will-become-president-again-on-march-4/>). Right Wing Watch. Retrieved April 19, 2021.
 - Feeld, Julian (February 10, 2021). "Podcaster explains QAnon belief behind March 4th" (<https://edition.cnn.com/videos/media/2021/02/10/qanon-march-fourth-conspiracy-theory-julian-feeld-newday-camerota-vpx.cnn>). CNN Video. Retrieved February 13, 2021.
50. Kanno-Youngs, Zolan; Rosenberg, Matthew (March 3, 2021). "Capitol Police Warn of Threat on Thursday, and House Cancels the Day's Session" (<https://www.nytimes.com/2021/03/03/us/politics/capitol-riot-qanon-trump.html>). The New York Times. Retrieved April 19, 2021.
51. Czachor, Emily (March 4, 2021). "QAnon Theorists Switch Date to March 20 After No Trump Inauguration, Call the 4th 'False Flag'" (<https://www.newsweek.com/qanon-theorists-switch-date-march-20-after-no-trump-inauguration-call-4th-false-flag-1573871>). Newsweek. Retrieved March 5, 2021.
52. Keller, Aaron (January 6, 2021). "Pro-Trump Woman Shot and Killed at U.S. Capitol Retweeted Attorney Lin Wood's 'Must Be Done' List Before She Died" (<https://lawandcrime.com/2020-election/pro-trump-woman-shot-and-killed-at-u-s-capitol-retweeted-attorney-lin-woods-must-be-done-list-before-she-died/>). Law & Crime. Retrieved April 19, 2021. "A Twitter account linked to Babbitt, which was reviewed extensively by Law&Crime Wednesday night, indicates that Babbitt was a staunch QAnon adherent who retweeted dozens of conspiracy-theory-laden missives originally posted by Georgia attorney L. Lin Wood."
53. Culbertson, Alix (January 8, 2021). "US Capitol: Q-Anon, Confederate flag man, and Baked Alaska – here are the people who stormed the building" (<https://news.sky.com/story/us-capitol-from-neo-nazis-and-conspiracy-theorists-to-a-politician-who-stormed-the-capitol-12181628>). Sky News. Retrieved January 8, 2021.
54. Venkataramakrishnan, Siddharth; Manson, Katrina (January 7, 2021). "Who were the Capitol insurrectionists?" (<https://www.ft.com/content/8ee1f26a-619a-46d2-98c2-be3eb34fcd5e>). Financial Times. Retrieved January 8, 2021.
55. Ruelas, Richard (January 6, 2021). "QAnon supporter from Arizona dressed in fur and horns joins storming of US Capitol" (<https://www.usatoday.com/story/news/politics/2021/01/06/arizona-qanon-supporter-jake-angeli-joins-storming-us-capitol/6570514002/>). USA TODAY. Retrieved January 10, 2021.
56. Booker, Brakkton (January 12, 2021). "Facebook Removes 'Stop The Steal' Content; Twitter Suspends QAnon Accounts" (<https://www.npr.org/sections/insurrection-at-the-capitol/2021/01/12/956003580/facebook-removes-stop-the-steal-content-twitter-suspends-qanon-accounts>). NPR.org. Retrieved January 14, 2021.
57. "Quantifying The Q Conspiracy: A Data-Driven Approach to Understanding the Threat Posed by QAnon" (<https://thesoufancenter.org/research/quantifying-the-q-conspiracy-a-data-driven-approach-to-understanding-the-threat-posed-by-qanon/>). The Soufan Center. April 19, 2021. Retrieved April 19, 2021.
58. Cohen, Zachary (April 19, 2021). "China and Russia 'weaponized' QAnon conspiracy around time of US Capitol attack, report says" (<https://www.cnn.com/2021/04/19/politics/qanon-russia-china-amplification/index.html>). CNN. Retrieved April 19, 2021.

59. Bekiempis, Victoria (January 19, 2021). "Ghislaine Maxwell court hearing disrupted by apparent QAnon followers" (<https://www.theguardian.com/us-news/2021/jan/19/ghislaine-maxwell-court-proceeding-qanon>). The Guardian. Retrieved January 20, 2021.
60. Hodjat, Arya (January 19, 2021). "QAnon Loyalists Cause Chaos During Ghislaine Maxwell Hearing" (<https://www.thedailybeast.com/hearing-on-release-of-sealed-ghislaine-maxwell-court-docs-interrupted-by-qanon-cultists>). The Daily Beast. Retrieved January 20, 2021.
61. Hall, Kevin G.; Wieder, Ben; Brown, Julie K. (January 19, 2021). "Judge orders release of more Ghislaine Maxwell records – minus salacious details" (<https://www.miamiherald.com/news/state/florida/article248600605.html>). Miami Herald. Retrieved January 21, 2021.

External links

- Dunning, Brian (July 28, 2020). "Skeptoid #738: The QAnon Conspiracy" (<https://skeptoid.com/episodes/4738>). Skeptoid.
 - "QAnon Offenders in the United States" (https://www.start.umd.edu/pubs/START_PIRUS_QAnon_Feb2021_0.pdf) (PDF). START (National Consortium for the Study of Terrorism and Responses to Terrorism) and PIRIUS (Profiles of Individual Radicalization in the United States) at the University of Maryland.
-

Retrieved from "<https://en.wikipedia.org/w/index.php?title=QAnon&oldid=1028789953>"

This page was last edited on 16 June 2021, at 01:33 (UTC).

Text is available under the Creative Commons Attribution-ShareAlike License; additional terms may apply. By using this site, you agree to the Terms of Use and Privacy Policy. Wikipedia® is a registered trademark of the Wikimedia Foundation, Inc., a non-profit organization.

Conspiracy theories in the Arab world

Conspiracy theories are a prevalent feature of Arab culture and politics. Prof. Matthew Gray writes they "are a common and popular phenomenon." "Conspiracism is an important phenomenon in understanding Arab Middle Eastern politics ..." ^[1] Variants include conspiracies involving colonialism, Zionism, superpowers, oil, and the war on terrorism, which may be referred to as a War against Islam. ^[1] Roger Cohen theorizes that the popularity of conspiracy theories in the Arab world is "the ultimate refuge of the powerless", ^[2] and Al-Mumin Said noted the danger of such theories in that they "keep us not only from the truth but also from confronting our faults and problems..." ^[3]

Gray points out that actual conspiracies such as the 1957 plot to seize control of the Suez Canal encourage speculation and creation of imagined conspiracies. ^[4] After the 1967 Six-Day War which resulted in a decisive Arab defeat, conspiracy theories started to gain traction in the Arab world. The war was perceived as a conspiracy by Israel and the United States—or its opposite: a Soviet plot to bring Egypt into the Soviet sphere of influence. ^[5] Thomas Friedman notes the numerous conspiracy theories concerning the Lebanese civil war. They "were usually the most implausible, wild-eyed conspiracy theories one could imagine ... Israelis, the Syrians, the Americans, the Soviets, or Henry Kissinger—anyone but the Lebanese—in the most elaborate plots to disrupt Lebanon's naturally tranquil state." ^[6]

Contents

Jewish conspiracies

Animal-related conspiracy theories

American conspiracies

The "War against Islam" conspiracy

Other conspiracies

See also

References

Further reading

Jewish conspiracies

The Anti-Defamation League lists Zionist conspiracies including spreading poisons (Jan 1995, Al-Ahram), spreading AIDS (Al-Shaab), blood rituals (June 1995, Al-Ahram), leading an international conspiracy against Islam (March 1995, Al-Ahram), and creating the myth of the Holocaust (Dec 1995 – Feb 1996, Egyptian Gazette). ^[7]

Conspiracy theories holds the Jews responsible for killing American Presidents Abraham Lincoln and John F. Kennedy, and causing the French and Russian revolutions. ^[8] Zionists are seen as a threat to the world. ^[8] A widespread conspiracy theory after the September 11 attacks blamed Israel and Mossad for the attacks. ^{[9][10][11][12]}

The Protocols of the Elders of Zion, an infamous hoax document purporting to be a Jewish plan for world domination, is commonly read and promoted in the Muslim world.^{[13][14][15]}

Conspiracy theorists in the Arab world have claimed that ISIL leader Abu Bakr al-Baghdadi was in fact an Israeli Mossad agent and actor called Simon Elliot. The rumors claim that NSA documents leaked by Edward Snowden reveal this connection. Snowden's lawyer has called the story "a hoax."^{[16][17][18]}

In early 2020, according to Middle East Media Research Institute (MEMRI) reports, there have been numerous reports in the Arab press that accused the US and Israel of being behind the creation and spread of the deadly COVID-19 pandemic as part of an economic and psychological war against China. One report in the Saudi daily newspaper Al-Watan claimed that it was no coincidence that the coronavirus was absent from the US and Israel, despite the US having had at least 12 confirmed cases. The US and Israel have also been accused of creating and spreading other diseases, including Ebola, Zika, SARS, avian flu and swine flu, through anthrax and mad cow disease.^[19]

Animal-related conspiracy theories

Animal-related conspiracy theories involving Israel are prominent, alleging use of animals by Israel to attack civilians or to conduct espionage. These conspiracies are often reported as evidence of a Zionist or Israeli plot. Examples include the December 2010 shark attacks in Egypt and the 2011 capture in Saudi Arabia of a griffon vulture carrying an Israeli-labeled satellite tracking device.^{[20][21]}

Writing in The Times, James Hider linked the responses to the shark incident with those to the vulture incident and ascribed the reactions in Arab countries to "paranoia among Israel's enemies and its nominal friends", adding that "evidence of Mossad using animals is scant."^[22]

Gil Yaron wrote in The Toronto Star that "Many animals undoubtedly serve in Israel's army and security services: dogs sniff out bombs and alpaca help mountaineers carry their loads. [...] But tales about the use of sharks, birds, rodents or, as has also been claimed, insects in the service of the military are more the fruit of imagination than hard fact."^[23]

American conspiracies

Following Egypt's 2012 presidential election, an Egyptian television station^[24] stated that the United States government and Egypt's ruling military council had rigged the election in favor of the Muslim Brotherhood candidate Mohammed Morsi.^[25] The theory was seen as fueling a 15 July 2012 attack of tomatoes and shoes by Egyptian Copt protestors on the motorcade of the visiting US Secretary of State.^{[26][27]} The widespread view that America was conspiring to support Morsi prompted President Barack Obama to note that conspiracy theories abound both alleging US support for and against Morsi.^{[11][12][28][29]} The rise of the Islamic State gave rise to conspiracy theories that it had been created by the US, CIA, Mossad, or Hillary Clinton.^{[30][31]} The same happened after the rise of Boko Haram.^{[32][33]}

Conspiracy theorists in the Arab world have advanced rumors that the US is secretly behind the existence and emboldening of the Islamic State of Iraq and the Levant, as part of an attempt to further destabilize the Middle East. After such rumors became widespread, the US embassy in Lebanon issued an official statement denying the allegations, calling them a complete fabrication.^[34]

The "War against Islam" conspiracy

"War against Islam", also called the "War on Islam" or "Attack on Islam", is a conspiracy theory narrative in Islamist discourse to describe an alleged conspiracy to harm, weaken or annihilate the societal system of Islam, using military, economic, social and cultural means. The perpetrators of the conspiracy are alleged to be non-Muslims, particularly the Western world and "false Muslims", allegedly in collusion with political actors in the Western world. While the contemporary conspiracy theory narrative of the "War against Islam" mostly covers general issues of societal transformations in modernization and secularization as well as general issues of international power politics among modern states, the Crusades are often narrated as its alleged starting point.

Different groups of Egyptians have accused the United States of supporting and opposing Mohamed Morsi.

Other conspiracies

After the fall of Morsi, xenophobic conspiracy theories have singled out Palestinians and Syrian refugees as part of a plot to bring the Muslim Brotherhood back to power. Pro-Morsi supporters single out Saudis and Emiratis as part of a counter conspiracy.^[11]

A common conspiracy theory is about soft drink brands Coca-Cola and Pepsi, that the drinks deliberately contain pork and alcohol and their names carry pro-Israel and anti-Islamic messages.^{[35][36][37]}

See also

- Conspiracy theories in Turkey

References

1. Matthew Gray (2010). Conspiracy Theories in the Arab World. ISBN 978-0415575188.
2. Roger Cohen (Dec 21, 2010). "The Captive Arab Mind" (<https://www.nytimes.com/2010/12/21/opinion/21iht-edcohen21.html>). The New York Times.
3. Steven Stalinsky (May 6, 2004). "A Vast Conspiracy" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20131004220251/http://old.nationalreview.com/comment/stalinsky200405060835.asp>). National Review. Archived from the original (<http://old.nationalreview.com/comment/stalinsky200405060835.asp>) on October 4, 2013.
4. (Gray 2010, p. 59)
5. (Gray 2010, p. 60)
6. Thomas L. Friedman (1998). From Beirut to Jerusalem. p. 36.
7. "Anti-Semitism in the Egyptian Media" (https://web.archive.org/web/20131102011928/http://archive.adl.org/egyptian_media/old_egyptian_conspiracy.asp). ADL. 1997. Archived from the original (http://archive.adl.org/egyptian_media/old_egyptian_conspiracy.asp) on 2013-11-02. Retrieved 2013-08-26.
8. (Pipes 1998, p. 105)
9. Eric Weiner (Aug 18, 2005). "U.S. Conspiracy Theories Abound in Arab World" (<https://www.npr.org/templates/story/story.php?storyId=4805337>). NPR.
10. Fawaz Turki. "Conspiracy theories in Arab discourse" (<http://www.arabnews.com/node/215565>). Arab News.

11. Peter Schwartzstein (Sep 12, 2013). "Egypt's Latest Conspiracy Theories Target the Country's Syrian Refugees" (<https://www.theatlantic.com/international/archive/2013/09/egypts-latest-conspiracy-theories-target-the-countrys-syrian-refugees/279585/>). The Atlantic.
12. Tim Marshall (Aug 19, 2013). "Egypt 'Conspiracies' Are Paranoid And Stupid" (<http://news.sky.com/story/1130507/egypt-conspiracies-are-paranoid-and-stupid>). Sky News.
13. Wakin, Daniel J. (October 26, 2002). "Anti-Semitic 'Elders of Zion' Gets New Life on Egypt TV" (<http://www.nytimes.com/2002/10/26/world/anti-semitic-elders-of-zion-gets-new-life-on-egypt-tv.html>). The New York Times. Retrieved 26 August 2014.
14. "2006 Saudi Arabia's Curriculum of Intolerance" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20060823125127/http://www.freedomhouse.org/religion/pdfdocs/KSAtextbooks06.pdf>) (PDF). Archived from the original (<http://www.freedomhouse.org/religion/pdfdocs/KSAtextbooks06.pdf>) (PDF) on 2006-08-23. Report by Center for Religious Freedom of Freedom House. 2006
15. "The Booksellers of Tehran" (<https://www.wsj.com/news/articles/SB113046423225782130>) Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170410052122/https://www.wsj.com/news/articles/SB113046423225782130>) 2017-04-10 at the Wayback Machine, The Wall Street Journal, October 28, 2005
16. "'Password 360' Conspiracy Theories Linking CIA To Isis Actually Bring A Serious US Denial" (http://www.huffingtonpost.co.uk/2014/08/14/cia-israel-isis-conspiracy-theories-hilary-clinton_n_5677687.html). The Huffington Post. 14 August 2014. Retrieved 29 September 2014.
17. Hassan, Mehdi (5 September 2014). "Inside jobs and Israeli stooges: why is the Muslim world in thrall to conspiracy theories?" (<http://www.newstatesman.com/politics/2014/09/inside-jobs-and-israeli-stooges-why-muslim-world-thrall-conspiracy-theories>). New Statesman. Retrieved 29 September 2014.
18. Baker, Aryn (19 July 2014). "Why Iran Believes the Militant Group ISIS Is an American Plot" (<http://time.com/2992269/isis-is-an-american-plot-says-iran/>). Time. Retrieved 29 September 2014.
19. <https://www.jpost.com/Middle-East/Arab-media-accuse-US-Israel-of-coronavirus-conspiracy-against-China-617021>
20. "Shark Attack in Egypt? Must Be the Work of Israeli Agents" (<http://blogs.discovermagazine.com/doblog/2010/12/13/shark-attack-in-egypt-must-be-the-work-of-israeli-agents/>). Discovery Magazine. 13 December 2010.
21. O'SULLIVAN, ARIEH (6 December 2010). "Egypt: Sinai shark attacks could be Israel... JPost - Middle East" (<http://www.jpost.com/MiddleEast/Article.aspx?id=198286>). jpost.com. Retrieved 27 September 2012.
22. James Hider (7 January 2011). "Vulture held as Mossad spy by Saudi Arabia" (<http://www.theaustralian.com.au/news/world/vulture-held-as-mossad-spy-by-saudi-arabia/story-e6frg6so-1225983216550>). The Australian.
23. Gil Yaron (5 January 2011). "Secret agent vulture tale just the latest in animal plots" (<https://www.thestar.com/news/world/article/916624--secret-agent-vulture-tale-just-the-latest-in-animal-plots>). Toronto Star.
24. Tawfik Okasha and the amazingly appalling atrociousness of the fellahin (<http://english.ahram.org.eg/NewsContent/4/0/31509/Opinion/Tawfik-Okasha-and-the-amazingly-appalling-atrociou.aspx>)
25. Robert Mackey (28 June 2012). "Military Rulers Fixed Presidential Vote to Install Islamist, 'Egypt's Glenn Beck' Says" (<http://thelede.blogs.nytimes.com/2012/06/28/military-rulers-fixed-presidential-vote-to-install-islamist-egypts-glenn-beck-says/>). The New York Times.
26. David D. Kirkpatrick; Mayy el Sheikh (13 July 2012). "Egypt's New President Is Being Undercut by State-Run Media" (<https://www.nytimes.com/2012/07/14/world/middleeast/president-morsi-of-egypt-is-undercut-by-state-run-media.html>). The New York Times.
27. "US: We did not support particular Egyptian presidential candidate" (<http://www.egyptindependent.com/news/us-we-did-not-support-particular-egyptian-presidential-candidate>). Egypt Independent. 16 July 2012.

28. Nordland, Rod (Aug 25, 2013). "As Egyptians Ignore Curfew, Talk of a U.S.-Brotherhood Conspiracy" (<https://www.nytimes.com/2013/08/26/world/middleeast/as-egyptians-ignore-curfew-talk-of-a-us-brotherhood-conspiracy.html>). The New York Times.
29. Patrick Kingsley (18 Sep 2013). "Egypt: Frenchman dies in police custody amid rising tide of xenophobia" (<https://www.theguardian.com/world/2013/sep/18/egypt-frenchman-dies-syria-morsi>). The Guardian.
30. Peter Weber (September 2, 2014). "America created the Islamic State of Iraq and Syria? Meet the ISIS 'truthers'" (<http://theweek.com/article/index/267310/america-created-the-islamic-state-of-iraq-and-syria-meet-the-isis-truthers>). The Week.
31. Inside jobs and Israeli stooges: why is the Muslim world in thrall to conspiracy theories? (<http://www.newstatesman.com/politics/2014/09/inside-jobs-and-israeli-stooges-why-muslim-world-thrall-conspiracy-theories>). Mehdi Hassan. The New Statesman
32. "African Shia Cleric: Boko Haram atrocity is a conspiracy against Islamic resurgence in Nigeria" (<http://web.archive.org/web/20120603062715/http://abna.ir/data.asp?lang=3&id=295366>). Archived from the original (<http://abna.ir/data.asp?lang=3&id=295366>) on 2012-06-03. Retrieved 2012-02-13.
33. <http://allafrica.com/stories/201202080541.html>
34. The US, IS and the conspiracy theory sweeping Lebanon (<https://www.bbc.com/news/world-middle-east-28745990>). BBC
35. Israeli sues Coca Cola for containing alcohol (<https://web.archive.org/web/20110224010645/http://www.globes.co.il/serveen/globes/docview.asp?did=1000624838&fid=942>) Globes, Israel Business News, February 20, 2011
36. Myths & Rumors/Middle East (https://web.archive.org/web/20040803095638/http://www2.coca-cola.com/contactus/myths_rumors/middle_east.html) Official Coca-Cola website, August 3, 2004
37. Interview with Hamas MP Salem Salamah - Al Aqsa TV (<http://www.memritv.org/clip/en/1760.htm>), April 23, 2008

Further reading

- Gray, Matthew (2010). Conspiracy Theories in the Arab World. Routledge. ISBN 978-0415575188.
 - Pipes, Daniel (1998). The Hidden Hand: Middle East Fears of Conspiracy. St. Martin's Griffin. ISBN 978-0312176884.
-

Retrieved from "https://en.wikipedia.org/w/index.php?title=Conspiracy_theories_in_the_Arab_world&oldid=1028366734"

This page was last edited on 13 June 2021, at 15:05 (UTC).

Text is available under the Creative Commons Attribution-ShareAlike License; additional terms may apply. By using this site, you agree to the Terms of Use and Privacy Policy. Wikipedia® is a registered trademark of the Wikimedia Foundation, Inc., a non-profit organization.

Conspiracy theories in Turkey

Conspiracy theories are a prevalent feature of culture and politics in Turkey. Conspiracism is an important phenomenon in understanding Turkish politics.^[1] This is explained by a desire to "make up for our lost Ottoman grandeur",^[1] the humiliation of perceiving Turkey as part of "the malfunctioning half" of the world,^[2] and a low level of media literacy among the Turkish population.^[3]

Contents

The prevalence of conspiracy theorizing in Turkey

Roots and causes

Distinct features

Conspiracy theorizing since before the AKP era

Conspiracy theory that the Armenian genocide is invented

Death of Özal

Conspiracy theorizing during the AKP era

The general "Mastermind" conspiracy theory narrative

Conspiracy theories directed against Israel

The "War against Islam" conspiracy theory narrative

The secret articles of the Treaty of Lausanne

See also

References

Further reading

The prevalence of conspiracy theorizing in Turkey

Roots and causes

Prominent Turkish author and journalist Mustafa Akyol describes the reason for the prevalence of conspiracy theorizing in Turkey as "it makes us feel important. If the world is conspiring against us, we must be really special. It is, I believe, the way we Turks make up for our lost Ottoman grandeur."^[1] Turkish economist Selim Koru has pointed to the humiliation of perceiving Turkey as part of the "malfunctioning [half]" of the world.^[2]

Turkish consumers are the second-most media illiterate when compared to countries in Europe, leaving them especially vulnerable to fake news, a 2018 report released by the Open Society Institute said. A combination of low education levels, low reading scores, low media freedom and low societal trust went into making the score, which saw Turkey being placed above only North Macedonia.^[3] According to the Reuters Institute Digital News Report 2018, Turkey with some distance is the country with most made-up news reports in the world.^[4]

Distinct features

A distinct feature of conspiracy theorizing in Turkey is that at the alleged command and control end of an alleged conspiracy scheme there are usually narrated to be state governments; this is due to an extreme state-centric worldview taught in the Turkish education system.^[5]

Doğan Gürpınar; a scholar whose areas of study include nationalism, historiography, and ideologies in Turkey; argues that conspiracism's power to shape intellectual discourse and ideological standpoints as well as represent the state tradition is unique to Turkey.^[6]

Conspiracy theorizing since before the AKP era

Before the AKP era, conspiracy theorizing in Turkey was generally directed against "the West",^[1] but also focused on Armenian genocide denial.

Conspiracy theory that the Armenian genocide is invented

Turkish Armenian genocide denialists typically argue the academic consensus of it being a genocide as anti-Turkish propaganda or as a conspiracy spread by the Armenians, instead claiming that it either did not occur or that it was somehow justified at the time.^{[7][8]}

Death of Özal

Some people believe that Turgut Özal, 8th president of Turkey, was assassinated in 1993. He was a supporter of a Great Turkic Union, therefore he is poisoned after Turkic nations gained independence after dissolution of the Soviet Union. Main supporter of this theory is Özal's wife Semra Özal.^[9]

Conspiracy theorizing during the AKP era

Since the AKP came to power in 2002, conspiracy theories have gradually grown to dominate public discourse in Turkey.^[1] Mustafa Akyol summarizes the situation as follows: "Under Erdogan's leadership, Turkey began to rise as a global power after a century of frailty. Since this New Turkey represents global justice for all the downtrodden, all the dark masters of the world are now alarmed by its glorious march. That is why they are using all their pawns against Turkey to defame, weaken, or destabilize it."^[1]

The general "Mastermind" conspiracy theory narrative

In 2014, Recep Tayyip Erdoğan coined the term "mastermind" (Turkish: üst akıl) to denote the alleged command and control institution, somewhat ambiguously placed with the government of the United States, in a comprehensive conspiracy to weaken or even dismember Turkey, by orchestrating every political actor and action perceived hostile by Turkey.^{[10][11][1]} Erdoğan as well as the Daily Sabah have often alleged that very different non-state actors — like the Salafi jihadist Islamic State of Iraq and the Levant (ISIL), the Kurdistan Workers' Party (PKK) and the Islamist cult with political ambitions around Fethullah Gülen — were attacking Turkey at the same time in a well-coordinated campaign.^[5]

A notable instance of promoting the "Mastermind" conspiracy theory was in February 2017 then Ankara Mayor Melih Gökçek claiming that an earthquake in Çanakkale had been artificially generated by foreign powers.^{[12][13]} Similar claims have been made before, such as that the earthquakes of İzmit and Van were "generated" by the USA through the HAARP.^{[14][15]} In another example in November 2017, the Islamist newspaper Yeni Akit claimed that the fashion trend of "ripped denim" jeans would in fact be a means of communication, via specific forms of rips and holes, between agents of foreign states and their collaborators in Turkey.^[16] Throughout 2017, the Turkish AKP government increasingly started to explicitly name the United States as the alleged "mastermind".^[5]

According to a poll from April 2018, 42 percent of Turks, and 59 percent of AKP voters, saw the decline in the lira as a plot by foreign powers.^[17] On 30 May, foreign minister Mevlüt Çavuşoğlu claimed that the plunge of the lira would have been caused by an organized campaign masterminded abroad, adding that the conspiracy would include both "the interest rate lobby" and "some Muslim countries", which he however refused to name.^[18] In August 2018, Erdoğan started using the formula of "the world fighting an economic war against Turkey".^[19]

Journalist Ömer Turan asserted that Netflix Turkey's teaser trailer for Money Heist contained messages aiming to incite the "second wave" of the Gezi Park protests.^[20] Similar remarks were made by Melih Gökçek later on.^[21]

Conspiracy theories directed against Israel

In the course of the 2006 Crimean–Congo hemorrhagic fever outbreak in Turkey, Felicity Party member Abdullah Uzun claimed that the tick species that spread the disease was brought to Turkey by Israeli female tourists.^[22]

In May 2012, a dead European bee-eater with an Israeli leg-band, used by naturalists to track migratory birds, was found by villagers near the southeastern Turkish city of Gaziantep. The villagers worried that the bird may have carried a micro-chip from Israeli intelligence to spy on the area and alerted local officials. The head of the Agriculture and Livestock Provincial Directorate in Gaziantep, Akif Aslanpay, examined the corpse of the bee-eater and stated that he found that "the nose of the bird is very different and much lighter than others" and that it "can be used for audio and video," which, "in the case of Israel, they do."^[23] A counter-terrorism unit became involved before Turkey's agriculture ministry assured villagers that it is common to equip migratory birds with rings in order to track their movements. The BBC correspondent, Jonathan Head, ascribed the event to his view that "wildly implausible conspiracy theories take root easily in Turkey, with alleged Israeli plots among the most widely believed."^[24]

In 2013, a kestrel carrying an Israeli foot band was discovered by villagers in the Elazığ Province, Turkey. Initially, medical personnel at Firat University identified the bird as "Israeli Spy" in their registration documents. After thorough medical examinations, including X-ray scans, the bird was determined to be carrying no electronic equipment.^[25] No charges were filed and the kestrel was freed and allowed to continue its flight.^[26]

In 2018, Turkish Prime Minister Binali Yıldırım called Israel's Eurovision victory an "imperialist plot devised to ensure that Jerusalem becomes the following year's host and to provoke interreligious conflict."^[27]

A frequent claim that sees the Coca-Cola Company as an Israeli company or a company that gives financial aid to Israel led to its products being boycotted by some.^{[28][29]}

The "War against Islam" conspiracy theory narrative

"War against Islam", also called the "War on Islam" or "Attack on Islam", is a conspiracy theory narrative in Islamism discourse to describe an alleged conspiracy to harm, weaken or annihilate the societal system of Islam, using military, economic, social and cultural means. The perpetrators of the conspiracy are alleged to be non-Muslims, particularly the Western world and "false Muslims", allegedly in collusion with political actors in the Western world. While the contemporary conspiracy theory narrative of the "War against Islam" mostly covers general issues of societal transformations in modernization and secularization as well as general issues of international power politics among modern states, the Crusades are often narrated as its alleged starting point. The English-language political neologism of "War on Islam" was coined in Islamist discourse in the 1990s and popularized as a conspiracy theory only after 2001.^[30]

The secret articles of the Treaty of Lausanne

It has been claimed in civil and formal circles that the Treaty of Lausanne will expire in 2023. According to the conspiracy theory, Turkey is forbidden to mine its natural resources (such as boron and petroleum) due to the "secret articles" of the treaty; therefore, Turkey will rapidly become a developed country by mining and exporting its resources once the treaty expires.^[31]

See also

- Conspiracy theory
- Conspiracy theories in the Arab world
- American political conspiracy theories
- List of conspiracy theories

References

1. Mustafa Akyol (12 September 2016). "The Tin-Foil Hats Are Out in Turkey" (<https://foreignpolicy.com/2016/09/12/the-tin-foil-hats-are-out-in-turkey/>). Foreign Policy. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170109063325/http://foreignpolicy.com/2016/09/12/the-tin-foil-hats-are-out-in-turkey/>) from the original on 2017-01-09. Retrieved 10 January 2017.
2. Selim Koru (21 June 2018). "How Nietzsche Explains Turkey" (<https://www.theatlantic.com/international/archive/2018/06/turkey-erdogan-election-kurds/563240/>). The Atlantic. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20180621221333/https://www.theatlantic.com/international/archive/2018/06/turkey-erdogan-election-kurds/563240/>) from the original on 2018-06-21. Retrieved 2018-06-21.
3. Marin Lessenski (March 2018). "COMMON SENSE WANTED - Resilience to 'post-truth' and its predictors in the new media literacy index 2018" (https://web.archive.org/web/20180403150737/http://osi.bg/downloads/File/2018/MediaLiteracyIndex2018_publishENG.pdf) (PDF). Open Society Institute – Sofia. Archived from the original (http://osi.bg/downloads/File/2018/MediaLiteracyIndex2018_publishENG.pdf) (PDF) on 2018-04-03. Retrieved 2018-04-06.
4. Nic Newman with Richard Fletcher, Antonis Kalogeropoulos, David A. L. Levy and Rasmus Kleis Nielsen (2018). "Reuters Institute Digital News Report 2018" (<https://reutersinstitute.politics.ox.ac.uk/sites/default/files/digital-news-report-2018.pdf>) (PDF). Reuters Institute. p. 39. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20180618204023/https://reutersinstitute.politics.ox.ac.uk/sites/default/files/digital-news-report-2018.pdf>) (PDF) from the original on 2018-06-18. Retrieved 2018-06-18.

5. Mustafa Akyol (9 January 2017). "Why Turkish government pushes 'global conspiracy' narrative" (<http://www.al-monitor.com/pulse/originals/2017/01/turkey-believes-all-terrorists-are-united-against-it.html>). Al-Monitor. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170110123306/http://www.al-monitor.com/pulse/originals/2017/01/turkey-believes-all-terrorists-are-united-against-it.html>) from the original on 2017-01-10. Retrieved 10 January 2017.
6. Gürpınar, Doğan (3 January 2017). Komplolar Kitabı (in Turkish). İstanbul: Doğan Kitap. p. 256. ISBN 9786050920901.
7. "Why scholars say Armenian Genocide was genocide but Obama won't" (<http://europe.newsweek.com/why-scholars-say-armenian-genocide-was-genocide-obama-wont-325262>). Newsweek. 24 April 2015. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20161005030030/http://europe.newsweek.com/why-scholars-say-armenian-genocide-was-genocide-obama-wont-325262>) from the original on 2016-10-05. Retrieved 10 January 2017.
8. "A list of genocide denial websites" (<https://www.splcenter.org/fighting-hate/intelligence-report/2015/sites>). Southern Poverty Law Center. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170222080201/https://www.splcenter.org/fighting-hate/intelligence-report/2015/sites>) from the original on 2017-02-22. Retrieved 10 January 2017.
9. "Dünyayı sarsan komplo teorileri" (<https://www.ntv.com.tr/galeri/yasam/dunyayi-sarsan-komple-teorileri,atl78Yq1VkyqK93trJ3thA/aBvbLExhr0imcHOiSkoM4w>). www.ntv.com.tr (in Turkish). Retrieved 2 November 2020.
10. Mustafa Akyol (31 October 2014). "The Middle East 'mastermind' who worries Erdogan" (<http://www.al-monitor.com/pulse/originals/2014/10/turkey-erdogan-middle-east-mastermind.html>). Al-Monitor. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170107090936/http://www.al-monitor.com/pulse/originals/2014/10/turkey-erdogan-middle-east-mastermind.html>) from the original on 2017-01-07. Retrieved 10 January 2017.
11. Mustafa Akyol (19 March 2015). "Unraveling the AKP's 'Mastermind' conspiracy theory" (<http://www.al-monitor.com/pulse/originals/2015/03/turkey-zion-protocols-akp-version.html>). Al-Monitor. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170108213847/http://www.al-monitor.com/pulse/originals/2015/03/turkey-zion-protocols-akp-version.html>) from the original on 2017-01-08. Retrieved 10 January 2017.
12. "Foreign powers performing 'earthquake tests' near Istanbul to destroy economy: Ankara mayor" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170208034759/http://www.hurriyetdailynews.com/foreign-powers-performing-earthquake-tests-near-istanbul-to-destroy-economy-ankara-mayor.aspx?pageID=238&nID=109436&NewsCatID=341>). Hurriyet Daily News. 7 February 2017. Archived from the original (<http://www.hurriyetdailynews.com/foreign-powers-performing-earthquake-tests-near-istanbul-to-destroy-economy-ankara-mayor.aspx?pageID=238&nID=109436&NewsCatID=341>) on 2017-02-08. Retrieved 7 February 2017.
13. "Turkish mayor suggests Gulen plotting earthquake to harm economy" (<https://af.reuters.com/article/worldNews/idAFKBN15M1K6>). Reuters. 7 February 2017.
14. "ABD'nin deprem silahı HAARP 17 Ağustos depreminde kullanıldı mı?" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20191002011337/https://www.yeniakit.com.tr/haber/abdnin-deprem-silahi-haarp-17-agustos-depreminde-kullanildi-mi-367927.html>) (in Turkish). Yeni Akit. 17 August 2017. Archived from the original (<https://www.yeniakit.com.tr/haber/abdnin-deprem-silahi-haarp-17-agustos-depreminde-kullanildi-mi-367927.html>) on 2 October 2019.
15. "Van Depremi bir başka ülkenin Türkiye'ye saldırısı mı?" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20120222200354/https://www.haberturk.com/polemik/haber/692875-van-depremi-bir-baska-ulkenin-turkiyeye-saldirisi-mi>). www.haberturk.com (in Turkish). 30 November 2011. Archived from the original (<https://www.haberturk.com/polemik/haber/692875-van-depremi-bir-baska-ulkenin-turkiyeye-saldirisi-mi>) on 22 February 2012.

16. "Geheimbotschaften in der Jeanshose" (<http://www.tagesspiegel.de/politik/verschwoerungstheorie-in-der-tuerkei-geheimbotschaften-in-der-jeanshose/20637406.html>). tagesspiegel. 27 November 2017. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20171204171236/http://www.tagesspiegel.de/politik/verschwoerungstheorie-in-der-tuerkei-geheimbotschaften-in-der-jeanshose/20637406.html>) from the original on 2017-12-04. Retrieved 2017-12-04.
17. "Forty-two percent of Turks say lira's drop is foreign plot" (<https://ahvalnews.com/turkish-lira/forty-two-percent-turks-say-liras-drop-foreign-plot>). Ahval. 18 May 2018. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20180520054627/https://ahvalnews.com/turkish-lira/forty-two-percent-turks-say-liras-drop-foreign-plot>) from the original on 2018-05-20. Retrieved 2018-05-19.
18. "Turkish FM accuses 'some Muslim countries' for trying 'to demolish economy'" (<http://www.hurriyetdailynews.com/turkish-fm-accuses-some-muslim-countries-for-trying-to-demolish-economy-132594>). Hurriyet Daily News. 30 May 2018. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20180719134816/http://www.hurriyetdailynews.com/turkish-fm-accuses-some-muslim-countries-for-trying-to-demolish-economy-132594>) from the original on 2018-07-19. Retrieved 2018-08-11.
19. "Turkey is fighting an 'economic war' — against reality" (<https://www.washingtonpost.com/business/2018/08/08/turkeys-erdogan-says-hes-fighting-an-economic-war-hes-right-its-war-against-reality/>). Washington Post. 8 August 2018. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20180810205958/https://www.washingtonpost.com/business/2018/08/08/turkeys-erdogan-says-hes-fighting-an-economic-war-hes-right-its-war-against-reality/>) from the original on 2018-08-10. Retrieved 2018-08-11.
20. "AKP'li yorumcu 'La Casa De Papel'de 'Gezi' mesajı buldu: Ali Koç'a benzemiyor mu?" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20181121153059/http://www.diken.com.tr/akpli-yorumcu-la-casa-de-papelde-gezi-mesaji-buldu-ali-koca-benzemiyor-mu/>). Diken (in Turkish). 8 April 2018. Archived from the original (<http://www.diken.com.tr/akpli-yorumcu-la-casa-de-papelde-gezi-mesaji-buldu-ali-koca-benzemiyor-mu/>) on 21 November 2018.
21. Gökçek, İbrahim Melih (8 April 2018). "LA CASA DE PAPEL'İNTÜRKİYE İÇİN HAZIRLANAN FRAGMANINI DİKKATLE SEYREDİN.ŞİMDİ DÜŞÜNÜNCE,BENİM AKLIMA ÖMER TURAN'IN SORDUĞU SORULARIN AYNISI GELİYOR...BİRİNCİSİ ALİ KOÇ'A BENZEYEN GÖRÜNTÜLER BİR SUİKASTİ AKLA GETİRİYOR.İKİNCİSİ KIRMIZI TULUMLUNUN AYAGINDAKİ POSTAL.pic.twitter.com/UzJjVT7Rg" (<https://archive.today/20200503095650/https://twitter.com/06melihgokcek/status/983066020511408128>). @06melihgokcek (in Turkish). Archived from the original (<https://twitter.com/06melihgokcek/status/983066020511408128>) on 3 May 2020.
22. "Uzun ülke gündeminde" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20180920011445/http://www.bolugundem.com/uzun-ulke-gundeminde-81083h.htm>). Bolu Gündem Gazetesi (in Turkish). 26 July 2006. Archived from the original (<http://www.bolugundem.com/uzun-ulke-gundeminde-81083h.htm>) on 20 September 2018.
23. Kiliç, Yusuf (May 9, 2012). "Gaziantep bird stand up!" (<http://www.haberturk.com/yasam/haber/740845-gaziantepi-ayaga-kaldiran-kus>). Haberturk. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20160324015306/http://www.haberturk.com/yasam/haber/740845-gaziantepi-ayaga-kaldiran-kus>) from the original on 2016-03-24. Retrieved February 1, 2016.
24. "Turkey villagers see Israeli spy in migratory bird" (<https://www.bbc.co.uk/news/world-europe-18092775>). BBC. 16 May 2012. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20121017125415/http://www.bbc.co.uk/news/world-europe-18092775>) from the original on 2012-10-17. Retrieved 3 October 2012.
25. Vela, Justin (July 26, 2013). "Turkey clears bird of spying for Israel" (<https://www.telegraph.co.uk/news/worldnews/europe/turkey/10203935/Turkey-clears-bird-of-spying-for-Israel.html>). The Daily Telegraph. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20150824033341/http://www.telegraph.co.uk/news/worldnews/europe/turkey/10203935/Turkey-clears-bird-of-spying-for-Israel.html>) from the original on 2015-08-24. Retrieved August 25, 2015.
26. "Renegade bird accused of being an Israeli spy cleared after careful examination in Turkey" (<http://www.hurriyetdailynews.com/renegade-bird-accused-of-being-an-israeli-spy-cleared-after-careful-examination-in-turkey.aspx?pageID=238&nID=51440&NewsCatID=341>). Hürriyet Daily News. July 25, 2013. Retrieved August 26, 2015.

27. "Turkish PM claims Israel's Eurovision win is part of an imperialist plot" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20200516210404/https://www.timesofisrael.com/turkish-pm-claims-israels-eurovision-win-part-of-an-imperialist-plot/>). www.timesofisrael.com. Archived from the original (<https://www.timesofisrael.com/turkish-pm-claims-israels-eurovision-win-part-of-an-imperialist-plot/>) on 16 May 2020.
28. "Turks expand protest against Israel with economic boycott" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20171117153559/https://www.dailysabah.com/turkey/2014/07/22/turks-expand-protest-against-israel-with-economic-boycott/>). Daily Sabah. 22 July 2014. Archived from the original (<https://www.dailysabah.com/turkey/2014/07/22/turks-expand-protest-against-israel-with-economic-boycott/>) on 17 November 2017.
29. Timmons, Heather. "Israel's attacks on Gaza are leading to Coca-Cola boycotts" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20200422035830/https://qz.com/239722/israels-attacks-on-gaza-are-causing-coca-cola-boycotts/>). Quartz. Archived from the original (<https://qz.com/239722/israels-attacks-on-gaza-are-causing-coca-cola-boycotts/>) on 22 April 2020.
30. John L. Esposito, Emad El-Din Shahin (September 2013). The Oxford Handbook of Islam and Politics (<https://books.google.com/books?id=wUcSDAAAQBAJ&pg=PA559>). Oxford University Press. ISBN 9780190631932. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20160818121008/https://books.google.de/books?id=wUcSDAAAQBAJ&pg=PA559>) from the original on 2016-08-18. Retrieved 2016-07-17.
31. Danforth, Nick. "Notes on a Turkish Conspiracy" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20200509194015/https://foreignpolicy.com/2014/10/02/notes-on-a-turkish-conspiracy/>). Foreign Policy. Archived from the original (<https://foreignpolicy.com/2014/10/02/notes-on-a-turkish-conspiracy/>) on 9 May 2020.

Further reading

- Pipes, Daniel (1998). The Hidden Hand: Middle East Fears of Conspiracy (<https://archive.org/details/hiddenhand00dani>). St. Martin's Griffin. ISBN 978-0312176884.
 - Gürpınar, Doğan (2019). Conspiracy Theories in Turkey: Conspiracy Nation. Routledge. ISBN 978-0-429-67046-6.
-

Retrieved from "https://en.wikipedia.org/w/index.php?title=Conspiracy_theories_in_Turkey&oldid=1025833447"

This page was last edited on 29 May 2021, at 20:57 (UTC).

Text is available under the Creative Commons Attribution-ShareAlike License; additional terms may apply. By using this site, you agree to the Terms of Use and Privacy Policy. Wikipedia® is a registered trademark of the Wikimedia Foundation, Inc., a non-profit organization.

List of political conspiracies

This is a list of political conspiracies. In a political context, a conspiracy refers to a group of people united in the goal of damaging, usurping, or overthrowing an established political power. Typically, the final goal is to gain power through a revolutionary coup d'état or through assassination. A conspiracy can also be used for infiltration of the governing system.

Contents

List

See also

References

Further reading

List

- 1971 BCE - Apophis Kush Alliance against Egypt as attested to in the second Kamose stele^[1]
- 63 BCE - First Catilinarian conspiracy and the Second Catilinarian conspiracy^[2]
- 44 BCE - Liberatores plot assassination of Julius Caesar to restore Roman Republic^[3]
- 65 CE - Pisonian conspiracy^[4]
- 1478 Pazzi conspiracy, a plot by Pope Sixtus IV and the Pazzi family to depose the House of Medici in the Republic of Florence^[5]
- 1506 - Conspiracy against the life of the brothers Alfonso I d'Este, Duke of Ferrara and Cardinal Ippolito d'Este in the Duchy of Ferrara, coordinated by their half brother Giulio d'Este and full brother Ferrante d'Este^[6]
- 1569 - 1569 Plot against John III of Sweden.^[7]
- 1570 - Ridolfi plot against Elizabeth I of England^[8]
- 1574 - Mornay Plot against John III of Sweden.^[9]
- 1583 - Throckmorton Plot by English Catholics led by Sir Francis Throckmorton to coordinate an invasion of England led by Henry I, Duke of Guise, to murder Elizabeth, and replace her with her cousin Mary, Queen of Scots^[10]
- 1586 - Babington Plot, plot by Anthony Babington and John Ballard to assassinate Elizabeth and coordinate an invasion of England by King Philip II of Spain and the Holy League. Discovered by Sir Francis Walsingham and led to execution of Mary, Queen of Scots^{[11][12]}
- 1603 - Main Plot to remove James I of England and enthrone Arbella Stuart allegedly led by Henry Brooke, Lord Cobham, and sponsored by Spain.^[13]
- 1603 - Bye Plot, leads to the execution of Sir George Brooke^[14]
- 1605 - Gunpowder Plot to blow up the House of Lords by during the State Opening of Parliament as prelude to a popular revolt in the Midlands, during which James's nine-year-old daughter, Princess Elizabeth, was to be installed as the Catholic head of state; foiled after a letter to William Parker, 4th Baron Monteagle, and the discovery and arrest of Guy Fawkes. Often called the Gunpowder Treason Plot; origin of Guy Fawkes Day^[15]

- 1718–1720 The Pontcallec conspiracy during the minority of Louis XV to overthrow the Regent Philippe II, Duke of Orléans in favour of Philip V of Spain
- 1749 - Conspiracy of the Slaves by Muslim slaves in Hospitaller-ruled Malta to kill Grand Master Manuel Pinto da Fonseca and take over the island with the help of the Barbary states.^[16]
- 1756 - Coup of 1756 was an attempted coup d'état planned by Queen Louisa Ulrika of Sweden to abolish the rule of the Riksdag of the Estates and reinstate absolute monarchy in Sweden.^[17]
- 1788 - Anjala conspiracy^[18]
- 1789 - 1789 Conspiracy (Sweden) against Gustav III of Sweden.^[19]
- 1793 - Armfelt Conspiracy against Charles XIII of Sweden.^[20]
- 1832 - Georgian plot, assassination of the Russian imperial administration and restoration of the Georgian monarchy^[21]
- 1865 - Abraham Lincoln assassination plot, to include assassination of cabinet members.^[22] It had originated as a plot by Confederate sympathizers to kidnap Lincoln and force the Union to negotiate for either a release of prisoners of war or an end to the American Civil War.^[23]
- 1898 - The Dreyfus Affair, a coordinated attempt to falsely accuse Alfred Dreyfus of treason^[24]
- 1914 - The Black Hand helps Young Bosnia assassinate Austrian Archduke Franz Ferdinand, the heir to the throne in Austria-Hungary, thus launching the July Crisis that ended with World War I.^[25]
- 1924 - The Zinoviev letter, published in the Daily Mail in London before the 1924 general election, is a forgery that impacted the vote. It was signed with the name of Grigory Zinoviev, a politician in the Soviet Union and the leader of the Communist International, and called on violent action by the Communist Party of Great Britain. It was devised by anti-Communist White Russian émigrés in Paris and the Labour Party blamed it for its defeat.^[26]
- 1938 - Presumed Hitler Youth Conspiracy, NKVD case in Moscow involving some 70 arrests and 40 executions of teenagers and adults, later found to be baseless^[27]
- 1939 - Operation Himmler and its Gleiwitz incident - false-flag attacks, including on a radio station in Gleiwitz, by Nazi Germany and SS officers disguised as Polish Armed Forces personnel as a pretext for the invasion of Poland
- 1939 - Shelling of Mainila - false-flag artillery attack by the Red Army to provide the Soviet Union with a pretext for the Winter War against Finland.
- 1943 - Operation Spark, an attempt on the life of Adolf Hitler.^[28]
- 1944 - July 20 Plot - attempt to assassinate Hitler with suitcase bomb at a conference at the Wolf's Lair in Rastenburg, East Prussia, and then use Operation Valkyrie to grab power^{[29][30]}
- 1945 - The Soviet Union's infiltration of the Manhattan Project through atomic spies such as George Koval and Klaus Fuchs. Soviet intelligence was eventually confirmed by a declassified U.S. Army Corps of Engineers report and the Venona project, and assisted the Soviet atomic bomb project.^{[31][32]}
- 1951 - Rawalpindi conspiracy - failed coup against Liaquat Ali Khan, Prime Minister of Pakistan.^[33]
- 1953 - Iranian coup d'état - The Imperial Iranian Armed Forces restores the Shah of Iran, Mohammad Reza Pahlavi, and overthrows Prime Minister Mohammad Mosaddegh with the aid of CIA and MI6.^[34]
- 1954 - Lavon affair Operation Susannah, "False Flag" terrorism by Mossad^[35]
- 1957 - Audin affair - Murder of mathematician Maurice Audin who died under torture by the French state in 1957
- 1972 - Watergate scandal - The burglary of the Democratic National Committee offices at the Watergate complex by CREEP and subsequent cover-up scandals that forced President Richard Nixon to resign in 1974.^[36]

- 1984 - Brighton hotel bombing - attempted assassination of Margaret Thatcher and her cabinet by the Provisional IRA at the Grand Hotel in Brighton, resulted in the death of Deputy Chief Whip Anthony Berry.^[37]
- 1984 - Rajneeshee bioterror attack^[38]
- 1987 - Iran-Contra Affair - sale of arms to Iran to fund the Contras in Nicaragua by Reagan Administration officials to circumvent the Boland Amendment^{[39][40]}
- 1990 - Nayirah testimony, a false testimony to the Congressional Human Rights Caucus organized by public relations firm Hill & Knowlton for the Kuwaiti government
- 2001 - September 11 attacks - Attacks on the World Trade Center in New York City, the Pentagon in Arlington, Virginia, and a planned fourth target in Washington D.C. using hijacked airplanes by al-Qaeda.^[41]
- 2003 - Plame affair - publication of Valerie Plame's employment as a covert CIA officer by Robert Novak, who learned it from Richard Armitage, after her husband Joseph C. Wilson published a New York Times op-ed expressing doubt that Saddam Hussein purchased uranium from Niger. Lead to conviction of Scooter Libby for obstruction of justice and perjury.
- 2015 - November 2015 Paris attacks - attacks on targets in Paris, including an Eagles of Death Metal concert at the Bataclan theatre and the Stade de France in Saint-Denis, conducted by coordinated teams of Islamic terrorists affiliated with ISIS.^[42]

See also

- List of conspiracy theories
- Conspiracy theory
- Seditious conspiracy

References

1. Hawass, Zahi, The Mysteries of Abu Simbel: Ramesses II and the Temples of the Rising Sun, The American University in Cairo Press, 2001, ISBN 977-424-623-3, p. 12
2. "The Catilinarian Conspiracy" (<http://ancienthistory.about.com/od/conspiracyofcatiline/ss/63-62-B-C-Cato-Cicero-And-The-Conspiracy-Of-Catilina.htm>). ancienthistory.about.com.
3. "The assassination of Julius Caesar, 44 BC" (<http://www.eyewitnesstohistory.com/caesar2.htm>). eyewitnesstohistory.com. 2004.
4. "The Pisonian Conspiracy" (http://www.nazoreans.com/pisonian_conspiracy.html). nazoreans.com.
5. "The pazzi conspiracy" (http://www.palazzo-medici.it/mediateca/en/Scheda_Congiura_dei_Pazzi). palazzo-medici.it.
6. "The year of Lucretia d'Este, Duchess of Ferrara" (<http://www.mmdtkw.org/VLucretiad'Este.html>). mmdtkw.org.
7. Sture Arnell (1951). Karin Månsdotter. Stockholm: Wahlström & Widstrand. ISBN
8. "Plots against Elizabeth I" (<http://www.elizabethfiles.com/plots-against-elizabeth-i/3509/>). elizabethfiles.com. 29 January 2010.
9. Charles de Mornay, urn:sbl:17458, Svenskt biografiskt lexikon (art av Ingvar Andersson.), hämtad 2020-08-01.
10. "Queen Elisabeth I" (<http://englishhistory.net/tudor/monarchs/eliz4.html>). englishhistory.net. 2015-02-08.
11. "The Babington Plot" (<http://www.history-magazine.com/babington.html>). history-magazine.com.
12. "Anthony Babington and the Babington Plot" (<http://www.luminarium.org/encyclopedia/babington.htm>). luminarium.org.

13. Francis Edwards, The succession, bye and main plots of 1601-1603 (2006).
14. "Conspiracy" (<http://www.alienscientist.com/conspiracy.html>). alienscientist.com.
15. "The Gunpowder plot of 1605" (http://www.historylearningsite.co.uk/gunpowder_plot_of_1605.htm). historylearningsite.co.uk.
16. Sciberras, Sandro. "Maltese History - E. The Decline of the Order of St John In the 18th Century" (https://web.archive.org/web/20150626113655/http://www.stbenedictcollege.org/stlucija/files/Sandro%20Sciberras/Form%203%20Option%20Maltese%20History/Unit%20E_%20The%20Decline%20of%20the%20Order%20%2B%20WS%2010p.pdf) (PDF). St. Benedict College. Archived from the original (http://www.stbenedictcollege.org/stlucija/files/Sandro%20Sciberras/Form%203%20Option%20Maltese%20History/Unit%20E_%20The%20Decline%20of%20the%20Order%20+%20WS%2010p.pdf) (PDF) on 26 June 2015.
17. Jägerskiöld, Olof (1945). Lovisa Ulrika. Stockholm: Wahlström & Widstrand. Libris 8074766
18. "Anjala Manor" (<http://www.spottinghistory.com/view/181/anjala-manor/>). spottinghistory.com.
19. My Helsing (2013). Hovpolitik. Hedvig Elisabeth Charlotte som politisk aktör vid det gustavianska hovet (Court Politics. Hedvig Elisabeth Charlotte as a political actor at the Gustavian court) Örebro: Örebro universitet. ISBN 978-91-7668-964-6 (in Swedish)
20. Lilly Lindwall (1917). Magdalena Rudenschöld. Stockholm: Förlag Åhlén & Åkerlund. (in Swedish)
21. Stephen F. Jones, "Russian imperial administration and the Georgian nobility: the Georgian conspiracy of 1832." Slavonic and East European Review 65.1 (1987): 53-76. Online (<https://www.jstor.org/stable/4209431>)
22. "The Death of President Lincoln, 1865" (<http://www.eyewitnesstohistory.com/lincoln.htm>). eyewitnesstohistory.com.
23. "The Family Plot to Kill Lincoln" (<https://www.smithsonianmag.com/history/the-family-plot-to-kill-lincoln-2093807/>). Smithsonian. Retrieved 2019-04-14.
24. "Emile Zola writes to Alfred Dreyfus at the height of the Dreyfus affair" (<http://www.shapell.org/manuscript.aspx?emile-zola-dreyfus-affair>). shapell.org.
25. Vladimir Dedijer, The road to Sarajevo (1966) pp 285-315.
26. Heaven, Will (2013-10-08). "Top political conspiracy theories" (<https://www.telegraph.co.uk/news/politics/10363320/Top-political-conspiracy-theories.html>).
27. Hans Schafranek, Natalia Musienko, "The Fictitious 'Hiter-Jugend' of the Moscow NKVD" (<https://books.google.com/books?id=8yorTJl1QEoC&lpg=PA208&ots=lQbXKWcxE-&dq=&pg=PA208#v=onepage&q&f=false>) in: Barry McLoughlin, Kevin McDermott (Eds.), Stalin's Terror: High Politics and Mass Repression in the Soviet Union. Palgrave MacMillan (2003), p. 208ff. ISBN 1-4039-0119-8. Retrieved November 24, 2011
28. "The Valkyrie Conspiracy" (<http://valkyrie-plot.com/1943.html>). valkyrie-plot.com.
29. "The 20 July bomb plot - a summary" (<http://www.historyinanehour.com/2010/07/20/the-20-july-bomb-plot-summary/>). historyinanehour.com. 20 July 2010.
30. "The July bomb plot" (http://www.historylearningsite.co.uk/july_bomb_plot.htm). historylearningsite.co.uk.
31. Roberts, Sam (2014-09-29). "Espionage Threatened the Manhattan Project, Declassified Report Says" (<https://www.nytimes.com/2014/09/30/science/espionage-threatened-the-manhattan-project-declassified-report-says.html>). The New York Times. ISSN 0362-4331 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/0362-4331>). Retrieved 2019-04-14.
32. "Spies Who Spilled Atomic Bomb Secrets" (<https://www.smithsonianmag.com/history/spies-who-spilled-atomic-bomb-secrets-127922660/>). Smithsonian. Retrieved 2019-04-14.
33. Hasan Zaheer, The times and trial of the Rawalpindi conspiracy 1951: the first coup attempt in Pakistan (1998)
34. Mark J. Gasiorowski, "The 1953 coup d'etat in Iran." International Journal of Middle East Studies 19.3 (1987): 261-286.

35. "Israel Military Intelligence: The Lavon Affair" (<https://www.jewishvirtuallibrary.org/jsource/History/lavon.html>). jewishvirtuallibrary.org.
36. "What was the Watergate Scandal?" (http://uspolitics.about.com/od/presidenc1/a/what_watergate.htm). uspolitics.about.com.
37. "Hunger strikes and the Brighton bomb" (http://news.bbc.co.uk/1/hi/events/northern_ireland/history/68779.stm). news.bbc.co.uk. 18 March 1999.
38. "A strange but true tale of voter fraud and bioterrorism" (<https://www.theatlantic.com/politics/archive/2014/06/a-strange-but-true-tale-of-voter-fraud-and-bioterrorism/372445/>). theatlantic.com. 10 June 2014.
39. "The Iran Contra Affair 1986–1987" (<https://www.washingtonpost.com/wp-srv/politics/special/clinton/fr/enzy/iran.htm>). washingtonpost.com.
40. "Iran contra affair" (<http://www.infoplease.com/encyclopedia/history/iran-contra-affair.html>). infoplease.com.
41. "Chapter 1.1: 'We Have Some Planes': Inside the Four Flights" (https://www.9-11commission.gov/report/911Report_Ch1.pdf) (PDF), 9/11 Commission Report, National Commission on Terrorist Attacks Upon the United States, 2004
42. Mario Arturo Ruiz Estrada, and Evangelos Koutronas. "Terrorist attack assessment: Paris November 2015 and Brussels March *2016." Journal of Policy Modeling 38.3 (2016): 553–571. online (https://www.researchgate.net/profile/Mario_Ruiz_Estrada/publication/303881692_Paris_and_Brusells_Terrorist_Attacks/links/575a85cb08ae414b8e46232e.pdf)

Further reading

- Burnett, Thom. Conspiracy Encyclopedia: The Encyclopedia of Conspiracy Theories (2006)
- Critchlow, Donald T., John Korasick, Matthew C. Sherman, eds. Political Conspiracies in America: A Reader (2008) online (<https://www.questia.com/library/120093382/political-conspiracies-in-america-a-reader>)
- Coward, Barry, and Julian Swann. Conspiracies and conspiracy theory in early modern Europe: from the Waldensians to the French revolution (Routledge, 2017).
- Dean, Jodi. Aliens in America: Conspiracy Culture from Outerspace to Cyberspace (Cornell University Press, 1998).
- Knight, Peter, ed. Conspiracy Theories in American History: An Encyclopedia (2003)
- Lewis, Jon E. The Mammoth Book of Cover-Ups: The 100 Most Terrifying Conspiracies of All Time (2008) excerpt (<https://www.amazon.com/Mammoth-Book-Cover-Ups-Terrifying-Conspiracies/dp/0786719680/>)
- Newton, Michael, ed. Famous Assassinations in World History: An Encyclopedia (2 vol ABC-CLIO, 2014), covers 266 assassinations and attempted assassinations of world political leaders from 465 BCE to 2012.
- Newton, Michael, ed. The Encyclopedia of Conspiracies and Conspiracy Theories (2005)
- Sifakis, Carl. Encyclopedia of Assassinations (Facts on File 2001),
- Wood, Gordon. "Conspiracy and the Paranoid Style: Causality and Deceit in the Eighteenth Century." William and Mary Quarterly 39 (1982): 401–41. online (<https://www.jstor.org/stable/1919580>) US history

Retrieved from "https://en.wikipedia.org/w/index.php?title=List_of_political_conspiracies&oldid=1027977464"

This page was last edited on 11 June 2021, at 03:48 (UTC).

Text is available under the Creative Commons Attribution-ShareAlike License; additional terms may apply. By using this site, you agree to the Terms of Use and Privacy Policy. Wikipedia® is a registered trademark of the Wikimedia Foundation, Inc., a non-profit organization.

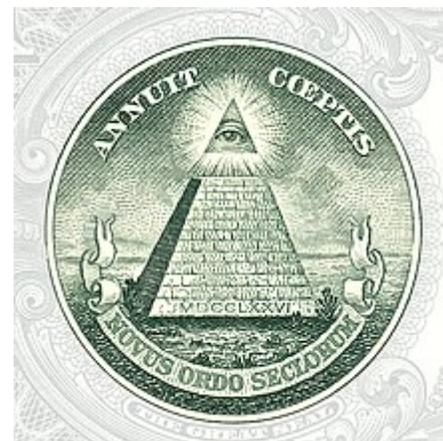

Conspiracy theory

A conspiracy theory is an explanation for an event or situation that invokes a conspiracy by sinister and powerful groups, often political in motivation,^{[2][3]} when other explanations are more probable.^{[4][5]} The term has a negative connotation, implying that the appeal to a conspiracy is based on prejudice or insufficient evidence.^[6] A conspiracy theory is not simply about a conspiracy; instead, it refers to a hypothesized conspiracy with specific characteristics, such as an opposition to the mainstream consensus among those people (such as scientists or historians) who are qualified to evaluate its accuracy.^{[7][8]}

Conspiracy theories resist falsification and are reinforced by circular reasoning: both evidence against the conspiracy and an absence of evidence for it are re-interpreted as evidence of its truth,^{[6][9]} whereby the conspiracy becomes a matter of faith rather than something that can be proven or disproven.^{[10][11]} Research suggests that conspiracist ideation—belief in conspiracy theories—may be psychologically harmful or pathological^{[12][13]} and that it is correlated with psychological projection, paranoia and Machiavellianism.^[14] Psychologists attribute finding a conspiracy where there is none to a mental phenomenon called illusory pattern perception.^{[15][16]}

Historically, conspiracy theories have been closely linked to prejudice, witch hunts, wars, and genocides.^{[17][18][19]} They are often strongly believed by the perpetrators of terrorist attacks, and were used as justification by Timothy McVeigh and Anders Breivik, as well as by governments such as Nazi Germany, the Soviet Union,^[17] and Turkey.^[20] AIDS denialism by the government of South Africa, motivated by conspiracy theories, caused an estimated 330,000 deaths from AIDS,^{[21][22][23]} QAnon and denialism about the 2020 United States Presidential Election results led to the 2021 storming of the United States Capitol,^[24] while belief in conspiracy theories about genetically modified foods led the government of Zambia to reject food aid during a famine,^[18] at a time when 3 million people in the country were suffering from hunger.^[25] Conspiracy theories are a significant obstacle to improvements in public health,^{[18][26]} encouraging opposition to vaccination and water fluoridation among others, and have been linked to outbreaks of vaccine-preventable diseases.^{[18][21][26][27]} Other effects of conspiracy theories include reduced trust in scientific evidence,^{[18][28]} radicalization and ideological reinforcement of extremist groups,^{[17][29]} and negative consequences for the economy.^[17]

Conspiracy theories once limited to fringe audiences have become commonplace in mass media, emerging as a cultural phenomenon of the late 20th and early 21st centuries.^{[30][31][32][33]} They are widespread around the world and are often commonly believed, some even being held by the majority of the population.^{[34][35][36]} Interventions to reduce the occurrence of conspiracy beliefs include maintaining an open society and improving the analytical thinking skills of the general public.^{[34][35]}

The Eye of Providence, or the all-seeing eye of God, seen here on the US$1 bill, has been taken by some to be evidence of a conspiracy involving the founders of the United States and the Illuminati.^[1]

Contents

Etymology and usageDifference from conspiracy*Examples*Popularity*TypesWalker's five kindsBarkun's three typesRothbard: shallow vs. deepRelationship with evidence*Rhetoric*Conspiracism as a world viewMiddle EastUnited StatesConsequences*Interventions*PsychologyAttractionsOriginsProjectionSociologyInfluence of critical theoryFusion paranoiaViability*Politics*See also*References*External links

Etymology and usage

The Oxford English Dictionary defines conspiracy theory as "the theory that an event or phenomenon occurs as a result of a conspiracy between interested parties; spec. a belief that some covert but influential agency (typically political in motivation and oppressive in intent) is responsible for an unexplained event". It cites a 1909 article in The American Historical Review as the earliest usage example,^{[37][38]} although it also appeared in print as early as April 1870.^[39] The word "conspiracy" derives from the Latin con- ("with, together") and spirare ("to breathe").

Robert Blaskiewicz comments that examples of the term were used as early as the nineteenth century and states that its usage has always been derogatory.^[40] According to a study by Andrew McKenzie-McHarg, in contrast, in the nineteenth century the term conspiracy theory simply "suggests a plausible postulate of a conspiracy" and "did not, at this stage, carry any connotations, either negative or positive", though sometimes a postulate so-labeled was criticized.^[41] The term "conspiracy theory" is itself the subject of a conspiracy theory, which claims the term was popularized by the CIA in order to discredit conspiratorial believers, particularly critics of the Warren Commission, by making them a target of ridicule.^[42] In his 2013 book Conspiracy Theory in America, political scientist Lance deHaven-Smith suggested that the term entered everyday language in the United States after 1964, the year in which the Warren Commission published its findings on the Kennedy assassination, with The New York Times running five stories that year using the term.^[43] However, deHaven-Smith's suggestion has been criticized by Michael Butter, a Professor of American Literary and Cultural History at the University of Tübingen, on the grounds that a CIA document which deHaven-Smith referenced, Concerning Criticism of the Warren Report – which was publicly released in 1976 after a Freedom of Information Act request – does not contain the phrase "conspiracy theory" in the singular, and only mentions "conspiracy theories" once, in the sentence "Conspiracy theories have frequently thrown suspicion on our organisation [sic], for example, by falsely alleging that Lee Harvey Oswald worked for us."^[44]

Difference from conspiracy

A conspiracy theory is not simply about a conspiracy, which refers to any covert plan involving two or more people.^[7] In contrast, the term "conspiracy theory" refers to hypothesized conspiracies that have specific characteristics. For example, conspiracist beliefs invariably oppose the mainstream consensus among those people who are qualified to evaluate their accuracy, such as scientists or historians.^[8] Conspiracy theorists see themselves as having privileged access to socially persecuted knowledge or a stigmatized mode of thought that separates them from the masses who believe the official account.^[7] Michael Barkun describes a conspiracy theory as a "template imposed upon the world to give the appearance of order to events".^[7]

Real conspiracies, even very simple ones, are difficult to conceal and routinely experience unexpected problems.^[45] In contrast, conspiracy theories suggest that conspiracies are unrealistically successful and that groups of conspirators, such as bureaucracies, can act with near-perfect competence and secrecy. The causes of events or situations are simplified to exclude complex or interacting factors, as well as the role of chance and unintended consequences. Nearly all observations are explained as having been deliberately planned by the alleged conspirators.^[45]

In conspiracy theories, the conspirators are usually claimed to be acting with extreme malice.^[45] As described by Robert Brotherton:

The malevolent intent assumed by most conspiracy theories goes far beyond everyday plots borne out of self-interest, corruption, cruelty, and criminality. The postulated conspirators are not merely people with selfish agendas or differing values. Rather, conspiracy theories postulate a black-and-white world in which good is struggling against evil. The general public is cast as the victim of organised persecution, and the motives of the alleged conspirators often verge on pure maniacal evil. At the very least, the conspirators are said to have an almost inhuman disregard for the basic liberty and well-being of the general population. More grandiose conspiracy theories portray the conspirators as being Evil Incarnate: of having caused all the ills from which we suffer, committing abominable acts of unthinkable cruelty on a routine basis, and striving ultimately to subvert or destroy everything we hold dear.^[45]

Examples

A conspiracy theory may take any matter as its subject, but certain subjects attract greater interest than others. Favored subjects include famous deaths and assassinations, morally dubious government activities, suppressed technologies, and "false flag" terrorism. Among the longest-standing and most widely recognized conspiracy theories are notions concerning the assassination of John F. Kennedy, the 1969 Apollo moon landings, and the 9/11 terrorist attacks, as well as numerous theories pertaining to alleged plots for world domination by various groups both real and imaginary.^[46]

Popularity

Conspiracy beliefs are widespread around the world.^[34] In rural Africa, common targets of conspiracy theorizing include societal elites, enemy tribes, and the Western world, with conspirators often alleged to enact their plans via sorcery or witchcraft; one common belief identifies modern technology as itself being a form of sorcery, created with the goal of harming or controlling the people.^[34] In China, one widely published conspiracy theory claims that a number of events including the rise of Hitler, the 1997 Asian financial crisis, and climate change were planned by the Rothschild family, which may have led to effects on discussions about China's currency policy.^{[35][47]}

Conspiracy theories once limited to fringe audiences have become commonplace in mass media, contributing to conspiracism emerging as a cultural phenomenon in the United States of the late 20th and early 21st centuries.^{[30][31][32][33]} The general predisposition to believe conspiracy theories cuts across partisan and ideological lines. Conspiratorial thinking is correlated with antigovernmental orientations and a low sense of political efficacy, with conspiracy believers perceiving a governmental threat to individual rights and displaying a deep skepticism that who one votes for really matters.^[48]

Conspiracy theories are often commonly believed, some even being held by the majority of the population.^{[34][35][36]} A broad cross-section of Americans today gives credence to at least some conspiracy theories.^[49] For instance, a study conducted in 2016 found that 10% of Americans think the chemtrail conspiracy theory is "completely true" and 20-30% think it is "somewhat true".^[50] This puts "the equivalent of 120 million Americans in the 'chemtrails are real' camp."^[50] Belief in conspiracy theories has therefore become a topic of interest for sociologists, psychologists and experts in folklore.

Conspiracy theories are widely present on the Web in the form of blogs and YouTube videos, as well as on social media. Whether the Web has increased the prevalence of conspiracy theories or not is an open research question.^[51] The presence and representation of conspiracy theories in search engine results has been monitored and studied, showing significant variation across different topics, and a general absence of reputable, high-quality links in the results.^[52]

One conspiracy theory that propagated through former US President Barack Obama's time in office^[53] claimed that he was born in Kenya instead of Hawaii^[54]- where he was born. Former governor of Arkansas and political opponent of Obama, Mike Huckabee made headlines in 2011^[55] when he, among other members of Republican leadership, continued to question Obama's citizenship status.

Types

A conspiracy theory can be local or international, focused on single events or covering multiple incidents and entire countries, regions and periods of history.^[7] According to Ruseell Muirhead and Nancy Rosenblum, historically, traditional conspiracism has entailed a "theory", but over time, "conspiracy" and "theory" have become decoupled, as modern conspiracism is often without any kind of theory behind it.^{[56][57]}

Walker's five kinds

Jesse Walker (2013) has identified five kinds of conspiracy theories:

- The "Enemy Outside" refers to theories based on figures alleged to be scheming against a community from without.
- The "Enemy Within" finds the conspirators lurking inside the nation, indistinguishable from ordinary citizens.
- The "Enemy Above" involves powerful people manipulating events for their own gain.
- The "Enemy Below" features the lower classes working to overturn the social order.
- The "Benevolent Conspiracies" are angelic forces that work behind the scenes to improve the world and help people.^[58]

Barkun's three types

Michael Barkun has identified three classifications of conspiracy theory:

- Event conspiracy theories. This refers to limited and well-defined events. Examples may include such conspiracies theories as those concerning the Kennedy assassination, 9/11, and the spread of AIDS.^[59]
- Systemic conspiracy theories. The conspiracy is believed to have broad goals, usually conceived as securing control of a country, a region, or even the entire world. The goals are sweeping, whilst the conspiratorial machinery is generally simple: a single, evil organization implements a plan to infiltrate and subvert existing institutions. This is a common scenario in conspiracy theories that focus on the alleged machinations of Jews, Freemasons, Communism, or the Catholic Church.^[59]
- Superconspiracy theories. For Barkun, such theories link multiple alleged conspiracies together hierarchically. At the summit is a distant but all-powerful evil force. His cited examples are the ideas of David Icke and Milton William Cooper.^[59]

Rothbard: shallow vs. deep

Murray Rothbard argues in favor of a model that contrasts "deep" conspiracy theories to "shallow" ones. According to Rothbard, a "shallow" theorist observes an event and asks Cui bono? ("Who benefits?"), jumping to the conclusion that a posited beneficiary is responsible for covertly influencing events. On the other hand, the "deep" conspiracy theorist begins with a hunch and then seeks out evidence. Rothbard describes this latter activity as a matter of confirming with certain facts one's initial paranoia.^[60]

Relationship with evidence

Belief in conspiracy theories is generally based not on evidence, but in the faith of the believer.^[61] Noam Chomsky contrasts conspiracy theory to institutional analysis which focuses mostly on the public, long-term behavior of publicly known institutions, as recorded in, for example, scholarly documents or mainstream media reports.^[62] Conspiracy theory conversely posits the existence of secretive coalitions of individuals and speculates on their alleged activities.^{[63][64]} Belief in conspiracy theories is associated with biases in reasoning, such as the conjunction fallacy.^[65]

Clare Birchall at King's College London describes conspiracy theory as a "form of popular knowledge or interpretation".^[a] The use of the word 'knowledge' here suggests ways in which conspiracy theory may be considered in relation to legitimate modes of knowing.^[b] The relationship between legitimate and illegitimate knowledge, Birchall claims, is closer than common dismissals of conspiracy theory contend.^[67]

Theories involving multiple conspirators that are proven to be correct, such as the Watergate scandal, are usually referred to as "investigative journalism" or "historical analysis" rather than conspiracy theory.^[68] By contrast, the term "Watergate conspiracy theory" is used to refer to a variety of hypotheses in which those convicted in the conspiracy were in fact the victims of a deeper conspiracy.^[69] There are also attempts to analyze the theory of conspiracy theories (conspiracy theory theory) to ensure that the term "conspiracy theory" is used to refer to narratives that have been debunked by experts, rather than as a generalized dismissal.^[70]

Rhetoric

Conspiracy theory rhetoric exploits several important cognitive biases, including proportionality bias, attribution bias, and confirmation bias.^[21] Conspiracy theories are most successful when proponents can gather followers from the general public, such as in politics, religion and journalism. These proponents may not necessarily believe the conspiracy theory, instead using it in an attempt to gain public approval. Conspiratorial claims can act as a successful rhetorical strategy to convince a portion of the public via appeal to emotion.^[18]

Conspiracy theories typically justify themselves by focusing on gaps or ambiguities in knowledge, and then arguing that the true explanation for this must be a conspiracy.^[45] In contrast, any evidence that directly supports their claims is generally of low quality. For example, conspiracy theories are often dependent on eyewitness testimony, despite its unreliability, while disregarding objective analyses of the evidence.^[45]

Conspiracy theories resist falsification and are reinforced by circular reasoning: both evidence against the conspiracy and an absence of evidence for it are re-interpreted as evidence of its truth,^{[6][9]} whereby the conspiracy becomes a matter of faith rather than something that can be proved or disproved.^{[10][11]} The epistemic strategy of conspiracy theories has been called "cascade logic": each time new evidence becomes available, a conspiracy theory is able to dismiss it by claiming that even more people must be part of the cover-up.^{[18][45]} Any information that contradicts the conspiracy theory is suggested to be disinformation by the alleged conspiracy.^[28] Similarly, the continued lack of evidence directly supporting conspiracist claims is portrayed as confirming the existence of a conspiracy of silence; the fact that other people have not found or exposed any conspiracy is taken as evidence that those people are part of the plot, rather than considering that it may be because no conspiracy exists.^{[21][45]} This strategy lets conspiracy theories insulate themselves from neutral analyses of the evidence, and makes them resistant to questioning or correction, which is called "epistemic self-insulation".^{[21][45]}

Conspiracy theorists often take advantage of false balance in the media. They may claim to be presenting a legitimate alternative viewpoint that deserves equal time to argue its case; for example, this strategy has been used by the Teach the Controversy campaign to promote intelligent design, which often claims that there is a conspiracy of scientists suppressing their views. If they successfully find a platform to present their views in a debate format, they focus on using rhetorical ad hominems and attacking perceived flaws in the mainstream account, while avoiding any discussion of the shortcomings in their own position.^[18]

The typical approach of conspiracy theories is to challenge any action or statement from authorities, using even the most tenuous justifications. Responses are then assessed using a double standard, where failing to provide an immediate response to the satisfaction of the conspiracy theorist will be claimed to prove a conspiracy. Any minor errors in the response are heavily emphasized, while deficiencies in the arguments of other proponents are generally excused.^[18]

In science, conspiracists may suggest that a scientific theory can be disproven by a single perceived deficiency, even though such events are extremely rare. In addition, both disregarding the claims and attempting to address them will be interpreted as proof of a conspiracy.^[18] Other conspiracist arguments may not be scientific; for example, in response to the IPCC Second Assessment Report in 1996, much of the opposition centered on promoting a procedural objection to the report's creation. Specifically, it was claimed that part of the procedure reflected a conspiracy to silence dissenters, which served as motivation for opponents of the report and successfully redirected a significant amount of the public discussion away from the science.^[18]

Conspiracism as a world view

The historian Richard Hofstadter addressed the role of paranoia and conspiracism throughout U.S. history in his 1964 essay "The Paranoid Style in American Politics". Bernard Bailyn's classic The Ideological Origins of the American Revolution (1967) notes that a similar phenomenon could be found in North America during the time preceding the American Revolution. Conspiracism labels people's attitudes as well as the type of conspiracy theories that are more global and historical in proportion.^[71]

One of the most widely confirmed facts about conspiracy theories is that belief in a single conspiracy theory tends to promote belief in other unrelated conspiracy theories as well.^{[21][72]} This even applies when the conspiracy theories directly contradict each other, e.g. believing that Osama bin Laden was already dead before his compound in Pakistan was attacked makes the same person more likely to believe that he is still alive. One conclusion from this finding is that the content of a conspiracist belief is less important than the idea of a coverup by the authorities.^{[21][73][74]}

The term "conspiracism" was further popularized by academic Frank P. Mintz in the 1980s. According to Mintz, conspiracism denotes "belief in the primacy of conspiracies in the unfolding of history":^{[75]:4}

Conspiracism serves the needs of diverse political and social groups in America and elsewhere. It identifies elites, blames them for economic and social catastrophes, and assumes that things will be better once popular action can remove them from positions of power. As such, conspiracy theories do not typify a particular epoch or ideology.^{[75]:199}

Justin Fox of Time magazine argues that Wall Street traders are among the most conspiracy-minded group of people, and ascribes this to the reality of some financial market conspiracies, and to the ability of conspiracy theories to provide necessary orientation in the market's day-to-day movements.^[76]

Middle East

Conspiracy theories are a prevalent feature of Arab culture and politics.^[77] Variants include conspiracies involving colonialism, Zionism, superpowers, oil, and the war on terrorism, which may be referred to as a war against Islam.^[77] For example, The Protocols of the Elders of Zion, an infamous hoax document purporting to be a Jewish plan for world domination, is commonly read and promoted in the Muslim world.^{[78][79][80]} Roger Cohen has suggested that the popularity of conspiracy theories in the Arab world is "the ultimate refuge of the powerless".^[81] Al-Mumin Said has noted the danger of such theories, for they "keep us not only from the truth but also from confronting our faults and problems".^[82]

Osama bin Laden and Ayman al-Zawahiri have used conspiracy theories about the United States to gain support for al-Qaeda in the Arab world, and as rhetoric to distinguish themselves from similar groups, although they may not have believed the conspiratorial claims themselves.^[83]

United States

Harry G. West and others have noted that while conspiracy theorists may often be dismissed as a fringe minority, certain evidence suggests that a wide range of the U.S. maintains a belief in conspiracy theories. West also compares those theories to hypernationalism and religious fundamentalism.^{[84][85]}

Theologian Robert Jewett and philosopher John Shelton Lawrence attribute the enduring popularity of conspiracy theories in the U.S. to the Cold War, McCarthyism, and counterculture rejection of authority. They state that among both the left-wing and right-wing, there remains a willingness to use real events, such as Soviet plots, inconsistencies in the Warren Report, and the 9/11 attacks, to support the existence of unverified and ongoing large-scale conspiracies.^[86]

The Watergate scandal has also been used to bestow legitimacy to other conspiracy theories, with Richard Nixon himself commenting that it served as a "Rorschach ink blot" which invited others to fill in the underlying pattern.^[68]

Historian Kathryn S. Olmsted cites three reasons why Americans are prone to believing in government conspiracies theories:

1. Genuine government overreach and secrecy during the Cold War, such as Watergate, the Tuskegee syphilis experiment, Project MKUltra, and the CIA's collaboration with mobsters in attempting to assassinate Fidel Castro.
2. Precedent set by official government-sanctioned conspiracy theories for propaganda, such as claims of German infiltration of the U.S. during World War II or the debunked claim that Saddam Hussein played a role in the 9/11 attacks.
3. Distrust fostered by the government's spying on and harassment of dissenters, such as the Sedition Act of 1918, COINTELPRO, and as part of various Red Scares.^[87]

Consequences

Historically, conspiracy theories have been closely linked to prejudice, witch hunts, wars, and genocides.^{[17][18]} They are often strongly believed by the perpetrators of terrorist attacks, and were used as justification by Timothy McVeigh, Anders Breivik and Brenton Tarrant, as well as by governments such as Nazi Germany and the Soviet Union.^[17] AIDS denialism by the government of South Africa, motivated by conspiracy theories, caused an estimated 330,000 deaths from AIDS,^{[21][22][23]} while belief in conspiracy theories about genetically modified foods led the government of Zambia to reject food aid during a famine,^[18] at a time when 3 million people in the country were suffering from hunger.^[25]

Conspiracy theories are a significant obstacle to improvements in public health.^{[18][26]} People who believe in health-related conspiracy theories are less likely to follow medical advice, and more likely to use alternative medicine instead.^[17] Conspiratorial anti-vaccination beliefs, such as conspiracy theories about pharmaceutical companies, can result in reduced vaccination rates and have been linked to outbreaks of vaccine-preventable diseases.^{[21][18][27][26]} Health-related conspiracy theories often inspire resistance to water fluoridation, and contributed to the impact of the Lancet MMR autism fraud.^{[18][26]}

Conspiracy theories are a fundamental component of a wide range of radicalized and extremist groups, where they may play an important role in reinforcing the ideology and psychology of their members as well as further radicalizing their beliefs.^{[17][29]} These conspiracy theories often share common themes, even among groups that would otherwise be fundamentally opposed, such as the anti-Semitic conspiracy theories found among political extremists on both the far right and far left.^[17] More generally, belief in conspiracy theories is associated with holding extreme and uncompromising viewpoints, and may help people in maintaining those viewpoints.^[28] While conspiracy theories are not always present in extremist groups, and do not always lead to violence when they are, they can make the group more extreme, provide an enemy to direct hatred towards, and isolate members from the rest of society. Conspiracy theories are most likely to inspire violence when they call for urgent action, appeal to prejudices, or demonize and scapegoat enemies.^[29]

Conspiracy theorizing in the workplace can also have economic consequences. For example, it leads to lower job satisfaction and lower commitment, resulting in workers being more likely to leave their jobs.^[17] Comparisons have also been made with the effects of workplace rumors, which share some characteristics with conspiracy theories and result in both decreased productivity and increased stress. Subsequent effects on managers include reduced profits, reduced trust from employees, and damage to the company's image.^{[17][88]}

Conspiracy theories can divert attention from important social, political, and scientific issues.^{[89][73]} In addition, they have been used to discredit scientific evidence to the general public or in a legal context. Conspiratorial strategies also share characteristics with those used by lawyers who are attempting to discredit expert testimony, such as claiming that the experts have ulterior motives in testifying, or attempting to find someone who will provide statements to imply that expert opinion is more divided than it actually is.^[18]

It is possible that conspiracy theories may also produce some compensatory benefits to society in certain situations. For example, they may help people identify governmental deceptions, particularly in repressive societies, and encourage government transparency.^{[35][89]} However, real conspiracies are normally revealed by people working within the system, such as whistleblowers and journalists, and most of the effort spent by conspiracy theorists is inherently misdirected.^[29] The most dangerous conspiracy theories are likely to be those that incite violence, scapegoat disadvantaged groups, or spread misinformation about important societal issues.^[90]

Interventions

The primary defense against conspiracy theories is to maintain an open society, in which many sources of reliable information are available, and government sources are known to be credible rather than propaganda. Additionally, independent nongovernmental organizations are able to correct misinformation without requiring people to trust the government.^[35] Other approaches to reduce the appeal of conspiracy theories in general among the public may be based in the emotional and social nature of conspiratorial beliefs. For example, interventions that promote analytical thinking in the general public are likely to be effective. Another approach is to intervene in ways that decrease negative emotions, and specifically to improve feelings of personal hope and empowerment.^[34]

Joseph Pierre has also noted that mistrust in authoritative institutions is the core component underlying many conspiracy theories and that this mistrust creates an epistemic vacuum and makes individuals searching for answers vulnerable to misinformation. Therefore, one possible solution is offering consumers a seat at the table to mend their mistrust in institutions.^[91] Regarding the challenges of this approach, Dr. Pierre has said, "The challenge with acknowledging areas of uncertainty within a public sphere is that doing so can be weaponized to reinforce a post-truth view of the world in which everything is debatable, and any counter-position is just as valid. Although I like to think of myself as a middle of the road kind of individual, it is important to keep in mind that the truth does not always lie in the middle of a debate, whether we are talking about climate change, vaccines, or antipsychotic medications."^[92]

It has been suggested that directly countering misinformation can be counterproductive. For example, since conspiracy theories can reinterpret disconfirming information as part of their narrative, refuting a claim can result in accidentally reinforcing it.^{[45][93]} In addition, publishing criticism of conspiracy theories can result in legitimizing them.^[89] In this context, possible interventions include carefully selecting which conspiracy theories to refute, requesting additional analyses from independent observers, and introducing cognitive diversity into conspiratorial communities by undermining their poor epistemology.^[89] Any legitimization effect might also be reduced by responding to more conspiracy theories rather than fewer.^[35]

However, presenting people with factual corrections, or highlighting the logical contradictions in conspiracy theories, has been demonstrated to have a positive effect in many circumstances.^{[34][93]} For example, this has been studied in the case of informing believers in 9/11 conspiracy theories about statements by actual experts and witnesses.^[34] One possibility is that criticism is most likely to backfire if it challenges someone's worldview or identity. This suggests that an effective approach may be to provide criticism while avoiding such challenges.^[93]

Psychology

The widespread belief in conspiracy theories has become a topic of interest for sociologists, psychologists, and experts in folklore since at least the 1960s, when a number of conspiracy theories arose regarding the assassination of U.S. President John F. Kennedy. Sociologist Türkay Salim Nefes underlines the political nature of conspiracy theories. He suggests that one of the most important characteristics of these accounts is their attempt to unveil the "real but hidden" power relations in social groups.^{[94][95]}

Research suggests, on a psychological level, conspiracist ideation—belief in conspiracy theories—can be harmful or pathological,^{[12][13]} and is highly correlated with psychological projection, as well as with paranoia, which is predicted by the degree of a person's Machiavellianism.^[96] The propensity to believe in conspiracy theories is strongly associated with the mental health disorder of schizotypy.^{[97][98][99][100][101]} Conspiracy theories once limited to fringe audiences have become commonplace in mass media, emerging as a cultural phenomenon of the late 20th and early 21st centuries.^{[30][31][32][33]} Exposure to conspiracy theories in news media and popular entertainment increases receptiveness to conspiratorial ideas, and has also increased the social acceptability of fringe beliefs.^{[17][102]}

Conspiracy theories often make use of complicated and detailed arguments, including ones which appear to be analytical or scientific. However, belief in conspiracy theories is primarily driven by emotion.^[34] Analytical thinking aids in reducing belief in conspiracy theories, in part because it emphasizes rational and critical cognition.^[28] Some psychological scientists assert that explanations related to conspiracy theories can be, and often are "internally consistent" with strong beliefs that had previously been held prior to the event that sparked the conspiracy.^[28] People who believe in conspiracy theories tend to believe in other unsubstantiated claims – including pseudoscience and paranormal phenomena.^[103]

Attractions

Psychological motives for believing in conspiracy theories can be categorized as epistemic, existential, or social. These motives are particularly acute in vulnerable and disadvantaged populations. However, it does not appear that the beliefs help to address these motives; in fact, they may be self-defeating, acting to make the situation worse instead.^{[28][93]} For example, while conspiratorial beliefs can result from a perceived sense of powerlessness, exposure to conspiracy theories immediately suppresses personal feelings of autonomy and control. Furthermore, they also make people less likely to take actions that could improve their circumstances.^{[28][93]}

This is additionally supported by the fact that conspiracy theories have a number of disadvantageous attributes.^[28] For example, they promote a negative and distrustful view of other people and groups, who are allegedly acting based on antisocial and cynical motivations. This is expected to lead to increased alienation and anomie, and reduced social capital. Similarly, they depict the public as ignorant and powerless against the alleged conspirators, with important aspects of society determined by malevolent forces, a viewpoint which is likely to be disempowering.^[28]

Each person may endorse conspiracy theories for one of many different reasons.^[104] The most consistently demonstrated characteristics of people who find conspiracy theories appealing are a feeling of alienation, unhappiness or dissatisfaction with their situation, an unconventional worldview, and a feeling of disempowerment.^[104] While various aspects of personality affect susceptibility to conspiracy theories, none of the Big Five personality traits are associated with conspiracy beliefs.^[104]

The political scientist Michael Barkun, discussing the usage of "conspiracy theory" in contemporary American culture, holds that this term is used for a belief that explains an event as the result of a secret plot by exceptionally powerful and cunning conspirators to achieve a malevolent end.^{[105][106]} According to Barkun, the appeal of conspiracism is threefold:

- "First, conspiracy theories claim to explain what institutional analysis cannot. They appear to make sense out of a world that is otherwise confusing.
- Second, they do so in an appealingly simple way, by dividing the world sharply between the forces of light, and the forces of darkness. They trace all evil back to a single source, the conspirators and their agents.
- Third, conspiracy theories are often presented as special, secret knowledge unknown or unappreciated by others. For conspiracy theorists, the masses are a brainwashed herd, while the conspiracy theorists in the know can congratulate themselves on penetrating the plotters' deceptions."^[106]

This third point is supported by research of Roland Imhoff, professor in Social Psychology at the Johannes Gutenberg University Mainz. The research suggests that the smaller the minority believing in a specific theory, the more attractive it is to conspiracy theorists.^[107]

Humanistic psychologists argue that even if a posited cabal behind an alleged conspiracy is almost always perceived as hostile, there often remains an element of reassurance for theorists. This is because it is a consolation to imagine that difficulties in human affairs are created by humans, and remain within human control. If a cabal can be implicated, there may be a hope of breaking its power or of joining it. Belief in the power of a cabal is an implicit assertion of human dignity—an unconscious affirmation that man is responsible for his own destiny.^[108]

People formulate conspiracy theories to explain, for example, power relations in social groups and the perceived existence of evil forces.^{[c][106][94][95]} Proposed psychological origins of conspiracy theorising include projection; the personal need to explain "a significant event [with] a significant cause;" and the product of various kinds and stages of thought disorder, such as paranoid disposition, ranging in severity to diagnosable mental illnesses. Some people prefer socio-political explanations over the insecurity of encountering random, unpredictable, or otherwise inexplicable events.^{[76][109][110][111][112][81]}

According to Berlet and Lyons, "Conspiracism is a particular narrative form of scapegoating that frames demonized enemies as part of a vast insidious plot against the common good, while it valorizes the scapegoater as a hero for sounding the alarm".^[113]

Origins

Some psychologists believe that a search for meaning is common in conspiracism. Once cognized, confirmation bias and avoidance of cognitive dissonance may reinforce the belief. In a context where a conspiracy theory has become embedded within a social group, communal reinforcement may also play a part.^[114]

Inquiry into possible motives behind the accepting of irrational conspiracy theories has linked^[115] these beliefs to distress resulting from an event that occurred, such as the events of 9/11. Additionally, research^[116] done by Manchester Metropolitan University suggests that "delusional ideation" is the most likely condition that would indicate an elevated belief in conspiracy theories. Studies^[65] also show that an increased attachment to these irrational beliefs lead to a decrease in desire for civic engagement. Belief in conspiracy theories is correlated with anxiety disorders, paranoia, and authoritarian beliefs.^[117]

Professor Quassim Cassam argues that conspiracy theorists hold their beliefs due to flaws in their thinking and more precisely, their intellectual character. He cites philosopher Linda Trinkaus Zagzebski and her book Virtues of the Mind in outlining intellectual virtues (such as humility, caution and carefulness) and intellectual vices (such as gullibility, carelessness and closed-mindedness). Whereas intellectual virtues help in reaching sound examination, intellectual vices "impede effective and responsible inquiry", meaning that those who are prone to believing in conspiracy theories possess certain vices while lacking necessary virtues.^[118]

Some researchers have suggested that conspiracy theories could be partially caused by psychological mechanisms the human brain possesses for detecting dangerous coalitions. Such a mechanism could have been useful in the small-scale environment humanity evolved in but are mismatched in a modern, complex society and thus "misfire", perceiving conspiracies where none exist.^[119]

Projection

Some historians have argued that there is an element of psychological projection in conspiracism. This projection, according to the argument, is manifested in the form of attribution of undesirable characteristics of the self to the conspirators. Historian Richard Hofstadter stated that:

This enemy seems on many counts a projection of the self; both the ideal and the unacceptable aspects of the self are attributed to him. A fundamental paradox of the paranoid style is the imitation of the enemy. The enemy, for example, may be the cosmopolitan intellectual, but the paranoid will outdo him in the apparatus of scholarship, even of pedantry. ... The Ku Klux Klan imitated Catholicism to the point of donning priestly vestments, developing an elaborate ritual and an equally elaborate hierarchy. The John Birch Society emulates Communist cells and quasi-secret operation through "front" groups, and preaches a ruthless prosecution of the ideological war along lines very similar to those it finds in the Communist enemy. Spokesmen of the various fundamentalist anti-Communist "crusades" openly express their admiration for the dedication, discipline, and strategic ingenuity the Communist cause calls forth.^[111]

Hofstadter also noted that "sexual freedom" is a vice frequently attributed to the conspiracist's target group, noting that "very often the fantasies of true believers reveal strong sadomasochistic outlets, vividly expressed, for example, in the delight of anti-Masons with the cruelty of Masonic punishments."^[111]

Sociology

In addition to psychological factors such as conspiracist ideation, sociological factors also help account for who believes in which conspiracy theories. Such theories tend to get more traction among election losers in society, for example, and the emphasis of conspiracy theories by elites and leaders tends to increase belief among followers who have higher levels of conspiracy thinking.^[120]

Christopher Hitchens described conspiracy theories as the "exhaust fumes of democracy":^[112] the unavoidable result of a large amount of information circulating among a large number of people.

Conspiracy theories may be emotionally satisfying, by assigning blame to a group to which the theorist does not belong and so absolving the theorist of moral or political responsibility in society.^[121] Likewise, Roger Cohen writing for The New York Times has said that, "captive minds; ... resort to conspiracy theory because it is the ultimate refuge of the powerless. If you cannot change your own life, it must be that some greater force controls the world."^[81]

Sociological historian Holger Herwig found in studying German explanations for the origins of World War I, "Those events that are most important are hardest to understand because they attract the greatest attention from myth makers and charlatans."^[122]

Influence of critical theory

French sociologist Bruno Latour suggests that the widespread popularity of conspiracy theories in mass culture may be due, in part, to the pervasive presence of Marxist-inspired critical theory and similar ideas in academia since the 1970s.^[123]

Latour notes that about 90% of contemporary social criticism in academia displays one of two approaches, which he terms "the fact position and the fairy position".^{[123]:237}

- The "fairy position" is anti-fetishist, arguing that "objects of belief" (e.g., religion, arts) are merely concepts onto which power is projected; Latour contends that those who use this approach show biases towards confirming their own dogmatic suspicions as most "scientifically supported". While the complete facts of the situation and correct methodology are ostensibly important to them, Latour proposes that the scientific process is instead laid on as a patina to one's pet theories to lend a sort of reputation high ground.

- The "fact position" argues that external forces (e.g., economics, gender) dominate individuals, often covertly and without their awareness.^[123]

Latour concludes that each of these two approaches in academia has led to a polarized, inefficient atmosphere highlighted (in both approaches) by its causticness. "Do you see now why it feels so good to be a critical mind?" asks Latour: no matter which position you take, "You're always right!"^[123]

Latour notes that such social criticism has been appropriated by those he describes as conspiracy theorists, including climate-change denialists and the 9/11 Truth movement: "Maybe I am taking conspiracy theories too seriously, but I am worried to detect, in those mad mixtures of knee-jerk disbelief, punctilious demands for proofs, and free use of powerful explanation from the social neverland, many of the weapons of social critique."^[123]

Fusion paranoia

Michael Kelly, a The Washington Post journalist and critic of anti-war movements on both the left and right, coined the term "fusion paranoia" to refer to a political convergence of left-wing and right-wing activists around anti-war issues and civil liberties, which he said were motivated by a shared belief in conspiracism or shared anti-government views.^[124]

Barkun has adopted this term to refer to how the synthesis of paranoid conspiracy theories, which were once limited to American fringe audiences, has given them mass appeal and enabled them to become commonplace in mass media,^[125] thereby inaugurating an unrivaled period of people actively preparing for apocalyptic or millenarian scenarios in the United States of the late 20th and early 21st centuries.^[126] Barkun notes the occurrence of lone-wolf conflicts with law enforcement acting as proxy for threatening the established political powers.^[127]

Viability

The physicist David Robert Grimes estimated the time it would take for a conspiracy to be exposed based on the number of people involved.^{[128][129]} His calculations used data from the PRISM surveillance program, the Tuskegee syphilis experiment, and the FBI forensic scandal. Grimes estimated that:

- A Moon landing hoax would require the involvement of 411,000 people and would be exposed within 3.68 years;
- Climate-change fraud would require a minimum of 29,083 people (published climate scientists only) and would be exposed within 26.77 years, or up to 405,000 people, in which case it would be exposed within 3.70 years;
- A vaccination conspiracy would require a minimum of 22,000 people (without drug companies) and would be exposed within at least 3.15 years and at most 34.78 years depending on the number involved;
- A conspiracy to suppress a cure for cancer would require 714,000 people and would be exposed within 3.17 years.

Politics

The philosopher Karl Popper described the central problem of conspiracy theories as a form of fundamental attribution error, where every event is generally perceived as being intentional and planned, greatly underestimating the effects of randomness and unintended consequences.^[73] In his book The Open Society and Its Enemies, he used the term "the conspiracy theory of society" to denote the idea that social phenomena such as "war, unemployment, poverty, shortages ... [are] the result of direct design by some powerful individuals and groups."^[130] Popper argued that totalitarianism was founded on conspiracy theories which drew on imaginary plots which were driven by paranoid scenarios predicated on tribalism, chauvinism, or racism. He also noted that conspirators very rarely achieved their goal.^[131]

Historically, when real conspiracies have occurred they have usually had little effect on history and have had unforeseen consequences for the conspirators. As described by Bruce Cumings, history is instead "moved by the broad forces and large structures of human collectivities".^[132]

Alex Jones referenced numerous conspiracy theories for convincing his supporters to endorse Ron Paul over Mitt Romney in the 2012 Republican Party presidential primaries and Donald Trump over Hillary Clinton in the 2016 United States presidential election.^[133] More recently, the QAnon conspiracy theory (which originated in the U.S.) alleges that Trump is fighting against a cabal of child sex-abusing and Satan-worshipping Democrats.^[134]

See also

- Big lie – Gross distortion of the truth
- Cherry picking – Fallacy of pointing to individual cases that seem to confirm a position while ignoring related cases that may contradict the position
- Conspiracy fiction – Subgenre of thriller fiction
- Fake news – False or misleading information presented as news
- Fringe theory – idea or viewpoint which differs from the accepted scholarship in its field
- Furtive fallacy – Informal fallacy of emphasis in which outcomes are asserted to have been caused by the hidden misconduct or wrongdoing by decision makers
- Hanlon's razor – Philosophical heuristic to never attribute to malice what is explained by stupidity
- List of fallacies – Types of reasoning that are logically incorrect
- List of topics characterized as pseudoscience – Wikipedia list article
- Occam's razor – Philosophical principle of selecting the solution with the fewest assumptions
- Influencing machine
- Philosophy of conspiracy theories – Branch of philosophy on the nature of conspiracy theories
- Propaganda – Form of communication intended to sway the audience through presenting only one side of the argument
- Pseudohistory – Pseudoscholarship that attempts to distort or misrepresent the historical record
- Pseudoscience – Unscientific claims that are wrongly presented as scientific
- Superstition – Belief or behavior that is considered irrational or supernatural

References

Informational notes

- a. Birchall 2006: "[W]e can appreciate conspiracy theory as a unique form of popular knowledge or interpretation, and address what this might mean for any knowledge we produce about it or how we interpret it."^{[66]:66}

- b. Birchall 2006: "What we quickly discover ... is that it becomes impossible to map conspiracy theory and academic discourse onto a clear illegitimate/legitimate divide."^[66]:72
- c. Barkun 2003: "The essence of conspiracy beliefs lies in attempts to delineate and explain evil. At their broadest, conspiracy theories 'view history as controlled by massive, demonic forces.' ... For our purposes, a conspiracy belief is the belief that an organization made up of individuals or groups was or is acting covertly to achieve a malevolent end."^[105]

Citations

1. Issitt, Micah; Main, Carlyn (2014). Hidden Religion: The Greatest Mysteries and Symbols of the World's Religious Beliefs. ABC-CLIO. pp. 47–49. ISBN 978-1-61069-478-0.
2. Goertzel, T (December 1994). "Belief in conspiracy theories". Political Psychology. 15 (4): 731–742. doi:10.2307/3791630 (https://doi.org/10.2307%2F3791630). JSTOR 3791630 (https://www.jstor.org/stable/3791630). "explanations for important events that involve secret plots by powerful and malevolent groups"
3. "conspiracy theory" (https://oed.com/search?searchType=dictionary&q=conspiracy+theory). Oxford English Dictionary (Online ed.). Oxford University Press. (Subscription or participating institution membership (https://www.oed.com/public/login/loggingin#withyourlibrary) required.) "the theory that an event or phenomenon occurs as a result of a conspiracy between interested parties; spec. a belief that some covert but influential agency (typically political in motivation and oppressive in intent) is responsible for an unexplained event"
4. Brotherton, Robert; French, Christopher C.; Pickering, Alan D. (2013). "Measuring Belief in Conspiracy Theories: The Generic Conspiracist Beliefs Scale" (https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC3659314). Frontiers in Psychology. 4: 279. doi:10.3389/fpsyg.2013.00279 (https://doi.org/10.3389%2Ffpsyg.2013.00279). ISSN 1664-1078 (https://www.worldcat.org/issn/1664-1078). PMC 3659314 (https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC3659314). PMID 23734136 (https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/23734136). S2CID 16685781 (https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:16685781). "A conspiracist belief can be described as 'the unnecessary assumption of conspiracy when other explanations are more probable'."

5. Additional sources:

- Aaronovitch, David (2009). Voodoo Histories: The Role of the Conspiracy Theory in Shaping Modern History (<https://books.google.com/books?id=icxkMJK-WmgC>). Jonathan Cape. p. 253. ISBN 9780224074704. Retrieved 17 August 2019. "It is a contention of this book that conspiracy theorists fail to apply the principle of Occam's razor to their arguments."
 - Brotherton, Robert; French, Christopher C. (2014). "Belief in Conspiracy Theories and Susceptibility to the Conjunction Fallacy" (<https://doi.org/10.1002%2Facp.2995>). Applied Cognitive Psychology. 28 (2): 238–248. doi:10.1002/acp.2995 (<https://doi.org/10.1002%2Facp.2995>). ISSN 0888-4080 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/0888-4080>). "A conspiracy theory can be defined as an unverified and relatively implausible allegation of conspiracy, claiming that significant events are the result of a secret plot carried out by a preternaturally sinister and powerful group of people."
 - Jonason, Peter Karl; March, Evita; Springer, Jordan (2019). "Belief in conspiracy theories: The predictive role of schizotypy, Machiavellianism, and primary psychopathy" (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC6890261>). PLOS ONE. 14 (12): e0225964. Bibcode:2019PLoSO..1425964M (<https://ui.adsabs.harvard.edu/abs/2019PLoSO..1425964M>). doi:10.1371/journal.pone.0225964 (<https://doi.org/10.1371%2Fjournal.pone.0225964>). ISSN 1932-6203 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/1932-6203>). PMC 6890261 (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC6890261>). PMID 31794581 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/31794581>). "Conspiracy theories are a subset of false beliefs, and generally implicate a malevolent force (e.g., a government body or secret society) involved in orchestrating major events or providing misinformation regarding the details of events to an unwitting public, in part of a plot towards achieving a sinister goal."
 - Thresher-Andrews, Christopher (2013). "An introduction into the world of conspiracy" (<http://www.psypag.co.uk/wp-content/uploads/2013/09/Issue-88.pdf>) (PDF). PsyPAG Quarterly. 88: 5–8. "Conspiracy theories are unsubstantiated, less plausible alternatives to the mainstream explanation of the event; they assume everything is intended, with malignity. Crucially, they are also epistemically self-insulating in their construction and arguments."
6. Byford, Jovan (2011). Conspiracy theories : a critical introduction. Houndmills, Basingstoke, Hampshire: Palgrave Macmillan. ISBN 9780230349216. OCLC 802867724 (<https://www.worldcat.org/oclc/802867724>).
 7. Barkun, Michael (2016). "Conspiracy Theories as Stigmatized Knowledge". Diogenes. 62 (3–4): 114–120. doi:10.1177/0392192116669288 (<https://doi.org/10.1177%2F0392192116669288>).
 8. Brotherton, Robert (2013). "Towards a definition of 'conspiracy theory'" (<http://www.psypag.co.uk/wp-content/uploads/2013/09/Issue-88.pdf>) (PDF). PsyPAG Quarterly. 88: 9–14. "A conspiracy theory is not merely one candidate explanation among other equally plausible alternatives. Rather, the label refers to a claim which runs counter to a more plausible and widely accepted account... [Conspiratorial beliefs are] invariably at odds with the mainstream consensus among scientists, historians, or other legitimate judges of the claim's veracity."
 9. Keeley, Brian L. (March 1999). "Of Conspiracy Theories". The Journal of Philosophy. 96 (3): 109–126. doi:10.2307/2564659 (<https://doi.org/10.2307%2F2564659>). JSTOR 2564659 (<https://www.jstor.org/stable/2564659>).
 10. Barkun, Michael (2003). A Culture of Conspiracy: Apocalyptic Visions in Contemporary America. Berkeley: University of California Press. pp. 3–4.
 11. Barkun, Michael (2011). Chasing Phantoms: Reality, Imagination, and Homeland Security Since 9/11. Chapel Hill: University of North Carolina Press. p. 10.

12. Freeman, Daniel; Bentall, Richard P. (29 March 2017). "The concomitants of conspiracy concerns" (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC5423964>). Social Psychiatry and Psychiatric Epidemiology. 52 (5): 595–604. doi:10.1007/s00127-017-1354-4 (<https://doi.org/10.1007%2Fs00127-017-1354-4>). ISSN 0933-7954 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/0933-7954>). PMC 5423964 (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC5423964>). PMID 28352955 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/28352955>).
13. Barron, David; Morgan, Kevin; Towell, Tony; Altemeyer, Boris; Swami, Viren (November 2014). "Associations between schizotypy and belief in conspiracist ideation" (<http://westminsterresearch.wmri.n.ac.uk/14570/1/1-s2.0-S0191886914003821-main.pdf>) (PDF). Personality and Individual Differences. 70: 156–159. doi:10.1016/j.paid.2014.06.040 (<https://doi.org/10.1016%2Fj.paid.2014.06.040>).
14. Douglas, Karen M.; Sutton, Robbie M. (12 April 2011). "Does it take one to know one? Endorsement of conspiracy theories is influenced by personal willingness to conspire" (<http://kar.kent.ac.uk/26187/1/Douglas%20%26%20Sutton%202011%20BJSP.pdf>) (PDF). British Journal of Social Psychology. 10 (3): 544–552. doi:10.1111/j.2044-8309.2010.02018.x (<https://doi.org/10.1111%2Fj.2044-8309.2010.02018.x>). PMID 21486312 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/21486312>). Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20181103180834/https://kar.kent.ac.uk/26187/1/Douglas%20%26%20Sutton%202011%20BJSP.pdf>) (PDF) from the original on 3 November 2018. Retrieved 28 December 2018.
15. Dean, Signe (23 October 2017). "Conspiracy Theorists Really Do See The World Differently, New Study Shows" (<https://www.sciencealert.com/conspiracy-theory-beliefs-illusory-pattern-perception-cognitive-science>). Science Alert. Retrieved 17 June 2020.
16. Sloat, Sarah (17 October 2017). "Conspiracy Theorists Have a Fundamental Cognitive Problem, Say Scientists" (<https://www.inverse.com/article/37463-conspiracy-beliefs-illusory-pattern-perception>). Inverse. Retrieved 17 June 2020.
17. Douglas, Karen M.; Uscinski, Joseph E.; Sutton, Robbie M.; Cichocka, Aleksandra; Nefes, Turkey; Ang, Chee Siang; Deravi, Farzin (2019). "Understanding Conspiracy Theories" (<https://doi.org/10.1111%2Fpops.12568>). Political Psychology. 40 (S1): 3–35. doi:10.1111/pops.12568 (<https://doi.org/10.1111%2Fpops.12568>). ISSN 0162-895X (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/0162-895X>).
18. Goertzel, Ted (2010). "Conspiracy theories in science" (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC2897118>). EMBO Reports. 11 (7): 493–499. doi:10.1038/embor.2010.84 (<https://doi.org/10.1038%2Fembor.2010.84>). ISSN 1469-221X (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/1469-221X>). PMC 2897118 (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC2897118>). PMID 20539311 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/20539311>).
19. Nefes, Turkey (2018). "Framing of a Conspiracy Theory: The Efendi Series". Handbook of Conspiracy Theory and Contemporary Religion. BRILL. pp. 407–422. ISBN 978-90-04-38202-2. "Conspiracy theories often function as popular conduits of ethno-religious hatred and conflict."
20. Göknar, Erdağ (2019). "Conspiracy Theory in Turkey: Politics and Protest in the Age of "Post-Truth" by Julian de Medeiros (review)" (<https://muse.jhu.edu/article/730239>). The Middle East Journal. 73 (2): 336–337. ISSN 1940-3461 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/1940-3461>).
21. Thresher-Andrews, Christopher (2013). "An introduction into the world of conspiracy" (<http://www.psy-pag.co.uk/wp-content/uploads/2013/09/Issue-88.pdf>) (PDF). PsyPAG Quarterly. 88: 5–8.
22. Simelela, Nono; Venter, W. D. Francois; Pillay, Yogan; Barron, Peter (2015). "A Political and Social History of HIV in South Africa". Current HIV/AIDS Reports. 12 (2): 256–261. doi:10.1007/s11904-015-0259-7 (<https://doi.org/10.1007%2Fs11904-015-0259-7>). ISSN 1548-3568 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/1548-3568>). PMID 25929959 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/25929959>). S2CID 23483038 (<https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:23483038>).

23. Burton, Rosie; Giddy, Janet; Stinson, Kathryn (2015). "Prevention of mother-to-child transmission in South Africa: an ever-changing landscape" (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC4934997>). Obstetric Medicine. 8 (1): 5–12. doi:10.1177/1753495X15570994 (<https://doi.org/10.1177%2F1753495X15570994>). ISSN 1753-495X (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/1753-495X>). PMC 4934997 (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC4934997>). PMID 27512452 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/27512452>).
24. "QAnon Capitol Siege Trump" (<https://www.washingtonpost.com/technology/2021/01/13/qanon-capitol-siege-trump/>). Retrieved 22 February 2021.
25. Dominique Brossard; James Shanahan; T. Clint Nesbitt (2007). The Media, the Public and Agricultural Biotechnology (<https://books.google.com/books?id=dq1frsw9alkC>). CABI. pp. 343, 353. ISBN 978-1-84593-204-6.
26. Glick, Michael; Booth, H. Austin (2014). "Conspiracy ideation". The Journal of the American Dental Association. 145 (8): 798–799. doi:10.1016/S0002-8177(14)60181-1 (<https://doi.org/10.1016%2FS0002-8177%2814%2960181-1>). ISSN 0002-8177 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/0002-8177>). PMID 25082925 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/25082925>).
27. Prematunge, Chatura; Corace, Kimberly; McCarthy, Anne; Nair, Rama C.; Pugsley, Renee; Garber, Gary (2012). "Factors influencing pandemic influenza vaccination of healthcare workers—A systematic review". Vaccine. 30 (32): 4733–4743. doi:10.1016/j.vaccine.2012.05.018 (<https://doi.org/10.1016%2Fj.vaccine.2012.05.018>). ISSN 0264-410X (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/0264-410X>). PMID 22643216 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/22643216>).
28. Douglas, Karen M.; Sutton, Robbie M.; Cichocka, Aleksandra (1 December 2017). "The Psychology of Conspiracy Theories" (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC5724570>). Current Directions in Psychological Science. 26 (6): 538–542. doi:10.1177/0963721417718261 (<https://doi.org/10.1177%2F0963721417718261>). ISSN 0963-7214 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/0963-7214>). PMC 5724570 (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC5724570>). PMID 29276345 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/29276345>).
29. Robert Brotherton (19 November 2015). "Chapter 2". Suspicious Minds: Why We Believe Conspiracy Theories (<https://books.google.com/books?id=awrcCQAAQBAJ>). Bloomsbury Publishing. ISBN 978-1-4729-1564-1.
30. Barkun 2003, p. 58.
31. Camp, Gregory S. (1997). Selling Fear: Conspiracy Theories and End-Times Paranoia. Commish Walsh. ASIN B000JON8NC (<https://www.amazon.com/dp/B000JON8NC>).
32. Goldberg, Robert Alan (2001). Enemies Within: The Culture of Conspiracy in Modern America (https://archive.org/details/enemieswithincul00gold_0). Yale University Press. ISBN 978-0-300-09000-0. Archived (https://web.archive.org/web/20191217045836/https://archive.org/details/enemieswithincul00gold_0) from the original on 17 December 2019. Retrieved 6 August 2019.
33. Fenster, Mark (2008). Conspiracy Theories: Secrecy and Power in American Culture. University of Minnesota Press; 2nd edition. ISBN 978-0-8166-5494-9.
34. van Prooijen, Jan-Willem; Douglas, Karen M. (2018). "Belief in conspiracy theories: Basic principles of an emerging research domain" (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC6282974>). European Journal of Social Psychology. 48 (7): 897–908. doi:10.1002/ejsp.2530 (<https://doi.org/10.1002%2Fejsp.2530>). ISSN 0046-2772 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/0046-2772>). PMC 6282974 (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC6282974>). PMID 30555188 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/30555188>).
35. Sunstein, Cass R.; Vermeule, Adrian (2009). "Conspiracy Theories: Causes and Cures". Journal of Political Philosophy. 17 (2): 202–227. doi:10.1111/j.1467-9760.2008.00325.x (<https://doi.org/10.1111%2Fj.1467-9760.2008.00325.x>). ISSN 0963-8016 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/0963-8016>).
36. Robert Brotherton (19 November 2015). "Introduction". Suspicious Minds: Why We Believe Conspiracy Theories (<https://books.google.com/books?id=awrcCQAAQBAJ>). Bloomsbury Publishing. ISBN 978-1-4729-1564-1.
37. Oxford English Dictionary Second Edition on CD-ROM (v. 4.0), Oxford University Press, 2009, s.v. 4

38. Johnson, Allen (July 1909). "Reviewed Work: The Repeal of the Missouri Compromise: Its Origin and Authorship by P. Orman Ray" (<http://archive.org/details/missouricomp00rayprich>). The American Historical Review. 14 (4): 835–836. doi:10.2307/1837085 (<https://doi.org/10.2307%2F1837085>). hdl:2027/loc.ark:/13960/t27948c87 (<https://hdl.handle.net/2027%2Floc.ark%3A%2F13960%2Ft27948c87>). JSTOR 1837085 (<https://www.jstor.org/stable/1837085>). "The claim that [David R.] Atchison was the originator of the [Missouri Compromise] repeal may be termed a recrudescence of the conspiracy theory first asserted by Colonel John A. Parker of Virginia in 1880."
39. Robertson, Lockhart; Association of Medical Officers of Asylums and Hospitals for the Insane (London, England); Medico-psychological Association of Great Britain and Ireland; Royal Medico-psychological Association (April 1870). Maudsley, Henry; Sibbald, John (eds.). "The Report of a Quarterly Meeting of the Medico-Psychological Association, held in London at the Royal Medico-Chirurgical Society, by permission of the President and Council, on the 27th January, 1870. [in Part IV. Psychological News.]" (<https://books.google.com/books?id=VsRMAAAAYAAJ&pg=PA141>). The Journal of Mental Science. London: Longman, Green, Longman, & Roberts. XVI (73). ISSN 0368-315X (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/0368-315X>). OCLC 4642826321 (<https://www.worldcat.org/oclc/4642826321>). "The theory of Dr. Sankey as to the manner in which these injuries to the chest occurred in asylums deserved our careful attention. It was at least more plausible that the conspiracy theory of Mr. Charles Reade, and the precautionary measure suggested by Dr. Sankey of using a padded waistcoat in recent cases of mania with general paralysis—in which mental condition nearly all these cases under discussion were—seemed to him of practical value."
40. Blaskiewicz, Robert (8 August 2013). "Nope, It Was Always Already Wrong" (http://www.csicop.org/specialarticles/show/nope_it_was_always_already_wrong). The Skeptical Inquirer. Committee for Skeptical Inquiry. Archived (https://web.archive.org/web/20151212122454/http://www.csicop.org/specialarticles/show/nope_it_was_always_already_wrong) from the original on 12 December 2015. Retrieved 11 December 2015.
41. McKenzie-McHarg, Andrew (2019) "Conspiracy Theory: The Nineteenth-Century Prehistory of a Twentieth-Century Concept," pp. 78, 76. In Joseph E. Uscinski (ed) Conspiracy Theories & the People Who Believe Them. New York: Oxford University Press.
42. Robert Brotherton (19 November 2015). "Chapter 4". Suspicious Minds: Why We Believe Conspiracy Theories (<https://books.google.com/books?id=awrcCQAAQBAJ>). Bloomsbury Publishing. ISBN 978-1-4729-1564-1.
43. deHaven-Smith, Lance (15 April 2013). Conspiracy Theory in America (<https://books.google.com/books?id=TilCeCKDujQC>). p. 3. ISBN 9780292743793. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20160906032935/https://books.google.com/books?id=TilCeCKDujQC&printsec=frontcover>) from the original on 6 September 2016. Retrieved 27 January 2016. "The term "conspiracy theory" did not exist as a phrase in everyday American conversation before 1964. ... In 1964, the year the Warren Commission issued its report, The New York Times published five stories in which "conspiracy theory" appeared."
44. Butter, Michael (16 March 2020). "There's a conspiracy theory that the CIA invented the term 'conspiracy theory' – here's why" (<https://theconversation.com/theres-a-conspiracy-theory-that-the-cia-invented-the-term-conspiracy-theory-heres-why-132117>). The Conversation. The Conversation Trust (UK) Limited. Retrieved 23 November 2020.
45. Brotherton, Robert (2013). "Towards a definition of 'conspiracy theory'" (<http://www.psypag.co.uk/wp-content/uploads/2013/09/Issue-88.pdf>) (PDF). PsyPAG Quarterly. 88: 9–14.
46. "History's greatest conspiracy theories" (<https://www.telegraph.co.uk/news/2016/03/16/historys-greatest-conspiracy-theories/>). The Daily Telegraph. 12 November 2008. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20180312171616/https://www.telegraph.co.uk/news/2016/03/16/historys-greatest-conspiracy-theories/>) from the original on 12 March 2018. Retrieved 5 April 2018.
47. J. Byford (12 October 2011). Conspiracy Theories: A Critical Introduction (<https://books.google.com/books?id=m5Er9ELowQkC>). Springer. pp. 7–8. ISBN 978-0-230-34921-6.
48. Adam M. Enders, "Conspiratorial Thinking and Political Constraint." Public Opinion Quarterly 83.3 (2019): 510–533.

49. West, Harry G.; Sanders, Todd (2003). Transparency and conspiracy: ethnographies of suspicion in the new world order (https://books.google.com/books?id=HeMdeV_LvAMC&pg=PP9). Duke University Press. p. 4. ISBN 978-0-8223-3024-0. Archived (https://web.archive.org/web/20170122093329/https://books.google.com/books?id=HeMdeV_LvAMC&pg=PP9) from the original on 22 January 2017. Retrieved 18 August 2016.
50. Kahn, Brian (2 November 2017). "There's a Damn Good Chance Your Neighbor Thinks Chemtrails Are Real" (<https://earther.gizmodo.com/theres-a-damn-good-chance-your-neighbor-thinks-chemtrai-1820077077>). Gizmodo Earther. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20190307173758/https://earther.gizmodo.com/theres-a-damn-good-chance-your-neighbor-thinks-chemtrai-1820077077>) from the original on 7 March 2019. Retrieved 5 March 2019.
51. Wood, M. (2015). "Has the Internet been good for conspiracy theorising?" (<http://www.psypag.co.uk/wp-content/uploads/2013/09/Issue-88.pdf>) (PDF). Psychology Postgraduate Affairs Group (PsyPAG) Quarterly (88): 31–33. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20150813062541/http://www.psypag.co.uk/wp-content/uploads/2013/09/Issue-88.pdf>) (PDF) from the original on 13 August 2015. Retrieved 12 September 2015.
52. Ballatore, A. (2015). "Google chemtrails: A methodology to analyze topic representation in search engine results" (<http://firstmonday.org/ojs/index.php/fm/article/view/5597>). First Monday. 20 (7). doi:10.5210/fm.v20i7.5597 (<https://doi.org/10.5210%2Ffm.v20i7.5597>). Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20150924102123/http://firstmonday.org/ojs/index.php/fm/article/view/5597>) from the original on 24 September 2015. Retrieved 12 September 2015.
53. Enders, Adam M.; Smallpage, Steven M.; Lupton, Robert N. (9 July 2018). "Are All 'Birthers' Conspiracy Theorists? On the Relationship Between Conspiratorial Thinking and Political Orientations". British Journal of Political Science. 50 (3): 849–866. doi:10.1017/s0007123417000837 (<https://doi.org/10.1017%2Fs0007123417000837>). ISSN 0007-1234 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/0007-1234>).
54. Sweek, Joel (October 2006). "Michael Barkun, . A Culture of Conspiracy: Apocalyptic Visions in Contemporary America. Berkeley: University of California Press, 2003. xii+243 pp. $24.95 (cloth)". The Journal of Religion. 86 (4): 691–692. doi:10.1086/509680 (<https://doi.org/10.1086%2F509680>). ISSN 0022-4189 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/0022-4189>).
55. News, Albert R. Hunt | Bloomberg (3 April 2011). "Republicans Ride Theories of the Fringe" (<https://www.nytimes.com/2011/04/04/us/04iht-letter04.html>). The New York Times. ISSN 0362-4331 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/0362-4331>). Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20110408044013/http://www.nytimes.com/2011/04/04/us/04iht-letter04.html>) from the original on 8 April 2011. Retrieved 23 April 2020.
56. Muirhead, Russell; Rosenblum, Nancy L. (1 February 2021). "Will Reality Bite Back: Conspiratorial Fictions and the Assault on Democracy" (<https://www.degruyter.com/document/doi/10.1515/for-2020-2016/html>). The Forum. 18 (3): 415–433. doi:10.1515/for-2020-2016 (<https://doi.org/10.1515%2Ffor-2020-2016>). ISSN 1540-8884 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/1540-8884>).
57. Muirhead, Russell; Rosenblum, Nancy L. (2019). A Lot of People Are Saying: The New Conspiracism and the Assault on Democracy (<https://www.jstor.org/stable/j.ctv941trn>). Princeton University Press. ISBN 978-0-691-18883-6. JSTOR j.ctv941trn (<https://www.jstor.org/stable/j.ctv941trn>).
58. Jesse Walker, The United States of Paranoia: A Conspiracy Theory (2013) excerpt and text search (<https://www.amazon.com/dp/0062135554>) Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20190512054322/https://www.amazon.com/United-States-Paranoia-Conspiracy-Theory/dp/0062135554>) 12 May 2019 at the Wayback Machine
59. Barkun 2003, p. 6.
60. As quoted by B.K. Marcus in "Radio Free Rothbard (https://mises.org/journals/jls/20_2/20_2_2.pdf) Archived (https://web.archive.org/web/20140817054514/http://mises.org/journals/jls/20_2/20_2_2.pdf) 17 August 2014 at the Wayback Machine," Journal of Libertarian Studies, Vol 20, No 2. (SPRING 2006): pp 17–51. Retrieved 16 May 2013.
61. Barkun 2003, p. 7.

62. Achbar, Mark, ed. (1994). Manufacturing Consent: Noam Chomsky and the Media (<https://archive.org/details/manufacturingcon00achb>). Black Rose Books Ltd. p. 131 (<https://archive.org/details/manufacturingcon00achb/page/131>). ISBN 978-1-55164-002-0.
63. Jack Z. Bratich (7 February 2008). Conspiracy Panics: Political Rationality and Popular Culture (<https://books.google.com/books?id=CaDA2uhr8lkC>). State University of New York Press, Albany. pp. 98–100. ISBN 9780791473344. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20190418133830/https://books.google.com/books?id=CaDA2uhr8lkC&printsec=frontcover>) from the original on 18 April 2019. Retrieved 16 June 2015.
64. Jovan Byford (12 October 2011). Conspiracy Theories: A Critical Introduction (<https://books.google.com/books?id=m5Er9ELowQkC>). Palgrave MacMillan. pp. 25–27. ISBN 9780230349216. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20140125180033/http://books.google.com/books?id=m5Er9ELowQkC&printsec=frontcover>) from the original on 25 January 2014. Retrieved 16 June 2015.
65. Brotherton, Robert; French, Christopher C. (2014). "Belief in Conspiracy Theories and Susceptibility to the Conjunction Fallacy" (<https://doi.org/10.1002%2Facp.2995>). Applied Cognitive Psychology. 28 (2): 238–248. doi:10.1002/acp.2995 (<https://doi.org/10.1002%2Facp.2995>). ISSN 0888-4080 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/0888-4080>).
66. Birchall, Clare (2006). "Cultural studies on/as conspiracy theory". In Birchall, Clare (ed.). Knowledge goes pop from conspiracy theory to gossip. Oxford, New York: Berg. ISBN 978-1-84520-143-2.
67. Birchall, Clare (2004). "Just because you're paranoid, doesn't mean they're not out to get you" (<http://web.archive.org/web/20150923211857/http://www.culturemachine.net/index.php/cm/article/view/12/11>). Culture Machine, Deconstruction Is/In Cultural Studies. 6. Archived from the original (<http://www.culturemachine.net/index.php/cm/article/view/12/11>) on 23 September 2015. Retrieved 11 March 2015.
68. Peter Knight (1 January 2003). Conspiracy Theories in American History: An Encyclopedia (<https://books.google.com/books?id=qMIDrggs8TsC&pg=PA730>). ABC-CLIO. pp. 730–. ISBN 978-1-57607-812-9. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20160906162011/https://books.google.com/books?id=qMIDrggs8TsC&pg=PA730>) from the original on 6 September 2016. Retrieved 27 January 2016.
69. Ron Rosenbaum (2012). "Ah, Watergate" (<https://newrepublic.com/article/104169/ah-watergate>). New Republic. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20160806155414/https://newrepublic.com/article/104169/ah-watergate>) from the original on 6 August 2016. Retrieved 29 June 2016.
70. Bigliardi, Stefano (July–August 2020). "Who's Afraid Of Conspiracy Theory Theory?". Skeptical Inquirer. Amherst, New York: Center for Inquiry.
71. Bailyn, Bernard (1992) [1967]. The Ideological Origins of the American Revolution. Cambridge: Harvard University Press. ISBN 978-0-674-44302-0. ASIN: B000NUF6FQ.
72. Sutton, Robbie M; Douglas, Karen M (2020). "Conspiracy theories and the conspiracy mindset: implications for political ideology" (<https://doi.org/10.1016%2Fj.cobeha.2020.02.015>). Current Opinion in Behavioral Sciences. 34: 118–122. doi:10.1016/j.cobeha.2020.02.015 (<https://doi.org/10.1016%2Fj.cobeha.2020.02.015>). ISSN 2352-1546 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/2352-1546>). S2CID 214735855 (<https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:214735855>).
73. Linden, Sander van der (30 April 2013). "Why People Believe in Conspiracy Theories" (<https://www.scientificamerican.com/article/why-people-believe-conspiracy-theories/>). Scientific American. Retrieved 16 October 2020.
74. Michal Bilewicz; Aleksandra Cichocka; Wiktor Soral (15 May 2015). The Psychology of Conspiracy (<https://books.google.com/books?id=WvRjHcQAAQBAJ>). Routledge. ISBN 978-1-317-59952-4.
75. Mintz, Frank P. (1985). The Liberty Lobby and the American Right: Race, Conspiracy, and Culture. Westport, CT: Greenwood. ISBN 978-0-313-24393-6.
76. Justin Fox: "Wall Streeters like conspiracy theories. Always have" (<http://business.time.com/2009/10/01/wall-streeters-like-conspiracy-theories-always-have/>) Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20160226100601/http://business.time.com/2009/10/01/wall-streeters-like-conspiracy-theories-always-have/>) 26 February 2016 at the Wayback Machine, Time, 1 October 2009.

77. Matthew Gray (2010). Conspiracy Theories in the Arab World. ISBN 978-0-415-57518-8.
78. Wakin, Daniel J. (26 October 2002). "Anti-Semitic 'Elders of Zion' Gets New Life on Egypt TV" (<http://www.nytimes.com/2002/10/26/world/anti-semitic-elders-of-zion-gets-new-life-on-egypt-tv.html>). The New York Times. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20140816063157/http://www.nytimes.com/2002/10/26/world/anti-semitic-elders-of-zion-gets-new-life-on-egypt-tv.html>) from the original on 16 August 2014. Retrieved 26 August 2014.
79. "2006 Saudi Arabia's Curriculum of Intolerance" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20060823125127/http://www.freedomhouse.org/religion/pdfdocs/KSAtextbooks06.pdf>) (PDF). Archived from the original (<http://www.freedomhouse.org/religion/pdfdocs/KSAtextbooks06.pdf>) (PDF) on 23 August 2006. Report by Center for Religious Freedom of Freedom House. 2006
80. "The Booksellers of Tehran" (<https://www.wsj.com/news/articles/SB113046423225782130>) Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170410052122/https://www.wsj.com/news/articles/SB113046423225782130>) 10 April 2017 at the Wayback Machine, The Wall Street Journal, 28 October 2005
81. Cohen, Roger (20 December 2010). "The Captive Arab Mind" (<https://www.nytimes.com/2010/12/21/opinion/21iht-edcohen21.html>). The New York Times. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170625080138/http://www.nytimes.com/2010/12/21/opinion/21iht-edcohen21.html>) from the original on 25 June 2017. Retrieved 18 February 2017.
82. Steven Stalinsky (6 May 2004). "A Vast Conspiracy" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20131004220251/http://old.nationalreview.com/comment/stalinsky200405060835.asp>). National Review. Archived from the original (<http://old.nationalreview.com/comment/stalinsky200405060835.asp>) on 4 October 2013.
83. Matthew Gray (12 July 2010). Conspiracy Theories in the Arab World: Sources and Politics (<https://books.google.com/books?id=BpxdBwAAQBAJ>). Routledge. pp. 158–159. ISBN 978-1-136-96751-1.
84. Harry G. West; et al. Transparency and Conspiracy: Ethnographies of Suspicion in the New World Order. Duke University Press Books. pp. 4, 207–08.
85. Shermer, Michael, and Pat Linse. Conspiracy Theories. Altadena, CA: Skeptics Society, n.d. Print.
86. Jewett, Robert; John Shelton Lawrence (2004) Captain America and the crusade against evil: the dilemma of zealous nationalism (<https://books.google.com/books?id=VE2k18ScPnQC&printsec=frontcover#v=onepage&q=%22conspiracy%20theories%22>) Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20190418133818/https://books.google.com/books?id=VE2k18ScPnQC&printsec=frontcover#v=onepage&q=%22conspiracy%20theories%22>) 18 April 2019 at the Wayback Machine Wm. B. Eerdmans Publishing p. 206.
87. Olmsted, Kathryn S. (2011) Real Enemies: Conspiracy Theories and American Democracy, World War I to 9/11 (<https://books.google.com/books?id=u7Sd5vyOOtEC&lpg=PP1&pg=PA8#v=onepage>) Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20190418133815/https://books.google.com/books?id=u7Sd5vyOOtEC&lpg=PP1&pg=PA8#v=onepage>) 18 April 2019 at the Wayback Machine, Oxford University Press, p. 8.
88. DiFonzo, Nicholas; Bordia, Prashant; Rosnow, Ralph L. (1994). "Reining in rumors". Organizational Dynamics. 23 (1): 47–62. doi:10.1016/0090-2616(94)90087-6 (<https://doi.org/10.1016%2F0090-2616%2894%2990087-6>). ISSN 0090-2616 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/0090-2616>).
89. Jolley, Daniel (2013). "The detrimental nature of conspiracy theories" (<http://www.psypag.co.uk/wp-content/uploads/2013/09/Issue-88.pdf>) (PDF). PsyPAG Quarterly. 88: 35–39.
90. Robert Brotherton (19 November 2015). "Epilogue". Suspicious Minds: Why We Believe Conspiracy Theories (<https://books.google.com/books?id=awrcCQAAQBAJ>). Bloomsbury Publishing. ISBN 978-1-4729-1564-1.
91. Pierre, JM (2020). "Mistrust and misinformation: A two-component, socio-epistemic model of belief in conspiracy theories" (<https://doi.org/10.5964%2Fjspp.v8i2.1362>). J Soc Polit Psychol. 8 (2): 617–641. doi:10.5964/jspp.v8i2.1362 (<https://doi.org/10.5964%2Fjspp.v8i2.1362>).
92. Aftab, Awais (2021). "There and Back Again: Joseph Pierre, M.D." (<https://www.psychiatrictimes.com/view/there-back-joseph-pierre>) Psychiatric Times. 38 (1).

93. Moyer, Melinda Wenner (1 March 2019). "People Drawn to Conspiracy Theories Share a Cluster of Psychological Features" (<https://www.scientificamerican.com/article/people-drawn-to-conspiracy-theories-share-a-cluster-of-psychological-features/>). Scientific American. Retrieved 16 October 2020.
94. Nefes, Türkay S (2013). "Political parties' perceptions and uses of anti-Semitic conspiracy theories in Turkey". The Sociological Review. 61 (2): 247–264. doi:10.1111/1467-954X.12016 (<https://doi.org/10.1111%2F1467-954X.12016>). S2CID 145632390 (<https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:145632390>).
95. Nefes, Türkay S. (2012). "The History of the Social Constructions of Dönmes (Converts)*". Journal of Historical Sociology. 25 (3): 413–439. doi:10.1111/j.1467-6443.2012.01434.x (<https://doi.org/10.1111%2Fj.1467-6443.2012.01434.x>).
96. Douglas, Karen M.; Sutton, Robbie M. (12 April 2011). "Does it take one to know one? Endorsement of conspiracy theories is influenced by personal willingness to conspire" (<http://kar.kent.ac.uk/26187/1/Douglas%20%26%20Sutton%202011%20BJSP.pdf>) (PDF). British Journal of Social Psychology. 10 (3): 544–552. doi:10.1111/j.2044-8309.2010.02018.x (<https://doi.org/10.1111%2Fj.2044-8309.2010.02018.x>). PMID 21486312 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/21486312>). Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20181103180834/https://kar.kent.ac.uk/26187/1/Douglas%20%26%20Sutton%202011%20BJSP.pdf>) (PDF) from the original on 3 November 2018. Retrieved 28 December 2018.
97. Barron, David; Furnham, Adrian; Weis, Laura; Morgan, Kevin D.; Towell, Tony; Swami, Viren (January 2018). "The relationship between schizotypal facets and conspiracist beliefs via cognitive processes" (<http://westminsterresearch.wmin.ac.uk/20297/1/1-s2.0-S0165178117312301-main-1.pdf>) (PDF). Psychiatry Research. 259: 15–20. doi:10.1016/j.psychres.2017.10.001 (<https://doi.org/10.1016%2Fj.psychres.2017.10.001>). ISSN 1872-7123 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/1872-7123>). PMID 29024855 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/29024855>). S2CID 43823184 (<https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:43823184>).
98. Darwin, Hannah; Neave, Nick; Holmes, Joni (1 June 2011). "Belief in conspiracy theories. The role of paranormal belief, paranoid ideation and schizotypy". Personality and Individual Differences. 50 (8): 1289–1293. doi:10.1016/j.paid.2011.02.027 (<https://doi.org/10.1016%2Fj.paid.2011.02.027>). ISSN 0191-8869 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/0191-8869>).
99. Barron, David; Morgan, Kevin; Towell, Tony; Altemeyer, Boris; Swami, Viren (1 November 2014). "Associations between schizotypy and belief in conspiracist ideation" (<http://westminsterresearch.wmin.ac.uk/14570/1/1-s2.0-S0191886914003821-main.pdf>) (PDF). Personality and Individual Differences. 70: 156–159. doi:10.1016/j.paid.2014.06.040 (<https://doi.org/10.1016%2Fj.paid.2014.06.040>). ISSN 0191-8869 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/0191-8869>).
00. D, Barron; A, Furnham; L, Weis; Kd, Morgan; T, Towell; V, Swami (January 2018). "The Relationship Between Schizotypal Facets and Conspiracist Beliefs via Cognitive Processes" (<http://westminsterresearch.wmin.ac.uk/20297/1/1-s2.0-S0165178117312301-main-1.pdf>) (PDF). Psychiatry Research. 259: 15–20. doi:10.1016/j.psychres.2017.10.001 (<https://doi.org/10.1016%2Fj.psychres.2017.10.001>). PMID 29024855 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/29024855>).
01. Dagnall, Neil; Drinkwater, Kenneth; Parker, Andrew; Denovan, Andrew; Parton, Megan (2015). "Conspiracy theory and cognitive style: a worldview" (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC4340140>). Frontiers in Psychology. 6: 206. doi:10.3389/fpsyg.2015.00206 (<https://doi.org/10.3389%2Ffpsyg.2015.00206>). ISSN 1664-1078 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/1664-1078>). PMC 4340140 (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC4340140>). PMID 25762969 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/25762969>).
02. Stojanov, Ana; Halberstadt, Jamin (2020). "Does lack of control lead to conspiracy beliefs? A meta-analysis". European Journal of Social Psychology. 50 (5): 955–968. doi:10.1002/ejsp.2690 (<https://doi.org/10.1002%2Fejsp.2690>). ISSN 0046-2772 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/0046-2772>).
03. Bensley, D. Alan; Lilienfeld, Scott O.; Rowan, Krystal A.; Masciocchi, Christopher M.; Grain, Florent (2020). "The generality of belief in unsubstantiated claims" (<https://onlinelibrary.wiley.com/doi/abs/10.1002/acp.3581>). Applied Cognitive Psychology. 34 (1): 16–28. doi:10.1002/acp.3581 (<https://doi.org/10.1002%2Facp.3581>). ISSN 1099-0720 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/1099-0720>).

04. Goreis, Andreas; Voracek, Martin (2019). "A Systematic Review and Meta-Analysis of Psychological Research on Conspiracy Beliefs: Field Characteristics, Measurement Instruments, and Associations With Personality Traits" (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC6396711>). Frontiers in Psychology. 10: 205. doi:10.3389/fpsyg.2019.00205 (<https://doi.org/10.3389%2Fpsyg.2019.00205>). ISSN 1664-1078 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/1664-1078>). PMC 6396711 (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC6396711>). PMID 30853921 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/30853921>).
05. Barkun 2003, p. 3.
06. Berlet, Chip (September 2004). "Interview: Michael Barkun" (http://www.publiceye.org/antisemitism/nw_barkun.html). Archived (https://web.archive.org/web/20090402214330/http://www.publiceye.org/antisemitism/nw_barkun.html) from the original on 2 April 2009. Retrieved 1 October 2009. "The issue of conspiracism versus rational criticism is a tough one, and some people (Jodi Dean, for example) argue that the former is simply a variety of the latter. I don't accept this, although I certainly acknowledge that there have been conspiracies. They simply don't have the attributes of almost superhuman power and cunning that conspiracists attribute to them."
07. Imhoff, Roland (17 April 2018). "Conspiracy Theorists Just Want to Feel Special" (https://motherboard.vice.com/en_us/article/9kg8j3/conspiracy-theorists-just-want-to-feel-special). motherboard.vice.com. Archived (https://web.archive.org/web/20190428135251/https://motherboard.vice.com/en_us/article/9kg8j3/conspiracy-theorists-just-want-to-feel-special) from the original on 28 April 2019. Retrieved 6 July 2018.
08. Baigent, Michael; Leigh, Richard; Lincoln, Henry (1987). The Messianic Legacy. Henry Holt & Co. ISBN 978-0-8050-0568-4.
09. Goertzel (1994). "Belief in Conspiracy Theories" (<http://www.crab.rutgers.edu/~goertzel/conspire.doc>). Political Psychology. 15 (4): 731–742. doi:10.2307/3791630 (<https://doi.org/10.2307%2F3791630>). JSTOR 3791630 (<https://www.jstor.org/table/3791630>). Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20060831210103/http://crab.rutgers.edu/~goertzel/CONSPIRE.doc>) from the original on 31 August 2006. Retrieved 7 August 2006.
10. Douglas, Karen; Sutton, Robbie (2008). "The hidden impact of conspiracy theories: Perceived and actual influence of theories surrounding the death of Princess Diana". Journal of Social Psychology. 148 (2): 210–22. doi:10.3200/SOCP.148.2.210-222 (<https://doi.org/10.3200%2FSOCP.148.2.210-222>). PMID 18512419 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/18512419>). S2CID 8717161 (<https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:8717161>).
11. Hofstadter, Richard (1965). The Paranoid Style in American Politics and Other Essays (<https://books.google.com/books?id=XcLSoljnmBcC&q=0674654617>). New York: Alfred A. Knopf. pp. 32–33. ISBN 978-0-674-65461-7. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20190418133817/https://books.google.com/books?id=XcLSoljnmBcC&printsec=frontcover&dq=0674654617#v=onepage&q=This%20enemy%20seems%20to%20be%20on%20many%20counts%20a%20projection>) from the original on 18 April 2019. Retrieved 27 October 2018.
12. Hodapp, Christopher; Alice Von Kannon (2008). Conspiracy Theories & Secret Societies For Dummies (https://archive.org/details/isbn_9780470184080). John Wiley & Sons. ISBN 978-0-470-18408-0.
13. Berlet, Chip; Lyons, Matthew N. (2000). Right-Wing Populism in America: Too Close for Comfort (<https://archive.org/details/rightwingpopulis00berlich>). New York: Guilford Press. ISBN 978-1-57230-562-5. Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20191216201705/https://archive.org/details/rightwingpopulis00berlich>) from the original on 16 December 2019. Retrieved 9 November 2019.
14. Swami, Viren; Coles, Rebecca; Stieger, Stefan; Pietschnig, Jakob; Furnham, Adrian; Rehim, Sherry; Voracek, Martin (2011). "Conspiracist ideation in Britain and Austria: Evidence of a monological belief system and associations between individual psychological differences and real-world and fictitious conspiracy theories". British Journal of Psychology. 102 (3): 443–463. doi:10.1111/j.2044-8295.2010.02004.x (<https://doi.org/10.1111%2Fj.2044-8295.2010.02004.x>). ISSN 2044-8295 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/2044-8295>). PMID 21751999 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/21751999>).

15. van Prooijen, Jan-Willem; Jostmann, Nils B. (17 December 2012). "Belief in conspiracy theories: The influence of uncertainty and perceived morality". European Journal of Social Psychology. 43 (1): 109–115. doi:10.1002/ejsp.1922 (https://doi.org/10.1002%2Fejsp.1922). ISSN 0046-2772 (https://www.worldcat.org/issn/0046-2772).
16. Dagnall, Neil; Drinkwater, Kenneth; Parker, Andrew; Denovan, Andrew; Parton, Megan (2015). "Conspiracy theory and cognitive style: a worldview" (https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC4340140). Frontiers in Psychology. 6: 206. doi:10.3389/fpsyg.2015.00206 (https://doi.org/10.3389%2Ffpsyg.2015.00206). ISSN 1664-1078 (https://www.worldcat.org/issn/1664-1078). PMC 4340140 (https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC4340140). PMID 25762969 (https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/25762969).
17. Bullock, John G.; Lenz, Gabriel (11 May 2019). "Partisan Bias in Surveys" (https://www.annualreviews.org/doi/10.1146/annurev-polisci-051117-050904). Annual Review of Political Science. 22 (1): 325–342. doi:10.1146/annurev-polisci-051117-050904 (https://doi.org/10.1146%2Fannurev-polisci-051117-050904). ISSN 1094-2939 (https://www.worldcat.org/issn/1094-2939).
18. Cassam, Quassim (13 March 2015). "Bad Thinkers" (https://aeon.co/essays/the-intellectual-character-of-conspiracy-theorists). Aeon.
19. van Prooijen, Jan-Willem, and Van Vugt, Mark (2018) "Conspiracy theories: Evolved functions and psychological mechanisms" Perspectives on Psychological Science v.13, n.6, pp.770-788
20. Uscinski, Joseph E. (2 July 2019). "Conspiring for the Common Good" (https://skepticalinquirer.org/2019/07/conspiring-for-the-common-good/). Skeptical Inquirer. Center for Inquiry. Archived (https://web.archive.org/web/20200402135711/https://skepticalinquirer.org/2019/07/conspiring-for-the-common-good/) from the original on 2 April 2020. Retrieved 9 February 2020.
21. Vedantam, Shankar (5 June 2006). "Born With the Desire to Know the Unknown" (https://www.washingtonpost.com/wp-dyn/content/article/2006/06/04/AR2006060400618.html). The Washington Post. p. A02. Archived (https://web.archive.org/web/20110501144444/http://www.washingtonpost.com/wp-dyn/content/article/2006/06/04/AR2006060400618.html) from the original on 1 May 2011. Retrieved 7 June 2006. Sociologist Theodore Sasson has remarked, "Conspiracy theories explain disturbing events or social phenomena in terms of the actions of specific, powerful individuals. By providing simple explanations of distressing events—the conspiracy theory in the Arab world, for example, that the 11 September attacks were planned by the Israeli Mossad—they deflect responsibility or keep people from acknowledging that tragic events sometimes happen inexplicably."
22. Wilson, Keith (1 November 1996). Forging the Collective Memory: Government and International Historians through Two World Wars (https://books.google.com/books?id=ojipBAAQBAJ&pg=PA89). Berghahn Books. ISBN 978-1-78238-828-9.
23. Latour, Bruno (Winter 2004), "Why Has Critique Run out of Steam? From Matters of Fact to Matters of Concern." (http://www.bruno-latour.fr:80/sites/default/files/89-CRITICAL-INQUIRY-GB.pdf) (PDF), Critical Inquiry, 30 (2): 225–48, doi:10.1086/421123 (https://doi.org/10.1086%2F421123), S2CID 159523434 (https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:159523434), archived (https://web.archive.org/web/20120916045752/http://www.bruno-latour.fr/sites/default/files/89-CRITICAL-INQUIRY-GB.pdf) (PDF) from the original on 16 September 2012, retrieved 16 September 2012
24. Kelly, Michael (12 June 1995). "THE ROAD TO PARANOIA" (https://www.newyorker.com/magazine/1995/06/19/the-road-to-paranoia). The New Yorker. ISSN 0028-792X (https://www.worldcat.org/issn/0028-792X). Archived (https://web.archive.org/web/20180409110230/https://www.newyorker.com/magazine/1995/06/19/the-road-to-paranoia) from the original on 9 April 2018. Retrieved 9 April 2018.
25. Barkun 2003, p. 230.
26. Barkun 2003, pp. 207, 210, 211.
27. Barkun 2003, pp. 193, 197.

28. Barajas, Joshua (15 February 2016). "How many people does it take to keep a conspiracy alive?" (<https://www.pbs.org/newshour/updates/math-formula-charts-the-lifespan-of-hoaxes/>). PBS NEWSHOUR. Public Broadcasting Service (PBS). Archived (<https://web.archive.org/web/20171013022744/http://www.pbs.org/newshour/updates/math-formula-charts-the-lifespan-of-hoaxes/>) from the original on 13 October 2017. Retrieved 22 July 2016.
29. Grimes, David R (26 January 2016). "On the Viability of Conspiratorial Beliefs" (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC4728076>). PLOS ONE. 11 (1): e0147905. Bibcode:2016PLoSO..1147905G (<https://ui.adsabs.harvard.edu/abs/2016PLoSO..1147905G>). doi:10.1371/journal.pone.0147905 (<http://s://doi.org/10.1371%2Fjournal.pone.0147905>). PMC 4728076 (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC4728076>). PMID 26812482 (<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/26812482>).
30. Popper, Karl (1945). "14". Open Society and Its Enemies, Book II. London: Routledge and Kegan Paul.
31. "Extracts from "The Open Society and Its Enemies Volume 2: The High Tide of Prophecy: Hegel, Marx and the Aftermath" by Karl Raimund Popper (Originally published 1945)" (http://lachlan.bluehaze.com.au/books/popper_open_society.html). Lachlan Cranswick, quoting Karl Raimund Popper. Archived (https://web.archive.org/web/20060903232539/http://lachlan.bluehaze.com.au/books/popper_open_society.html) from the original on 3 September 2006. Retrieved 5 September 2006.
32. Cumings, Bruce (1999). The Origins of the Korean War, Vol. II, The Roaring of the Cataract, 1947–1950. Princeton, NJ: Princeton University Press.
33. Friedersdorf, Conor (29 October 2011). "Ron Paul, Conspiracy Theories, and the Right" (<https://www.theatlantic.com/politics/archive/2011/12/ron-paul-conspiracy-theories-and-the-right/250638/>). The Atlantic. Retrieved 30 August 2020.
34. Roose, Kevin (4 March 2021). "What Is QAnon, the Viral Pro-Trump Conspiracy Theory?" (<https://www.nytimes.com/article/what-is-qanon.html>). The New York Times.

Further reading

- Aaronovitch, David (2010). Voodoo Histories: The Role of the Conspiracy Theory in Shaping Modern History (<https://archive.org/details/voodoohistories0000aaro>). Riverhead. ISBN 978-1-59448-895-5.
- Arnold, Gordon B., ed. (2008). Conspiracy Theory in Film, Television, and Politics. Praeger Publishers. p. 200. ISBN 978-0-275-99462-4.
- Burnett, Thom. Conspiracy Encyclopedia: The Encyclopedia of Conspiracy Theories
- Butter, Michael, and Peter Knight. "Bridging the great divide: conspiracy theory research for the 21st century." Diogenes (2016): 0392192116669289. online (<http://hssfoundation.org/wp-content/uploads/2018/05/KX-48-20-abstracts.pdf>)
- Chase, Alston (2003). Harvard and the Unabomber: The Education of an American Terrorist (<https://archive.org/details/harvardunabomber00chas>). New York: W. W. Norton. ISBN 978-0-393-02002-1.
- Coward, Barry, ed. (2004). Conspiracies and Conspiracy Theory in Early Modern Europe: From the Waldensians to the French Revolution. Ashgate Publishing. ISBN 978-0-7546-3564-2.
- "Conspiracy Theories" (<http://www.maxwell.syr.edu/uploadedFiles/news/Conspiracy%20Theories.pdf>) (PDF). CQ Researcher. 19 (37): 885–908. 23 October 2009. ISSN 1056-2036 (<https://www.worldcat.org/issn/1056-2036>).
- Cziesche, Dominik; Jürgen Dahlkamp, Ulrich Fichtner, Ulrich Jaeger, Gunther Latsch, Gisela Leske, Max F. Ruppert (2003). "Panoply of the Absurd" (<https://www.spiegel.de/international/spiegel/cover-story-panoply-of-the-absurd-a-265160.html>). Der Spiegel. Retrieved 6 June 2006.
- De Graaf, Beatrice and Zwierlein, Cornel (eds.) Security and Conspiracy in History, 16th to 21st Century (<https://www.gesis.org/en/hsr/full-text-archive/2013/381-security-and-conspiracy/>). Historical Social Research 38, Special Issue, 2013
- Fleming, Chris and Emma A. Jane. Modern Conspiracy: The Importance of Being Paranoid. New York and London: Bloomsbury, 2014. ISBN 978-1-62356-091-1.

- Goertzel, Ted. "Belief in conspiracy theories." Political Psychology (1994): 731–742. online (<http://www.crab.rutgers.edu/~goertzel/CONSPIRE.doc>)
- Harris, Lee. "The Trouble with Conspiracy Theories," (<https://web.archive.org/web/20130114231139/http://american.com/archive/2013/january/the-trouble-with-conspiracy-theories>) The American, 12 January 2013.
- Hofstadter, Richard. The paranoid style in American politics (1954). online (<https://web.archive.org/web/20170116220729/http://www.fuminyang.com/michelle/Paranoid%20Style.pdf>)
- Johnson, George (1983). Architects of Fear: Conspiracy Theories and Paranoia in American Politics (<https://archive.org/details/architectsoffear00john>). Los Angeles: Jeremy P. Tarcher. ISBN 978-0-87477-275-3.
- McConnachie, James; Tudge, Robin (2005). The Rough Guide to Conspiracy Theories. Rough Guides. ISBN 978-1-84353-445-7.
- Melley, Timothy (1999). Empire of Conspiracy: The Culture of Paranoia in Postwar America. Ithaca, New York: Cornell University Press. ISBN 978-0-8014-8606-7.
- Meigs, James B. (2006). "The Conspiracy Industry" (<https://web.archive.org/web/20061024062122/http://www.popularmechanics.com/science/research/4199607.html>). Popular Mechanics. Hearst Communications, Inc. Archived from the original (<http://www.popularmechanics.com/science/research/4199607.html>) on 24 October 2006. Retrieved 13 October 2006.
- Nefes, Türkey Salim (2012). "The history of the social constructions of Dönmes". Journal of Historical Sociology. 25 (3): 413–39. doi:10.1111/j.1467-6443.2012.01434.x (<https://doi.org/10.1111%2Fj.1467-6443.2012.01434.x>).
- Nefes, Türkey Salim (2013). "'Political parties' perceptions and uses of anti-Semitic conspiracy theories in Turkey". The Sociological Review. 61 (2): 247–64. doi:10.1111/1467-954X.12016 (<https://doi.org/10.1111%2F1467-954X.12016>). S2CID 145632390 (<https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:145632390>).
- Oliver, J. Eric, and Thomas J. Wood. "Conspiracy theories and the paranoid style (s) of mass opinion." American Journal of Political Science 58.4 (2014): 952–966. online (<http://hon3397p.wp.txstate.edu/files/2015/08/OliverWood.pdf>)
- Parsons, Charlotte (24 September 2001). "Why we need conspiracy theories" (<http://news.bbc.co.uk/1/hi/world/americas/1561199.stm>). BBC News – Americas. BBC. Retrieved 26 June 2006.
- Pipes, Daniel (1998). The Hidden Hand: Middle East Fears of Conspiracy. New York: St. Martin's Press. ISBN 978-0-312-17688-4.
- Pipes, Daniel (1997). Conspiracy: How the Paranoid Style Flourishes and Where It Comes From. New York: The Free Press. ISBN 978-0-684-87111-0.
- Pigden, Charles (1995). "Popper Revisited, or What Is Wrong With Conspiracy Theories?". Philosophy of the Social Sciences. 25 (1): 3–34. doi:10.1177/004839319502500101 (<https://doi.org/10.1177%2F004839319502500101>). S2CID 143602969 (<https://api.semanticscholar.org/CorpusID:143602969>).
- Sagan, Carl (1996). The Demon-Haunted World: Science as a Candle in the Dark. New York: The Random House. ISBN 978-0-394-53512-8.
- Slosson, W. "The 'Conspiracy' Superstition," (<https://archive.org/stream/unpopularreview07newy#page/394/mode/2up>) The Unpopular Review, Vol. VII, N°. 14, 1917.
- Sunstein, Cass R., and Adrian Vermeule. "Conspiracy theories: Causes and cures." Journal of Political Philosophy 17.2 (2009): 202–227. online (<http://www.ask-force.org/web/Discourse/Sunstein-Conspiracy-Theories-2009.pdf>)
- Uscinski, Joseph E. and Joseph M. Parent, American Conspiracy Theories (2014) excerpt (<https://www.amazon.com/dp/0199351813/>)
- Uscinski, Joseph E. "The 5 Most Dangerous Conspiracy Theories of 2016" POLITICO Magazine (Aug 22, 2016) (<http://www.politico.com/magazine/story/2016/08/conspiracy-theories-2016-donald-trump-hillary-clinton-214183>)

- Vankin, Jonathan; John Whalen (2004). The 80 Greatest Conspiracies of All Time. New York: Citadel Press. ISBN 978-0-8065-2531-0.
- Wood, Gordon S. "Conspiracy and the paranoid style: causality and deceit in the eighteenth century." William and Mary Quarterly (1982): 402–441. in jstor (<https://www.jstor.org/stable/1919580>)

External links

- Conspiracy Theories \(http://www.iep.utm.edu/conspira/\), Internet Encyclopedia of Philosophy
-

Retrieved from "https://en.wikipedia.org/w/index.php?title=Conspiracy_theory&oldid=1028648035"

This page was last edited on 15 June 2021, at 06:26 (UTC).

Text is available under the Creative Commons Attribution-ShareAlike License; additional terms may apply. By using this site, you agree to the Terms of Use and Privacy Policy. Wikipedia® is a registered trademark of the Wikimedia Foundation, Inc., a non-profit organization.